Of the Trust pictures Biograph weighed in with two good ones, "The Lily of the Tenements," February 27, and "Conscience," March 9. No. Biograph, that "third degree" failed to impress. "The Writing on the Blotter," which was first noted in the Edison plant on March 3, arrived this week and was a big success. I have been watching with a great deal of interest the work of Edison's leading woman. She has never, to my knowledge, done anything except in a highly artistic manner, and appears to be gifted with a great amount of personal magnetism which never fails to reach us. Essanay really gave us a good comedy in "Han's Millions," which they released on March 21, and Gaumont's beautiful film. "Breakers in the Clouds," was a rare treat and delight. The "Breakers" were first sighted March 14. "Grandmother's War Story," a Kalem subject, which was told for the first time February 15, came back for a return date and we "listened" to the silent recital with the same keen pleasure as when we first heard it. Kalem, your "Mexican Filibusters," which you turned out for approbation March 3, was one of the big hits of the week. "Mandy's Social Whirl," taken for the initial time March 16, came this week, and it would have been a much better success had "Mandy" not overdone her work, especially where table manners are concerned. Too bad the director insisted on that feature, for even a girl of "Mandy's" environments would not have behaved as this woman did. That part of the picture was rotten. "An Escape of Gas," which became obnoxious from the Pathe factory the same day that the question was asked, "Who Killed Max," February 24, failed to convince, especially the "gas" feature. The Max half of the reel, however, was a clever satire and fling at A. Conan Doyle. We enjoyed a good laugh at the Vitagraph reel, "The Widow Visits Springtown," and her first call was made March 24. She was a little late in getting here, but was appreciated just the same.

The foregoing are some of the pictures we have looked at. If ever a "first run" picture gets here it will give us heart failure.

THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

THE AMERICAN FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY
Enterprise Personified

In the latter part of the month of September, 1910, motion picture circles were surprised, pleased and otherwise affected by an announcement appearing simultaneously in all of the theatrical publications in the United States and abroad, setting forth the formation of a new, but old, organization for the manufacturing of motion pictures. The announcement "came out of the West"—in truth from the "Windy City" on the shores of Lake Michigan. That there was little wind, however, in the announcement was well attested by the reading matter of announcement in question.

The personnel of the new concern, the American Film Manufacturing Company, as announced in the advertising pages of the various publications, was composed of men old and experienced in the ways of motion pictures; men who had played the game virtually since its inception; men whose technical knowledge omened well for their noted success in the new field; new in that they had, each and every one of them, only just completed the severance of the shackles that had bound them heart, soul and pocketbook to the, at that time, powerful combination known as the Motion Picture Patents Company.

Comment on this virtual revolution was rife and the remark was passed, by people who knew, that while this move was not the beginning of the end it gave a new impetus to the toboggan upon which the Trust was sliding at an ever increasing speed toward its eventual dissolution.

The promotion, organization and launching of this new concern was the fruit of the efforts of Mr. A. M. Kennedy and Mr. S. S. Hutchinson. Mr. A. M. Kennedy is a man known nationally as a shrewd and capable all-around film man, a man who had occupied, for a period of two years, the unique and enviable position of being simultaneously the business manager of one of the large Trust manufacturers, and the manager of one of the largest film rental concerns in the United States. Mr. Kennedy is known as a man who "delivers" and his penchant for delivering that which he goes after has been more than proven in the results attendant upon his new enterprise, the American Film Manufacturing Company.

A. M. KENNEDY

Associated with Mr. Kennedy in the new enterprise was a man known throughout the land as being one of the most conservative, shrewdest and brainiest film renters in the Central States. Mr. S. S. Hutchinson, who is now, and has been since its inception, the president of the American Film Manufacturing Company, has been the financial adviser and the balance wheel of the new organization. The enormous amount of money requisite to the proper launching of an enterprise so large had to be taken care of, and Mr. Hutchinson's work along these lines, and in this particular instance, is too well known to require comment.

The necessity for releasing their film immediately, this necessity arising from a peculiar condition of the market at the time, naturally discounted the efforts of the producers and the technical force of the American Company in their first few releases, but it was not long before they had attained their stride and were in the forefront of the Independent manufacturers in point of quality and sales. Such successful film creations as "The Squaw and the Man," "Bertie's Bandit," "The Mission in the Desert," "College Chums" and "The Talisman" assured this new concern the enthusiastic support of the exhibitors, but there apparently is something in the atmosphere of Chicago which laughs at limitations and which throws defiance at "the usual thing." This truth was forcefully impressed upon the public when the American Film Manufacturing Company announced that they proposed to release two reels of film a week, commencing with their first release date. Old men and wise in the game prophesied their immediate dissolution, bankruptcy and disgrace. Their dire predictions have been shattered, however, in a manner conducive of a great amount of respect to the Kennedy-Hutchinson alliance that made possible the present undoubted success of the American Film Manufacturing Company.

In conversation with Mr. Hutchinson a few days ago the writer ascertained that the American Film Manufacturing Company would release two Western films each week. Mr.

MR. S. S. HUTCHINSON

Hutchinson is not a talkative man, but in this instance his enthusiasm as well as his words carried conviction.

"The new slogan of the American organization, commencing week of April 24th, will be 'All wise Independents buy and boost "Flying A" cowboy pictures.' Commencing on that date we eliminate the studio product from our ken. Our releases will be comprised solely of films made IN the West—OF the West, and BY the largest company of motion picture talent west of the Rockies, under the direction of the best producer of Western film in the West. These assertions of mine are not far-fetched, as the mettle of our western company has been tried and proven. Only yesterday, in conversation with an exhibitor from Vincennes, Indiana, he informed me that upon his exhibiting our Western comedy entitled 'Bertie's Bandit' in his theater his audience actually stood on their seats and roared with glee. He said that an encore in his theater was the exception, but that in this instance the audience encored this particular reel four and five times. It is this popularity of our Western productions, coupled with my knowledge of the fact that there is a great dearth of Western films on the Independent market that has decided us upon our announced policy of releasing nothing but Western films.

"It may be interesting to your readers to know that one of these Western films each week will be of a dramatic nature, the other a Western comedy, and whenever possible two on one reel. The demand that exists for split reel comedies, coupled with the demand that there is for Western film, in my opinion augurs well for the success of our announced departure. I have seen our first Western negatives and I can honestly say to you that they conquered me. I confidently predict that the Independents, as a body, will acknowledge the American pictures as 'some class' before many moons, and that all of the exhibitors will declare, with conviction, that 'all wise Independents buy and boost "Flying A" cowboy pictures.'"

MY IMPRESSION OF MOTION PICTURES—THREE YEARS BEHIND THE SCREEN

The question is so frequently asked me, "Do you think that moving pictures have come to stay?" that, in the language of the small boy, "it makes me tired."

My answer invariably is "yes, forever," and I back up my assertion by the argument that the moving picture show is the "poor man's show," which means the show for the great majority.

Of course there are thousands of persons of means who patronize the five and ten cent houses to enjoy the pictures because they cannot see them anywhere else. That is not the reason the wage-earner goes. He takes his wife and children to see the pictures because they are entertaining and instructive and he can afford to. An ordinary drama would cost him as much to enjoy, alone, as he would spend for his entire family at a picture show. Therein lies the pictures' strength—anybody and everybody can afford to see them.

Again, if there was not a well-defined idea among business men in general that the moving picture industry was here to stay, so many astute persons would not be ever ready to invest their money in it, not only in the way of places where the pictures are exhibited but in the manufacturing of the films, projecting machines and accessories. The ordinary layman or outsider doesn't realize that millions are invested in this line of business and more going in each week—and these investors know what they are doing. It may cost thousands to produce a single picture, but the producers do not balk at initial cost, for they have a market waiting and eager for their goods. In New York City alone a quarter of a million persons view the pictures daily. Schools and colleges are using moving pictures along educational lines. So, why should they not last, in view of this great demand?

In the making of pictures the scenario is a prime factor, and where so many are written, whether by a regularly employed playlet writer or by various persons who have ideas and think they can write, it is no wonder that some of the scenarios fall far short of making good pictures. Nevertheless, any director who claims to be competent to have charge of the posing of moving pictures has no excuse for slighting ordinary common-sense details in such posing.

No use to specify to what I refer, for every exhibitor, who has half an eye, knows what I mean. I do not know of more than three or four directors who produce pictures, consistently, where the story runs coherently and the details are not slurred over.

This lack of attention to details certainly detracts from the value of any picture and such a picture has no lasting quality.

Another weak point in many pictures is using a young woman to play an old woman's part. This would not be so bad if the young women, posing in pictures, were experienced actresses and versed in the art of "make-up."

These young women are generally selected by the director on account of their pretty faces and youthful figures and when they are cast for "old women" their whole idea seems to be to put on a gray wig.

No attention is paid to the lines in the face nor a proper change in figure, such as belongs to a woman past her prime. This is where the director falls down again. The French are more careful and consistent in this respect.

Not long ago, the actors and actresses, posing in the moving pictures, went through with their action, with never a word spoken, so their faces lost a good part of the expression necessary to clearly tell the story intended. Now, directors, as a rule, try to get their people into the spirit and atmosphere of the situations by having them speak lines while acting their various rôles. This certainly adds to the naturalness of the pictures. In exhibiting the pictures, the illusion is still further heightened if the characters are all made to appear as speaking, by having competent people carry on the full conversation behind the screen.

By competent people I mean those who have had stage experience and know how to read lines correctly from a dramatic standpoint and know dramatic values.

If any doubt exists in the mind of any manager that a picture is not improved and made doubly interesting by being "talked," let him try it out by running a picture once with first-class people speaking the lines and then run the picture, silently, next show. Applause, laughter, tears will follow, in the first instance and nine times out of ten the "silent" gets by without a murmur.

I have put on a picture, with my company, in one of Poli's theaters, before an audience of twenty-five hundred people and the applause was simply terrific, in fact so vociferous that we were obliged to cease talking several times during the running of the picture and wait for the applause to subside.

In another instance, at a well-known theater in Boston, we were talking a pastoral picture, in which a country boy, after having left home and experiencing success and subsequent reverses, had returned, broken in purse and spirit. The final scene showed him asleep in his old room and his mother bending over him. The lines delivered by the mother in this scene were tender and motherly and the audience was moved to tears.

The manager told me it was the most impressive picture ever shown in his house, made so by the "talkers."

Had the picture been run silently, the impression would have been nil, in comparison. The climax came when a little old lady addressed the manager and with streaming eyes told him her boy used to work in this same theater, had gone away and never written for a year. Did the manager know where he worked and would he ask him to write to his old mother? She had seen this picture, heard the mother grieve over her son, and it made her think of her own boy and long for him.

The old mother's heart would never have been so touched by the silent picture. As compared with vaudeville, such as seen in picture theaters, the talking pictures, properly presented by a first-class company of from three to five persons, will win in favor every time.

The average moving picture exhibitor cannot afford vaudeville acts worth anything, therefore, he puts on only the cheapest acts, utterly lacking in talent or entertaining qualities.

Some exhibitors argue that a certain percentage of their patrons demand vaudeville. Perhaps they do, but the majority passively endures the infliction of the so-called vaudeville for the sake of the pictures. I have never heard a manager say that anyone ever found fault with talking pictures, as I present them, while, on the contrary, press and public have hailed them as a welcome addition to the bills in the various houses of the "big time."

Certain it is that a picture is fully doubled in value and made more entertaining and better understood if interpreted by a competent company of "talkers."

The managers and owners of the best and largest picture theaters do not retain "dead ones" on their bills for months at a time, and that my company has enjoyed a vogue of nearly three years, in such theaters, proves my assertion.

WM. CALHOUN.

134 East 14th Street, New York City.

MAY AUFDERHEIDE

May Aufderheide stands in the very front rank of brilliant and taking composers. Her work is not only catchy and tuneful, but it has that dainty touch of the woman that gives the music a tone fragrance which is a delight; Miss Auderheide's music is ever welcome upon my desk, it is looked for in my home where I play it to a chorus of child voices, whilst in the theater it is of the class and standing the cynical critic loves to hear audiences appreciate and applaud.

Mrs. May Aufderheide Kaufman is daughter of J. H. Aufderheide, of the publishing company of that name, of Indianapolis, and comes of a talented musical family. Her father, J. H. Aufderheide, is a finished violinist. She was educated at Mrs. May Wright Sewall's School, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Hazen's School in Pelham Manor, New York, and spent one year abroad. She always displayed unusual talent for music, playing at five years of age; composed her first piece about the age of eighteen years, "Dusty Rag" by name. At this time this piece is one of the best sellers in the publishing company's house. She has been most happy in selection of titles such as "Richmond Rag," "Buzzar," "Thriller," "Bamboo Land," "Totally Different" and others.

As Miss Aufderheide composed her first piece just before her marriage, she has always written all compositions under her maiden name and has never had her marriage name appear on any of the titles. Her new issues, which appeared April 1st, were as follows: "You and Me in the Summer Time," "Drifting in Dreams With You," "Gee But I Think a Lot of You," "I Want a Patriotic Girl," "Novelty Rag," "Pompeian Waltzes," "I Want a Real Lovin' Man."

Lewis M. Swaab, of Philadelphia

We always like to meet a foe worthy of our steel, and when we get one of such caliber we know that we are going to have a fair square deal and no undue or unfair advantage will be taken. Such a man we consider Lewis M. Swaab and we think the majority of the Independent renters must agree with us. As a member of the Patents Company he was staunch and true to them. He fought the Independents every possible opportunity that he could find. It no doubt gave him enemies, but every right-thinking man must acknowledge that he stood up for his rights. Oftentimes he was approached with a view to becoming Independent and refused. He wanted to well establish his position and act accordingly. When the blow came unexpectedly to him and dealt very unfairly the blow struck below the belt altogether unlooked for, yet it did not knock him out. He rose superior to his troubles and came over to the Independent ranks. As such he will no doubt render herculean service. He is energetic, keen and honorable in all the dealings we have had with him. We understand he is moving into better premises at 129 North Eighth street, by the time this issue reaches our readers.

THIRD THANHOUSER "LECTURER" IN A MONTH

Following Frank Crane and "The Thanhouser Kid" in the same month, a third Thanhouserite has taken to picture lecturing after his day's work at New Rochelle is done. Martin J. Faust, who played the leading rôles in "Robert Emmet," "Vicar of Wakefield" and other "classics," is number three. He did a talk on "Robert Emmet" during the running of the reel at the Eldorado Theater. Wilkins avenue, Bronx, New York City, on Friday, April 7th. The picture and its leading character were well received.

The Thanhouser offices report the completion of a new set of five photos of principal players, 11 by 14 inches in dimension, which they will send, postage prepaid, to exhibitors for a dollar with order. Interested "Independents" should address the Theater Department of the Thanhouser Company.

THE MAKING OF A MOVING PICTURE MACHINE

A Visit to Nicholas Power Company s Plant

A representative of the Moving Picture News paid a visit to this factory a few days ago and under the guidance of Mr. Baxter Morton was shown through every branch of the business, and a very interesting showing it was. When we take the moving picture machine we are inclined to ruminate and go back to reminiscences from the beginning.

Meteoric in its dash from oblivion, the moving picture industry has solidly established itself on the plane of permanency from a novelty exciting the people to a wonderment as to how it was done. The motion picture has found a definite place of unique value to every branch of science and a broad avenue of pleasure for the amusement loving world. Owing to the rapidly increasing popularity of moving pictures the business of manufacturing machines for projection has become a prominent factor in the industrial world, employing vast numbers of mechanics of the highest grade, skillful and highly trained in their line; in fact, we may say that only the most expert of instrument makers are employed to insure absolute perfection in every detail. Column after column of matter has been written and published, showing how films are made from the time of their exposure to the projection machine and exhibited to the public. This branch of the industry, while necessary to gain publicity, has been eulogized, and but little has been said about the main tool that makes for perfection the results, namely, the projecting machine upon which the success of the whole picture depends, and it is our intention to give our readers an insight into the inner workings of the factory.

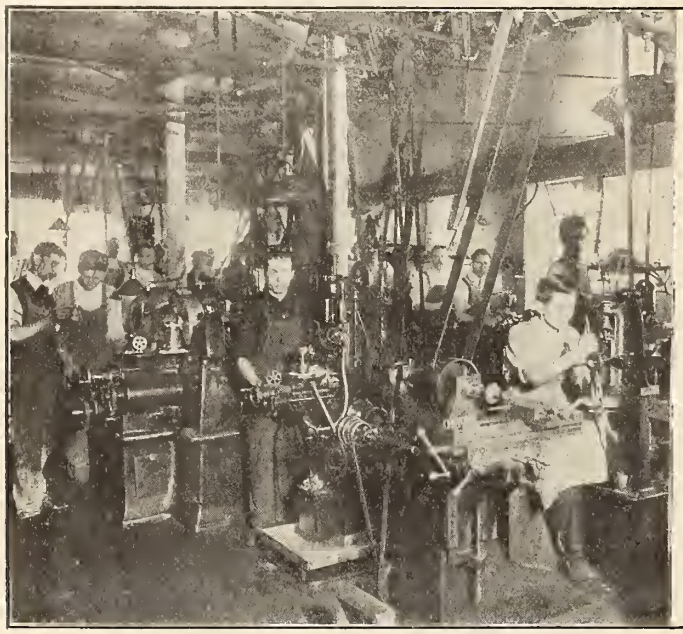

Fig 2. MILLING MACHINES

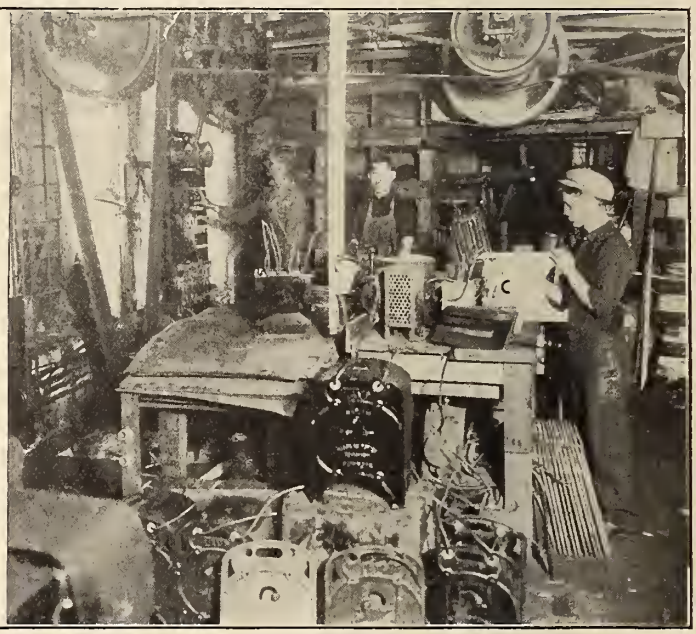

Fig. 1. RHEOSTAT DEPARTMENT

After a little desultory talk and trying to locate where we should first begin, we ultimately decided upon the electrical department where rheostats and inductors are built and tested. Our picture No. 1 shows a corner in this department of the plant and shows the instruments in different stages of construction, while the electrician at the back is making a test of the capacity of one of the instruments.

The next department visited, the gear-cutting department, is shown in cut Fig. 2. In the foreground is one of the milling machines. The type of machines used in this branch are the most expensive that can be purchased and are made so accurate that they work up to one-fourth of one-thousandth of an inch in perfection. Of special interest, shown in the left of the picture, are two automatic spiral gear-cutting machines of which a number are in use on this floor and Mr. Morton informed us that these are the most modern machines that can be procured for the work they perform, and they insure in the gears of Power's cameragraph, in every sense of the word, the height of perfect accuracy.

Fig. 4. ASSEMBLING DEPARTMENT

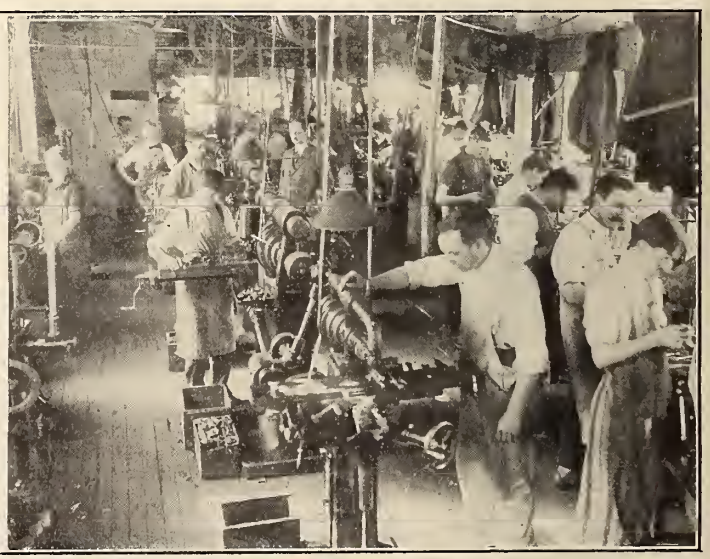

Fig. 3. MILLING DEPARTMENT

tently look at the cut they will discover the Messrs. Baxter Morton in the middle foreground, and Nicholas Power and H. B. Coles to the rear of the right.

Passing onward into the next department, shown in our Fig. No. 4, we came to the filing department where a host of men are shown finishing castings for the various parts of the cameragraph. From the filing department we passed to the assembly room in which we were unable to obtain a sat-

From this department we were taken through a Chinese puzzle and labyrinths of machines to another department in which the milling machinery is shown more in extenso in cut No. 3. This department is devoted chiefly to tool making, but here also the parts for the intermittent movement are chiefly made, and we may say that these machines are used for nothing but this work. If our readers will inisfactory photograph because our camera faced a row of windows through which the sunlight streamed. This is one of the busiest parts in the whole factory, and, to show the perfection and the care exercised in fitting the parts properly, one machine goes through the hands of many men until it is thoroughly tested out and passes the foreman who gives his

(Continued on page 21)

MR. NICHOLAS POWERS
President

MR. BAXTER MORTON
Vice-President and General Manager

"POET OF THE PEOPLE," A NOTABLE THANHOUSER ISSUE

Independent Advanee Is Plainly Noticeable In This Foreign "Historical" of American Make

The great advance in production by the American picture makers, that has been at once the talk and the marvel of film circles the past year, is well shown in some of the recent "Thanhouser Classics," and perhaps better in a story from French history just filmed than in any of the very satisfactory others. The News refers to "The Poet of the People," a picture announced for release on Tuesday, April 21.

The reel gives a most accurate view of life in the middle ages, when the upper classes were really up, and the eommon folk had naught in common except sharp suffering, starvation and oppression.

In the France of the early Louis the people became so resigned to the hard fate that never was a murmur heard from them. But a poor poet and his poetry changed this terrible complexion of things a bit and helped prepare the people to think the "revolutionary" thoughts that came to mean the downfall of despotism in the reign of the Sixteenth Louis. It is this very poet's story that the picture tells. Frank Crane portrays him, and Julia Marie Taylor his titled sweetheart.

The story relates that the poet, one Grengoire, feels keenly the wrongs of his people, who are terribly misused and ground down by the nobles of his day. He feels most keenly the fact that the King heeds not their cries for justice. He is a dreamer, not a practical man, and feels he can do nothing to help the people, except present their wrongs to them in such language that they themselves will be brought to a realization of their oppression, and will rise in their might and fight for justice.

One day, after having seen a poor old woman struck a cruel blow, by a servant of the rieh, Grengoire gathers the people of the streets about him, and reads them his poem, entitled "The King Laughs While the People Starve." This takes place direetly before the house of Annette, a beautiful girl, ward of the King. The King himself, incogn to, happens to visit Annette and her father on this same day and notices the crowd before their house as he enters. When he sees Annette he questions her concerning the disturbance, she tells him the crowd are listening to a fellow called Grengoire, "the poet of the people," whom she has noticed they greatly admire. The King's curiosity is greatly aroused, and he orders Grengoire brought before him. The King then demands that Grengoire read his poetry. Grengoire, knowing the King must be some great nobleman, although he does not suspect him of being the King himself, hesitates about reading verses against the King. He is, however, tempted by the offer of a good meal, and as the poet is almost starving, he is indueed to comply with the request.

The King is furious when he hears himself criticized thus in verse, and orders Grengoire's arrest, and immediate execution. But he has become interested in the ragged poet, and as a last favor, promises to grant him any request that he may make. Grengoire asks for an interview with Annette, whom he has long worshipped from afar, but to whom he has never spoken. This favor the King grants, and Grengoire is brought to Annette's house. Here she allows him in his interview with her to tell her of his hopes for bettering the conditions of the people, and he speaks so eloquently, that not only does she espouse his cause, but actually falls in love with the ragged noet himself.

Grengoire is led away to execution at the termination of his interview, and when Annette learns that he is to die, she pleads with all her soul to the King for his pardon, confessing her own great love, and bringing the King to a realization of the fact that the poor poet meant good only, and that even the harsh judgment of the King and the nobles was to a great extent deserved by them. Just as the noose is being tightened around the unfortunate's neck, the King and Annette appear at the foot of the scaffold, and stopping the execution, the King grants Grengoire a full pardon, plaees his hand in that of Annette, and tells the crowd assembled to witness the hanging that he can promise something much better—a wedding.

M. P. Benevolent Association

We want to call attention of our New York readers to an advertisement of the above association, and trust they will patronize so deserving an institution, if not by their presence, at least by monetary help, purchasing tickets of admission. The association has already rendered valuable aid to several operators, who found themselves under stress of cireumstances.

LAEMMLE PLANS NEW SERIES OF "IMP FILMS DE LUXE"

Special and Extraordinarily Expensive Pictures To Be Sold as Regular Releases "Every Now and Then" Without Extra Cost to Buyer

Acting on the theory that it is always wise to give the moving picture public something out of the ordinary, Mr. Carl Laemmle, president of the Imp Company, has just completed plans which have been in a formative stage for several months, whereby a series of "Imp Films de Luxe" will be produced. No extra charge is to be made to exchanges for such releases, which will be produced "every now and then," as Mr. Laemmle puts it.

The first of the de Luxe series is "The Scarlet Letter," the release date of which has already been announced. It is said to be the most ambitious effort made by any film manufacturer for some time, containing more performers and having a more elaborate setting than many films which have been released in the past and sold at extra prices.

"It is a fierce proposition to keep digging up something new to give the public nowadays," said Mr. Laemmle, "but not an impossible one by any means. Exhibitors and exchanges have formed the habit of looking to the Imp Company to pull off new stunts all the time, and it keeps us on our mettle.

"I believe the series of Imp films de luxe will be a ten-strike, but it is only one of several innovations which we are either planning or putting in work. In the de luxe series we have instructed the stage directors to ignore the matter of expense completely. If the cost of production runs up higher than the receipts from the sale of a de luxe film, well and good. It will be money well spent, if even for nothing but the advertising value and the pleasure that it gives our customers. I am going to produce an Imp film de luxe at least once a month and probably oftener. There will be no regular period between de luxe releases, but rather they will be brought out whenever we succeed in getting a story that is strong enough to be staged as a real de luxe film.

"The Imp Company does not propose to live on its reputation or rest on its oars. Just because we are now one of the biggest sellers in the world, selling more prints than several companies ten years older than we are is no sign that we are going to sit back and take it easy. We have seen other film manufacturers make that mistake in the past and we are going to profit by their experience.

"Since we commenced using Eastman stock exclusively a few weeks ago, we have been enabled to produce more satisfactory results photographically. We have heard from a good many of the exchanges, congratulating us on the use of Eastman stock—in fact, during the past few months we have heard nothing but congratulations on everything we have done. It has been so long since a legitimate complaint was lodged against any Imp film that we are begining to believe we have almost reached perfection as far as the mechanical end of the business is concerned.

"Getting the mechanical end in good condition is one of the things that makes it possible to work on our de luxe series. In fact, henceforth I see nothing to hamper us from waking up the whole trade with improvements that will clinch the warm friendships we already enjoy.

"Of course there is a lot of duping going on and of course Imp films are being duped more than others because the duper, like death, loves a shining mark. We don't propose to play the role of mark much longer, for we have finally found a way to make the duper cut out his crooked work. And when we begin to put it into operation, you'll have some news that will be worthy of a scare headline."

THANHOUSER CO.

"We are trying in our humble way," said Edwin Thanhouser, "to be to the motion picture business what the New Theatre is to the theatrical business. We are sacrificing money to art, a little here and a good deal there, but we actually think we are attaining our ideals."

With this, the head of the House of Thanhouser gave in a gist the exact aim of his moving picture efforts.

"We are after uplift," he stated. "We are essaying the big things that we feel filmdom needs. Subjects that heretofore many film producers have not approached, we are staging with full success. I believe we are making a lasting impression on the public mind, both from an artistic and an educational standpoint. Our start in this direction has stood us in good stead, and today observers place us among the best in our particular line."

Mr. Thanhouser led the interviewer to the great raised stage whereon his picture plays are enacted. An impressive scene was in rehearsal. Careful attention to detail marked the settings. The scene as you saw it was clearly the result of most careful preparation.

"The detail," said Mr. Thanhouser, "is one of the little items that will make 'The Pillars of Society' a big picture."

"What!" said the News' man, "Ibsen's 'Pillars of Society?'"

"Yes," was the reply, "Henrik Ibsen's story. I was the first man to give it an extended presentation as a play in America. This was at my Milwaukee and Chicago theatres several years ago. As a film it is likely the first of Ibsen's stories to be motion pictures.

"Now, it gives you enough uplift, enough human interest, enough of a moral to make you think—and that's what the motion picture is coming to make mankind do. By this latter, I don't mean that people are no longer going to the picture theatre to smile, but they are now also accustomed to get food for thought and reflection there.

"They get just enough of that in this Ibsen story—just the proper measure.

"I think this reel is a good sample of what I consider 'good material.' It is representative of the results we are aiming at, results that place the moving picture on a higher plane and gain for our particular brand a world-wide respect."

MORTIMER FILM CLEANER

This invention relates to devices for cleaning moving picture films. One of the principal objects of the invention is to provide simple and efficient means for thoroughly cleaning both sides of the film as it is being rewound. Another object of the invention is to provide a simple device adapted to be secured to the shelf upon which the reels are mounted. The device comprising a pair of removable pads for the upper and lower surface of the film; said pads being removably secured to a pair of blocks hinged together and provided with means for locking them in position to permit the film to pass between the pads as it is rewound upon the reel. A pair of brushes are secured to the device, said brushes being designed for sweeping off any particle which would be liable to injure the film in passing between the pads.

It is a well known fact that films are liable to collect dust, dirt, drops of oil or other particles which are magnified in the reproduction of the picture and which have a tendency to destroy the effect of the same upon the screen.

The invention is of simple construction, is reliable and efficient for its purpose of thoroughly cleaning both sides of the film; does not interfere with the rewinding operation, and does not take extra time in cleaning. The glass plate at the top of cleaner is very handy for splicing the film.

This machine is manufactured by the Mortimer Film Cleaning Co. of Portland, Maine.

William E. Greene, of Boston

We believe we are right when we say that the man in the cinematograph industry holding any capacity, whether as manufacturer, renter or supply dealer, who does not know William E. Greene has undergone a Rip Van Winkle sleep. The subject of our sketch is the foremost man in the whole industry, as an exhibitor who has stuck to his principles of independence from the commencement. He is of New England stock—one of the bravest of the brave. We well remember from the commencement that he would not sell his soul, and while he has been handed lemon after lemon by the dupers at the commencement of the F. S. A. and was taken in by men who ought to have been his best friends, yet at the same time he held strongly and powerfully to the cause of the Independents.

The license manufacturers tried every possible way they could to induce him to join their ranks; conference after conference took place, but our good friend W. E. Greene had nailed his colors to the mast and could not get them down without tearing them, and this he would not do. He furthermore stands in the front rank for honesty of principle and integrity in business arrangements, his word is truly his bond and it is a pleasure for any man to call W. E. Greene, of the W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc., a friend. Our only prayer is that there were more like him, that if every man, of whatever section of the industry, held the same principles as our friend does the industry would profit.

THE MAKING OF THE MOTIOGRAPH

The producing of the best motion picture machine obtainable with adequate facilities for so doing has in the past been neglected to a great extent by the manufacturers, but with the growth of the industry, and the erection of theaters at an expense far beyond the dreams of the most sanguine in the early days of the photoplay house, the manufacturers, learning that the requirements were more exacting than in the early days of the business, now employ every possible facility to produce a machine in keeping with the modern photoplay house.

A visit to the plant in which the motiograph motion picture machine is made, by the Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co., in Chicago, will convince the most skeptical as to the thorough and careful manner in which this machine is constructed.

The Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co. is one of the pioneers in the manufacturing of projection machines, having begun business in January, 1898, about the time that the motion picture business had assumed such proportions as to be called a commercial success. At that time the exhibition of moving pictures was carried on mostly by the traveling exhibitors, with the few exceptions of such vaudeville theaters as made motion pictures one of the turns on their program, and films in those days were made mostly in short lengths, averaging from fifty to two hundred feet. As the business was mostly in the hands of traveling exhibitors and the principal requirement in those days was portability, in this line of manufacture the Enterprise Company was easily first, placing on the market a light and portable, yet well made, outfit, many of which are in use to this day, and their product has always been noted for its accuracy and general excellence throughout, and the demand for machines of their manufacture has continued to grow with each new model this company has produced.

In addition to motion picture equipments, the company is also a large manufacturer of stereopticons, magic lanterns, portable gas-making outfits, lantern slides and such other accessories as are needed in the production of high-class entertainments.

The motion picture machine on which the business was begun has been improved from time to time, and when a few years ago the business took on a new turn in the form of a five-cent theater, which required films of one thousand feet to be used on a reel, and the machine should be in almost constant use, covering a period of from three to twelve hours a day, with a much heavier amount of current used in the arc lamp, the company began work October 1, 1906, with a view to producing a machine that was especially adapted to meet all the requirements of motion picture theater work, and with the assistance of special facilities already acquired and the employment of special tool makers and pattern makers, succeeded in completing the special tools, dies, jigs, patterns, etc., in a period of fourteen months, and made delivery of the first motiograph in December, 1907. In spite of the speed with which preparations and manufacturing were pursued ,the machine was a success from the start, and very soon the company was compelled to seek larger quarters in order to increase its manufacturing facilities.

In passing it might be said that the first motiograph is still in use in the Colonial Theater, at Kalamazoo, Mich.

The Enterprise Company is located in the Ruprecht building at the corner of West Randolph and Jefferson streets, a fireproof structure of brick and reinforced concrete, and occupies the entire third and fourth floors, or more than twenty thousand square feet of space. On the third floor are the general offices, as well as stock rooms, stock vault, photographic dark rooms, slide dry rooms, coloring and art department, receiving and shipping rooms, sheet metal department, final assembling and inspection departments, and one of the special features on the third floor is the demonstration room, fifty-five feet in length, in which all equipments are tested before being shipped, and in which demonstrations, showing effects at different distances, are given.

SINGLE MOTIOGRAPH, 1911

The feature of much interest to the visitor is the size of the fireproof vault, in which are stored thousands of dollars worth of lenses, calcium jets, finished lantern slides, photographic negatives for lantern slides, and, in fact, all of the small accessories required in the business. This vault is twenty-six feet long, sixteen and a half feet wide, and eleven and a half feet high.

The fourth floor is devoted exclusively to the manufacturing department, and the fireproof vault for the manufacturing department is of the same size as the one on the third floor, and is of the utmost importance because of the great length of time required to make the special tools, dies, jigs, patterns, etc., whose loss would practically put the company out of business in case of fire of sufficient proportion to destroy the special tools contained in this vault. The value of these special tools alone is approximately thirty-five thousand dollars.

In the manufacturing department it is astonishing to find that such a large quantity of machinery is required, especially in view of the fact that nothing other than the motion picture machines, gas outfits and other optical projection apparatus for the use of motion picture exhibitors are made in the factory. The heavy requirements, however, were explained by Mr. Roebuck, who states that many manufacturers made a practice of having a great many of their parts made by jobbing shops; but that in the manufacture of a machine so well made as the motiograph, such a method, while possible, was not practicable, because in order to make the parts of machines in several shops it is necessary to allow a much greater variation in the sizes of the parts which are vital to the production of steady and brilliant pictures. In order to make all of their parts with a view to maintaining the high standard of quality they have established, the makers of the motiograph have invested in machinery a great many thousands of dollars. They say they make all of their parts except the castings and other rough material. It was explained also that the quality of the machinery employed is of the best.

Among the interesting things that we saw when visiting the plant are the automatic gear-cutting machines on which ten or a dozen gear blanks may be placed at one time, and the teeth cut automatically by the machine; the only attention that is necessary being to set up the machine properly, keep it in adjustment from time to time and place and remove the arbors containing the gear blanks to be cut.

Another interesting feature was the automatic grinding machine, which, when properly set and adjusted, will automatically grind parts to a fraction of a thousandth of an inch. We were shown intermittent sprocket shafts and sprocket wheels which were picked up at random, the sprocket wheel being placed on the shaft where it fitted quite snug to the extent of requiring some little force, yet not so tight that they could not easily be put in place and removed by hand. This remarkable accomplishment, we were told, is brought about by the use of the most accurately ground gauges.

In addition to the fitting of the intermittent sprocket shaft, it was explained that all other high-speed shafts and other parts where great accuracy would improve the results are ground and fitted in the same manner, and that the grinding operation is not such as is usually referred to as ground parts, but that they are ground to practically a polished finish.

The president of the company explained that one of the greatest troubles experienced is in getting mechanics sufficiently skilled in the production of fine work. There are plenty of machinists to be had, but this line requires a class of workmanship that comes between the manufacture of ordinary machinery and clock work.

The polishing room of the plating department is a model arrangement and shows what this company does to protect the health and contribute to the comfort of its workmen. Besides the three double direct-connected electric buffers, which dispense with belts that stir up the dust, there is an exhaust fan system for removing dust. A pipe with an intake is placed under each set of buffs and the forced draught of air draws the dust into this pipe and carries it outside of the building.

The sheet metal department was explained as a necessity in order to get the class of goods desired by the company, and getting them without unnecessary delay. In this department are made the lamp houses for the motiograph, magic lanterns and other optical projection apparatus.

STEREO MOTIOGRAPH, 1911

Additional machinery amounting to a cost of several thousand dollars has been installed, and a considerable number of additional workmen employed.

It was shown that the company is almost constantly experimenting at the cost of several thousand dollars per year, with a view to improving its products from time to time. Considering the great amount of energy and expense that is being devoted by the management of this company, we may reasonably expect, in addition to the numerous things already accomplished, very important additional developments on the motiograph from time to time.

In closing we are advised by the manager of the company that the motiograph sales for the first three months of 1911 have just doubled those of 1910, and this is not because the sale of machines generally has increased, but is a recognition of the excellency of this company's product, which is evidenced by the installation of the 1911 model motiograph by those exhibitors who have been so successful with earlier models of this machine.

The Dressler Manufacturing Co.

Chas. E. Dressler, at 386-388-390 Second avenue, New York City, has a new and fine equipment of tools with which he turns out an accurate line of goods. He manufactures the American projectograph, which has been many years on the market.

Many exhibitors have duplicated the orders for this machine. Mr. Dressler is also manufacturing parts for motion picture machines and every piece that leaves his factory is tested with a specially constructed testing machine—thus insuring perfectly accurate parts.

The repetition of orders testify to the satisfaction these parts are giving, and it is with special pride that we can recommend Mr. Dressler's line of goods, and the exhibitor will also find his repair department of special interest; reasonable prices and quick work prevails.

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E. E.

MERCURY ARC RECTIFIERS FOR MOTION PICTURE MACHINES

The principal drawing card of a motion picture theater consists of good films of popular subjects, projected by brilliant light from a good machine handled by a competent operator. The selection of all these components, with the exception of light, is under the ready control of the theater manager, but, in the case of light, he himself has been more or less governed by the character of the electric current available.

In other words, where alternating current only was available, he has been compelled to get along with an insufficiency of light although at a comparatively low cost, and, where direct current could be obtained, he has had the benefit of satisfactory light but at a higher expense.

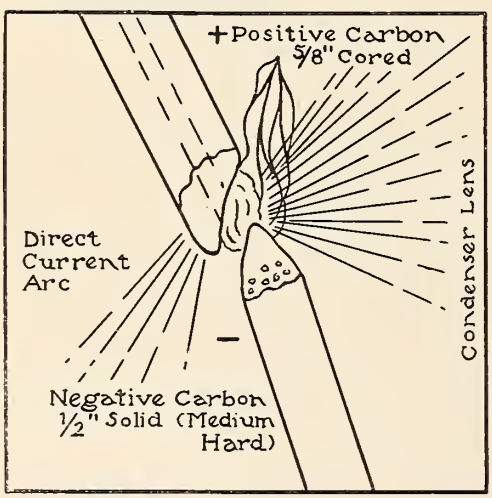

FIGURE 29

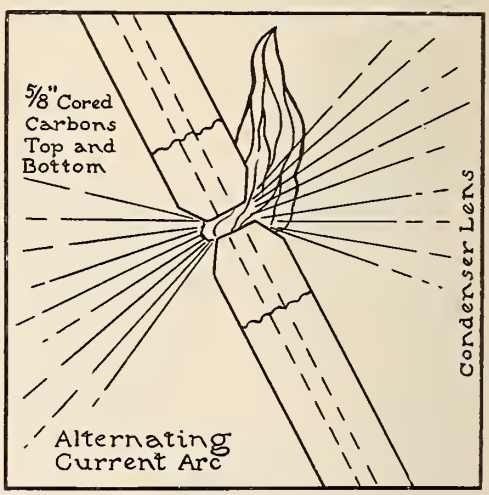

FIGURE 30

The reason for this is well known to those who have investigated the subject, not for the purpose of mere controversy, but for obtaining accurate information for developing suitable apparatus to furnish motion picture machines with the best light at the lowest cost. It is an open question, however, as to whether motion picture operators in general have much more than an ocular or partial knowledge of the fact that a better light for projection purposes can be obtained from a direct current arc than from an alternating current arc under the most favorable conditions of operation in either case.

When any matter is the subject of controversy, actual experiments are the only means which afford impartial and convincing facts. Furthermore, the intellectual attainments of the investigators and the facilities at their command serve to establish the degree of authority to which their conclusions are entitled.

Careful photometric tests made in the ILLUMINATING ENGINEERING LABORATORIES of the GENERAL ELECTRICAL COMPANY and elsewhere afford the following facts relative to the causes tending to affect the quantity and quality of the light obtainable from direct current and alternating current arcs regardless of the factor of energy consumption. In both cases it is found that the lamp carbons are in the most favorable position when tilted back from the condensing lens at an angle of 30 degrees. In the case of the direct current arc, which forms a brilliant crater at the center of the upper carbon thus throwing most of the emitted light downward, the tilting back of the carbons, with the lower carbon placed slightly forward, Figure 29, results in the formation of the crater on the front of the tip, thus throwing practically all the emitted light through the condenser lens and film onto the screen. In the case of the alternating current arc the advantage of tilting back the carbons is not so apparent, because the entire tips of both carbons are made incandescent by the arc, thereby causing the light rays to radiate uniformly in all directions, and although the tilting back of the carbons serves to increase the amount of light directed toward the lens, a large percentage of the total light emitted is wasted by being directed toward the sides and rear of the arc. Figure 30.

While these results show the inherent inferiority of the light-giving characteristics of the alternating current are for projection purposes, other experiments for ascertaining the behavior of both types of arc when operated with different current values, and for determining the amount of energy required for producing various light intensities, serve to still further accentuate not only the inferiority but also the inadequacy of the alternating current arc. For instance: to obtain 5,000 candlepower with alternating current requires over 60 amperes, while direct current gives the same light intensity with approximately one-third the current. Furthermore, the light from the former is more or less uncertain, owing to the wandering of the arc around the tips of the carbons, thereby often forming the most luminous spot at the back of the electrode, while the direct current light is steady, white and brilliant. It is noteworthy also that while 5,000 candlepower is about the maximum obtainable with al- ternating current on account of serious electrode troubles when using 60 amperes, 12,000 candlepower can be readily obtained with a direct current of 40 amperes.

Since a light intensity upwards of 8,000 candlepower is now considered necessary for the successful projection of first-class motion pictures, the inadequacy of the alternating current arc under any condition of operation is clearly apparent. And since it is well known that the prohibitory cost of using direct current is due to the loss of at least 60 per cent in the resistance of rheostat used for regulating the current in the arc, the problem to be solved involves the conversion of alternating current into direct current by some method less expensive than the use of convertors of the rotary type.

According to present electrical developments the mercury arc rectifier affords the only practicable solution of this problem. On test this apparatus enabled the production of 5,000 candlepower with an energy consumption of 1.7 kilowatts. To obtain the same light intensity—from an alternating current with approved economizer required 2.1 kw.; from a 110-volt direct current with rheostat required 2.25 kw.; from a 110-volt alternating current with rheostat required 7 kw.

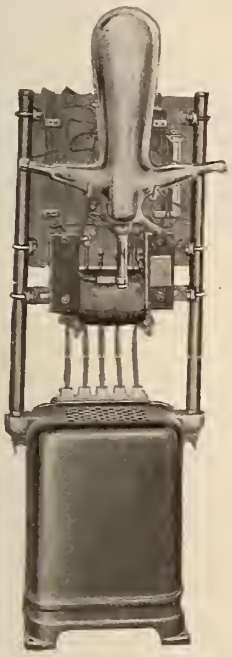

FIGURE 31

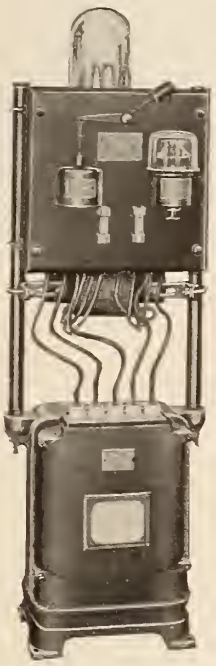

FIGURE 32

A comparison of these values gives some idea of the saving in energy consumption effected by the use of a mercury arc rectifier, to say nothing of the advantages of the superior quality of the light obtained from the direct current it supplies.

Of the results of numerous other tests the following example is particularly significant: 30 amperes on the arc from a mercury arc rectifier gave 8,500 candlepower with an energy consumption of 2.5. kw. as against 1,600 candlepower obtained from alternating current.

Although the very general use of mercury arc rectifiers for charging the storage batteries of electric automobiles have rendered them more or less familiar to many, a brief description of the design applicable for motion picture service may be of interest. The back view of the apparatus, Figure 31, shows the glass bulb or rectifier tube mounted on the panel. It is through the agency of the mercury vapor in this tube that the current is changed from alternating current to direct current. The generation of the mercury vapor is started by rocking the tube. In the motion picture type of rectifier this is accomplished by the action of an electro magnet. The iron box resting on the floor contains the compensating reactance. The latter device not only performs an important function in rectifying the alternating current but also serves to reduce the alternating current voltage to the voltage required on the arc, thus acting in a manner somewhat similar to the alternating current economizers used with motion picture lamps, which, however, give only alternating current. Therefore, it is evident that the use of the rectifier combines all the advantages of the alternating current with economizer method with the superior quality of light obtainable from direct current.

The same rectifier can be readily adapted to either 110 or 220 volt alternating current circuits by making a slight change in the connection, and putting it into operation is a very simple matter. After the rectifier has been connected to the line and the alternating current switch closed, the tips of the lamp carbons are brought together, whereupon the electro magnet or shaking coil on the panel starts the tube to rocking, thereby causing the generation of the mercury vapor. The commencement of the rectifying process or the "starting of the tube" is indicated by the tube emitting the greenish-blue light peculiar to mercury vapor lamps. As soon as the rectifier tube is started the arc is struck by drawing the lamp carbons apart, and the length of the arc is regulated by the distance allowed between the tips of the carbons. The proper length of a direct current arc is about ½ inch. If the current in the arc is not sufficient, the desired current can be obtained by means of the adjustable reactance mounted on the back of the panel. As a rule 25 amperes will give sufficient light for the ordinary size pictures, but 30 amperes can be obtained if necessary, and will give an excellent light, with properly adjusted carbons. Figure 32 shows the front view of the mercury arc rectifier.

(Continued from page 15)

O. K., which denotes the perfect assembly of the machine.

From the assembly room we pass to the screw-cutting machinery where a whole series of turret lathes were seen in operation cutting the screws of different types as used in the various parts of the machine. In the rear is a forge for forging and case hardening the various parts.

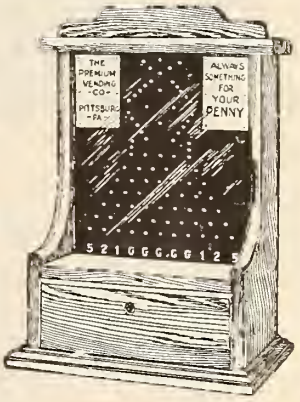
From this department we went to the lathe room, shown in cuts No. 5 and 6, where they were turning out for the various shafts, spindles and other round parts required in the machine.

From here we went to the stamping department where we saw huge machinery of a capacity of 30,000 pounds pressure, used for stamping out all the sheet metal parts of the machine, such as shutters, front plates and the like.

It was a most interesting visit and we trust our readers may be able to follow through the various illustrations the vast industry emanating from the works of Nicholas Power Company of cameragraph fame.

The output is sixty machines per week or three thousand a year.

WE WANT



ONE THOUSAND

Moving Picture Men

to operate PREMIUM pin machines and get rich, or if already so, to get more wealth. Why not you? PREMIUM pin machines have become an institution in every candy store. By placing a machine in your retailer's store you will monopolize his trade and squeeze out competition.

Mr. Flint of Mo. writes: "Kindly accept thanks for introducing me to a gold mine.

Ten machines will support you. Fifty machines operated will prove a mortgage lifter to you.

We make them out of Oak or Metal.

Percentage of winners arranged so that from every twenty dollars deposited in the machine twelve dollars will be your profit. If so advised will make it still more.

Write to-day for exclusive territory to

PREMIUM VENDING COMPANY
5636 WALNUT ST. PITTSBURG, PA.

THE NEW HOME OF THE "HALLBERG ECONOMIZER"

In order that his many out-of-town friends and customers may obtain a good idea of his new quarters, 36 East 23rd street, New York, Mr. Hallberg has furnished the Moving Picture News with the accompanying illustrations showing his private office, main office and exhibition room, testing and demonstrating room, and the shipping and stock room.

Cut No. 1 shows Mr. Hallberg's private office.

Cut No. 2 illustrates the main office and sales room where are displayed all standard makes of moving picture machines, the various sizes of Hallberg economizers, rheostats, ticket choppers, exhaust and ventilating fans, opera chairs, announcement slides, spot lights, flame arc lamps, etc. Mr. Hallberg carries in stock the most complete assortment of high-grade motion picture and stereopticon lenses in New York City, as well as repair parts for all motion picture machines. The cut also shows the various electrical apparatus connected to both alternating and direct current circuits ready for demonstration.

No. 1

Cut No. 3 illustrates the demonstration and testing room with miniature screen, enabling Mr. Hallberg to give a graphic exhibition of the operation of all makes of moving picture machines, with and without the Hallberg economizer attached; also to show the difference in quality of light by using a rheostat or the Hallberg economizer and by attaching a watt meter, volt meter and ammeter demonstrate the current saving. Mr. Hallberg has also in this room other makes of current saving devices and is prepared to demonstrate all his claims for the economizer in comparison with them. His complete equipment of all electrical measuring instruments enables him to convince the most skeptical of the merits of the economizer. In this room are also tested the lenses for the moving picture machines; and moving picture lenses are matched to the stereopticon lenses by actual process—not guess work—insuring a correct fit so that every machine is shipped with an equipment to meet the special requirements of the exhibitor.

No. 2

No. 3

Cut No. 4 shows one of the stock rooms where Mr. Hallberg carries supplies of all kinds used in the moving picture business, enabling him to make prompt shipments.

The offices are completely equipped with the Hallberg economizer and special incandescent lamps, saving two-thirds on electric bill for general lighting.

Mr. Hallberg extends a cordial invitation to the trade to call on him and will endeavor to make the visit both interesting and profitable.

No. 4

Niagara Slide Co.

As slide manufacturers we have just passed our first birthday, and, although new in the field, are shipping a large number of slides all over the United States, receiving many testimonials in regard to their beauty, clearness on curtain, artistic designs, etc. The company is composed of W. C. Humphreys, president and general manager, and E. J. Burdick, treasurer. Mr. Burdick is also sole owner of the Burdick Music House, and has furnished several beautiful songs, which have been illustrated by New York artists, and sung all over the country.

Rex Company

Mr. Engel says of this company that for the short time they have been releasing films their progress has been phenomenal. They have stood upon their merits and the results have been such that the exhibitor and the public have been more than pleased, resulting in satisfaction to the exchange men. Several hundred forcible letters of recommendation have been received and with one accord the exhibitors seem to feel that Rex has accomplished a great deal, and they are proud to exhibit their brand of film. It is very seldom that a manufacturer of motion pictures comes into prominence as quickly as has been the good fortune of Rex to attain.

It seems Rex is a favored film throughout the country, and many, many have been the inquiries as to when the Rex Company would bring out their second release per week. The Rex Company will announce their second release in a month or two. The pictures that the Rex Company have been producing have been creditable, being entirely different from the other manufacturers, inasmuch as the stories have been different and showed a masterhand in production. The novelties and light effects as well as tinting and toning and good photography with the details carried out have been commented upon most favorably by critics and it is safe to say that the Rex Company have established themselves with a reputation that speaks in the highest terms and expectations.

At the present time Rex can safely say that they have more than exceeded their anticipation of what they expected to do at the commencement, and their thanks are due to those loyal supporters who took Rex film upon its merits, and for the future will say that these productions are only an earnest of what they purpose bringing out.

The motto is Rex and as such it will constantly improve and disseminate such pictures, satisfactory from every standpoint of the moving picture art, and it is their hope and endeavor to always retain the premier position and still be the Rex of motion picturedom.

The handsome lithographs that the Rex Company have issued from week to week have stirred the country. The compliments that have been showered upon the Rex Company have shown the appreciation of the exhibitors for the advance made in this direction by the Rex Company, and in anticipation of the surprises the Rex Company have up their sleeve to spring from time to time we are led to believe that for manufacturers as well as general consistent good productions we may look forward from week to week to the Rex Company to furnish the excitement in the trade. They are surely a very progressive concern and the ginger that they have instilled in everything they have done proves their ability and good intentions. For your information keep your eyes on Rex and don't miss a single release.

"BUD NEVINS, BAD MAN"
Scene from American Film Co.'s Western release

ALL ROUND MAN

Camera, Darkroom, etc. Seven years' experience, seeks situation. Apply "UTILITY," M. P. News.

Hello, Here's Flimco Again!

Guess What He Is Doing Now!

I'll bet you can't guess what the old boy is up to now. Try it. Solve this baffling mystery. If you can't do it, watch for the solution. It is coming. Here's a start:

"General Flimco is

_____"

Fill in the blank. Note the expression on the back of his dear old nut. Maybe you can get a tip from that. If not, watch for the solution. And in the meantime, join the THREE THOUSAND OTHER EXHIBITORS WHO HAVE BOOTED THE FOXY OLD GENERAL OUT OF THEIR THEATRES IN THE PAST TWELVE MONTHS! Come to Laemmle and get a dose of Laemmle service and "Laemmle Luck." I'm doing the biggest and best business I ever dreamed of. Come to it!

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.

Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
209 Fifth St., Des Moines, Iowa.

The biggest and best film renter in the world.

Champion Film Company

Mark M. Dintenfass says:—After several unsuccessful seasons of building operations and contracting work on the outskirts of Philadelphia in which I had lost the larger portion of my savings, I thought I would try the moving picture industry, seeing that it was new and very attractive.

In the early part of March, 1905, I rented 1319 Market street, Philadelphia. I designed a beautiful Gothic front and had it elaborately and attractively equipped and started in the moving picture industry by opening "Fairyland." I was successful and branched out with other small moving picture theaters. This success, however, attracted other competitors and eventually competition compelled me to investigate the cameraphone as an additional attraction. My theater became the most popular one in Pennsylvania on account of this novelty and the attention that I had given it personally.

MARK M. DINTENFASS

This success prompted me to invest money in a concern known as the Actophone Company, but the pictures were not of the high class that suited my ambition. I withdrew and finally organized the Champion Film Co., about July 1, 1910. Since that time we have, beyond any question, made wonderful progress. Our pictures seem to please and give entire satisfaction. Of course, we have had our bumps that go with the manufacturing of moving pictures, as it is well known that this game is not an easy one, but we are proud that we have entirely overcome all obstacles and the numerous letters and comments which we received from all over the United States have encouraged us very much and put new life into us and the hundreds of requests after our release of February 22d, "The Old Man and Jim," taken from the poem of James Whitcomb Riley, have prompted us to release another reel, and beginning with Monday, April 17th, we will start our initial second weekly release entitled "With Stonewall Jackson," showing the battle between General Stonewall Jackson and General Sheriden at Winchester, and every Monday in the future we shall endeavor to release spectacular subjects based entirely upon American history of which there are hundreds of interesting, educational subjects.

We hope to have the co-operation of our Independent exhibitors and exchanges, and we want to assure you that no efforts or expense will be spared in order to make the product of a high standard.

We may add that our studio and factory at Coytesville, New Jersey, is well equipped to meet all demands.

At the same time accept our heartiest congratulations and thanks for what you have done not only personally for us, but your paper has been of great value to the entire moving picture industry and especially to the Independent movement.

How to Write a Motion Picture Play

Our new book in seven parts tells all. How to Write, What to Write, How to Get Ideas and work them up in picture form. First complete work on this subject. Worth $50 to any one. Send a $1 bill or money order for the book, today, and learn to be a motion picture playwright. Edition limited.

AMPS PUBLISHING COMPANY
902 Chicago Opera House Block Chicago

This interesting picture will explain to the worried competitors why the Miles Bros. Film Exchanges, Los Angeles, Cal., are doing a rushing business. It is a photo of E. C. Miles, of Miles Bros., San Francisco, and F. C. Dawes, their Los Angeles manager, covering Southern California in an airship on the lookout for new business. These enterprising business men have found it necessary to employ the most modern means of transportation to cover the large area they are at present supplying with an up-to-date film service.

He Got His

Milwaukee, Wis., 4/8, 1911.

Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.,
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—

After the success I had in running your film "Uncle Sam Watching the Mexican Border" and the satisfaction it gave my many patrons I could not resist the temptation of having the front photographed and writing you about it. Under seperate cover I am mailing you a copy of the photograph.

For steadiness and clearness of detail this film is as near perfection as can be made and it certainly is a pleasure to recommend work of this kind. Any moving picture house running this film properly displayed and advertised cannot help but make money on it.

Respectfully yours,
O. L. MEISTER,
Manager Vaudette Theatre.

P. S.—Take note of the show case in the front displaying antique Mexican Relics.

You Get Yours

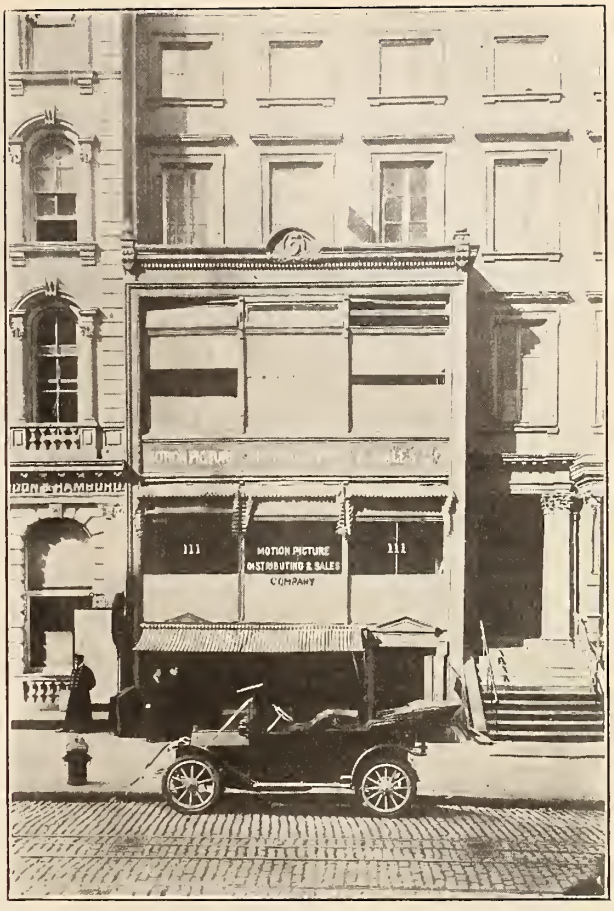
¶ Ask your exchange for this money-maker. There is no regular release date for it and he can get a copy any time at ten cents per foot. Notice the dandy Uncle Sam poster in the picture.

¶ Ask your Exchange also for the other Lumiere Special — $25,000,000 fire of the New York State Capitol and the great New York Factory Fire on the same reel, with a most interesting 500 feet of the New York Giants in training at Marlin Springs, showing the opening guns and the baseball veterans and recruits of the battle of 1911.

SOLD ONLY BY

M.P.D. & S. CO.

111 East 14th St., New York City



MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES CO.

A Unique Institution in the History of Commercial Concerns

Commercial records, if investigated, would show that possibly no other commercial concern is conducted along the lines of distribution followed by the Sales Company. To this concern has been given the exclusive agencies for the products of all the Independent manufacturers and importers regularly releasing moving picture films in the country at the time of the Sales Company's re-organization in Chicago in May, 1910.

The Sales Company was conceived by Charles O. Baumann and Ad Kessel and organized by them. Carl Laemmle and Edwin Thanhouser, at a time when they, P. A. Powers and David Horsley were the only Independent manufacturers in this country, prepared to release regularly each week. Its history, dating from December, 1909, and January, 1910, would record simply a series of "labor pains" leading up to the Chicago event of May 7, 1910, when a lusty youngster was presented to the waiting Independent film world, to show it the only way films could be successfully made and marketed outside the Trust coterie. This child had the advantage of possessing all the experience gathered in the unsuccessful attempts of individuals to corner the Independent supply, consisting, up to that time, mostly of European products. Coming as he did from the brains of Baumann, Laemmle, Kessel, Swanson, Miles, Powers and Steiner, he knew moving picture history all through the wildcat days, when Lubin was glad to sell his product in any quantity at six cents a foot, dupes or originals; when Edison divided a voluminous catalogue into Class A and Class B, the latter taking up by far the largest part of the catalogue and consisting entirely of dupes from foreign positives. He brought with him, as from a past incarnation, memories of the days when Selig would dupe anything worth duping, and few films indeed were passed over in those days as being unworthy of that now thoroughly condemned craftsmanship. He saw again the day when the Biograph with their large stock of unwieldy, wide films were beset by the exhibitors for the standard size film, and to meet the demand they reduced by a reprinting process their wide films to the standard sizes, losing so much in the process as to render results that would be considered nowadays as junk, but which were then gobbled up by the hundred thousand feet at ten to twelve cents per foot.

His upper lip stiffened with proud determination when he contemplated the Independent manufacturer in his efforts to approach in a few months the standard of quality that took the older manufacturers as many years to reach. A broad smile wreathed the youngster's face when he thought of Ullman calling together that memorable Astor House banquet party at which the Edison licensed manufacturers' scheme was conceived. In thoughtful mood he followed the devious ways of the Edison license agreement period and of the Film Service Association, which died a peaceful death in Detroit last July. He recollected distinctly how the Czar-like methods of the Motion Picture Patents Company, successors to the momentum created by the Edison licensed manufacturers, and familiarly known as the Trust, drove to the verge of commercial suicide many an exchange man and exhibitor who as pioneers in the industry had been accustomed to absolute freedom in their operations and who after years of uninterrupted prosperity were absolutely at a loss to conceive of how a small number of manufacturers could combine, and all of a sudden assume control of an industry that had been a gradual growth from the days of Muybridge and his revolving glass disk; unmolested for years and having invested their savings and earnings in the business, they could not understand any condition which would entitle a few men to say that only they had the right to make moving pictures to supply a demand that was beyond their power to satisfy.

Our bright youngster, guided by the failures of the Film Import and Trading Company and the International Projection & Producing Company, and the important rôle played by the National Independent Alliance, was able to avoid the errors of those movements and thus bring credit to his progenitors.

Grown to young manhood, strong and healthy, we will here desert our allegorical youngster and hereafter touch upon what has been accomplished in a short time by a body of men enthusiastic on the subject of increasing the quality of the Independent product and fixed in their determination to prevent a groundless monopoly from squeezing out of business one-half of the exhibitors of the country.

The Sales Company is an agency organized with capital outside and distinct from all manufacturing interests and is distributing and willing to distribute the product of any Independent manufacturer or importer on a commission basis so far as they consider the requirements of the market demand. By its system of collections on films distributed by it, and the prompt payment to the Independent manufacturers for their products, the Sales Company has enabled the manufacturers to consistently and steadily improve their output. If any of the manufacturers now distributing through the Sales Company at the present time are not making films of a sufficiently high standard, it is not due to the fact that they are not trying nor to the fact that they are not putting sufficient money in their equipment and negatives. It is necessary to mention the following three items in order to offset any complaints that have been made in the past against the product of the Independent manufacturers whose agencies the Sales Company handles.

First: Elimination of equipment, which, though costing as much as thoroughly reliable apparatus, was installed by them at a time when they were forced to take whatever was available in the emergency of meeting an insistent and growing demand for Independent goods.

Second: The acquisition of a working force both in laboratory and studio with such esprit de corps as will bring about the proper artistic and mechanical results.

Third: The use of the best raw stock available which has only recently been secured to the Independent manufacturers from the Eastman Kodak Company in continuous and unlimited quantities and which is being used on all Independent productions handled by the Sales Company since April 1st of this year.

Money can buy good equipment, but it takes time to obtain and install it.

The second item mentioned money cannot purchase. Thousands of dollars have been spent in an effort to secure this elusive factor without success. Then all of a sudden, after months of fretting and worrying and after financial losses, the quality comes and an investigation shows that that necessary unanimity of purpose of the working force has been attained. It does not require an old player at the moving picture game to distinctly recall when the Biograph films were rank, the Edison films were refused on every hand, and it only required the mention of the name Lubin to drive a customer out of an exchange; Kalem was execrable and Essanay a joke. Yet all were spending thousands on their productions.

With the assistance rendered by the Sales Company the Independent manufacturers found their orders growing week after week. In fact, the Sales Company record shows an uninterrupted weekly increase in sales. With the orders pouring in the manufacturers were brought to realize that they were destined to receive better returns on their investments than they had anticipated in so short a time, and with the true spirit of game men they declined to declare dividends, but fired their profits back into their business. Big plants were starred and every dollar obtained was turned into improvement of film quality. They have vied with one another in getting stock companies of performers, laboratory staffs and new mechanical equipment. They are paying big prices for men with records of efficiency, and the picture loving public have felt the new force and are everywhere clamorous for the Independent products handled by the Sales Company. The exchanges, discovering themselves backed up by real earnest effort, have gone after trade with double energy, and exhibitors, quick to observe the new possibilities, have broken away from their former sources of supply and hundreds of houses have been reopened with Independent films that were compelled to close on account of their inability formerly to secure a non-competitive program.

There are more and better places of exhibition in this country now than ever, and all due to the efforts of the Independent manufacturers backed up by the untiring efforts of their agents, the Motion Picture Distributing and Sales Company.

All talk about an "open market" and all complaints against the Sales Company by certain factors, that the Sales Company's policy is one not conducive to highest development of quality, come from trade papers looking for new advertisements or stock-jobbers looking for investors. The plea of any trade paper for an "open market" on the ground that in that way only can the acme of quality be attained is absolutely unfounded.

Of these seekers for new advertisers and investors the following questions should be asked: Would the Trust manufacturers and the manufacturers marketing through the Sales Company have attained anything like their present standard of quality without organizations whose aims have been to eliminate the evils and so regulate the business as to encourage the manufacturers to make the investments necessary to improve the quality of their products; and without these organizations to guarantee the commercial integrity of the industry would any of the present would-be manufacturers be anxious to embark in a business they now know so little of, and would they be willing to hazard the one hundred thousand dollars to two hundred thousand dollars which each will have to contribute before he can hope to show any figures on the profit side of his ledger?

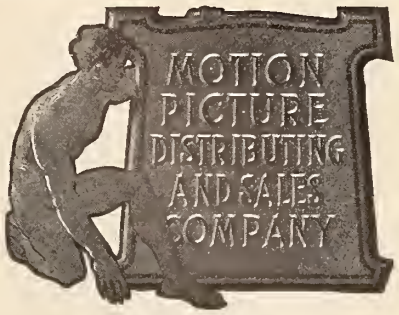
Any exhibitor or exchange man can prove beyond a doubt that dividing the visible supply of films and restricting their use to certain houses as under the present system is the only way in which the present large number of houses could have been opened and furnished a non-conflicting service.

The number of brands now being handled by the Sales Company is sufficient to supply the present needs of the Independent exhibitors of this country and Canada and this number will be added to at any time the demand increases. In Europe and other foreign countries Independent brands now handled by the Sales Company are meeting with enormous success, whereas a year ago none was to be seen there. The Sales Company is receiving correspondence from all quarters of the globe regarding the products it handles and there are still a few fine foreign agencies which can be secured by the proper parties.

Great Northern Film Company

This issue of the Moving Picture News would not be complete without some mention of the Great Northern and their films, but our good friend, Ingvald C. Oes, is so modest and unassuming that "charm we ne'er so wisely" we cannot charm him into writing of his expressions or desires so that it is left to us to say a few words regarding their products. We have known Mr. Oes and the films of the Great Northern from practically the first day he arrived here from Copenhagen and as good wine needs no bush, in like manner Mr. Oes and his products need no flattery. They tell the story themselves. It was our privilege to witness Hamlet run through the machine and want to go on record as saying that every exhibitor who runs this film will not be disappointed with the result he gets. The story is admirably told, admirably staged; how else could it be when royal actors take the prominent parts which are acted in the very scenes from whence the play was taken. There should be a rush of orders for this film and we do not wish to take away the value from any other manufacturer when we say that Great Northern films ought to equal the releases of any other manufacturer.

The Moving Picture Cream of America and Europe



Original prints of this unexcelled program can be obtained in U. S. and Canada only from the following exchanges:

PROGRAM

MONDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Eclair—Eclair Film Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.

TUESDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.

WEDNESDAY
Ambrosio—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Atlas—Atlas Film Co.
Champion—The Champion Film Co.
Nestor—David Horsley.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories
Solax—Solax Company

THURSDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Rex—Rex M. P. Mfg. Co.

FRIDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Lux—R. Prieur
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.
Solax—Solax Company
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.

SATURDAY
Gt. Northern—Gt. Northern Film Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories

List of BUYING EXCHANGES, April 15th, 1911

All others offering these brands for rent can supply only dupes or worn-out subjects.

CANADA

Applegath, L. J., & Sons	145 Yonge St.	Toronto, Ont.
Canadian Film Exchange	Princess Theater	Vancouver, B. C.
Gaumont Co.	154 St. Catherine St.	Montreal, Que.
Great Western Film Co.	Winnipeg	Man.

ALABAMA

Dixie Film Co	503 Chamber of Com. Bldg.	Birm'ham

CALIFORNIA

California Film Exchange	1065 Mission St.	San Francisco
Miles Bros.	790 Turk St.	San Francisco
Miles Bros.	411 W. 8th St.	Los Angeles

COLORADO

Co-operative Ind. Film Co.	Barclay Block	Denver
W. H. Swanson Film Exch.	301 Railroad Bldg.	Denver

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Washington Film Exchange	428 9th St., N. W.	Washington

GEORGIA

Consolidated Film Exchange	Rhodes Bldg.	Atlanta, Ga.

ILLINOIS

Anti Trust Film Co.	79 So. Clark St.	Chicago
Globe Film Service	107 E. Madison St.	Chicago
H. & H. Film Service Co.	98 Jackson Blvd.	Chicago
Laemmle Film Service	196 Lake St.	Chicago
Standard Film Exchange	155 E. Washington St.	Chicago

INDIANA

Central Film Service Co.	119 N. Illinois St.	Indianapolis

KANSAS

Wichita Film & Supply Co.	122 N. Market St.	Wichita

LOUISIANA

Dixie Film Company	720 Maison Blanche Bldg.	New Orleans

MASSACHUSETTS

Boston Film Rental Co.	665 Washington St.	Boston
W. E. Green Film Exchange	228 Tremont St.	Boston

MARYLAND

B. & W. Film Exchange	412 East Baltimore St.	Baltimore
Philadelphia Film Ex.	610 E. Baltimore St.	Baltimore

MINNESOTA

Laemmle Film Service	400 Sykes Block	Minneapolis

MICHIGAN

Michigan Film & Supply Co.	1106 Union Trust Bldg.	Detroit

MISSOURI

J. W. Morgan	1310 Walnut St.	Kansas City
Swanson-Crawford Film Co.	Century Bldg.	St. Louis
Western Film Ex.	217 Miners Bank Bldg.	Joplin

NEBRASKA

Laemmle Film Service	1517 Farnam St.	Omaha

NEW YORK STATE

Albany Film Exchange	418 Broadway	Albany
Victor Film Service	39 Church St.	Buffalo

NEW YORK CITY

Empire Film Exchange	150 East 14th St.	New York City
Great Eastern Film Exchange	21 East 14th St.	New York City
Hudson Film Company	138 East 14th St.	New York City
Peerless Film Exchange	5 East 14th St.	New York City
Wm. Steiner Film Exchange	110 Fourth Ave.	New York City

OHIO

Cincinnati Buckeye Film Co.	422 N. High St.	Columbus
Cincinnati Buckeye Film Co.	315 West 4th St.	Cincinnati
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co.	106 Prospect Ave., S.E.	Cleveland
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co.		Columbus
Toledo Film Service	319 Superior St.	Toledo
Victor Film Service	Prospect & Huron Sts.	Cleveland

OREGON

Independent West. F. Ex.	84 7th St.	Portland

OKLAHOMA

United Motion Picture Co.	112 Main St.	Oklahoma City

PENNSYLVANIA

Eagle Film Exchange	143 N. 8th St.	Philadelphia
Independent Film Exchange	415 Ferry St.	Pittsburg
Philadelphia Projection Co.	44 North 9th St.	Philadelphia
Philadelphia Film Exchange	934 Arch St.	Philadelphia
Pittsburg Photoplay Co.	412 Ferry St.	Pittsburg
Swaab Film Service Co.	338 Spruce St.	Philadelphia
Exhibitors Film Service Co.	23 N. 9th St.	Philadelphia

TEXAS

Texas Film Exchange	311 Elm St.	Dallas

UTAH

Co-operative Ind. Film Co.	320 Atlas Block	Salt Lake City

WASHINGTON

Pacific Film Exchange	Globe Bldg.	Seattle

WISCONSIN

Western Film Exchange	307 Enterprise Bldg.	Milwaukee

Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.

111 East 14th Street, New York City

SOLAX STOCK COMPANY

Mr. Burton L. King, the leading man of the Solax Stock Co., is rapidly coming to be known to the throngs that daily see his likeness on the screen as one of the cleverest and most versatile actors before the camera to-day.

Miss Vinnie Burns, the charming little emotional actress —a recent acquisition of the Solax Stock Company—has in a short period won her way into the hearts of a large number of motion picture enthusiasts. Her charming personality and infinite variety, coupled with the studious attention that she ever devotes to the work in hand, is rapidly developing her into an artist of promising exceptional merit.

Miss Blanche Cornwall has been given ample opportunity to display her exceptional talents in the recent magnificent releases. This clever artist was recently a member of the Shubert forces—was featured in Charlotte Temple, and made a pronounced hit in David Copperfield.

Miss Frances Gibson, a talented motion picture artist of considerable experience and pleasing personality, is daily adding to the popularity of the Solax pictures by her superb acting and her thorough knowledge of the intricacies of the motion picture profession.

Mr. Romaine Fielding, whose splendid work in dramatic and comedy productions, and whose wide experience in vaudeville, has pre-eminently fitted him for the position which he now holds as a leading exponent of the possibilities of the art of cinematograph acting.

N. Y. Motion Picture Conference

At a meeting of the conference on motion pictures, composed of the organizations called to consider the report on "Motion Picture Shows" of Commissioner of Accounts Raymond B. Fosdick, the following was unanimously adopted:

RESOLVED, That the conference heartily approves the recommendations of Commissioner Fosdick, and urges them upon the attention of the Mayor, the Board of Aldermen, commissioners of city departments and the public as follows:

(1) That much of the abuse connected with motion picture shows in the city is due to the lack of centralized authority and responsibility and to the confusion of jurisdiction between the various administrative departments of the city government. The conference realizes the urgency of concentration of power and responsibility and, if necessary, recommends charter revision looking to this end.

(2) The conference agrees with the commissioner of accounts that a complete ordinance or set of regulations should be drawn up, governing the structure, ventilation, lighting and similar conditions in the motion picture shows, and that these laws or regulations should be codified and published.

(3) The conference agrees that serious evil has resulted from the limitation of the seating capacity of motion picture shows to 299, and urges that steps be taken to allow a larger seating capacity with careful regulations to safeguard such enlarged premises.

(4) The conference urges the appointment by the Mayor of such a committee as the commissioner of accounts recommends, and urges upon the Board of Aldermen the importance of prompt co-operation with such a committee in carrying out the above substantial recommendations.

BISON FILMS

FIVE REELS A WEEK

Tuesday--BISON. Wednesday--AMBROSIO. Thursday--ITALA. Friday--BISON. Saturday--ITALA

"Return of Company D"

RELEASED TUESDAY, APRIL 18

A stirring drama, replete with sensational incidents and thrilling scenes. A traitorous officer incites the Indians to rebellion, and the small garrison is attacked. Though fighting valiantly against the savage hordes, the soldiers are doomed to annihilation, when Swiftwater, a friendly Indian who worships the Colonel's daughter, volunteers to carry a message to the distant fort. He is pursued by the Indians and the ride is marked by a desperate running fight, but he succeeds in his mission. At breakneck speed the re-inforcements gallop to the rescue, arriving as the Indians have succeeded in battering down the gates of the stockade. Swiftwater is killed, and the sorrowing soldiers lay him at rest with the honors of a hero.

"A Cowboy for a Day"

RELEASED FRIDAY, APRIL 21

Clarence wants to be a cowboy and the boys have lots of fun with him. Every hazing trick known on a ranch is played on him, and he is finally made the victim of an Indian attack and captured by the made-up cowboys and preparations made to burn him alive. He is then rescued by the rest of the gang who heroically drive away the fake Indians. Later when Clarence finds out the joke he decides to play one himself. Dressed as an Indian he enters the bunk-house and begins shooting promiscuously with two big guns. The cowboys are completely routed, and when Clarence makes himself known they accept the joke on themselves and agree to leave him in peace hereafter and to help him become a real cowpuncher.

ITALA RELEASES

"Foolshead Wrangler for Love"

"Marriage Midst Sausages"

Two subjects on one reel.
SATURDAY, APRIL 22

"Little Lewis' Toy"

THURSDAY, APRIL 27

AMBROSIO RELEASE

"The Mute of Portici"

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19

An episode of the Neapolitan Revolution in 1647.

SOLD EXCLUSIVELY THROUGH MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES CO.

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO., 1 Union Square, New York City

RELIANCE FEATURE FILMS

SOLD ONLY THROUGH MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

TWO REELS PER WEEK

ACTED BY THE RELIANCE ALL-STAR STOCK COMPANY

"In the Tepee's Light"

RELEASED SATURDAY, APRIL 22

A story of primitive love. Unique light effects. Beautiful photography. Stirring dramatic scenes.

"Vengeance Hath Been Had"

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26

A pathetic drama of passion and forgiveness. Splendidly interpreted. Finely costumed and staged.

The Powers Company

If a barometer on the progress of the Independents were sought, no concern could better fill the requirement than the Powers Company.

One of the first manufacturing concerns to enter the field under the Independent banner, their progress has been as marked as it was gradual and steady. Unpretentious and unassuming, the Powers picture play has, nevertheless, gained the height of approbation, and at this time the chronologist finds them preparing for their greatest triumphs, for only a few days ago they have effected a complete reorganization of their forces, from the studio to the dark room. The most significant feature of the new arrangement, we are glad to state, is the engagement of two stage directors of renown and proven genius—Mr. Francis Powers (Belasco II) and Mr. W. V. Ranous, the "missing right arm," of the Vitagraph Company.

MR. FRANCIS POWERS

To the theatrical fraternity each of these names has a meaning all its own, for Mr. Powers has endeared himself to the hearts of the profession by his masterful staging of "The First Born," in San Francisco. So novel and unique was the idea of the production that it won for Mr. Powers recognition as the strongest bulwark of the Belasco producing staff. He has been associated with Mr. Belasco in many of his greatest triumphs, and that he should now devote his art to the production of motion pictures means much for the future of moving pictures as a whole, to say nothing of the Powers productions in particular.

Mr. Ranous, however, is well known to both the public and the trade. For several years he was the strength of the Vitagraph Company. An actor with an enviable record dating back over thirty years, he has stood behind the footlights as the valuable support of Thespians who have made stage history, including the great Salvini. His Shakespearean and other classic interpretations place him high among the exponents of the drama. He was quick to see the possibilities of the film story and was probably the first man to stage literary productions. But with remarkable versatility he has met the demand of the public taste by occasionally departing from the classic standard with telling effect, as all will attest who remember the "Jail Bird." Both Messrs. Ranous and Powers have gathered about them a force of players of repute, and with orders to go ahead with full steam on, we may look for some sensations.

MR. W. V. RANOUS

But this is not all. Not content with these coups, the Powers Company has engaged the noted comedian, Nat M. Wills, "The Happy Tramp," in an appropriate comedy which will soon be released. Besides this that famous ballad by Rudyard Kipling, "Gunga Din."

To cap it all, Mr. John Urie, who for so long reigned supreme in the Biograph laboratory, is now in charge of the Powers factory. All of which means a great deal to the exhibitor—to sum it up briefly, "quality!"

W. H. Swanson Film Company

Mr. H. T. Nolan, manager of the Denver office of the above company, informs us that he is doing an excellent business in that part of the country and is straining every effort to build up the best business in that neighborhood, and from the looks of things it evidently is making a name for itself. They are buying all the weekly Independent releases and are constantly adding to their clientele some of the best houses from the Trust. Colorado exhibitors will do well to tie up to a live wire and get the strongest current to electrify their patrons.

NICKELODEON NEWS IN BRIEF

Klamath Falls, Ore.—Mrs. Grant Lincoln has sold the Iris Moving Picture Theater here to M. F. Lorenz, of Los Angeles, who has taken possession.

Maquoketa, Iowa.—J. P. Broderson has purchased the Pastime Theater here from Roberts & Wright.

Columbus, Ohio.—Mr. John Swaine is completing arrangements for the erection of a new moving picture theater at 17 South High street.

Creston, Iowa.—Mr. Lloyd has purchased the Majestic Theater at Osceola, and took possession.

Pittsburg, Kas.—Ryan & Atkinson have purchased the Crystal Theater here, and took possession.

Norfolk, Va.—Captain Charles T. Baland is makingg arrangements to start a new moving picture theater at 319 High street.

Oakland, Neb.—M. C. Freed and Mr. Beck are making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater at the corner of Oakland avenue and Fourth street.

Brighton, Ill.—W. H. Robins and W. G. Hunt are making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater here.

A NEW FILM EXCHANGE

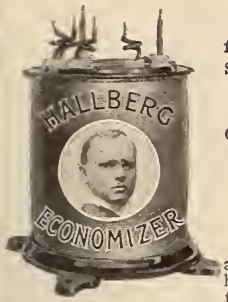
Western Film Exchange

H. E. AITKIN, General Manager

Temporary Offices: 51 E. 19th ST., NEW YORK

Telephone Gramercy 4557-8

Furnishing a Variety of 18 New Reels Per Week



HALLBERG ECONOMIZER
for Alternating Current SAVES ⅔ on Electric Bill on 110 Volts
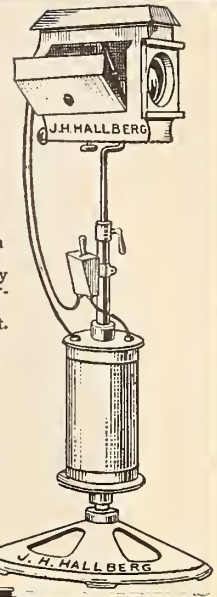
82% on Electric Bill on 220 Volts
GIVES 100% Better Light Than Rheostat
50% Better Light Than Other Makes Current Savers
If your light is poor and electric current bill high, write to me for free advice.

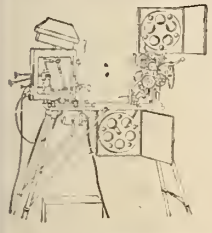
YES! HALLBERG

THE "ECONOMIZER" MAN

EQUIPS PHOTOPLAY THEATRES COMPLETE



HALLBERG FLOOD AND SPOT LIGHTS are of the most modern design—can be set at any angle to operate on any kind current. Equipped with 6 inch French lens. Color wheel for 5 colors always in stock.



ALL MAKES M. P. MACHINES

EDENGRAPH EDISON
MOTIOGRAPH PATHE
POWERS STANDARD

Catalogues and Prices on application.

"UNIVERSAL" RHEOSTAT including 4 legs

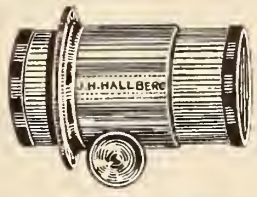
100 to 125 volts, 25-35 amp. $15.

200 to 220 volts, 25-35 amp. $20.

For 1 or 2 lamps, 30 amp. each on 110 volts, $20.

I design and make Rheostats for any voltage and amperes desired.

Let us know your wants.



M. P. and Stereo Lenses. Prices upon application.

UNDERWRITERS' DOUBLE SLIDE CARRIER $1.00

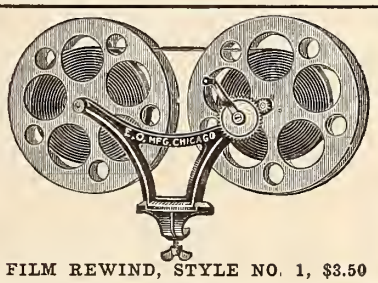
FILM CEMENT
for mending or splicing Moving Picture Films.

Price per bottle 25 cents



FILM REWIND, STYLE NO. 1, $3.50

HALLBERG 4000 C. P. FLAMING ARC LAMP

This lamp gives six times as much light as the enclosed arc lamp, and about nineteen times more light than the ordinary incandescent lamp at the same current cost.

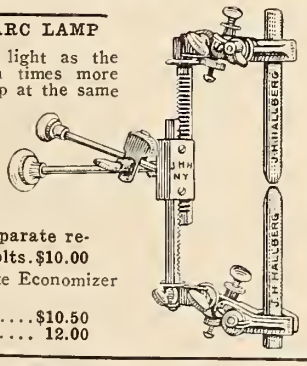
For Alternating or Direct Current—Price

2 in series on 100 to 120 volts, each $45.00
4 in series on 100 to 250 volts, each $55.00

When one lamp only is wanted a separate resistance is required for D. C. 110 volts. $10.00

For alternating current, a small separate Economizer is required.

Price 110 volts..... $10.50
Price 220 volts..... 12.00



This lamp is simple and strong, and is made from carefully selected material. It has adjustable carbon holders and can be set at any desired angle. When your old Moving Picture Lamp gets worn, order one of these lamps and you will be pleased with the results.

I carry a complete line of Opera Chairs, with and without arms. Send for description and prices.

$1.25 EACH AND UP

Send $1.50 for a set of HALLBERG TERMINALS
They do away with burned out lamp leads.
By mail post paid.
State make of your lamp.

HIGH GRADE CONDENSERS
Condensers No. 1 grade 4½-inch, without mounts, each $1.00
Condensers No. 2 grade, 4½-inch, without mounts, each 75c.
Imported from France, 6½ or 7½-inch focus. For 8, 8½ and 10-inch focus, $1.50 each.

"ELECTRA" PINK LABEL CARBONS
"EXCELLO" FLAME ARC CARBONS
EXHAUST AND VENTILATING FANS GLOBE TICKET CHOPPER
FIRE EXTINGUISHERS
SPECIAL CURTAIN COMPOUND
MODEL "B" CALCIUM GAS OUTFIT AND SUPPLIES CALCIUM GAS SUPPLIES
SOUND EFFECTS OF ALL KINDS
ASBESTOS CABLE, M. P. OIL, LUGS, POWDERED GRAPHITE FOR ARC LAMPS
HIGH GRADE ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES AND REPAIR PARTS FOR ALL MAKES M. P. MACHINES

ELECTRA
·TRADE MARK·

HALLBERG ECONOMIZER for Direct Current SAVES
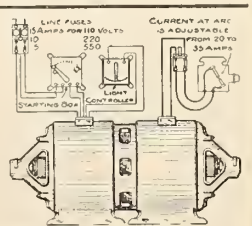
50% on 110 Volts
70% on 220 Volts
85% on 500 Volts
I also make Economizers and Rectifiers to change alternating into direct current.



Hallberg D. C. and A. C. to D. C. Economizer.

J. H. HALLBERG

SEND FOR FREE CATALOGUE N. 2
PHONE, GRAMERCY 5617

36 E. 23d St., New York

J. A. LeRoy

We herewith present an excellent likeness of Mr. J. A. LeRoy, the genial manager of the Acme Exchange, located at 133 Third avenue, New York. Mr. LeRoy has been actively interested in the science of photonomics since the inception of the modern motion picture and may be counted as one of the pioneers in the industry. He was apprenticed in the photographic trade in 1870 and served his apprenticeship in 1876, and was employed by many of the leading photographers of renown, such as Geo. Rockwood, Sr., J. Randall Dana and others until 1893. Since 1894 he has conducted the Acme Exchange and during the last seventeen years has brought out many useful devices in the mechanical optical line. The peerless projecting machine, known as LeRoy's Acmegraph, is said to be the equal of any machine on the market and embodies many original and excellent points of merit testifying to the inventive ability of the maker.

OUR LOS ANGELES CORRESPONDENT.

Los Angeles, Cal.

Miles Bros.—Fred C. Dawes, manager of Miles Bros. exchange, recently opened here, states he is now receiving eleven reels a week. Business very good and all customers well satisfied.

Mr. W. N. Selig and George Kleine of Chicago were here on business. Mr. Selig has purchased more ground adjoining their plant. They now own the entire block. Mr. Selig left for Chicago on Thursday. Mr. Kleine left for San Francisco on Friday.

Mr. R. W. McKinney of St. Louis has leased the Siegert Theatre at West Jefferson and Arlington for three years, and has changed the name to Columbia Theatre. Mr. McKinney has not spared expense in redecorating the place; everything is considered to insure the comfort of the patrons.

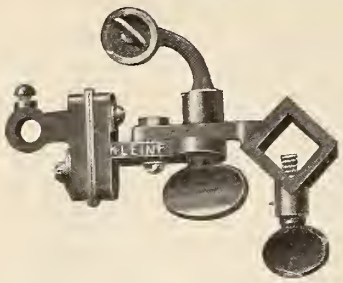
Bijou Theatre, Main street near Sixteenth, Lester M. Dull, manager, states business has increased since he changed to Independent service. He is using the Miles Bros. service, and is well satisfied with same.

Mr. G. P. Hamilton of the American Film Manufacturing Co. of Chicago is here with a company of twelve people to make pictures. Mr. Hamilton did not know just where he would locate.

Bison—This week I visited the Bison Pacific Coast studio at Edendale, and had the pleasure of meeting Mr. William E. Edwards and Stephen Barton. They showed me through their plant, which is one of the finest equipped on the Pacific coast. They have a wonderful stock of wardrobe that is used for western pictures. They have expended over $2,500 for Indian costumes, and their cowboy stuff is the best. The dressing rooms are a credit to the Bison company, as they are in perfect order. Mr. Barton displays great skill as a scenic artist. Mr. Edwards has his own ideas of building scenery in order that same can be used for as many as eight distinct sets. Mr. Fred J. Balshofer, manager of the Bison company here, has gone east on business.

Frank E. Montgomery, director, is in full charge during Mr. Balshofer's absence.

A NEW CARBON HOLDER.



One of the first manufacturers of optical and projection apparatus, etc., C. B. Kleine of 19 East Twenty-first street, New York City, has invented a new type of carbon holder which is a radical departure from anything of its kind heretofore. In its design Mr. Kleine has overcome the weak points which are numerous in many of the existing types of carbon holder. The insulation is accomplished in such a manner as to be practically indestructible and to present a minimum danger of grounding. The contact between the carbon and the metal is excellent. The arrangement for tilting the carbons is simple and effective, while the arrangement for connecting the wire is very good indeed. With such an arm as this, breakage will be reduced to a minimum, if not entirely obviated, and, in case anything does go wrong, the arm can be taken off and a new one installed in its place by simply removing the two screws, neither one of which is at all likely to stick in the metal, a fault very common with most carbon holders.

The metal of which these carbon holders are constructed is the same as required by the United State navy for copper castings, 88 per cent. copper, 10 per cent. tin, 2 per cent. zinc, which gives it a high electrical conductivity which has been lacking in many so-called carbon holders.

THE DURKEE FIRE EXTINGUISHER

As moving picture show managers are interested in all devices that will lessen the danger of fire in their houses and the safeguarding of the patrons in cases of catastrophe for this source any device especially devised to prevent confusion by immediately extinguishing the beginnings of fire must appeal most emphatically to the practical exhibitor.

The Durkee and its practicability of successfully controlling the average fire has won for itself the unstinted praise of fire chiefs, the press and public wherever it has been introduced. The chemical extinction of fire by a hand extinguisher is no longer an experiment as the record of The Durkee fully attests. Many of the great commercial corporations have entirely ceased the carrying of insurance, fighting their own fires with extinguishers and assuming their own losses, which annually amount to much less than the premiums they would otherwise have paid.

The Durkee Chemical is put up in handsomely decorated metal pumps, 15 inches long and weighing only five pounds, and throws a stream 30 feet. Can be used by any one; nothing to get out of order and does not need re-charging. Does not corrode or explode and is good until used.

The Durkee is invaluable as the chemical will concentrate upon the fire many more times the quantity of fire-destroying gases than can be applied in any other way, thus instantly extinguishing gasoline and other highly inflammable material, upon which liquid or water has no effect whatsoever, but rather adds volume to the flame.

The Durkee Extinguisher has magical effect upon fires in floors and flues, because the gas is drawn to the fire by the draught created by the heat, thus extinguishing sudden fires which cannot be reached by water. One of the principal objections to the employment of liquid extinguishers or water is the damage which follows their use. The Durkee does not damage the most delicate fabric.

Important feature of the Durkee Extinguisher is that the chemical will not be affected at temperature 60 degrees below zero.

The Durkee can be used in all conditions of fires of an electrical nature, as the chemical is an absolute non-conductor and will break any arc of any intensity, with no damage to the most delicate machinery and no damage to dynamos, motors or switchboards, or to the operator handling the extinguisher.

The Durkee Chemical Extinguisher retains its strength indefinitely and requires no attention and is the most efficient fire extinguisher of to-day, and meets all requirements.

Statistics show that 90 per cent of all fires could be extinguished in their incipiency if the proper means with which to attack them were at hand when they are discovered.

The very fraction of a second The Durkee Chemical touches a fire the oxygen of the air that feeds the blaze is changed into carbon dioxide gas in which no atom of fire can live.

FEATURES TWO EVERY WEEK

Solax

FEATURES TWO EVERY WEEK

NOVELTIES! FEATURES! TWO EVERY WEEK

BE PATRIOTIC! GET IN LINE!

FOR THE BIG MILITARY FEATURES BEGINNING

APRIL 28th

"ACROSS THE MEXICAN LINE"

Great Breezy Out-Door Pictures Every One Of Them A Feature

OUR WEDNESDAY COMEDIES ARE MEETING WITH THE SUCCESS THAT WE ANTICIPATED

They're just what you need to add that necessary touch of fun and laughter to your program

GET ON THE LIST OF THE BEST FILM MADE

GET OUR TWO-COLOR LOBBY DISPLAY!

RELEASES
- WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26—"THE COUNT OF NO ACCOUNT" (Comedy)
- FRIDAY, " 28—"ACROSS THE MEXICAN LINE" (Military)
- WEDNESDAY, MAY 3—"SENSIBLE DAD" and "NEARLY A HERO" (Split Reel Comedy)
- FRIDAY, " 5—"THE SOMNAMBULIST" (Drama)

Solax Company

147 Fourth Avenue, New York City

REMEMBER: All our films are tinted and toned throughout!

KEITH & PROCTOR'S UNION SQUARE THEATER

Situated in the heart of one of New York's busiest centers, within a stone's throw of the greatest street of the city, Broadway, where hundreds of thousands of people pass its doors every day of the year, stands Keith & Proctor's Union Square Theater.

This handsome temple of amusement, which is now devoted to that latest popular form of entertainment, "Vaudeville and Motion Pictures," has a history surpassed by few indeed of our theaters of the present day. Here it was that the veteran manager, A. M. Palmer, maintained his celebrated stock company, among whose members was the late Richard Mansfield, who made his first success at this house, jumping into fame over night as the decrepit old roue, Baron Chevrial, in "A Parisian Romance," after that experienced character actor, J. M. Stoddart, had given the part up as worthless. This was young Mansfield's opportunity, and right well did he avail himself of it, winning laurels upon which he was to build later a permanent success and recognition as the foremost character actor of his day.

Some other members of Mr. Palmer's company who have won recognition have been William Faversham, William H. Thompson and Georgia Cayvan.

When Mr. Palmer gave it up Mr. Henry Greenwall ran a series of high-class attractions, among which were Thos. W. Keene and Walker Whiteside, both eminent Shakesperian tragedians.

Finally Mr. B. F. Keith, the vaudeville power of Boston, assumed control in 1893, installing high-class vaudeville on the same lavish scale as his theaters in Boston, Philadelphia and Provdence, R. I., theaters.

In the city of Boston Mr. Keith's name is a household word; it is just as much the fashion there to go to Keith's Theater as it is here to go to the opera.

But to return to the subject of the Union Square Theater. On assuming control Mr. Keith renovated it thoroughly and installed as a feature a comic opera company, headed by Milton Aborn and other artists, who have won for themselves a name in comic opera and musical comedy. Later it was gradually superseded by "All Star Vaudeville," and there are very few of the big head-line acts now on the boards that have not been seen at this cosy little playhouse.

A few years ago, in deference to the public clamor for the motion pictures, the policy of the house was changed with great success. In speaking of this subject it may be well to state that the first motion picture ever shown was at the Union Square over fifteen years ago. It was called "The Wonderful Cinematograph" (a title by which it is still known in foreign countries). In these days there were not so many companies or varieties of pictures, but the "Act" as it was then immediately jumped into popular favor, and gradually became an institution in itself; later, however, it was found necessary to supplement vaudeville.

A feature of the entertainment, of great interest to the majority of the audience, is the illustrated lectures, which are very interesting. Originally used as "Chasers," they have rapidly developed in importance until they are considered of just as much importance as any vaudeville act.

In Mr. Keith's Bijou Theater in Boston a special corps of trained assistants are constantly preparing the illustrated lectures, compiling them from various authentic sources. Some of the instructive subjects which have been utilized are : "Sir Edwin Landseer" and examples of his famous paintings of animals; another on "The Gipsy Moth" and its destruction in modern homes; an interesting talk on the work of the Boston Seames Aid Association in Boston; a "Short History of Our Warships"; one "The Pilgrims Memorial at Provincetown," which was shown the week after the event took place; a beautiful series on "Japan," showing many phases of life in that interesting kingdom of the Far East.

Some that will be shown in the near future are: "Washington, D. C.," "A Tenderfoot in Montana," "Niagara Falls," "Harvard College, Cambridge," one on "The Frigate, Old Ironsides," and many others too numerous to mention. To show the appreciation of the public for the lectures I could quote an instance of a gentleman waiting a half hour to meet one of the lecturers who happened then to be lecturing on "South America" in order to ascertain from him the cost of living in that country, as an offer had been made him of a position down there.

Another instance: Last fall a lecture was used on "A Canoe Trip in Ontario." In it was quoted some lines from the sonnets of William Wordsworth. A gentleman up in Harlem wrote inquiring where he could find the lines quoted. They were looked up and a complete copy of the verses in question were mailed him.

A great deal of the popularity of this cosy little playhouse is due to the genial and jolly house manager, John Buck, it is his constant endeavor to make things as pleasant as possible for both his audiences and his players. There is a beautiful greenroom, elegant furniture, writing desks, materials, etc., provided for the enjoyment and personal comfort of the performer. Everything is done to make them feel perfectly at home during their engagement here.

In closing, one must not neglect to mention the gentleman, after all, to whom, however, all the credit is due for the success of the Keith & Proctor Theaters, their general manager, Mr. U. G. Blackford. Under his skillful management he has developed their resources to the utmost. It is he who supervises even the smallest details, bringing order out of chaos, and in a great many ways placing them on the high pinnacle on which they are standing. The name of Keith & Proctor has always stood for the best there is in everything, whether it be vaudeville, stock or motion pictures. May it always continue to remain so, is the earnest wish of the writer.

The Aeroplane Girl

Lila Cotay, as the aeroplane girl, is one of the brightest, most novel and certainly supremely popular acts on the vaudeville stage of to-day. She herself is a petite, attractive and thoroughly magnetic piece of feminity. This vibrant womanhood off the stage, she carries on to it, and that is why she is such a success. I have seen her many times and each time I see her confirms my first impression, though I've "held my horses" till now. She is a jolly, laugh getting, up-to-date little girl who gets over in her machine and "gets over" anyway. She's the candy kid and who ever books her, books "the goods."

Lila played "The Lisping Girl" in "The Liberty Bells" at fifteen; she led in Joe Hart's "Rain Dears" where she "made good" as she has since. She has attained a unique place, too; she is the only one in the history of the Keith & Proctor Union Square house to be a "hold over" and has played there four times inside of three months.

Then as to abroad. She played in the Hippodrome, London; the Follies Bergeres, Paris (and held over); six weeks at the Winter Garden, Berlin; the Hansa in Hamburg, and the Melinere in Hanover. Imagine a success in dear old sleepy Hanover. Whilst there she made two real flights with Hoxey over "the blue Alster" and in London was to go with Mr. Knowles the day after his tragic death. She has played before my old friends in Magdeburg and Budapest and filled the bill. I know the theaters and congratulate the girlie that New York applauds.

Here she sings well and has a wardrobe that just fits. The last song she's featuring, Witmark's "Sailing, Sweetheart, You and I," got three encores.

The whole act is an up-to-date, completely satisfactory turn that gets the big hand.

Keith & Proctor's Union Square Theater ought to be more than glad to bill this act once more.

CHAMPION TWO EVERY SEVEN DAYS FILM

Our Query: "TO BE or NOT TO BE."
Your Reply: "TO BE" positively shown in my theatre.

"Gen. Meade's Fighting Days"

MONDAY, APRIL 24, 1911

Would you view, as it were, the sterling qualities of that leader in the days of our country's dissension? Then get the reel and put "your reply" into effect.

MILITARY AND WESTERN

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1911

"She Wanted a Man With Brains"

The lady in question sought the man when it was too late and thereby worked her own discomfiture, after having originally refused him.

SOMETHING GREAT FOR MAY 1, 1911

"Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia"

The hardy trapper and his daring followers.

Bear in mind "With Stonewall Jackson"

CHAMPION TWO EVERY SEVEN DAYS FILM

The Champion Film Co.

MARK M. DINTENFASS, General Manager

12 East 15th Street New York City

THE RAILROAD MAN'S KICK

By a Railroad Man

A picture displayed in a theater showing the make-up of a "Railroad Special" attracted my attention; being a railroad man I at once side-tracked my thoughts and gave the picture right of way in my mind. Gee, it's hard for a railroad man to sit down and watch such bum comedy. An agent telegraphs the main office to rush a special to her station. Apparently a dispatcher's office was unknown; a big office with a key and sounder laying right on the edge of a desk represented the main office, and a man made a mighty poor bluff at receiving the other plug's message. He rushes outside, meets an engineer and tells him to get out at once. Gee but it's awful. Where was his thirty-one order, to run on single track. Word of mouth don't go on single track; it's against the law. Where were the markers on the head end of the engine; where were the markers on the rear end? How is it the block showed stop and the engineer ran by it? If we railroad men did that he would get a "31" order blame quick giving us rights over everything to get out. We would be canned, thrown out. When an engineer comes to a block (automatic) and it's set, he is supposed to stop, give a high-ball and proceed. Nothing like that in the picture. This engineer beat it by everything. He wheeled his engine right along. Get it on the siding, you guy. Who took that picture? What dispatcher gave you a "19" order to take that? He's as good as fired if the chief finds him out. Put on the air when you hit a curve. You might smash in the rear end of a better man than you. You're due to take the siding quick, the regular's coming.

Where was the conductor of this twisted up special, who protected it, who consulted the time table to see what meeting points they should make? Nobody, and it makes a railroad man sick at heart to see such trash. Were we to run a special, as it was run upon the screen, we would all be on the right of way to Sing Sing, and we would very soon be making big stones little. Criminals accused of murdering the passengers. I'm up against the block now, applying my air, and coming to a stop in accordance to the rules and regulations of the railroad in insuring the lives of the people on its trains.

A WAIL FROM THE MAN AT THE KEY

By a Telegrapher

It's a relief for a telegraph operator to put his hat on and rush away from the clicking instruments in a large office. Sometimes we visit moving picture shows on our swing, hence my belated tale of woe. It was my misfortune to enter a moving picture show recently and see a picture which would make even a ham operator blush with shame. A girl sat at a table and had her instrument right on the edge of it. She did not open her key when she started to send (she didn't know enough), and Lord, the way she pounded that key made me think she was pulverizing brass. They must have nailed that instrument down with a few nine inch nails, otherwise it could not have stood such a vicious assault. After going through this fantastic performance she started another, worse yet; she looked heavenward and proceeded to receive in this pose what the other faker was trying to send her. I wonder if she was foolish enough to think she could fool the public, poor misguided girl. Who ever in the telegraph saw an operator do this? It's impossible and ridiculous and makes an operator feel ashamed of his profession.

Heaven preserve us, I saw worse than that. A message supposed to be received was shown upon the screen on a sending blank. It did not have any number. The sending operator's sign had four hieroglyphics in it (something never before known in the telegraph world). The check was missing, and it came from nowhere. The message was bulled all the way through. Should an operator bull a message like that he'd be told to go drive a coal wagon or work dreamland wire, where there's no awakening.

If the operators upon the screen would visit us we would soon have them in a position befitting them, such as feeding our wooden eagles, winding up with a key our clocks (automatic), and chasing dots and dashes, and watch the grave of Morse to see if he'd turn over. Such vile trash as this should be thrown out.

It is surprising the vast amount of ignorance the picture man displays when taking telegraphic pictures. Let him come to our office and have us instruct him; we'd do it with pleasure to prevent a re-occurrence upon the screen of such unbelievable and nonsensical trash. "Ignorance is bliss," says the old proverb; presuming it is, but not in this case, Mr. Moving Picture Man—wake up, give the operators their dues, and we'll hand you the card. I hear the chief's 9 calling me and must answer my wire, not as answered on the screen, but as the big corporations pays us to do, gently and easily to prevent breaking our instrument, and to prevent delays of the public's message.

IMPRESSIONS GLEANED FROM MOVING PICTURE SHOWS

By a Young Man

Our thoughts desert us as we enter a moving picture theater to view the films. They leave our mind concentrated upon the picture being flashed upon the screen. After we have settled comfortably in our seat we become so absorbed in the picture we forget the big busy world outside, our worries have ceased, and our mind is at ease, and the picture is part of us. When the silent actors laugh, we laugh too. When the fair heroine is cast aside by the villain we sympathize with her, and almost jump out of our seats, and rush to her rescue before we realize it is a picture not life. A moving picture is such an exact counterpart of life that a comparison is unnecessary, and from a young man's point of view absolutely unnecessary. To us who frequent moving picture shows, and then witness life's comedies and tragedies, we find no difference. Comedy upon the screen is an actual presentation of life, likewise tragedy upon the screen is an actual presentation of life. What can express more emphatically the power of a moving picture, its educational power, than the recent fire at Albany, in which one of the finest buildings on the American continent was utterly gutted. This film carries its warning with it. It is educational. Why? Because it affords the scholars and students the grand opportunity of viewing this magnificent building, its interior as it was before the fire, and then we see the downfall of millions and millions of dollars represented as a chaos of ruins. Where man fears to fight the dollar fire wends its way fearlessly and destructively, where none but the brave venture the moving picture man stands machine in hand, and sometimes at the danger of his life, takes pictures for a noble cause, that of educating the people giving them enjoyment and pleasure.

The progress of moving pictures has been slow but sure, and the children, students and adults of the whole universe now mass together and express their gratitude and encouragement to this noble cause.

NO. 58 OF THE NIAGARA SLIDE CO.
BIG HAT SERIES

Your Favorite Player on a Slide

The newest idea in slides is that exploiting the various favorite Independent players, giving their best portraits on slides and thus familiarizing Independent picture goers with their faces. Picture patrons, like others, have their favorites and often a slide with a photo of a favorite, announcing a film he is in as "coming," will bring the patron back to that show. Thus the "photoslide," as this latest slide wrinkle is called, is a certain builder of that most desirable thing—steady patronage—and is worth many times the very small sum asked by its makers, the Independent Photoslide Co., Room 207, 147 Fourth avenue, New York City. Write them for further information.

A REVOLUTION and A REVELATION

ARE OFFERED IN

"A DAUGHTER OF THE REVOLUTION"

A Rex RELEASED, THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1911

Duel Scene from "A DAUGHTER OF THE REVOLUTION"

It's an inspiration in itself. It depicts the Love and Loyalty, Honor, Heroism, the Heat of Human Battle, and the Battle of Human Hearts. A Great Historical Patriotic Film.

IT'S A GEM AND A Rex

Rex POSTERS have made a Universal Hit. DEMAND THEM

Rex Motion Picture Mfg. Co.

573 Eleventh Avenue NEW YORK CITY

Sales Co., the Minutemen--Shipping One More Every Minute

American Moving Picture Machine Co.

Say:—It is our aim to present to the trade and all interested in cinematography a projecting machine that is absolutely new and original.

Protected by numerous United States Letters Patent, granted and pending, its advantages over all other projecting machines now in use are many. Though only a short time on the market, the "Standard" automatic moving picture machine is rapidly coming to the front in those sections where competition in the moving picture business has made necessary the use of the best machine.

It has been our aim to produce the best machine possible, regardless of margin of profit. To attain this end, we have constantly endeavored to improve and perfect our apparatus.

We claim it stands as the only projecting machine that is absolutely flickerless and fireproof, and it has fully proven to be what we claim for it.

The "Standard" is able to project an absolutely steady picture that is as free from flicker as are stereopticon views.

To attain this end we have fitted our machine with a translucent or semi-transparent shutter, that while not allowing the screen to show any trace of movement or any hint that the next picture is being moved down into position, at the same time it lets the light move through the film and through the shutter on to the screen.

Thus, the "Standard" does away with the interval of absolute darkness caused by the opaque shutter that is used in other machines and which is the cause of all flicker.

Another advantage of our semi-transparent shutter is that it saves a great deal of current, as there being no interval of darkness, less light is required to impress the picture on the human eye than in other machines in which the picture must make so strong an impression as to overcome the interval of blackness that has gone before it.

The main cause of fire in moving picture machines or the main danger is in the chance that a spark from, or the concentrated rays of the lamp will ignite the highly inflammable celluloid film. In the "Standard" the film is never exposed. At all times it is absolutely enclosed in its whole length, and it is not exposed when it passes from the upper magazine box into the mechanism or when it passes from the mechanism to be wound up in the lower magazine box.

As a further precaution, our machine has an automatic fire shutter, which keeps the rays of the lamp from touching the film while it is stationary.

The opening and closing of the automatic fire-shutter is governed by a mechanism that is positive and cannot get out of order. It will shut instantly when the film begins to slow down and will not open until the film is moving at the proper speed.

In the "Standard" no automatic valves, which have a tendency to scratch the film, are used. It is held on the feeding sprocket by two hardened steel rollers, which at no time will allow any escape; the center of the film is never touched, thus eliminating any danger of scratching.

At no time, while the machine is in operation, is there any more tension on the film than is necessary to insure proper rewinding, thereby saving wear and prolonging the life of the film.

This machine may be operated by hand or driven by motor. The motor is shunt wound, equipped with speed controller giving eight different speed adjustments, and can be attached or detached without alteration to the outfit. When driven by motor the handle disengages automatically. The "Standard" is approved by the New York Board of Fire Underwriters for use with motor.

Many New Installations of "Hallberg Goods"

Through the Motion Photo Plane Co. two more of the Keith & Proctor theaters have installed motiographs during the past week, viz., Majestic Theater, Indianapolis, Ind., and Keith's Mary Anderson Theater, Louisville, Ky. Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," also reports the sales of spot lights to Wm. Hayes & Son, Henderson, Ky., and A. E. Charron, Ottawa, Can. To the latter he also shipped a double dissolving stereopticon and standard economizer. Also a 550-volt D. C. economizer for the New Empress Theater, Victoria, B. C.

The Western Film Exchange

The Western Film Exchange is opening a branch in New York and have purchased the Hudson Film Exchange. They expect to open temporary offices at 51 East 19th street. Mr. H. E. Aitken informs us that Mr. O. T. Crawford, of St. Louis, J. R. Freuler, of Milwaukee, and S. S. Hutchinson, of Chicago, are financially interested and associated with him in this enterprise and they expect to make this office one of the largest buying exchanges in the East.

The National Waterproof Film Co.

Says:—We presume you are familiar with our process which primarily stands for the elimination of dirt and so-called "rain." The public does not commonly know that these incongruous black vertical lines which hurt their eyes are caused by scratches which have filled with dust and dirt.

Film dealers know that a waterproof film can be washed with soap and water, and if periodically so washed will show no more "rain" than a brand new film.

We cover the emulsion side of a film with a thin, transparent, waterproof, protecting coating, which is mechanically spread all around the sprocket holes without clogging or going through. The machinery which does this is covered by patents. We also have an article patent by which a film, washable with soap and water, is protected. The process of operation is also protected by three U. S. letters patent. The drying machine, which takes the film from the coater and carries it face up 2,020 feet until dry and reeled, is also protected. In addition to the U. S. patents we are protected in Germany, France and England.

Our solution dries as hard as celluloid and is, therefore, less liable to scratch. We do not claim that it will not scratch, but scratches which come on a waterproof film will be mostly on the coating and not on the photographic emulsion. These superficial scratches are easily freed from dirt by washing once a week with soap and water.

A waterproof film will never stick at the gate of a projecting machine and so makes a steadier picture. It also admits more light and hence makes a clearer picture. The science of this is that light penetrates a shiny surface more readily than a dull one.

A waterproof film will hold its joints much better than one not waterproofed, so, while it may take a little longer to make a splice, there will not be so many to make.

There is nothing in waterproofing which will shrink, stretch, make brittle, or in any way injure the finest moving picture film ever manufactured.

As to our cleaning of old films we do it only to demonstrate the value of waterproofing, and we have quite recently gone to considerable expense to find a cleaning process that was so far ahead of the usual renovating that we can now claim to be unequalled in this line.

The Baumann-Kessel Interests

A glance at the releases of the Baumann-Kessel interests reveals a tower of strength,—a veritable program in itself. On Tuesday there is a Bison; Wednesday, Ambrosio and Reliance; Thursday, Itala; Friday, Bison, and Saturday, Reliance and Itala. Any exhibitor including these films in his program is assured of a large variety of features, well acted and beautifully photographed.

The Bison pictures give an audience thrilling scenes of the West, with dash and vigor and imposing scenery. Reliance films are full of heart interest, well acted and magnificently staged. The Thursday Itala and Wednesday Ambrosio bring the beauties of Europe to our doors, and demonstrate the high artistic plane to which motography has arisen. The Saturday Itala, with Foolshead, banish dull care and cause laughter and mirth.

About May 10th an Ambrosio special subject will be released which we predict will cause a sensation in the trade. It is considered Ambrosio's masterpiece, and when we recollect the previous excellent efforts in this direction exhibitors can well understand the magnificence of this film.

The title of this subject is "Grenadier Roland," and depicts the famous battle of Napoleon at Moscow. The cast includes 1,500 people, and amazing scenes are shown of the burning town and the sensational battle. It is staged in the Russian snows, forming a background of great beauty for the martial scenes reproduced. It is needless to say that the photography is wonderful.

NEW THEATRICAL AGENCY.

Attention is called to the ad. in another column of the Frederick C. Taylor Theatrical Exchange. Mr. Taylor has recently added a Vaudeville Department to his already well established business, and is prepared to furnish managers with every grade of act from a single act to a circus complete. He has also inaugurated a Song Slide Department that is thoroughly up to the minute, and those interested should not fail to call when wanting anything in their particular line. The Vaudeville Department is under the supervision of Mr. William H. Stanley, who is well and universally known in the theatrical field.

ECLAIR FILM CO.

Films of A1 Quality

Release April 24th
"HERODIAS"
The Leading Film of the Year

Look on this Picture Representing a Gorgeous Scene from the Film

Do not miss this winner
Order It Now

ECLAIR FILM COMPANY

NEW YORK: 31 East 27th St. CHICAGO: 35 East Randolph St.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

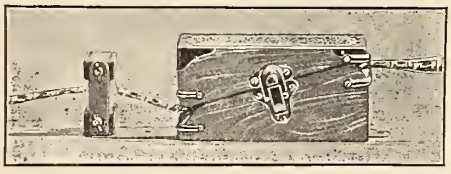
The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.
228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.
Telephone: 3790 Oxford



How do you like my looks Mr. Operator; wouldn't you like to have me in your booth?

The MORTIMER Film Cleaner

I stay right between the re-winds and never move—I can improve your picture and keep your machine clean. Ask your manager to send for the booklet and supplement just off the press.

Mortimer Film Cleaning Co., Fidelity Bldg., Portland, Maine

THE CROWN MOTION PICTURE SUPPLIES

138 THIRD AVENUE

We make and repair everything for
M. P. MECHANISMS
The "CROWN" Arc Lamp. Approved by N. Y. Board of Water, Gas and Electricity.
The "Crown" Pink Label Carbons.
Good as the best, Cheaper than the rest.
CROWN Cement.
For non-inflammable or Ordinary Film.
Remember we carry and supply anything.
from STREET to SHEET.
OUR PRICES WILL APPEAL TO ALL M. P. PEOPLE.
Write and Convince Yourself.

On the Same Floor.
PULLMAN & GATES, Agents
For High Class Vaudeville, for M. P. Houses, Clubs, Stags, &c.

Powers Picture Plays

A New Regime, New Brains, New Blood, New Vim and New and Loftier Ambitions. Hereafter POWERS PICTURE PLAYS will embrace the most exclusive of classical themes, representing enormous investment.

FOR INSTANCE:

"GUNGA DIN," from the war poem by Kipling

"THE AWAKENING OF GALATEA,"
From the ancient story of Pygmalion's Strange Love.

AND

NAT. M. WILLS, the "Happy Tramp"
As King of Kazam, a funny travesty written specially for the famous comedian.

NOTE--Our Weekly Talks to Exhibitors are Sent Free

THE POWERS COMPANY, 241st St. and Richardson Ave. NEW YORK CITY

Eclair Film Co.

It is universally conceded, the Americans are the most cosmopolitan of all people. This enviable state, which is due to the fact that the great American people are bound with the ties of ancestry to the old world, reflects the reason why Americans so readily welcome that which comes to them across the seas, and why, unconsciously perhaps, they recognize the worth of the many so-called foreign productions which they enjoy from day to day. The triumph of fine sculptures, painting, poetry, etc., which constitute our luxuries, originated in the old world, the parent of Art. And, just as the works of art are welcomed here, so are the great artists welcomed with that real generosity and genuine appreciation which are peculiar attributes of the great American people.

The field of cinematography is no exception. The fact that a film is of foreign manufacture makes no difference to the frequenter of motion picture theaters, as a most casual or the most careful inquiry will reveal. So long as a picture is good, contains a well-constructed plot, carefully and logically developed, is acted with feeling, and is unimpeachable as to photography, it will find its place in the heart of the people.

Therefore, Eclair films are among the most popular films on the American market; they represent and comprise all that is artistic in every phase of the expression. In the first place, the French have long been noted for their vivid imagination, and for their skill as story-tellers. Secondly, France and the surrounding territory, with their acres upon acres of ages-old cultivation, their quaint old towns and artistic ruins, afford a background for motion pictures such as cannot be procured elsewhere. Then, thirdly, Eclair films are noted for their beautiful photography the world over. Again, the fact that the great renowned theaters of Paris furnish the artists to pose for all Eclair productions is one that must not be overlooked. Furthermore, the Eclair Company spares no pains, time or money to secure for their purposes all the vast resources which the country affords, for the producing of cinematographic pictures pre-eminently interesting, beautiful and artistic.

The above introduction was dictated by Mr. Offeman, of the Eclair Film Company, and in addition he gave us the following information. Our readers are well aware that the Eclair Company is about to produce American film subjects to meet the demand of the trade here. Their studios are at Epinay sur Seine, near Paris, from whence all their beautiful productions emanate, and it is their desire to make their plant at Fort Lee, New Jersey, produce as good film in America as they produce in France. The Eclair Film Company of America (by which name it will be known) has spared no labor or expense to perfect what they consider the finest moving picture laboratory in the world, and we understand all films will be thoroughly American in every respect. The best actors obtainable are being engaged and the utmost intelligence and experience employed in the selection of scenarios to be chosen, such as will appeal to the American people.

KINEMACOLOR

Under the immediate patronage of their Highnesses Alexander of Teck and Princess Alexander of Teck (who have graciously promised to be present) Mr. Charles Urban will begin his campaign at the Scala Theater, Charlotte street W., on the evening of Tuesday, April 11. In honor of their Highnesses' visit on this important occasion, Mr. Urban will donate the evening's receipts in full (without any deduction whatever) to the Middlesex Hospital, in aid of the Prince Francis of Teck Memorial Fund. The entertainment, which will from this date be given twice daily (at 2·30 and 8), will be absolutely unique in the annals of the nation's amusements. It will embrace copious exhibitions of the beautiful "Kinemacolor" life-motion scenes reproducing the world's events in the actual colors of nature, many other delightful phases of the Urban-Smith art, and Herr Paul Lincke's haunting operetta, "Castles in the Air," adapted from his "Frau Luna." The piece has been "cast" and mounted in very lavish fashion; while the maestro, who is still regarded as the greatest living composer of light opera, will himself be present to direct the large and distinguished orchestra. Already a brilliant gathering is promised, and a substantial subscription is assured to a charity in which every Londoner takes a profound and kindly interest.

SHE WANTED A MAN WITH BRAINS

Champion Release, April 26

The cowboys came in a body to call at Rancher Smith's on a certain matter of business. That business was nothing more or less than a curious desire to see the new school teacher, who was to make ber home at Smith's ranch. They, therefore, lounged about the veranda until the lady in question arrived. Raising their hats they waved her a vigorous welcome, but their smiles of welcome froze at the cold and haughty glance she returned them, as with a look of disdain she passed into the house.

The boys at once renounced all ideas of capturing the "icicle," as they termed her, with the exception of Thornby. Head over heels in love, he bowled over a couple of intoxicated "punchers" as they tried to make violent overtures to her. She frigidly thanked bim for his protection. More enthralled than ever before, the young man again rejoiced at the opportunity to save ber, when the horse she attempted to ride became unmanageable. He even dared after that to present her with a bouquet of flowers, which she indifferently accepted, and later threw away after his departure. A veritable iceberg to attain. Finally Thornby mustered up the nerve and temerity to propose soon after, but the lady "turned him down" so emphatically that it blotted out the last vestige of hope.

She wanted a man with brains and not brawn, she told him. and it set him thinking. He left the ranch and neighborhood and soon found a position in a lawyer's office where, by diligent and hard study, he progressed so rapidly that in a remarkably short time he was made a partner in the firm, incidentally marrying his associate's daugbter.

Having occasion to visit Rancher Smith, wbo bad retained him in a boundary suit, Thornby was then speaking to Mrs. Smith on the porch when the school teacher appeared in the doorway. Astonished at the change in the man she refused, and upon learning from his card that he is now an attorney-at-law, she became all graciousness and mentally decides to exert her influence to bring him to her feet and she accept bim for her husband.

Thornby had brilliantly succeeded in winning the suit for the Smiths, who were now preparing a dinner in his honor. All were awaiting the appearance of the school teacher, who was elaborately preparing her toilet to aid her efforts in captivating the guest. All smiles she now entered the room and with outstretched hand she awaited him. Accepting it firmly, Thornby led her across the room and introduced her to his wife. The schemer was defeated and left in a rage, whereupon Smitb drank to the health of the Man With Brains.

GEN. MEADE'S FIGHTING DAYS

Champion Release, April 24

Virginia Wilson, just before the opening days of "'61," was sought after by many a gallant beau; two of whom, however, were in the forefront as claimants for her hand, namely, William Hastings and Frederick Foster, both splendid young fellows and gallant Southern gentlemen.

The storm of war broke out, and shot and shell with hell's fury broke upon the land. Sumter had been fired upon and the country's suspense was critical. It was then tbat fair Virginia discovered into whose keeping she would give ber hand. While her wbole soul was with her native South, she gave her love to Frederick Foster, whose sympathies were with the Union.

William Hastings, the rejected suitor, threw bis lot with the Confederate bars, and went off to the front to serve, with bitterness in his heart for his hated rival, and contempt in his breast for him who espoused the views of the North. But, if Foster refused to fight for the South, neither did he fight for the North, in deference to the wishes of the girl he loved.

Each day the tide of battle ebbed and flowed; now the Blues on the crest of the wave, and again the Gray. And, one day, a party of Federal soldiers, sorely pressed, sought refuge in a house on the hill,—the house was the home of Frederick Foster and his wife, Virginia. In a moment the Johnny Rebs surrounded the premises and carnage reigned supreme. However, superiority of numbers won out and the barricades gave way before the fierce onslaught of the Grays.

His home destroyed by the invaders, young Foster, beside himself with fury, seized a gun from the hands of a falling man and the next instant a Southerner had bitten the dust. But, oh! the irony of fate! Commanding the Grays was William Hastings, and the rivals stood face to face. Turning to his men, Hastings cried: "This man in citizen's dress has shot down a uniformed soldier. Take him away to be shot!" "Greaᵗ God! It must not be!" shrieked the distracted wife, and though her young life should pay the forfeit she would save the man she loves.

'Mid the hail of steel and bullets, for the battle of Frazier's Farm was raging in all its fury, somewhere in the midst of that torrent of iron and lead the brave Gen. Meade was directing his gallant Pennsylvania boys. Though his arm was shattered in the fray, he was still undauntedly guiding them to victory.

Braving death from exposure to the shrieking messengers of death flying over the field of battle, Virginia reached the General's tent and as she desperately pleaded, the light of love shining in her eyes, she mentally reminded him of his own mother, awaiting his probable return to home, and his big, stern heart yielded to her womanly appeal.

A detachment of Blues was quickly assigned to the task of rescuing the civilian Unionist and, arriving on the scene, they rapidly dispersed the straggling Grays. Clasped in a deep embrace, the reunited pair vow to ever cherish the name of that stalwart leader, Gen. Meade.

THE OLD EXCUSE

Solax Release, April 19

Mrs. Jones receives a note from her husband, Mr. Jones, to the effect that he will be detained at the office on a very important business matter. Her friend, Mrs. Busy, taking a walk, happens to see Mr. Jones and a party of friends, who seem to be in a very jovial frame of mind, enter a saloon. Mrs. Busy hurries home and tells Mrs. Jones all about it, and upon being shown the note that she (Mrs. Jones) has just received from her worthy spouse, immediately induces Mrs. Jones to put on her hat and coat and accompany her to the saloon where they plan to put a damper on the programme of the evening.

As they enter the back room of tbe saloon they spy Mr. Jones and his numerous friends gathered about the table enjoying a game of cards. The sudden entrance of this miniature whirlwind knocks things topsy-turvy, and to escape the wrath of his wife Jones makes a jump for the dumb-waiter. His weight proves to be too much for the rope and the thing crashes to the barroom below. After pouring the vials of her wrath upon the company, and also a bag of flour that stands nearby, she takes ber way below to where Jones stands in fear and trembling.

She grabs Jones by the ear and, surrounded by a highly appreciative audience, proceeds to give him a lecture on the evils of gambling and perjury, and of the imminent vengeance of the wronged wife.

This story is rich with comedy possibilities, and the production does full justice to the story.

Wm. H. Swanson Film Co.

RAILROAD BUILDING, DENVER, COLO.

Buying more films per week, and doing the largest business of any Exchange west of Chicago.

CUSTOMERS FULLY SATISFIED

Chicago Office
160-4 Lake Street

St. Louis Office
Century Building

FOR SALE

New finely equipped theatre, vaudeville and pictures, completely furnished, seats 550. Located in large Massachusetts city. $3,500 cash. Five years' lease.

APPLY

Massachusetts, care of M. P. News.

TWO YANKEE FEATURES

MONDAY, APR. 24

"Why the Sheriff Resigned"

A story of Gratitude and Dutv

FRIDAY, APR. 28

"The Girl of the Coral Reefs"

A tale of Shipwreck and Fisherfolk

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

344 East 32d St., New York, N. Y.

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

Risk a Penny or Two

Drop us a line and we will obtain for you any film or subject that you are looking for at a very reasonable price.

NEW YORK FILM RENOVATING CO.

12 UNION SQUARE, EAST

NEW YORK :: :: NEW YORK

NORDISK FILM TIDNING

The first trade paper in Scandinavia.
Best advertising medium in North Europe.
Subscription 6 shillings.
Sample copy free upon request.

Editor, A. SEABURY, Post Box 163, Stockholm, Sweden.

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

WHILE THERE'S LIFE THERE'S HOPE
Imp Release, April 24

Ethel Sinclair is seated in the garden adjoining her home when her lover, Alfred King, enters. She has just finished a letter she has written which she gives him, then leaves the garden in company with another young man.

The letter is a cruel one, informing King the engagement that has existed between them is terminated on account of King's poverty. King sees her enter an automobile and drive away with his rival and he repairs to a park and tears up the letter.

The scene shifts to the office of Samuel Morton, an aged broker, who is desperate on account of financial reverses. He receives a letter confirming his worst fears and he resolves to end his troubles in suicide. He enters a room in a hotel and writes a farewell letter to his friends.

King also decides to take his own life in his wretchedness and he engages apartments in the same hostelry and writes a note to Ethel. The scene changes from one room to another in the hotel.

Morton produces a revolver to shoot himself and King resolves on the poison route. King overturns the bottle of poison and Morton hears the noise and seeks another mode of shuffling.

In turn King and Morton repair to a high bridge and are about to jump over when a little girl appears and frustrates their plans. She comes to Morton with a teddy bear and he leads her away, leaving the bear on the wall. King appears and is about to throw himself over when the child returns for the doll and her mother joins her. King loses his nerve and follows them.

Morton returns to his room and takes out his revolver. King enters the adjoining room, removes his hat and coat and then turns on the gas to end his life by asphyxiation. He falls from his chair, overcome by the fumes of the gas, just as Morton is about to shoot himself. Morton hears the noise and goes into the room of King and takes the young man into his (Morton's) apartment, drags him to the window and revives him.

Morton gives King a bit of advice on hearing his story. Tells him there are plenty of women in the world. King finds the letter that plunged Morton into despair and he tells the broker to buck up, that "While there's life there's hope."

Both agree to begin the battle of life anew and to be brave. They leave the hotel and walk away with the light of new hope shining in their faces, their troubles lightened by the recent experiences.

THE SCARLET LETTER
Imp Release, April 27

A dramatization of the story by Nathaniel Hawthorne of the same title. The treatment of the tale is delicate in interpretation without improper suggestion, a preachment being the intent.

Hester Prynne has left Holland in advance of her husband, Roger, to join the colonists in Salem, Mass. Roger follows her to the new world, but upon landing in New England is captured by Indians, and Hester waits for him in vain. There has never been much love in their marriage, Roger being an old man and she a comely young woman.

Rev. Arthur Dimmesdale, the handsome young minister of the Salem community, is reverenced and beloved by his parishioners. He meets Hester clandestinely and an unlawful love is the result.

When Hester is discovered with a baby—a mother but not a wife—she is arrested, tried and condemned to stand upon the public pillory with her child and for the remainder of her life to wear conspicuously on her breast the letter "A."

As she stands on the raised platform, the governor of the colony commands her to divulge the name of the father of the child. She refuses. The Rev. Master Dimmesdale is asked to persuade her to reveal her secret. He addresses her, and tells her if she thinks it for the best, to do so. She again refuses.

Roger, her husband, has been released by the red men and he appears in Salem on the day of her public disgrace and recognizes her. He signals for her to be silent, as the recognition is mutual. A silence for silence is agreed upon. He takes the name of Roger Chillingworth and, being a physician, is called to prescribe for the suffering minister, knowing him to be the father of Hester's child.

The child, Pearl, grows into a beautiful girl and the governor decides that Hester is not the proper person to rear her. Hester, in her grief, appeals to the minister and he in turn prevails on the governor to allow her the custody of the child.

As time passes the minister is growing weaker and weaker in bodily strength and the guilty secret gives him no peace of mind. Meeting Hester and little Pearl by accident, he tells the woman of his terrible punishment. She, in love and pity, tears the letter from her breast and proposes that they leave the country together to begin life anew. Little Pearl finds the letter and restores it to Hester and they realize they cannot escape the consequences of their sinning.

On a holiday the minister preaches a powerful sermon in the church on the sins of the flesh and the penalty for evil doing. As he appears in the market place he is cheered by the members of his congregation. He is overcome by emotion as the awful truth is brought home to him that he is a hypocrite. Seeing Hester and little Pearl standing near, he pulls himself together by a mighty effort and resolves to confess his sins publicly.

Taking them by the hands, he slowly and deliberately mounts the pillory, with Hester amazed, and then, to the astonishment of his flock and the loungers standing near, proclaims Pearl as his child and arraigns himself as a sinful teacher. The members of his church are appalled and dumb with astonishment. They cannot comprehend it. Hester smiles through her tears. She will no longer bear the burden of shame alone. The moment has arrived when she is partially vindicated by the self-sacrifice of the sharer of her degradation.

The final effort, coupled with years of intense suffering, proves too great a tax on the strength of the minister and he falls dead at the foot of the pillory. Hester supports his head, with tears coursing down her cheeks. The vindication has come, but with it has gone the man she has loved in secret while being subjected to the jeers of her fellows.

HERODIAS
Eclaire Release, April 24

Herodias, wife of Herod, the Tetrach of Galilee, is scathingly denounced by the great and pious Prophet, John the Baptist, for her profligate life; but the woman resents his fierce accusations, and endeavors in every possible way to put an end to his threats. John the Baptist, however, bravely continues to heap contempt upon her, and at last, Herodias prevails upon the Tetrach to throw her prosecutor into prison.

Shortly afterwards Herodias brings Salome, her daughter by her first marriage, to dance before the Tetrach, at a great festival in honor of Herod. Herod becomes dazzled by the grace and charm of his stepdaughter, and vows to give her anything she may demand at his hands. Salome, directed by her mother, claims the head of John the Baptist, the denouncing Prophet! Herod is staggered by so ghastly a request, but he is bound by his vow, and is obliged to comply with her desire.

At a blow of the executioner's sword, the wish is fulfilled! Thereupon, Herodias abandons herself to savage joy, but Salome, appalled by her own heinous crime, falls in a swoon, at the sight of the severed, bleeding head!

A DAUGHTER OF THE REVOLUTION
Rex Release, April 13

There were heroines in the days of the revolution as well as heroes. Women who displayed as much fortitude, who underwent as much silent suffering and offered as many sacrifices almost as the sturdy men on the firing line. What is called the romance of war is generally only death, despair and devastation, but sometimes even in the holocaust of struggle, there figures a genuine little skirmish of cupid and young hearts.

Dorothy Payton, a pretty rebel, the daughter of Judge Payton (a stout old Tory), loves James Hamilton, a young patriot. Captain Smith of the British army, also loves Dorothy, even putting his passion above loyalty and honor.

Hamilton risks his life to save his sweetheart, penetrating the British lines in disguise. He escapes detection and a spy's death only through Dorothy's self-sacrifice. To assure his escape the girl allows herself to be convicted of treason. Captain Smith is detailed to escort her to New York. On the road he offers to desert to the Americans and save her if she will promise to be his wife. Sturdily, well knowing the consequence of her decision, she refuses. Later, the party is attacked and conquered by the Americans under Hamilton, who at first totally misconstrues Dorothy's presence, but who soon learns the truth. Dorothy is taken to the American camp and Washington himself gives away the bride, when she and Hamilton are married.

THE STOLEN LEGACY
Great Northern Release, April 22

This is an exceedingly powerful detective story. Sherlock Holmes is in make-up a lifelike presentment of Conan Doyle's famous character. A Count, who feels that his end is near, makes a will in favor of his wife, and it is deposited in a safe. The noted criminal, "Dr." Morse, is masquerading as the Count's medical attendant, and determines to get possession of the will. He, therefore, takes a wax impression of the keyhole of the safe, sending the skeleton key to a woman accomplice who is nursing the Count. When the Count's death occurs, the nurse quickly secures the will and hands it to "Dr." Morse when he arrives in response to an urgent message. The loss of the will is soon discovered, and Sherlock Holmes is consulted. He observes an emissary of "Dr." Morse's outside his chambers, so gets a friend to go out dressed as himself (Holmes), thus throwing the watcher off the scent. The Countess meanwhile drives away in her carriage; she is pursued in a motor car by Morse and his confederates, captured after a valiant defence by her coachman, and taken to a lonely cottage. Here she is bound and placed in charge of a horrible little hunchback, whom Morse tells to kill her on the stroke of midnight unless other instructions are received. Then Morse goes to Sherlock Holmes's chambers and makes a forcible entry. Holmes is there and holds him up. Morse laughs, and says if he is not back at the cottage in half an hour, the Countess will be killed. So Holmes lets him go and accompanies him. A trap to kill him fails, and the Countess is saved from death. Morse escapes by throwing pepper in two police constables' eyes, but is captured eventually, through going out of bravado to Holmes's rooms.

THE POET OF THE PEOPLE
Thanhouser Release, April 25

Grengoire, a ragged poet, feels keenly the wrongs of his people, who are terribly misused and ground down hy the nobles of his day. He feels most keenly the fact that the King heeds not their cries for justice. He is a dreamer, not a practical man, and feels he can do nothing to help the people, except present their wrongs to them in such language that they themselves will be hrought to a realization of their oppression, and will rise in their might and fight for justice.

One day, after having seen a poor old woman struck a cruel hlow hy a servant of the rich, Grengoire gathers the people of the streets about him, and reads them his poem entitled the "King Laughs While the People Starve." This takes place directly before the house of Annette, a heautiful girl, ward of the King. The King himself, incognito, happens to visit Annette and her father on this same day and notices the crowd before their house as he enters. When he sees Annette he questions her concerning the disturbance, she tells him the crowd are listening to a fellow called Grengoire, "the poet of the people," whom she has noticed they greatly admire. The King's curiosity is greatly aroused, and he orders Grengoire hrought before him. The King then demands that Grengoire read his poetry. Grengoire, knowing the King must be some great nobleman, although he does not suspect him of being the King himself, hesitates ahout reading verses against the King. He is, however, tempted by the offer of a good meal, and as the poet is almost starving, he is induced to comply with the request.

The King is furious when he hears himself criticised thus in verse, and orders Grengoire's arrest and immediate execution. But he has become interested in the ragged poet, and as a last favor, promises to grant him any request that he may make. Grengoire asks for an interview with Annette, whom he has long worshipped from afar, but to whom he has never spoken. This favor the King grants, and Grengoire is brought to Annette's house. Here she allows him in his interview with her to tell her of his hopes for bettering the conditions of the people, and he speaks so eloquently that not only does she espouse his cause, but actually falls in love with the ragged poet himself.

Grengoire is led away to execution at the termination of his interview, and when Annette learns that he is to die, she pleads with all her soul to the King for his pardon, confessing her own great love, and bringing the King to a realization of the fact that the poor poet meant good only, and that even his harsh judgment of the King and the nohles was to a great extent deserved by them. Just as the noose is being tightened around the unfortunate's neck, the King and Annette appear at the foot of the scaffold, and stopping the execution, the King grants Grengoire a full pardon, places his hand in that of Annette, and tells the crowd assembled to witness the hanging that he can promise something much better—a wedding.

AN ELEVATOR ROMANCE
Thanhouser Release, April 28

A wealthy, hustling young Westerner comes East, and immediately calls up his boyhood chum, now a staid business man in a New York skyscraper. The Westerner is charmed with the sweet voice of the telephone girl who answers his call from the office switchhoard, and determines to make her acquaintance. In fact, one of the first things he does after reaching his friend's office, is to make inquiries, and he is made happy hy an introduction. He soon finds that while the girl's voice is charming, the girl's appearance and manner are much more so.

But the girl, heing modest and retiring, does not approve of such an informal acquaintance. She practically snuhs the Westerner, and he sees that he has made little progress in his suit. And time is valuahle for he soon must go back to his home, and he has already decided that he will take a hride with him.

Love finds a way, as it usually does. The energetic suitor brihes the elevator man to let him take his place for an hour, picking out the time when he knows the girl will go to lunch. She is the only passenger in the car on that trip (although it takes energy to accomplish it) and by some mishap, the elevator gets out of order between floors.

The poor girl is hungry, and the elevator man has lunch with him. It is hard to be haughty when one is hungry, and she soon realizes that the substitute elevator man is a very nice fellow indeed. So they eat and chat, regardless of the fact that the other tenants are compelled to walk up and down stairs. But then a lover is always selfish.

Design has helped the Westerner to get hetter acquainted, now accident aids his suit. The next day the building catches fire, and when the young man enters the lower hall, he finds the place in flames and a panic stricken crowd pouring out of the elevator. He hunts for the girl in vain. Then he discovers that she has remained to send in a fire alarm over the 'phone, and that her associates in the office fled without her. The regular elevator man refuses to take his car up again. He says that the trip cannot he made. But the Westerner acts as elevator man again, finds the girl unconscious, and carries her to safety.

Wasn't it natural that the girl should fall in love with her breezy suitor and marry him? Naturally she felt grateful to the man who fed her when she was hungry and saved her life when she was dying. She really could not refuse to marry him, for he was very presentahle, very much in earnest and very much in love.

THE VOICE OF HIS CONSCIENCE
Solax Release, April 21

Old Squire Mosher, a grasping old soul, sends the village constahle to either collect the rent due from John Reynolds or serve him with a dispossess notice. The Squire then turns his attention to the hreakfast set hefore him hy his pretty daughter, only, however, as is his hahit, to find fault with everything. The knife proves too dull to meet his ideas, and, after uphraiding the daughter, the Squire goes outside to sharpen the knife, leaving her weeping at the tahle.

Her lover, Harry, comes along and finds her in tears and tries to soothe her. The old man returns and angrily orders Harry from the house. Harry replies in like manner and a quarrel ensues, after which Harry departs. We next see the home of John Reynolds, whose wife is ill in bed. The constable, sent by the Squire, serves John with a notice to vacate. Without money, John decides that he will appeal to the Squire for leniency, and goes to his house. He arrives just after the scene with Harry and finds the old man worked up and excited. His request is met by insult and finally the Squire, losing all control of his temper, attacks him with a cudgel. John defends himself as hest he can, and in the struggle that follows the squire is killed accidentally by the very knife he had sharpened.

Though really guiltless of the crime, John realizes that his story would never he helieved if he is found alone with the body, and hearing some one approaching, he hides in a closet in the room.

In the meantime, Harry has heen persuaded by Ruth to return and make one more effort to gain the old man's consent to their marriage. He comes into the room just as the old man breathes his last. Surprised, John bends over him and picks up the knife with which the deed was done. He is found in this position by the neighhors, and, of course, accused of the crime.

Then follows a series of dramatic situations, leading up to John's final vindication, which are intensely interesting.

The story is a strong one, well developed and cleverly acted, and it is said will measure up fully to the height of the Solax recent releases.

WHY THE SHERIFF RESIGNED
Yankee Release, April 24

A Mexican stops at the home of a trapper and asks for a drink of water. Marie, the trapper's pretty wife, complies with his request. After appeasing his thirst, he leers at the woman and even attempts to force a kiss upon her, which, with the true spirit of good womanhood, she resents. He rides away laughing, leaving her sohbing at the humiliation.

The husband finds her thus, and as she sohs out the story, the husband's rage knows no hounds. He gets a clue to the Mexican's trail by the old hoof print of his horse. He comes upon the Mexican who is engaged with boon companions in a game of cards. The trapper has words with the Mexican; the latter draws his gun, but hefore he can fire the trapper grahs his gun and in the struggle which follows the gun held hy the Mexican is discharged and the Mexican falls. The trapper returns home to his wife, but the hue and cry has gone forth and the sheriff starts to get his man but meets with an accident on the way, his horse stumhling in the dark.

The trapper in the meantime is in hiding, and Mary is on her way with food to her fugitive hushand when she finds the sheriff prostrate with a broken arm. She assists him to her home and nurses him. When the sheriff is well on his way to recovery, he discovers that Mary is the wife of the man he is hunting down. The trapper in the meantime tires of hiding and returns to his home, and, peering through the window, notes the sheriff patting his wife's hand. The trapper in a jealous rage dashes into the cabin with drawn gun. Marie jumps in front of the sheriff to protect him. The sheriff gently puts her aside and has a heart to heart talk with the husband.

After the husband has explained the circumstances of the killing (which was purely accidental) he offers to go with the sheriff, but the big, red-blooded man looks at the weeping woman and, considering what she has done for him, decides that he never did care much for the office of sheriff and hids them both "God speed" and leaves them in peace.

THE GIRL OF THE CORAL REEFS
Yankee Release, April 28

The sea often casts up its secrets, many of which are never revealed. In this picture we have the story of a waif of the sea whose identity remained unknown for many years and whose return to the happy scenes of her girlhood is typical of the simple life of fisher-folk, the world over.

A shipwreck occurs on the "Coral Reefs"—from the hurning ship few remained to tell the tale. By some miraculous chance, a wee habe was saved by some fisherman, who discovered it upon a hatch floating among the reefs. There is great rejoicing in the little settlement as the infant is brought to the fisherman's home. She is the only soul saved from the vessel which beat upon the rocks and was finally consumed by the flames. The haby is adopted as a memher of the household and grows into girlhood unaware of her parentage. With this prologue we pass along to the incidents of the humble fishing settlement fifteen years later.

The child, grown to womanhood, is the idol of the plain fisher folk. An American artist sketching upon the cliffs and along the caves of coral formation spies a beautiful girl pitching shells from the sea. He is struck with her heauty and asks her to pose for him; the girl, frightened at the sight of the stranger, flees to her adopted mother for protection. The artist follows and explains to the mother, who calms her daughter's nervous fears, and she consents to pose for the picture.

A young fisherman in love with the lass perceives the object of his adoration posing for the artist, and his jealousy drives him to a desperate act. He hurls a stone upon the scene helow, which strikes the artist upon the shoulders, missing his head. He is carried to the girl's home, where he is nursed tenderly and in the course of a few weeks is able to prepare for his departure.

He receives a telegram from his mother, who is notified of his accident, and she soon arrives from the mainland. She is struck with the face of the girl and questioning the fisherwoman, learns the story of the burning ship and the cast-up waif whom God sent from Heaven. The only clue to her identity was a locket which they found around the infant's neck. The girl is called and the lady recognizes the locket and narrates the story of the burning ship, when she was separated from husband and bahy, thinking them hoth lost. Here she has found her child and the artist a new sister.

With regret the girl is given to her mother and they depart for the mainland, where we discover the girl is surrounded by all the luxuries she could desire. "The call of the Sea" is, however, too strong within her. She is unhappy, and knowing nothing but the simple life she longs to return; unable to restrain her feelings, she steals from her new villa home in her fisher garb and appears at her humble home, happy in the love of the only mother she had ever known and in the devotion of the plain fisher hoy of the Coral Reefs.

Gunby Bros.

There is in New York City a small studio operated by Gunby Bros. which is capable of producing anything in the motion picture line from a title to an entire production.

Their specialty is the manufacturing of films for advertising purposes and titles, and any one who desires films of special types would do well to get in touch with them.

They also make a specialty of box office features such as announcement slides and a series of slides of any current event such as large disasters, etc., etc.

The Gunby Bros. are pioneers in the moving picture field, their experiences dating back from 1890 when they were featuring the moon advertising system, and they were the first to introduce the Lubin films in New York City.

THE SALES COMPANY

The following films have been released from April 17th to May 3d inclusive, by the Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.:

Apr. 17—Two Plucky Girls (American)..... 950
Apr. 17—With Stonewall Jackson (Champ.).
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf (Eclair)..... 660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mt. of Olives (Eclair) 315
Apr. 17—Stampede (Imp) .....
Apr. 18—Return of Company D (Bison)....
Apr. 18—Copper Wit (Powers).....
Apr. 18—The Wine Harvest (Powers).....
Apr. 18—Cally's Comet (Thanhouser).....
Apr. 19—The Mute Poet (Ambrosio).....
Apr. 19—A Half-Breed's Courage (Champion)
Apr. 19—The Rival Article (Nestor).....
Apr. 20—One Month to Live (American)....1000
Apr. 20—Resignation and Hero (Imp).....
Apr. 20—A Daughter of the Revolution (Rex)
Apr. 21—A Cowboy for a Day (Bison).....
Apr. 21—Dr. Grant's Wonderful Discovery (Lux) 885
Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance (Thar.)..
Apr. 22—The Stolen Legacy (Gt. Northern).
Apr. 22—A Marriage Celebrated Amidst the Savages (Itala) .....
Apr. 22—Foolshead, Wrangler for Love (Itala) .....
Apr. 22—The Last Rose (Powers).....
Apr. 22—In the Tepee's Light (Reliance)...
Apr. 24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days (Champion) .....
Apr. 24—Herodias (Eclair) 995
Apr. 24—While There's Life There's Hope (Imp) .....
Apr. 24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Yankee)
Apr. 25—Oh! Mamma (Powers).....
Apr. 25—Melody of Fate (Powers).....
Apr. 26—She Wanted a Man With Brains (Champion) .....
Apr. 26—His Wife (Nestor).....
Apr. 26—Vengeance Hath Been Had (Rel.)
Apr. 27—Scarlet Letter (Imp).....
Apr. 28—Naughty Miss Edith (Lux)..... 472
Apr. 28—Bill's Garden (Lux)..... 419
Apr. 28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Yank.)
Apr. 29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Powers)..
May 1—For Their Mother (Eclair)..... 695
May 1—The Blue Nile (Eclair)..... 290
May 3—The Other Man (Nestor).....

Advertisers want results. When writing to them it is our due that you mention The Moving Picture News

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!
Motion Picture Machines $35 Up.
Stereopticons, Films, Slides, etc.
Passion Play Film, Powers Cameragraph No. 5, only $85.
Get Supplement 33; has many Bargains in New and Second-Hand Machines, Supplies, etc.
Motion Picture Machines Wanted.
HARBACH'S, 809 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.

WANTED
To hear from foreign agents who can handle the output of another American manufacturer.

WANTED
To hear from film exchanges who can handle another weekly release.

WANTED
To hear from experts in every line of the manufacturing end of motion pictures. We have something good up our sleeve.

Address,
COLUMBIA CINEMATOGRAPH COMPANY, Inc.
Box 44, Petersburg, Virginia.

THE THANHOUSER WO-A-WEEK

RELEASED TUESDAY, APRIL 25

"THE KING LAUGHS WHILE THE PEOPLE STARVE"

The Poet of the People

is a grand presentation of life in the middle ages, when the upper classes were really up, and the common people had nothing in common except suffering, starvation and oppression. In the France of the early Louis the people became resigned to conditions to the extent that never a murmur was heard from them. But a poor poet and his poetry changed the complexion of things a bit, and the reel gives the why and the wherefore.

No. 205. Code Word, Poet.

RELEASED FRIDAY, APRIL 28

THE SKYSCRAPER ELEVATOR AS A LIFESAVER!

An Elevator Romance

is a portrayal of the thrilling adventures, sharp trials and real perils encountered in an office building aflame. How in the excitement attending the discovery of the blaze, the workers rushed forth and left behind them the pretty switchboard operator—how this slip of a girl stuck to her board in an effort to notify the fire department of the blaze—how a cowardly elevator man refused to go to her rescue, and how a boy who loved her did make the trip—is all shown in a masterpiece of realism that will cause comment anywhere.

No. 206. Code Word, Rom.

JUST OUT! THE THANHOUSER LOBBY PHOTOS.

consisting of five splendid individual photographs (11x14) of Thanhouser principals, sent postage prepaid for $1.00 with order.

THE THANHOUSER NEWS, "The Exhibitor's Guide," containing the Thanhouser Lobby-Decorator, sent FREE OF CHARGE to all who can show connection with the Moving Picture business. Drop a card to Editor, Thanhouser News, New Rochelle, N. Y.

THANHOUSER CO.

NEW ROCHELLE, NEW YORK

Progress Is Not Duplication

Duplication exists only where things are exactly alike. THE MOTIOGRAPH does not duplicate the obsolete projection machine, the heavy cumbersome "thrown together" kind you have been used to.

THE MOTIOGRAPH is distinctively different, and in its superior design, construction and workmanship, it does not "duplicate." It leads, others follow.

THE PATENTED DOUBLE CONE SHUTTER projects a 25% brighter picture. ALL GEARS ARE ENCLOSED, protecting them from dirt and grit. OIL BATH FOR STAR AND CAM. PATENTED QUICK REWIND from main crank with INSTANTANEOUS MAGAZINE SHIFT. No tool kit needed to handle the MOTIOGRAPH as every gear and screw is accessible.

THE MOTIOGRAPH projects the PAINTED ON THE WALL SORT of pictures that every owner should have.

1911 MODEL NOW READY.

MANUFACTURED AND JOBBED BY

The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Co.

564 West Randolph Street :-: :-: :-: Chicago, Illinois

AGENTS { J. H. HALLBERG, 36 E. 23rd St., New York City, N. Y.
E. H. KEMP, 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
J. FRANK BROCKLISS, London, Paris and Berlin.

Aroma Foam

Aroma Foam, the fragrant and powerful perfumed disinfectant, is manufactured by the Sanitary Service Corporation, of 80 Wall street, New York City. Aroma Foam is manufactured expressly for use as a spray and is the most effective and agreeable method of purifying and disinfecting theaters. Its base is formaldehyde, adopted by the governments and Boards of Health the world over as the standard disinfectant. In Aroma Foam the formaldehyde is blended with a secret preparation called ephrenyllus, discovered by Dr. Wohlgemuth, the consulting chemist of the Sanitary Service Corporation. Ephrenyllus overcomes the biting effect of formaldehyde when used as a spray. In the manufacture of Aroma Foam, there is added to the above ingredients the finest imported flower oils, which cause Aroma Foam to impart the light tinge so peculiar to this product—the delicate odor of the live, blooming flower. Aroma Foam comes in four perfumes and a trial offer is now open on all four numbers to every theatrical manager in the United States and Canada who has not already added to the prestige of his house by the daily use of Aroma Foam. Write for the trial offer.

The Crown M. P. Supplies

This enterprising concern, located at 138 Third avenue, New York City, is doing a thriving business in all supplies required in the motion picture business and carries an extensive line.

The Crown arc lamp, Crown pink label carbons and Crown stickwell cement are specialties of theirs and operators in need of these goods or repairs of any kind would do well to bear them in mind.

Pullman & Gates have an office on the same floor with this firm and make a specialty of furnishing vaudeville artists for motion picture houses.

The New York Film Renovating Co.

Having recently opened offices at 12 Union Square, East, they announce to the trade in this issue that they are in a position to secure any film or subject desired by the exhibitor. They will be pleased to hear from interested parties, and we would also call the reader's attention to their unequalled facilities for cleaning films. An interview with them will be to mutual advantage as they have a process which is worthy of investigation.

Do you want to

CONSUMMATE YOUR IDEAS

(Consummate, to complete, Webster)

for

ORIGINAL CREATIONS

in

Advertising Slides or Films

consult

GUNBY BROS., 199 THIRD AVE., NEW YORK.
Producers of Photographic Moving Picture Novelties.

Frederick C. Taylor

THEATRICAL AGENCY

49-51 West 28th Street, N.Y.C.

Phone: 1405 Madison Sq.

Managers of Theatres, Parks, Airdomes and Amusement Enterprises, we are prepared to furnish you with theatrical talent of every description, also help of all kinds such as operators, singers, piano players, drummers, cashiers, lecturers, managers, etc., etc. We make a special feature of our song slide department. Write, call or 'phone.

WILLIAM H. STANLEY, Manager.

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

	Feet
Feb. 1—Tweedledum Tries Winter Sports...
Feb. 8—Tweedledum as a Detective.....
Feb. 15—The Demon	900
Feb. 22—Redeeming Angel.....
Mar. 1—Tweedledum, Aviator.....
Mar. 1—War of the Cossacks.....
Mar. 8—Prisoner of Caucasus (Dr.).....	900
Mar. 15—A Coward (Dr.).....
Mar. 15—Adventures of a Countryman in Town (Com.)	322
Mar. 22—Tweedledum's April Fool Joke (Com.)	900
Mar. 29—A Glimpse of Neapolitan Camorra.
Apr. 12—The Necklace Affair.....	950

AMERICAN.

Mar. 6—Memories (Dr.)	375
Mar. 9—The Rich and the Poor (Dr.).....	1000
Mar. 13—The Penalty (Dr.).....
Mar. 16—The Job and the Girl (Com.).....
Mar. 16—Do You Know This Woman? (C.)
Mar. 20—The Field of Honor (Com.).....	985
Mar. 23—The Harem Skirt (Com.)
Mar. 27—The Talisman (Dr.)	985
Mar. 30—Osteopathy (Com.)	277
Mar. 30—Two Girls (Dr.)	723
Apr. 3—Oh! You Suffragette (Com.)	460
Apr. 3—A Cure for Laziness (Com.)	540
Apr. 6—Reddy's Redemption (Dr.)	995
Apr. 10—Cupid's Pocketbook (Com.) 1000
Apr. 13—Jim Minds the Baby (Com.)	350
Apr. 13—The Bungalow Craze (Com.).....	750

CHAMPION.

Jan. 11—Bill's Widow (Dr.).....	950
Jan. 18—The Will of a Western Maid (Dr.).
Jan. 18—Why He Went West (Dr.).....	950
Feb. 1—Judged by Higher Power (Dr.)....
Feb. 8—At Double Trouble Ranch (Dr.)...	950
Feb. 15—Her Three Proposals (Com.).....	950
Feb. 22—The Old Man and Jim (Dr.).....	950
Mar. 1—A Western Girl's Choice (Dr.)....	950
Mar. 8—The Vindication of John.....	950
Mar. 15—The Girl and the Oath (Dr.).....	950
Mar. 22—The Pay-Roll (Dr.).....	950
Mar. 29—The Bachelor's Old Maid.....	950
Apr. 5—The Price He Paid.....	950
Apr. 12—Men of the West (Western).....
Apr. 17—With Stonewall Jackson (Edu.)....
Apr. 19—A Half Breed's Courage (Western)
Apr. 24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days (Edu.)

ECLAIR

Feb. 13—The Elixir of Bravery.....	424
Feb. 20—The Heart of a Warrior (Dr.).....	682
Feb. 20—Hospital for Small Animals (Spec.).	286
Feb. 27—Punch	595
Feb. 27—Beware of the Bomb (Com.).....	370
Mar. 6—King Phillip the Fair and the Templars	975
Mar. 13—An Unforeseen Introduction (C.).	470
Mar. 13—A Day of Storms (Com.).....	430
Mar. 20—Cain (Dr.)	790
Mar. 20—The Rock Climbers (Scenic).....	195
Mar. 27—Hurrah!Hurrah! Let Us Marry!..	975
Apr. 3—A Strike in the "Make Young" Business	534
Apr. 3—Mr. Nearsight's Marriage.....	426
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.).....	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf.....	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.).....	695
May 1—The Blue Nile.....	290

GREAT NORTHERN.

Jan. 14—A Homeless Boy (Dr.).....
Jan. 21—The Trunk Mystery.....
Jan. 28—Triumph of Intelligence.....	391
Jan. 28—Mr. Muggins Has His Sewing Done (Com.)
Feb. 4—The Criminal Chief's Capture.....
Feb. 11—Found Again (Dr.).....
Feb. 18—The Life of a Muschik.....
Feb. 18—The False Alarm.....
Feb. 25—His Great Duty (Dr.).....
Mar. 4—The Rival Servants (Dr.).....
Mar. 11—The Son of the Executioner (Dr.)
Mar. 18—Between Love and Duty (Dr.)....
Mar. 18—Life and People South of the Equator (Scenic)
Mar. 25—The Fakir's New Servant (Com.).
Mar. 25—Troubles of a Trip (Com.).....
Apr. 1—A Victim of His Double (Dr.)....
Apr. 8—A Confidence Trick.....
Apr. 15—Hamlet (Dr.)

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Feb. 2—The Mix-up
Feb. 2—An Imaginary Elopement.....
Feb. 6—At the Duke's Command (Dr.)....1000
Feb. 9—The Mirror (Com.).....	500
Feb. 9—When the Cat's Away (Com.).....	500
Feb. 13—Her Darkest Hour (Dr.).....1000
Feb. 16—The Convert (Dr.).....1000
Feb. 20—Pictureland 1000
Feb. 23—Artful Kate (Dr.).....1000
Feb. 27—A Manly Man (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 2—Army Manoeuvres in Cuba (Edu.)	500
Mar. 2—The Dynamiters (Com.).....	500
Mar. 6—Tracked (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 9—The Message in the Bottle (Dr.)...1000
Mar. 13—The Secret of the Palm (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 16—The Fishermaid (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 20—In Old Madrid (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 27—Sweet Memories (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr. 6—The Image of Fate (Dr.) 1000
Apr. 10—A Good Cigar
Apr. 10—A Faithless Man
Apr. 13—The Storm
Apr. 20—The Hero (Com.).....	500

ITALA

Jan. 21—Visit of a Friend.....
Jan. 26—The Revenging Picture.....
Jan. 28—My Son Is Guilty.....
Feb. 2—The Village Coachman.....
Feb. 4—The Feast of Foolshead.....
Feb. 9—John Milton	900
Feb. 11—Foolshead at the Kinematograph...	900
Feb. 16—The Fatal Charm.....	900
Feb. 18—Who Will Eat the Turkey.....	900
Feb. 23—Little Souls	770
Feb. 25—Foolshead Present
Feb. 25—Havana Cigar
Mar. 2—Nini's Doll.....
Mar. 4—Cato and the Flag.....
Mar. 4—Foolshead More than Usual.....
Mar. 9—Nobility (Dr.).....	900
Mar. 11—Foolshead Shooting (Com.).....	900
Mar. 16—A Dog and Two Mistresses.....	986
Mar. 18—Foolshead in Soiree (Com.).....
Mar. 18—Toto on the State (Com.).....
Mar. 23—Waiting for the Midnight Express.	900
Mar. 25—Toto Wants to Get Thinner.....	500
Mar. 25—Queen of the Sea.....	500
Apr. 1—Foolshead Goes to See a Cockfight.
Apr. 8—Foolshead—Lady of Company.....
Apr. 15—The Fall of Troy

LUX.

By Prieur.

Feb. 10—That Horse Did Run (Com.).....	272
Feb. 17—Bronco Bill, the Brave Cowboy (Dr.)	639
Feb. 17—Matilda Lovestruck (Com.).....	321
Feb. 24—A Child's Prayer (Dr.).....	534
Feb. 24—Matilda Chased (Com.).....	354
Mar. 3—Jack's Lucky Horseshoe (Dr.)....	530
Mar. 3—On Their Honeymoon (Com.).....	440
Mar. 6—Angel of the Bowery (Dr.).....
Mar. 10—The Senorita's Sacrifice (Dr.).....
Mar. 10—Bill in Love Again (Com.).....	432
Mar. 10—Jones' Remedy (Com.).....	524
Mar. 17—Dogs Not Admitted (Com.).....	534
Mar. 17—Bill Has Kleptomania (Com.).....	380
Mar. 24—Cowboy Friendship (Dr.)	636
Mar. 24—Edith Has Some Sport (Com.)....	322
Mar. 31—The Greed of Gain (Dr.).....	652
Mar. 31—He Wanted a Hoop (Com.)	281
Apr. 7—Bill's Little Plan (Com.).....	386
Apr. 7—A Desperado (Dr.).....	586
Apr. 14—Bill and the Greasy Pole (Com.)...	432
Apr. 14—They Did Not Budge (Com.).....	501

NESTOR FILM CO.

Jan. 4—At Cedar Ridge (Dr.).....
Jan. 11—Sleepy Hollow (Dr.).....	950
Jan. 18—Their New Minister (Dr.).....
Jan. 25—The Man in 23.....
Jan. 25—New Minister
Feb. 1—The Bridal Trail.....
Feb. 8—The Transgressor
Feb. 15—The Light Beyond.....
Feb. 22—His Father's House (Dr.).....
Mar. 1—The Professor's Romance (C.-D.).	990
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks.....
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks (Dr.).
Mar. 15—Was It Worth While? (Dr.).....
Mar. 22—Could You Blame Him? (Com.)...
Mar. 29—The Truth (Dr.)
Apr. 5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr. 12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.).....
Apr. 19—The Rival Artists (Dr.).....
Apr. 26—His Wife (Dr.).....

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Jan. 30—A Tough Tenderfoot.....
Feb. 3—A Squaw's Bravery.....
Feb. 7—The Half Breed's Plan.....
Feb. 9—John Milton (Dr.).....
Feb. 10—The Salted Mine (Dr.).....
Feb. 14—The Deputy's Honor.....	900
Feb. 17—The Warrior's Squaw.....	900
Feb. 21—The Way of a Red Man (Dr.)....
Feb. 24—The Fate of Joe Dorr (Dr.).....
Feb. 28—A Warrior's Faith.....
Mar. 3—Owanee's Great Love.....
Mar. 7—Dick Farrell's Prize.....
Mar. 10—Her Prisoner (Dr.).....
Mar. 14—Starlight the Squaw (Dr.).....
Mar. 17—Sacrifice of Silver Cloud (Dr.)....
Mar. 21—Was He Justified? (Dr.).....	900
Mar. 24—The Cowboy's Waif (Dr.)	900
Mar. 28—An Indian Nemesis (Dr.).....
Mar. 31—The Red Avenger (Dr.)
Apr. 4—At Bar U Ranch (Dr.).....
Apr. 7—Avery's Dream (Com.).....
Apr. 11—An Indian's Mistake.....	950
Apr. 14—A Man of Honor.....	950

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Mar. 4—Home Sweet Home (Dr.).....	950
Mar. 7—When Masons Meet.....
Mar. 7—The Bandit's Surprise.....
Mar. 11—A Gamble with Love.....
Mar. 14—Come Back to Erin.....
Mar. 18—His Mind's Tragedy
Mar. 21—Just Kids (Com.).....
Mar. 21—A Trip About Christiana.....
Mar. 25—Ogallalah (Dr.)
Mar. 28—The Boy from the East.....
Mar. 28—The Pantaloon Skirt (Com.).....
Mar. 28—A Western Ruse (W. Dr.).....
Apr. 1—Cupid's Monkey Wrench (Com.)..
Apr. 4—Oh! You Mother-in-Law (Com.)..
Apr. 4—Touring Athens (Scenic).....
Apr. 8—A Western Ruse
Apr. 11—How the Doctor Made Good.....
Apr. 11—Reclamation
Apr. 15—At the Window.....

RELIANCE

Mar. 14—Come Unto Me.....	900
Mar. 18—At Swords Points (Dr.).....
Mar. 22—When Red Turned Gray (Dr.)....
Mar. 25—Pallid Hues in Clouded Skies.....	900
Mar. 29—If It Ever Were Thus (Dr.).....	900
Apr. 1—Till Death Do Part.....
Apr. 5—Rickshaw the Detective
Apr. 5—Summer Skies
Apr. 8—The Gloved Hand (Dr.).....
Apr. 12—Thirty Minutes (Dr.).....
Apr. 15—Her Mother's Love.....	950
Apr. 19—A Tale of Ebon Tints (Com.).....	950

REX

Feb. 16—"A Heroine of '76" (Dr.).....	875
Feb. 23—"The Story of a Prayer Rug" (Dr.)	895
Mar. 2—"By the Light of the Moon" (Com.)	950
Mar. 9—"The Fall of a Knight" (Com.).....	958
Mar. 16—Where the Shamrock Grows (Dr.).	950
Mar. 23—Five Hours
Mar. 30—As Ye Sow.....
Apr. 5—"The Heiress" (Com.).....	975
Apr. 13—"The Little Major" (Dr.).....	960

SOLAX COMPANY

Mar. 24—Out of the Depths (Dr.).....
Mar. 29—A Package of Trouble (Com.)....
Mar. 29—She Was Not Afraid (Com.).....
Mar. 31—The Mill of the Gods (Dr.).....
Apr. 5—The Maid's Revenge (Com.).....	992
Apr. 7—The Rose of the Circus (Dr.).....	1,000
Apr. 12—Tramp Strategy (Com.).....
Apr. 12—The Scheme that Failed (Com.)....
Apr. 14—The Little Flower Girl (Dr.).....
Apr. 19—The Old Excuse (Com.).....
Apr. 21—The Voice of His Conscience (Dr.).

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Feb. 17—Checkmate (Dr.).....
Feb. 21—The Patriot Maid of '76 (Dr.).....
Feb. 21—For Washington
Feb. 24—A Newsboy Hero.....
Feb. 28—The Litle Mother (Dr.).....
Mar. 3—Stage Struck (Dr.).....
Mar. 7—The Mummy (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 10—The Spirit Hand (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 14—His Younger Brother.....
Mar. 17—Robert Emmett
Mar. 21—Divorce (Dr.)
Mar. 21—Waiting at the Church (Com.)....
Mar. 24—The Tramp (Dr.).....
Mar. 28—The Imposter 1000
Mar. 31—Silas Marner 1000
Apr. 4—Charity of the Poor (Dr.)
Apr. 7—Vindicated
Apr. 11—Velvet and Rags.....
Apr. 14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.).....
Apr. 18—Cally's Comet (Com.).....1000
Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance.....1000
Apr. 25—Poet of the People (His.).....
Apr. 28—An Elevator Romance (Com.).....

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Feb. 20—A Life-Time Repentance (Dr.).....
Feb. 24—The Woman Who Dared (Dr.).....
Feb. 27—All for Gold (Dr.).....
Mar. 3—The Abduction of Parson Jones (Com.)
Mar. 6—Angel of the Bowery (Dr.).....
Mar. 10—The Senorita's Sacrifice (Dr.).....
Mar. 13—The Test of Love (Dr.).....
Mar. 17—His Double Treasure (Dr.).....
Mar. 20—The Open Gate (Dr.).....
Mar. 24—Love's Ebb and Flood (Dr.).....
Mar. 27—Tom and Jerry (Dr.).....
Mar. 31—Her Mother's Fiance (Dr.).....
Apr. 4—Secret of the Opal Mine (Dr.)....
Apr. 4—The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr. 10—An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.).....
Apr. 14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.).....
Apr. 17—A Close Call (Dr.).....
Apr. 21—The Minister's Son (Dr.).....

The Peerless Projecting Machine

LE ROY'S ACMEGRAPH

New York Approved

Showing Rock Steady, Flickerless Pictures

Easy running, no loose parts, no complicated construction, long wearing qualities, has fewer parts and less repairs are required than on any other machine, all metal and absolutely fireproof. AND THE PRICE IS RIGHT. INSPECTION INVITED.

Accurate Repairing and Remodelling a Specialty.

ACME EXCHANGE

133 3rd Avenue, New York, N. Y.

WARNING NOTICE!!

We have no connection with any firm of a similar name or title, that is using a colorable imitation of our firm name.

WE WERE

ESTABLISHED 1894 — IN BUSINESS 17 YEARS — REGISTERED 1900

LONG BEFORE JOHNNY NEWCOMER BUTTED INTO THE MOVING PICTURE BIZ.

The Biggest Feature Pictures Ever Made

"The Cowboy and Indian Frontier Celebration" held at Cheyenne, Wyo., and reviewed by Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

3,000 feet of the greatest Wild West motion pictures in the world, showing the West as it was.

A masterpiece in photography, clear and intensely interesting throughout.

Will rent them one day $15.00. Two days $25.00.

Posters and dodgers at cost.

Write for dates to the

TOURNAMENT FILM CO.
Frankfort, Ky.

THE KLEINE

Carbon Holder

APPROVED MARCH 1st, 1911
By the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity of New York City
Manufactured by
C. B. KLEINE
19 East 21st Street New York

Consolidated Amusement Co.

614-15-16-17-18-19 Rhodes Bldg.,
ATLANTA, GA.

RENTERS

Releasing Entire Output Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co. Each Week.
All Standard Make Machines,
Parts and Supplies.
Fort Wayne Compensarc.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES

REPAIRED

by skilled mechanics at short notice and reasonable prices. Work guaranteed.

Supplies of All Kinds.

CHAS. E. DRESSLER,
388 2nd Ave., City, near 23rd St.
Take elevator.

AROMA FOAM

The Fragrant and Powerful Perfumed Disinfectant

Have YOU tried it?

It is not our fault if you haven't a sweet, sanitary, clean-smelling house.

Mr. Manager, just drop us a postal and ask for our trial offer.

Do it NOW

SANITARY SERVICE CORPORATION
82 Wall Street New York City
Everything in the Disinfectant and Sanitary Supply Line

PATENTS

"BE INDEPENDENT."

Moving Picture Devices a Specialty.

Charles Lowell Howard

PATENT ATTORNEY

706-707-708 M'Gill Bldg., WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST
THEATRE CHAIR

Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving.
To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

LICENSEES OF PATENTS CO.

BIOGRAPH

	Feet
Feb. 16—Fisher Folks (Dr.)	998
Feb. 20—The Diamond Star (Dr.)	996
Feb. 23—His Daughter (Dr.)	997
Feb. 27—The Lily of the Tenements (Dr.)	991
Mar. 2—The Heart of a Savage (Dr.)	995
Mar. 6—A Decree of Destiny (Dr.)	995
Mar. 9—Conscience (Dr.)	995
Mar. 13—Comrades (Dr.)	998
Mar. 16—Was He a Coward? (Dr.)	994
Mar. 20—Teaching Dad to Like Her (Com.)	995
Mar. 23—The Londale Operator (Dr.)	998
Mar. 27—Priscilla's April Fool (Com.)	686
Mar. 27—Cured (Com.)	308
Mar. 30—The Spanish Gypsy (Dr.)	996
Apr. 3—Priscilla and the Umbrella (Com.)	997
Apr. 6—The Broken Cross (Dr.)	996
Apr. 10—The Chief's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Paradise Lost (Dr.)	1000

EDISON

Feb. 24—The Price of Victory	1000
Feb. 17—A Stage Romance	1000
Feb. 21—The Rival Sculptors	990
Feb. 22—Mr. Bumptious, Detective	990
Feb. 28—The Iron Master	1000
Mar. 1—The Rival Candidates (Com. Dr.)	1000
Mar. 3—The Writing on the Blotter (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 7—Love and the Stock Market (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 8—A Night of Terror (Com.)	400
Mar. 8—The Old Family Bible (Dr.)	600
Mar. 10—How Bella Was Won (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 14—All for the Love of a Lady (Dr.)	990
Mar. 15—The Department Store (Com.)	625
Mar. 15—Baby's Fall (Com.)	375
Mar. 17—The Wedding Bell (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 21—The Test of Love (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 22—Who Gets the Order (Com.)	995
Mar. 24—The Disreputable Mr. Raegen (D.)	1000
Mar. 28—Jim the Mule Boy (Dr.)	975
Mar. 29—April Fool (Com.)	985
Mar. 31—Between Two Fires	1000
Apr. 4—Monsieur (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 5—The Resurrection of John	1000
Apr. 7—Nell's Last Deal (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 11—The Strike at the Mines (Dr.)	995
Apr. 12—Silver Threads Among the Gold (Dr.)	500
Apr. 12—Card of Introduction (Com.)	500
Apr. 14—A Buried Past (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—The Haunted Sentinel Tower	1000
Apr. 21—Turned to the Wall	1000

ESSANAY FILM CO.

Jan. 31—Hank and Lank (Com.)	366
Feb. 4—Carmenita, the Faithful (Dr.)	995
Feb. 7—A Woman's Voice (Com.)	566
Feb. 7—Ten Words for Twenty-five Cents (Com.)	425
Feb. 11—The Bad Man's Downfall (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 14—Getting Sister Married (Com.)	1000
Feb. 18—The Cattleman's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 21—Their Wedding Gift (Com.)	580
Feb. 21—Just as the Clock Struck Nine (C.)	412
Feb. 25—The Outlaw and the Child (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 28—Taming a Tyrant (Com.)	1000
Mar. 4—On the Desert's Edge (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 7—The Little Drudge (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 11—The Romance of "Bar O"	1000
Mar. 14—Oh, You Teacher! (Com.)	1000
Mar. 18—The Faithful Indian (Dr.)	975
Mar. 21—Hans' Millions (Com.)	1000
Mar. 25—A Thwarted Vengeance (W. Dr.)	1000
Mar. 28—Getting His Own Back (Com.)	600
Mar. 28—Lost: A Baby (Com.)	400
Apr. 1—Across the Plains (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 4—Caught with the Goods (Com.)	1,000
Apr. 8—The Sheriff's Chum (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 11—An Orphan's Flight (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—The Bad Man's First Prayer (Dr.)	1000

GAUMONT
G. Kleine

Feb. 11—Autumn Leaves (Edu.)	185
Feb. 14—The Reformation of the Suffragettes	665
Feb. 14—Land Marks of Avignon, France	338
Feb. 18—Saul and David	128
Feb. 18—At the End of the Road	838
Feb. 21—The Plot That Failed	815
Feb. 21—Pictures in Chemistry	175
Feb. 25—Paganini and the Countess Beatrice	998
Feb. 28—Matrimonial Epidemic (Com.)	813
Feb. 28—Lafont and Pola's Last Flight	185
Mar. 4—The Tramp's Find	680
Mar. 4—Forbidden Cigarettes	335
Mar. 7—The Barber's Daughter	505
Mar. 7—The Ambitious Bootblack	450
Mar. 11—His First Sweetheart	560
Mar. 11—The Beautiful Gorges of Tarn	415
Mar. 14—The Sword and the Cross	840
Mar. 14—Breakers in the Clouds	155
Mar. 18—The Privateer's Treasure	860
Mar. 18—Rocky Caves of France	110
Mar. 21—The Lieutenant's Wild Ride	1002
Mar. 25—Cupid's Conquest	595
Mar. 25—The People of the Arabian Desert	405
Mar. 28—His Image in the Water	575
Mar. 28—Family Troubles	430
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 1—The Secret of the Forest (Dr.)	625
Apr. 1—Tribulations of Jiggers	375
Apr. 4—The Letter with the Red Seal	865
Apr. 4—The City of Amalfi in Italy	135
Apr. 8—The Atonement of Thais	865
Apr. 8—Italian Coast Scenes	135
Apr. 11—The Court Martial (Dr.)	725
Apr. 11—Picturesque Waterfalls in Northern Spain	275
Apr. 15—The Oppressor (Dr.)	640
Apr. 15—Jimmy the Fox (Com.)	380
Apr. 18—Lost Years	630
Apr. 18—Brest, a Fortified Harbor of France	370

KALEM CO.

Feb. 1—The Sheriff's Sister (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 3—The Trail of tbe Pomas Charm (Dr.)	1005
Feb. 8—Little Sister (Com.-Dr.)	1000
Feb. 10—The Broken Trail (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 15—Grandmother's War Story (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 17—The Lost Ribbon (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 22—The Open Road (Dr.)	995
Feb. 24—Priscilla and the Pequot (Dr.)	925
Mar. 1—Sailor Jack's Reformation (Dr.)	1005
Mar. 3—Mexican Filibusters (Dr.)	1005
Mar. 8—The Irish Honeymoon (Dr.)	950
Mar. 10—The Mission Carrier (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 15—The Driver (Educ.)	565
Mar. 15—The Hunter's Dream (Com.)	365
Mar. 17—A War Time Escape (Dr.)	980
Mar. 22—A Saw Mill Hero (Dr.)	960
Mar. 24—Rescued from the Desert (Dr.)	990
Mar. 29—The Lass Who Couldn't Forget (Dr.)	960
Mar. 31—The Hero Trackwalker (Dr.)	950
Apr. 5—By a Woman's Wit (Dr.)	995
Apr. 7—Big-hearted Jim (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 12—In Old Florida (Dr.)	965
Apr. 14—Slim Jim's Last Chance (Dr.)	970

LUBIN

Feb. 16—Schultz Has the Smallpox (Com.)	400
Feb. 20—The Test (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 23—Dobbs, the Dauber (Com.)	1000
Feb. 27—Nan's Diplomacy (Com.)	1000
Mar. 2—Father's Birthday Ring (Com.)	600
Mar. 2—Woman's Curiosity (Com.)	400
Mar. 6—Vanity and Its Cure (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 9—Her Friend, the Burglar (Com.)	1000
Mar. 13—The Actress and the Singer (Com.-Dr.)	1000
Mar. 16—Mandy's Social Whirl (Com.)	1000
Mar. 20—Her Artistic Temperament (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 23—The Spinster's Legacy (Com.)	600
Mar. 23—Bridget and the Egg (Com.)	400
Mar. 27—Her Child's Honor (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—When Women Strike (Com.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Wife's Awakening (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 6—His Best Girl After All (Dr.)	600
Apr. 6—A Visit to Nassau, Bahama (Travel)	400
Apr. 10—Opportunity and the Man (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Their Mothers-in-Law (Com.)	1000

G. MELIES.

Feb. 16—Billy and His Pal (Dr.)
Feb. 23—My Prairie Flower (Dr.)	980
Mar. 2—In the Hot Lands	960
Mar. 9—The Snake in the Grass	1000
Mar. 16—The Schoolmarm of Coyote County	1000
Mar. 23—Sir Percy and the Punchers	1000
Mar. 30—The Warrant for Red Rube	1000
Mar. 24—On the Border Line	600
Mar. 24—Great War Game	950
Apr. 6—Her Faithful Heart	1000
Apr. 13—Jack Mason's Last Deal	1000
Apr. 20—An Unwilling Cowboy
Apr. 27—The Reformation of Jack Robin	1000

PATHE FRERES

Feb. 22—Hubby's Troubles (Com.)	671
Feb. 22—Indo-China Province of Laos (Sc.)	321
Feb. 24—Who Killed Max? (Com.)	689
Feb. 24—An Escape of Gas (Com.)	302
Feb. 25—The Changeling (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 27—Max Makes Music	403
Feb. 27—Pots, Pans and Poetry	531
Mar. 1—Oh! You Clubman	905
Mar. 3—Satan Defeated	750
Mar. 3—Around Constantina, Algeria	200
Mar. 4—Jealousy Foiled	1000
Mar. 6—Max Embarrassed	600
Mar. 6—After the Boxing Bout	375
Mar. 8—Red Deer's Devotion	1000
Mar. 10—Undying Love	740
Mar. 11—A Lonely Little Girl	1000
Mar. 13—Max's Feet Are Pinched	489
Mar. 13—Whiffles' Courtship	500
Mar. 15—Oh, You Kids	690
Mar. 15—The Paoli Brothers	295
Mar. 17—The Inventor's Rights	784
Mar. 17—Pepper Industry in the Malay Peninsula	190
Mar. 18—The Sheriff's Daughter	1000
Mar. 20—Max is Stuck Up (Com.)	460
Mar. 20—How Tommt's Wit Worked (Com.)	462
Mar. 22—The Cattle Rustlers	1000
Mar. 24—Lieutenantsliebe	1000
Mar. 25—The Kid from Arizona	960
Mar. 31—Athaliah	1000
Mar. 27—Love in Madrid	443
Mar. 27—The Trickster Tricked (Com.)	446
Mar. 29—A Fatal Resemblance (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—Their Mother (Dr.)	872
Apr. 1—Fred Sato and His Dog	128
Apr. 3—The Apple of His Eye	1000
Apr. 5—The Trading Stamp Mania (Com.)	990
Apr. 7—The Three Whiffles	655
Apr. 7—Native Industries in Cochin-China	341
Apr. 8—The White Squaw	1000
Apr. 10—The Justice of Claudius	260
Apr. 12—A Cowboy's Adventure (Western)	364
Apr. 14—Wiffles' Home Troubles	440
Apr. 14—How Edam Cheese Is Made	480
Apr. 15—Burglar's Fee (Com.)	1,000
Apr. 17—Robert the Silent (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 19—A New Life (Dr.)	990
Apr. 21—Boil Your Water
Apr. 21—Mary Long and Sammy Short (C.)	360
Apr. 22—The Chief's Talisman (Western)	820

SELIG

Feb. 12—The Survival of the Fittest
Feb. 16—The Buccaneers
Feb. 20—The Padre
Feb. 27—The Eye of Conscience
Mar. 2—The Outbreak
Mar. 6—The Little Shepherdess
Mar. 9—The Medallion
Mar. 13—The Code of Honor
Mar. 13—The Man from the East
Mar. 20—Her Words Come True
Mar. 20—After a Hundred Years
Mar. 23—The Way of the Transgressor
Mar. 27—Her Adopted Fathers
Mar. 30—1861
Apr. 3—The Fortune Hunters
Apr. 6—Red's Conquest
Apr. 10—The Cowboy and the Shrew
Apr. 10—His Best Girl's Little Brother (Com.)
Apr. 13—Zulu-land
Apr. 17—The Haven of Refuge
Apr. 20—The Mother
Apr. 24—Unto Us a Child Is Born

URBAN ECLIPSE
G. Kleine

Jan. 25—The Sailor's Return (Dr.)	689
Jan. 25—Scenes in Jersey (Travelogue)	296
Feb. 1—Disinherited	990
Feb. 8—On the Border of the Forest (Dr.)	895
Feb. 8—Canadian Iron Center, Port Arthur (Educational)	110
Feb. 15—Catherine Howard	1005
Feb. 22—The Golden Sickle	882
Feb. 22—Felling a Smoke-stack	113
Feb. 22—The Golden Sickle	882
Mar. 1—Comrades	638
Mar. 1—Beauties of Sans Souci	362
Mar. 8—The Fury of a Woman Scorned	720
Mar. 8—Beautiful Wye Valley, England	300
Mar. 15—Redemption	508
Mar. 15—The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond	472
Mar. 22—The Money Lender	688
Nemours and the Banks of the River Loing, France	320
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 5—At the Old Mill (Dr)	675
Apr. 5—Making Bamboo Hats in Java	325
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
Apr. 19—Solving the Servant Problem (C.)	465
Apr. 19—In the Province of Kwang Tung, China	535

VITAGRAPH

Jan. 21—Cast Up by the Deep (Dr.)	1001
Jan. 24—It Did Look Suspicious (Dr.)	617
Jan. 24—The Fireman's Parade (Edu.)	383
Jan. 27—Girl of the Mountains (Dr.)	999
Jan. 28—Davy Jones in the South Seas (Com.)	995
Jan. 31—Jean Rescues	976
Feb. 3—Society and the Man	981
Feb. 4—A Queen for a Day	1000
Feb. 7—The Deluge	978
Feb. 10—The League of Mercy (Dr.)	991
Feb. 11—At the White Man's Door (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 14—Consuming Love	975
Feb. 17—When the Light Waned	994
Feb. 18—The New Stenographer (Com.)	994
Feb. 21—A Tale of Two Cities, Part I	1014
Feb. 24—A Tale of Two Cities, Part II	1013
Feb. 25—A Tale of Two Cities, Part III	994
Feb. 28—Captain Barnacle's Courtship (Com.)	998
Mar. 3—Bertha's Mission (Dr.)	988
Mar. 4—Mammy's Ghost (Dr.)	985
Mar. 7—The Wild Cat Well	960
Mar. 10—The Bridegroom's Dilemma (Com.)	990
Mar. 11—Red Eagle	960
Mar. 14—Betty Becomes a Maid (Com.)	957
Mar. 17—The Aching Void (Dr.)	990
Mar. 18—Davy Jones, or His Wife's Husband (Com.)	977
Mar. 21—Tho' the Seas Divide	968
Mar. 24—The Widow Visits Sprigtown (C.)	985
Mar. 25—A Little Lad in Dixie (Dr.)	999
Mar. 28—Billy's Valentine (Com.)	995
Mar. 31—The Inherited Taint (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—A Republican Marriage	996
Apr. 4—Unexpected Review (Com.)	660
Apr. 4—Hop Picking (Indust.)	335
Apr. 7—The Winning of the Stepchildren (Dr.)	965
Apr. 8—Winsor McCay (Com.)	650
Apr. 8—Bob Sledding	350
Apr. 11—The Wooing of Winifred (Com.)	988
Apr. 14—Though Your Sins be as Scarlet (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 15—Easter Babies (Com. Dr.)	980

Old Brittle Films

(with good sprocket holes)

Made Equal to New

Done only by our

19-11 Process

All scratches cleaned, and unless clear through the emulsion, removed altogether. Original softness and pliability restored and all work.

Waterproofed

Thereafter you keep it in condition by washing with

Soap and Water

TRADE MARK WATERPROOF

National Waterproof Film Co.

4200-4202 W. Adams St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

"Don't Forget"

Friday, April 21, 1911

On this date, commencing at 8:30 P.M.,

An Entertainment and Ball of the

Moving Picture Operators' Benevolent Association

Will be held at

Arlington Hall

19-23 St. Marks Place, New York

Music by Prof. Louis Fischer's Orchestra

PROCEEDS TO BE GIVEN TO THE SICK AND RELIEF FUND

Tickets, Admitting Lady and Gentleman 50 Cents

EVERY M. P. MAN IN THE CITY SHOULD ATTEND.

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

DURKEE'S

EXTINGUISHER FIRE

Kills Gasoline, Naphtha or Electric Fires.

Especially adapted for Moving Picture Shows. as it will not damage films.

Price, $5.00

J. W. DURKEE, 3 SOUTH STREET NEW YORK

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"
IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE
ANIMATED PICTURE BUSINESS,
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
28 Large Pages. Eight Shillings per annum.
Editor-Proprietor: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABBRI,
1a, Via Arcivescovado Turin (Italy).
"La Cinematografia Italiana" is the official organ of the Universal Exhibition of 1911 at Turin.

DER KINEMATOGRAPH, DUSSELDORF
The leading Organ for the Motion Picture Trade in Germany.
Special Supplement for Talking Machines, &c.
Published every Wednesday. Annual Subscription 11/- Post Free.
Advertisements (4 columns to page); 2s. 6d. per inch. Situations Wanted, 1½d. per line.
Reduced Price for a Series of Insertions.
Publisher—Ed. LINTZ. Chief Editor—EMIL PERLMANN.

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"All Wise Independents Buy and Boost Flying A Cowboy Pictures"

"Two Flying A Cowboy Pictures a Week"

REMEMBER

"Two Flying A Cowboy Pictures a Week"

COWBOY PICTURES

Made West of the Rockies where the real thing runs rampant.

That are original in story and production.

That contain each and every one of them the possibility of a packed house and a satisfied audience.

"Two Flying A Cowboy Pictures a Week"

COMMENCING NEXT WEEK--APRIL 24th

This Week's Release:
RELEASE OF MONDAY, APRIL 17TH

"Two Plucky Girls"

A story of two girls—two robbers—and what happened to them.

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, APRIL 21ST

"One Month to Live"

A sporty husband's mistake and the result. Funny as they make 'em.

"Two Flying A Cowboy Pictures a Week"

COMMENCING NEXT WEEK--APRIL 24th

American Film Mfg. Co., Bank Floor, Ashland Block CHICAGO, ILLS.

CINES COMPANY OF ROME

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES ROME AND PADOVA

BRANCHES AT THE FOLLOWING CITIES

LONDON.....18 Charing Cross Rd.
PARIS.....11 Rue St. Augustin
BERLIN.....238 Friedrich Strasse
MOSCOW.....3 Glenischewsky Pereul
BARCELONA.....59 Paseo de Gracia
RIO DE JANEIRO.....A. Sestini
BUENOS AYRES.....A. Sestini
CARACAS.....Levy & Co.

AND THE FOLLOWING AGENCIES

MILAN	ST. PETERSBURG	VIENNA
TURIN	ODESSA	AMSTERDAM
GENOA	KEIFF	COPENHAGEN
NAPLES	VLADIVOSTOCK	STOCKHOLM
BOLOGNA	MARSEILLES	BUDA PESTH
VENICE	BRUSSELS	FRANKFORT
DRESDEN	LILLE	LEIPSIC
TOKIO	SYDNEY	CAPE TOWN
JOHANNESBURG	LIMA	HAVANA

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK - -	Lire 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - -	3,750.000
FULLY PAID UP -	Lire 5.750,000

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

TEMPORARY ADDRESS

445 BroomeSt., Cor. Broadway, NEW YORK CITY

DON'T BE "PENNY WISE AND POUND FOOLISH"

Don't run an old, noisy machine that projects an unsteady, flickering picture, when you can have

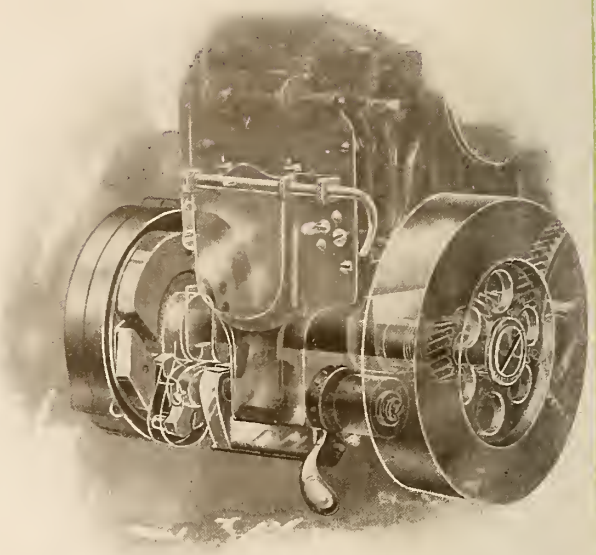
PERFECT PICTURES

A few dollars invested in a

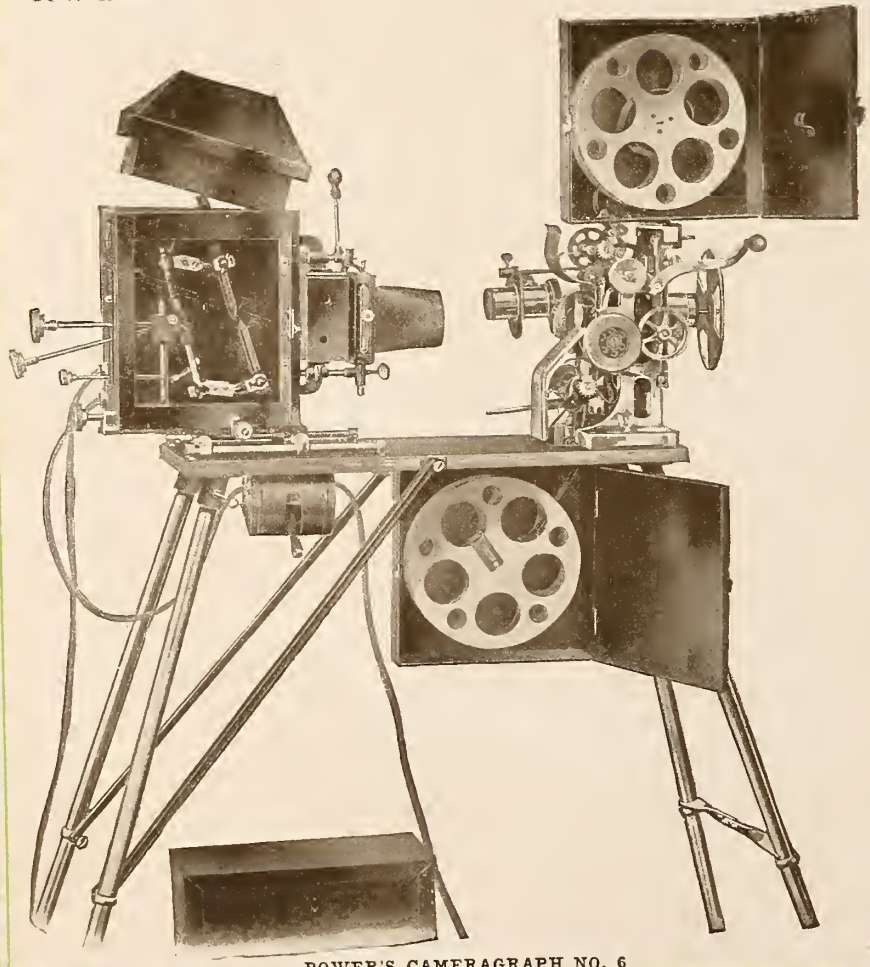
POWER'S

NO. 6 CAMERAGRAPH

will come back to you double in a few months.



INTERMITTENT MOVEMENT OF NO. 6 CAMERAGRAPH



POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH NO. 6

If nothing but the best will satisfy you, write for Catalog D and "The Proof of the Pudding." It will pay you :: ::

NICHOLAS POWER CO.

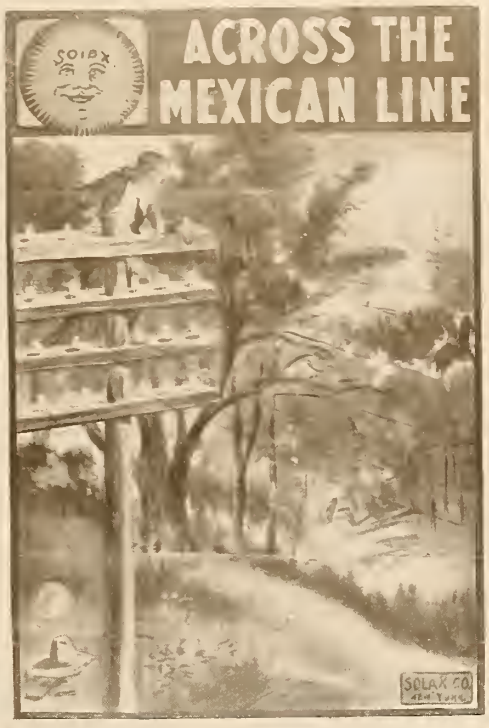
115 NASSAU ST.
NEW YORK

FOR THIRTEEN YEARS THE LEADING MAKERS OF MOVING PICTURE MACHINES.

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 16

April 22d
1911



PRICE
TEN CENTS

SCENE FROM
"ACROSS THE MEXICAN LINE"
"SOLAX" RELEASE APRIL 28th

GREAT NORTHERN

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 22ND

THE STOLEN LEGACY

A feature detective film of thrilling character

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 29TH

THE COSSACK DUKE

A powerful drama of Russian military life

ALL UP-TO-DATE INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT.

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

Branches at the Following Cities
LONDON	18 Charing Cross Rd.
PARIS	11 Rue St. Augustin
BERLIN	238 Friedrich Strasse
MOSCOW	3 Glenischewsky Pereul
BARCELONA	59 Paseo de Gracia
RIO DE JANEIRO	A. Sestini
BUENOS AYRES	A. Sestini
CARACAS	Levy & Co.

And the Following Agencies

MILAN	ST. PETERSBURG	VIENNA
TURIN	ODESSA	AMSTERDAM
GENOA	KEIFF	COPENHAGEN
NAPLES	VLADIVOSTOCK	STOCKHOLM
BOLOGNA	MARSEILLES	BUDA PESTH
VENICE	BRUSSELS	FRANKFORT
DRESDEN	LILLE	LEIPSIC
TOKIO	SYDNEY	CAPE TOWN
JOHANNESBURG	LIMA	HAVANA

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK - - - - - - - - LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - - - - - - - - - 3,750,000

FULLY PAID UP - - - - - - - - - LIRE 5,750,000

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232

TELEGRAPHS: CINES NEWYORK

Do You Realize

That Realization Itself Often Means Regeneration Redemption?

We prove it in a thrilling drama of today with a modern problem as the foundation of a strong plot. It is entitled

THE REALIZATION

AND IS TO BE RELEASED THURSDAY, APRIL 17th, 1911

On that day you will be given a chance to realize whether or not you are an exhibitor of judgment and discrimination. This is a test for your taste. If you are a leader you will get it, if for no other reason than because it's a Rex. If you are a follower you will get it because the leaders do. See the man who knows, realize that.

REX

Rex Motion Picture Mfg. Co.

573-9 ELEVENTH AVE., NEW YORK

Sales Co. Realizing Importance of Rex

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

TWO YANKEE WORLD TOUR FEATURES

MONDAY, MAY 1

"A Kentucky Girl"

A powerful story of the hills

FRIDAY, MAY 5

"Zelda, The Gypsy"

A picturesque drama of the wandering Romany tribe

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

344 East 32d St., New York, N. Y.

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

CHAMPION FILM

TWO EVERY SEVEN DAYS

NOW you are getting the real, genuine article. Are You? Ask the other fellow and he'll agree, for that's what they all say——

"Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia"

A new kind of War Picture, taking us back to the pioneer days on the Frontier. You never saw one picture of this kind. It will be released on Monday, May 1st.

FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 3RD,

"Out of the Dark"

An unusual Western, proving that buckskin can have real hearts beating under it.

MONDAY IS AS GOOD AS WEDNESDAY
and
WEDNESDAY IS AS GOOD AS MONDAY

GET BOTH

COMING

A HERO OF BALL'S BLUFF, '61.
COL. E. D. BAKER, 1ST, CALIFORNIA.

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

CHAMPION FILM CO.

MARK M. DINTENFASS,
Gen'l Mgr.,
12 E. 15th St., New York City.

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

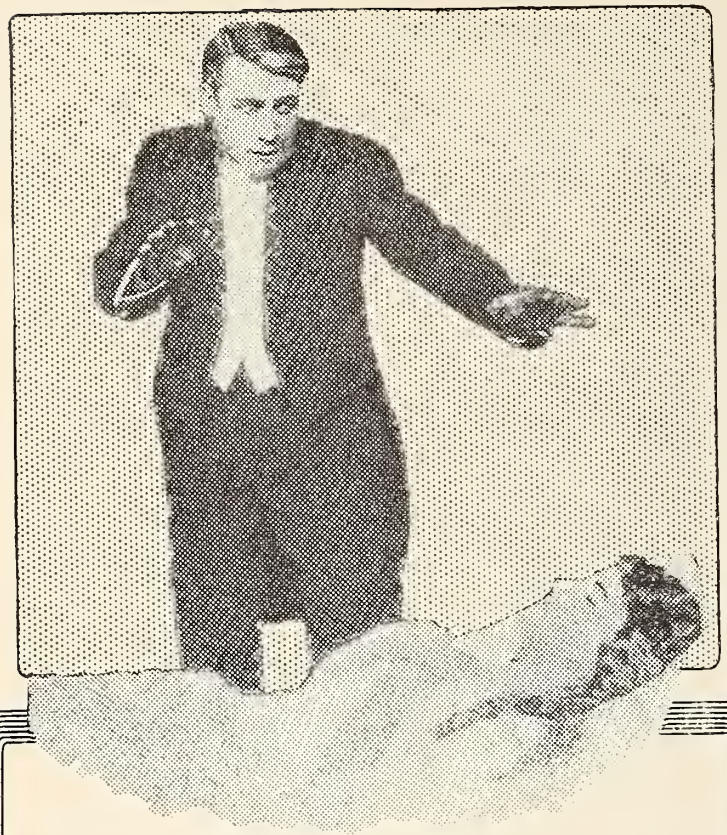
Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.



(Scene from "The Temptress"—an Imp)

Say "Imp-Imp!"

"Imp-Imp" means two Imps every week. Two Imps every week mean bigger profits for you. Why be satisfied with one Imp a week when you have it in your power to get TWO? Keep ding-donging at your exchange till you get Two Imps Every Week. Man alive, you're entitled to Two. Get 'em! Get 'em! Get 'em!

"The Temptress"

Released Thursday, May 4th. One of the strongest stories we've ever produced. Brilliant, powerful—the kind that catches attention at the jump and clings to it till the very finish. (Made on Eastman stock.)

"Second Sight"

Released Monday, May 1st. Another of our Cuban pictures that have set Independent exhibitors wild with enthusiasm. The finest natural stage settings ever used for a moving picture. (Made on Eastman stock.)

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America. 102 W. 101st St., New York. Carl Laemmle, Pres. All "Imp" Films Sold Through the Sales Co. All "Imp" Films Made on Eastman Stock!!!

FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, DON'T MISS "THE SCARLET LETTER," THE FIRST "IMP DE LUXE." Released Thursday, April 27th.

Solve This Baffling Mystery!

"GEN. FLIMCO IS

_____"

Get busy and fill in the blank. Maybe you can't do it, but it won't hurt to try. Next week I am going to print the solution of this baffling, deep, weird, uncanny, awful mystery. Take a good look at the back of his bean. Then watch for the headline of my advertisement next week. A year ago over 7,000 easy exhibitors were each paying Gen. Flimco $2 a week ($14,000 per week, $728,000 per year). Less than 4,000 exhibitors are doing it NOW. How many will the general have on his staff in another year? Solve this mystery and watch for new facts. Also, come to the biggest, best and hustlingest film renter in the world.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
209 Fifth St., Des Moines, Iowa.

The biggest and best film renter in the world.

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan, 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City.
ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV April 22, 1911 Number 16

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

This week we reproduce a representation from a Solax poster, just issued, illustrating a picture from their film "Across the Mexican Line." On another page will be found a story of their military pictures, and in the synopsis page a synopsis of this first film, which we understand is one of a series to be released showing military pictures. "Across the Mexican Line" will be released on April 28th, and from then on will be followed by some of the most stirring pictures on military life, specially written and produced, and from the negatives already in hand Solax Company are very justly proud.

BUSINESS MORALITY

Supposing we, as Editor of the News, asked you to advertise with us, you refused, and out of spite we started in opposition to you, injured your business, and to get rid of us in this deal, you gave us what we wanted. Would you call this blackmail—or what would you term it? Or, to put the proposition another way, Supposing you were doing a fine business, profits good, clean sheet, everything pointing to prosperity, and the outlook for putting something aside to provide for widow and children, in the event of your demise, excellent. What would you think of a corporation of men making a demand for your business, and if you refuse, for them to open next door to you, reducing charges fifty per cent. lower than yours, then compelling you to sell out to them or lose what little you retained from such a low, mean trick, then making you manager of your own business, expecting you to give as good a profit to the corporation as you made yourself, making every sacrifice as though the business was your own, and if you fall down in the receipts, you are at once dismissed the service of the corporation, and by this action, you have lost all, business, fortune and future prospects. What would you call it? What would you think and say of this corporation? Would you think the men composing it were honorable? Would you say they were gentlemen? Would you say they were carrying out their moral obligations? Would you consider they were carrying out their individual responsibility to the community? Would you for one minute imagine they were doing unto others as they would that others should do unto them? You—our readers—manufacturers, exchangemen, exhibitors, can answer these questions as you see fit, but this, these suppositions we have put before you, are just what that body of men called the Motion Picture Patents Company are doing. We think it is about time some of you woke up, out of the sleep of false security, throwing off the lethargy of the dope you have imbibed, and begin to acquit yourselves like men—not the automatons you have proved yourselves—and throw off the yoke of slavery in which you are allowing yourselves complacently to be bound. Do you call yourselves free men, reasoning men, or men with a purpose, and yet submit so tamely to such imposition? Some of you have called in this office, laid your troubles on our shoulders, and whined like a whipped dog, at the treatment you so supinely acquiesce in. We have told you plainly of the remedy. The Moving Picture News, privately, and in its columns, has been the only paper that dared—yes, dared—because we have the courage of our convictions—to call a spade a spade, and a crooked deal, a crooked deal. The News is the only independent paper in the industry. We (editorially, now) never toadied to any one section or faction in the industry, decrying one week, patting on the back, the next, and then cringing and apologizing, personally the next.

No, siree, we have stood to the principles for independence of individual advancement, and our advice now is, that all those men who feel aggrieved or oppressed or have been defrauded out of their just rights to carry their complaints direct to the President of the United States, and ask him to appoint a commission to enquire into the merits or demerits of the Motion Picture Patents, how they were obtained, how they are held, who is responsible for the present position of the industry. Let a strong deputation be organized to secure names to a petition to be signed by all who believe in their rights—and we believe two-thirds at least of the exhibitors would sign it, to say nothing of hundreds of thousands of their patrons—present it to Congress, or the President personally. Then watch for results.

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR

In our issue of the 15th, owing to the printers' imp trying his apprentice hand, the captions in the write-up for the American Film Manufacturing Company were placed wrong. The photograph appearing on page 11 as Mr. A. M. Kennedy should be Mr. S. S. Hutchinson, and on page 12 as Mr. S. S. Hutchinson should be the genial manager, Mr. A. M. Kennedy. Those in the trade would know the difference, and we trust the two gentlemen will accept our apologies.

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATIONS

Quite a little controversy has been going on in our mind as to the value of the front cover. To get out this cover has entailed upon the News a very heavy expense, and we wondered whether we would drop it and go back to our original style, but the other day an episode occurred which made us pluck up courage. It will be recollected that when Imp engaged Little Mary, that by an accident Little Mary's photograph was placed on the cover instead of the inside, and the picture of the story was placed inside instead of on the cover. We made a special placard of this picture, and passing along on Fourteenth Street the other day, a lady who said she never misses seeing every release, and has come to recognize Little Mary and several of the other actors and actresses in the films, caught sight of the placard on one of the stands and she asked for the News. When she saw Little Mary was not on the cover she handed it back to the vendor, who told her that that cut appeared some while ago and that it is changed every week, but rather than disappoint her he would sell her the News and give her a copy of the placard, which so delighted the lady that she took both. This is a feather in the cap both of Little Mary and of the Moving Picture News, and it is our intention in future to publish the photograph of some prominent actor or actress one week, a prominent theater the next, a prominent manufacturer the other week, concluding with the best special picture issued during that week for the fourth number. Now we don't want all the actresses' photos all at once, but we do want some now, nor do we want all the theaters at one time, but we want to get some ready. The same applies to the prominent manufacturers. Will our friends kindly take note and act accordingly and send us what we need?

A REVERIE

By a Brooklyn Sentimentalist

Soft, dreamy, beautiful. The sighing and the soughing wind, the gurgle of the running brook, the murmur of the sparkling stream, the rustle of the tall tree leaves, the scent of the flowers, the trickle of the fountain, the happy couple, the loving looks. The gentle hand clasp, the first kiss, the start on life's path together. The tempest rises, wild winds roar, the sea lashes the beach, thunder, lightnings, snowstorms, death, sorrow, destruction; the end of all things, childish happiness, childish grief, money making, money losing, miserly greed, charity that seeketh not its own, wireless help to the sinking ship, aviators flying to the need of those afar, telegraphy to reassure the anxious ones, telephone to those we love in danger; the scene changes, horses dashing to the rescue down hill and rock which makes you gasp. Gallop, gallop they go, ah, following in the trail of the captured girl, your heart stands still as the hero seizes her and bears her to safety again. The unwritten law which almost lynches a man and makes you breathe a sigh of relief at his miraculous escape.

A visit to the terrible Martinique disaster brings before you what brother man has suffered. The magnificence of the awe-inspiring volcanic eruptions, our belated knowledge how puny we are before the great mills of the Almighty Deity, who reigns above, and grinds so slowly but so surely. The awakening conscience which sees the shadows of the "has been," the shadows of the "might have been."

The great Coliseum of Rome where the noble gladiators fight to their death, the historical truths of the great amphitheater whose scenic accuracy is grand.

The scene again shifts. I hear the beat of the drums, the tramp of the soldiery, the waving of banners, the cheers of the populace, as the army goes forth; ah! I see them in the thick of the battle fighting, oh! struggling for their country, and in my wild enthusiasm I am fighting too. I have seized the sword of a poor dead hero and am wildly brandishing it. I fly hither and thither, hearing the shouts of victory and triumphing with the brave, but what is this! The fight is over, the battle won, ah! I see the wounded dying, I see gentle nurses touch lovingly the poor parched lips. The frenzy of fighting is gone, the sorrow remains. In cottages I see mothers weep; in palaces I see mothers weep. The glory of the flag is upheld. Ah! but at what a cost. The great All Story becomes the One All Story. Greater love hath no man than this, that he giveth his life for his country and his friends.

What is this? I am in the cities of the Far East. I see the great temple, the high priests worshipping, the Bible stories brought vividly before me and again I am a little child at my mother's knee looking up into her eyes and hearing her tell me the old, old story of the world's past and the world to come. Can it be that I am no longer a child but nearly forty years have rolled away and that I am thousands of miles from that ever dear face?

I start—at a bang on the piano, I awake! awake I say. What is this? Where am I? I shake myself, I rub my eyes, am I dreaming, where am I? Oh, where am I? Where are the scenes I have depicted, where are the loved faces, the martial music, the blare of the trumpets, the crashing thunder, the soughing of the wind? Someone touches me on the arm; you are in a MOVING PICTURE SHOW—and all this has cost one nickel.

A CINEMATOGRAPHER'S EXPERIENCES

(Continued from page 7 March 18th issue.)

Next morning at breakfast time we were entering the harbor of Kilindini with its tall cocoanut trees and palms, a very pretty harbor.

A gunboat was lying in the harbor, so with permission from the captain of our vessel we made for the forward end of the boat and as we are entering the harbor I am taking film. When the gunboat began firing a royal salute the ship dropped anchor and again, by another kindness of the captain, we were allowed to land in the small steam pinnace before any other passenger, as we wanted to get the royal party landing. On reaching shore with my little Prestwich camera I found the guard of honor lined up on the way awaiting the royal passengers, who eventually arrived and I managed to get good film of the landing and review of the guard. This over, their royal highness made for the special train which was waiting to convey them to Nairobi. The train, being drawn in to the large customs building, I could not get any more film and I can assure you I didn't feel like wanting to run around carrying that camera much more under that sun. Then came the process of customs inspection, as a duty of ten per cent ad valorem is placed upon all goods entering the country, cameras, film, etc. We had no time to attend to our baggage, so left it to Mohammed, a boy that Kearton had with him on his previous trip when he took the Roosevelt films, and a real wicked Somali native boy this was, too. He caused more trouble in camp than fifty of them were worth, but he understood English, so Kearton engaged him. This is the boy referred to as Mac in the articles from Everybody's Magazine. Anyhow, there being only one landing stage at Kilindini, the luggage had to be thrown on the shore, as these boys landing would have swarmed the stairs of the landing stage with trunks and boxes, no matter who was landing. We eventually got the luggage into the customs and after waiting round about an hour we got away —a very unpleasant hour this was, I can assure you, in the corrugated iron building. The heat was stifling. Having finished with customs men we got on to the "Gerry." This is the street railway, a small trolley on a very narrow gauge line, which is pushed by two "boys," and we found a train was to leave in a few minutes for Nairobi. This came as a surprise, for we were told that as the royal train had left that day another would not leave until the next day; but we were in luck's way, so off we went to Nairobi, twenty-four hours from Mombasa and a very pretty ride, too, leaving Mombasa. They have no special Pullman coaches on the Uganda Railway as you have in America, but you are out to rough it and you do so before you get through; but I have roughed worse in America, for in Africa you do know when a man is talking hot air or not and you have no fear of being disappointed as I have experienced in America, although if I go to Africa again I shall have a "white man" with me I hope. But to get back to our trip. I settled down for the trip, admiring the country, until a call is made at one of the so-called stations for supper. We had a very good feed and on again. I was up pretty early next morning, as a companion in my coach told me he had often seen lions quite close to the track. So I was looking for lions but could not see any. Even if there had been any I could not have seen them, as the animals and game all harmonize with the country, being both of a khaki color and one has to get used to it first, but I managed to distinguish some hundred of antelope. These were very thick, also zebras; but one thing I wanted to see was the rhino, as Kearton almost got me scared at the name rhinoceros, but I could not see one at all and I gave it up for a while. But I had a surprise in store from a rhino that I didn't quite expect; I shall come to this part of my narrative in a future article.

We eventually arrived at Nairobi and got to our hotel, the Tin Hotel I call it, because the buildings are all corrugated iron. The Stanley Hotel is very good and to anybody going to Nairobi I recommend it. Having got settled down a little we had to make arrangements for the work that lay before us and also to secure some more film of the royal party. Nothing happened along for a day or so until the royal party departed for their shooting expedition. On the Sunday morning they were to leave for up country I got down to the station but was barred from taking pictures by some "High Chief." However, I managed to get on to the platform through another channel, namely, the parcel room, and I fixed my camera up inside this room, looking out at the royal train, and awaited the arrival of the royal party. They arrived and I got busy turning when the Princess saw me and turned to the Duchess and said: "There's that wretched cinematograph man again." and I don't blame her for saying it, as she had waited for a lady friend whom the High Chief had stopped at the gate and who had been asked down to the depot to see the party off, but there was yours truly on the station, an uninvited guest when one that was invited was not allowed on the station. And again I think it must be annoying to be followed everywhere by a man who is cranking every movement you make. I had a day at the party at the races before this and one of the newspaper men of Nairobi, evidently not a friend of ours, said in an article that the cinematograph man was busy photographing royal backs. Poor knave! he didn't allow for the party having to turn round to walk back and they would have to pass the camera, but then—"Where ignorance is bliss," etc. Having finished with the royal party we had to prepare for the Great Buffalo-Jones Expedition.

(To be continued.)

MOVING PICTURES IN THE YEAR 2000

By Margaret I. MacDonald

Some few years ago—very few, by the way—a new mode of illustrating, entertaining, educating, was introduced. I remember the first glimpse of it that I saw, which, as a child impressed me very forcibly. I cannot tell now just what it was—I only remember that the moving of the figures over the canvas—real, live men and women, they were to me—was a thing of mystery, so wonderful that my child mind dared not even attempt to solve it. I think it was a bible story. I remember the passing of bearded men, with flowing robes, such as we see in the old portraits of the apostles. Probably it was a crude attempt at the Passion Play—who knows? I only remember gazing with wide-eyed wonderment at the astonishing feat performed by the means of photography.

Not one-quarter of the way through the present century dare we even imagine what the developments may be which will be reached by the time the year 2000 has stuck its cold nose through the chill, starry depths of a new year's sky. Pathe, Lubin, and a score of other present-day film manufacturers will be a thing of the past. The train of pantomimic and dramatic artists, so skillful in their efforts to truthfully portray the scenes alloted to them, will have long since faded away down the dim aisles of the past, with a probable here-and-there exception who has been allowed to linger and look with material eyes through the glaze of age at developments which he, in his earlier days or even riper years, had never dreamed of.

It always seems a strange thing to me that, as the moving panorama of developments and events advances, so few of us realize the astounding changes that are taking place, the steady, continuous train of progression as it sweeps along, the reaching upward and outward of the temple of knowledge, piling up, tier upon tier, with cubes of invention and ingenuity from the brain of man as he develops and takes on the atmosphere of the plane upon which nature has accidentally thrown him. Is it because our terra firma moves along with the landscape? Probably so. Is it not true that although the planet upon which we live spins around in space at a tremendous speed, we are totally unconscious of the fact in so far as sensation goes?

Nevertheless we are advancing along the road of progression at a faster rate than the fastest express train that has ever been upon the rails. We cannot stay in the old playground if we would. With automobiles whizzing past us, the airships whirring above us, and a thousand other thrice wonderful innovations beating a deafening tattoo about us, we would require to be deaf, dumb and blind to be totally unimpressed by the fact that even though our own brains may be rusting in their ivory cases, there are others who have been using theirs at the rate of a mile a minute.

To say that the moving picture is one of the most wonderful innovations which recent years has given us, is only reiterating what has been repeated over and over again by a thousand different tongues. What wonderful dimensions the idea may arrive at by the commencement of the next century I am not prepared even to hint at. Whether the canvas will be done away with and the figures will be seen flitting about, spirit fashion, propelled and reflected by some electrical or gaseous method, through an abstract space, we do not know: whether by some trick of phonography or ventriloquism the figures will aid their pantomimic expressions by deep sonorous tones of dramatic marvel, proceeding apparently from the life-like shadows of things that have been, is a secret locked away in the treasure troves of the future. We only know that should we be favored with a peep into the world at the opening of the coming century we would be astounded at the replacement of things which, to us in our youth, seemed marvels of ingenuity and genius.

I love to sit and wonder and dream of the things that may be. I should love to linger on this material plane to see the dawning of the year 2000. I do not doubt that should some kind, superior spirit of the universe whisper to me some of the secrets for the prevention of the disintegration of that material temple of the soul, which will no doubt be known in that day, I should be as spry and chipper then as I am to-day, nearly ninety years in advance of that time.

OUR LONDON CORRESPONDENT

Mr. H. B. Irving and his company, numbering over forty, gave a special performance of "Princess Clementina" at Messrs. Barkers' Ealing studio recently. As I write I am informed that the joint author of this play has brought an action against Mr. Will Barker, to restrain him from issuing the film. It should be mentioned that the whole of the scenery and props were bodily removed to the scene of operations, a process necessitating the aid of fourteen pantechnicons. The survey was returned to Queen's Theater in time for the evening performance. A motion is being made in the courts for the negatives to be delivered over to the authors. It is interesting to note that according to his agreement with the authors, Mr. H. B. Irving holds the sole selling rights of the play in question for the whole world for a period of five years. The point in dispute evidently is as to whether the cinematograph rights can be properly included under the category of acting rights.

On Wednesday, March 29th, the annual meeting of the Cinematograph Defense League was held at the Holborn Restaurant, London, W. C., under the chairmanship of Mr. George Gray. There were approximately sixty members present. The secretary (Mr. Heywood Smith), having read the notice convening the meeting, it was agreed to take the statement of accounts. The chief items of expenditure were: Office expenses, £185.10.6; legal charges, £133.14.8, and rent and cleaning, £91.10.0. The receipts had totaled £885.0.3, and expenditure £565.17.1. The cash in hand and at the bank was £79.6.90, and there were outstanding liabilities of £70 10s. The chairman alluded to the meager support the League had received from the trade, and contended that had it not been for the League the number of exhibitions would have been very limited to-day. In the future there were many points of vital interest to the trade to be settled; and it was necessary that the League should be strengthened and well supported. Mr. F. Ogden Smith seconded the resolution which was carried unanimously.

Mr. Ernstein moved a resolution reducing the subscription to the League to one guinea per year, remarking that it was hoped by that means to get the smaller exhibitors into the League. Mr. Prentice then seconded the resolution, which was carried. The retiring members of the executive council were unanimously re-elected on the motion of Mr. Poole, seconded by Mr. Henderson. On the motion of Mr. Sydney Bacon, seconded by Mr. Roberts. Mr. S. W. Stephens was re-elected auditor.

Mr. Roberts contended that the Executive Committee were too weak-kneed in many things. There was no other trade in the country represented by a body of men who would sit down so meek and child-like as the Committee of the Cinematograph Defense League.

Mr. Henderson pleaded for an uplifting of the Sunday program. He considered that it was the class of program at the halls on Sunday that had brought the shows into disfavor in certain sections. He advocated a give and take policy, a spirit of compromise, and the exercise of caution.

Mr. Barker then proposed "That this meeting is of opinion that the proposed resolution in not opening on Sundays before 6 o'clock would be greatly to the disadvantage of the public, and not in their interests.

A lengthy discussion then ensued, and the opinion was generally expressed that the granting of one-seventh of the week's expenses for Sundays was unfair, and would mean that the charities would suffer by proprietors refusing to open their shows. It was also considered that the hour of opening should be 3 p. m. The resolution, however, was withdrawn, and a resolution was passed asking the County Counsel's permission to lay the views of the League on the new conditions before that body.

Replying to a vote of thanks, the Chairman said that if the Cinematograph League was allowed to become a failure the showman would go under. That was, however, an absolute foregone conclusion.

The authorities evidently realize the value of a record of the unveiling of the Queen Victoria memorial in color, for they have granted special facilities to Mr. Charles Urban for taking the ceremony in Kinamacolor. The result will be shown in London the same evening at the Scala Theater, and by provincial licensees of Kinamacolor the next day. Exclusive Kinamacolor rights in respect of the Richmond Horse Show on June 9th and 10th have been granted to Mr. Charles Urban. The Natural Color Kinamatograph Co. will obtain the Kinamacolor reproduction for presentation exclusively at The Scala, which Mr. Urban opens on Tuesday evening next, and Kineto Ltd. will take the black and white picture which will be supplied to the track for exhibition on the nights of the 9th and 10th, at the usual prices.

The following letter has been sent by the Cinematograph Employers' League to all the Charities in London:

March 31, 1911.

Sir:

You will have seen that the Theatrical and Music Halls Committee of the L. C. C. recommend that the Cinematograph Halls shall not be permitted to open until 6 p. m. on Sundays, and that their recommendations are to be discussed by the Council on Tuesday next, April 4th.

There can be no question that the Charities must be the greatest sufferers by the proposed alteration in the hour of opening.

My Committee is of opinion that the Halls should be allowed to open at 3:30 p. m., which would enable the Charities to receive far greater benefit than can be possible if they must not open before 6 p. m., and it would also permit them to pay the persons employed an adequate wage.

We are confident that the great reduction in the receipts during these restricted hours will be such as to cause the Charities to refuse to continue to take over many of the Halls, which must then be closed, and some, at least, of those employed will be dismissed.

My Committee feel sure that if you, and each of the other Charities, pointed out—urgently, and at once—to your local members on the L. C. C. that the Charities must suffer, and very materially, if the proposed alteration is adopted, such representations would result in the more reasonable hour of 3:30 being substituted for 6 o'clock, for it is certain that many of the Halls opening on Sunday afternoon are largely patronized by those having practically no homes, and find in them their only means of innocent rest and recreation; whilst the fact that there is such a want is proved by the attendance of the educated classes at the Sunday afternoon concerts given by the Sunday League and other bodies. They should be also made to clearly understand that, under the proposed new rules, the whole loss of the amount, which would be taken during those hours, must be borne by the Charity concerned. Yours truly,

W. W. COUSINS.

The Daily Mail film has attained a great success in the halls where it has been screened. Valuable money prizes, amounting to £165, are offered in seven prizes for essays of from 1,500 to 2,000 words, giving a descriptive amount of the various processes of paper-making, the printing, production, publishing, and transport of the Daily Mail, as illustrated in the film, "From Forest to Breakfast Table."

In addition to the prizes awarded to the audience, a special award of £10 will be made to the manager of the theater where the winner of the first prize sees the film.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington, D. C.

The full-fledged Indian, Thunder Bear, is making the rounds among the Independent theaters, causing some diversion for their patrons. He addresses the audience in English so correct and advice so Caucasian that one would scarcely think he was an Indian except in appearance. An advice he gave to the young men of Washington was to go West and get a "real nice Western girl for a wife." I heard one young lady sigh, "In that case, what are we Eastern girls to do?" Thunder Bear is from North Dakota and succeeded in making friends at once with the youngsters of Washington. He gave away a few beaded souvenirs and impressed upon his listeners the tediousness of this work.

One of the most exclusive theaters of the northwest section of the city is the Royal, under the management of Wm. M. Braswell. With appropriate music and three good reels of varying subjects, a large and refined audience is always in attendance.

Manager Long, of the E. M. F. Automobile Company, will shortly bring to this city the film showing the making of automobiles from the rough material to the finished car. This will be a complimentary performance for the advertisement of the E. M. F. autos. This will also have an educational side and Manager Long feels that this will be the best way of informing the public of something of the great care and work involved in automobiles. There will also be explanatory remarks during the exhibition of the reel. "Expensive as it is," said Manager Long, "the motion picture forms the best way of advertising your goods. This will be an important end of the industry in the near future."

The man who handles the most expensive film service in this city, and for a radius of many, many miles, is Marcus Notes, manager and proprietor of the Empress. His show consists of three of the best Independent reels on the very first day of their release. "I challenge any one to prove to me that he has seen any of the pictures I present, at any other theater, before he has seen them at my house," announces Mr. Notes. With such a daily program, the Empress has a patronage of culture, to whom is given every possible courtesy. There is always a full attendance and in the evenings "standing in line" is the usual rule. The manager is very particular about the selection of his films, excluding all that is gruesome, and mixing his program with the serious and good comedy. Mr. Notes might well be called a producer in the motion picture industry. His music is of the best, picked from our talented instrumentalists, who carefully study the pictures and play such selections as harmonize with the theme being enacted. Some people come to the Empress as much to hear the music as to see the photoplays. "The Fall of Troy" was first introduced to the public at the Empress, where it had a several days' run. Many of the big productions of the Independents have seen their first public light at this theater. "It is the best I want," said Mr. Notes, "and I will have it."

The Savoy, under Manager Cutts, is doing a good business in the northeast section. A little more attention to the music would improve this end of the performance. The visit of the North Dakota Indian, Thunder Bear, was an occasion of additional entertainment for the patrons of the Savoy.

The Virginian Theater, under the management of Harry Chick, was the second theater to present the "Fall of Troy" with a run of several days. Mr. Chick appealed to the educational side of the city and succeeded in getting schools, colleges and historical societies interested in this film. Miss Helen Dodge has been giving entertaining violin selections at the Virginian. Mr. Chick uses very few lithographic posters before his house, for the chief reason that they are unattractive and devoid of art. Instead he displays large artistically lettered posters which proclaim the program of the theater. Mr. Chick is a man who wishes to appeal to his patrons by showing them what is best in the motion picture industry and keeping within the desires of the various regulations put upon these houses. It is said at the police department that he was the first man to submit a questionable poster for approval or disapproval before displaying it. Most houses exhibit the posters and trust to luck not to be fined. That's the kind of manager the Virginian has.

The Howe Travel Festival at the Columbia Theater did as big a business as Henry Miller did at this same house in his recent engagement. The voyage in a balloon was one of his most novel and best enjoyed features. The educational end of these fourteen performances would be hard to estimate. They put in the background geographies, histories and newspapers.

The Buffalo Bill pictures have been having a big run and interfered financially with the real Buffalo Bill show which followed closely upon the heels of the film exhibit.

The Passion Play is having a two weeks' run at the Colonial with appropriate music on the big pipe organ. This added much to the solemnity of this silent sermon. In order that the public may the better understand this drama made famous by the peasants of Oberammergau, Manager Brylawski is issuing to his patrons two-page folders explaining the various pictures and making a connecting link between them, giving Biblical references as well. This far excels past presentations of the Passion Play.

A talk with Manager Backrach, of the Pastime and the Metropolitan, further demonstrated the fact that cheap vaudeville was not a paying feature with motion pictures. For a long time Mr. Backrach used vaudeville at the Pastime and was losing money, but as soon as he turned his house into a purely picture theater he began to gain in his finances and now the pastime is paying.

Manager Lucas, of the Washington Film Exchange, is again on the road, visiting Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Cincinnati and other points within that section. The Washington house is covering a large territory, introducing the Independents into new fields and in some cases usurping the Association. The Independents have come to be a convincing proposition. J. Boyd Dexter with Mr. Walker are ably handling matters in Washington.

Manager Eastman, of the Dixie, is another man who does not use the lithograph posters, but instead two large billboards in artistic lettering. He considers that the "homely" colored posters cheapen his house and, although the bills he displays are far more expensive, he finds that they return for themselves in patronage. "It pays to be particular," he contends.

There is something afloat in the legislation of the District of Columbia as well as in the Hall of Congress relative to the Sunday observance law, which will mean the exclusion of amusements and the prohibition of motion pictures on that day. It, therefore, behooves managers of motion picture theaters to be careful of their Sunday bill and to gain the good will of the public and the officials instead of thinking they can withstand against them. There is much in favor of keeping these theaters open on Sunday, so let them see this side from the way these houses are conducted.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, Ark., April 19.—After passing through a season of unrest we are now sailing over the placid waters of cooler reason and more rational judgment, with the result that the motion picture situation in this city has taken on a commendable rationalness that is good to behold. But we were surely put over the hurdles for a time.

It has been two weeks now since the grand jury indicted certain managers and faithful operators for laboring on Sunday, but as yet the docket of the Circuit Court does not show any date for the trial of these cases. I scanned it closely Sunday, but the present week was all filled up with minor civil cases, and next week we have two murder trials booked, to say nothing of the case against the liberal ex-sheriff, Sid Houpt, who was ousted from office and who had four additional indictments recently returned against him because of failure on his part to execute burning orders against the Ohio, Indiana, Texas, and Kentucky clubs, where gambling is said to have been going on. But there has been no intimation as to when the picture show men are to face the music; furthermore, no one is asking any questions, and it is sincerely hoped that the venerable Prosecuting Attorney may have a lapse of memory and pass them by, although such a course would not be in his line. Ever since Attorney Sawyer won that most memorable case in the justice of the peace court, the jury deciding that the picture shows were a necessity, it has taken some of the ginger out of the prosecution.

The new sheriff, compelled to execute orders received from the Prosecuting Attorney, was on the job last Sunday, but the arrests were made in such a quiet and gentlemanly manner that no one noticed it. He merely stepped up to the window, spoke to the managers, and said:

"Come on down to Justice Alford's court and make bond. Don't let every one know what's going on, but just follow me down the street, for I don't want any excitement about this."

The show was not even stopped, and no one in the theaters at the time were aware that an arrest of this nature had been made. After signing the bond the boys went back to the theaters and kept open just as if nothing had happened.

"Boys, I'll be back for you again this evening about 8 o'clock," Sheriff Webb told the managers, and, sure enough, back he came, and the second arrest was made in the same quiet and serene manner as the first.

This was quite different, brethren, from the way in which we have witnessed the law being enforced. Heretofore there was a mob of several hundred, hooting and jeering, who followed the officers and those taken into custody, and as soon as one show opened that soon were they "nabbed," but evidently Sheriff Webb believes that there is method in all things, especially in Sunday arrests, and the manner in which he went about this last deal has endeared him to even those "pinched," and he certainly got away with it in a quiet and most dignified manner. Why, there are enough cases booked on the dockets of local justices of the peace to keep these honorable gentlemen busy for many days, but trials are few and far between. Briefly stated, and in the words of the once great sage of ye Sagamore Hill, it looks as if the picture men "have them beaten to a frazzle."

Representatives of the Royal Theater, Little Rock, were in this city during the week negotiating for the sale of stock of that establishment, the object being to sell enough stock so as to enable the company to change the policy of the house. The Royal is one of the prettiest motion picture houses in the state. It has a seating capacity of over 800, and is modern in every sense of the word. Competition in Little Rock, like in this city, is great, and those who are guiding the destiny of this theater would like to build a stage sufficiently large to play the higher class vaudeville acts, get the Sullivan and Considine booking and "split" the week with the Princess in this city. The last named theater is now booking through two agencies—and it's the only house I ever heard of that could pull off a deal of this nature—but the Interstate people, I am informed, have not been making much progress lately in the South, and Sullivan and Considine have, with the result that if they could get a good theater in Little Rock to split with the Princess, the greatest acts on their circuit would be sent down here.

Manager Morrison was the maddest man in town this week, when, after advertising the pictures of "Miller Brothers' 101 Ranch," the reels failed to arrive. No one knows where they are or why they did not get here, and he, as well as hundreds of others who desired to see these pictures, were greatly disappointed. In fact, Morrison stated that he intended to sue certain parties for damages for not having the reels here on the date advertised.

I notice that Clyde Martin, the "Paderiski of motion photography," is going on the road in the interest of Selig. Well, Selig, it sure is a good advertising move to send that talented gentleman out en tour, and if for nothing else save the love of harmony, book him in Hot Springs, please. I venture that Clyde will take one look and then hike over the mountains, for if ever there is a place where pictures are NOT played to, it is in this pretty "valley of vapors." For instance, I was in one of the theaters here the other evening and witnessed the Essanay reel, "Across the Plains," and the scene in the cabin where the man and woman are pumping bullets into the Indians making an attack on the place was beautifully illustrated by the genius at the piano, who thumped out "Every Little Bit Added to What You've Got, Makes Just a Little Bit More," while in Gaumont's reel, "Breakers in the Clouds," this was given, "Beautiful Garden of Roses." Oh, we have some great pianists in this town, there's no doubt of that, and if Mr. Martin and his Taylor trunk full of knowledge will kindly visit this city, I want to take him around, "in-cog," if possible and interview him afterwards. What say you, Clyde?

The deal that was on for the Orpheum has fallen through and the two young gentlemen from the gold fields of Alaska who had been thinking of purchasing this house have gone back to the cold, cold north. They wanted it bad enough, but they wanted the Sunday patronage with it. You see, they come from a place where everything is wide open, and this reform injection they suffered here did not enhance their views as favorable in a business sense, so they passed ye Orpheum up, and it is still for sale. Next.

The directors of the Lyceum have found a way to solve the union musician question, with the result that the gentlemen who retailed harmony while the pictures were on are not working there now, their place having been taken by a gigantic and completely equipped electric piano, band and orchestra. And let me say that this is "some box." You can hear it a mile, and as a "crowd-getter" it has the regular orchestra beaten a city block. Dick Baird, an experienced electrician, has given the new instrument, which, I am told, cost the Lyceum people $1,600 spot cash, his careful attention, and has become sufficiently acquainted with it that every time he comes near the mechanical band strikes up "Pinched Again," for Dick has been carried to the justices' offices more times than any other manager.

If ever I noted anything with pleasure it is the fact that Seward Erickson and John Blaschke, owners and proprietors of the new picture house in Hot Springs, the Photo-Play Theater, have decided to put on a much better line of pictures than when they first opened. It didn't take these gentlemen long to get wise to the fact that "the better the pictures, the greater the patronage," and the past week I witnessed some excellent rolls in this cozy little house, among them being the "Spanish Gypsy," Biograph's beautiful dramatic subject, which made a great impression, and Kalem's pretty story, "The Lass Who Couldn't Forget." That particular little lady is some clever woman, and her work in this production was highly artistic. There was just one thing about it that was open to criticism. The lover, Kalem, after all the years that had elapsed, as captain of his ship, looked years younger than when he went away. There was not a corresponding difference where he was concerned in keeping with the other characters, but aside from this the reel was well nigh faultless. I wonder how many noticed that in Essanay's reel, "Across the Plains," the Indians wore modern "sneakers"—not moccasins, mind you, but the up-to-date footwear of the white man? This reel thrilled us and entertained, and was one of the best Essanay has given of its western characterizations in weeks. Edison gave us a genuine touch of human nature in his reel, "The Department Store," for which we accept thanks, and as educational features Gaumont did itself proud with "Rocky Caves of France," "Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole," and "The Cormorants—Catching Fish With Birds." Especially was the last named picture interesting. Vitagraph, we also endorse "Billy's Valentine," which, though it came a little late, served to again emphasize the fact that the little girl in your company is one of the best and most natural children now before the camera.

As for the Independent product seen here the past week, the American reel, "The Harem Skirt," served its purpose and caused much laughter, and Champion scored heavily with its "Stonewall Jackson" reel. You may not think so, Champion, but that picture warmed up a score or more of stout old Rebel hearts, and the theater rang with Rebel yells. No, my friends, the people in this part of the country have not forgotten Stonewall by any means. "In the Commissioned Ranks" was also well received, and the same has our thanks, and Thanhouser put two good ones over in "Velvet and Rags" and "Old Home Week."

THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

STOP PRESS NEWS

KINEMACOLOR CORPORATION OF AMERICA

At Last. We—The Moving Picture News—exclusively give our readers the first information available and definite. Kinemacolor is now fully launched and is going ahead with a vim. We want to inform our readers who is at the back of this corporation. Our readers well know Mr. J. J. Murdock. He needs no introduction. He is back into the business as managing director, with full control of Kinemacolor. Associated with him is Mr. A. H. Sawyer as general manager. The offices are situated in the New Exchange Building, 145 West 45th street, one block from Broadway, New York.

This is just preliminary. Watch for full details in our next issue. We will say in conclusion we can vouch for the personnel of the directorate and that it is backed by real greenbacks and not paper figures.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Charles H. Miles, of Detroit, has purchased Temple Theater, and taken possession.

Baltimore, Md.—A. Lowther Forest, Hoffman Building, has plans under way for the erection of a new hippodrome.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Middleton Theater Company will expend about $55,000 for improvements to the theater.

THE SUNDAY SHOW QUESTION

From all parts of the country and abroad comes news of the fight for Sunday shows. We herewith reproduce a few notes to keep our readers posted on the issue from all points:

Pastors of Several Sawtelle Churches Make Protest

Sawtelle, Los Angeles.—Whether moving picture shows shall be operated Sundays at the Sawtelle theaters was the subject discussed before the city trustees.

Pastors of several churches were present to protest against such diversion on the Sabbath. Thomas Horton, proprietor of the National Theater, on Fourth Street, said he would be willing to close Sundays.

W. H. Kelly, a former member of the Colorado legislature and a civil war veteran, spoke on behalf of the old soldiers. Action was postponed by the trustees for two months.

Church Moving Pictures

Dunkirk, N. Y.—The Rev. Bartholomew Swinko, rector of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Hyacinth in Dunkirk, through his attorney, Thomas J. Cummings, secured a temporary injunction restraining Mayor James and Chief of Police Quandt from interfering with the exhibition of moving pictures in the parish hall Sunday evenings on the grounds that the pictures are strictly religious and educational and the proceeds are to be devoted to the building of a home for the parish nuns.

Prebendary Carlile's Hint to the Churches

Prebendary Carlile of the Church Army, London, England, who was the first to introduce the cinematograph into divine service, and who established religious picture services at St. Mary-at-Hill, near the Monument, between six and seven years ago, makes a novel suggestion as to the conduct of Sunday shows. Talking yesterday to a member of our staff, "Is there any reason," he asked, "why Sunday shows, provided they do not create seven-day labor, and are not worked for private gain, should not be under the control of some committee—I presume it would be a committee of the London County Council—to act as a sort of Sunday Lord Chamberlain? This committee should have the control of the selection of the pictures. The unsuitable nature of some of these pictures has been brought to my notice repeatedly. I should like to see the church take up the cinematograph for Sunday use. The exhibition of suitable pictures might be given in secular buildings attached to the churches. In the selection of subjects, which must be made with the greatest care, anything in the nature of so-called humor should be avoided. Nature subjects should be chosen specially. Indeed, I do not see why the churches themselves should not act as a guide in the choice of suitable films."

Mr. Carlile declared that in his own church he had found the Sunday cinematograph, "an unmixed good." He agreed that Sunday shows had improved street order and led to a decrease in drunkenness.

"The people will have to be amused," he said. "If these shows are guided by the Church, it is a wholesome thing; if they are left to the private gain they are likely to become unwholesome.

"I remember the significant remark of one old woman at St. Mary-at-Hill: 'Since my old man has been coming to this show-church,' as she called it, 'he don't go no more to the music hall.'"

With regard to the present craze for picture shows, there is one aspect that has struck Mr. Carlile rather forcibly. The picture service at St. Mary-at-Hill lasts not more than a quarter of an hour. The average show at a picture theater lasts from an hour to an hour and a half. Mr. Carlile is rather inclined to think that such a lengthy performance is injurious to the eyesight of the children. "I have received several complaints on the question of injury to eyesight," he observed, "and I should like to see the results examined by a competent oculist and optician."

Salem Pastor Will Illustrate His Sermon with Moving Pictures Even if in a Tent

Magic lantern slides instead of moving pictures served to entertain 500 persons at Salem Congregational Church, Los Angeles, Cal., recently. Pastor B. H. Reutepohler unexpectedly ran against a stone wall in the form of a city ordinance prohibiting the exhibition of moving pictures in frame buildings. Whereupon Mr. Reutepohler announced that the City Council will be asked to make a special dispensation in favor of motion pictures for Salem Church, and, should this fail, the pastor stated that the pictures would be given in a large tent which can readily be erected at the rear of the edifice. He believes that if a man can serve God in song he could also serve Him in pictures and that the church could do much in eliminating the unwholesome features of public amusements.

The church, he said, in its conservatism, had too long barred from its doors features of entertainment harmless in themselves but often perverted in the world's use of them. It would be the part of wisdom, the pastor thought, for the church to make a free and happy use of every agency which had a strong appeal for the people. He found nothing wrong in interesting people and laughed at an idea prevalent in the old days that bear baiting was wrong, not because it hurt the bear but because it amused the people. He stated that as soon as arrangements could be made the motion pictures would be given at least twice a week, accompanied by sermons.

Motion Pictures in Churches

Realizing that the young people insist upon amusements and that if they cannot find them within the church they will seek outside, the Rev. B. H. Reutepohler, of the Salem Congregational Church, has decided to use motion pictures and illustrated songs to attract and hold the attention of both young and old. This is distinctly a step in the right direction. Clean moving pictures are indeed a good moral force. Hymns illustrated by pictures make them more attractive. This move surely will do much to increase the attendance at the church in question, especially at the special services twice a week.

But there is something more these motion pictures can do. They can be used as near-living sermons on the conditions of life to-day. If the church attendance has fallen off there is a reason. Pictures of the home life of some persons, of the street life of others, may explain why they stay away from church.

Again, many good church-going citizens do not know how a considerable portion of their fellow-men exist. Perhaps if it is brought to their attention by motion pictures in the pulpit, coupled with strong sermons by the pastor, the different elements in society may be drawn closer together.

The experiment of the Los Angeles preacher is well worth watching closely and copying by other churches.—Los Angeles (Cal.) Examiner.

SOLAX MILITARY PICTURES

The natives of Flushing were much astonished and considerably excited by the arrival recently in their beautiful little city of two carloads of military horses equipped with a paraphernalia generally worn by United States cavalry on active duty.

Rumors spread through the village thick and fast. Finally the various conflicting reports had settled in a concensus of opinion to the effect that the horses belonged to the cavalry which was on its way to the Mexican frontier. Later in the day the horses were unloaded from the cars and followed by a crowd of excited Flushingites to the studio of the Solax Co., where it developed that both the horses and equipment had been purchased for use in the series of military pictures on which the Solax Co. is beginning to work. In fact, the ample grounds of the studio begin to present all the appearances of a military encampment. Tents, cooking paraphernalia, uniforms, rifles, saddles, bridles, gatling guns, cannon, horses, and men are all massed about the grounds in seemingly endless confusion, but order is already beginning to come from the chaos and in fact daily drills and exercises in horsemanship are being indulged in.

The first scenario of the series is already under way and promises some highly unusual and sensational situations. The scene will be laid upon the Mexican border, which, of course, in view of the existing situation, will make it of a special topical interest at this time. A faithful replica of a Mexican adobe house will form the setting for one of the scenes, the rendezvous of the Mexican bandits, a cafe at San Antonio frequented by the Mexican and American soldiers, the interior of a Mexican mansion, one room of which has been fitted up by the United States signal corps as a telegraph room, all go to show the elaborateness and care with which the Solax Co. is preparing this thrilling series of pictures.

In the forthcoming release Miss Gibson, whose careful and painstaking work has brought forth a great deal of admiring comment, will play the part of a Mexican senorita, who, having been taught telegraphy by her lover, an officer in the United States Signal Corps, utilizes the knowledge thus gained to tap a wire by climbing a telegraph pole, and saves his life. The entire picture will be staged with a lavishness of detail and a disregard for expense seldom equaled.

In presenting this series of Western military pictures the Solax Co. recognizes the demand existing for subjects having large outdoor scenes and showing horsemanship and athletic activity. They propose to furnish all this and to go a step further. Not only will those who witness the Solax productions see all the horsemanship, all the outdoor atmosphere and activity generally associated with frontier pictures, but they will find these things coupled with strong dramatic stories of stirring heart interest which in themselves would grip and hold an audience regardless of any other consideration. It is believed that the combination proposed will result in the production of a line of pictures of surpassing interest, unique in themselves and infinitely stronger than anything of a similar nature which has been heretofore attempted.

H. FICHTENBERG
With the "Independent" smile that won't come off.

"ISIS" THEATER TO RISE IN HOUSTON

H. Fichtenberg, the owner of the Dixie Film Company, of New Orleans, and of a string of moving picture houses in the South, closed a lease for a site for a new moving picture theater, to be located on Prairie Avenue, Houston, Tex.

Mr. Fichtenberg says that the new theater will be the handsomest in the South, and that the theater and its equipment and decorations will alone cost from $75,000 to $80,000. It is probable that a five or even an eight-story building will be erected on the site, the size of the structure depending on several leases now pending.

The theater will be on the ground floor, fronting 50 feet on Prairie Avenue and will be 125 feet deep. The lease runs for twenty-five years.

The new theater will be a daylight theater, and Mr. Fichtenberg says that hand-holding in dark corners will be eliminated from his house by the fact that it is always light. The stage arrangement and the curtain painted with a preparation of aluminum and gold permits the thorough lighting of the house. All the apparatus and equipment will be of the latest modern type and there will be machines, patent curtains, and electrical effects for projecting purposes. The theater will seat 750 people and will be thoroughly ventilated and heated. It will use a 5-piece orchestra and will, in addition, have a $5,000 pipe organ for organ effects in interpreting the pictures.

Three reels of film, 21 a week, changed daily, will be the rule. There will be no vaudeville in connection with the picture house, but a corps of trained singers will interpret the pictures. The singers will be a permanent staff and not subject to weekly change.

The house, Mr. Fichtenberg says, will be beautifully decorated and will have a lobby resplendent with 500 electric globes and ornamented in mosaic and marble. The name of the theater will be the "Isis."

A balcony will be built in it with separate staircase and entrance and this balcony will be reserved exclusively for the use of negroes.

Work on the new theater is expected to commence within the next thirty days.

THE CHAMPION FILM CO.

We are pleased to call attention to the coming release of The Champion Film Co. entitled "Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia," as it marks a new step to the front, in that it depicts the hardships to which those daring backwoodsmen of our early colonial period encountered when pushing through the unbroken wilderness to blaze the way for advancing civilization; a period of time which no other manufacturer has as yet attempted to reproduce. This is only in line with the excellent efforts being put forth by Champion to produce nothing but the best.

NAT M. WILLS
Signing contract with Powers Co. to pose as "King of Kazam."

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E. E.

Alternating Current Synchronous Generators

In alternating current practice it is customary to call the alternating current generator an alternator. Now let us proceed to find out what an alternator is and how it is constructed.

The alternator is an arrangement by means of which mechanical energy is used to cause the magnetic flux from a magnet to pass through a coil of wire on the armature, first in one direction and then in the opposite direction.

This varying magnetic flux induces an electromotive force in the coil first in one direction and then in the other. This electromotive force, called an alternating electromotive force, produces an alternating current in the coil.

Fig. 33. WESTINGHOUSE ALTERNATOR

If a system of alternately north and south poles, mounted on the periphery of a fly-wheel, revolves past suitably proportioned coils of copper wire as indicated in Figure 34, which is the revolving field of a Westinghouse alternator, an electromotive force will be generated in the armature or stationary part. This electromotive force varies from instant to instant in direction and magnitude.

In alternating current generators the current is rapidly reversed, rising and falling in a succession of pulses or waves.

The current is in fact oscillating backwards and forwards in conductors or line with enormous rapidity, under the influence of a rapidly reversing electromotive force.

The properties of an alternating current differ somewhat from those of direct current. They are affected not only by the resistance of the circuit, but also by the magnetic reaction commonly called self-induction or inductance. The inductance of the circuit has a choking effect on the alternating currents, tending to diminish or hold them back each time they reverse.

If a coil of suitable form is placed between the poles of a magnet, and spun around a longitudinal axis, it will have currents generated in it which will at each semi-revolution die away and then reverse. Each such complete set of operations is called a period, and the number of periods accomplished in a second is called the frequency of the current. In a two-pole machine the frequency is the same as the number of revolutions per second; but in multipolar machines the frequency is greater, in proportion to the number of pairs of poles.

In an eight-pole magnetic field with four north poles and four south poles around a center there will be four complete periods per revolution. If the machine revolves fifteen times per second (900 times per minute) there will be sixty periods per second or sixty cycles per second.

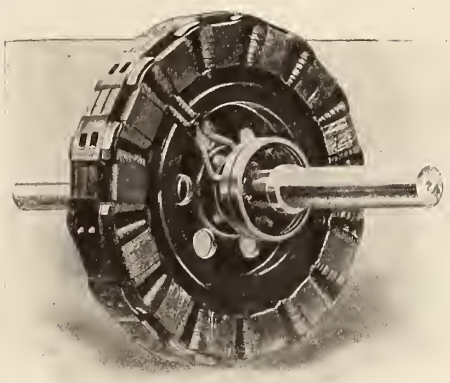

Fig. 34. REVOLVING FIELD

By revolving in a uniform field the electromotive forces set up are proportional to the size of the angle through which the coil has turned from the positions in which it lay across the field.

The frequency used in practice varies between twenty-five cycles per second to 100 or sometimes 150 cycles per second; for arc lighting it is impractical to maintain a steady arc with a frequency which is lower than forty cycles, although lower frequency is used with success for driving motors.

As it is requisite in alternating current work to have so many alternations per second and as mechanical construction forbid very high speed, it is the general practice to make this class of machines (alternators) of the multiple type, with a considerable number of poles of opposite polarity arranged symmetrically around a common center. The number of symmetrical poles in alternators of different types varies from twelve to forty-eight or more.

(To Be Continued.)

Hancock, Mich.—Ben Gettleman, of the Savoy Theater, will erect a new theater here.

Holdredge, Neb.—Messrs. Stanley Gay and H. C. Foote are remodeling the Iroquois smoke house into a theater.

Crosby, Minn.—H. E. Briggs, of Deerwood, will erect a building at First street and Second avenue, West, for a moving picture theater.

Spokane, Wash.—J. H. Clemmers will make extensive improvements on the building at 717-19 Sprague avenue for a moving picture show.

THE PIONEER LOBBY DISPLAY

The Pioneer Lobby Display has, during its short period of existence, gained a host of friends and admirers among the Exhibitors and Exchangemen throughout the country.

Each mail brings to the Company, we are informed, numerous expressions of grateful appreciation for their effort in trying to supply the exhibitor with an idea that will help him to advertise his show in a new and novel way, and to increase his box receipts.

This policy of co-operation and interest between the manufacturer and exhibitor which the Solax Company is doing so much to bring about is very commendable, and we only hope that other manufacturers will actively take up the good work and thus assist in establishing that feeling and atmosphere of fraternal friendship and mutual interest that is so necessary to the successful promotion of the business.

Solax
SHOWN FOR FIRST TIME
CUPID'S VICTORY
A BEAUTIFUL SOUTHERN PICTURE
BRIGHT—CLEAN—LAUGHABLE
HOW the clever and beautiful daughter of Major Calhoun escaped marrying an old Colonel and her father's debts were paid.
IF YOU WANT A GOOD LAUGH
— DON'T FAIL TO SEE IT —
Solax Lobby Display

The Solax Company well deserves the hearty co-operation and support of all those who are for the uplifting and betterment of the industry in general.

TO THE OPERATORS OF THE STATE AND CITY OF NEW YORK

We want every operator in the city and state to understand what we mean when we say we are "A friend of the operators," their interest has always been ours from the commencement in the formation of the union under the auspices of our old friend Keene (unfortunately deceased). With him we worked night and day formulating plans and trying to get the union recognized independently as a union of moving picture operators, working under their own charter apart from the stage or electrical employees. With this purpose in mind we journeyed twice to Washington to bring their claims before the heads of the American Federation of Labor. When the Alien Bill passed at Albany we did our utmost to get the claims of all alien operators before their consuls, and since then we have been working strenuously week in and week out to bring help to the operator. Our correspondence files will show what we have received from the consuls, especially the British consul. It is through these efforts on behalf of the operators that the bill of Seenator Higgins at Albany deleting the term "A citizen of the United States," which will make it so that any alien operator who has applied for first papers can obtain a license after passing a proper examination, and we are doing our utmost to get this bill an accomplished fact. The following letter will explain itself:

New York, April 12th, 1911.

Sir:—With reference to your letter of the 11th instant concerning the claim of British subjects to take out Licenses for Cinematograph Shows, I have to acquaint you that the subject has been under consideration by His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, who has determined that under the Treaty between Great Britain and the United States we have no right to complain of Licenses being withheld from British subjects.

Licenses have, however, been issued to Danes and to Italians, and as it would appear doubtful whether in either the Danish or the Italian Treaty, Danes or Italians have any greater rights than those granted under the British Treaty to British subjects, the question of discrimination is now under consideration.

I have to-day had a long conversation with the Commissioner and the Corporation Counsel upon the subject, and trust that a satisfactory arrangement will be shortly arrived at, the more so as both the Commissioner and the Corporation Counsel are much distressed at the awkward position in which British subjects find themselves.

Yours faithfully,
C. M. BENNETT,
Consul General.

Alfred H. Saunders, Esq.,
Cinematograph Publishing Co.,
30 W. 13th Street,
New York.

Hallberg Again to the Front

Visitors to Atlantic City will shortly have the pleasure of seeing the latest "Daylight" picture projection in the exhibit of the Larkin Company, Buffalo, N. Y., soap manufacturers. Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," furnished the complete equipment, consisting of latest Model Powers No. 6 Cameragraph, with special lens for 4-foot picture at 9-foot throw, special Hallberg Double Rheostat, and a special arrangement of outside shutter on the machine. The entire equipment has already been tried out at the factory of the Larkin Company, and this company have written Mr. Hallberg as follows: "The motion picture equipment which you shipped us recently has proved very satisfactory, and we have been able to work out our 4-foot picture in the space designated with pronounced success. We will use same at Atlantic City as we originally planned, and expect to have great success operating it."

COMING
ONE OF EDWIN S. PORTER'S SPECIALS
"THE ULTIMATE SACRIFICE"
THURSDAY (Get That) THURSDAY, MAY 4th
A GREAT DRAMA
IT'S A
Rex
OF COURSE!

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

SECOND SIGHT
Imp Release, May 1

Gertrude Edgar is loved by Tom Moreland and Owen Jackson, and Gertrude—being a woman—is inclined to a mild flirtation with Jackson while loving Moreland devotedly. Moreland is a timid lover, but Jackson is more impetuous and insistent. The love affair progresses and Gertrude is apparently happy in her conquests.

Moreland is invited to join a party to discover the headwaters of the Amazon River, a dangerous mission, and, being of an adventurous nature, he at first decides to accept. Then, thinking of Gertrude, he declines.

Jackson stoops to a despicable trick to win the girl. He steals a photograph of Gertrude, which she is sending to a girl friend, with "With much love" written on the back of the picture. He takes particular pains that Moreland shall see the photograph and the latter becomes foolishly jealous—unreasonably so. He decides to join the expedition, welcoming the opportunity to lose himself in the wilderness. He goes, and Gertrude then realizes that it is Tom she loves, and she is almost broken-hearted.

Moreland is captured by savages while a member of an expedition into a wild country inhabited by uncivilized savages. He is the sole survivor of the expedition.

The scene shifts to the States. Jackson reads a paper in which there is an account of the massacre of the members of the Amazon expedition. Through an erroneous report it is stated that every man has been killed. Gertrude reads the account also, and her grief is pitiful.

She wanders down to the old gate where she was wont to meet her lover, and, fixing her eyes steadily on space, sees Tom alive in the wilds. There is a telepathic communication between the lovers. Tom is distrait and oblivious to his surroundings. He knows intuitively that Gertrude will provide means for his ultimate rescue.

At the grief of the girl the better nature of Jackson is aroused and he is filled with remorse at his perfidy. He knows he can never marry Gertrude, that her heart is in the savage-infested country with her dead lover. He wishes to make amends.

Gertrude tells him that Tom is alive—that she cannot be mistaken. Her friends endeavor to dissuade her from the belief but she has had proof—that to her is positive. She tells Jackson she will consent to marry him if he will bring back her sweetheart in safety. Wishing to make all the amends in his power, Jackson starts on what he regards as a fruitless attempt.

Arriving in the wilds, he organizes a searching party and is rewarded by finding Tom, alive and well, and the rescue is an easy one. Jackson is overjoyed to find his friend, and brings him back to Gertrude, who is aroused from her melancholia and welcomes him in an endearing fashion.

Their meeting is a pathetic one. Gertrude, in her paroxysm of joy, has forgotten her promise to Jackson, who stands near. Suddenly she remembers and sorrowfully tells her returned lover that she cannot marry him as she has plighted her troth to Jackson on a condition. Then Jackson shows his true character. He places the hand of Gertrude in that of Tom and walks away, absolving the girl he loves from her promise.

THE TEMPTRESS
Imp Release, May 4

Gilbert Irving and Bertie Erroll have been inseparable companions since boyhood. Gilbert is a wealthy young landowner and is entertaining lavishly at his country estate.

At a house party Mrs. Allen announces the engagement of her daughter, Lucille, to Gilbert, and the pair are congratulated. Bertie has long loved Lucille in secret but, through his great affection and loyalty to Gilbert, is resigned.

At the reception Madam Eloise, a handsome woman, and her companion, a count, are introduced. The Madam, a blase woman of the world, looking for adventure that promises to bring a pecuniary reward, immediately marks the impetuous Gilbert for her own.

Gilbert is at once infatuated by her charms, and neglects Lucille, who is overcome with grief. Bertie sees the trend of affairs, overhearing a conversation between the woman and the count, and divines the intent of the visit. By intimidation and money he induces the count to leave, but the woman remains. The count informs her that she has Bertie to reckon with and he is wiser than the foolish youth, Gilbert. The woman resolves to defy Bertie.

Gilbert is impetuous and loves the woman madly, foolishly. Bertie endeavors to warn him but Gilbert indignantly resents the interference. Madam Eloise sets about it to effect an estrangement between the friends and incidentally remove the opposition of Bertie.

She first succeeds in making Gilbert insanely jealous, and then writes Bertie an impassioned letter declaring her love for him, knowing that he will be too honorable to divulge the contents. Bertie replies to her in a denunciation.

Gilbert discovers the correspondence and demands that the Madam show him the note. She burns it and then tells him Bertie has tried to force his attention on her and, failing, has written her an insulting letter. Gilbert is wild with anger. The plans of the woman do not miscarry.

Gilbert challenges Bertie to a duel and his friend has no other alternative than to fight.

Lucille is dangerously ill and Gilbert and Bertie are summoned to her bedside. Bertie arrives first and she dies. The grief of Bertie is pitiful. He throws himself across the form of the girl and his anguish is witnessed by Gilbert. Bertie is thoroughly aroused and he asserts himself, being shown in his true character. He orders Gilbert from the room, telling him his presence is contamination at that time.

Gilbert and Bertie meet on the field of honor. Bertie makes one last appeal to Gilbert to drop the quarrel, but Gilbert bids him take his station and demands that the duel proceed. At the word Bertie discharges his pistol in the air but falls, mortally wounded. Gilbert bends over him, and with his remaining strength, Bertie gives him the note received from the perfidious woman and falls back dead. Gilbert reads and it is revealed to him the treachery of the woman, the innocence of his friend, and his headstrong action—all stand out clear and he is stricken with remorse. He turns sadly away and is then aroused.

He proceeds to his home anad seeks out the woman, grand in his indignation. He confronts her with the letter, proof of her baseness. She denies having written it and he, in his rage, forgets that he is a gentleman—that she is his guest, and throttles her, ordering her from his house. She goes, after trying all her wiles to win him back, and Gilbert falls prostrated with grief and remorse—the victim of an unprincipled woman—the old, old story, ever new.

THE PILLARS OF SOCIETY
Thanhouser Release, May 2

Young Bernick and Johan Tonnesen are close friends, living in Norway. Bernick is engaged to marry Johan's sister, who is an heiress. It is simply marrying her for her money, as he is really in love with the wife of an actor. While on a visit to his old love, in which he hopes to break off the affair, the woman's husband unexpectedly enters the room, and Bernick is compelled to escape by the window.

Johan, upon learning of his friend's threatened disgrace, assumes Bernick's guilt, and leaves the country for America. Bernick takes advantage of his friend's chivalry, by allowing it to be generally believed that Johan also misappropriated funds. In reality, Bernick was guilty of this crime as well as the other.

Bernick marries the heiress and takes up his position as one of "the pillars of society" in the community in which he lives, bearing an unsullied reputation.

When, twelve years later, Johan returns to his native country, he falls in love with a beautiful girl his sister has adopted. She returns his affection, but when the rector tells her that this is the man who, many years before, wrecked her mother's happiness, her love turns to misery. Johan then demands that Bernick clear his good name, but Bernick refuses and defies Johan to prove his innocence. Johan leaves to return to America in order to get letters which Bernick wrote in which he confessed his guilt. Johan is to sail for America in a ship which Bernick knows to be unseaworthy, and which puts to sea in a storm. Bernick secretly hopes that the ship will be lost, so that Johan cannot bring back his evidence.

Bernick's little son, however, who is the joy of his father's life, is greatly taken with his uncle from America, and decides to stow away on the ship in which he sails.

Bernick is terrorstricken when he learns of his son's action, and is convinced that he will never see his child again. But the lad is safely returned to him, and the experience so chastens his father's spirit that Bernick confesses his guilt to his fellow townsmen, telling them he has lived a lie for many years, but in the future they must know him as he is, for no innocent man will again take upon himself guilt which in reality belongs to Consul Bernick.

Bernick's wife, in the fullness of her love, freely forgives her husband, and Johan weds the girl of his choice.

THE SINNER
Thanhouser Release, May 5

A young priest happens to be passing along a street just as a man is run down by an auto. He goes to his assistance and at the victim's request accompanies him in an ambulance to the hospital.

On the way the wounded man, who believed that he is dying, confesses that in a fit of drunken rage, he had killed his uncle, a rich merchant, because he was refused money.

The priest's own father, it appears, was employed by this man, and a few hours before the tragedy had led a delegation of employees who had protested against a cut in wages. The leader, derided and insulted, lost his temper and made threats against the rich man. Thus, when the killing was discovered, the priest's father fell under suspicion and a strong circumstantial case evolved against him.

After the arrest the priest realized that he held his father's fate in his own hands, but his vows prevented him from saving him. The sinner, who did not die, repented of his confession, and refused to take the blame that belonged to him, preferring to let an innocent man suffer.

At the trial the old man was convicted. His son, his heart torn with anguish, still declined to speak. He says farewell to his father, and watches an officer approach to lead him to a cell. Then he turns to leave the court, his lips still sealed.

But the sinner repents at the last moment. The priest's anguish touches even his selfish heart. He falls on his knees and admits his crime. Agony and excitement overpower him, and he falls dead while the priest kneels beside him and prays that God will forgive the sinner, who repented, even if it was at the eleventh hour.

FOR THEIR MOTHER

Eclair Release, May 1st.

Alfred and Edmund, poverty stricken, and their mother ill in bed, determine to go out and beg, but are quite unsuccessful—then, they open carriage doors near a large theatre, but receive nothing for their pains. Each moment counts and they must devise some means of obtaining money without delay.

The elder boy conceives a plan. He quickly leads his brother to a lonely spot, where he strips the little fellow of most of his clothing, in order to make him look wretched; he then directs him to the terrace of a fashionable restaurant to beg from the sumptuously-dining guests. At first the waiters endeavor to drive the lad away, but he is so persistent, and cries so pitifully that at last they leave him alone. His brother, who has been watching meanwhile, when the proper time arrives, steps forward and striking an attitude, hands his little brother the few cents he has, saying "Take that from me, old man, it will bring you luck!" The onlookers are both amused and touched at such a manly demonstration of kindness, and, not to be outdone by the lad, they shower currency upon the miserable little beggar. At last the boys steal away toward their home, overjoyed. An old gentleman who has been observing the children, sees through their ruse, and follows them home, where he learns the circumstances, and the generous old fellow makes sure that the mother and children shall not be in want for some time to come. On the same reel

THE BLUE NILE

This beautiful film is a delightful excursion on the famous Blue Nile, among rocks and islets, made magnificent by dazzling rays of the Egyptian sun. Picturesque race-boats are seen skimming over the rippling waters, quaint sails fluttering in the breeze, and now and then our attention is strangely attracted to the vividly reflected palm trees and other foliage in the limpid surface of the mighty stream. Audacious boys, on primitive craft made of east-off boxes, chase each other hither and thither shouting in the exuberance of their joy, as they make hazardous dashes in and out among the sumptuous boats of tourists and merchants. The eyes then feast upon a gorgeous and most impressive sunset, and the film ends in a grand silhouette of a "Mehari.."

It is a series of beautiful studies of the Mysterious River, with scenes giving an insight into the occupations and customs of the natives.

"THE COUNT OF NO ACCOUNT"

Solax Release, April 26th

Henry Vetter, proprietor of the Subrosa Hotel, is at his wits' end. The business is going to the dogs and the guests leaving every day. In the midst of his lamentations he receives a letter from Count Koe-Kei, engaging a suite of rooms. Much elated at the prospect of having a real, live Count for a guest, and being aware of the excellent advertisement it will be for his hotel, he spreads the glad tidings broadcast, and as a result he has his hotel full of expectant guests in no time at all.

The time for the Count's arrival draws near, but no Count shows up. The guests begin to grow impatient, and ominous whispering is heard on all sides. Becoming desperate, Vetter decides to get his French chef to impersonate the Count and thus save the day.

Accordingly, we next see the chef attired in what to his mind is the correct apparel of a Count, languidly conversing with the admiring guests, while they admire, and even approve of his faulty manners and speech, as it is the correct characteristic eccentricity that they expected in one of his station.

All goes well for a time, and mine good host makes it hand over fist, but, alas, all good things must come to an end. The announcement of the Count's arrival is made. Bewilderment and chaos. One can imagine the confusion and complications that then take place. If you want to see a comedy that is a comedy, go and see this release of the Solax.

"ACROSS THE MEXICAN LINE"

Solax Release, April 28th.

The first scene shows the headquarters of the Mexican officer commanding a detachment of Mexican troops at Laredo. He is desirous of getting information regarding the intentions and movements of the American troops, and calls to his aid Senor Decastro, the Mexican celebrity who has been actively in touch with a band of Mexican guerillas. Decastro suggests to the Mexican officer that they send Juanita, a fascinating Spanish girl into the American lines, and this is done.

We next see the interior of a cafe at Laredo, which is the headquarters of the American troops. Juanita succeeds in scraping up an acquaintance with Lieutenant Harvey, who is in command of the signal corps. Decastro and Juanita enact a little scene for the benefit of the Lieutenant, in which Decastro pretends to insult the girl, and as Harvey interferes to protect her an acquaintance is thus formed, which rapidly ripens into an interest on his part.

Juanita is enabled to get into the telegraph room, which is the headquarters of the signal corps. Harvey teaches the girl telegraphy so that by the time two months have expired, she has become thoroughly adept.

Juanita, however, has not been able, despite all her arts, to secure any information which might be of value to the Mexican Government. She plans to admit Decastro and some of his men into the telegraph room one night when there shall be no one there except the lieutenant. This is done after Decastro has promised Juanita that no harm shall come to the young American officer, whom she, in turn, is beginning to love. Decastro undertakes to bribe Harvey by offering him a large sum of money in exchange for certain information which he desires, but Harvey throws the bills in his face. A thrilling fight then ensues which results in the lieutenant being overpowered, bound and handed through the window to the guerillas, who depart with him, followed by Juanita, whose awakened conscience at the sight of her lover bound and helpless in the enemy's hands prompts her to undertake a rescue.

The lieutenant is brought before the commanding officer of the Mexicans, who orders that he give them the desired information, which he promptly refuses to do. Juanita interrupts this stormy scene, asking that she be left alone with Harvey, thinking that she can obtain the desired information. They withdraw, leaving Juanita and Harvey alone. She pleads for forgiveness and offers to do anything to make amends. The field telegroph instrument catches the eye of the lieutenant, and he tells Juanita that if he can make his escape long enough to get to the telegraph pole, he can tap the wire and send a message asking for help.

Weak and half fainting from the wound he has received, Harvey is in no condition to make the desperate attempt. Juanita sees here a chance to rescue her lover and wipe out the injury which she has done him. Watching her opportunity she remains crouched at the entrance of the tent until the sentry has passed, when she makes a dash to a group of nearby horses, mounts and gallops madly away. The bullets fired by the sentry on duty are whizzing perilously near. Onward she goes until she reaches the American wire. Jumping from her horse, she climbs the pole and, balanced on the cross-trees, taps the wire and connects it up with the field sending instrument.

The Mexican sentries are in close pursuit. Juanita signals the American headquarters, and finally gets her message through, although while sending it she receives a bullet wound in her hand from a shot fired by one of the sentries, and is obliged to finish the message with her left band.

Enraged at the apparent treachery of Juanita and the persistent refusal of Harvey to give up the desired information, the Mexican officer determines that the lieutenant be shot at sunrise. The execution is interrupted, however, by the arrival of the American troops, and Lieutenant Harvey is restored to his freedom and the loving arms of his sweetheart.

THE SCHEME THAT FAILED

Solax Release, April 12

Jack Leland receives a letter from his bachelor friend to come and spend a week's vacation with him and leave his wife at home. At first Jack decides not to go, for to leave his wife, whom he dearly loves, all alone, would be dreadful. After a little meditation, however, he decides to go. But Lawrence, his friend, is to send him a telegram reading that a syndicate is to hold a directors' meeting and Jack's presence is needed.

The telegram arrives. Jack assumes reluctance in going, but when persuaded by his wife to go he leaves. Absentmindedly Jack leaves the letter from Lawrence folded carelessly in his handkerchief which he takes from his pocket as he leaves. The wife finds the note and goes into hysterics.

On leaving, Jack's wife gives him a necklace to wear for good luck. During Mrs. Leland's hysterics Miss Truman, who is present, decides to beat the husband at his old game. Miss Truman dictates a letter to the inpector of the police to arrest a man disguised as Jack Leland, who is at present out of town. He has stolen a diamond necklace belonging to her. She says that if two officers are sent at once he can be taken at the depot.

The Inspector receives the letter and forthwith sends two officers to get Mr. Leland and they immediately return with Jack in tow.

One can imagine the complications when the wife is telephoned for and refuses to recognize her husband. He is finally released by a letter written by his wife, who refuses to prosecute him. He returns home raving with anger, but when the wife shows him Burt's letter, he realizes his situation. Mrs. Leland, after a severe lecture, forgives him and he promises never to do it again.

"THE COSSACK DUKE"

Great Northern Release, April 29th

A powerful drama of Russian military life. A lieutenant conceives a secret passion for the young wife of a general, who gradually becomes suspicious of their secret meetings, and forbids the lieutenant his house. A Duchess unwisely lends her help to make their intrigue easier, and becomes the medium for the exchange of notes between the two. One of these is dropped, and the Duke comes to the conclusion that it is his wife whom the lieutenant is bestowing his admiration upon. With the help of his secretary the Duke hatches a plot against his supposed rival, who finds himself accused of conspiring against the Czar. The Duke tells his wife of the lieutenant's condemnation. She is upset on account of the shock she knows the news will be to her young friend, and the Duke puts the worst construction on her agitation. The lieutenant is about to be shot when the Duke finds out that it is the wife of the general whom the lieutenant is in love with, and gives the order that prevents the execution.

"A KENTUCKY GIRL"

Yankee Release, May 1st

Madge Logan, known as the belle of the Kentucky mountains, has many suitors for her hand. Among them are two bitter rivals —Joe Bowers and Dave Ellis. Dave seems to have a winning hand over Joe and Joe, in a jealous rage sends a warning to the Revenue officers and describes the location of Dave's still. After so doing Joe realizes what a despicable thing it was to do, as an informer is considered by the mountain folks the most dastardly being that walks the earth.

Joe hastens home and arms himself, and goes to Dave's still to warn him—but the revenue officers have preceded him and raided the still, and Dave is captured and left securely bound by the officers, who are disguised as hunters and who have started out to round up Dave's accomplices. Joe finds Dave in his sad plight, cuts his bonds as the officers are returning, and opens fire on the revenue men. Dave, a coward at heart, runs away, thinking only of his own safety, and leaves Joe to fight it out among the rocks, which he does until his ammunition is exhausted, and he falls wounded and is captured and jailed.

Madge learns the facts from Dave, and while he pleads for her to hide him away in her home, she realizes what a coward he was, and refuses to have anything more to do with him. She then hastens to explain matters to the boys of the district, whom she finds pitching quoits. They immediately start out to rescue Joe, which they do in a very sensational manner. After this rescue, Joe is forced to hide away in the mountains, leaving his old Mammy to toil in the field and work out her living as best she can.

Madge, in the meantime, unknown to Joe, has been helping the poor, careworn mother in her daily toil. Joe has been eating his heart out for a sight of his Mammy, and decides to go home and see her, even if he is captured again.

Dave has left the district for good, to avoid capture. Joe, of course, believes Dave to be still happy in his love for Madge, and as the half-starved, careworn boy reaches his home, great is his surprise to find Madge living with his mother and helping her with the work. The poor old lady clasps her son to her arms and tells him how good Madge has been to her. Joe looks longingly at Madge. "Haint ye married to Dave yet?" Madge hangs her head, and tells him she has been waiting for him. The boy's surprise knows no bounds as he clasps her in his arms. Soon he learns that the revenue officers have exonerated him, and a new life begins for Joe, Madge and Mammy.

The scenery and surroundings are most startling. The mighty elevated Kentucky Mountain in its country dress of pine trees, showing what a wonderful thing nature really is. The picture was taken at the risk of life and limb by the Yankee Film Company's actors, in their Tour of the World series.

"ZELDA, THE GYPSY"

Yankee Release, May 5th

Mr. Hamilton, a wealthy commission merchant, was left a widower with a promising son whom he expected to continue the business in case of his death.

Several years after his wife died, he fell in love with a dashing widow, whose sole ambition was to shine in society, expecting to inherit her husband's fortune. He had, however, in his will, left the bulk of his estate to his only son, Harry. Upon this merchant's death, the widow was deeply chagrined to learn that her expectations had not been realized. She immediately determined to break the will, and secretly planned to carry out her intentions.

The unexpected visit of a tribe of gypsies in the vicinity of their homestead gave her the golden opportunity which, however, ended disastrously to her. The "beauty" of the tribe was "Zelda," the fortune teller, who had become the wife of Emanuel, the villain of the tribe at an early age.

Mrs. Hamilton and her stepson, Harry, came upon the gypsy camp on one of their morning canters. Harry was deeply impressed with the beautiful Zelda, and was encouraged by his stepmother in making clandestine appointments. Her designs were apparent as she succeeded in arousing the fierce jealousy of the unprincipled husband. He became the laughing stock of the tribe, and soon learns of the infatuation of the boy for Zelda. As usual among these nomadic bands, a tragedy ensues. Emanuel upbraids his wife, abuses her and threatens the life of her pale-faced admirer, and finally surprises them in one of their secret tete-a-tetes, after Zelda has left the camp. The young fellow endeavors to explain his interest in her, and his reason for befriending her. All to no avail. He assaults the boy, and thinking he has killed him, makes his escape. Zelda gives the alarm, and two farmers, whom she notifies of the assault, come upon the scene, and are soon joined by an infuriated mob, who vow vengeance on the murderous gypsy. He, in the meantime, has fled to the Hamilton Homestead, and brushing the butler aside, begs Mrs. Hamilton to save him from his imminent danger. She now refuses to secrete him, and thus shirks her compact.

The mob are seen coming into the grounds. Terror is depicted upon the villain's countenance as he pleads with her for his life. She still refuses. He seizes her and in the struggle forces her to the balcony railing. The crowd below, with shouts suppressed upon their lips, gaze horror-stricken as they sway, and are finally flung to the lawn below, an inert mass.

The boy, who was only stunned in the encounter with the gypsy, recovered sufficiently to reach the scene, hoping to save the life of the wretched Emanuel. But, alas.. too late! He comes upon the tragic scene, as his step-mother's body is borne away. Zelda shudders at the sight of Emanuel and is led from the scene by the equally afflicted admirer. Thus each party to an unjust intrigue paid the penalty that is so often meted out to the "wicked of heart," and the stepson remained free to make Zelda's life one of sunshine and happiness.

"OUT OF THE DARK"

Champion Release, May 3d

A cowboy dance at Roaring Canyon was always a gala occasion, and boasted three musicians. Also, it was never free from a row, and in this instance, "Red-eyed Bob" shot the hat off "Gambler Joe's" head, because the latter tried to force Bob's sweetheart to dance with him. At once a feud ensued between the two, and Joe swore to "get" Bob the first time they met.

Red-eyed Bob received his appellation from an inflammation of the eyes that made them appear red and sore. In fact, the lad was rapidly losing his sight, and of this he was ignorant. Shortly after the dance at Kansas Kid's Saloon, the escaping smoke from the stove so distressed his eyes that in his rage he kicked it over. Soon the place was in flames, and Bob was ejected, with the dire threat of being shot should he ever return to Roaring Canyon.

Then darkness set in, for while crossing the country, as the sun was blazing, the light went out of his eyes, and he became blind. Groping his way to his pony, he mounted, and gave it the rein. It naturally turned toward the town again. Without being discovered, he found his way to his sweetheart's home, and made known his condition. Before the frightened girl could act, her mother entered and ordered Bob from the house.

Gambler Joe was about to call on the widow's daughter when he saw Bob coming out. He is about to fulfill his oath to shoot Bob on sight, when he notes the man's uncertain steps. The truth bursts upon him, and his great pity overwhelmed the hate he had harbored. Leading the lad to the hotel, he leaves him in the office to fetch a visiting doctor. While gone, however, a bunch of cowboys enter, and not knowing his plight, they pitch in and commence to forcibly settle their grudge, until interrupted by Nell, who enlightens them as to his condition.

The doctor examined Bob's eyes and announced that five months' rest and treatment under his care with a thousand-dollar fee would restore his sight. Gambler Joe passes his hat, and it is quickly jammed with notes and coins, all prompted by the common feeling for an afflicted fellowman. Touched by the unadorned generosity of these big-hearted Westerners, the doctor returns their offering and gives his services free to Bob, who, after the allotted time, returns to his little sweetheart, hale and sound, uplifted out of the dark.

"CLARK'S CAPTURE OF KASKASKIA"

Champion Release, May 1st

A name that ought to be familiar to every American as is the name of George Washington, should be that of George Roger Clark, for he was truly, indeed, the Washington of the West.

Great men came from Virginia, and he was one of them. The strongly built Fort Kaskaskia was the first to succumb to his intrepid dash and daring, and his name rang terrible in the ears of the British and their savage allies.

The defense of the settlers in Kentucky was next to engage his attention, and so well did he do his work that not a vestige of the enemy could be found to dispute his supremacy in the West. We next find him in the seaboard states, shattering the army of the traitor Arnold, and capturing stores of immense value to the sorely tried patriots.

The unfolding of the picture of such a man at this day is like a revelation from heaven; it is certainly a patriotic benediction to the rising generation. The love story interpolated in such a setting, it may well be imagined, possesses an interest not otherwise to be had.

The supercilious English Lord Lounsberry, affianced to the lovely young American, seemed secure in his prize, won through a stern parent's connivance, right from the arms of her lover, the noble George Clark. Safe within the confines of the stout and well-defended Fort Kaskaskia, his Lordship feels that all is well, but little has he reckoned on the prowess of the American trapper.

A ball is being given in honor of the bride-to-be. Finely clad ladies of surpassing loveliness dance on the arms of their splendidly bedecked cavaliers. Wine is flowing freely and mirth runs high, when, like a thunderbolt in their midst, stands the redoubtable Clark.

The guard has been overpowered by the stealthy and brave woodsman, and the revellers are at his mercy. The conflict is short and sharp. The trapper's flashing sword finds swift and sure lodgment against his rival's breast. The flag on the fort is pulled down, and his own run up in its stead, there to stay for all time to come; and in his arms, once more he holds the lovely girl for whom he would brave the dangers of hell itself, and whose love is as strong for him as his is for his country.

"THE REALIZATION"

"Rex" Release, April 27th

The word is an important one, it makes the unknown known, it makes of despair and devastation and the death of hope, cheer, contentment and bliss. Realization often means regeneration.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendall are for some mysterious, unknown reason drifting apart, no longer do they manifest the interest in each other of by-gone days. The change is there, yet the reason for it is beyond their understanding until—one day Miss Smith, Mrs. Kendall's seamstress, brings her baby sister to the Kendall home for her mother is ill, and she intends to find time throughout the day to care for the child, and Mrs. Kendall hears the baby's laughter and the sweet music of it finds a responsive chord in her heart. At once she understands—realizes the reason for the strange unhappiness in her home. They need a child to draw their two cold-growing hearts together, they need the tie that binds. And that evening Mr. Kendall, hearing the baby cry, also understands. The next day troubled thoughts haunt him—he cannot work at the office, he cannot concentrate his mind, so he goes home, arriving ther just in time to see Mrs. Kendall enter an automobile with the doctor and drive off. At once the green-eyed gnome of jealousy pierces his heart with its talons; he misunderstands, and in a rage follows her in a taxi-cab. He sees her enter the home of the seamstress' mother. He realizes that charity and noble kindness have prompted his wife to bring the suffering woman medical assistance, and his heart goes out to her.

Crane at Heflich's, Hoboken

"The Thanhouser Kid" having, as related in this paper, made a fit of large proportions in her talk at Heflich's Theater, Summit Avenue, West Hoboken, a short while ago, the theater management decided to put on another Thanhouserite last Saturday night, and Frank Crane, the leading man, received a rush order to come over. Manager Kutler of Heflich's and Lecturer Smith proceeded to tell the crowds that Crane was coming, and rigged up a lobby display with some rapidity, with the result that the talker from Thanhouser's faced a capacity house. Manager Kutler says his patrons have expressed to him their appreciation of his efforts to show them their screen-favorites in the flesh.

Frank Crane's tour of the Bronx section of the Greater City begins at Rehm's Niceland, Westchester Avenue. Before it is over it is expected that Crane will have done his talk in every Independent theater in the borough. Independents in the other boroughs are invited to send in their applications for Mr. Crane's appearance at their houses at any time, and to select the dates themselves.

MR. JOHN M. BRADLET

Mr. Bradlet, who has represented one of our contemporaries in Chicago, has, we understand, severed his connection therewith. We think he has been the backbone of the business in Chicago, and his successor will find it hard to follow him. It was intimated to us he is replaced by the great noble Count G. P. de Von Harlemer (Hello Bradlet, come on the News staff.)

COMING
ONE OF EDWIN S. PORTER'S SPECIALS
"THE ULTIMATE SACRIFICE"
THURSDAY (Get that) THURSDAY, MAY 4th
A GREAT DRAMA
IT'S A Rex
OF COURSE!

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

	Feet
Feb. 15—The Demon	900
Feb. 22—Redeeming Angel
Mar. 1—Tweedledum, Aviator
Mar. 1—War of the Cossacks
Mar. 8—Prisoner of Caucasus (Dr.)	900
Mar. 15—A Coward (Dr.)
Mar. 15—Adventures of a Countryman in Town (Com.)	322
Mar. 22—Tweedledum's April Fool Joke (Com.)	900
Mar. 29—A Glimpse of Neapolitan Camorra.
Apr. 12—The Necklace Affair	950
Apr. 19—The Mute of Portici	950
May 3—Grenadier Roland	950

AMERICAN.

Mar. 13—The Penalty (Dr.)
Mar. 16—The Job and the Girl (Com.)
Mar. 16—Do You Know This Woman? (C.)
Mar. 20—The Field of Honor (Com.)	985
Mar. 23—The Harem Skirt (Com.)
Mar. 27—The Talisman (Dr.)	985
Mar. 30—Osteopathy (Com.)	277
Mar. 30—Two Girls (Dr.)	723
Apr. 3—Oh! You Suffragette (Com.)	460
Apr. 3—A Cure for Laziness (Com.)	540
Apr. 6—Reddy's Redemption (Dr.)	995
Apr. 10—Cupid's Pocketbook (Com.)	1000
Apr. 13—Jim Minds the Baby (Com.)	350
Apr. 13—The Bungalow Craze (Com.)	750
Apr. 17—Two Plucky Girls (Dr.)
Apr. 20—One Month to Live (Com.)

CHAMPION.

Jan. 18—Why He Went West (Dr.)	950
Feb. 1—Judged by Higher Power (Dr.)
Feb. 8—At Double Trouble Ranch (Dr.)	950
Feb. 15—Her Three Proposals (Com.)	950
Feb. 22—The Old Man and Jim (Dr.)	950
Mar. 1—A Western Girl's Choice (Dr.)	950
Mar. 8—The Vindication of John	950
Mar. 15—The Girl and the Oath (Dr.)	950
Mar. 22—The Pay-Roll (Dr.)	950
Mar. 29—The Bachelor's Old Maid	950
Apr. 5—The Price He Paid	950
Apr. 12—Men of the West (Western)
Apr. 17—With Stonewall Jackson (Edu.)
Apr. 19—A Half Breed's Courage (Western)
Apr. 24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days (Edu.)
Apr. 26—She Wanted a Man with Brains (Dr.)	950

ECLAIR

Feb. 13—The Elixir of Bravery	424
Feb. 20—The Heart of a Warrior (Dr.)	682
Feb. 20—Hospital for Small Animals (Spec.)	286
Feb. 27—Punch	595
Feb. 27—Beware of the Bomb (Com.)	370
Mar. 6—King Phillip the Fair and the Templars	975
Mar. 13—An Unforeseen Introduction (C.)	470
Mar. 13—A Day of Storms (Com.)	430
Mar. 20—Cain (Dr.)	790
Mar. 20—The Rock Climbers (Scenic)	195
Mar. 27—Hurrah!Hurrah! Let Us Marry!..	975
Apr. 3—A Strike in the "Make Young" Business	534
Apr. 3—Mr. Nearsight's Marriage	426
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290

GREAT NORTHERN.

Jan. 21—The Trunk Mystery
Jan. 28—Triumph of Intelligence	391
Jan. 28—Mr. Muggins Has His Sewing Done (Com.)
Feb. 4—The Criminal Chief's Capture
Feb. 11—Found Again (Dr.)
Feb. 18—The Life of a Muschik
Feb. 18—The False Alarm
Feb. 25—His Great Duty (Dr.)
Mar. 4—The Rival Servants (Dr.)
Mar. 11—The Son of the Executioner (Dr.)
Mar. 18—Between Love and Duty (Dr.)
Mar. 18—Life and People South of the Equator (Scenic)
Mar. 25—The Fakir's New Servant (Com.)
Mar. 25—Troubles of a Trip (Com.)
Apr. 1—A Victim of His Double (Dr.)
Apr. 8—A Confidence Trick
Apr. 15—Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr. 22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Feb. 9—The Mirror (Com.)	500
Feb. 9—When the Cat's Away (Com.)	500
Feb. 13—Her Darkest Hour (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 16—The Convert (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 20—Pictureland	1000
Feb. 23—Artful Kate (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 27—A Manly Man (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 2—Army Manoeuvres in Cuba (Edu.)	500
Mar. 2—The Dynamiters (Com.)	500
Mar. 6—Tracked (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 9—The Message in the Bottle (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 13—The Secret of the Palm (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 16—The Fishermaid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 20—In Old Madrid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 27—Sweet Memories (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr. 6—The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 10—A Good Cigar
Apr. 10—A Faithless Man
Apr. 13—The Storm
Apr. 20—The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr. 24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

Feb. 2—The Village Coachman
Feb. 4—The Feast of Foolshead
Feb. 9—John Milton	900
Feb. 11—Foolshead at the Kinematograph	900
Feb. 16—The Fatal Charm	900
Feb. 18—Who Will Eat the Turkey	900
Feb. 23—Little Souls	770
Feb. 25—Foolshead Present
Feb. 25—Havana Cigar
Mar. 2—Nini's Doll
Mar. 4—Cato and the Flag
Mar. 4—Foolshead More than Usual
Mar. 9—Nobility (Dr.)	900
Mar. 11—Foolshead Shooting (Com.)	900
Mar. 16—A Dog and Two Mistresses	986
Mar. 18—Foolshead in Soiree (Com.)
Mar. 18—Toto on the State (Com.)
Mar. 23—Waiting for the Midnight Express	900
Mar. 25—Toto Wants to Get Thinner	500
Mar. 25—Queen of the Sea	500
Apr. 1—Foolshead Goes to See a Cockfight
Apr. 8—Foolshead—Lady of Company
Apr. 15—The Fall of Troy
Apr. 22—Marriage Midst the Sausages (Com.)	500
Apr. 22—Foolshead — Wrangler for Love (Com.)	500
Apr. 27—Little Lewis Toy (Dr.)	950

LUX.

By Prieur.

Feb. 17—Matilda Lovestruck (Com.)	321
Feb. 24—A Child's Prayer (Dr.)	534
Feb. 24—Matilda Chased (Com.)	354
Mar. 3—Jack's Lucky Horseshoe (Dr.)	530
Mar. 3—On Their Honeymoon (Com.)	440
Mar. 6—Angel of the Bowery (Dr.)
Mar. 10—The Senorita's Sacrifice (Dr.)
Mar. 10—Bill in Love Again (Com.)	432
Mar. 10—Jones' Remedy (Com.)	524
Mar. 17—Dogs Not Admitted (Com.)	534
Mar. 17—Bill Has Kleptomania (Com.)	380
Mar. 24—Cowboy Friendship (Dr.)	636
Mar. 24—Edith Has Some Sport (Com.)	322
Mar. 31—The Greed of Gain (Dr.)	652
Mar. 31—He Wanted a Hoop (Com.)	281
Apr. 7—Bill's Little Plan (Com.)	386
Apr. 7—A Desperado (Dr.)	586
Apr. 14—Bill and the Greasy Pole (Com.)	432
Apr. 14—They Did Not Budge (Com.)	501
Apr. 21—Dr. Grant's Wonderful Discovery (Dr.)	885

NESTOR FILM CO.

Jan. 4—At Cedar Ridge (Dr.)
Jan. 11—Sleepy Hollow (Dr.)	950
Jan. 18—Their New Minister (Dr.)
Jan. 25—The Man in 23
Jan. 25—New Minister
Feb. 1—The Bridal Trail
Feb. 8—The Transgressor
Feb. 15—The Light Beyond
Feb. 22—His Father's House (Dr.)
Mar. 1—The Professor's Romance (C.-D.)	990
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks (Dr.)
Mar. 15—Was It Worth While? (Dr.)
Mar. 22—Could You Blame Him? (Com.)
Mar. 29—The Truth (Dr.)
Apr. 5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr. 12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr. 19—The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr. 26—His Wife (Dr.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Feb. 9—John Milton (Dr.)
Feb. 10—The Salted Mine (Dr.)
Feb. 14—The Deputy's Honor	900
Feb. 17—The Warrior's Squaw	900
Feb. 21—The Way of a Red Man (Dr.)
Feb. 24—The Fate of Joe Dorr (Dr.)
Feb. 28—A Warrior's Faith
Mar. 3—Owanee's Great Love
Mar. 7—Dick Farrell's Prize
Mar. 10—Her Prisoner (Dr.)
Mar. 14—Starlight the Squaw (Dr.)
Mar. 17—Sacrifice of Silver Cloud (Dr.)
Mar. 21—Was He Justified? (Dr.)	900
Mar. 24—The Cowboy's Waif (Dr.)	900
Mar. 28—An Indian Nemesis (Dr.)
Mar. 31—The Red Avenger (Dr.)
Apr. 4—At Bar U Ranch (Dr.)
Apr. 7—Avery's Dream (Com.)
Apr. 11—An Indian's Mistake	950
Apr. 14—A Man of Honor	950
Apr. 18—Return of Company D (Dr.)	950
Apr. 21—A Cowboy for a Day (Com.)	950

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Mar. 11—A Gamble with Love
Mar. 14—Come Back to Erin
Mar. 18—His Mind's Tragedy
Mar. 21—Just Kids (Com.)
Mar. 21—A Trip About Christiana
Mar. 25—Ogallalah (Dr.)
Mar. 28—The Boy from the East
Mar. 28—The Pantaloon Skirt (Com.)
Mar. 28—A Western Ruse (W. Dr.)
Apr. 1—Cupid's Monkey Wrench (Com.)
Apr. 4—Oh! You Mother-in-Law (Com.)
Apr. 4—Touring Athens (Scenic)
Apr. 8—A Western Ruse
Apr. 11—How the Doctor Made Good
Apr. 11—Reclamation
Apr. 15—At the Window
Apr. 18—Copper Wit (Com.)
Apr. 18—The Wine Harvest
Apr. 22—The Last Rose

RELIANCE

Mar. 22—When Red Turned Gray (Dr.)
Mar. 25—Pallid Hues in Clouded Skies	900
Mar. 29—If It Ever Were Thus (Dr.)	900
Apr. 1—Till Death Do Part
Apr. 5—Rickshaw the Detective
Apr. 5—Summer Skies
Apr. 8—The Gloved Hand (Dr.)
Apr. 12—Thirty Minutes (Dr.)
Apr. 15—Her Mother's Love	950
Apr. 19—A Tale of Ebon Tints (Com.)	950
Apr. 22—In the Tepee's Light (Dr.)	950
Apr. 26—Vengeance Hath Been Had (Dr.)	950

REX

Feb. 23—"The Story of a Prayer Rug" (Dr.)	895
Mar. 2—"By the Light of the Moon" (Com.)	950
Mar. 9—"The Fall of a Knight" (Com.)	958
Mar. 16—Where the Shamrock Grows (Dr.)	950
Mar. 23—Five Hours
Mar. 30—As Ye Sow
Apr. 5—"The Heiress" (Com.)	975
Apr. 13—"The Little Major" (Dr.)	960
Apr. 20—A Daughter of the Revolution (Dr.)

SOLAX COMPANY

Mar. 24—Out of the Depths (Dr.)
Mar. 29—A Package of Trouble (Com.)
Mar. 29—She Was Not Afraid (Com.)
Mar. 31—The Mill of the Gods (Dr.)
Apr. 5—The Maid's Revenge (Com.)	992
Apr. 7—The Rose of the Circus (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 12—Tramp Strategy (Com.)
Apr. 12—The Scheme that Failed (Com.)
Apr. 14—The Little Flower Girl (Dr.)
Apr. 19—The Old Excuse (Com.)
Apr. 21—The Voice of His Conscience (Dr.)

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Feb. 17—Checkmate (Dr.)
Feb. 21—The Patriot Maid of '76 (Dr.)
Feb. 21—For Washington
Feb. 24—A Newsboy Hero
Feb. 28—The Litle Mother (Dr.)
Mar. 3—Stage Struck (Dr.)
Mar. 7—The Mummy (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 10—The Spirit Hand (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 14—His Younger Brother
Mar. 17—Robert Emmett
Mar. 21—Divorce (Dr.)
Mar. 21—Waiting at the Church (Com.)
Mar. 24—The Tramp (Dr.)
Mar. 28—The Imposter	1000
Mar. 31—Silas Marner	1000
Apr. 4—Charity of the Poor (Dr.)
Apr. 7—Vindicated
Apr. 11—Velvet and Rags
Apr. 14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.)
Apr. 18—Cally's Comet (Com.)	1000
Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr. 25—Poet of the People (His.)
Apr. 28—An Elevator Romance (Com.)

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Feb. 27—All for Gold (Dr.)
Mar. 3—The Abduction of Parson Jones (Com.)
Mar. 6—Angel of the Bowery (Dr.)
Mar. 10—The Senorita's Sacrifice (Dr.)
Mar. 13—The Test of Love (Dr.)
Mar. 17—His Double Treasure (Dr.)
Mar. 20—The Open Gate (Dr.)
Mar. 24—Love's Ebb and Flood (Dr.)
Mar. 27—Tom and Jerry (Dr.)
Mar. 31—Her Mother's Fiance (Dr.)
Apr. 4—Secret of the Opal Mine (Dr.)
Apr. 4—The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr. 10—An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.)
Apr. 14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.)
Apr. 17—A Close Call (Dr.)
Apr. 21—The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr. 24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr. 28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)

Nickelodia News in Brief

Lancaster, Mo.—Geo. Grist is preparing to erect an opera house here.

Chandlerville, Ill.—A movement is on foot here to erect an opera house to cost $9,000.

Hatsworth, Ill.—Editor F. A. Robinson purchased the motion picture business of Mr. Diersberger, of Beaver Crossing.

Scranton, Pa.—John E. Jones is building a moving picture theater in the Crippen building in North Scranton.

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—P. J. Hanson and Alex Taylor have purchased the Gem Theater and the Victor Opera House.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Arthur S. Hyman is planning the erection of a new theater at Long Beach, Cal.

Norfolk, Va.—Jake Wells, of New York, will build a $100,000 theater here.

Milwaukee, Wis.—A new $75,000 theater will be erected at Greenbush and National avenues.

Lawrence, Kans.—J. D. Bowersock will erect a new opera house to replace the one which was destroyed by fire.

Utica, N. Y.—Harris Lumberg, of Niagara Falls, will erect a new theater on Washington street, near Lafayette.

New York, N. Y.—Joseph Reinhorn will remodel the building at 216 West 42d street into a moving picture theater.

New York, N. Y.—George Lederer is considering the erection of a theater at 113-123 West 43d street.

Barberton, Ohio.—The Nice & Raiser Contracting Co. will erect a moving picture theater soon.

San Francisco, Cal.—G. Dannemark is erecting a moving picture theater at Pacific and Hyde streets.

Louisville, Ky.—M. Switow, of the Crystal Theater, or Market and Third streets, will establish a moving picture show at Fourth and Green streets, in the quarters now occupied by Jennie C. Benedict & Co.

Eveleth, Minn.—The Othello Theater building was completely destroyed by fire.

Louisville, Neb.—Work on the new Louisville Opera House will start soon. Contractor Teodorski will erect it.

CORRESPONDENCE

AN OPERATOR'S PROTEST

April 8, 1911.

Moving Picture News
Mr. A. H. Saunders
Dear Friend:

In reading the News of March 18, I noticed an article on "Use and Misuse of Films," in which the operators are blamed because of carelessness in the handling and bad condition of their machines. I know the operators are in fault at times and should be roasted for their laziness. But they are not alone to blame. The manufacturers are responsible a good deal for poor focus, unsteady pictures and dirty apparatus. The exchanges are greatly to blame for the poor condition of films, as they do not give them the care they should get. The examiners run them through so fast that if there is a break, at least 50 feet will be on the floor before they can stop the reel, result, the operator has a dirty fringe around the aperture of his machine.

Now, there are quite a number of exhibitors who are to blame for rotten projection, because they will not have new parts in or repairs done, until a machine actually breaks down, and when it does, he will not pay for good work by a reliable repair man but hunts for the cheapest cobbler he

NORDISK FILM TIDNING

The first trade paper in Scandinavia.
Best advertising medium in North Europe.
Subscription 6 shillings.
Sample copy free upon request.

Editor, A. SEABURY, Post Box 163, Stockholm, Sweden.

FEATURES TWO EVERY WEEK

Solax

FEATURES TWO EVERY WEEK

LAST CALL! HAVE YOU ENROLLED?
NOW IS THE TIME

TO IDENTIFY YOURSELF WITH ONE OF THE

BIGGEST MONEY GETTING PROPOSITIONS ON THE MARKET

SEND ALONG THAT INITIAL AND REINSTATEMENT ORDER NOW FOR

"ACROSS THE MEXICAN LINE"

RELEASE APRIL 28TH

AND THUS ASSURE YOURSELF OF THE FIRST PICTURE OF THIS

BIG SERIES OF GIGANTIC MILITARY PRODUCTIONS

EXCEPTIONAL FEATURES PRODUCED FOR YOUR ESPECIAL BENEFIT
BUT SOLD AT THE SAME OLD PRICE

GET OUR TWO COLOR LOBBY DISPLAY

RELEASES
FRI. MAY 5th—"THE SOMNAMBULIST," Drama
WED. " 10th—"THEIR FIRST BABY," Drama
FRI. " 12th—"BETWEEN LIFE AND DUTY," Drama
WED. " 17th—"DEAF AND DUMB," Drama

Solax Company
CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

"REMEMBER: ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED THROUGHOUT

THE THANHOUSER WO-A-WEEK

RELEASED TUESDAY, MAY 2

The First Picture Play by This Author

The Pillars of Society

BY HENRIK IBSEN

This is the original "Ibsen Film"—the initial Ibsen play to be put into moving pictures. And many think it the very masterpiece of the great playwright who has just departed. And we, on our part, feel that if he had been spared to see the "first print" of the film of his play as we saw it the other day in our inspection room, he would have enthused over it every jot as much as did we. WE raved! Undoubtedly, you and your patrons will, too.

No. 207 Code Word, Soci

RELEASED FRIDAY, MAY 5

A Motion Picture Parable

The Sinner

is positively the strongest and most unique dramatic plot we have evolved this year and we invite your opinion as to whether it isn't THE best you've ever seen. It's a story that we can well be proud of, one that we can well afford to pit against anything of its class on the market. It's a story that carries distinct uplift and goes to firmly fasten the motion film on the high pedestal to which previous Thanhouser and other good issues have raised it.

No. 208 Code Word, Sin

JUST OUT! THE THANHOUSER LOBBY PHOTOS

consisting of five splendid individual photographs (11x14) of Thanhouser principals, sent postage prepaid for $1.00 with order. Address Manager's Dept.

THE THANHOUSER NEWS, "The Exhibitor's Guide," containing the Thanhouser Lobby-Decorator, sent FREE OF CHARGE to all who can show connection with the Moving Picture business. Address Manager's D pt.

THANHOUSER CO.

NEW ROCHELLE, NEW YORK

can get, and should anything break, some of them think the operator should pay for it.

Now, Mr. Saunders, I don't want you to think that I want to shove the blame of poor projection from the operator's shoulders on to others, I simply want to see everybody get a fair show. We are working under pretty bad conditions just at present. We are forced to inhale, not only the foul air of the theater, but carbon smoke and dust, smell of films, cement and oil, and we must keep our booth (coop or cell) door closed, or lose our licenses, which makes things pretty hard for us all around, and knowing that you have helped to ease our load in the past and of what you can do for us in the future, we want to give you our hearty thanks and best wishes for the success of the M. P. News and its editor, The Operator's Friend.

"The Man in the Box."

An Appreciative Subscriber

New York, April 14, 1911.

The Moving Picture News,
30 W. 13th street, City.

My dear Mr. Saunders:—I am subscriber to a good many technical publications, but for no other I am so pleased to write my check for renewal of the subscription.

When your paper is due at my house I first ask for the "News" and usually read it before eating my dinner.

Your electrical query department is of special interest to me as an engineer and it is well managed.

With my best wishes for the future of the Moving Picture News, I am Yours sincerely,

CHARLES E. DRESSLER.

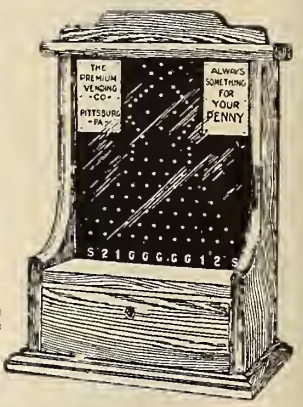
JAMES P. COGAN

Can anyone tell us the whereabouts of our good friend Cogan, several enquirers want to know. A letter to the old address is returned.

WE WANT

ONE THOUSAND

Moving Picture Men



to operate PREMIUM pin machines and get rich, or if already so, to get more wealth. Why not you? PREMIUM pin machines have become an institution in every candy store. By placing a machine in your retailer's store you will monopolize his trade and squeeze out competition.

Mr. Flint of Mo. writes: "Kindly accept thanks for introducing me to a gold mine.

Ten machines will support you. Fifty machines operated will prove a mortgage lifter to you.

We make them out of Oak or Metal.

Percentage of winners arranged so that from every twenty dollars deposited in the machine twelve dollars will be your profit. If so advised will make it still more.

Write to-day for exclusive territory to

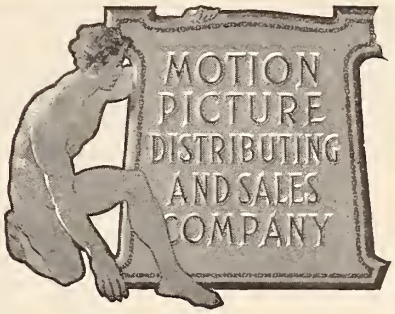
PREMIUM VENDING COMPANY
5636 WALNUT ST. PITTSBURG, PA.

The Moving Picture Cream of America and Europe

Original prints of this unexcelled program can be obtained in U. S. and Canada only from exchanges purchasing film through

Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.

111 East 14th Street, New York City



OUR PROGRAM

MONDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Eclair—Eclair Film Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.
TUESDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.
WEDNESDAY
Ambrosio—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Atlas—Atlas Film Co.
Champion—The Champion Film Co.
Nestor—David Horsley.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories
Solax—Solax Co.
THURSDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Rex—Rex M. P. Mfg. Co.
FRIDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Lux—R. Prieur
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.
Solax—Solax Company
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.
SATURDAY
Gt. Northern—Gt. Northern Film Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation
and slides for every purpose made to order
GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

BIG REDUCTIONS

Model B Gas Outfit, Stereopticon and Jet, cost $60, only $30. Motion Picture Machines $35 up. Powers Cameragraph No. 5 only $85. Edison One Pin new Kinetoscope $135. Edison One Pin Model B (no Rheostat) $175. Dissolving Stereopticon (no light) $18. Get Sup. 33, Great Bargain List. Motion Picture Machines wanted.

HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Philadelphia, Pa.

HALLBERG
THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"

SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.

I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.

Free Catalogue No. N 1

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City.

Advertisers want results. When writing to them it is our due that you mention The Moving Picture News

---

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES
REPAIRED
by skilled mechanics at short notice and reasonable prices. Work guaranteed.
Supplies of All Kinds.
CHAS. E. DRESSLER,
388 2nd Ave., City, near 23rd St.
Take elevator.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST THEATRE CHAIR
Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving. To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

WANTED

Motion picture and vaudeville theatres. If your theatre is for sale write us. We will find you a buyer. ILLINOIS THEATRE EXCHANGE, Matoon, Ill.

The Crown Motion Picture Supplies
138 THIRD AVENUE

We make and repair everything for M. P. MECHANISMS.

The "CROWN" Arc Lamp. Approved by N. Y. Board of Water, Gas and Electricity. The "Crown" Guaranteed Pure White Condensors. Good as the best, Cheaper than the rest.

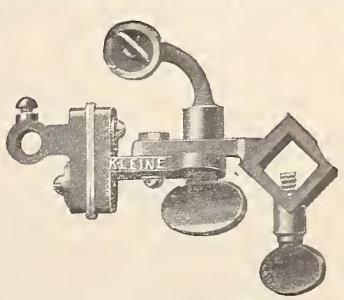
CROWN Cement. For non-inflammable or Ordinary Film.

Remember we carry and supply anything from STREET TO SHEET.

OUR PRICES WILL APPEAL TO ALL M. P. PEOPLE. Write and Convince Yourself.

EDUCATIONAL AND INDUSTRIAL MOTION PICTURES MADE TO ORDER

THE KLEINE



Carbon Holder
APPROVED MARCH 1st, 1911
By the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity of New York City
Manufactured by
C. B. KLEINE
19 East 21st Street New York

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

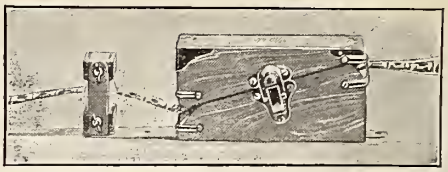
MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.

228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Telephone: 3790 Oxford



How do you like my looks Mr. Operator; wouldn't you like to have me in your booth?

The MORTIMER Film Cleaner

I stay right between the re-winds and never move—I can improve your picture and keep your machine clean. Ask your manager to send for the booklet and supplement just off the press.

Mortimer Film Cleaning Co., Fidelity Bldg., Portland, Maine

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"
IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE
ANIMATED PICTURE BUSINESS,
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
28 Large Pages. Eight Shillings per annum.
Editor-Proprietor: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABBRI,
1a, Via Arcivescovado Turin (Italy).
"La Cinematografia Italiana" is the official organ of the Universal Exhibition of 1911 at Turin.

DER KINEMATOGRAPH, DUSSELDORF
The leading Organ for the Motion Picture Trade in Germany.
Special Supplement for Talking Machines, &c.
Published every Wednesday. Annual Subscription 11/- Post Free.
Advertisements (4 columns to page); 2s. 6d. per inch. Situations Wanted, 1½d. per line.
Reduced Price for a Series of Insertions.
Publisher—Ed. LINTZ. Chief Editor—EMIL PERLMANN.

Please Your Patrons

You cannot hope to win permanent success as a moving picture showman unless you please your patrons, and the surest way to please your patrons is to

Project Perfect Pictures

To insure perfect pictures, you must have the best moving picture machine—

Power's Cameragraph No. 6

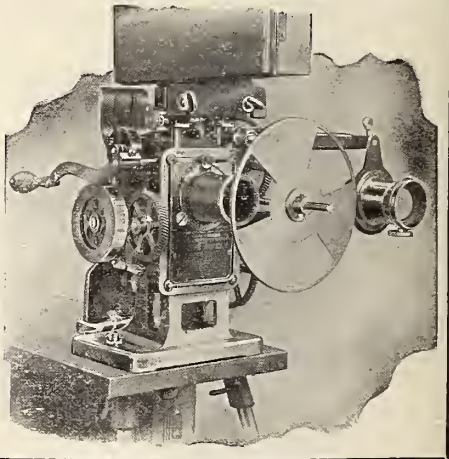
It not only projects perfect pictures, but it will outlast TWO machines of any other kind. That makes it the cheapest machine you can buy.

"A WORD TO THE WISE IS SUFFICIENT"

Let us send you catalog D and our special proposition.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York

For thirteen years the leading makers of moving picture machines.



BETTER MOVING PICTURES

It is said that the moving picture show is not so popular as it was. If that be true, it is not the fault of the public, but of the show.

Nothing that recent times has given us is richer in possibilities of refined entertainment and even valuable education than the moving pictures.

Science, travel, history, the masterpieces of literature—all these can be placed before the eyes and planted in the minds of the masses at trifling cost by this marvelous device.

But the enterprising gentlemen who supply the films appear to think the public wants little or nothing that is really good or inspiring.

They sit up nights plotting revolting tragedy, exaggerated melodrama and Sunday-supplement comedy to feed our boys and girls.

The moving picture show should be preserved for the good it may do, even if the public has to buy it up and supply it as freely as it now does the common school education. As now conducted, it is long on chaff and short on wheat.

NICKELODIA NEWS

Kankakee, Ill.—William Mellanson has sold his interest in the moving picture theater at Chicago Heights to Harry Baskerville.

Portland, Ore.—Architects Bennes & Hendricks have completed the plans and specifications for the erection of a new theater for the Keating & Flood Company, to be located at the corner of West Park and Alder streets.

Minot, N. Dak.—R. H. Emerson & Son are having plans drawn for the erection of a new theater here.

Montgomery, Pa.—Frank Kelly has purchased the interest of his partner, Benjamin Shelly, in the moving picture theater here.

Oakland, Cal.—The Idora Park Company has secured a permit for the erection of a moving picture theater on Telegraph avenue.

Lebanon, Pa.—Asa A. Weimer can give information regarding the establishment of a new moving picture theater here.

Don't Kill One Bad Odor With Another

USE

Sanapan

Registered in U. S. & Mexico

Odorless Disinfectant

CLEANS, DEODORIZES, DISINFECTS

NON-POISONOUS NON-CORROSIVE

DEATH TO DISEASE GERMS

KILLS ALL ODORS IN ONE MINUTE

Used by

Motion Picture Theatres, Hotels, Clubs, Railroads, Restaurants, Office Buildings, Hospitals

Send $1.00 for Can Making 3 Blbs. Solution

Testimonials from RR's, Hotels, etc., upon request

SANAPAN CO., 5th Ave. and 45th St.

N. W. Corner NEW YORK

Works: NASHVILLE, TENN.

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"All Wise Independents Buy and Boost Flying A Cowboy Pictures"

FLYING A COWBOY PICTURES

RELEASE OF MONDAY, APRIL 24TH

"Bud Nevins==Bad Man" WESTERN DRAMA

In which a Western desperado meets his Waterloo through the love of a Ranchman's daughter.

SCENES FROM "BUD NEVINS—BAD MAN."

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, APRIL 27TH

"The Boss of Lucky Ranch" WESTERN DRAMA

In which a tenderfoot relation assumes the responsibility of bossing a large Western ranch, and how he subdues the cowboys.

SCENES FROM "THE BOSS OF LUCKY RANCH."

TWO--FLYING A COWBOY FILMS EACH WEEK--TWO MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS

American Film Mfg. Co., Bank Floor, Ashland Block CHICAGO, ILLS.

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 17

April 29th
1911

LIBRARY SEP 8 1911

PRICE
TEN CENTS

SCENE FROM A VILLAGE FLIRT
"ECLAIR" RELEASE MAY 8th

Don't Kill One Bad Odor With Another Use

CLEANS
DEODORIZES
DISINFECTS
NON-POISONOUS
NON-CORROSIVE

Sanapan

Registered in U. S. & Mexico

DEATH TO DISEASE GERMS

KILLS ALL ODORS IN ONE MINUTE

Odorless Disinfectant

Used by Motion Picture Theatres, Hotels, Clubs, Railroads, Restaurants, Office Buildings, Hospitals

Send $1.00 for Can Making 3 Bbls. Solution

Testimonials from RR's, Hotels, etc., upon request

SANAPAN CO., 5th Ave. and 45th St., N. Y.

Works: NASHVILLE, TENN. N. W. Corner

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

Branches at the Following Cities

LONDON	18 Charing Cross Rd.
PARIS	11 Rue St. Augustin
BERLIN	238 Friedrich Strasse
MOSCOW	3 Glenischewsky Pereul
BARCELONA	59 Paseo de Gracia
RIO DE JANEIRO	A. Sestini
BUENOS AYRES	A. Sestini
CARACAS	Levy & Co.

And the Following Agencies

MILAN	ST. PETERSBURG	VIENNA
TURIN	ODESSA	AMSTERDAM
GENOA	KEIFF	COPENHAGEN
NAPLES	VLADIVOSTOCK	STOCKHOLM
BOLOGNA	MARSEILLES	BUDA PESTH
VENICE	BRUSSELS	FRANKFORT
DRESDEN	LILLE	LEIPSIC
TOKIO	SYDNEY	CAPE TOWN
JOHANNESBURG	LIMA	HAVANA

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK	LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK	3,750,000
FULLY PAID UP	LIRE 5,750,000

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPHS: CINES NEWYORK

JEWELRY IN PICTURES

IS A NEW ONE ON YOU, ISN'T IT?—
WELL, HERE'S A GEM.

"THE ULTIMATE SACRIFICE"

(A drama that doesn't weaken—it's strong all through)
RELEASED, THURSDAY, REX DAY, MAY 4th, 1911.
And it's as good as it sounds.

It's a strong story of love belated; not the usual kiss and make-up, that's why it's different, and it's different because it's a

Rex

DON'T SACRIFICE AN OPPORTUNITY, GRASP IT!

THE Rex KNOWHOW MFG. CO.

573-579 Eleventh Avenue, N. Y. C.

SALES CO.'S SHIPPING FORCE SACRIFICE THEIR LUNCH HOURS SHIPPING Rex FILMS.

IN MOTION PICTURE PROGRAMS
AN ESSENTIAL FACTOR

The Two Weekly

CHAMP

RING IN THE TWO AND EXPECT RESULTS
CHAMP MONDAY May 8th, 1911

"Col. E.D. Baker 1st California"

A battle betwixt Love and Duty

HERE IS YOUR WEEKLY WESTERN
It's CHAMPION and that's your cry

"Making a Man of His Son"

CHAMP WEDNESDAY, MAY 10th, 1911
A test of honesty in the dead of night

CHAMPS appear MONDAY and WEDNESDAY
MONDAY teaches HISTORY and WEDNESDAY portrays the WEST

Champion Film Co.
MARK M. DINTENFASS, Gen'l Mgr.
12 East 15th Street New York City

Two Yankee Features

MONDAY, MAY 8th
"IN SUNNY ITALY"
A dainty picturesque dramatic production among the lace venders and tourists with some powerful sensational scenes.

FRIDAY, MAY 12th
"THE ANGELUS BELL"
A beautiful dramatic production with a strong moral.

YANKEE FILM COMPANY
344 East 32d St., New York, N. Y.

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

$500 Reward

for information leading to the conviction of

Dupers

"Imp" films are being duped more than any brand on the market because of the terrific demand. If you suspect your exchange is sending you duped Imps, send us a small sample of the film with the name of the exchange. If your clue leads to the conviction of any duper, you'll get $500 cash reward. Offer open to everybody.

This picture shows some "Imps" with teeth missing. That's the way they look in "The Fair Dentist," our release of May 8th—one of the biggest screams ever produced. On the same split reel you'll get "The Four Lives"—an absolute novelty in film-making. On Thursday, May 11th, we release "For Her Brother's Sake," containing a horse race that will set your house fairly wild with excitement. Get every one of these "Imps" or know the reason why!

SEND US YOUR NAME AND ADDRESS QUICK! WE'VE GOT IMPORTANT STUFF TO MAIL TO YOU RIGHT AWAY!

INDEPENDENT MOVING PICTURES CO. IMP AMERICA

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America. 102 W. 101st St., New York. Carl Laemmle, Pres. All "Imp" Films Sold Through the Sales Co. All "Imp" Films Made on Eastman Stock!!!

Demand Two Imps Every Week

COMING!
COMING!
COMING!

Watch for announcement of our great Decoration Day release. One of the grandest Imps ever made. Make immediate arrangements with your exchange for an early booking!

LISTEN to the Princess Theatre, Muskegon, Mich.: "Yes, we had to go Independent again. Imps are the cause. Our patrons kept hollering for them until we gave them what they wanted. Our business is GREAT!"

Mystery Solved!

"GEN. FLIMCO IS CRYING LIKELL"

because he says "that man Laemmle has plotted and connived to ruin my business." A year ago the general was so strong that hundreds of exhibitors were afraid to run their own business. He told them that if they turned independent and the independent fight collapsed, they would be left high and dry. So they continued to pay him $2 a week. But the independent fight continued instead of collapsing, grew and grew and grew until now it is bigger than Gen. Flimco and his big brother combined. That's why he is crying likell and telling the teacher on Carl Laemmle. Here's a tip to licensed exhibitors: Run any film you blame please AND YOUR LICENSE WILL NOT BE CANCELLED. Hundreds of theatres using licensed films are also using special releases not made by the trust—and not a word is being said to them by Flimco. HE'S ALL BLUFFED OUT. He's lost his nerve. He's crying likell. And he places all the blame on yours truly,

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
209 Fifth St., Des Moines, Iowa.

The biggest and best film renter in the world.

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan. 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City. ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV April 29, 1911 Number 17

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

We are presenting to our readers this week a scene from the Eclair release of May 8th, "A Village Flirt," a description of which appears in our Synopsis page of this issue.

A LITTLE LEGAL TALK

We have on our desk something like fifty to sixty letters asking our opinion on patent litigation and asking us to aid the writers by telling our experience on the patent question. We are not accustomed, as a rule, to blow our trumpet too much, our innate modesty forbids, but we would like to ask all the manufacturers who have had any case brought against them why do they not go to the editors of the Moving Picture World, The Film Index, The Bill Board, The Dramatic Mirror, and the other various papers that are in existence for the information and data on patent questions. These various editors profess to know everything there is to be known about the business. Why do they not help their advertisers by giving them legal aid and valuable information which we are always willing to give as far as possibly lies in us? Our knowledge of the industry since 1889 helps us out on one or two things, and this information is always at our readers' disposal in direct contrast to those mentioned above, and while on the question of legality we would like to ask a question. Why is it that all the prominent, in their own opinion, moving picture papers do not carry out the law which they are violating in every issue of their papers? We want specifically to call attention to two or three very flagrant violators of the appended:

Consolidated Laws

GENERAL BUSINESS LAW

Article 21. Newspapers and Periodicals.

Sec. 330. Publication of owner's name. Every newspaper, magazine or other periodically printed publication published in this state, shall publish in every copy of every issue, upon the outer cover or at the head of the editorial page, the full name and address of the owner, owners, proprietor or proprietors of such publication; and if said publication shall be owned or published by a corporation, then the name of the corporation and the address of its principal place of business shall be published, together with the full names and addresses of the president, secretary, and treasurer thereof; and if the said publication shall be owned or published by a partnership, limited partnership, or an unincorporated joint-stock association, then the full names and addresses of the partners, or officers and managers of said partnership, limited partnership or unincorporated joint-stock association shall be published in like manner. The representative capacities of those named shall be indicated in like manner.

Sec. 331. Penalty for failing to publish. Any person, partnership, limited partnership, unincorporated joint-stock association or corporation publishing in the state of New York a newspaper, magazine or other periodically printed publication which omits, fails or neglects to carry out the provisions of the preceding section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor for each issue of such publication over which such neglect or failure so to do extends; and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars.

We trust after calling their attention to the above that in future commencing with their very next issues the above law will be carried out, otherwise——

THE FUTURE OF THE MOVING PICTURE

Who invented moving pictures? This is a question we are often asked. Our reply has invariably been, No one person can either legally or morally lay claim as the inventor. Motion pictures came by evolution; many of us can well remember the zoetrope, or the lamp shade, both of which spun round on a pivoted center and gave the idea of motion, very lifelike, and in many phases, horse jumping, boys playing leap frog, jugglers and acrobats. These toys gave the thought or suggestion to many brains who evolved the idea and substance as we have it to-day. The credit should go to every man who has given the matter attention, whether as inventor of camera or projectors, to those who used the old Geneva idea of star wheel and sprocket to make the motion picture an accomplished fact. When we look back to the days of 1889, to the time we first saw the possibilities of action in living pictures in Sloane street, London, and from that time on noted the advance made since those first pictures took our boyish fancy till almost perfection has been attained to-day, we wonder to whom we shall give premier credit, and common sense tells us that every man in the industry, both here and abroad, are entitled to some credit for the wonderful evolution of the art, giving every man his just due—and the end of perfection is not yet. It is because of the vast possibilities opening in the future that the Moving Picture News and its editor takes the stand we do. We stand for full and free independence, so that the wheels of progress may not be scotched by pirates or cornered by four men, assisted by a coterie of weak-kneed individuals calling themselves The Motion Picture Patents Co., and their licensees who bolster themselves up by two papers, "The Motion Picture Story Magazine," and "Film Index," which they own, and another fraud paper whose editor is in the pay of the M. P. P. Co., and whose sole aim is to destroy any good outside of themselves there may be in an industry which must grow in spite of all opposition; whose aim is to shield or attempt to shield themselves, behind certain patents obtained by fraud and collusion, as every man in the industry knows they are doing, backed up by license fees that run into thousands of dollars each week, all being used in the endeavor to crush out a legitimate attempt to earn a living. Men who are paying lawyers retaining fees amounting to over a thousand dollars a day. For what? So that eight manufacturers may corral an industry in America and exclude every other person from advancing to perfection, harassing them with litigation, with a view of having these eight manufacturers only enjoy the advantages accruing from this source. Cinematography should be as free as any other trade, be it photography, printing, bricklaying or tailoring. These eight men are so many dogs in the manger; they cannot produce good educational subjects themselves, and they are trying to prevent others doing so. They will fail to accomplish their ends, as they ought to fail. We are only just on the threshold of the advancement, and when the industry is as free in America as it is abroad then it will advance by leaps and bounds, producing pictures suitable for the time and age. We can see in our mind's eye, every educational center using moving pictures to illustrate all the great scientific problems, history, geography, travel, zoology, electricity, magnetism, and a host of other subjects, including commercial life and progress of great industries. But before all this can dawn, the people of Nickelodia must demand justice, and petition Congress to enquire into the methods of the M. P. P. Co.

The exhibitors must refuse to handle the products of the General Film Co. The Exchange men must be united and refuse to be coerced by this body. Hit them through their pocketbooks. Use fair means to break the manacles that bind the hands of this great and growing factor in the lives of the people. We have suggested petitions to the Senate and President, we again urge this course. Why should men and a cause be ruined by eight men? The course of progress must go onward and it will go onward and upward when men become true to themselves and demand a complete and thorough investigation, political and otherwise, as to why so much money was paid into the coffers of politics from certain sources of the industry so that certain corruptions and falsifyings could be glossed over. Why should malfeasance and a $30,000 corruption bribe paid to one of the political parties be allowed to stay the march of the Cinematograph Art? Will some of our readers ask their Congressmen, why?

Did Thomas Alva Edison invent motion pictures? Judge Lacombe says no. He says he was by no means a pioneer in the Art. Has T. A. Edison turned out an educational film? Has any member of the Licensees of the Patent Co. done so? Not being the inventor of motion pictures, why should the M. P. P. Co., working under the patents of Thomas A. Edison, who was not by any means a pioneer, prevent other people using a camera to take pictures superior to themselves? If the Patents Co. Licensees were producing the best films in the world, it would not be so bad, but they are not. Not one of them is in a position to give the industry educational or elevating film stories. They run in the same old rut. Dollars before quality of subject. Some of the independents are as bad, some worse. Then if neither can do the work, why hinder others doing it? What excuse have you, Messrs. M. P. P. Co. You even tried to get your tentacles on and your patents registered in Cuba, didn't you? But you did not succeed, did you? Shame on you! You are trying to stop the progress of education. Let us tell you, you will not succeed, your days are numbered; cannot you see the handwriting on the wall? Cannot you see Nemesis stalking at your heels? Why do you intimidate and browbeat renters and then get a certain editor to write letters to them, asking that they return goods they have paid for (and which in any honest industry becomes their property), telling them if they do so you will not molest them and that they can remain independent? Is this fair dealing?

The future of the industry depends on all honest men in it standing shoulder to shoulder in the full consciousness that Right will eventually win over the corrupting power of might, backed by ill-gotten dollars.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Several times we have asked the aid of our readers, and they have liberally responded to our requests. We now ask them if they will kindly give us a list of every film they have in their possession whether an exchange or exhibitor buying his own film, or manufacturer, of their stock of what they consider educational films with the price they will accept for the same, also to give a list of subjects which they consider would be of help to them in supplying educational agencies with subjects suitable for their various purposes. Another request we would like to ask is that every reader of the News will give us a list of all the motion picture houses in his district using vaudeville in connection with motion pictures. For this list we will pay in the form of a subscription to each one who sends in. We know this list will be valuable and we are willing to pay for it, and if the reader is already a subscriber to the News, we will extend his subscription.

THE WORLD'S TROUBLE COLUMN

An operator sent us the enclosed clipping from our very, very esteemed contemporary, the Moving Picture World; we think it is so choice that it deserves a free advertisement from us, showing the attitude taken and the very high class morale of the writer of the article and also its editor, J. P. Chalmers. We insert the whole of the clipping as follows:

> An Address.—Hartsburg, Ill., writes: "Please send me the recipe for metal curtain coating as mentioned in column one, page 531, March 11 issue. If not too much trouble, please send me the addresses of moving picture magazines in the United States and England and oblige."
>
> As to the recipe, Friend Hartsburg, I am unable to find the letter from Delaware and hereby request that he send in his address again, as I had another request for it just a few days ago. I put that particular letter to one side so that I could lay my hand on it, and when I went to do so there was nothing doing. Delaware will please send in his address at once and I will then forward it to you, Hartsburg. As to the moving picture magazines, since the Nickelodeon of Chicago went out of business the Moving Picture World is the only one left in this country. True, there is a publication owned by some of the Licensed film manufacturers, also one that grovels to the Motion Picture Sales Company, but as these are merely, to all intents and purposes, bulletins to boost the business and fight the battles of a particular clique, or rather two particular cliques, they could not be considered as true moving picture journals. There are two leading English journals, namely: Kinematograph and Lantern Weekly, Tottenham Street, Tottenham Court Road, London W.; and The Bioscope, 85 Shaftsbury Ave., London W.

Now that our readers have perused the above clipping from the fraud World, we ask them what they think about it, especially those points printed in blackface type in the above clipping. We wish our esteemed contemporary would be a little more specific and define exactly whom he refers to as there are several other papers that we might mention, notably Film Reports, The Film Index, The Motion Picture Story Magazine, and also including ourselves, The Moving Picture News. The editor of the Moving Picture World not only defrauded us out of our just rights in the Moving Picture World, but also adds insult to injury by the above excerpt.

Next week is our anniversary day, and we will republish the editorial we wrote in 1908; perhaps add a few comments thereto, but as the paper in question has been so very unreliable and has betrayed its friends so many times, we perhaps ought to have passed this by, but still we like to know what our readers think of the above false uncalled-for statements.

STANNER E. V. TAYLOR

It is a well-known fact that most of the success of Taylor's directorate of motion pictures is due to the way his wife, Marion Leonard, helps him in following his lead.

THE WASHINGTON THEATER

By Margaret I. MacDonald

It was not my intention when I started out to pay my usual weekly visits to the moving picture theaters to center out any particular one for special mention, but as circumstances and impressions certainly do alter cases, and regulate one's conduct in such matters, I felt it my duty to give a little attention to the Washingon Theater.

This theater is small and unpretentious, situated within half a block of Broadway, on West 145th street. It is arranged on a miniature plan. The seats are arranged in a somewhat circular fashion, after the style of the larger theaters. At the back, reaching from one side of the semi-circle to the other are tiny boxes each seating four or five persons, with an extra charge of 10 cents per box seat. It has two sheets upon which pictures are thrown alternately, one facing the audience and the other on an angle so that all have excellent seeing accommodation.

Woozy-eyed with spring lassitude, I stepped languidly into the dark interior and took a seat near the back in a good situation for surveying the pictures. I had come just in time to see the crates of luscious grapes being hauled on wagons, by good old farm horses, to the press, where the purple juice was forced from the bursting skins—sturdy men manipulating the machine, which was a hand press. The scene was rural and restful and comforting. Why comforting, or why restful, I do not know, unless because it lured one's weary mind for a passing moment "far from the madd'ing crowd"—this time 'neath sunny Italian skies. The picture was good—it was educational and pleasing to the eye at the same time.

Another picture shown here, and which told in glaring red letters that it had been passed by the board of censorship, was entitled "Unto us a child is born."

The sentiment in this picture was very sweet. The moral tone was good; and in these days of faithless husbands and wives, there was a refreshing element of true and wholesome love. The wife, just to play a joke on her husband, had had her brother who had come unexpectedly and whom her husband had never seen, play the part of a pretended lover—when the husband arrives home in the evening he finds his wife in the arms of another man. Frenzied with jealousy he shoots, and thinking that he has killed the man, flees to a far-away mining camp to hide. He takes to drink, and gambles all his earnings. One day staggering home he stumbles and falls over the edge of a cliff. Two men who have been following at a little distance pick him up and carry him to the camp, where he is cared for. Looking in his pockets for some clue to his real identity, they find a paper with his name on it. Shortly afterward, when he is slowly convalescing, not caring whether he lives or dies, there comes a letter to the camp with a name and address unknown to anyone. As a discussion was under way as to whom it belonged, one of the miners who had accidentally found out the name of the injured man, happened along and took the letter to him. Upon its being opened it was found to be from his wife, but it contained only two bars of music—a mysterious message conveyed in the language of music—musical notation. The rounds of the camp were gone over, and all likely or unlikely to understand the mysterious message were questioned on the subject. It fell to the lot of the old minister of the camp to interpret it. After looking at it gravely, he picked up an old hymn book lying near, and turning to the hymn from which the music was taken, wrote underneath the musical message the words "Unto us a child is born." The old miner in great glee carried it back to the sick man, who in his joy arose immediately, and returned to his home where, of course, reconciliation takes place, and explanations are made.

These and other pictures of educational and moral value were shown. In this little theater I have found by enquiry there are shown daily pictures of the very highest type of excellence—splendid pictures of travel in foreign lands, industries, etc.; and I must say that that neighborhood is indeed blessed by having such an excellent little theater in its midst—clean and wholesome in tone, and a place where even children can be taken without fear of contamination, and with always an anticipation of something entertaining and good.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, Ark., April 26.—Notwithstanding the fact that a jury in one of the justice of the peace courts two weeks ago brought in a verdict of acquittal in the trial of one of the local motion picture house managers, Prosecuting Attorney Wood forced the trial in circuit court against Harry Hale, proprietor of the Lyric Theater, and others who had been indicted before the grand jury previous to the hearing in the justice of the peace court. I regret that Hale's case in circuit court comes up too late in the week for me to give an account of the same in this letter, but will cover it fully in my next communication.

It will be interesting and stubbornly fought on both sides and the chances are even for both defense and prosecution. The motion picture crusade on Sunday has attracted the attention of the residents and visitors alike, and much comment had been heard as to the necessity for these pictures. It was on the grounds of necessity that the case was won in the justice of the peace court, and it will be the defence when the trial of Manager Hale comes up before the higher tribunal. If the theater man loses the case it will be appealed immediately to the supreme court, and I am sorry that every man interested in motion photography will be unable to be present at this hearing and listen to the argument of both Judge Wood and Attorneys Sawyer and Bouic for Mr. Hale.

This is the first time, by the way, that local managers have ever been hauled before a court as high as the circuit court, as previous arrests for showing pictures on Sunday have been confined to the lower city courts. The courtroom will be packed, it may be said, and every move will be closely watched; and this is a case where "every little movement has a meaning all its own."

Last Sunday passed off without undue excitement. Sheriff Webb made a tour of Central avenue, beginning with the Scenic and ending with the Orpheum. He merely notified those in charge of the places that they were to consider themselves under arrest.

"All right, Sheriff," responded the managers. "Do you want us to go with you?"

"No, gentlemen, not this time. I've had enough of marching up and down Central avenue the past two Sundays with you, so I've cut this feature out. Judge Wood requested me to arrest you, but I told him that I would not drag you from the theater for a Sunday parade of this nature; that I would see if you were running, get the evidence he desired and report the same to you, but as for taking you from the theater and attracting the attention of residents and visitors, there was nothing doing in that line for me any longer."

Were the managers pleased? Say, can a duck swim? You know, it had been customary for the judge to have those in charge of the shows hauled down to a justice of the peace, with a crowd of a hundred or more following, making comments and guying everyone. And this was on Sunday, too—don't lose sight of that fact. Well, the new sheriff had just two Sundays of such procedure and then he put his official foot down—good and hard at that. When the trial for last Sunday's violations comes up every man will be notified to be present, and they will be on hand, make no mistake about that. It looks, however, as if the sensational features of the Sunday crusade have been eliminated, for which we have Sheriff Webb to thank. Oh, you sheriff.

"The noblest Roman of them all"; the "champion of champions," together with a few other high-sounding and extremely complimentary titles, dear old John L. Sullivan, with a voice like a fog horn and a disposition that has sunshine looking like a thunder cloud, was here the past week, playing a three days' engagement at the Princess Theater, which, though it was the biggest house in the state, as well as the prettiest, was not large enough to accommodate the crowd. Old John L. was about the jolliest proposition that has struck town in many days. He was forced to make a speech and, of course, we scribes fell for John good and hard. Jake Kilrain was also along with this attraction. John had been billed like a circus for weeks, and he did not fall down on the nice advance things that had been said about him. He handed out his usual bundle of anti-liquor dope, which was received amid wild applause, and, taken all in all, the old gladiator of the roped arena was a great and howling success.

We have heard of Salome dancers, as well as having looked a few over, but for the real thing we bow to the little French lady who held forth at the Princess. She was some "poetry of motion," and then a few more. She danced in her bare "tootsies," but was attired only in what the law allowed, including a smile. It was artistic, there can be no doubt of that, but it shocked the tender sensibilities of one of the local newspaper men, who accused her of having big feet and violating all laws of decency. Hush, brother, hush. It wasn't that so much as the fact that said scribe, I hear, had to pay for the price of his ticket that caused him to turn lose his vials of wrath on poor Salome. The black face act that followed here opened by saying:

"Now, customers, since you have seen the slum dance, listen to muh."

Word reached me the past week that the opera house in Livermore, Ky., which had been converted into a moving picture theater, was the scene of a daring lynching the past week, which, I do not think, has been surpassed in the history of any moving picture house in the United States. William Potter, a negro, had been accused of killing Frank Mitchell, a young and popular white man of Livermore. The dead man's friends easily took the negro, who had been rushed into the opera house by a company of local militia, and, driving the soldiers out of the building, hurried him on the stage. A set of lines was procured when it dawned upon those who had the necktie party in charge that Mitchell's family should be compensated, so a collection was taken up. The entire populace of Livermore, it seemed, had crowded into the theater. It was seen that every one present, almost, desired to take a shot at the negro, so those in the orchestra seats nearest the target were charged more than those in the first gallery, while those in the top gallery, being farthest away, paid less than the rest. The "high sign" was given, the negro was hauled clear of the stage and the opera house was soon resounding with shots. Yes, the negro was killed; also the militia reinforced, came on the scene, but they were too late. Were arrests made? Well, not so you could notice it.

In closing, let me compliment Mr. Saunders and his editors for the extremely fine number the last issue was. It proved a credit to the trade and was a rare treat and delight. Here it made a great hit.

THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

Chicago Letter

MOTION PICTURES

Speaking of motion pictures, the charge for admission is seldom more than 10 cents. To offset this, however, from the manager's point of view, he has no exorbitant headliners' salaries to pay, no orchestra, no seat coupons to print, and only one or two ushers to hire. Besides, he need not advertise in the daily newspapers.

There are, morever, no disputes to settle with the performers about the locations of dressing rooms or positions on the bill, and no regular treasurer need be engaged. In his place the moving picture impresario needs only a neat-looking girl cashier, posted in a glass cage as close to the sidewalk as the law will permit—in order, I suppose, to get a patron's money before he has time to change his mind about going inside. For there is no denying that the film habit distinctly lacks "class."

Managers go into the game because the risk is almost nil, and thousands of people patronize it simply because they haven't the price to pay for flesh and blood entertainment. In fact, cheapness is rampant all along the line of the kinetoscope, even to the pay that writers of the scenarios draw. Although it is much more difficult to devise a good wordless play than one in which dialogue can be used, the authors receive for the most part only ten to twenty-five dollars per piece.—Matthew White, Jr., in Munsey's Magazine.

MOTION PICTURE OPERATORS TRICKED

At a meeting of the Electrical Moving Picture Operators' Union, an auxiliary of the Projecting Machine Operators' Union, Branch 35, affiliated with the A. F. of L. International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, held yesterday morning in a hall on Eighth Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, members of the Industrial Workers of the World were treated in a most unparliamentary and indecent manner.

The meeting was called as an "open meeting" for the discussion of organization matters, and was advertised as such in many of the Film Exchanges in this city. As a result, many I. W. W. moving picture operators and others attended the meeting.

Seeing this, Wm. D. Lang, representative of Branch 35, at a salary of $40 a week, and president of the auxiliary, in calling the meeting to order, appointed his own sergeants-at-arms, husky men both, and then stated that in view of the amount of business to be transacted, it would be advisable to go into executive session, excluding visitors, and that he would enterain a motion to that effect.

The motion was made and seconded by Lang's satellites, and duly carried. A few of the members protested against the outrageous action, and one of them, "Teddy" Greenberg, made a motion to reconsider their previous action, which was duly seconded. Chairman Lang refused to put this motion to a vote, and when Greenberg and others demanded to know "why," Lang threatened to adjourn the meeting if they persisted in acting as they did.

The motion was not put, and the visitors, who came prepared for an "open meeting," were excluded.

Outside, the visitors, incensed at this action, prepared to hold a meeting of their own, and they elected a chairman. Then, frightened at this, Lang sent a man out to state that within ten minutes all visitors would be allowed in the meeting.

This was not lived up to, as only applicants for membership were allowed in. In order to make a pretense at fairness, Lang then decided to give the floor to a committee consisting of S. Solomon and Wm. Walters, representing the I. W. W. Motion Picture Workers' Union.

Walters showed the difference between craft and industrial unionism, and how the men could expect nothing from the A. F. of L.; and then he said that on good authority it was proven that Lang had offered $50 to some one to steal the I. W. W. union's charter. Then some one interrupted Walters and said he should not be allowed to proceed, as he had insulted their body. As Walters' time was almost up the chairman did nothing except instruct the following speaker to deal with organization matters and "cut out abuse."

This Solomon did. He spoke, or rather started to speak, on strictly agitation matters, but the identical individual who had interrupted Walters and who had requested the chair to instruct the next speaker to deal with organization matters, now interrupted Solomon, and as a point of "personal privilege," requested the chair to ask the two speakers to retire, as he had a motion to make. This was done, and then a motion was passed refusing to allow the I. W. W. committee to be heard further.

It was pointed out by the I. W. W. men that this action was doubly an outrage, because Lang had appeared at an I. W. W. meeting and had been extended the unlimited privilege of the floor.

Yet all this was to have been expected, as the I. W. W. Motion Picture Workers' Union, since its organization February 14, has been a thorn in the side of the A. F. of L. organization, which has determined to crush the I. W. W. rival.

Since the I. W. W. union came into existence, the A. F. of L. organization has lowered its initiation fee from $5 to $2, offering inducements, and so thoroughly frightened was it that Samuel Gompers was procured to address the operators on March 20, at an open meeting in Beaver Hall, where sandwiches and beer added weight to Gompers' argument.

The situation is typical of A. F. of L. unionism. Lang's organization, Projecting Machine Operators, Branch 35, consisting of spotlight men, is a branch of the I. A. T. S. E., and the moving picture operators' union is merely an auxiliary of Branch 35, subservient to it. Now, the spotlight men make only between $8 and $12 a week, hence they are trying to secure, and may have secured, jobs as motion picture operators. As theirs is the "superior organization," theirs is the pick, while the motion operators cannot work as spotlight men, the spotlight men can work as operators. The whole thing is framed in the interest of the spotlight men, the operators being mere dues payers.

The auxiliary men expect to receive a charter, making them no longer subservient to Branch 35, and they expect to realize this at the I. A. T. S. E. convention, to be held July 15. But the I. W. W. men prove that this cannot be. A body of operators desired the same thing over in Brooklyn, and S. Solomon, who is organizer of the I. W. W. union, told those men then that they would fail, and they did; they were forced to join the A. F. of L. organization by becoming members of the auxiliary.

The same fate will befall the present operators, unless they "get wise" and join the I. W. W. The A. F. of L. regulations do not allow them to get a charter. A ruling of Samuel Gompers, under date of December 23, 1910, specifies:

"Now let me say first, that as you understand, that under the laws of the A. F. of L., it would not be a national or international union affiliated with the A. F. of L., which claims jurisdiction over the trade represented."

And as "Projecting Machine Operators," the branch of the I. A. T. S. E., covers the motion picture operators. These men can remain in the A. F. of L. only by consenting to serve as a cat's paw for the spotlight men and for the misleaders.

The I. W. W. men point out that these operators must sooner or later become members of the Motion Picture Workers' Industrial Union. They must organize industrially, embracing all workers in the theater business, whatever the kind of work they do, and not along craft lines, which, instead of unity, create discord and jurisdictional squabbles. All those desirous of joining the I. W. W. union can secure applications from S. Solomon, organizer, 128 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn.—N. Y. People.

The Chicago Moving Picture Theater managers are organizing a protective association, and have asked the writer to give publicity to the fact. In persuance of said request I append hereto copy of their letter to managers:

MOVING PICTURE THEATER OWNERS' PROTECTIVE LEAGUE

Chicago, Ill., April 21, 1911.

Dear Sir:—

At a meeting of theater owners, held April 19th, it was unanimously decided to invite all Chicago moving picture theater owners to join our Protective League, now being organized.

The object of such an organization is obvious.

You are hereby urged to be present at the meeting to be held Tuesday, April 25, 1911, at 1 p. m., at the Great Northern Hotel, corner Dearborn and Jackson.

Inquire of clerk at hotel desk and an usher will direct you to the meeting room.

It is to your interest to be present.

Respectfully,

C. A. ANDERSON,
W. S. ALTLAND,
C. J. MORITZ,
H. KELLY,
F. J. FLAHERTY,
J. A. ALCOCK,
WM. HASSETT, JR.,
W. W. ANDERSON,
C. CZEH,
J. HOPP,

Committee.

The Moving Picture Machine Operators' Union Local 145 has been absorbed by the new Local No. 2, I. A. T. S. E., of the United States and Canada, affiliated with the American and Chicago Federation of Labor.

The following action was taken by Edward Nockels and John Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Federation at one of their recent meetings:

Meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor, held Sunday, March 5, 1911, at Musicians' Hall, 164 East Washington Street.

REPORT OF EXECUTIVE BOARD

March 5, 1911.

The grievance of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees against one of their affiliated locals, the Moving Picture Machine Operators No. 145, in reference to this local refusing to comply with the constitutional requirements of the International, and which matter had been taken up by the grievance committee with both parties to the controversy present; and in which the grievance committee advised Local No. 145 that they comply with their international constitution, and upon failure to do so would make them ineligible to continue membership in this Federation; and in continuation of this controversy the matter was taken up at the executive board's last meeting on communication received from Brother Lee Hart, secretary-treasurer of the International Alliance of Stage Employees, notifying the Federation that the Moving Picture Machine Operators' Union No. 145 had refused to comply with the constitution of their International.

Secretary Hart also appeared in person before the board, and in compliance with the request contained in the communication, requesting of the board the unseating of the Moving Picture Machine Operators' Union Local No. 145, after due consideration the executive board decided, in compliance with the law of the American Federation of Labor and the Chicago Federation of Labor, that, inasmuch as the charter of Local No. 145 had been duly and legally revoked by their International, they were no longer eligible to affiliation with the Chicago Federation of Labor. In compliance with the constitution, the financial secretary was instructed to close their account on the books as being unseated from this Federation.

The agreement of the Marble Workers No. 21, referred to the executive board at the last meeting of the Federation, was, on motion carried, indorsed.

Following this action by the Chicago Federation of Labor and their previous suspension from the alliance the members deserted the defunct local and went to Lee M. Hart, general secretary and treasurer of the Alliance, and asked that their union be reorganized under the S. A. banner. The request was granted, and Local No. 2, I. A. T. S. E. M. P. O., was granted a charter.

The old 145 men have flocked to the standard and the local is prospering. Attached is Local No. 2's letter to Chicago theater managers explaining the situation:

TO THE MOVING PICTURE THEATER MANAGERS

Chicago, April 7, 1911.

Dear Sir:—

As general officers of the Moving Picture Machine Operators, member of the Chicago Theatrical Protective Union, Local No. 2, of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees of the United States and Canada, address you and present to you that your interests as investments are at this time and date being jeapordized by the baneful influences of expelled officers and members of former Local No. 145, in that no manager or moving picture machine operator were safe to conduct their theater so that good financial returns would ensue, as also supplied with competent operators who would respect the rights of a theater manager, his employer, rather than the bulldozing tactics that had been practiced by the officers of defunct Local No. 145, who were on date of January 15, 1911, expelled by the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees of the United States and Canada who, by every means, tried to have this bulldozing clique change that policy until on date of March 5, 1911, refused, and the Chicago Federation of Labor, being appraised of the stagnant condition existing, the president, John Fitzpatrick, did order Secretary Edward Nockels to erase from the roster of local union therewith that of the Moving Picture Machine Operators' Local Union No. 145, so that no remembrance may be had of so unsavory officials, and enclose copy of that day's proceedings as proof of honesty in guarding the business interests of all such theater managers, and supply the proper, competent, sober, reliable, honest and industrious moving picture machine operators that are members of the Chicago Theatrical Protective Union Local No. 2 of the real and original and only International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees of the United States and Canada.

We would solicit the favor of your employing the moving picture machine operators necessary to properly and safely handle such as the only union men affiliated with organized labor, and who are members of the above Local No. 2 thereby guarantee the very best operated performances, as also a guarantee to the patronizing public they are safe to visit theaters where a union operator of Local No. 2 is employed, and solicit your calling our office, telephone Harrison 4040, at all hours of the day, Sundays included, and will give you courteous treatment, as well as to properly give you the best of service.

Thanking you for all courtesies that may be extended, we are, very respectfully yours,

LEE M. HART,
Secretary-Business Manager, Local No. 2, I. A. T. S. E. of U. S. & C.
JOHN J. FANNING, President.

Mr. Otis of the Chicago Projecting Company tells us the mail order end of the moving picture industry is fast becoming a big factor in the field. His ads. appear regularly in this paper, as he is a firm believer of the old adage, "It pays to advertise." J. J. SULLIVAN.

LATEST FROM LONDON

(By Our English Correspondent)

The event of the week is undoubtedly the opening of the Scala Theatre by Mr. Chas. Urban, who was favored with the honored patronage of their Highnesses Princes Alexander of Teck and Prince Alexander of Teck. In honor of their Highnesses' visit on Tuesday evening last (April 11th) Mr. Urban devoted the entire receipts to the Middlesex Hospital, in aid of the Prince Francis of Teck Memorial Fund. The entertainment is given twice daily at 2.30 and 8 o'clock.

The present exhibition embraces some remarkable examples of the beautiful "Kinemacolor" scenes reproducing the world's events in the actual colors of nature.

Herr Paul Lincke's haunting "Castles in the Air," adapted from his operetta, "Frau Luna," is the piece de resistance. The play has been "cast" and mounted in very lavish fashion; while the maestro, who is still regarded as the greatest living composer of light opera, personally conducts the large and distinguished orchestra. Reports of the various attractions offered by Mr. Urban at the Scala will always be a special feature in my notes.

The following are a few of the topicals which will be represented in Kinemacolor: The Unveiling of the Queen Victoria Memorial, the Coronation Procession of Their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary; the investiture of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Delhi Durbar, the principal Horse, Dog, Flower and Botanic shows; the chief Race Meetings, Regattas, etc.; while from his operators in every part of the world Mr. Urban will be continually receiving pictorial gleanings in the widely diversified fields of contemporary history, travel, zoology, and many educational subjects at present untouched.

"These are the days of potted picture playlets," says Mr. Chas. Urban, "and in this department Kinemacolor is exceptionally strong." For months past two first-class companies of actors and actresses, expert in stagecraft and dramatic conception, have been enacting (at Hove, Sussex, and Nice, France, respectively) the scores of tragical and comical scenarios which Mr. Urban has acquired from many of our best-known dramatists. These films are all rigidly scrutinized by Mr. Urban himself, and no picture containing a single situation or incident that a good father or mother would refuse to put before a juvenile gathering in the most fastidious home, could by any chance pass his censorship.

The census, of course, has not escaped the ubiquitous producer; for I notice an amusing "skit" issued by Messrs. Cricks & Martin, of Gerrard St., W. Apropos, this trade center is to have yet another addition. The Edwin Manufacturing Co. have decided to open a new showroom here. They have fitted up a model theatre, where their latest releases may be viewed with comfort.

* * * * * * * * * *

The University Boat Race, rowed on April 1st, has been filmed by all the principal producers. The pictures are exciting and comprehensive, but none of them show the evolutions of the airmen who traversed the course during the contest. This was, indeed, a unique feature in the great function which afforded additional excitement to the thousands collected on the River bank to witness the battle of the blues.

* * * * * * * * * *

I hear Mr. J. F. Brockliss has just left us, bound for the States. We shall eagerly await reports in the "M. P. N." of his movements.

* * * * * * * * * *

Mr. Gaumont has just arrived in London. We may expect to hear of further developments regarding the great Gaumont patent, "Reconstructed Life," which will shortly be placed on the English market.

* * * * * * * * * *

The Western Import & Film Co. have recently taken offices in the center of the film trade area. As you may be aware, this company are exclusive agents for the American Film Manufacturing Co., of Chicago.

* * * * * * * * * *

The Western Import Co., who opened up here in January last, release on an average about 2,000 feet of film per week, one release of which is devoted to a Western and Cowboy subject.

* * * * * * * * * *

You will be interested to hear that negotiations are advanced on this side for the formation of a Cinematograph Trade Benevolent Association.

* * * * * * * * * *

Captain Scott, who is now engaged in an exciting race to the South Pole, has a cinematograph camera with him, and every incident of the greatest struggle in the history of the world, will be recorded for the benefit of the picture man and his patrons. The Gaumont Co. did have exclusive rights for these film, and a great demand is anticipated.

L. W. D.

A LETTER TO ONE OF THE EXCHANGES—IT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

Texas, March 25, 1911.

Pleas inform me if you cand furnish me with Lanton Slides for Church Work in cullords and un Collords Slides Standord Sizes..... ..... and all so filoms, for church work. Listen I am Going to comince Buisness on a small Bass and Buill up I want to Dysstablish a Sistom with you So I cand Exchange old for Knew Filoms, as for Slides I will ceep thim as I purchish thim, but for filoms I will Have To come Peeat with the date.

Please cote me prises on Slides of subject compairrative. if not Just the same as I mention Beloo. I want Christe and John the Baptist Seenray of coming to the world the Burth and Lifes of the too.

I would like a filom of the Air Rest of Christ in the Jording Gashomano on trial an the cruseefiing of him an Bearrill and ect. and Risin from the grave ect. I want this in one filoms. I all so would like to have Mosis comincing at the Buch ect to his deth or further. Noah and his flood in Slides colored and uncolored.

I want a strong and a impressive Seenray on Christanity. I will kneed some comict for cornsurt surch as the Bolde Bank Robree on Filams and Unke Tom Cabing a mooving train some Rushin Battle on See and Land ect. I want fillaims and Slides. Sind me word at once. Just how closte you cand jit to my request etc. and all so your turmes of cash and rint and exchange filoms. all slides I will ceep. To give you fax I am a Travling Precher over this State and I has purched a fine mooving Pictture Mashine at $1.25 dolles and I has no Light nor slides or fliams and I want Bejin my Misshion Just as son as you cand put me in Rederness for work.

Pleas informe me by return mail just what you has and what you cand Doo and what you will do.

Your truly

(The above is a literal translation of the original in our possession.—Ed. M. P. N.)

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E. E.

Alternating Current Synchronous Generators

In the last article there was a slight error made in the second column, third paragraph from the bottom, due to the proofreader not being familiar with electrical terms; the paragraph should read: "By revolving in a uniform field, the electromotive forces set up are proportional to the sine of the angle through which the coil has turned from the position in which it lay across the field."

Before we proceed to go further into the study of alternators or alternating current generators it will be of advantage to have a little elementary talk as to the difference between alternating and direct currents.

Direct current flows steadily in one direction through a circuit, just as water in a city water system flows regularly in one direction, and does not flow backward or reverse in the pipes. This is due to the pressure caused by pumps or by the reservoir situated on the hill. Just so with direct current; the pressure is steadily in the same direction, and forces the current through the circuit in that direction. It is true that the direct current may be made to flow in either direction through any conductor desired by merely reversing the connections of the conductor; but nevertheless the current flows steadily in one direction or the other until some change is made by an attendant.

But alternating current is very different from this, and does not flow steadily in one direction, but is actually flowing first in one direction through the entire circuit and then in the opposite direction. That is, the current flows through the whole circuit in one direction, then its value decreases until the current becomes zero, when it instantly begins to flow in the opposite direction, increasing in strength until some definite highest value is reached (the amount depending upon the circuit and the voltage), and then falling to zero only to begin flowing again in the original direction. It continues to go through these changes or reverses with great regularity, varying ordinarily in a fairly smooth curve and not by jumps.

As to why it is necessary to have these two different kinds of current and which is the better, it may be stated that direct current was studied and developed some years before alternating current was understood. All the early generators were for direct current, largely because arc lamps were the main use for current, and direct current was all that could be used on the early lamps. Then direct current motors were developed, and brought to a high state of efficiency before the alternating current was used at all commercially.

FIGURE 35

When incandescent lamps became more extensively used it was soon found that direct current could not be transmitted very far without using large wires or wasting a large proportion of the power. It was found by study and experiment that alternating current could be generated and used at higher voltages than was possible with direct current, and that this higher voltage so reduced the current required to do a given piece of work that the wires could be kept within reasonable limits without increasing the losses to an impossibly high point.

Alternators may be also classified into single phase and polyphase, according to whether their armature coils are so arranged that the currents generated in them all rise and fall at the same time or whether they have two, three or more circuits so arranged that the currents generated in one part are out of phase with those in another circuit.

Power Factor Conditions

A fact not always appreciated is that the demands upon a generator increase as the power factor is decreased. It must also be borne in mind that the power factor is determined solely by the load and not by the generator.

The existence of loads of low power factor involves necessity for particular care on the part of a purchaser in the selection of both generators and prime movers. It should be remembered that the size of a generator is determined by the current and voltage required, expressed in kilovoltamperes, while the size of the prime mover is determined by the energy required, expressed in kilowatts. Both the kilovoltampere capacity of the generator and the kilowatts of the load, with the power factor, should be known in order that the generator and the engine may have the proper relative capacities.

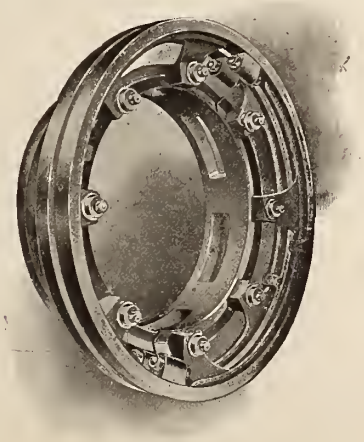

FIGURE 36

The kilowatt capacity is equal to the kilovoltampere capacity at 100 per cent. lower factor only, a condition that practically never exists with commercial loads.

At lower power factors the kilowatt capacity is less than the kilovoltampere capacity in the ratio of the power factor. It is necessary to know the average power factor of the load to be carried by the generator in order to insure its successful operation, since, as already stated, the operating requirements become much more severe as the power factor is reduced.

Recent developments in alternating current power practice require generators capable of operating under loads of low power factor.

The cut in Figure 35 shows a stationary armature of a Westinghouse Alternator; the reader will no doubt ask why the armature in an alternator is stationary while the magnetic field revolves, and in a direct current generator the magnetic field is stationary and the armature revolves.

The reason of this is that in direct current generators the voltage is very seldom more than 600 volts, which can be collected from the commutator by means of brushes, and as the difference of potential in the armature coils is low the amount of insulation required is not large.

Now in alternators the voltage generated in the armature may reach several thousands of volts, and as the amount of insulation required to insulate the armature coils is quite large and if the armature was of the revolving type the windings would have a tendency to work themselves loose. It has been found the better practice to make the armature stationary and thereby giving better facilities for insulating these high voltages.

The cut in Figure 36 shows the collector rings used for furnishing direct current to the field magnets; these rings are made of brass and are insulated from the shaft by means of mica and fibre.

If the reader will look at the Figure 34 in last week's News, he will observe that there are only two of these rings used. In all alternators the field magnets must be supplied with direct current furnished either from a storage battery or a small direct current generator either separately driven or directly connected to the shaft of the alternators. In some machines there is a small commutator used for rectifying the alternating currents into direct currents for exciting the field magnets.

(To Be Continued.)

Position Wanted

Mr. J. A. Brumley of 417 Emory Street, Harriman, Tenn., who is a first-class operator and electrician, seeks a position in the south. If there is any one who desires a first-class man here is their chance to secure one.

A Fakir—Look Out for Him

My attention has been called to some party or parties who are going among the operators and the different manufacturers claiming to be Wm. E. Smith of the "Moving Picture News." He is a fakir who is up to some swindling game, so beware of him when he calls. Ask him to show his credentials.

The editor of this department asks that he be turned over to the police, where he shall be proceeded against to the full extent of the law.

(We are in full accord with the above, written by our Wm. E. Smith. If the so-called fakir has not a Moving Picture News card call us up on 'phone, 4090 Chelsea.—Editor, M. P. N.)

Portland, Ore.—H. E. Brons will erect a new moving picture theater on Foster avenue.

Allison Hill, Pa.—J. M. Lenney, of Harrisburg, will erect a new moving picture theater at 7 South Thirteenth Street.

Hutchinson, Kan.—C. B. Yost has sold his interest in the Elite theater here to Wayne Martin.

Venica, Cal.—Davis Evans is preparing to erect a new theater at the corner of Horizon avenue and Ocean Front.

Chicago, Ill.—The Columbia moving picture theater at 2409 West North avenue, was badly damaged by fire.

Silver City, Ia.—L. H. Zanders has purchased from George A. Platt the Malvern theater outfit.

The Presto Emergency Clamp Company of Syracuse, New York, are putting on the market a device which will fill a long felt want by motion picture operators in the shape of an emergency carbon clamp, which is a quick action device to remedy short circuited or grounded arms or wires burning off. It is adapted for use on arc lamps of picture machines, and spotlights, and is so constructed to obtain the quickest possible action for putting a lamp into commission.

The device is applied directly to the carbon. It can be adjusted in less than one minute, making little or no delay at all. Two insulating bushings are provided with each pair of clamps which insulate carbon from holder to be used only in case of a short circuited or grounded arm.

The Presto Emergency Clamp consists of two bodies of solid construction hinged together. One end is adapted to grip the carbon, while the other end is adapted to grip the wire, including insulation.

If you ever had an accident to your lamp during a performance you will readily appreciate the value of a device of this kind, and can see how a great deal of worry and delay can be avoided by having a pair of these clamps on hand for emergency.

The Moving Picture Operators' Benevolent Association Ball

This ball was held last Friday evening, April 21st, at Arlington Hall, 19-23 St. Marks Place, New York City, and was a grand success from start to finish, both financial and otherwise, under the abled management of the arrangement committee, which was composed of El. DeCosta, chairman; Sam Kaplan, Jacob Cohen, James Daisie and James Girvan. This ball was conducted in such an orderly manner that those who attended were unable to find words to express their appreciation of it to the entertainment committee.

Among the prominent men in the motion picture field who were present were: Mr. Farrell, assistant sales manager of the Edison Company; Mr. Hodges, traveling agent of the Edison Company; Mr. Feorring, Mr. Thomas Kelly of the Life-o-Graph; Mr. Harry A. Mackie; Mr. J. A. LeRoy of the Acmegraph; Messrs. A. and C. Kessel of the Empire Film Exchange; Mr. F. B. Cannock, Mr. Bauman of the New York Motion Picture Company; Mr. Rosenbluh of the Greater New York Film Exchange; Mr. Goritz, Mr. Brandenburg.

The editor of this department wishes to compliment the following officers of the Moving Picture Operators' Benevolent Association upon the grand success of this ball: Robert Goldblat, president; El. DeCosta, vice-president; Robert Sanders, recording secretary; Jacob Cohen, financial secretary; Henry Weinberger, treasurer; Sol Spivok, seargent-at-arms; James Daisie, James Girvan and Jessie Levine.

CROWN MOVING PICTURE SUPPLIES CO.

The Crown M. P. Supplies Co., located at 138 Third Ave., New York City, has been in existence not quite a year, yet in that time they have become very popular with many exchanges and exhibitors alike, because of their fair, business methods; their slogan is Forward, and by honest dealings, energy, and strict attention to the necessities of their patrons, they have gone forward. The advance made by this firm in the short time of its business career, speaks for its integrity and reliability.

OLD HOUSE BURNED FOR M. P. FILMS

The historic Sicard House, one of the oldest in New Rochelle, was burned on the afternoon of April 21st by a motion picture concern (Thanhouser Co.) in the presence of 3,000 spectators. A child was "rescued," a bucket brigade strove to put out the flames, and a mournful family viewed the ruins.

The house was built late in the seventeenth century by the Sicard family, which was among the Huguenots that settled New Rochelle. When John H. Tremor, at one time dancing master in New York socially, retired and came to New Rochelle, he bought the Sicard place and moved the house to Mayflower avenue. It was occupied by his gardener until three months ago.

STOLEN

Powers No. 5—6120. Stolen from Reid Ave., corner of Fulton, Thursday, 27th of April. Liberal reward will be given for the recovery of this machine by AMERICAN FILM EXCHANGE, 630 Halsey St., Brooklyn.

EXTERIOR VIEW ECLAIR STUDIO, EPINAY SUR SEINE

From information to hand Eclair are arranging their American studios on the same lavish lines as are here illustrated. We are anxiously anticipating the opening in the near future.

INTERIOR VIEW ECLAIR STUDIO

THE NEW CHRONOPHONE AND THE SIMULTANEOUS RECORDING OF VIEW AND SOUND

The Gaumont Company begs to announce a new and epoch-making advance in the Chronophone, or talking picture art.

As is well-known, the Gaumont Chronophone was the first talking picture machine given the public, its birth dating from the year 1900. Since then it has been from time to time improved, and Mr. Gaumont has taken out numerous patents covering these improvements, but there has always been one thing lacking which has limited the field of the talking picture. This one thing was the impossibility of obtaining complicated subjects, particularly talking subjects, as distinguished from singing subjects, owing to the fact that in recording it was necessary first to make a record of the sounds and then to have the singers pose and repeat the words in unison with a phonograph playing the sound record previously made. This was a disadvantage and only simple singing and musical subjects could be made in good synchronism, and plays and sketches with numerous actors were practically excluded.

Many people, including Thos. A. Edison, have realized this difficulty, but none have yet solved the problem satisfactorily except Mr. Gaumont, who last year succeeded completely by a new patented system, of realizing this wonderful improvement. He has since been busy making subjects, and has lately launched the new Chronophone on the French market, where it is having wonderful success, the French papers being all full of praise for this extraordinary improvement.

By the new system it is possible to record both the sounds and the views at the same time so that the most complicated subjects may be taken in absolute synchronism.

As proprietors of the Chronophone rights for the United States of America, we take pleasure in announcing to those interested that we are making preparations to put this new invention on the American market and that we will make further announcements as soon as we have a sufficient number of the new subjects ready for issue.

Mr. George A. Magie

A more indefatigable and enthusiastic worker could not be found that Mr. Magie of the Solax Company. Having just returned from an extensive trip of ten days throughout the West in the interests of his company, he reports that matters are shaping all along the route among the exhibitors for a class of films of a high standard. Their military pictures are eagerly sought for. His trip was successful from every point of view.

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"
IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE
ANIMATED PICTURE BUSINESS,
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
28 Large Pages. Eight Shillings per annum.
Editor-Proprietor: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABBRI,
1a, Via Arcivescovado Turin (Italy).
"La Cinematografia Italiana" is the official organ of the Universal Exhibition of 1911 at Turin.

SNAPSHOTS AT A FIRE

THE START

A STREAM IS PUT ON

THE FLAMES WIN

But it's only a moving picture fire and no lives were lost although several hundred old railroad ties died a quick death for the benefit of the picture, a Thanhouser called "The Railroad Builder."

The Precision Camera Company and the Non-Infringing Camera

It would seem that after years of litigation the Non-Infringing Camera, which is to move the motion picture industry from the court and give it a chance for unimpeded progress has at last arrived. Mr. H. E. Aitken, president of the Western Film Exchange of Milwaukee, and largely interested in the moving picture industry of St. Louis, Chicago and New York, and who has just recently returned from Europe, where he is interested in several offices, in London and other cities of Europe, speaking for his associates, states as follows: "The Precision Camera Company has been organized under the state laws of Illinois, and the stock is closely held by a few men of ample means, all of whom have been for years closely connected with the moving picture industry, and who have practical experience in all of the various branches and with a full knowledge of its needs." We have taken up by purchase the Eames Patents, No. 546093, issued September 10, 1895, on application filed March 25, 1895. The camera and claims were presented to the well-known patent attorneys Kenyon & Kenyon, and the following are extracts from their written report: "This camera clearly does not infringe the Edison Camera Patent, issued 12037, as the same has been heretofore interpreted by the courts. It has a moving lens and a continuously and uniformly moving film, and is therefore outside the field of the Edison monopoly, just as the Wagner Camera was held to be outside the Edison field in the cases against Yankee Film Company, and against William Steiner et al. In my opinion it is also entirely clear that the camera does not infringe the Latham loop patent, 707934."

Mr. Aitken, on being questioned concerning the future movements of this company, replied as follows: "The experiments leading to the practical perfection of the camera have been made. The arrangements for the manufacture are virtually completed, and the actual production of negatives and positives have gone far enough to warrant an unqualified statement to the effect that the camera is a complete success and practically ready for the market. The company has been so busy up to the present time in using its entire efforts in the perfection of the camera and the arrangements for its manufacture that they have not formulated definite plans for the business needs of the proposition. Fully realizing that any statement on the camera subject will meet with doubt in the minds of the entire moving picture world, we have concentrated all our work on the camera. I again say, however, that my associates are all interested in the untrammelled growth of the moving picture business on account of their large interests in this line, and that the business plans when formulated will tend to the growth and advancement of the industry."

DR. COOK AT THE NORTH POLE

The Cook film of "THE TRUTH ABOUT THE POLE" will from now on, like the famous minute man's gun, "be heard (of) around the World." Mr. Wilbert Melville, who made the picture and who owns and controls it, has just completed arrangements with the Gaumont Company for its exploitation in Canada and Europe and is about to close a deal for its appearance in South America. The American rights are being looked after by the North Pole Picture Company, of Chicago, a concern organized by Mr. Melville for the purpose of placing the film on this market. The success of the picture has been very marked and Dr. Cook has been so much impressed by the artistic and business ability of its originator, Wilbert Melville, that he has placed Mr. Melville in charge of all of his affairs, including the publication and circulation of his book, "My Attainment of the Pole," and of all his personal booking and public appearances. Headquarters will be at the Marbridge Building, in New York City, where all applications for time should be sent.

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 29th

THE COSSACK DUKE

A powerful drama of Russian military life. A feature film of the highest type. Acting and Photography superb.

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, MAY 6th

THE LUCKY BANANA SELLER

A Bustling Comedy

A WOULD-BE SPORTSMAN

A Ludicrous Trick Comedy

ALL UP-TO-DATE INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

THE FLYING A COWBOY ORGANIZATION IN THE WEST

The radical action taken by the American Company in announcing that, commencing week of April 24th, they will release nothing but Western films was the result of a great deal of thought and consideration on the part of the officials of the American Film Manufacturing Company. The matter of organization particularly was considered from every viewpoint and, prior to their stock company leaving Chicago for the West, they had satisfied themselves they had assembled, in working order, the best and biggest company of Western motion picture actors and actresses that money and brains could obtain.

Mr. G. P. Hamilton, the well-known manager of production of the American Company, is in full and complete charge of the organization. His experience in connection with the technical and producing end of the business is such that no further assurance had ought to be necessary to the exhibitors and exchange men that their film will meet with approval.

Mr. Hamilton, in his executive capacity, is ably seconded by Mr. Frank Beal, the man who produced such films as "The Squaw and the Man," "Bertie's Bandit," "The Mission in the Desert," "The Sheriff's Sweetheart" and "In the Land of Cactus." Mr. Beal is considered to be, without a question of a doubt, the best and most versatile producer of Western pictures in America, if not in the world.

The leading man of their Western Company is Mr. Warren Kerrigan, an actor whose experience in leading roles in motion pictures covers a period of three years with some of the largest companies in the business. Mr. Kerrigan is more at home on the back of an outlaw broncho than in the society comedies in which he has made his reputation. His familiarity with the West, and that which is Western, coupled with his acknowledged superiority as a moving picture actor, together with his magnetic personality, augurs well for the success of the leading roles in their Western features.

Supporting Mr. Kerrigan is the balance of the Chicago Stock Company, together with fifteen cowboys and cowgirls. This supporting cast of Westerners was recruited in virtually every state in the ranching country; special efforts being made with a view to the obtaining of the most daring and intelligent Westerners. Fully seventy-five per cent of this aggregation have had experience before the motion picture camera and this experience, coupled with the drilling they have gone through under the able directions of Mr. Frank Beal, their Western producer, gives them an aggregation of Western moving picture actors second to none in America.

These results were not attained offhand. They required an enormous expenditure of money and unflinching persistence on the part of the individuals in charge of this move. "Flying A Cowboy Films" will be lauded as Western classics in film circles.

DER KINEMATOGRAPH, DUSSELDORF

The leading Organ for the Motion Picture Trade in Germany.

Special Supplement for Talking Machines, &c.

Published every Wednesday. Annual Subscription 11/- Post Free. Advertisements (4 columns to page); 2s. 6d. per inch. Situations Wanted, 1½d. per line.

Reduced Price for a Series of Insertions.

Publisher—Ed. LINTZ. Chief Editor—EMIL PERLMANN.

CAUTION

THE MOTIOGRAPH

INVESTIGATE BEFORE YOU BUY—NOT AFTER. Examine carefully construction—quality of material—workmanship—finish—and last—pictures. Pictures to continue perfect must be projected perfectly at all times by a Perfect Machine.

THERE IS NO LIMIT TO THE LIFE OF THE MOTIOGRAPH.

IF YOU COULD GO THROUGH OUR FACTORY and see how carefully each part of the MOTIOGRAPH is made you could no longer wonder at the fast growing popularity—among PARTICULAR USERS—of the MOTIOGRAPH.

THE MOTIOGRAPH IS ECONOMICAL—The big saving comes after you buy.

THE MOTIOGRAPH CONSTRUCTION—Is superior—You can prove it.

THE MOTIOGRAPH WORKMANSHIP—Is the best—Results prove it.

THE MOTIOGRAPH PICTURE—Is the best—The Pictures prove it.

ENTHUSIASTIC USERS in all parts of the World—Attest to the SUPERIOR QUALITY OF PICTURES AND WORKMANSHIP AND CONSTRUCTION.

MANUFACTURED AND JOBBED BY

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO., 564 W. Randolph St., CHICAGO

AGENTS IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

The CROWN
M. P. SUPPLIES

138 THIRD AVENUE, NEW YORK
Tel. 'Stuyv' 1492.

The "Crown" Arc Lamp. Approved N. Y. Board of Water, Gas & Electricity.

The "Crown Pink Label" Carbons. Are of the Best.

The "Crown Stickwell" Cement. For Non-Inflammable and Ordinary Film.

Prices will appeal to YOU. WRITE AND BE CONVINCED.

Remember: ANYTHING SUPPLIED FROM STREET TO SHEET.

HALLBERG
THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"

SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.

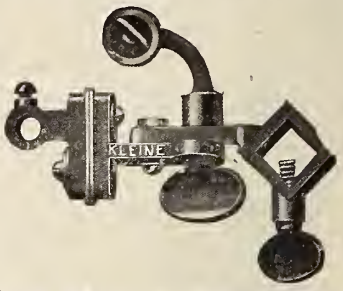
I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.

Free Catalogue No. N 1

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City.

THE KLEINE



Carbon Holder

APPROVED MARCH 1st, 1911
By the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity of New York City
Manufactured by

C. B. KLEINE
19 East 21st Street New York

FOR SALE

Two Flaming Arc Lamps, Direct current, 110 volts. Good as new, cost $65.00. $20.00 will take both of them.

ROSCOE C. CUNEO,
Star Theatre, Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!

Lubin Cineograph, 1906, only $25. Motion Picture Machines $35 Up. Powers Cameragraph No. 5 complete $75. Edison Model B. One Pin low, Stereopticon Jet and Model B. Gas Outfit, cost $67, only $35. Get Supplement 33; Great Bargain list.

MOTION PICTURE MACHINES WANTED
HARBACH & CO., 809 Filbert, Phila., Pa.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST
THEATRE CHAIR
Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving.
To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES
REPAIRED

by skilled mechanics at short notice and reasonable prices. Work guaranteed.

Supplies of All Kinds.

CHAS. E. DRESSLER,
388 2nd Ave., City, near 23rd St.
Take elevator.

FOR SALE OR LEASE

Good wide and deep Property 25x136, running through the block Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. For Pictures. Apply Picture Site, M. P. News.

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation

and slides for every purpose made to order

GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

Advertisers want results. When writing to them it is our due that you mention The Moving Picture News

MOVING PICTURE EXHIBITORS
PRESTO EMERGENCY CLAMP

A QUICK RELIEF for LAMP ACCIDENTS

A necessary adjunct to every outfit.
Avoids delays. Adjusted in one minute.
Write for Descriptive Circular.

PRESTO EMERGENCY CLAMP CO., Box 264, Syracuse, N. Y.

Pat. Applied For

Mason City, Ia.—Messrs. Arthur & Heffner are making arrangements to open a new vaudeville and moving picture theater here. It will be known as the Princess.

New York, N. Y.—The Kesler Lyric Theater Company will open a new theater at Fifth avenue and 116th street.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Samuel Schulz has been awarded the contract for a new moving picture theater at 753 South Third street for B. F. Miller.

Rhinelander, Wis.—Harvey Hanson is planning the erection of a new theater here.

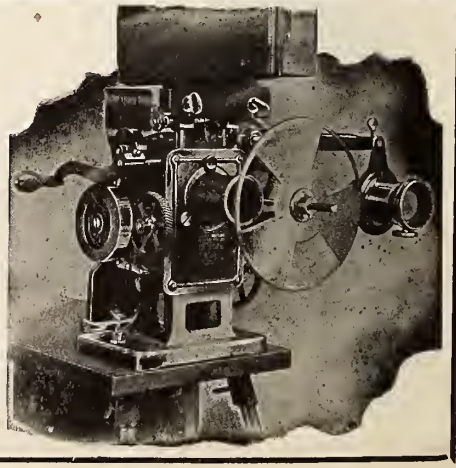
To Our Friends the Operators

To show our appreciation of the hearty approval that has been shown by the moving picture operators of the country on POWERS CAMERAGRAPH No. 6, we have prepared a souvenir in the form of a handsome watch fob done in blue and gold which we wish to present to all operators familiar with POWERS CAMERAGRAPH.

We have 2,500 of these ready for distribution now and others will be made up as called for. If you want to be taken care of from the first lot send in your name now, mentioning where you saw this advertisement.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York

For thirteen years the leading makers of moving picture machines.



MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

THE RAILROAD BUILDERS
Thanhouser Release, May 9

The construction of a new railroad, designed to bring prosperity to a section of the country, brings sorrow to one home. An aged invalid finds that his home must give way to progress, as the line is designed to cut through his homestead, which has been in his family for generations. He fights, of course, but the property is condemned and a legal battle ends in defeat.

The old man's grief arouses the sympathy of his daughter, who tries to succeed where he has failed. She visits the railroad president, and makes an appeal to him, but he curtly rebuffs her, and she returns home, thoroughly despondent.

A young farmer who has vainly sought to win her, sees a chance to win her gratitude and perhaps her love. He arouses the neighbors, and brings them in a body to the girl's home. There they promise their aid, and start off determined to drive the construction gang away from that territory. Their anger is more fully aroused after the girl has told them how she has been warned away when she told the workers to leave her property.

When the farmers arrive at the spot they find that the workmen have knocked off for the day. They wreck the work already done, and seeing a big pile of railroad ties, set them on fire.

The young engineer in charge of the work, arrives after the blaze is well under way, but speedily sees that he and his men cannot hope to cope with the flames. He rushes to a horse and decides to ride to a nearby town where there is a fire department, and summon the aid of men who can really aid him.

But the farmers seize him, bind him, and tell him that no help can reach him. Then they leave him in the woods.

The girl has seen this action. The conduct of her neighbors, a surprise to her, causes terror. She never contemplated arson. And then the young engineer is the only one of the invaders who had spoken pleasantly to her when she had ordered his party away.

She decides to save him, and to bring assistance. She mounts the horse, and gallops away, arriving in the town exhausted but still in time to bring the engines before the flames have swept everything away.

The engineer realizes that he owes everything to the girl. She sees that her father's objections to a public improvement were uncalled for, and induces him to withdraw his objections. And the fire that was lighted as a torch of vengeance becomes the beacon light of a happy love.

THE REGIMENTAL BALL
Thanhouser Release, May 12

A prosperous young man, with an independent fortune, receives an invitation to a regimental ball, and there loses his heart to the daughter of the Colonel. He dances with her and pays her most devoted attention. It is love at first sight on his part, and the girl is greatly pleased with his attentions.

The young man wants to see the girl often, and in his ignorance of the line of caste that exists in the army, decides to enlist so that he can be near the object of his affections. It never strikes him that by his act he has cut himself off the list of her acquaintances, for a Colonel's daughter moves in an entirely different sphere from that in which a raw recruit uneasily gravitates.

There is a lot of hard work in the army, and little time for anything else—that is, so far as the enlisted men are concerned. And the young man finds that life is hardly a bed of roses. His cup of sorrow is filled to the brim when he learns from one of the enlisted men that the Colonel's daughter and her cousin, a Lieutenant, are engaged.

While passing the Colonel's quarters one day, the young soldier hears him receive a report that the Lieutenant has been stricken with smallpox, and that his condition is grave. It is impossible to find a man who will volunteer to nurse him, and the Colonel does not like to give orders that may send another man to death.

The recruit hesitates for only a moment. Then he thinks of the girl. The man he believes she loves is dying; it is the manly thing to do what he can to save the life that belongs to her. He volunteers to nurse the patient, and brings him back to health again.

Then, his duty done, and his love hopeless, he decides to leave the army. He buys his discharge, and prepares to leave the post. First he writes a letter to the girl, telling her why he is going away, and that for love of her he had saved her sweetheart. This letter he gives to his former patient, now his friend, and asks him to deliver it after he has left the post.

The Lieutenant easily figures out what the note is about. He knows that the girl does not love him and that she does love his brave nurse. So to partially settle the debt of gratitude that he owes the other man, he delivers the note at once, giving a chance for explanations before the recruit can leave the post.

The Colonel's daughter acts with military promptitude. She does not propose to have her own life wrecked by any foolishness. She loves the young man who becomes a soldier for her sake, and is convinced that a sweetheart so unselfish would make a husband worth having. So his sorrows are swept away and his devoted love rewarded.

A CALIFORNIA LOVE STORY
American Release, May 1

The scene of this picture is laid in and around the historic mission of San Juan Capistrano, in lower California, and tells of the love of a simple and trustful Mexican girl.

Pequita, a beautiful Mexican girl, is greeted by the padre of the mission, given a morning blessing, and goes gaily on her way. Melton Porter, an artist, lately arrived at the mission, is seated at his easel, and glancing around, spies Pequita beneath a bower of roses. He is interested, and rising, approaches her. At first she feigns indignation, but he eventually engages her in conversation, and within a short time they become fast friends.

Later we find them before the mission, Pequita introducing her newly found friend to the padre. Next she leads him to her home that he may also meet her mother and brother.

Her infatuation for the artist grows rapidly, and Pequita trusted Porter, trusted him with her honor. She loved him, and, like other trustful girls, she soon realizes her error, and going to the artist, entreats with him to save her honor. This he refuses to do, and, leaving him in despair, goes to the padre, making a full confession of her guilt. He bids her go tell all to her mother, and Manuel the brother, always distrustful, follows, overhears the conversation, and swears revenge.

The poor girl, on the verge of distraction, determines to again entreat with Porter, goes to his home, and together they go for a walk by the sea. Here she makes a final appeal. Again he refuses to protect her and bids her to go. Manuel (who has been following and watching all the while) intercepts her, and again hears the story of her shame. Porter, apparently deeply moved by his dishonorable action, remains standing on the beach, when Manuel, who has been watching him from the cliff, takes aim and fires. Porter falls, badly wounded. Hearing the shot, Pequita and the padre hasten to the spot, the latter just in time to prevent Manuel, who has rushed to the scene, from completing his work of revenge. Manuel leads his sister away to their home and the padre has Porter taken to the mission.

Pequita is broken-hearted, and going to the padre for consolation, learns that the wounded man will live. With careful nursing, at the end of two weeks, Porter is convalescent, his heart has softened, and he decides to atone for his wrong doings. The padre unites them, gives them his blessing, and they go thoughtfully on their way, the padre looking tenderly after them, saying, "She loved not wisely but too well."

An uplifting story—one of every-day life—superbly enacted; one that cannot but appeal to the masses.

UNITED STATES CAVALRY DRILL
American Release, May 1

En route to California our western company stopped over at San Antonio, Tex., and secured the various drills and camp scenes of the army mobilized at that point, preparatory to advancing to the Mexican border.

The intricate formations so perfectly executed by our soldiers during the process of this drill silently portrays how well Uncle Sam is prepared to protect the interests of the nation.

CRAZY GULCH
American Release, May 4

"Bad Bill" Crawford is a character in Crazy Gulch, and cowpunchers from the IXL ranch are wont, whenever they are in town, to urge Bill to display his eccentricities.

On this occasion they are loafing in front of the "Red Dog" saloon when Bill rides his broncho boldly into the front door, shoots up the place and routs the bartender. The latter brings the sheriff to arrest Bill, who immediately begins shooting, whereupon the sheriff flees in terror.

The cowpunchers are hilarious, and suggest to Bill that they go to the San Juan Sanitarium, located a short distance from the town, and have some fun at the expense of the patients. Accordingly the boys mount their horses and are off at break-neck speed. Arriving at the sanitarium, all dismount, and Bill boldly enters the grounds.

Seated on a bench in front of the sanitarium are a number of the patients—an old maid, Mr. Prouty, afflicted with the gout, a haughty young woman, and a dude with a mania for manicuring his nails.

Bill comes boldly forward, and first tackles Mr. Prouty, who, when Bill begins to shoot at his feet, forgets his gout, drops his crutches and rapidly disappears. He next endeavors to make advances to the old maid, who walks indignantly away, Bill following. She leads him to the rear of the building, where he encounters a Chinaman at his laundry work. More fun for Bill. When the shooting begins the "chink" beats a hasty retreat. But Bill is destined to meet his Waterloo.

Returning to the bench, he finds Percy still busily engaged at his manicuring. When Bill begins to talk Percy strolls leisurely away, Bill follows him to the lawn, and drawing his six-shooter, demands that Percy dance. Before he can shoot, however, Percy seizes the gun, tosses it away, calmly removes his coat, and is ready to "clean" the bad man. Bill attacks him, and Percy with a few well placed blows, has him completely cowed. The cowpunchers who have been watching from the gateway come up, salute

Percy reverently, and assist Bill from the grounds, while Percy replaces bis coat, resumes his manicuring and strolls away.

A story full of humor and action; one that will touch the risibilities of every audience.

THE HOBO'S ROUNDUP

American Release, May 4

With the approach of spring the army of "bobos" or tramps infesting the larger cities during the winter, migrate to the rural districts, sleeping in the open and securing their meals as fortune favors them.

In this picture we find a party of hobos wending their way along a railroad track, when they come upon one of their kind building a fire but with nothing to eat, and tbe newly arrived trio immediately start on a foraging expedition to a nearby village.

Mrs. Brown's cook has just placed some pastry in the kitchen window to cool, when the trio, going to the front door, ask for food. They are refused, and the door impetuously slammed in their faces. Going around to the s.de street the pastry is discovered in tbe window. This is purloined without delay, and soon they are enjoying tbeir feast in the camp by the tracks.

In the meantime the cook has told of the theft, and with the approach of a posse of cowpunchers, the feast is disturbed, and the hobos make their getaway, with the cowpunchers in hot pursuit. A wild chase ensues, the hobos eventually escaping just as the cowpunchers dash up, by swinging onto the rear of a freigbt train leaving the town. The usual narrow getaway made by the "knight of the ties."

THE FAIR DENTIST

Imp Release, May 8

Claude Marlow, Eugene Wilson and Fred Strong are young clubmen, who welcome an adventure of any sort and pose as a trio of masbers whom women cannot resist. They find time hanging heavily on their hands when the monotony is relieved by Edith Morton, a ravishingly pretty dentist.

She is first noticed by Claude Marlow, who observes her enter her home in which her dental office is located. Marlow marks her for bis very own and repairs to his club, where he raves of her beauty to Wilson and Strong.

They are gazing out of the window when they see her passing. Not knowing she is the object of Marlow's glowing description, they follow unbeknown to each otber. Each of the trio immediately develops a painful attack of toothache as a pretence of being admitted to the parlors of the fair molar extractor. Each of the trio is quite sure he has made a discovery tbat bids fair to ripen into a flirtation as the handsome dentist does not appear to be indifferent to the attentions lavished upon her by her persistent unknown admirers.

Marlow arrives first and is ushered in by a wise maid, who works in conjunction with her mistress. He is in the tbroes of a jumping toothache apparently but is covertly congratulating himself that he will be admitted into the seclusion of the dental office. Awaiting his turn, he is shown in and brings all his mashing proclivities into play to no avail. The fair tooth wrangler is all business. Sbe gives a critical look at the alleged aching tooth and concludes she needs the money. Producing forceps, she extracts the tooth and sends him out of the room in pain, after receiving her fee, a generous one.

In turn Wilson and Strong appear in the waiting room, confident that tbe others are blissfully ignorant of any other intent than a visit to the dental office to be relieved of pain. Each one endeavors to flirt with the dentist, and each in turn is oiled down and made to disgorge the price of tooth extracting. They meet in the waiting room, each secretly chagrined and apprehensive of what will happen to the other fellow. Tbe dentist attends to that as she becomes conversant with the real object of tbe visits, and the fair attendant shares with ber in the discomfiture of the trio of mashers.

Just as the young rounders have had it brougbt home to tbem that they have been circumvented by the dentist and tbat they have all visited tbe office on the same mission, they have another surprise in store. The dentist comes into the reception room and gives tbem the laugh, and, opening the street door, ushers in a man whom she introduces as her husband.

The reality of the whole procedure dawns on the young lady-killers, who are shown up to each other and the dentist and her husband. Tbey are each minus a perfectly good tooth, have given up their good money, and find tbeir dream of a racy little flirtation shattered. Tbey commiserate each other and file out, sadder and with an added accumulation of knowledge.

FOR HER BROTHER'S SAKE

Imp Release, May 11

Hiram Flint, an unprincipled young gambler and horesman, loves Madge, the handsome young daughter of James Spotwood. She repulses him and he resolves to win her by fair means or foul.

He buys a mortgage on a small farm of Spotwood, and the story opens with the aged farmer receiving a letter from Flint notifying him that the interest on the mortgage is due. The father gives the interest money to his son, Owen, to pay Flint.

Owen is an unsophisticated young man and easily influenced. Urged by Flint to further his scheme, he is persuaded to gamble and loses the money at roulette. The scene in the gambling room is very realistic and the son staggers out, ruined, his parents beggared.

Owen goes home and is consoled by Madge. The parents are informed of the loss and are inconsolable.

James Spotwood is quite a horseman and has given to Owen a thoroughbred whose mettle has never been tested. The horse is the pride of the brother and sister. In grieving over the loss of the money Madge and Owen see a flaming advertisement of the county fair in which a large purse is offered in the running race. They conceive the idea of starting their horse in tbe race.

Owen engages a jockey and the racer is given a sunrise trial heat. Owen and Madge hold the watch on him and are delighted. Flint also has a horse entered and has timed the Spotwood entry in his trial unbeknown to Owen.

Flint resorts to a well-known trick of horsemcn and drugs the Spotwood rider on the eve of the race. The jockey comes to the brother and sister as they are admiring some of the entries at the fair and explains that he has been drugged by Flint. There is no time to be lost as the horses are about to be called to the post. Owen is too heavy to ride, but the sister is game and, despite the objections of the brother, prepares to ride the entry in the race. She appears, clad in jockey habiliments, is weighed in, and mounts to ride to the track. Her identity is not discovered.

Flint is jubilant, thinking some inexperienced rider has the mount. The horses approach the barrier, the field being a large one. The start is made with the Spotwood horsc well back and the race is an exciting one. The people in the grand stand are enthusiastic, bets are freely made. Flint is cool and confident; Owen apprehensive but hopeful. The horses flash past the stand at the half with Madge riding her mount like a veteran in the saddle. She is well up in front, urging her favorite with whip and spur. The horses are lost in a turn of the track, to appear for the final effort. They are in the stretch, neck and neck, the leader and the hope of Owen. With a prayer and a final tug at tbe reins, Madge prepares to ride for the finish. With all the strength of her frail arms, she lifts her mount, encouraging him now with voice, and they flash past the wire, winners by half a length.

In the paddock Madge dismounts and sinks into her brotber's arms. The money she has won will save Owen, tbe bonor of the family, and the home.

FOUR LIVES

Imp Release, May 8

A drama of incidents in the lives of a quartet of society men. They are seated at a card table, convivial companions, imbibing mildly and playing.

Nelson, the gayest man in the party, arises and announces that someone is waiting for him. A vision of a happy home appears. Nelsom comes in happy and is greeted affectionately by his wife. His baby is cooing in its crib and he kisses it. An ideal home and this vision disappears.

Howard, another man of the party, with lines of care on his face, is affected. He begins his story with, "Well old chaps, I once had a happy home, but——." A vision of a scene in his past life is unfolded. He returns home to his luxurious apartments, plainly intoxicated. He drinks and is implored by his wife to quit. He angrily resents her interference and ends a brutal scene by throttling ber and hurling the woman to the floor. The vision fades away.

Maxwell is urged to tell his story and he begins by saying, "I went on a journey once and when I returned——." His is the story of a faithless wife and her lover being surprised in the home of Maxwell in a compromising position. Maxwell punishes the man, and drives his wife out of his home, then sinks on a divan, broken-hearted, as tbe vision passes.

Baldwin is the last to tell his story at the request of his companions, sorrowfully saying, "Death robbed me of the only woman I ever loved——." The vision appears and he is seen at the bedside of a beautiful young woman, who dies—a pathetic scene. As the vision fades his companions silently leave, and Baldwin's aged mother enters the room as he sits in meditation, saying, "Son, it's time to retire." She leads him away as the lights are extinguished.

"A VILLAGE FLIRT"

Eclair Release, May 8th

Silas, a pretentious young "rube," delights in imposing upon the simplicity of the village girls! He is always seeking a chance to make his declarations of affection, whenever he finds one of the girls alone, and so great is his enjoyment derived from an uninterrupted flirtation that he seldom misses an opportunity! So engaging are his manners, and so honeyed the words that fall from his flattering lips that the girls are easily overcharmed by his attentions, and believe all the promises he makes them, without any intention of fulfilling. At last the girls discover that he is deceiving them, and they plot together a means by whicb they may make a fool of their flirtatious young neighbor.

Accordingly, tbey induce him to visit the farm, one day, which they know beforehand to be "wash-day!" The great wash-tub is placed in the shed, immediately beneath the bay-loft. The girls steal upstairs, unnoticed, and opening the trapdoor, which leads from the bay-loft into tbe shed below, they cover the opening witb hay, and then go down and help fill the wasbtub with warm water. When this is accomplisbed one of the girls who has not been let into the secret is induced to go up to the hayloft, by some pretext or other; tbe flirt sees a good opportunity to make love to the girl, alone up in tbe loft, so be climbs up from the outside by means of a ladder. He is so ardent in his demonstrations of love to the farmer's daughter that before he knows it, he has fallen through the trapdoor into the tub of tepid water below! In this ridiculous position he appears much less attractive to the girls than heretofore, and hearty is the laugh that goes round at his expense. Let us hope it taugbt him a lesson!

COL. E. D. BAKER, 1ST CALIFORNIA

Champion Release, May 8

James Tbornton loves and is beloved by the beautiful Marjory Caselton. He has for a rival the young Sheriff of the village, George Haskan, who, being rejected by tbe fair Marjory, is bitterly vindictive towards Thornton, and only awaits an opportunity to visit vengeance upon him.

The War of Secession is inflaming the young blood o'er the entire country and tbe patriotic fever is disrupting hearts and homes. But Jim Thornton, though loving the national flag with deep ardor, does not rush to defend its serenity, because he is tbe sole support of his aged and widowed mother.

Tom Devins, a friend of Jim's father, and a participant in the Mexican War, but now a Federal Major, brings the news to Jim of the pending strife, and expecting the lad to shoulder a musket, is indignant at his refusal. The sacrificing mother, however, tearful and trembling, gives up her Jim to the Northern cause.

Then does Sheriff Haskan renew his advances to Marjory, and by reason of his constant exploitation of Jim's slim chances of returning, the girl accepts him and exacts his promise to care for Jim's mother as well.

Jim is fighting bravely for Old Glory under the valiant ex-senator, Col. Baker, commanding the 1st California, when be learns the awful news by letter from bome. An awful frenzy soars through him—and forgetting all else, deserts his regiment. He is apprehended at home by Sheriff Haskan, who hurries him back to his Commandant. Disgrace and death confront him! But the heart-rending letter from his motber and his own previous heroic fighting soften his superiors and Jim is restored to his company.

Then follows th e terrible engagement at Balls Bluff wherein Col. Baker is struck down, and Jim is seen in the very forefront rescuing the colors. Rapid promotion is given him and a secret commission whereby he is granted leave with his men to tarry a week at home.

At this juncture Haskan has formulated his plans so that Marjory is at last to become his bride. The fatal "yes" is about to be pronounced when in bursts Jim and his men. Haskan skulks off discomfited and Jim reaps his reward by uniting in wedlock with his fair Marjory.

MAKING A MAN OF HIS SON

Champion Release, May 10

Convinced that his son was padding the payroll of the ranch hands, Col. Hoskins decides to do a very heroic tbing. As the boy returns from a ride with his sweetheart, the Colonel confronts him with the evidence of his peculations, and informs him that bé will have to take the consequences, if it should even take him to jail.

True to his word, his son is arrested and sentenced for five years in the penitentiary. The father takes this course, believing it to be the only means of reformation. After a few violent outbursts, in which he displays a healthy portion of his father's force of will, George accepts the situation and takes his medicine.

While in jail, his cellmate and he become fast friends. Before leaving the prison, he vows an eternal friendship for his new-found comrade, giving his word of honor that when the other shall have served his term to look him up and he will help him. At the expiration of his sentence the boy goes home to his father and requests a reinstatement to his old position, which plea his father unhesitatingly complies with.

Assuming charge of the payroll again he is at once pleased and surprised to find that the money carries no temptations for him now, and putting it aside he retires for the night. Attracted by his window being opened from the outside he is delighted to see his old cellmate enter, still in stripes. Having escaped jail, as he tells the boy, he has now come for the promised aid. The lad is taken aback, knowing that he is in no position to proffer assistance. The convict, discovering the money for the payroll, pleads and begs for some to help him get away. The Colonel's son is steadfast in his refusal, and turns the jailbird away, who, muttering curses, leaves by the window.

The next morning George is in ecstasies to find his father and the convict in friendly conversation. He then learns the truth. The Colonel had obtained the convict's release from the Governor, for the motive of testing his son's stability of character, and he was now proudly enjoying his success in making a man of his son.

THE ULTIMATE SACRIFICE
Rex Release, May 4

There are women in the world who want to be loved and who want to love in return and there are women who want to be loved to toy with their lovers, and in the final chapter cast them aside broken in heart and spirit—and coquette is their name.

There is one of them, a Duchess, in Paris, where there also are numbers of them. She casts her eyes on a young Marquis whose heart has as yet been untouched by the wiles of woman. By coy manoeuvres she succeeds in attracting his attention and attentions. What at first is only desire on his part ripens into true and intense love, and when she realizes her success, she spurns his advances, spurns his ardent wooing. The Marquis, angered out of his senses by her disdainful attitude, hrands her with a cross and leaves her. After he is gone, it dawns upon her that after all, she really loves him, realizes that she has cast away that which she has really desired. In remorse she decides to enter a convent and writes him of her intentions, asking him to forgive her for the cruelty she has inflicted upon him. When he receives the note his old love is reawkened, all the old desire returns. He goes to the convent to ask her to leave with him, but she tells him she has taken the life vows. That night, broken-hearted, he returns and forces his way into her cell to plead with her to break her vows and flee with him. He finds the wild wings stilled, the wild spirit flown—he finds that the grim grief has silenced the human heart of her.

SUSCEPTIBLE DAD
Solax Release, May 3

George Nelson, a wealthy writer, has a young daughter Marie, who looks with too kindly an eye upon his handsome young secretary, Harry Lee, but papa, who has other plans for the future of his daughter, orders Harry from the house. Marie, however, has no idea of giving in to Dad so easily, so she suggests to Harry that he impersonate a schoolgirl chum and, thus attired, call to see her.

So fair a lady does he make that immediately upon his arrival Dad falls a victim to the charms of his daughter's friend. After papa has demonstrated his affection in no uncertain way by giving her flowers, candy and all the other things dear to the heart of a young girl, the little ruse is exposed. While Dad is a hit chagrined at first, he soon sees the funny side of the situation and, amid merry-making, the old man gives his blessing.

On the same reel

THEIR FIRST BABY

John Harvey objects to his daughter's marriage with Jack Ray. The young couple plan an elopement. After they are married poverty overtakes them. Jack is out of work and is worried. Jack conceives the idea to write to her father telling him that a baby has been born to them and that he has been named after him. Father determines to see the young folks and sends them a telegram telling them to expect him. Jack, realizing the dilemma that he is in, goes in search of a baby, and his quest is rewarded. He sees a baby in a perambulator and promptly steals it. The maid discovers the theft and from information received from a messenger boy starts in pursuit of the thief. A mob gathers and they make a rush for Jack's house and discover the father and his daughter with the baby. They have the old man arrested for kidnapping and are on the way to the station when Jack decides to put matters right and tells the officer that he has arrested the wrong man. The father listens and, realizing the joke, is hugely amused and, slipping a few greenbacks into the ready palm of the policeman, the happy family take their way homeward.

THE LUCKY BANANA SELLER
Great Northern Release, May 6

This is a bustling comedy in which a banana seller purchases a lottery ticket and wins a big prize. He gives up business and apes the gentleman with most amusing results.

A WOULD-BE SPORTSMAN

A portly old fellow, desiring to go out shooting, arrays himself with great care in what he evidently considers to be the correct shooting costume, and, tended by a page in buttons, sallies forth for a day's sport. The good man is quite oblivious of the rude comments of passers-by. He brings down a number of birds with his gun, but turning his attention to the ground game, he empties a charge into a fine fat beast, which turns out to be a man. The sportsman has to satisfy a large claim for compensation. This so upsets him that, meeting two fishermen, he persuades one of them to give him a fishing rod in exchange for his gun, and proceeds to engage in the more peaceful pursuit of angling. After hooking a few dead cats, the unlucky angler tumbles into the water, and decides to have no more sport for that day.

IN SUNNY ITALY
Yankee Release, May 8

Neta, a pretty Italian lace vender, leaves home for her day's vending among the tourists who visit the pretty Winter resort.

A young American chap who is visiting the resort and under the watchful care of his parents, sees the pretty Italian miss and immediately loses his heart to her, which causes Santos, her donkey driver, to become crazed with jealousy. The American boy buys an extravagant quantity of her wares and makes himself so agreeable to her that she can't help but love the manly Yankee lad.

Santos remonstrates with her and demands that she ignore the American. She only laughs at him. Blinded with rage, he pushes the girl over a mighty cliff where she falls into the sea; the water not being deep enough to break her fall, she meets with a broken leg. She is found by some Italian fishermen who are dragging their fish nets through the surf and carried to her home.

Santos tries to throw the blame on the American, but the boy is soon vindicated in a novel manner, and he devotes his time paying attention to the suffering girl. The parents of the boy and girl have become reconciled to conditions existing between the young couple and all ends happily.

In this subject some of the most beautiful tropical scenery was utilized, giving in one scene a view of Italy's most beautiful watering place with its pretty villas, churches, etc., also embodying the beautiful public gardens with their wealth of foliage and pretty flowers, the rugged sea coast, hotels, etc. This subject for beauty is a crowning triumph for the Yankee Film Company in its now famous World Series.

Johnston, Pa.—George Panagotacos is planning the erection of a theater here.

Iowa City, Ia.—Fred Dever is pregaring to open a new moving picture theater at 14 South Dubuque street.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.

228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Telephone: 3790 Oxford

QUESTION AND PROTEST

Why are people so prejudiced against the moving picture theater? One would think, to hear the criticism on all sides, that it was the most unsafe place in New York. The press is as bad as the public, for let there be only the slightest accident in a moving picture theater and we see it in their largest type the next morning. Only the other week, on a Saturday night, a fire occurred in Brooklyn. Everyone knew a moving picture theater was burned and the writer could find out nothing but what had happened in that theater, how the film caught fire and the people were crushed getting out, etc., but no one could tell that it was not the theater at fault at all—but that a dry goods store next door had been the cause of all the trouble. No, the theater is the place that catches fire, nothing else possibly could, and these biased persons shout their opinions, doing more damage to the five-cent theater than the fire has done. Again, riding in a car one night we were stopped by the fire lines across a certain street on the East Side. Two arc lights appeared a few blocks away, denoting a moving picture theater. Almost everyone in that car had made up their minds that that was where the fire was and many were the remarks made about those "dreadful places"—"fire traps," etc. Presently the firemen allowed the car to proceed and, lo and behold! the fire was in a cellar a block and a half from the theater and on the opposite side of the street.

Statistics state that a man is safer riding in a railroad train than eating his dinner—and I guess he's just as safe in a New York moving picture theater as in a street car—he has to have a seat in a theater for his nickel, but he don't have to in a car.

In the last few months we have had two terrible explosions causing death and loss of property through the lax of the city laws. The fire in a town not many minutes' ride from this city was in a factory that made one wonder if there were any regulations governing factories at all. Now, there is the horror of last week, which has shocked the world. Would the city allow a theater with only 145 chairs (the number reported killed) to be run nine floors from the street, or with the scanty exit that factory was equipped with? Not on your life. So I say a person is a thousand times safer in a moving picture theater than in a factory. Yet one would not think so to read the papers and hear remarks of some folks. Why, there have been more lives lost in New York City in five months through the neglect of the city laws than in all the moving picture theaters in the United States in five years. Perhaps we are more careful—perhaps we obey the law because we know the awful consequences of panic and fire where a number of persons are gathered together. Anyway, our death roll is a whole lot smaller than the factory one.

Fire Chief Croker had a bit to say on the point months ago, see below:

Chief Croker Gave Warning of Workshop Perils

"But while we're talking about those districts I'd like to say that a district which ought to be given attention is that along Fifth Avenue where those fine workshops are. Fifth Avenue workshops are nothing but high-class sweatshops, and they're all the more dangerous because they are in fireproof buildings. The law doesn't require fireproof buildings to have fire escapes, and the people who have to work in these shops are in constant danger. These shops ought to have as much, if not more, protection as is thrown around the people who go to the theaters. We have five assistant foremen who inspect every theater in New York before and after every performance and there are 133 firemen on duty during performances.

"But people don't have to go to the theaters unless they want to, while the people in these workshops do have to go to them."—Fire Chief Croker, before the Legislative Investigating Committee, December 28, 1910.

This being a professional or trade publication, the public does not read it as much as one would wish and as the press generally are very much against the poor man's theater, they (the public) don't get to know where the blame often belongs.

M. P. OPERATOR.

NORDISK FILM TIDNING

The first trade paper in Scandinavia.
Best advertising medium in North Europe.
Subscription 6 shillings.
Sample copy free upon request.

Editor, A. SEABURY, Post Box 163, Stockholm, Sweden.

THE THANHOUSER WO-A-WEEK

RELEASED TUESDAY, MAY 9

The Railroad Builder

AN ENTIRE SECTION OF RAILROAD DEVASTATED BY FIRE

One Entire Mile of Trackage and Thousands of Railroad Ties Fed to the Flames

TO MAKE A MOVING PICTURE

NOT A "SMOKE POT" FIRE BUT THE REAL THING

Farmers hate young railroad builder and set afire road he constructs—Blaze discovered and call is sent for fire engines and apparatus from nearest town—Entire town fire department starts out—Fight fire while

SMOKE AND FLAME SHOOT A MILE HIGH

No. 209. Code Word, Build

RELEASED FRIDAY, MAY 12

An Army Story

The Regimental Ball

tells of the test a code of army ethics were put to and how splendidly they came through it. It is an unusual story of the comradeship of two young officers and of the bitter rivalry that succeeded it "all on account of a girl." An entire United States fort, with its barracks, battlements and garrison, give the picture "local color" of the truest sort and make it educational in its accuracy.

No. 210. Code word, Reg.

JUST OUT! THE NEW THANHOUSER PHOTOFRAME consisting of five original photos (11x14 inches) of the leading Thanhouser players, framed in solid oak, mission finished, complete with glass, GOES TO YOU FOR $2.50 with order. This is the prize outfit that tickled-to-death exhibitors the country over are calling THE GREATEST LOBBY DISPLAY BARGAIN EVER KNOWN. Address Manager's Dept.

THE THANHOUSER LOBBY PHOTOS consisting of five splendid individual photographs (11x14) of Thanhouser principals, sent postage prepaid for $1.00 with order. Address Manager's Dept.

THE THANHOUSER NEWS, "The Exhibitor's Guide," containing the Thanhouser Lobby-Decorator, sent FREE OF CHARGE to all who can show connection with the Moving Picture business. Address Manager's Dept.

THANHOUSER CO.

NEW ROCHELLE, NEW YORK

FILM CHARTS

COMMENTS ON THE RUNNING OF RELEASES OF THE WEEK, AS SEEN FROM THE FOURTEENTH STREET, UNIQUE, COMEDY AND SALES COMPANY STANDS

1 DRAMATIC TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
While There's Life There's Hope.....	IMP	MON., APR. 24	Garden	Advice	See title	Big	Morton's rescue of King.	1
An Elevator Romance	THANHOUSER	FRI., APR. 28	Up	Down	Learn to run an elevator	Hearty	Westerner volunteering to run car.	1
Cossack Duke.....	GT. NORTHERN	SAT., APR. 29	Love	Luck	Dukes are powerful men	Impressive	Duke vowing vengeance.	1
Across the Mexican Line	SOLAX	FRI., APR. 28	Mexicans	Americans	Wire-tapping is noble	Hearty	Juanita at the telegraph pole.	2
The Realization.....	REX	THURS., APR. 27	Discord	Happiness	Race suicide is wrong	Good	The Realization.	2
Locked Out.....	RELIANCE	SAT., APR. 29	Injustice	Remorse	Be nice to the help	Quiet	Ejection of the mothers.	2
Girl of Coral Reefs..	YANKEE	FRI., APR. 28	Babe	Woman	Go back to nature	Good	Girl hearing call of the sea.	2
Vengeance Hath Been Had.....	RELIANCE	WED., APR. 26	Holy	Handshake	Hypocrisy is horrible	Fine	Young minister scoring old one.	3
Heart s Under Oilskins	POWERS	SAT., APR. 29	Adoption	Rocks	Bachelors have big hearts	Good	Jim in meditation on rocks.	3
The Quartermaster..	AMBROSIO	WED. APR. 26	Persecution	Apology	Don't bully your inferior	Good	Pete's dive after his rival.	3
Little Lewis' Toy...	ITALA	THURS., APR. 27	Stagy	Natural	Blessed if we know	So-so	Little Lewis, maybe.	4
Melody of Fate.....	POWERS	TUES., APR. 25	Darkness	Light	The good die young	Quiet	Lotta regaining her sight.	4
His Wife.....	NESTOR	WED., APR. 26	Suitors	Explanations	Don't be oversuspicious	Good	The meeting of the husband and friend.	4

All the releases on this track were received favorably by the theater or Sales Company race-goers, with perhaps the Great Northern, Imp and Thanhouser entries getting the major honors. The rest of the entries ran neck and neck in favor, right down to the trio here listed as finishing last. None really finished last, as reception alone goes, hut some had small technical points in their favor that made 'em stand out over others in the professional picture man's eye. Some were pretty enough in plot hut too sad for anything, like "Melody of Fate" and "Locked Out." The cheerful drama is now the vogue. "Across the Mexican Line" was very timely and "The Quartermaster" was almost an educational through its fine ship views. Every drama this week carried a good love story and perhaps that is why they were so uniformly well received.

2 COMEDY TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Count of No Account	SOLAX	WED., APR. 26	Comedy	Chaos	A chef can look like a Count	Roars	The real Count's arrival	1
She Wanted a Man With Brains.....	CHAMPION	WED., APR 26	Foolish	Brainy	Some men with brains don't look it	Fine	Thornby introducing his wife to teacher	2
Naughty Miss Edith and Bill's Garden.	LUX	FRI., APR. 28	Pleasing	Pleasant	Two half reels make a whole	Good	None—but several interesting ones	3

The top entry is easily the hest comedy effort Solax has ever done to date. Some will class the Champ as a drama, hut it had enough real laughs to put it under the more exclusive comedy heading. The final reel will undoubtedly please hetter on the other side than here.

3 WESTERN TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Bud Nevins—Bad Man	AMERICAN	MON., APR. 24	Bud	Bud	A good actor's work stands out	Hearty	When Bud gets his	1
Red Man's Gratitude	BISON	FRI., APR. 28	Excitement	Duel	Give a poor Indian refuge	Good	Duel with the desperadoes	1
Boss of Lucky Ranch	AMERICAN	TUES., APR. 27	Tenderfooty	Westernish	Looks are deceiving.	Good	Tenderfoot showing who is boss	2
Why the Sheriff Resigned	YANKEE	MON., APR. 24	Tame	Strong	Never be a sheriff	Hearty	Trapper finding Sheriff with his wife	3
Indian's Ambition...	BISON	TUES., APR. 25	Sad	Still sad	A picture can be too sad	Tears	Red Eagle's refusal to drink toast	3

Doping out the positions on this track meant some tough thought, hut it's a cinch that any entry on it will make a hit at your show. All ahound in the life, snap and vigor that mean so much with M. P. audiences. Bud Nevin's badness and the cure for it was likely the most entertaining feature in this section. "Indian's Ambition" was a scenic gem, but almost a little sadder than the audiences like to have their pictures come nowadays.

4 EDUCATIONAL TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Herodias	ECLAIR	MON., APR. 24	Denunciation	Death	Don't dance	Quiet	Salome appalled at her deed	1
Poet of the People..	THANHOUSER	TUES., APR. 25	Poetic	Popular	Poetry pays — at times	Good	At the gallows	2
Scarlet Letter.....	IMP	THURS., APR. 27	Pathetic	Peaceful	Have no guilty secrets	Dignified	Trial	2
Gen. Meade's Fighting Days.....	CHAMPION	MON., APR. 24	Captured	Married	All's fair in love and war	Brisk	Virginia's appeal to the general	3
Day With An English Bargeman....	POWERS	TUES., APR. 25	Canal	Canal	A bargeman's life is a happy one	Good	None big, but all pleasant	4

The first entry has been in bigh favor in other parts of the globe and is sure to command attention here. The settings are simply marvelous. "Poet of the People" and "Scarlet Letter" are the masterpieces of their respective producers. "Meade's Fighting Days" shows a liheral expenditure of real money and will create excitement anywhere. "English Bargeman" made you feel like a sure-enougb tourist.

Copyrighted by Charles Reynolds, 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS SCENARIOS

Copyright by Alfred H. Saunders

SYNOPSIS OF "A PIPE DREAM."

By Miss B. C. Newmore.

A poor, shabby actor, gray about the temples, enters his cheap hallroom, weary after a day's fruitless search for an engagement. To cheer himself up he lights his pipe and smokes. As he smokes he sees a vision of what he hopes is his future.

The door opens and a manager enters and tells him that he wants him to create a part in a new play specially written to show his abilities. He lets the actor arrange the contract to suit himself, gives him a large cheque and departs. After the first performance, he has made such a success that the manager, actors, author and critics give him all the credit and force him to take the curtain calls alone. The manager and company carry his flowers to the carriage and watch him drive away. The next morning the corps of critics call to repeat their splendid eulogiums in the papers. A delegation of ladies calls to beg him to lecture before their society. He agrees to do so. After they all depart he is handed a letter telling him that "Louise," the girl of his dreams, wishes him to call, that her father will now withdraw his opposition to their marriage; that she knew he would win, and is anxiously awaiting him. He is driven to her house in a splendid carriage, welcomed by the father and Louise, and after a moment in the house takes her for a drive, her father escorting them to the carriage. He gives his lecture on what the drama ought to be and is almost mobbed at its close by the enthusiastic audience, one of whom is so fervent in her admiration that she arouses Louise's jealousy to such an extent that she weeps and leaves the hall alone. The actor is penitent for a second, but shrugs his shoulders and escorts the cause of the scene to her home. In his dressing room that night Louise's father calls and in a stormy interview tells him that he owes everything to Louise as she persuaded him (the father) to back an author and manager in a play written to fit his talents. He accuses the actor of being an ingrate, and he, to prove the contrary, and also his contrition, resigns from the company on the spot. Great consternation. The actor is adamant. The morning after he is sadly considering the future. The manager bursts into the room followed by the company who beg him to rescind his decision. His understudy humbly pleads that he is unworthy to step into his shoes. All is useless. He resolves to see the girl once more; tell her that he is going back to the one-night stands to win recognition on his own merits, beg her to wait for him, and depart. When he reaches her house she receives him coldly, but her lip quivers. He hurries through his tale and is going, when she softens and begs him to remain. The manager enters. mad with fear that he will be ruined, tells him that he will sue for $100,000 damages and put him in jail in default of bond. Actor refuses to return to the cast and says that he will stay and accept the consequences of his act. The father, unable to withstand his repentance and Louise's pleading, forgives him, tells him that he is a fool to throw away his future, and that he must stick to his part; that he and Louise forgive him. General reconciliation. Embraces. The manages does a dance of joy! The pipe goes out. He is back in the old room, cold and discouraged. The landlady enters and demands the rent, handing him a letter as she does so. He opens letter, unheeding her railing and reads that Chas. Frolanger wants him to call with reference to a part. He embraces the grubby old landlady.

CURTAIN.

A PIPE DREAM.

Scene. The poorly furnished hallroom of a resting actor.

Cast. The Actor. Scene I.

The actor, shabby and tired from making the round of the agents' offices, enters. He turns up the light, throws himself into a chair in a despondent way, and after a few seconds fishes through his pockets for a smoke. He fills and lights his pipe and smokes, as he does so an expression of rest and beatitude overspreads his countenance. The smoke mounts in great clouds, and as it does so, he sees a vision of the future (?).

Scene II. The Engagement.

A knock comes at the door. He opens and a short, stout man wearing a fur-collared overcoat, a silk hat, carrying a stick and looking intensely prosperous, enters. The man announces himself as a manager who has seen the actor play in some small town on the one-night route: He offers to engage the actor at a fine salary to create the leading part in a new play of intense interest, which he is about to produce, for the special purpose of introducing him to Broadway. He is extremely cordial, agrees to everything the actor says, takes a contract from his pocket and offers it to the actor, who in a lordly manner alters many of the provisions to suit his own ideas. The manager looks it over and doesn't object to a single alteration!!!! but signs it on the spot. He hands the actor a large cheque to bind the bargain and departs, the actor escorting him to the door. The actor is so convinced that the whole proceeding is but the result of his own merit that he does not express any joy at the arrival of luck. He tosses the cheque onto the table and leisurely puts on his hat and overcoat, takes up cheque and goes out.

The Premier. Scene III.

The curtain has just dropped on the first performance of the play, the manager is in raptures, the actors are not jealous!! but vie with each other in congratulating him. The author cordially admits that but for his magnificent performance the play would have been a failure!!!! The applause in the theatre has become so great that he has to answer the call and make a speech. He is cheered to the echo. He tries to get the author and manager to appear with him. They REFUSE!! and let him have all the glory. After he is exhausted they finally let him go. The manager and company escort him to his carriage (no auto); carry the floral tributes he has received, on the level, and place as many as the carriage will contain in the inside with him, the rest they place on the box with the driver. The carriage drives off.

The Next Morning. IIII.

A splendid apartment, table set for breakfast, a liveried lackey in attendance. The door opens. The actor enters, takes a seat and leisurely breakfasts. The attendant opens the papers and folds them so that he can see the notices of the opening at a glance. While he is reading them, the lackey ushers in the whole corps of critics who have called to personally assure him that they are more than pleased to tell him verbally what they said in the papers. They are very meek, obseqiously accept a cigar!! and are bowed out by the lackey. A delegation of ladies calls to urge him to accept an invitation to speak before the Colonial Society for Dramatic Study. He graciously deigns to inform them that he will appear! The ladies depart after an effusive leavetaking. The lackey brings a letter. He reads therein:

Dear Richard: You know how I have longed for your success. I think that my father will now listen to your plea. I love you as I have always loved you! I await your coming!

Louise.

He kisses the letter, puts it in his pocket, the lackey helps him on with his coat and silk hat, and he departs.

He Calls on Louise's Father. Scene V.

A splendidly appointed carriage with a footman on the box, drives up to the door of a fine mansion. The flunkey jumps down and opens the door, bowing with extreme deference as he does so. The actor descends, mounts to the steps of the house, and is met at the door by father-in-law to be. He is effusively welcomed. While the father is greeting him, a beautiful girl runs out, and throws herself into his arms. They enter the house, but come out again in a few minutes, the girl accompanies him, father-in-law bowing them to the carriage. They drive away.

The Dramatic Lecture. Scene VI.

A beautifully decorated rostrum. The actor in the most correct afternoon get-up is standing thereon surrounded by a crowd of the most charming women, all beautiful, and splendidly dressed. They finally retire and he speaks. The audience is enthralled by his eloquence, and almost mob him when he ceases to speak. Amongst the ladies who surround him is a very handsome brunette, who monopolizes him to the complete exclusion of Louise, who is also among his admirers. The brunette is so open in her admiration that Louise bursts into tears and in spite of his protests leaves the hall alone. He is sorrow stricken for a moment, but remembering that it was the success of his new play that caused her father to soften, he hardens his heart, shrugs his shoulders and offers to escort the brunette home. She accepts his offer, and they depart, through a lane of admiring ladies.

Some Things Explained. Scene VII.

The actor is in his dressing room making up for the evening's performance. He is downcast over his quarrel with Louise. He broods over his folly in letting her depart alone from the lecture. He is aroused by a knock at the door. He calls out for the person to enter. Enter Louise's father. He refuses the actor's hand, takes a chair and proceeds to tell him that he owes his success to Louise, who had persuaded him (her father)! to finance a manager and author who wanted to produce a play written to fit his talents. He tells him that he owes everything to her love, and that he is an ingrate! The actor, shocked, swears that he never meant to slight Louise, but that he was indiscreet. However, to prove the truth of his words, he will resign from the cast of the play that very night. The father leaves. The actor calls in the manager and tells him to announce through the press that he closes his engagement that night. General consternation, but he is determined.

The Morning After. Scene VIII.

The breakfast room again. A sad breakfast. The manager storms the room to beg him to rescind his resignation. The company calls and the actors beg him to think of their engagement, tell him that his conduct is unprofessional. His understudy humbly tells him that he would never have the nerve to follow him in a role that he had so splendidly made him own!!!! All is useless and they sadly depart. He broods over the matter and realizes that he has done a great wrong to the girl to whom he owes everything. He resolves to see her and tell her that he is going back to the one-night stands until he can win recognition by his own unaided efforts.

Reconciliation. The Pipe Goes Out. Scene IX.

He is ushered into the parlor of Louise's home, and she comes to meet him. She is cold, gives him the tips of her fingers, but, her lip quivers. He plunges into his tale, tells her that he will yet win her through his own unaided ability. Asks her to wait for him. She softens, embraces him, and begs him to stay. He is firm. The manager enters, mad with fear that his season is going to be ruined, swears that if he attempts to leave the play that he will sue him for one hundred thousand dollars damages, have him put under an immense bond, and if he doesn't furnish it, put him in jail. Louise's father enters. He tries to shake his determination. The manager telephones for his lawyers to put the machinery of the law in motion at once. The actor tells him that he won't run away but will take his medicine. He apologizes most humbly to Louise's father for his ingratitude. The father, unable to withstand his repentance and Louise's pleading, tells him he's a fool! to throw away the future, that he must stick to the show. That he and Louise forgive him. General reconciliation. Embraces. The manager dances for joy. The old room. The actor is looking at his pipe, it has gone out. He shivers, pulls his coat about him, laughs grimly, shivers, puts his hands in his pockets, etc. His landlady enters, demands the rent, and at the same time hands him a letter. He opens it and reads:

Dear Sir: Kindly call at this office, with reference to an engagement. Chas. Frolanger.

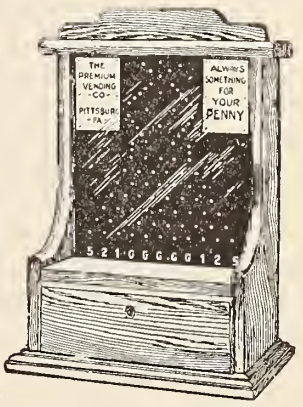
He embraces the landlady.

CURTAIN.

DAYLIGHT PICTURES AT CONEY ISLAND

As a notable example of the recent advances made in motion picture projection, the complete equipment recently installed for Mr. Henry Conners at the New Empire Theatre, Coney Island, by J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," stands pre-eminent. For this theater Mr. Hallberg furnished a No. 6 Powers Cameragraph with Double Dissolving Attachment, a 1911 Model Motiograph, together with a Special Hallberg Direct Current Economizer for use with both machines, delivering 40 amperes at the arc. A new Mirror Screen was also installed. This theater being at an amusement resort serving refreshments on the floor, has an entirely open front, allowing passers-by to see the pictures from the thoroughfare in broad daylight and in the evening with an illuminated interior. The brilliancy of the pictures, steady projection and splendid results all around are a revelation, and exhibitors will do well to pay a visit to the New Empire and see for themselves. Mr. Conners has spared no expense but is well satisfied with the result of his outlay.

WE WANT



ONE THOUSAND

Moving Picture Men

to operate PREMIUM pin machines and get rich, or if already so, to get more wealth. Why not you? PREMIUM pin machines have become an institution in every candy store. By placing a machine in your retailer's store you will monopolize his trade and squeeze out competition.

Mr. Flint of Mo. writes: "Kindly accept thanks for introducing me to a gold mine.

Ten machines will support you. Fifty machines operated will prove a mortgage lifter to you.

We make them out of Oak or Metal.

Percentage of winners arranged so that from every twenty dollars deposited in the machine twelve dollars will be your profit. If so advised will make it still more.

Write to-day for exclusive territory to

PREMIUM VENDING COMPANY

5636 WALNUT ST. PITTSBURG, PA.

A NEW FILM EXCHANGE

Western Film Exchange

H. E. AITKEN, General Manager

Temporary Offices: 51 E. 19th ST., NEW YORK

Telephone Gramercy 4557-8

Furnishing a Variety of 18 New Reels Per Week

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

	Feet
Feb. 15—The Demon	900
Feb. 22—Redeeming Angel
Mar. 1—Tweedledum, Aviator
Mar. 1—War of the Cossacks
Mar. 8—Prisoner of Caucasus (Dr.)	900
Mar. 15—A Coward (Dr.)
Mar. 15—Adventures of a Countryman in Town (Com.)	322
Mar. 22—Tweedledum's April Fool Joke (Com.)	900
Mar. 29—A Glimpse of Neapolitan Camorra.
Apr. 12—The Necklace Affair	950
Apr. 19—The Mute of Portici	950
May 3—Grenadier Roland	950

AMERICAN.

Mar. 16—Do You Know This Woman? (C.)
Mar. 20—The Field of Honor (Com.)	985
Mar. 23—The Harem Skirt (Com.)
Mar. 27—The Talisman (Dr.)	985
Mar. 30—Osteopathy (Com.)	277
Mar. 30—Two Girls (Dr.)	723
Apr. 3—Oh! You Suffragette (Com.)	460
Apr. 3—A Cure for Laziness (Com.)	540
Apr. 6—Reddy's Redemption (Dr.)	995
Apr. 10—Cupid's Pocketbook (Com.)	1000
Apr. 13—Jim Minds the Baby (Com.)	350
Apr. 13—The Bungalow Craze (Com.)	750
Apr. 17—Two Plucky Girls (Dr.)
Apr. 20—One Month to Live (Com.)
Apr. 24—Bud Nevins, Bad Man (W. Dr.)	990
Apr. 27—The Boss of Lucky Ranch (W. Dr.)

CHAMPION.

Feb. 8—At Double Trouble Ranch (Dr.)	950
Feb. 15—Her Three Proposals (Com.)	950
Feb. 22—The Old Man and Jim (Dr.)	950
Mar. 1—A Western Girl's Choice (Dr.)	950
Mar. 8—The Vindication of John	950
Mar. 15—The Girl and the Oath (Dr.)	950
Mar. 22—The Pay-Roll (Dr.)	950
Mar. 29—The Bachelor's Old Maid	950
Apr. 5—The Price He Paid	950
Apr. 12—Men of the West (Western)
Apr. 17—With Stonewall Jackson (Edu.)
Apr. 19—A Half Breed's Courage (Western)
Apr. 24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days (Edu.)
Apr. 26—She Wanted a Man with Brains (Dr.)	950
May 1—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days	950
May 3—Out of the Dark (W. Dr.)

ECLAIR

Feb. 27—Beware of the Bomb (Com.)	370
Mar. 6—King Phillip the Fair and the Templars	975
Mar. 13—An Unforeseen Introduction (C.)	470
Mar. 13—A Day of Storms (Com.)	430
Mar. 20—Cain (Dr.)	790
Mar. 20—The Rock Climbers (Scenic)	195
Mar. 27—Hurrah!Hurrah! Let Us Marry!.	975
Apr. 3—A Strike in the "Make Young" Business	534
Apr. 3—Mr. Nearsight's Marriage	426
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
May 8—A Village Flirt (Com.)	910
May 15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.)	910
May 22—A Mother's Distress	430
May 29—The Two Gardeners (Com.)	940

GREAT NORTHERN.

Jan. 28—Triumph of Intelligence	391
Jan. 28—Mr. Muggins Has His Sewing Done (Com.)
Feb. 4—The Criminal Chief's Capture
Feb. 11—Found Again (Dr.)
Feb. 18—The Life of a Muschik
Feb. 18—The False Alarm
Feb. 25—His Great Duty (Dr.)
Mar. 4—The Rival Servants (Dr.)
Mar. 11—The Son of the Executioner (Dr.)
Mar. 18—Between Love and Duty (Dr.)
Mar. 18—Life and People South of the Equator (Scenic)
Mar. 25—The Fakir's New Servant (Com.)
Mar. 25—Troubles of a Trip (Com.)
Apr. 1—A Victim of His Double (Dr.)
Apr. 8—A Confidence Trick
Apr. 15—Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr. 22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)
Apr. 29—The Cossack Duke (Dr.)	894

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Feb. 13—Her Darkest Hour (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 16—The Convert (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 20—Pictureland	1000
Feb. 23—Artful Kate (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 27—A Manly Man (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 2—Army Manoeuvres in Cuba (Edu.)	500
Mar. 2—The Dynamiters (Com.)	500
Mar. 6—Tracked (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 9—The Message in the Bottle (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 13—The Secret of the Palm (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 16—The Fishermaid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 20—In Old Madrid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 27—Sweet Memories (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr. 6—The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 10—A Good Cigar
Apr. 10—A Faithless Man
Apr. 13—The Storm
Apr. 20—The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr. 24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000
May 1—Second Sight (Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

Feb. 16—The Fatal Charm	900
Feb. 18—Who Will Eat the Turkey	900
Feb. 23—Little Souls	770
Feb. 25—Foolshead Present
Feb. 25—Havana Cigar
Mar. 2—Nini's Doll
Mar. 4—Cato and the Flag
Mar. 4—Foolshead More than Usual
Mar. 9—Nobility (Dr.)	900
Mar. 11—Foolshead Shooting (Com.)	900
Mar. 16—A Dog and Two Mistresses	986
Mar. 18—Foolshead in Soiree (Com.)
Mar. 18—Toto on the State (Com.)
Mar. 23—Waiting for the Midnight Express.	900
Mar. 25—Toto Wants to Get Thinner	500
Mar. 25—Queen of the Sea	500
Apr. 1—Foolshead Goes to See a Cockfight.
Apr. 8—Foolshead—Lady of Company
Apr. 15—The Fall of Troy
Apr. 22—Marriage Midst the Sausages (Com.)	500
Apr. 22—Foolshead — Wrangler for Love (Com.)	500
Apr. 27—Little Lewis Toy (Dr.)	950
Apr. 29—Foolshead Telegraph Boy	500
Apr. 29—The Bottle of Milk (Com.)	500
May 4—The Cry of the Native Country (Dr.)	950

LUX.

By Prieur.

Mar. 10—Jones' Remedy (Com.)	524
Mar. 17—Dogs Not Admitted (Com.)	534
Mar. 17—Bill Has Kleptomania (Com.)	380
Mar. 24—Cowboy Friendship (Dr.)	636
Mar. 24—Edith Has Some Sport (Com.)	322
Mar. 31—The Greed of Gain (Dr.)	652
Mar. 31—He Wanted a Hoop (Com.)	281
Apr. 7—Bill's Little Plan (Com.)	386
Apr. 7—A Desperado (Dr.)	586
Apr. 14—Bill and the Greasy Pole (Com.)	432
Apr. 14—They Did Not Budge (Com.)	501
Apr. 21—Dr. Grant's Wonderful Discovery (Dr.)	885
Apr. 28—Naughty Miss Edith (Com.)	472
Apr. 28—Bill's Garden (Com.)	419
May 5—Bill as a Toreador (Com.)	419
May 5—Fashion and Its Consequence (Com.)	426
May 12—The Postmistress (Dr.)	700
May 12—A Walk in Tunis	252
May 19—Bill at Work (Com.)	367
May 19—All Through a Rat (Com.)	475

NESTOR FILM CO.

Jan. 11—Sleepy Hollow (Dr.)	950
Jan. 18—Their New Minister (Dr.)
Jan. 25—The Man in 23
Jan. 25—New Minister
Feb. 1—The Bridal Trail
Feb. 8—The Transgressor
Feb. 15—The Light Beyond
Feb. 22—His Father's House (Dr.)
Mar. 1—The Professor's Romance (C.-D.)	990
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks (Dr.)
Mar. 15—Was It Worth While? (Dr.)
Mar. 22—Could You Blame Him? (Com.)
Mar. 29—The Truth (Dr.)
Apr. 5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr. 12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr. 19—The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr. 26—His Wife (Dr.)
May 3—The Other Man (Dr.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Feb. 14—The Deputy's Honor	900
Feb. 17—The Warrior's Squaw	900
Feb. 21—The Way of a Red Man (Dr.)
Feb. 24—The Fate of Joe Dorr (Dr.)
Feb. 28—A Warrior's Faith
Mar. 3—Owanee's Great Love
Mar. 7—Dick Farrell's Prize
Mar. 10—Her Prisoner (Dr.)
Mar. 14—Starlight the Squaw (Dr.)
Mar. 17—Sacrifice of Silver Cloud (Dr.)
Mar. 21—Was He Justified? (Dr.)	900
Mar. 24—The Cowboy's Waif (Dr.)	900
Mar. 28—An Indian Nemesis (Dr.)
Mar. 31—The Red Avenger (Dr.)
Apr. 4—At Bar U Ranch (Dr.)
Apr. 7—Avery's Dream (Com.)
Apr. 11—An Indian's Mistake	950
Apr. 14—A Man of Honor	950
Apr. 18—Return of Company D (Dr.)	950
Apr. 21—A Cowboy for a Day (Com.)	950
Apr. 25—An Indian's Ambition	950
Apr. 28—A Red Man's Gratitude	950

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Mar. 28—The Pantaloon Skirt (Com.)
Mar. 28—A Western Ruse (W. Dr.)
Apr. 1—Cupid's Monkey Wrench (Com.)
Apr. 4—Oh! You Mother-in-Law (Com.)
Apr. 4—Touring Athens (Scenic)
Apr. 8—A Western Ruse
Apr. 11—How the Doctor Made Good
Apr. 11—Reclamation
Apr. 15—At the Window
Apr. 18—Copper Wit (Com.)
Apr. 18—The Wine Harvest
Apr. 22—The Last Rose
Apr. 25—A Day with an English Bargeman (Com.)
Apr. 25—Melody of Fate (Dr.)
Apr. 29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.)
May 2—The Crisis (Dr.)
May 2—The Joys of Persecution (Com.)
May 6—The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)

RELIANCE

Mar. 29—If It Ever Were Thus (Dr.)	900
Apr. 1—Till Death Do Part
Apr. 5—Rickshaw the Detective
Apr. 5—Summer Skies
Apr. 8—The Gloved Hand (Dr.)
Apr. 12—Thirty Minutes (Dr.)
Apr. 15—Her Mother's Love	950
Apr. 19—A Tale of Ebon Tints (Com.)	950
Apr. 22—In the Tepee's Light (Dr.)	950
Apr. 26—Vengeance Hath Been Had (Dr.)	950
Apr. 29—Locked Out (Dr.)	950
May 3—Such is the Kingdom	950

REX

Mar. 2—"By the Light of the Moon" (Com.)	950
Mar. 9—"The Fall of a Knight" (Com.)	958
Mar. 16—Where the Shamrock Grows (Dr.)	950
Mar. 23—Five Hours
Mar. 30—As Ye Sow
Apr. 5—"The Heiress" (Com.)	975
Apr. 13—"The Little Major" (Dr.)	960
Apr. 20—A Daughter of the Revolution (Dr.)
Apr. 27—The Realization (Dr.)

SOLAX COMPANY

Apr. 7—The Rose of the Circus (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 12—Tramp Strategy (Com.)
Apr. 12—The Scheme that Failed (Com.)
Apr. 14—The Little Flower Girl (Dr.)
Apr. 19—The Old Excuse (Com.)
Apr. 21—The Voice of His Conscience (Dr.)
Apr. 26—The Count of No Account (Com.)
Apr. 28—Across the Mexican Line (Military)
May 3—Sensible Dad (Com.)
May 3—Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May 5—The Somnambulist (Dr.)

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Feb. 21—For Washington
Feb. 24—A Newsboy Hero
Feb. 28—The Litle Mother (Dr.)
Mar. 3—Stage Struck (Dr.)
Mar. 7—The Mummy (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 10—The Spirit Hand (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 14—His Younger Brother
Mar. 17—Robert Emmett
Mar. 21—Divorce (Dr.)
Mar. 21—Waiting at the Church (Com.)
Mar. 24—The Tramp (Dr.)
Mar. 28—The Imposter	1000
Mar. 31—Silas Marner	1000
Apr. 4—Charity of the Poor (Dr.)
Apr. 7—Vindicated
Apr. 11—Velvet and Rags
Apr. 14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.)
Apr. 18—Cally's Comet (Com.)	1000
Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr. 25—Poet of the People (His.)
Apr. 28—An Elevator Romance (Com.)
May 2—The Pillars of Society (Dr.)
May 5—The Sinner (Dr.)

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

(Com.)
Mar. 6—Angel of the Bowery (Dr.)
Mar. 10—The Senorita's Sacrifice (Dr.)
Mar. 13—The Test of Love (Dr.)
Mar. 17—His Double Treasure (Dr.)
Mar. 20—The Open Gate (Dr.)
Mar. 24—Love's Ebb and Flood (Dr.)
Mar. 27—Tom and Jerry (Dr.)
Mar. 31—Her Mother's Fiance (Dr.)
Apr. 4—Secret of the Opal Mine (Dr.)
Apr. 4—The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr. 10—An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.)
Apr. 14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.)
Apr. 17—A Close Call (Dr.)
Apr. 21—The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr. 24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr. 28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May 1—A Kentucky Girl (Dr.)
May 5—Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.)

LICENSEES OF PATENTS CO.

BIOGRAPH

	Feet
Mar. 9—Conscience (Dr.)	995
Mar. 13—Comrades (Dr.)	998
Mar. 16—Was He a Coward? (Dr.)	994
Mar. 20—Teaching Dad to Like Her (Com.)	995
Mar. 23—The Londale Operator (Dr.)	998
Mar. 27—Priscilla's April Fool (Com.)	686
Mar. 27—Cured (Com.)	308
Mar. 30—The Spanish Gypsy (Dr.)	996
Apr. 3—Priscilla and the Umbrella (Com.)	997
Apr. 6—The Broken Cross (Dr.)	996
Apr. 10—The Chief's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Paradise Lost (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 17—Madam Rex (Dr.)	996
Apr. 20—A Knight of the Road (Dr.)	996
Apr. 24—His Mother's Scarf (Dr.)	994
Apr. 27—How She Triumphed (Com.)	998

EDISON

Mar. 14—All for the Love of a Lady (Dr.)	990
Mar. 15—The Department Store (Com.)	625
Mar. 15—Baby's Fall (Com.)	375
Mar. 17—The Wedding Bell (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 21—The Test of Love (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 22—Who Gets the Order (Com.)	995
Mar. 24—The Disreputable Mr. Raegen (D.)	1000
Mar. 28—Jim the Mule Boy (Dr.)	975
Mar. 29—April Fool (Com.)	985
Mar. 31—Between Two Fires	1000
Apr. 4—Monsieur (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 5—The Resurrection of John	1000
Apr. 7—Nell's Last Deal (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 11—The Strike at the Mines (Dr.)	995
Apr. 12—Silver Threads Among the Gold (Dr.)	500
Apr. 12—Card of Introduction (Com.)	500
Apr. 14—A Buried Past (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—The Haunted Sentinel Tower	1000
Apr. 21—Turned to the Wall	1000
Apr. 25—The Twin Towers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 26—The Two Heroes (Com.)	975
Apr. 28—The Child and the Tramp (Com.)	1000
May 1—The Panama Canal in 1911	990
May 3—Josh and Cindy's Wedding Trip	1000
May 5—Aida (Dr.)	1000
May 9—Edna's Imprisonment (Com.)	975
May 10—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)	1000
May 12—The Quarrel on the Cliff (Dr.)	1000
May 16—In the Baggage Coach Ahead (Dr.)	1000

ESSANAY FILM CO.

Feb. 21—Just as the Clock Struck Nine (C.)	412
Feb. 25—The Outlaw and the Child (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 28—Taming a Tyrant (Com.)	1000
Mar. 4—On the Desert's Edge (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 7—The Little Drudge (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 11—The Romance of "Bar O"	1000
Mar. 14—Oh, You Teacher! (Com.)	1000
Mar. 18—The Faithful Indian (Dr.)	975
Mar. 21—Hans' Millions (Com.)	1000
Mar. 25—A Thwarted Vengeance (W. Dr.)	1000
Mar. 28—Getting His Own Back (Com.)	600
Mar. 28—Lost: A Baby (Com.)	400
Apr. 1—Across the Plains (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 4—Caught with the Goods (Com.)	1,000
Apr. 8—The Sheriff's Chum (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 11—An Orphan's Flight (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—The Bad Man's First Prayer (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—What Happened to Auntic (Com.)	800
Apr. 18—Catching the Deep Sea Turtle (Edu.)	200
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Two Mothers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 29—What a Woman Can Do (Dr.)	950

GAUMONT

G. Kleine

Mar. 4—The Tramp's Find	680
Mar. 4—Forbidden Cigarettes	335
Mar. 7—The Barber's Daughter	505
Mar. 7—The Ambitious Bootblack	450
Mar. 11—His First Sweetheart	560
Mar. 11—The Beautiful Gorges of Tarn	415
Mar. 14—The Sword and the Cross	840
Mar. 14—Breakers in the Clouds	155
Mar. 18—The Privateer's Treasure	860
Mar. 18—Rocky Caves of France	110
Mar. 21—The Lieutenant's Wild Ride	1002
Mar. 25—Cupid's Conquest	595
Mar. 25—The People of the Arabian Desert	405
Mar. 28—His Image in the Water	575
Mar. 28—Family Troubles	430
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 1—The Secret of the Forest (Dr.)	625
Apr. 1—Tribulations of Jiggers	375
Apr. 4—The Letter with the Red Seal	865
Apr. 4—The City of Amalfi in Italy	135
Apr. 8—The Atonement of Thais	865
Apr. 8—Italian Coast Scenes	135
Apr. 11—The Court Martial (Dr.)	725
Apr. 11—Picturesque Waterfalls in Northern Spain	275
Apr. 15—The Oppressor (Dr.)	640
Apr. 15—Jimmy the Fox (Com.)	380
Apr. 18—Lost Years	630
Apr. 18—Brest, a Fortified Harbor of France	370
Apr. 22—The Erring Son (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Romance of a Valet	510
Apr. 25—Old Folks	490
Apr. 29—A Priestess of Carthage	1060
May 2—The Young King of Rome	440
May 2—Tunis, Africa, the City of White	560
May 6—The Crusade of the Templars	1000

KALEM CO.

Feb. 22—The Open Road (Dr.)	995
Feb. 24—Priscilla and the Pequot (Dr.)	925
Mar. 1—Sailor Jack's Reformation (Dr.)	1005
Mar. 3—Mexican Filibusters (Dr.)	1005
Mar. 8—The Irish Honeymoon (Dr.)	950
Mar. 10—The Mission Carrier (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 15—The Driver (Educ.)	565
Mar. 15—The Hunter's Dream (Com.)	365
Mar. 17—A War Time Escape (Dr.)	980
Mar. 22—A Saw Mill Hero (Dr.)	960
Mar. 24—Rescued from the Desert (Dr.)	990
Mar. 29—The Lass Who Couldn't Forget (Dr.)	960
Mar. 31—The Hero Trackwalker (Dr.)	950
Apr. 5—By a Woman's Wit (Dr.)	995
Apr. 7—Big-hearted Jim (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 12—In Old Florida (Dr.)	965
Apr. 14—Slim Jim's Last Chance (Dr.)	970
Apr. 19—The Phoney Prince (Com.)	990
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 26—A Night and a Day (Com.)	995
Apr. 28—Slabsides (Dr.)	1005

LUBIN

Mar. 2—Father's Birthday Ring (Com.)	600
Mar. 2—Woman's Curiosity (Com.)	400
Mar. 6—Vanity and Its Cure (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 9—Her Friend, the Burglar (Com.)	1000
Mar. 13—The Actress and the Singer (Com.-Dr.)	1000
Mar. 16—Mandy's Social Whirl (Com.)	1000
Mar. 20—Her Artistic Temperament (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 23—The Spinster's Legacy (Com.)	600
Mar. 23—Bridget and the Egg (Com.)	400
Mar. 27—Her Child's Honor (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—When Women Strike (Com.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Wife's Awakening (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 6—His Best Girl After All (Dr.)	600
Apr. 6—A Visit to Nassau, Bahama (Travel)	400
Apr. 10—Opportunity and the Man (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Their Mothers-in-Law (Com.)	1000
Apr. 17—The Two Fathers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 20—Helping Him Out (Com.)	1000
Apr. 24—The Hoyden (Com.)	1000
Apr. 27—The Sheriff and the Man (Dr.)	1000

G. MELIES.

Mar. 23—Sir Percy and the Punchers	1000
Mar. 30—The Warrant for Red Rube	1000
Mar. 24—On the Border Line	600
Mar. 24—Great War Game	950
Apr. 6—Her Faithful Heart	1000
Apr. 13—Jack Mason's Last Deal	1000
Apr. 20—An Unwilling Cowboy
Apr. 27—The Reformation of Jack Robin	1000
May 4—Mary's Strategem	1000
May 11—The Spring Round-Up	1000
May 18—The Redemption of Rawhide (Com.)	980
May 25—The Immortal Alamo	1000

PATHE FRERES

Mar. 6—After the Boxing Bout	375
Mar. 8—Red Deer's Devotion	1000
Mar. 10—Undying Love	740
Mar. 11—A Lonely Little Girl	1000
Mar. 13—Max's Feet Are Pinched	489
Mar. 13—Whiffles' Courtship	500
Mar. 15—Oh, You Kids	690
Mar. 15—The Paoli Brothers	295
Mar. 17—The Inventor's Rights	784
Mar. 17—Pepper Industry in the Malay Peninsula	190
Mar. 18—The Sheriff's Daughter	1000
Mar. 20—Max is Stuck Up (Com.)	460
Mar. 20—How Tommt's Wit Worked (Com.)	462
Mar. 22—The Cattle Rustlers	1000
Mar. 24—Lieutenantsliebe	1000
Mar. 25—The Kid from Arizona	960
Mar. 31—Athaliah	1000
Mar. 27—Love in Madrid	443
Mar. 27—The Trickster Tricked (Com.)	446
Mar. 29—A Fatal Resemblance (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—Their Mother (Dr.)	872
Apr. 1—Fred Sato and His Dog	128
Apr. 3—The Apple of His Eye	1000
Apr. 5—The Trading Stamp Mania (Com.)	990
Apr. 7—The Three Whiffles	655
Apr. 7—Native Industries in Cochin-China	341
Apr. 8—The White Squaw	1000
Apr. 10—The Justice of Claudius	260
Apr. 12—A Cowboy's Adventure (Western)	364
Apr. 14—Wiffles' Home Troubles	440
Apr. 14—How Edam Cheese Is Made	480
Apr. 15—Burglar's Fee (Com.)	1,000
Apr. 17—Robert the Silent (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 19—A New Life (Dr.)	990
Apr. 21—Boil Your Water
Apr. 21—Mary Long and Sammy Short (C.)	360
Apr. 22—The Chief's Talisman (Western)	820
Apr. 24—Lai Chyeim	997
Apr. 26—The Rival Brothers' Patriotism (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 28—Enemies	833
Apr. 28—Pastime in Chili	160
Apr. 29—The Foster Father (Dr.)	950
May 1—Forgiveness is Sweet	754
May 1—Scenes Along the Mekong	240
May 3—Indian Justice	1000
May 5—Max is Forced to Work	670
May 5—Through Venice	295
May 6—Short-Lived Happiness (Dr.)	1000

SELIG

Mar. 13—The Code of Honor
Mar. 13—The Man from the East
Mar. 20—Her Words Come True
Mar. 20—After a Hundred Years
Mar. 23—The Way of the Transgressor
Mar. 27—Her Adopted Fathers
Mar. 30—1861
Apr. 3—The Fortune Hunters
Apr. 6—Red's Conquest
Apr. 10—The Cowboy and the Shrew
Apr. 10—His Best Girl's Little Brother (Com.)
Apr. 13—Zulu-land
Apr. 17—The Haven of Refuge
Apr. 20—The Mother
Apr. 24—Unto Us a Child Is Born
Apr. 27—The Witch of the Everglades
May 1—Her Master	1000
May 4—In Old California, When the Grin goes Came	1000
May 5—Tournament of Roses
May 8—Lost and Won	1000
May 11—Back to the Primitive	1000

URBAN ECLIPSE

G. Kleine

Jan. 25—Scenes in Jersey (Travelogue)	296
Feb. 1—Disinherited	990
Feb. 8—On the Border of the Forest (Dr.)	895
Feb. 8—Canadian Iron Center, Port Arthur (Educational)	110
Feb. 15—Catherine Howard	1005
Feb. 22—The Golden Sickle	882
Feb. 22—Felling a Smoke-stack	113
Feb. 22—The Golden Sickle	882
Mar. 1—Comrades	638
Mar. 1—Beauties of Sans Souci	362
Mar. 8—The Fury of a Woman Scorned	720
Mar. 8—Beautiful Wye Valley, England	300
Mar. 15—Redemption	508
Mar. 15—The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond	472
Mar. 22—The Money Lender	688
Nemours and the Banks of the River Loing, France	320
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 5—At the Old Mill (Dr)	675
Apr. 5—Making Bamboo Hats in Java	325
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 19—Solving the Servant Problem (C.)	465
Apr. 19—In the Province of Kwang Tung, China	535
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
Apr. 26—The Last Edict of Francis II	875
Apr. 26—Scenes at Colombo, Ceylon	125
May 3—The Page's Devotion	790
May 3—Wismar, Germany	210

VITAGRAPH

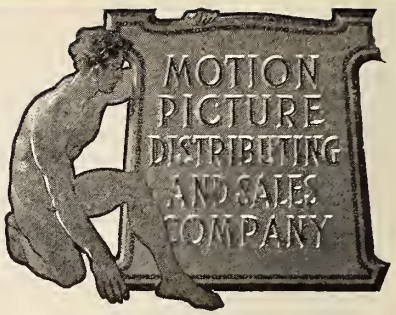
Feb. 10—The League of Mercy (Dr.)	991
Feb. 11—At the White Man's Door (Dr.)	1000
Feb. 14—Consuming Love	975
Feb. 17—When the Light Waned	994
Feb. 18—The New Stenographer (Com.)	994
Feb. 21—A Tale of Two Cities, Part I	1014
Feb. 24—A Tale of Two Cities, Part II	1013
Feb. 25—A Tale of Two Cities, Part III	994
Feb. 28—Captain Barnacle's Courtship (Com.)	998
Mar. 3—Bertha's Mission (Dr.)	988
Mar. 4—Mammy's Ghost (Dr.)	985
Mar. 7—The Wild Cat Well	960
Mar. 10—The Bridegroom's Dilemma (Com.)	990
Mar. 11—Red Eagle	960
Mar. 14—Betty Becomes a Maid (Com.)	957
Mar. 17—The Aching Void (Dr.)	990
Mar. 18—Davy Jones, or His Wife's Husband (Com.)	977
Mar. 21—Tho' the Seas Divide	968
Mar. 24—The Widow Visits Sprigtown (C.)	985
Mar. 25—A Little Lad in Dixie (Dr.)	999
Mar. 28—Billy's Valentine (Com.)	995
Mar. 31—The Inherited Taint (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—A Republican Marriage	996
Apr. 4—Unexpected Review (Com.)	660
Apr. 4—Hop Picking (Indust.)	335
Apr. 7—The Winning of the Stepchildren (Dr.)	965
Apr. 8—Winsor McCay (Com.)	650
Apr. 8—Bob Sledding	350
Apr. 11—The Wooing of Winifred (Com.)	988
Apr. 14—Though Your Sins be as Scarlet (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 15—Easter Babies (Com. Dr.)	980
Apr. 18—The Leading Lady (Com.)	985
Apr. 21—The Troublesome Secretaries (Com.)	990
Apr. 22—The Spirit of the Light (Dr.)	995
Apr. 25—A Klondike Steal (Dr.)	998
Apr. 28—The Peace Offering (Com.)	998
Apr. 29—Piccolla (Dr.)	993

The Moving Picture Cream of America and Europe

Original prints of this unexcelled program can be obtained in U. S. and Canada only from exchanges purchasing film through

Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.

111 East 14th Street, New York City



OUR PROGRAM

MONDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Eclair—Eclair Film Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.
Champion—The Champion Film Co.
TUESDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.
WEDNESDAY
Ambrosio—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Champion—The Champion Film Co.
Nestor—David Horsley.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories
Solax—Solax Co.
THURSDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Rex—Rex M. P. Mfg. Co.
FRIDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Lux—R. Prieur
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.
Solax—Solax Company
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.
SATURDAY
Gt. Northern—Gt. Northern Film Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories

Sterling, Ill.—R. T. La Grill, of Muscatine, Ia., is contemplating the establishment of a new moving picture theater here.

Greenview, Ill.—A. W. Ackerman, of Havana, is preparing to open a new moving picture theater here.

New York, N. Y.—The Eighty-sixth Street Theater Company has secured a permit for the erection of a new theater at the corner of Eighty-sixth street and Third avenue.

Portage, Wis.—The Peerless Amusement Company, of Merrill, is planning to establish moving picture theaters throughout the State of Wisconsin.

Prairie Du Chien, Wis.—J. McWilliams, of LaCrosse, has purchased the moving picture theater here, and taken possession.

Carbondale, Pa.—Architect P. J. Morris is preparing plans for the erection of a new moving picture theater for John Lewis.

Washington, D. C.—The Surprise Moving Picture Theater here was destroyed by fire.

Springfield, Mass.—William G. Cummings has bought the Grand Moving Picture Theater here from E. E. DeGray.

Girard, Ohio.—Fred Wilson has leased the Luna Theater here and is now in charge.

Watseka, Ill.—W. J. Glass has purchased the Royal Moving Picture Theater here from Mr. LeCuer.

White Hall, Ill.—Mr. Porter has sold the Bungalow Moving Picture Theater in Jacksonville to Wm. Stevenson, of Jerseyville.

La Grange, Ill.—Mr. Ira J. Smith is planning the establishment of a new moving picture theater here.

Plattsmouth, Neb.—Messrs. C. L. Peck, of Neola, and H. N. Hildebrand, of Harlana, Ia., are making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater here.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—The Western Moving Picture Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $500. The incorporators are A. P. Mehesy, J. K. Johnson and F. G. Anderson.

Dayton, Ohio.—George H. Heiser is completing arrangements for the erection of a new moving picture theater on East Third street.

WANTED:

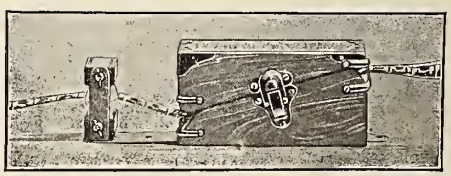
ACTORS AND SCENARIOS

Male and Female Actors, and good comedy dramas, dramas, and Western stories.

Address:

FRED J. BALSHOFER

20th St. & Neptune Ave., Coney Island, New York



How do you like my looks Mr. Operator; wouldn't you like to have me in your booth?

The MORTIMER Film Cleaner

I stay right between the re-winds and never move—I can improve your picture and keep your machine clean. Ask your manager to send for the booklet and supplement just off the press.

Mortimer Film Cleaning Co., Fidelity Bldg., Portland, Maine

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"All Wise Independents Buy and Boost Flying A Cowboy Pictures"

"Two Flying A Cowboy Pictures a Week"

Cowboy Pictures

Real Western pictures made in the land of the cowpuncher.

Pictures that teem with excitement and action.

Just the kind of pictures that loosen the purse-strings of the picture-going public.

THIS WEEK'S RELEASE
RELEASE OF MONDAY, MAY 1ST

"A CALIFORNIA LOVE STORY"

A pathetic story of the lasting love of a pretty Mexican girl.

Two "Flying A" Cowboy Pictures A Week

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, MAY 4TH

"CRAZY GULCH"

A Bad Man—A Dude—their encounter and the result. "Hobo's Round-up," a tramp story, also on this reel.

American Film Mfg. Co., Bank Floor, Ashland Block CHICAGO, ILLS.

Solax

BY WAY OF EXPLANATION!

We would like to announce to the Trade that the Military Pictures that we have been advertising are NOT pictures of soldiers in dress parade and drill, nothing tame or commonplace :: ::

BUT BIG, LIVELY, OUTDOOR PICTURES, FULL OF VIGOROUS, ACTIVE INCIDENTS, SOLDIERS, HORSES, THRILLING ROMANCES OF THE BATTLE FIELD AND ACTION THAT STIMULATE THE ATMOSPHERE OF THE ENTIRE PERFORMANCE.

OUR SOLE AIM IN RELEASING THESE OUTDOOR PICTURES IS TO EFFECT

A Departure from the Studio Productions

AND SUPPLY YOU WITH A CHARACTER OF PICTURE THAT YOU HAVE BEEN ASKING FOR

GET OUR TWO COLOR LOBBY DISPLAY!

RELEASES
FRI. MAY 5th—"THE SOMNAMBULIST," Drama
WED. " 10th—"THEIR FIRST BABY," Drama
FRI. " 12th—"BETWEEN LIFE AND DUTY," Drama
WED. " 17th—"DEAF AND DUMB," Drama

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED THROUGHOUT

Sold exclusively through the M. P. D. & S. Co.

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 18

May 6th
1911

PRICE
TEN CENTS

SCENE FROM

"THE FORGED DESPATCH"

"IMP" RELEASE, MAY 22d

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"All Wise Independents Buy and Boost Flying A Cowboy Pictures"

FLYING A COWBOY PICTURES

RELEASE OF MONDAY, MAY 8th

"The Opium Smuggler" Western Drama

A SENSATIONAL STORY OF ILLICIT TRAFFIC ON THE PACIFIC COAST

SCENES FROM "THE OPIUM SMUGGLER"

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, MAY 11th

"The Sheriff's Captive"

A STORY OF HOW THE QUICK WIT OF A PRETTY WESTERN GIRL WINS FREEDOM FOR HER FATHER AND A HUSBAND FOR HERSELF

SCENES FROM "THE SHERIFF'S CAPTIVE"

TWO TWO FLYING A COWBOY FILMS EACH WEEK MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS TWO

American Film Mfg. Co., Bank Floor, Ashland Block CHICAGO, ILLS.

POSSIBLY Rex IS

THE ONLY EXCEPTION TO THE PROVEN MAXIM THAT

"Uneasy Lies the Head That Wears the Crown"

But Rex's head is the right head, and it is going right ahead! We prove it in our next release,

"The Guardsman"

RELEASED, THURSDAY Rex DAY
MAY 11th, 1911

Be on your guard because it's a strong story with a dark plot about a woman of place and power who designs to assassinate a king and the quickwittedness of a young girl who mars her attempt.

STRONG, STIRRING AND STARTLING
GET IT AND YOU'LL GET IT

Rex Motion Picture Mfg. Co.
573-579 ELEVENTH AVE.,
NEW YORK CITY.
(Making nothing but good pictures)

SALES CO.'S GUARDSMEN ARE REXMEN.

CHAMPS
HISTORICAL PLAYS

are in a class by themselves. One of the worthy members of the CHAMP BRIGADE is

"GEN. MARION, The Swamp Fox"
MONDAY, MAY 15TH.
A conspicuous figure in Washington's days.

CHAMPION WESTERNS
Western from start to finish.

"CIRCLE C's NEW BOSS"
WEDNESDAY, MAY 17TH.
A boss until she is wed.

CHAMPS come twice every week.
Come, see and get them.
Every CHAMP is worth your getting.

THE CHAMPION FILM CO.
MARK M. DINTENFASS, GEN. MGR.
12 E. 15TH ST., N. Y. CITY.

Two Yankee World Tour Features

MONDAY, MAY 15TH
"AN INDIAN BRAVE'S CONVERSION"
A POWERFUL WESTERN STORY

FRIDAY, MAY 19TH
"THE BANANA PLANTER'S PERIL"
AN INTENSELY DRAMATIC AND INSTRUCTIVE STORY

YANKEE FILM COMPANY
344 East 32d St., New York City

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.
Not in the Trust
129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

This beats 'em all!

NEW IMP LOBBY FRAME AND 10 FINE PHOTOS $5

Just issued! Absolutely the finest and highest class lobby display ever used in any theatre. Beautifully grained, wide oak frame containing ten heavily glassed openings for photographs. Individual fasteners for each opening, making the PHOTOGRAPHS INTERCHANGEABLE. Frame may be hung up anywhere in your lobby or may be stood upon your easel. No easel comes with the frame. The demand for these new Imp lobby displays will be fierce. Hustle your order in right away. You'll be tickled to pieces when you see what a rich looking ornament it will make for your "front." If you want more facts send for descriptive circular. If willing to rely on our advice, send draft or express company money order for $5 immediately. Orders filled in rotation.

NEXT IMP RELEASES:

"THE MASTER AND THE MAN"—One of the strongest productions we have ever made. Go after your exchange hard. RELEASED MONDAY, MAY 15th.

"THE LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER"—Another powerful drama. Full of splendid stage effects. Demand it till you win. RELEASED THURSDAY, MAY 18th.

$500 CASH REWARD

for information leading to the conviction of "dupers" who are flooding the market with "duped" Imp Films. See Imp advertisement published last week.

WE WANT YOUR NAME

and address immediately, to add to our mailing list. Important special news matter which is sometimes too late to use in our ads is mailed specially nearly every week. Keep posted. Send your name and address NOW!

INDEPENDENT MOVING PICTURES CO. IMP AMERICA

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America. 102 W. 101st St., New York. Carl Laemmle, Pres. All "Imp" Films Sold Through the Sales Co. All "Imp" Films Now Made on Eastman Stock!!!

Demand Two Imps Every Week

COMING!—The grandest Decoration Day release ever made is soon to be announced. It will simply set your audience wild with enthusiasm. Make arrangements with your exchange for an early booking right away.

ASK US ABOUT THE "IMP BOOK." IT'S GREAT!

Get This:

If your exchange is not buying the new films it certainly can't give them to you—unless it is duping. That being the case, why should you be satisfied to pay good money for questionable pictures when it won't cost you a blooming cent more to get your supply from THE BIGGEST AND BEST FILM RENTER IN THE WORLD? That's a fair, common-sense question. Give it some real thought!

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
209 Fifth St., Des Moines, Iowa.
The biggest and best film renter in the world.

HALLBERG

THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"

SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.

I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.

Free Catalogue No. N 1

H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST THEATRE CHAIR

Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving.
To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation
and slides for every purpose made to order
GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

©CLB244227

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan, 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City. ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV May 6, 1911 Number 18

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

Our front cover illustration of this issue, "The Forged Despatch," released on May 22nd by the Imp Company, is a military picture of unusual interest to all G. A. R. veterans, and one that will be welcomed by them, appearing as it does so near Decoration Day. It was our pleasure to see a preliminary run of this film, and can vouch for its being fully up to the "Imp" standard.

OUR ANNIVERSARY

Time flies—said the sage of old. Days come and go, but the march of progress stays not. To-day we celebrate the third anniversary of the News in its new form. Three years ago we bade good-bye to the paper we founded and established, so that we might be free to express our own opinions and work for the progress of cinematography; another reason was, we could not act as a spy and sycophant or betray our friends. Since then, what changes have taken place! The F. S. A. was then under control of the Edison clique, headed by Gilmore, Dyer and Moore, who tied the members down tight so that they could not breathe the breath of freedom.

How those chains did chafe, did they not? Answer, Messrs, Laemmle, Swanson, Kessell, Miles, Steiner, Lewis, Baker, Cline, Bachman, Harstyn, Hopp, Swaab, and a host of others; were they not galling? How you did try to turn us from our purpose of full and free independence. But we did not budge, we had "nailed our colors to the mast," and all the persuasion you were capable of was of no avail. We stood by the cause of independence when it was almost a forlorn hope, full of optimism for the success in the long run of right over might. How many times did we not wonder whether we would be able to pay our printer's bill, but when we sat in the office of the Biograph Co. and saw how eagerly all the employees waited for Geo. Kleine's monthly check to come in so that they could get their salaries, we felt we were not so badly off after all. You did not know what a savior of the situation you were in those days, did you, friend Kleine, when you purchased twelve out of the sixteen prints a week they turned out? If it had not been for you the Independents would have died a natural death. And the Moving Picture News stuck with you. We were a happy family then, we managed to weather the storm, and when occasion required did not we pour some hot shot into the enemy. Just a handful of helpful men who put principle first, until out of this band composed of Biograph, Geo. Kleine, Williams, Brown & Earle, Great Northern, Society Italian Cines, all would not hold together because & duped the films, and others then joined hands with them, so they had to be dropped from the ranks. Then came the formation of the M. P. P. Co., and they thought they could buy the Moving Picture News by giving us the advertising and telling us "to be a good boy and we should have more." Our readers well remember these days, do you not? You well recollect after you had sold your souls and individuality to the bertayers of your former confidence, how we came out and told you you had jumped from the frying pan into the fire.

Of course we lost the advertising of the members of the M. P. P. Co. We could not expect anything else, they dared not advertise in the News, they were commanded not to, they were too small minded. Well, we preferred to lose their patronage, let go the thousands of dollars we could have made by truckling to them (as did another), because we chose to possess our own soul and individuality, because our colors had not been hauled down or shot away from the masthead Independent ship. Furthermore, they are flying to-day as free as air. We have seen men come and go. Companies rise, steal money from the pockets of investors, and vanish with the ill-gotten gains. We have seen, and still see the bunco game being played for all it is worth. We have had offers made to us to exploit schemes, to betray our friends by giving information as to what is going on in their ranks, being promised all sorts of emoluments for the service. Though they charmed ever so charmingly, we were not to be bought. The Moving Picture News desired the confidence and the esteem of all sections of the industry, and it stands to-day the only free paper in the States.

During the past three years, what a vast amount of money has been spent in litigation, money which if put to the cause of producing educational films would have accomplished untold results. Money absolutely wasted, energies put to wrong sources, for what? To try and crush out of existence men who have as much right to live, and move, and have their being as have the four men comprising the M. P. P. Co. These men have attempted to cripple and ruin an industry whose capacity and vastness their small and narrow minds are unable to grasp. They hold a patent—one solitary little patent—and with this they are endeavoring to create a concern by unfair and unjust means over every other patent or moral right, for the sake of what? Principle? Not a bit of it—dollars and cents. They do not know the meaning of principle, otherwise they would adopt the motto of "live and let live." They would accede some right to their fellowman. No; there is no room on this earth for any one else than themselves. They thought they were going to buy everything with their millions of dollars graft. They thought they could buy judges, courts, men—everything they wanted—they reckoned without their host. The worm, it is said, will sometimes turn, and those men they tried to crush are turning and will, in their right, conquer.

Look how the Independent cause has grown in the past two years. With the defection of Biograph and Geo. Kleine, what was left? Great Northern, and that was practically all, with the exception of two or three stragglers. Did the Independent cause die out? The Moving Picture News started a crusade almost like the voice crying in the wilderness. Then C. O. Baumann started Bison Co. Look how it has grown! What a support to the industry. Then Imp came along in good shape. Powers Picture Plays, and so on all down the gamut of the Independent manufacturers of to-day. Then the Exchangemen, what of them? The freeze out, crush out, intimidate out, the buy out (?) policy of the General Film Co. What has it done? Are they out of business? Look in our advertising columns, find the Sales Co. and observe: 57 live, flourishing exchanges, all doing excellent business brought about by the Sales Co.'s campaign, and defense of the right to live and do business. Has it cost nothing to gain this result? It has cost time, labor, the sweating of blood, and enormous expense. The patents archives have been ransacked, every man who could shed a little light along the path has been brought in to add his mite, the keenest intellects have been put to work, the most painstaking, the cleverest, the most astute patent attorneys, quite a regiment of them, are at work defending the rights of Independent manufacturers, exchangemen and exhibitors; great good has been accomplished and victories won. The end is not yet, nor will it be yet until the M. P. P. Co. has been made to surrender. The Sales Co. have been the backbone and mainstay of Independence. Outside of them there is room for no one, no third, or fourth party has the slightest chance to exist. It is only by loyal, true allegiance on the part of every man connected therewith that ultimate victory will come.

Wonderful progress has been made during the years we have sat in the editorial chair, especially the past two. When we take into consideration the fact that all the new manufacturers had to practically learn the business, nothing but congratulations are due to them. When they get out of the rut of following others and rise to the occasion of giving original and educational subjects suitable for the school, the college, or the university, nothing will stem their advance.

PATENTS AND PATENT LITIGATION

As we remarked in our last issue, our desk is covered with letters asking our opinion on patents, their equivalents, and values. So many inventors are in the field, some of whom are afraid to say what their claims cover or what their ideas are, and when we have expressed an opinion they have argued quite the contrary to what we know to be an actual fact. Of course, not being a patent attorney or a graduate from a law school, we are rather reserved in our statements both orally and by letter, but the question of movement of a film and lens moving synchronously comes up again and again, and to save our own time and also that of our numerous correspondents whom we trust will receive this as an answer to some of their letters, we produce on another page the patent granted to Charles Francis Jenkins, of Washington, Dec. 12, 1894, with the illustrations accompanying the same, and if our readers are in any further doubt concerning the matter, we must refer them to Mr. Jenkins personally, who will be pleased to answer any questions they care to ask him.

As we stated above, we are not a patent expert, but we specially wish all who are joining issue with us on statements we make, to read the claim of Mr. Jenkins beginning with the words "I do not wish to be understood," and concluding with "Or upon a screen placed to receive it." This will be found in the last paragraph of his description, and then in his claims we particularly want to call attention to Clause 11, and if some of the inventors, and would-be inventors, will carefully read these two items they will find that they're rubbing up against a pretty rough piece of sandpaper and a prospect of patent litigation from another source than the Patents Company. We do not know what our friend Jenkins will say by bringing him into the limelight like this, but we want to submit to him one of these next days the whole correspondence and ask his opinion thereupon.

THE ALIEN OPERATOR

Will some one in authority advise us what to do and say to the operators who are daily besieging our office for information how to get a living? A more insane, asinine, illogical measure than the debarment of aliens from becoming moving picture operators we do not know. It has thrown out of employment men capable in every respect to operate a moving picture machine. Messrs. Assemblymen who voted for this bill, will you find employment for these men? Why do you not pass bills preventing all except citizens of the United States of America becoming street cleaners, bakers, tailors, bricklayers, policemen, saloonkeepers, confectioners, machinists, printers, teachers in the public school and colleges, and so on through the whole series of trades and professions? Is this Free America when men whom you invite to your shores cannot earn an honest livelihood? Englishmen, Italians, Russians, Hebrews, etc., are debarred by this measure earning bread and salt. What must they do? Become a charge on the city? We were wondering if such a measure was passed by any city council in England, what would happen? If American citizens in England were debarred as are Englishmen here, the question would at once arouse public sentiment and Parliament would soon take action. Why not petition the President, surely he has the power to nullify such an anomaly. We are given to understand that the measure will be altered—sometime—when?—while the grass grows, steed starves. If there is any value in the Union, let it take immediate action by petitioning the right sources.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Thomas Alva Edison, how could you do it? We are only a small factor in the industry, and for the past few months we have been trying to educate the public, the exhibitor and the manufacturer to the importance of obtaining and providing suitable educational films, and now, according to your press agent, you steal our thunder, come out and pose as a schoolmaster, teaching the school children geography, physiography, etc., by cinematography. Why! oh, why!—

since the year 1893, shall we say—have you not with your vast possibilities produced educational films? Why did you wait until the Moving Picture News had aroused the desires of the people, then come out with our ideas and pose as the originator thereof? Do please give us the credit for a little, even if it is only reflected glory, by mentioning the News.

LONDON RAMBLINGS

The "Champion" films, recently handled in the city by Mr. R. Prieur, are not unlikely to be shortly on display in an office specially opened for the purpose.

Quite an imposing ceremonial took place at Will G. Barker's studio at Ealing on Thursday last, when the whole of the "Henry VIII" prints were loosely piled up on the studio lawns and burned. Most were in capital condition, but their destruction was part of Barker's agreement with Sir Herbert Tree to prevent the possibility of the production being discredited by the exhibition of worn out, scratched films. Most film makers are straight in favor of every film being so treated after a reasonable period of use, and don't be surprised if some steps are taken shortly to bring about this surprising state of affairs. The wind is in all quarters.

"The Fall of Troy" produced a "kick" from several managers, and for novel reasons it was marketed at Eastertide when the shows were anxious to get rid of one holiday crowd and make room for more, and it was found very many refused to budge until the subject had been run a second time!

Several firms are already in a position to refuse further orders for coronation films. The record sales of the "Funeral of Edward VII" will be easily beaten by this picture, and a great "uplift" is looked for as a result of its publication.

"Flying A" films have made a hit, and Mr. Aitkin, the chief of Western Import Co., who handle them, has already become one of the most popular personalities in the trade. He has lately been traveling in the Provinces, making the acquaintance of the showmen, whose reception of "Flying A" more than pleased him. The latter is not surprising if, for reasons you need not be interested in over here, more buyers give preference to "Flying A," "Imp" and other Independent Americans over the output of one or two of licensed makers, where merit is about even, in fact in some cases the Trust goods are only taken when they are so good that they cannot well be missed.

"Bison" and "Reliance" are also making good in the capable hands of Mr. Collier, of Tyler Film Co., Ltd. Bison's white horse is already a popular favorite with audiences here, and the acting of the "Reliance" drama is declared to be equal to the best that has come from America.

OUTDOOR PICTURE THEATERS PREPARING FOR BUSINESS

By Margaret I. MacDonald

Tantalizing Spring has come tripping into our midst before we are really aware of it; and with the first reassuring beam of her sunny smile the outdoor moving picture man has commenced preparations for the hot summer season. All over the city, if you take the trouble to observe, you will find little nooks and crannies, empty lots, etc., beginning to show signs of life in the erecting of platforms, arranging of seats, lights, and all the accessories of the open air theater.

The little children who are debarred from enjoying a trip to the country, the tired mothers laboring through the heat of the great city, and the fathers earning by the sweat of the brow the wherewithal to keep life still existent in themselves, and their little flocks take note of the preparations as to a long-looked-for vacation. It is the ghost of the pleasant evenings of last year, mingling with the anticipation of hours of relaxation of tired muscles and nerves, of respite from the day's weary grind.

Some of us are prone to look upon these miniature entertainment parks, for, after all, such some of them really are, as rather a joke. We can go to the country or to the seaside and enjoy the fresh, cool breezes, go bathing, boating, and partake of the many and varied pleasures provided for those who can pay the money for them. But the poor man caring for his family on probably a dollar, or a dollar and quarter a day, obliged to stay day in and day out among the hot brick walls of the city, finds a great solace in the consciousness that within walking distance of his home there is a pleasant place of entertainment where he can go with his wife and children in the summer evenings where they can sit and enjoy, with the cool blue above them, scenes which in reality they may never see, and which would require more money probably than they could save in a lifetime to enable them to visit.

There are still a great many people who decry the use of the moving picture. These people, I venture to say, have not given the matter very serious thought—they speak from slight observation—from observation of a few unwholesome themes which have come before their notice. They forget that things are rapidly improving. The increased use of the moving picture for illustration and entertainment has given the business end of it a large following, and has attracted the attention of intelligent and educated people who with far-seeing eyes have penetrated the veil of the future, and realize what the general diffusin ot knowledge by means of the moving picture to-day must mean to the generations of to-morrow.

There is an almost undiscernable movement of advancement in the world of films. The fact that thinking people are giving the subject some thought is making an impression on the character of films placed before the public. Of the films which are to-day in use in the different theaters, I venture to say that the majority are of a commendable class. Almost every time that we enter a moving picture theater we find some little point which may be criticized, but as "Rome was not built in a day," we cannot expect that such a tremendous thing as the first small beginning of the moving picture business has grown to be, can be corrected of its shortcomings at once—it is not an article which can be "repaired while you wait," it will take at least half a century to bring to any kind of completion the plans of the enthusiastic educators in connection with the correction of the moving picture show. Therefore we must be patient and give credit, in the meantime, where credit is due.

I sincerely hope, for the sake of the many, many poor people encased in the tenements and flats and hot streets of New York, that a great deal of thought be given to the arrangement of both program and accommodation in the little open air theaters. Artificial means of comparatively small cost could be used to make them pleasant and enticing. Touches from the outside world in the shape of miniature trees, bright flowering vines and shrubs, and many other little pleasing effects could be resorted to by the picture man to make his little nook of education and pleasure still more attractive.

CHICAGO NEWS NOTES

The Drake Theater, 2907-2909 Milwaukee avenue, will open on or about May 15th with first Lux Independent film service, furnished by The House of Laemmle.

The machine is a standard "Essex" dissolving stereopticon and spot machine by the Chicago Stage Lighting Co. The house is built of enameled brick with plaster relief ornamentation in lobby, with box offices on either side of the entrance. A Sunlight metallic cloth curtain will be used to project the picture on. Harry Lindner is to be the resident manager. The house is under the direction of the managers of the Janet Theater, the original home of the Independent picture.

We paid a visit to the loop picture houses one afternoon last week. The Casino Theater, on Madison street, near Dearborn, was our first stop, where we were greeted by Harry Fitzpatrick, the manager. He called us into his office, where we were shown a novel idea in lobby display, comprising the actors in various films shown at the Casino.

After waiting several minutes we were able to find a couple of seats, and I must say the performance was good, even the vaudeville, and you don't often find good vaudeville acts in a 5c. theater. And say, "Fitz," I would like to steal that illustrated singer; she is a jewel; you can understand every word she says, and some melody in her voice, too.

The projection of the pictures was excellent, but you can always see a good picture at the Casino, something I can't say for the neighboring houses on the street. Excuse me, the pictures at the Pastime were also good, but that is something unusual there.

Our next stop was at the Boston Theater, across the way. We saw a very good Reliance and a marvelous Rex. Oh, you Rex! No wonder they dub you King of Film. You deserve the title. Manager Moreville is to be complimented on the systematic manner in which everything runs. Another good singer at this house. She sang "There'll Come a Time" and she really sang it. Dorothy Tilford is her name.

We next went to the Alcazar, half a block down the street, and all I have to say is, a pipe organ can never take the place of a good picture machine operated by a competent man. Enough said. J. J. SULLIVAN.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, Ark., Mav 3.—And in the land of the "Valley of vapors, behold, there came a great woe! Aye, verily, there was wailing and gnashing of teeth! Sackcloth draped manly shoulders in recognition of a wallop, judicial from its source, and convincing in effect, and ashes fell like doleful rain on our dome of thought." "Beaten to a frazzle" once more by the courts—the higher the court the greater the blow—we sing our swan song and, with regret in our bosom and anger in our hearts, give up the ghost and say: "What t'ell's the use, anyway?" And there you are.

All of which, ye legion of loyal sympathizers in the world of Picturedom, signifies that the colors of the Prosecuting Attorney of this county of Garland, City of Hot Springs, State of Arkansas, are flying proudly in the breeze, victorious from the recent victory in circuit court, and the past Sunday the doors of this resort's motion picture houses were closed; yes, tighter than the gates of Heaven against the scoffing infidel. We were trimmed good and hard, and now appreciate the fact that while it may make heroes of us to suffer indictment by the Grand Jury, the aftermath is anything but profitable, either to one's mind or pocketbook.

A few weeks ago I detailed the fact that Judge Wood, the County Prosecutor, had seen fit to indict local managers for exhibiting motion pictures on Sunday. Also, I mentioned the numerous arrests that had been made, and of cases taken in the local justice of peace courts, where they were either continued, owing to a "hung jury" or continued indefinitely. In fact, the city courts were so busy that we almost forgot the Grand Jury indictments, until we were roused from our reverie by notification that local managers were cited to appear in Circuit Court and answer to the charges against them. Manager Harry Hale, of the Lyric, was selected by the attorneys to go on trial, it being understood that the verdict would also apply to six others indicted for the same offense. This being agreeable to counsel for defense and the prosecution, one entire day was taken up trying the case.

Attorneys Sawyer and Bouic again represented the picture men, and the fact that they lost the case is no discredit to them, for they made one of the gamest and grandest fights ever recorded in the local county court. It was no use, however, the verdict the jury rendered was one of guilty, and all previous city court cases didn't cut one bit of figure, for this, you see, was in a higher court, and the verdict from such a source was more important than were those in the justice of the peace tribunals.

But it won't stop there, by a long shot, for already an appeal has been taken to the Supreme Court, and the picture men still have a chance; but I wouldn't be willing to wager my last "two-bit" piece that this verdict will be reversed. It was a hard blow to the industry in this city, and it was made especially hard when one considers that there are many, many other instances where the law is being violated, but where no action has ever been taken by the County Prosecutor to enforce the Sunday law. The fact that the picture shows were closed the past Sunday indicates that nothing will be done to give Sabbath entertainment until the decision of the Supreme Court is heard. If it sustains the Circuit Court it is doubtful if we will have the picture houses opened on Sunday during the present term of the County Prosecutor. If it is reversed, or a new trial ordered, the shows will open, but as matters now stand there is little or no likelihood that anything will be done to entertain the public with motion pictures on Sunday for some time to come. The trial in Circuit Court was the most importannt event that took place where motion photography was concerned.

Patrons to the local theaters seemed to be much pleased with the product shown, and general approbation was the rule. There were some pictures that had numerous defects; some with glaring errors, but as a general line of entertainment the week was well worth while. Ambrosio weighed in with a fine reel in "A Glimpse of the Neapolitan Camorra," and the American's reel, playing a return date, "The Harem Skirt," caused as much laughter as when here the first time. "With Stonewall Jackson" also came back for its second appearance, this time by request, so, Champion, you may accept congratulations and best wishes. Eclair gave us a pretty reel, much enjoyed, in "The Rock Climbers," while its view of "Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives" elicited admiration and reverence. With Eclair we sailed "Down the Blue Nile," and appreciated the trip. Good work, Eclair, and many, many thanks. The Great Northern production of "Hamlet" realized all the excellent things that firm had promised. I like to watch the production of this company, for they seem to spare no expense in arranging elaborate stage settings. Nothing is too big for them to go after, and they deserve praise for this effort. With the Imp we laughed at their "Pictureland," and were entertained "In Old Madrid," while Italia, with its feature, "Foolshead," one of the funniest and most eccentric men before the camera, we enjoyed his many adventures the week past. Nestor gave us a good reel in "At Cedar Ridge," but the Yankee production of "Tom and Jerry" was "the limit." Many and many a time during the glad Yuletide season have I encouraged a close acquaintance with "Tom and Jerry," and I go on record now that the creation Yankee put out, while having no relation with the others of that name, save in name only, is a libel on the title, which I resent. Now, Yankee, you can do better; at least I've jollied myself into believing that you can, so forget "Tom and Jerry," for goodness knows they were bad enough; brace up, take a good drink, and get busy with something worth while. This was "orful."

So much "panning" has been given "The Lonedale Operator" by telegraphers and railroad men that it's not up to me to add to the critical condemnation that visited the Biograph studio when they turned this one out. The reel was here, with all its inaccuracies, and the only thing that made it worth while was the masterful and delightful effects of Carl Hansen, trap drummer at the Lyric. Carl, as I have had occasion to mention before, is there forty ways when it comes to effects. There's not a trap drummer following the pictures, I do not think, who can equal him. He had Lyman Howe's man, who worked effects for pictures he was with daily, skinned a city block, and Lyman, you know, relies on his effects as a great feature of his show. Well, this boy at the Lyric has him tied to the post. There was not a point lost in this picture, from the ticking of the telegraph instruments to the rush of the engine, its whistle and all other incidentals that went to make it interesting. In fact, the effects employed by Mr. Hansen made the picture, and he received a great ovation many times while the reel was here.

Vitagraph, accept deepest appreciation and heart-felt thanks for your reel, "Though Your Sins Be As Scarlet." Nothing finer, more beautiful and more elevating have I witnessed in months. The "Magdalene" is an actress of exceptional ability. Her work was perfect. Also we enjoyed "The Resurrection of John," by Edison, as well as "The Old Family Bible"; but, Edison, do you realize that you left "Jim, the Mule Boy," three days in the mine and his clothes, as well as those of the little fellow with him, were as immaculate as the day they entered. You were very shy on details in that picture, Edison. Kalem, want to thank you for the "Mexican Filibusters" and also for "In Old Florida," both of which were immense. And Selig delighted us with "Red's Conquest," for a more faithful portrayal of early theatrical days in the West we have never seen. It was great and we enjoyed every minute of this reel.

THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington, D. C.

An Independent film that has been creating a sensation in this city is the "Flea Circus," a series of stunts by performing fleas trained by Prof. R. A. Nokes. The film has been made by the Capital Film Co., of this city, Sig. G. Boernstein operating the camera. Considering the subject, it is an exceptional piece of photography; while the novelty is one that has not been seen in Washington. Prof. Nokes makes explanatory remarks while the tiny creatures, greatly magnified, go through their various tricks of tight-rope walking, somersaulting, drawing carriages, pulling a merry-go-round, turning a mill, etc. This has a three days' run at the Metropolitan moving picture house, in addition to the usual reels, after which the company and Ringmaster Nokes encamped on the circus grounds with the Ringling Bros. as an independent venture. From appearances, the flea circus formed something of a counter attraction to the big show. The moving picture industry is making itself felt in the world's progress.

The Mount Vernon, formerly managed by Frank Howard, is now run by Manager Essex. The patronage is very good, the children especially being catered to. Mr. Howard is now looking to secure a pleasure park for the summer, where moving pictures will form a chief attraction. Only Independent reels will be used.

Owing to the many requests of its patrons, Manager Notes, of the Empress, was compelled to make a return engagement of "The Fall of Troy," when the same full attendance was in order. No spectacular stage production could have been presented with more appropriate musical setting, armor clashing, noises of destruction, etc., than was this exceptional reel at the Empress.

J. P. Morgan, who has recently assumed the management of the Princess, has changed this house from vaudeville and pictures to pictures only, with the singing favorite Hawking appearing during the show. Finances have increased under the new program.

The Washington Film Exchange, the Independent establishment here, has again changed its local manager to Jos. L. Marentelle, formerly of the Consolidated Amusement Co., of Baltimore. Mr. Lucas, manager for this section, has been on the road a good deal recently. Business at the exchange is going on as usual.

Wm. Alvine, the new manager of the Maryland, is making a specialty of comedies at his house, catering especially to the ladies and children who frequent the downtown district. He runs, perhaps, a greater number of reels than other theaters and manages to throw in frequently an educational film which is always interesting.

Manager Notes, of the Empress, is issuing postals to his patrons of "Little Mary," of the Imp Company. These are artistically gotten up and form an attractive souvenir. This house makes a practice of advertising in its lobby its program for the week, arranged not by the photoplay to be seen, but the manufacturer of the film. In this way Manager Notes is furthering the cause of the Independents in a most unique manner, calling attention more to the producer of the film rather than to the eubject.

Manager Moore, of the General Film Exchange, has returned from his southern trip, much benefited by his freedom from duty.

Aside from the usual run of three daily reels, Manager Kerby, of the Senate, makes a specialty of an especial musical program twice a week at the Senate.

The Acme is an Independent house which offers three feature reels. "It is an expensive service I use," said the manager, "but I wish to cater to the educated and even educate those who do not at first appreciate good pictures. Why, only to-day, I made a trip to Philadelphia so as not to disappoint my patrons in certain reels." The timely showing at this house of "Across the Mexican Line" with its military aspect made quite a hit.

The recent presentation of "The Description of the Battleship San Marcos" at the Circle gave the people insight into naval warfare as well as a glimpse of the scientific side of explosives. The reel was instructive as well as interesting.

The Royal, under Manager Braswell, has gained quite a reputation for its Western dramas. W. H.

OUR BROOKLYN CORRESPONDENT

The Educational Propaganda

The Church of the Pilgrims, that stately edifice on the Heights in which for fifty-four years the Rev. Dr. Storrs preached to the intellectuals and the fashionables of the City of Churches, was the scene of an interesting occasion on Tuesday evening, when, under the auspices of the People's Institute of New York, a goodly sized audience listened to addresses on motion picture problems and witnessed the projection of a half-dozen selected films.

Present were many clergymen, among them Canon William Sheafe Chase, a militant Sunday observance advocate. The Rev. Leslie W. Sprague, an associate pastor of the church and chairman of the Brooklyn committee on recreations, presided. A sheet about 20 by 20 feet was suspended in front of the organ loft. The projection booth was composed of sheet metal and was mounted on planks ranged across tops of pews at the rear of the auditorium.

The films shown were selected with a view of demonstrating the value of motion pictures along dramatic, religious and educational lines. They comprised Edison's "Mike the Miser," extensive views of the Panama Canal as it was in January last and "The Disreputable Mr. Raegen," and Gaumont's portrayal of incidents in the life of the infant Jesus, "The People of the Arabian Desert" and "Cupid's Conquest." The pictures were shown without musical accompaniment. While the extreme stillness—the only sound being that from the projector—may have seemed strange to one accustomed to the piano or orchestral accompaniment, not to mention the questionable "squawk" accessory, the interest displayed by the auditors proved that good pictures will sustain interest, and are of themselves sufficient. It may have been a novelty to motion picture followers; to one it certainly was not an unwelcome change.

The speakers were Dr. James P. Warbasse, at the head of the German Hospital and a member of the Mayor's committee on motion pictures, and John Collier, of the People's Institute, educational secretary of the National Board of Censorship and also a member of Mayor Gaynor's committee on motion pictures. The Rev. Herbert A. Jump, of New Britain, Conn., was to have spoken on "The Social and Religious Possibilities of the Motion Picture," but was unable to be present.

"We realize," said Mr. Sprague, in opening the meeting, "that this new mode of recreation has come with great rapidity and that it occupies one of the most prominent places in the recreation of the people. It is said that over 300,000 people in this city are attending moving pictures regularly and that some seventy-five per cent of this attendance is from the young. What is peculiar is that this new mode of recreation has not been taken thought of by public opinion generally. There are many points of view as to what ought to be done, and the demand has come that the right kind of effort be made to bring these various opinions together in one united opinion."

"There is a lamentable degree of ignorance of the motion picture problem on the part of citizens," said Dr. Warbasse. "There are certain defects in the motion picture shows in Brooklyn. We are aware of that; but these defects are easily remedied, and they are due to defects in the laws and ordinances governing these places. The Mayor's committee is at work in these problems at the present time. The chief defects are of insufficient light in the shows, a matter for the police department to handle, and which it could handle now if it exercised its authority; the problem of bad ventilation, which is in the hands of the department of health, and could be remedied if that department exercised its authority; the problem of the admission of children, which will be overcome either by demanding an enforcement of the law available or by expunging the law from the statute books. One or the other must be done.

"We should grasp in the first place the fact that the motion picture has come to stay. It is one of the most important inventions since the telegraph and telephone, and already is exercising a greater influence than most of us realize. Its influence is exerted chiefly upon the wage-earning people who heretofore have not had access to the drama, to entertainments such as these pictures offer. I think one of the most inspiring sights which are to be witnessed in motion picture shows is to obscrve a laboring man and his wife and perhaps his child drinking in the drama which these shows present.

"The criticisms which are hurled against these institutions in this city are largely ill-founded. The prejudice against motion picture shows has developed out of failure to appreciate their importance. I think it behooves us, citizens of Brooklyn, to go into these shows with an open mind, with toleration, and try to put ourselves in the position of the wage-earner, of the person of meagre income, who sits there and sees exhibitions such as we have seen to-night, and let us try and realize what that means to him.

"There is much that we can do to improve the general character of these shows. We can help overcome the difficulties of which I have spoken by holding up the hands of the Board of Censorship, by supporting our local committee on recreation as fully as we can, and by visiting these shows occasionally, and when we observe anything that meets our disapprobation speaking to the proprietor and we will always find a disposition on his part to comply with any request that is at all reasonable.

"The development of the picture show has come on us so rapidly that it is almost impossible for us to keep up with it. It is a mighty power for good. It cannot be suppressed. We would not suppress it if we could. It behooves us to become acquainted with it, to study it, and as citizens to offer suggestions and do all that we can to improve it."

Mr. Collier spoke of the difficulties confronting censorship boards in dealing with pictures involving the criminal element. "Dr. Warbasse compared the motion picture to the telephone and the telegraph," he continued. "Perhaps a more accurate comparison would be the printing press, which sent the Bible to the four corners of the earth. Motion pictures have given to the art of the drama, to the art of the theater, the same application that the printing press bore to the art of literature.

"The drama has always been the dominant form of literature, but heretofore its enjoyment has been confined to the few who could afford it. In the course of time it will come to the masses at no price.

"The motion picture will be used universally by all churches, schools and social settlements to bring about the thousand and one things reformers are working for."

Mr. Collier advocated the use of public schools after the close of the sessions and at night for motion picture displays, and gave it as his opinion that this would result in no injury to the regular shows. The speaker told of a remark made, a couple of years ago, by Superintendent of Schools Maxwell at the close of a tour of moving picture shows: "I have seen about 15,000 people in these shows to-night, and they are the very people we have been trying to reach through the educational and recreation centers. Yet they have paid admission to go to these picture shows."

In conversation with a number of clergymen after the close of the meeting Mr. Collier said that probably not more than ten per cent of existing educational films were available for church use by reason of their being kept on the move to fill the requirements of regular commercial customers. This condition would continue, he said, until educational film exchanges are organized. G. F. B.

THE LATEST FROM LONDON

(By our English Correspondent.)

Cinematography has played an important part in the Eastertide festivities, and excellent shows have been provided for the multitudinous visitors. During the vacation I have been in the west country, at the old-world city of Bath. Here the popularity of the picture theaters is everywhere in evidence, and up-to-date releases are unspooled before large and enthusiastic audiences. Many of the London and provincial theaters were closed on Good Friday (April 12th), but the attendances on the Saturday and Bank Holiday exceeded all expectations.

* * * * * * * * *

The Gaumont Company have obtained the privilege of showing the final football tie for the English Cup, to be contested at the Crystal Palace on April 22. The competing teams are Newcastle United and Bradford City, and a keen contest is anticipated.

* * * * * * * * *

The program submitted by Mr. Chas. Urban at the Scala Kinemacolor Theater, Soho Square W., is as diverse as it is unique. The following nineteen subjects will convey an idea of the range of subjects: "Farmyard Friends," "The Chef's Preparations," "Picturesque North Wales," and the "Rebel's Daughter," comprise the general section. "Insects and Their Habits," "Animal Studies," "The Bird of Flowers," "Reflections of Colour," "The Soap Bubble," and Rainbow and Egyptian Sunsets as Urban Science subjects. Topical releases include "The Launch of the Olympic," "A London Fire Call," "Lord Kitchener's Review of the Troops at Khartoum," "A Day With the Exmore Staghounds," and "Changing the Guard at St. James' Palace."

* * * * * * * * *

Mr. T. J. Wert has acquired the sole "Kinemacolor" rights for Bournemouth, where the unique process has become a huge attraction.

* * * * * * * * *

Are cinematograph shows injurious to the eyesight? Among medical experts and others competent to judge, there appears to be a strong divergence of opinion on this important subject. A well-known London optician is of the opinion that "a picture show finds out the weak spots in one's eyesight. The constantly changing lights on the screen tend to irritate eyes suffering from astigmatism, and to strain the muscles. Even in the best shows there is a vibration that causes irritation to eyes that are at all weak. Picture shows tend to produce headache, which is one of the symptoms of weak eyes." This applies more particularly to those picture theaters where the films are worn or defective.

* * * * * * * * *

The secretary of the Cinematograph Defense League, an organization which represents the interests of between 600 and 700 shows throughout the country, is of the opinion that if properly operated, motion pictures were actually restful to the eye. "Medical experts," he says, "often attend these shows, but not a single complaint has ever reached us from the hundreds of establishments under our jurisdiction. I am sure there is not the slightset injury to the eyes of a child or an adult, if the pictures are properly manipulated and projected by an expert operator. But if any harm is done, it is in those small theaters where cheap, worn-out films are shown."

* * * * * * * * *

At the annual general meeting of the Glasgow City Mission, which was held recently, Lord Inverclyde presided.

The annual report made reference to the effect of "picture houses" in Police Court Caves, stating that since these had been opened in the city, especially in the Eastern District, a marked diminution of such cases had been the result. Among the comments of the police officials on these places of entertainment was an expression of opinion that they were keeping people out of the public houses. Another aspect of the question set forth was to the amount of money spent on these shows. It had been stated that in order to secure admission to these shows small boys had been known to pilfer, whilst old folk had spent their old age pensions!

* * * * * * * * *

In order to test whether the public desire Sunday cinematograph entertainments or not the Cinematograph Defense League are inserting coupons in a weekly newspaper, published in this city, to say what their views are. I shall make further reference in my notes shortly to the Sunday Opening Question.

* * * * * * * * *

Pathe & Kineto science subjects, Warwick & Barker topicals, and Essanay cowboy films predominate in the Easter programmes. The latest addition to the list of Shakespearian films is the Co-Operative Cinematograph Company's "Taming of the Shrew." This subject, which is 1,120 feet in length, and which will be released on April 29th, is a reproduction of Mr. F. R. Benson's notable renderings. A Shakespearian festival is now being held at Stratford-on-Avon, and these filmic reproductions of the work of the immortal bard should have an additional interest.

* * * * * * * * *

Important negotiations are being made on this side for the exhibition of educational films (a branch of cinematography in which Mr. Alfred Saunders takes especial interest) in many of the large schools. The suggestion is an excellent one, and the result is awaited with interest. L. W. D.

London, April 18, 1911.

Pasco, Wash.—W. J. Walker, of Montant, is making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater here.

Tolleston, Ind.—Plans are being prepared for a five-cent theater to be built on Martha Street and Second Avenue.

Navoo, Ill.—Johnson Bros., of Burlington, will open a moving picture show at the city hall.

Rome, N. Y.—J. H. Carroll will erect a new theater in the rear of the Flandrau property in East Dominic Street.

Camden, S. C.—The city opera house is to be enlarged and improved. Address Dr. S. F. Brasington, mayor.

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE

Charles Francis Jenkins, of Richmond, Indiana

Kinetographic Camera

Specification forming part of Letters Patent No. 560,800, dated May 26, 1896

Application filed December 12, 1894. Serial No. 531,556. (No model.)

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that I, Charles Francis Jenkins, of Richmond, Wayne County, State of Indiana, have invented a new and useful Kinetographic Camera, or instrument for recording any active scene and afterward reproducing the same upon a screen or otherwise, of which the following is a specification.

My invention, a combination of a photo-camera or receiver and a stereopticon or deliverer, consists, generally speaking, of a moving sensitive continuous film upon which pictures are photographed by the action of light through a number of lenses revolving around a common axis, and in the reproduction of these pictures by passing an electric or other suitable light through them and through properly-operated lenses upon a ground-glass plate, screen or other prepared surface.

In the accompanying drawings, forming a part of this specification, like symbols refer to like parts wherever they occur, in which—

Fig. 1.

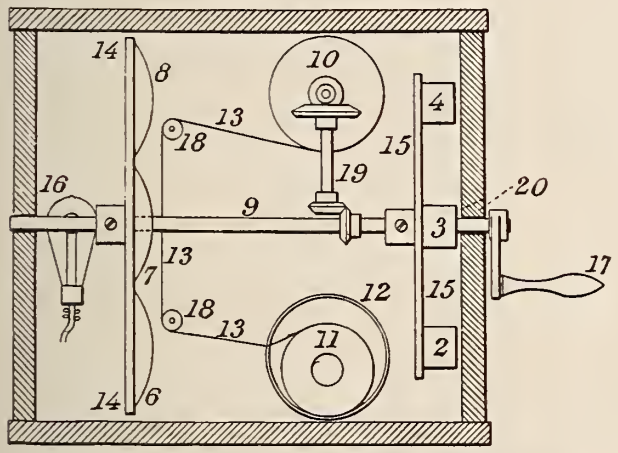

Figure 1 is a sectional elevation of the phantoscope, showing the relative positions of the different parts and in which, to avoid confusion, the frame construction is omitted. Fig. 2 is an end view showing by dotted lines the shutter and lenses mounted thereon.

In the drawings, the numerals 1, 2, 3 and 4 represent the lenses mounted on the circular shutter 15, which is rigidly secured to the shaft 9.

12 is a light-tight box, through a slit in the length of which the negative film 13 (say three inches in width and of indefinite length) from the roll 11 thereof is drawn around the small rollers 18 and 18 and wound upon the drum 10, the result of motion communicated from the main shaft 9 through the shaft 19. An opening in the end of the machine, through which the light is admitted by the passing of the lenses, is shown at 20 in Fig. 2 and by dotted lines 20 in Fig. 1.

14 is a circular plate carrying four condensing-lenses, of which three, designated 6, 7 and 8, are shown, for condensing the rays of light from the lamp 16.

In Fig. 2 lens 1 is in position to make a photograph upon the sensitive film 13, Fig. 1. If shutter 15, upon which this lens and also lenses 2, 3 and 4 are mounted, be now revolved upon its axis in the direction of the dotted arrow, it will bring the lenses 2, 3 and 4 successively before the opening 20. As each lens passes the opening a photograph is made upon the film; but as the film is wound upon the drum 10 by being connected with the shaft 9 through the shaft 19 each picture is taken in a new place upon the film, the film and lens moving upward exactly together, the former in a straight line and the latter through a small arc. The result of the continuation of such action is a length of negative film with similar pictures photographed thereon, each picture, however, being slightly different from the preceding one, owing to the constant movement of the object photographed. This negative film is removed, developed, and a positive printed therefrom, all in the usual manner. The positive film is now rolled up and inserted in box 12 and the end of the film again made fast to the drum 10 after passing around the rollers 18 and 18. An electric current is now sent through the lamp 16, and the light therefrom passes through the condensing-lenses successively, which are placed, one each, opposite the projecting lenses 1, 2, 3 and 4 on the forward shutter 15. This rear carrier 14 is mounted on the shaft 9 and revolves in a plane parallel to the shutter 15. By operating the machine the light passes through the condensing-lens, the film, the objective lens and projects shadow-pictures upon the screen placed in position to receive them, and which are superposed upon each other so rapidly that the eye of the observer does not see each of the pictures separately, but gets the sense of one continuous picture and that having every action of the object previously photographed.

I do not wish to be understood as confining myself to the particular construction herein described, for I am aware that the same result may be accomplished by modifications of the parts and positions of the different parts of the whole and by the use of apparatus apparently wholly different. What I have discovered, however, is that photographs may be taken upon a constantly-moving negative-surface provided the rays of light from the object being photographed are made to travel synchronously therewith. Thus rays of light from the object impinge upon the negative and travel along with it without movement from their respective positions on the negative until shut off entirely. In reproducing the pictures the same action takes place, but in a reverse direction—that is, light passes out through the surface carrying the pictures and impinges upon the eye or upon a screen placed to receive it.

Fig. 2.

What I claim as my invention, therefore, and wish to protect by Letters Patent, is—

1. The combination, in a photocamera device, of a casing, lenses revoluble about a common axis therein, means for supporting and advancing a sensitive tape in the focus of said lenses, and mechanically adapted to produce discrete photographic impressions on said sensitive tape, substantially as described.

2. In a picture-exhibiting device, the combination of two or more lenses revoluble about a common axis, means for supporting and advancing in the focus of said lenses a surface upon which are arranged a series of pictures of an object in motion, and a lighting device mechanically adapted and so located as to illuminate and project said pictures onto a suitable receiving-surface, substantially as described.

3. A device for producing animated pictures, comprising a casing, a shaft revoluble therein, a forward and an after lens-carrier mounted upon said shaft, rollers for supporting a film, a roller, shaft and gearing for feeding the film forward, a light-tight box holding an unused film, and a lighting device, all substantially as described herein.

4. A device for producing animated pictures, comprising a casing, a shaft revoluble therein, a lens-carrier mounted upon said shaft, rollers for supporting a film, a roller, shaft and gearing for feeding the film forward, and a light-tight box for holding the unused film, substantially as set forth herein.

5. A device for producing animated pictures, comprising a casing, a shaft revoluble therein, a forward and an after lens-carrier mounted upon said shaft, rollers for supporting a film, a roller and gearing for feeding the same forward, and an electric lamp or other suitable illuminating device, substantially as set forth.

6. A device for producing animated pictures, comprising a casing, a lens-carrier mounted upon said shaft, rollers for supporting the film, a roller and gearing for feeding forward the same, substantially as described.

7. A device for producing animated pictures, comprising a casing, a forward and an after rotating lens-carrier, means for revolving them synchronously, means for supporting and feeding a film, a light-tight box holding an unused film, and a lamp, all substantially as described herein.

8. A device for producing animated pictures, comprising a casing, a lens-carrier revoluble therein, means for supporting and continuously feeding a film, and a light-tight box, substantially as set forth herein.

9. A device for producing animated pictures, comprising a casing, a forward and an after lens-carrier, means for revolving them synchronously, means for supporting and feeding a film, and an electric lamp or other suitable illuminating device, substantially as set forth.

10. A device for producing animated pictures, comprising a casing, a forward and an after lens-carrier, and means for supporting and feeding a film, substantially as described.

11. A device for producing photographic impressions, comprising a casing, means for supporting therein and continuously feeding a strip of sensitive tape synchronously with a moving lens mechanically adapted to produce discrete photographic impressions by causing light reflected from the object photographed to intermittently fall upon and move synchronously with said sensitive tape, substantially as described.

12. An apparatus for exhibiting pictures, comprising means for supporting and feeding a picture-carrying surface so as to cause the pictures thereon to be successively exposed in an illuminated field, means for illuminating and projecting the pictures exposed in said field, and means for causing the resultant picture-carrying light to maintain such movement that the axes of the successive positions of the projected light shall always remain parallel, substantially as described. C. FRANCIS JENKINS.

Witnesses:
J. B. Hull,
D. H. Borches.

ANOTHER SUBSTITUTE FOR CELLULOID

(From Consul General Frank D. Hill, Frankfort, Germany.)

A German chemist, Dr. A. Eichengruen, is reported to have discovered an incombustible substitute for celluloid. Numerous attempts have been made to find an acetylcellulose product that would replace celluloid, which is made of nitrocellulose. Incombustible compounds have been obtained, but none which could take the place of celluloid. The acetylcellulose products could not be used in the manufacture of all sorts of objects as can celluloid. For instance, it is impossible to make objects more than one-fourth of a millimeter in thickness out of cellit, of which incombustible cinematograph films are made.

Dr. Eichengruen's product, called "cellon" (also an acetylcellulose product) is reported to furnish a satisfactory commercial substitute for celluloid which can be made into all sorts of objects. According to reports, it can be colored in any way that celluloid can, and also be made to imitate tortoise shell. When brought into contact with a flame "cellon" melts, but does not take fire. By a similar process Dr. Eichengruen secures a "cellon" varnish. According to newspaper reports, preparations have been made to manufacture "cellon" and "cellon" objects on a large scale.—(Daily Consular and Trade Reports, April 29.)

Norfolk, Va.—Moses L. Hofheimer will erect a new theater at Granby and Charlotte Streets.

St. Louis, Mo.—Woods & Nathan will erect a new theater at 3525 Olive Street, to cost $75,000.

La Crosse, Wis.—Mr. John Green will erect a new theater at 813 Rose Street.

Miss Julia Marie Taylor, leading lady of the Thanhouser Company, hails from Fort Wayne, Indiana, and her very first theatrical engagement was as a leading woman, playing in that capacity for Creston Clarke in classic repertoire. She then became identified with the celebrated Fawcett Stock Company, of Baltimore, and among her greatest successes there was Lady Babbie, which she played for eight weeks. Miss Taylor then appeared in leading feminine parts with such artists as Richard Mansfield, in "The Merchant of Venice"; Walter Edwards, in "The Redemption of David Corson"; S. Miller Kent, in "Fighting Bob"; Frank Gilmore, in "The Liars"; Orrin Johnson, in "The Man of the Hour," and was made a feature of Keith's Philadelphia Stock Company. In her latest leading roles in the Thanhouser pictures, she appears as King Louis' ward in "The Poet of the People" and Bernick's wife in "Pillars of Society," and she will shortly be seen as the singer in "The Stage Child" and Violet Gray in "The Court's Decree."

IMP A, B, C.

Carl Laemmle, the indefatigable and consistent exploiter of Imp films, has another innovation in the way of an advertising novelty that is at once unique and effective. It is a handsome booklet printed in colors, a triumph of the printer's skill, and it is entitled "The Imp Book," the A, B, C of moving pictures." The evolution of the picture from studio or "location" to the finished product is charmingly told in rhyme with appropriate illustrations in which the "Imps" are shown posing for pictures and engaging in the making of films. The little book is at once ornate and instructive in an amusing way and cannot fail to arouse interest in moving pictures and especially in the "Imp" product. It will be furnished exhibitors and thus scattered broadcast all over the country. Mr. Laemmle, the hustling president of The Independent Moving Pictures Company of America, is to be congratulated on conceiving such an original method of advertising and at the same time furnishing patrons of moving picture houses with such a charming and instructive booklet.

FRIESE GREENE'S PROCESS

The Highway Theater, Kings Highway and East 14th Street, Brooklyn, opened Wednesday, April 19th. Arrangements had been made to have Mr. Friese Greene, the original inventor of motion pictures, direct the first public projection of his latest invention, namely "Motion Pictures Photographed in Their Natural Colors," not a tinted film nor a hand-colored film. Mr. Greene was called to England in regard to making some motion pictures of the Coronation, and was unable to be present. He has assured Mr. Rockwell, the manager that immediately on his return from England, the latter part of this month, that he will direct the projection of this film at the Highway Theater.

COMING —MILES OF SMILES It's a Winner
A real reel of comedy entitled
"AN EXCEPTION TO THE RULE" It's a
Released, Thursday Rex day, May 18th, 1911 Rex

MAY 15 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS SCENARIOS

Copyright by Alfred H. Saunders

SYNOPSIS OF "A MOVING PICTURE ROMANCE"

Miss B. C. Nemone

Jim Smith is smitten by the beauty of a young girl whom he sees leaving her home. He follows her to a moving picture studio, meeting many mishaps on the way. He follows her into the office and learns that she is an actress employed by the company. He forces his way into the studio by deceiving the office staff with the story that he is specially engaged to play the lead in the picture they are then producing. In the studio he breaks up the rehearsal, persuading the stage director that he has been engaged by the business manager for the rôle in question. He is engaged. The drama is called "The Obdurate Father." In the first scene he sues for the hand of the millionaire's daughter. Her father drives him from the house, and then takes the girl away in his auto. The second act takes place at the millionaire's country house. After a strong scene between father and daughter father goes to play golf. Smith enters and persuades the girl to elope. They are discovered by a servant, who heads them off and warns the girl's father. He chases them across the links. Smith jumps into an auto and forces the chauffeur to drive off. Father follows them in another, and is overtaking them. The first car just crosses the railroad tracks in time to escape being smashed by a train that actually does touch the rear of the car, causing the chauffeur to lose his nerve and the girl to faint. Father catches them, denounces the abductor, carries the girl to his car only to find that it is out of commission. Smith offers his car, and the father, touched by his magnanimity, relents. They start for the house, but on the way are alarmed by the girl's condition and decide to keep on to the studio. The girl revives on the way, and when the others enter the studio Smith bribes the chauffeur to drive to the girl's home. Arrived there the chauffeur speeds away. Smith assists girl to porch. Nobody home. Smith declares his love, and after some hesitation is accepted. Parents arrive. Explanations follow. They give their consent. Moving Picture Company calls to enquire for the girl. They learn of engagement. Congratulations.

Curtain.

A MOVING PICTURE ROMANCE

Cast: Jim Smith, Miss Lily Jones and a moving picture company.

First scene. The Meeting and Pursuit.

Smith is passing a house; he stops, smitten by the beauty of a young girl descending the front steps. He watches her start out and then follows her. He takes all kinds of chances, climbs on cars when the conductor is closing the door and falls back into the street. When she leaves the car he waits until she is off before descending. The conductor starts the car before he can step clear, and he is thrown again. He picks himself up and follows his divinity until she enters a large building, bearing a sign ——— Company Studio.. He stands for a moment nonplussed and then makes up his mind to enter.

Second Scene. The Studio.

Miss Jones enters the office and after a moment's conversation passes into the studio. Smith rushes in. He is halted by the office staff, but puts up a strong bluff that he has an appointment with the stage director who wants him for a certain part. The staff hesitate and before they can stop him he passes on into the studio. The stage director is just posing a group, with a handsome man placed in the pose of a lover to Miss Jones. Smith almost assaults the director in the endeavor to persuade him that he has been sent for by the directors to take the part of the lover. After an argument the stage director lets him dress.

Third Scene. The Actor Lover.

The studio is all arranged to take an interior scene, and the actors are standing about grumbling at something; the stage director is tearing his hair at the delay caused by one of the cast. Smith enters in the guise of the leading man, and the scene of him being refused the hand of the millionaire's daughter is enacted. He is spurned and driven out of the house. The millionaire then tells his daughter to dry her tears as they are useless, and that he is going to take her to the country (Europe on ship or the Wild West on train will do as well) in his motor car.

Fourth Scene: "The Play's the Thing."

Smith as an actor stands disconsolate outside the house of the millionaire. The door opens. Smith retires behind a tree. A servant looks out and whistles. A motor car drives up and the heroine is escorted out and forced into it by her father. Smith in desperation lets down the baggage rack at the back of the car, ensconces himself thereon and takes a wild ride. As the car passes through the gates of a country estate, it strikes a jog and Smith is thrown off in the dust. As he picks himself up a dog chases him, forces him to climb a tree and then after hesitating for a little (ad lib) walks slowly away. Smith descends the tree and tries to fix up his clothes.

Fifth Scene. The Play Continued.

Smith is seen climbing over the wall of a country estate. On the porch of a fine house the millionaire is seen trying to persuade his daughter to join him in a game of golf. She refuses and after admonishing her he departs with his caddy. Smith, after climbing the wall, drops over and falls heavily; he picks himself up and limps toward the house, his step becoming more and more supple as he proceeds. He arrives at the house and after reconnoitering the place with great care he climbs the railing at the side of the porch. His lady love is alarmed and thinks him a burglar u[illegible] good look at him when she falls into his a[illegible] him to go before her father returns as hi[illegible] gerous. Smith (dramatically) refuses to [illegible] and urges her to fly with him. She at last c[illegible] get away from the house. A servant comi[illegible] porch sees them running and runs after them. He soon gives it up, stops and thinks and realizes that he can head them off and rushes by a short cut to the links where he tells the father. The lovers emerge in sight, and the father, brandishing his driver, chase after them. They climb into an auto standing by the links and persuade the chauffeur to start his car which he does just as the old man reaches out his hand to grasp the handle of the door. The old man hurls his club after the car, climbs into another one and chases them.

Fifth Scene. "A Mad Elopement."

The two cars are rushing along a road toward a railroad crossing. The first car is slowly but surely being overhauled. The chauffeur of the first car urged on by the lovers takes the chance and dashes across as a train approaches; the train just touches the rear part of the car and throws it around but does no damage beyond causing the heroine to faint and the chauffeur to lose his nerve and stop the car. The other car stops before it collides with the train and the father runs across the tracks as soon as it has passed; he clasps his daughter in his arms and attempts to drive the lover away. He starts back to his own car only to find that it has broken down. The lover at once puts his car at the disposal of the father, and he, touched by the offer, relents. They place the girl in the car and find that the strain has in reality been too much for her. They become alarmed and decide to return to the city and the studio at once, without returning to the house of the "picture millionaire." As they speed along they are halted by cops and blockades of the road, but finally arrive at the studio once more, and all enter the office except Smith, Miss Jones and the chauffeur.

Sixth Scene. "All's Well That Ends Well."

Smith is lifting Miss Jones to carry her into the office. She regains consciousness and asks to be taken home at once. Smith persuades the chauffeur to do as she wishes, and they start off. Finally arriving at the house where Jones had first seen his inamorata. They dismiss the chauffeur. Smith is very liberal, and gets him to drive away at once. Smith has to support Miss Jones up the walk and steps. He rings the bell. Nobody home. They sit on the porch. Smith declares his love, and tells her that he is not a poor actor but a rising young business man. Miss Jones is coy at first but softens under the pressure of Jones's warmth, and the history of his adventures during the day. She accepts him and they embrace. Her parents arrive. Smith tells them his story. They consent. The lovers embrace. The parents smile. The manager of the picture show calls with the cast of the piece they played and when they hear the news, they also congratulate the happy couple.

Curtain.

A Correction

In the note of the Motion Picture Operators' Benevolent Association ball, I unintentionally assigned my old friend Mr. Hodges, who is with Harry A. Mackie, as being with the Edison Co. Mr. Harry A. Mackie is very fortunate in having such a good man connected with him and naturally wants the people to know it.

Cleveland, Ohio.—A new theater building will occupy the site of the Guenther Building, at 1103 Euclid Avenue.

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E. E.

Alternating Current Generators, Polyphase Generators

We are now in a position to consider the question of polyphase generators. A polyphase generator is an alternator which not only delivers more than one alternating current, but, moreover, delivers this plurality of alternating currents in phases which differ from one another by a definite amount. Thus a three-phase alternator delivers three alternating currents which differ in phase from one another by one-third of a cycle.

Briefly, the principle of polyphase alternators consists in providing the armature of the alternator with coils grouped in sets of two, three or more, which come successively into action in each period.

In the previous articles we have learned that the armatures are stationary and the magnetic fields revolves. Indeed, in the majority of modern alternators, whether single-phase or polyphase, the field magnets revolve while the armature is stationary. The reason for this, as stated before, derives from the greater facility with which insulation of the windings can be insured if the armature is stationary; and this becomes of great importance when, for the purpose of transmission to a great distance, high voltages are used.

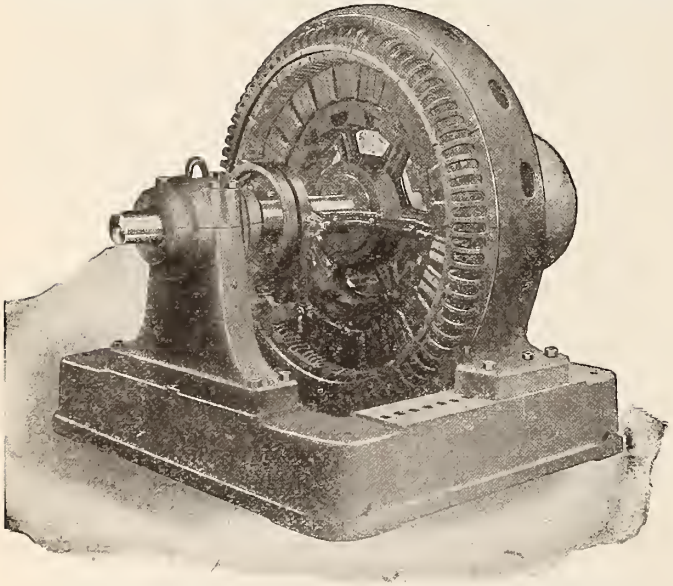

FIGURE 36—WESTINGHOUSE POLYPHASE GENERATOR

Now let us consider the case of a simple stationary armature, for instance, an iron ring with two coils wound upon it at the opposite parts and a revolving field magnet of the two-pole type.

Let us say that we have two such machines, one serving as a generator and requiring to be driven by a steam engine or turbine, the other one running as a synchronous motor. It is well kown that such a motor will not be self-starting. It must be started by hand or by some other means and run up to speed before it can be connected to the supply circuit, and when so started runs in absolute synchronism with the generator, its counter electromotive being in almost opposite phase.

NEW RULING OF FIRE UNDERWRITERS MOVING PICTURE EQUIPMENT

Arc Lamp Used as a Part of a Moving Picture Machine:—44. Must be constructed, so far as practicable, similar to arc lamps of theaters, and wiring to same must not be of less capacity than No. 6 B. & S. gauge.

Rheostats:—45. Must conform to rheostats requirements for theater arcs.

Top and Bottom Reels:—46. Must be enclosed in steel boxes or magazines, each with an opening of approved construction at bottom or top, so arranged as not to permit entrance of flame to magazine. No solder is to be used in the construction of these magazines. The front side of each magazine must consist of a door spring-hinged and swinging horizontally and he provided with a substantial latch.

Automatic Shutter:—47. Must be provided and must be so constructed as to shield the film from the beam of light whenever the film is not running at operating speed. Shutter must be permanently attached to the gate frame.

Extra Films:—48. Must be kept in individual metal boxes equipped with tight-fitting covers.

Machine Operation:—49. Must be operated by hand. (Motor driven will not be permitted.)

Machine Enclosure:—50. Machine must be placed in an enclosure or house made of suitable fireproof material; must be properly ventilated, properly lighted and large enough for operator to walk freely on either side of or back of machine. All openings into this booth must be arranged so as to be entirely closed by doors or shutters constructed of the same or equally good fire-resisting material as the booth itself. Doors or covers must be arranged so as to be held normally closed by spring hinges or equivalent devices.

Reels Containing Films Under Examination or in Process of Rewinding:—51. Must be enclosed in magazines similar to those required for moving picture machines, or in other approved metal boxes.

Some Good Projection This

The other evening while exploring the wilds of Jersey City I happened into the Academy of Music on York street with a view of finding out what kind of projection they had there and after viewing the picture for a length of time which I considered necessary for any bad defects to develop I marveled at the clearness and brightness of the picture. I began to think that there was a direct current arc behind it and knowing that all juice used for lighting in Jersey City was alternating current and that the only direct current in Jersey was the trolley line I started to investigate, wondering if they were swiping trolley juice.

I wended my way up to the operating booth and was greeted by Mr. James Girvin, who informed me that he was using A. C.. and knowing Mr. Girvin from past performances as a master of projection my wonderment ceased. I could go on writing about the different things I saw in this booth, but space will not permit.

King's Highway Casino, Parkville, Brooklyn

The above open air motion picture theater will open their park about May 25th, with an entire new equipment. Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," furnished 540 waterproof arm chairs of the latest approved type.

Mr. Hallberg also reports a duplicate order of three Standard Hallberg economizers for export to Brazil.

Investigation by Jersey City, N. J., Officials

The Jersey City, N. J., officials are going after the motion picture playhouses at a rate that will make some of the managers sit up and take notice, and fix up their houses as well as securing first-class operators. From all reports, the officials claim that many of the operators in the small store theaters are only boys, who know nothing at all about operating a picture machine, and it is expected that many of these cheap show managers will soon be in the grasp of the law.

The Motion Picture Operators' Benevolent Association

Notice has been sent in to me by the above that any operator holding a New York card wishing to join the above can secure application blanks from any of the following officers: Robert Goldblat, president; El DeCosta, vice-president; Robert Sanders, recording secretary; Jacob Cohen, financial secretary; Henry Weinberger, treasurer; Sol Spivok, sergeant-at-arms; James Daisie, James Girvan and Jessie Levine.

THEATRICAL ELECTRIC CALCIUM PICTURE AND PROJECTING MACHINE OPERATORS' UNION.

OF NEW YORK AND VICINITY

Local 35 I. A. T. S. E. Affiliated A. F. of L.
C .F .U. of New York
C. L. U. of Brooklyn

April 28, 1911.

To Editor of Moving Picture News,
New York City.

Dear Sir:

Following is the official scale of wages of the Auxiliary Local 35. Kindly insert in your next issue.

At a regular stated meeting of Auxiliary Local 35 I. A. T. S. E., the following schedule was adopted as the salary to be paid moving picture machine operators to take effect June 15, 1911.

Two-man or double shift, no less than $18 per week.

One-man or single shift, afternoon and evening, no less than $21 per week.

Open air or evenings only, no less than $18 per week.

Road show men no less than $35 per week.

This is the official scale and all Union operators are requested to take notice and act accordingly.

Attest

W. D. LANG, President — JOHN S. CLARK, Cor. Secretary.

Iowa City, Ia.—Will S. Collier, of Cedar Rapids, has purchased the Coldren Theater from C. C. Coldren, of Chicago.

Evansville, Ind.—Columbia Theater, capital $2,000, Phillip Skora, Philip Raphael and T. Skora.

Council Bluffs, Ia.—A new vaudeville house, to cost $15,000 will be erected.

Civilizing with Moving Pictures

A popular song among American soldiers in the Philippines, sung to the tune of "Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching," contains the lines:

"Beneath the starry flag
We'll civilize 'em with the 'krag.'"

On the principle that "the only good Indian is a dead Indian," the efficacy of the Krag-Jorgenson rifle as a civilizer may be conceded, but Dean C. Worcester, Secretary of the Interior for the Philippines, tells of what appears to be a better way. Professor Worcester has submitted a report to Washington and in it he details the wonderful results that have been achieved among a number of wild Philippine tribes by the use of moving pictures.

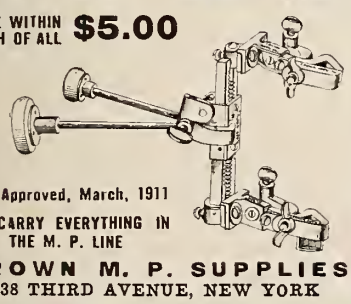
Proceeding on the theory that a clean environment is needed to make a clean people, efforts have been directed to teaching the wild tribes the benefits of sanitary villages. It has been difficult to communicate the desired lessons by word of mouth alone. It is difficult to put the principles of sanitary science into the language of wild peoples, and right here the moving pictures have proved their great value. The natives of the non-Christian tribes have lived in appalling squalor, but when shown pictures of better conditions, contrasted with the old, have manifested a most encouraging disposition to profit by the lesson.

Naturally, the pictures are not devoted entirely to demonstrating the value of sanitation. Scenes from native and foreign life are shown and the novelty of the picture machine itself enlists the interest of the aborigines. Once the interest has been gained, a basis of helpful work is established and in a comparatively short time remarkable results have been achieved. Professor Worcester speaks particularly of changes in a non-Christian tribe in a Moro province which he describes thus:

"Here very extensive lines of communication have been opened up by the building of roads and trails and the clearing of rivers. A good state of public order has been established. Head-hunting, slavery and piracy are now very rare. The liquor traffic has been almost completely suppressed. Life and property have been rendered comparatively safe, and in much of the territory entirely so. In many instances the wild men are being successfully used to police their own country. Agriculture is being developed. Unspeakably filthy towns have been made clean and sanitary. The people are learning to abandon human sacrifices and animal sacrifices and to come to the doctor when injured or ill. Numerous schools have been established and are in successful operation. The old sharply drawn tribal lines are disappearing. Bontoc Igorots, Ifugaos and Kalingas now visit each other's territory. At the same time that all of this has been accomplished the good will of the people has been secured."—Louisville (Ky.) Courier.

Atlanta, Ga.—P. Mion has sold the Alamo Theater to W. T. Murray, who will erect a new theater on Peachtree Street.

THE FINEST AND BEST LAMP ON THE MARKET
PRICE WITHIN REACH OF ALL $5.00



N. Y. Approved, March, 1911
WE CARRY EVERYTHING IN THE M. P. LINE
CROWN M. P. SUPPLIES
138 THIRD AVENUE, NEW YORK

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES
REPAIRED
by skilled mechanics at short notice and reasonable prices. Work guaranteed.
Supplies of All Kinds.
CHAS. E. DRESSLER,
388 2nd Ave., City, near 23rd St.
Take elevator.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!
Lubin Cineograph, 1906, only $35. Motion Picture Machines $35 Up. Powers Cameragraph No. 5 complete $75. Edison Model B One Pin Low, Stereopticon Jet and Model B Gas Outfit, cost $67, only $35. Get Supplement 33 Great Bargain list.
MOTION PICTURE MACHINES WANTED
HARBACH & CO., 809 Filbert St., Phila.

Advertisers want results. When writing to them it is our due that you mention The Moving Picture News

COMING—MILES OF SMILES
A real reel of comedy entitled
"AN EXCEPTION TO THE RULE"
Released, Thursday Rex day, May 18th, 1911
It's a Winner
It's a
Rex

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

A MOTHER'S DISTRESS
Eclair Release, May 22

Little Rose, daughter of the Railroad Gate-Keeper, has jumped out onto the tracks to recover her ball. A train is approaching, and the mother is just about to close the gates to stop a large touring car, when she notices that her little girl has fallen near the rails. Even in that brief moment of terror, her sense of duty takes possession of her, and she realizes that she must save the people in the touring car at all costs. The moment is one brimfull of agony. The train dashes by—the touring party has been stayed, and, happily, the child has rolled away from the rails and is unhurt. But the terrified mother has lost her mind. The grateful tourists take her to their home, where all treatment fails. At last the physician places the child in the roadway in sight of its mother and has an auto car bear down upon the little tot—the familiar tooting of the horn, the apparent danger of her child have the desired effect—her reason is at last restored, and she clasps her child to her breast in an agony of happiness.

THE WAISTCOAT WITH POINTS

Poor Mr. Casimir is badly treated by his wife and mother-in-law. One day he notices an ad: "Wear the marvelous waistcoat with points, which enables one to travel in the subway without being crushed—every one makes room for the wearer!" Mr. C. makes the purchase. He finds that the article, although it has the advantages claimed, has many drawbacks, which occasion many a laugh at Mr. C.'s expense, but it has the desired effect, and now he knows the joys of unalloyed domestic bliss.

ENGAGED IN SPITE OF THEMSELVES
Eclair Release, May 15

Mr. Cabassol and Mr. Lacassagne plan to bring about the marriage of their children, Claire and Frederick. The young people object, as both of them are secretly engaged already. At last Claire has an idea; they will write anonymous letters to each of the parents—Claire's father is informed that his future son-in-law is a confirmed drunkard, and the doting parents of Frederick are made aware that the fiancee of their darling son is the victim of a terrible nervous disease. The two plotters suit their actions to the deception, and next time they meet in the presence of their elders, Fred's nose is made to resemble a fine ripe cherry, and Claire appears about to collapse on the spot. The parents can think of nothing but some way to side-step this pending misfortune.

When matters have reached the climax, Frederick writes a letter to himself, calling him to Paris on urgent business. Claire's parents are delighted that he is about to make his departure so soon. Before parting, however, Claire and Frederick meet to congratulate each other—they show one another photographs of their sweethearts, and both express dissatisfaction. Fred says Claire's fiance is bad looking; Claire thinks Fred's is too inelegant, and in mutual disgust they tear up the offending photos. Each is moved more than they care to show, by their impulsive actions—at last they dare to glance at each other, and the next moment each is clasped in the other's fond embrace—they love, and are engaged in spite of themselves. Without further delay, they confess to their parents their naughty stratagem, and all ends in the most desirable fashion.

GEN. MARION, THE SWAMP FOX
Champion Release, May 15

In no period of American history, and in no other part of the country was romance in its most imaginative form outdone as in the days of the revolution, and in the commonwealths of the Carolinas and Georgia; and of all the heroes of that epoch—and the names of Pickens, Sumter, Greene and many others shine forth with marked lustre—the name of none stands out in bolder relief than does that of General Francis Marion.

The deeds of daring of this fearless patriot amazed the Britishers; the very mention of his name made the stoutest of hearts quake, and sent consternation into many a camp and bivouac. In a wonderfully realistic manner some of his many striking performances are reproduced in this most remarkable story of "Marion's Men."

The "Swamp Fox," as the cruel and crafty Tarleton dubbed him, is portrayed with a rare fidelity of historical truth. Some of the incidents of his career, graphically depicted, are here interwoven with his startling feats at the fall of Fort Watson, in April, 1781, and the great victory won at Eutaw Springs, which was fought in the same year.

The companions of this wonderful genius were akin to him in many respects. Here, for instance, his right bower in his dare-deviltries was a BISHOP of the church, who on occasions donned the purple robes of office to minister its functions, and then doffed them again for "the belted sword and the cocked hat." Then the women—the loyal, true-hearted women of that period of trial and suffering—are here shown in all their fortitude—fortitude worthy of the noble Francis Marion.

As a picture, depicting historical truths of the days of the revolution, and of the men and women of the time, it is bound to hold a high place in FILM PORTRAITURE. But, apart from this, there is a special appeal to old and young, in the story of love and intrigue, which it tells in a vein most quaint and with a termination most happy.

CIRCLE C'S NEW BOSS
Champion Release, May 17

Here is a tale of the West, told in a straight, simple fashion, but for all that, one that is sure to have a gripping hold on you from the flash of the title to the white spot on the screen at the close.

The girl in the story, Ethel Hanna, resides in the East. Her Uncle William is a wealthy ranchman, living in Arizona. One day a lawyer comes to Ethel and gives her word of her uncle's demise, and the further information that she is his sole legatee. With beating heart she calls her maid and packs her belongings and sets forth on a long journey to the West to claim her inheritance and to rule as mistress over her late uncle's great cattle ranch.

The latter had died in a wild paroxysm of rage, brought about through the conduct of his foreman, Steve King, and some of the disorderly cowpunchers of the place. Steve, who is an unscrupulous fellow, is quick to take advantage of his employer's sudden death, so he immediately sets about confiscating some valuable documents, which also includes the last will and testament of the old ranchman. The assistant foreman, however, one Harry Newton, a young cowpuncher of sterling worth, frustrates the evil designs of the foreman and rescues his late employer's property from the hands of the villain. It is his good fortune, a short time afterwards, to rescue the ranchman's fair niece from the same rascally hand.

Ethel arrives at the ranch in time to witness a quarrel between Steve and Harry. She interferes. Steve, unaware of her identity, brutally challenges her right to interfere. He does this to his sorrow, for the next minute he is discharged and driven from the place by the cowpunchers under orders of their new mistress.

Harry is now made foreman, having won favor in the eyes of the girl from the East. He, in turn, appoints Jack Wilson his assistant, and Jack straightaway falls in love with Ethel Hanna's maid, who has accompanied her on her trip to the West. In the meantime the villainous ex-foreman plans to circumvent the new mistress and get her in his power; by a subterfuge he succeeds in getting her away with him on horseback. Then comes a wild ride, with Harry Newton and the rest of the boys in a fierce chase. Subsequently a fight to the death occurs between King and Newton—the latter triumphant over his enemy and rival.

It is not to be wondered then that the fair Ethel bestows her hand and fortune on the dashing Harry. The story is replete with splendidly dramatic situations and stirring incidents, but, withal, cleanly constructed throughout.

THE OPIUM SMUGGLER
American Release, May 8

Bonnie is the daughter of Peter Watson, a fisherman, who derives a comfortable living for himself and family from the historic waters of old Monterey Bay, on the California coast.

Watson has chosen as a husband for his daughter Tony Laredo, who, with no apparent vocation, lives a life of ease. Bonnie, however, is in love with Ned Raymond, a young fisherman, and this love is returned with interest. Ned is suspicious of Laredo, and discovers him at the illicit traffic of opium smuggling.

While spying upon the smugglers at work in their den he is attacked from behind, falls from a cliff, is carried to the den and left still unconscious. He soon recovers, however, and surprising Laredo at work in the entrance to the den, takes him captive.

Watson, who has gone out in his boat to fish, is delayed, far beyond his usual time of return, and his wife is greatly worried. Leaving Bonnie to guard the prisoner, Ned and Mrs. Watson go to the shore, and discover Watson, his boat capsized, battling with the waves. Two men have just landed on the beach, and Ned, jumping into the boat, commands them to make haste that they may save the drowning man.

After a strenuous battle with the waves, Watson is rescued more dead than alive, rowed to the beach and carried to the cottage. With the application of restoratives he soon recovers, is told of the smuggling operations of Laredo, and in gratitude to Ned, who has rescued him from a watery grave, calls Bonnie, places her hand in that of Ned, and bids them be happy.

THE SHERIFF'S CAPTIVE
American Release, May 11

Dan Hawkins, a rancher of Skull Valley, Arizona, going to the postoffice for his mail, recognizes a man standing near, pulls his gun, shoots the man down and rides hastily away.

The loitering cowpunchers hasten with news of the tragedy to the home of Fred Weller, the sheriff, who, bidding his mother good-bye, saddles his broncho, and is off on the trail of the assassin, saying to the boys, "If I am not back in two days, come after me."

Nell, Hawkins' daughter, awaits her father's return, and greets him joyfully. He is much depressed, and thrusting a note into her hand, bids her good-bye and rides away. Nell reads the note:

"My Dear Daughter:—Fifteen years ago your mother ran away with another man. To-day I killed him. I have made provision for your future. I am leaving this country. Good-bye. Your Father."

The sheriff reaches Hawkins' cabin and encounters Nell, who denies knowledge of the whereabouts of her father. Weller, however, discovers the hoofprints of Hawkins' horse, and starts on the trail. The next evening, by aid of his field glasses, he discovers Hawkins asleep, his horse unsaddled standing near. He stealthily steals upon the sleeping man, secures his gun and takes him prisoner. Hawkins pleads to be permitted to see his daughter. Arriving at the cabin, Nell and her father go inside, while Weller, exhausted from many hours in the saddle, drops upon a bench and is soon fast asleep. Nell comes from the cabin, purloins from the sheriff the key to the handcuffs, releases her father, who rides away, she placing the handcuffs upon her own wrists. Weller awakens and is astounded. The girl tells him what she has done, and demands that she be taken in her father's stead.

The cowpunchers, meanwhile, have set out in search of the sheriff, and meet him and Nell on the trail, Weller explaining, "My prisoner escaped, but I captured his daughter."

He takes Nell to his home, explains to his mother, who gives the girl a warm welcome. The new love grows apace, and in the end we find Nell handcuffing herself to Weller, promising to be "His prisoner for life."

THE COLONEL AND THE KING

Thanhouser Release, May 16

Upon the death of his grandfather, little George IV of Saxonia ascends the throne at the age of seven. His reign, however, is a short one; as a usurper, backed by a number of native soldiers, attacks the palace, imprisons the boy king and seizes the reins of government.

King George is ordered executed in secret, but the man hired to do the vile deed is so touched by the youth and innocence of the little king, that instead of slaying him he spirits him out of his prison. Fearing that if discovered his life would be forfeited, the bravo places the young king with an emigrant woman, who, with others, is about to sail for America. Arriving in New York, King George makes his escape and hides in the city until his companion has been shipped to a town in the West, for which she is ticketed. The following day the little fellow is found asleep in a doorway by a burly policeman. In spite of his protestations he, too, is shipped out West, according to the directions on the immigration ticket that is found on him.

Deposited on a lonely railroad station out West, the boy becomes thoroughly frightened, and eagerly accepts the protection of an army colonel, in command of a nearby fort, who meets the child at the station and is greatly taken with his winning ways.

George's assertion that he is a king is treated as a joke by the officers and men at the fort, where he is taken by the colonel, who grows fonder of him every day.

When, some time later, a delegation arrives from the boy's kingdom, having traced him into the fort, his identity is established. They bring him news that the insurrection has been quelled and that his throne awaits him. But the little King promptly abdicates, saying he would rather grow up to be an American soldier. The disappointed delegation is forced to return home without him.

LADY CLARE

Thanhouser Release, May 19

Tennyson's poem of "Lady Clare" tells of a nurse, Alice, employed by the Earl to nurse his motherless infant daughter—the little Lady Clare.

Alice has a child of her own, also a baby girl, and when the Earl's little one dies, Alice substitutes her own child, which is brought up in luxury as the Earl's daughter, and in time inherits his vast estate.

Lord Ronald, the Earl's next-of-kin, who is really the rightful heir, spends his early years in close companionship with Alice's daughter, and when they are grown their friendship develops into love.

When Alice learns that her daughter is to be the wife of Lord Ronald, she confesses her deception, but cautions her daughter not to tell.

The girl, however, is too noble to deceive, and seeking out Lord Ronald tells him she is "a beggar born and not the Lady Clare."

Ronald, loving her for herself alone, assures her that her rank means nothing to him.

O and proudly stood she up!
Her heart within her did not fail;
She look'd into Lord Ronald's eyes,
And told him all her nurse's tale.

He laugh'd a laugh of merry scorn;
He turn'd and kiss'd her where she stood.
"If you are not the heiress born,
And I," said he, "the next in blood—

"If you are not the heiress born,
And I," said he, "the lawful heir,
We two will wed to-morrow morn,
And you shall still be Lady Clare."

THE MASTER AND THE MAN

Imp Release, May 15

Henry Jenkins, who has served his time in state's prison, is released with an admonition by the warden to lead a straight life. He promises and goes forth resolved to turn over a new leaf. He eventually seeks his former confederate in crime, Basil King, who is living in affluence, masquerading as a swell society young man.

King is not overjoyed to see his former pal, but Jenkins comes just in time, as King's butler has left and he is about to entertain lavishly. Jenkins dons the habiliments of the butler and enters upon his new duties, satisfied that he has a steady position and can be near King.

At the reception a quartette of gentlemen leave the crowded parlors for a quiet game of poker. Jenkins arranges the table and finds an opportunity to steal a bill of quite a large denomination. He is detected in the act by King, who admonishes him that he must be honest in order to retain his position.

King loves Elsie Graham, a beautiful young woman, who gives her heart to Ralph Webster. Miss Graham and Mr. Webster are guests at the reception. Ralph takes advantage of an opportunity and asks Elsie to marry him and she consents. He has forgotten the ring and announces he will leave the party to get it.

Jenkins returns the bill to the card table in a clever way which is noted by King with satisfaction.

One of the guests wears an expensive necklace which is admired by all. King cannot resist the temptation to steal it and the act is noted by Jenkins. The loss is discovered and suspicion is cast upon Ralph, who left the party for a short time. The woman who loses the necklace employs the services of a clairvoyant and invites all the guests to be present at the test the following day. They accept.

King is the last to arrive. He takes a position behind a screen. The woman lapses into a state of coma and then announces that the thief who stole the necklace is in the room, being smoothly shaven. Ralph and King are the only men present devoid of hirsute appendage, and King makes off unobserved. Suspicion falls on Ralph, of course, and he is driven from the house of his fiancee by her irate father, who believes him a thief.

In his grief Ralph calls on King and tells him of the false accusation in a heart-broken manner. King, who has been refused by Elsie, is penitent, and his better nature asserts itself. He bids Ralph be of good cheer and telephones Elsie to come to his rooms. She does so, and King assures the pair that he will clear up the mystery, producing the missing necklace. They are happy and King is overcome with disappointment and is inconsolable in his grief at the happiness of his successful rival. Ralph and Elsie leave, much elated.

King summons Jenkins, gives him the necklace and a letter to take to the woman from whom the jewels were stolen. In the letter he confesses to having taken the necklace. Jenkins goes out. In the park he stops and reads the letter. He tears it in half and writes that he—Jenkins—is the thief, and that he can be found at the home of King. He delivers the necklace and letter and returns to find King dead in his chair. Jenkins overcome with emotion, burns the letter written by King, and calmly awaits the coming of the officer which is inevitable. The story ends with Jenkins once more at the office of the warden of the penitentiary, coming voluntarily, to serve time for a crime he did not commit.

THE LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER

Imp Release, May 18

The scene of the story is laid in a fishing hamlet on a rocky coast.

Tom Aikins, a sturdy fisherman, loves Polly Berry, the daughter of old Nat Berry, the keeper of the light. Bert Duncan also loves Polly and is insanely jealous of Tom.

The course of true love runs smoothly for the happy couple with the exception of an attempt on the part of Duncan to force his unwelcome attentions on Polly. He is soundly thrashed by Tom and vows vengeance.

The wedding of Tom and Polly occurs and Bert, evidently penitent, congratulates them, assuming a friendship which is feigned. With the marriage of the couple Bert takes to strong drink and becomes reckless.

Polly and her father are about to go on a fishing trip. Tom asks to accompany the girl, and the old man assents. They sail away, happy and contented. A furious storm arises and the ocean is lashed into fury. Night approaches and the fishing smack does not return. The old lighthouse keeper is apprehensive. He starts to the lighthouse to light the beacon.

Bert has been drinking heavily and he conceives a devilish scheme to wreck vengeance on his successful rival. He will go to the tower and tamper with the light, hoping Tom and his bride, unable to get their bearings in the storm, will go ashore on the treacherous rocks. He ascends the steps of the base of the light and is confronted with the keeper. He must prevent the old man from ascending to the tower and, after resorting to the bottle, he struggles with the aged keeper. There is a violent fight, and old Nat, endowed with a strength that is almost superhuman when he thinks of the peril of his daughter, overpowers the desperate young man and staggers up the stairs and lights the lamp.

The fishing boat is shown in the terrible storm. The lights of the tower flash out across the waters, showing the haven of safety.

Bert, enraged beyond reason at his failure, staggers out of the lighthouse and, endeavoring to reach the mainland, falls off the walk and is drowned. His descent down the lighthouse steps is spectacular, falling and rolling down the steps in his mad fury.

The storm continues and the ocean is shown with the waves running mountain high. The villagers congregate on the beach, praying for the safe return of the fishing smack. Finally, the waves having subsided, the boat is shown making a landing with Polly and Tom safe, to the joy of their friends, the old father being conscious that his struggle with the younger man was not in vain.

The story closes with a scene showing the body of Bert Duncan, which has been washed up on the beach by the waves.

AN INDIAN BRAVE'S CONVERSION

Yankee Release, May 15th

After many weeks' labor, Parson Rising has effected little change of heart of the bad characters that made up the community of Polker Gulch. The Sheriff and Indian were about his only converts, excepting Tom Mason, an upright young miner. The arrival of the minister's pretty daughter caused a change of sentiment, and thereafter his congregation increased.

John Bangs, a bad character, attracted by the girl, was numbered among them. Tom Mason and John Bangs became rivals in John's way of thinking, although the girl (Elsie) had shown only regard for Tom. Sagwa, the Indian, only showed his unknown love for Elsie by little offerings that were, to her, only offerings of friendship.

John, incensed at the favor shown Tom at a meeting, trails him home and, after Tom has left Elsie, meets him in the woods, where he provokes an argument. John is knocked down by Tom, who warns him never to mention her name again.

In the heat of the argument Tom leaves, forgetting his knife. John is at war with the world. Sagwa passes with flowers which he has been gathering for Elsie. John insults him by tearing up the flowers. Sagwa is thrown to the ground and beaten. John exits. Sagwa picks up the flowers, finds the knife and trails John.

John is found dead by a miner who finds Tom Mason's knife by the body. Tom is warned to fly by Elsie, who has learned the news from her father that he will be hung when caught by John's friends.

Tom takes refuge in the mountains. The lesson at the meeting-house next Sunday is "Thou Shalt Not Kill." The Indian reads; the truth is further brought home to him as he sees the despair of Elsie as the men file away on the man hunt, encouraged by a reward notice posted at the church door.

Elsie, alone in the church, the Indian enters. He regrets her pain. Word comes that Tom is captured. The Indian confesses. They mount horses and arrive just in time to save Tom from an ignoble death.

FILM CHARTS

COMMENTS ON THE RUNNING OF RELEASES OF THE WEEK, AS SEEN FROM THE FOURTEENTH STREET, UNIQUE, COMEDY AND SALES COMPANY STANDS

5 DRAMATIC TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
The Somnambulist	SOLAX	FRI., MAY 5	Walk	Gallop	Rarebits are bad before bedtime	Big	Fifteen of 'em	1
The Temptress	IMP	THUR., MAY 4	Party	Letter	Don't say too much in a letter	Big	Gilbert reading letter after shooting Bertie	1
The Sinner	THANHOUSER	FRI., MAY 5	Accident	Confession	Circumstantial evidence isn't worth much	Attentive	The sinner touched by the priest's anguish	1
Second Sight	IMP	MON., MAY 1	Flirtation	Unexpected	If your girl lives in the U. S., don't go to S. America	Fine	The finish	1
The Ultimate Sacrifice	REX	THURS., MAY 4	Coquette	Convent	A woman's wiles may harm the woman	Fine	The meeting in the convent	2
Over the Shading Edge	RELIANCE	SAT., MAY 6	Headache	Arrest	Don't discuss business in your office	Good	The parting of the lovers	2
Such Is the Kingdom	RELIANCE	WED., MAY 3	Hypocrisy	Light	Practice what you preach	Good	Old pastor welcoming daughter—at last	3
A Kentucky Girl	YANKEE	MON., MAY 1	Rivalry	Exoneration	They still run stills in "Ole Kentuck"	Hearty	Joe freeing his rival	3
For Their Mother	ECLAIR	MON., MAY 1	Want	Comfort	Nothing succeeds like success	Good	"The brothers' ruse" on the crowd	4
Zelda the Gypsy	YANKEE	FRI., MAY 5	Plot	Penalty	Don't get mixed up with Gypsies	So-so	Emmanuel asking Mrs. Hamilton to save him	4
The Crisis (with Joys of Persecution, Com. Track)	POWERS	TUES., MAY 2	Dream	Twins	Life is one blamed thing after another	Good	The announcement: "Twins!"	4
Cry of the Native Country	ITALA	THURS., MAY 4	Listless	Better	Good photography isn't the whole thing	Quiet	The cry, maybe	4

A wealth of good dramatic stuff was apparent this week, with the Thanhouser, the Imps, and the Solax looking best. All of these were given a close race by "The Ultimate Sacrifice," a wonderfully photographed tale, and "Over the Shading Edge," one of the best newspaper stories ever filmed. There was less of suicide, death and the disagreeable in this week's entries than last, which is a good sign. "The Crisis," while quite a harmless subject, did not seem very appropriate to many: it had little or no plot and only served to cause a titter among the less refined element of the audience. Other pictures aimed higher, for instance the Eclair, which told a pretty story of the ruse two boys employed to help their starving mother. Next week will have to show some strong pictures to surpass the record established on this track this week

6 COMEDY TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Crazy Gulch and Hobo's Roundup (Split Reel)	AMERICAN	THURS., MAY 4	Lesson	Getaway	No. 1—'Ware Dudes. No. 2—'Ray for a fast freight	Riot	The dude on his mettle	1
Foolshead as Life Insurance Agent (with Fountains, Rome, Educ. Track)	ITALA	FRI., MAY 5	Pursuit	Policy	Get insured	Big	Cornering the quarry	1
Susceptible Dad and Nearly a Hero (Split Reel)	SOLAX	WED., MAY 3	Masquerade	Kidnapping	No. 1—Always say "Yes" No. 2—Never deceive	Big	Dad making love to Harry	2
Lucky Banana Seller and A Would-be Sportsman (Split Reel)	GREAT NORTH	FRI., MAY 5	Luck	Hard luck	Gentlemen and sportsmen are born, not made	Big	When the sportsman shoots his human game	2
The Other Man	NESTOR	WED., MAY 3	Lover	Papa	Seeing alone is believing	Roars	When hubby caught up with his rival	3
Bill as a Toreador and Fashion's Consequences (Split Reel)	LUX	FRI., MAY 5	Bluff	Harem	A toreador can throw the bull	Fine	When Bill saw the fake bull	3
Joys of Persecution (with The Crisis, Dram. Track)	POWERS	TUES., MAY 2	Heckling	Hitched	Contrariness is characteristic of Young America	Good	The fake anger of the paters	3

The record for corking "civilization" comedies established by the American producers they now bid fair to pass with their new Western funny stuff. Reels like "Crazy Gulch" and "The Hobo's Roundup" give the Independent comedy standard a boost upward. The Itala, Great Northern and Solax "splits" came home early with ease. Still, it's one of the hardest things in the world to turn out double-subject comedy of even strength. This track had a split reel carnival this week.

7 WESTERN TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Out of the Dark	CHAMPION	TUES., MAY 2	Dance	Cure	It's kindness that makes life worth living	Impressive	The passing of the hat	1
California Love Story (with Cavalry Drill, Educ. Track)	AMERICAN	FRI., MAY 5	Mission	Marriage	Love wisely and well	Hearty	The brother overhearing Pequita's confession	2
Knight of the Trail	BISON	FRI., MAY 5	Bandit	Man	A good girl will make a bad man good	Big	The girl saving the bandit from the posse	2
Shifty's Claim	BISON	TUES., MAY 2	Girl's	Sheriff's	The office of sheriff can't make you Cupid-proof	Good	When she said "Ta-ta"	3

The top entry is about the best Champion effort of the new year; technically it shows an advance that is nothing short of marvelous to those intimate with the early Champ work, and in story it approaches the ideal Western production. If the Champion people continue to show this kind of energy, the Champ picture will be accepted as a standard one by mid-summer. "California Love Story" ran the fine, steady race that any entry from this owner puts up. "Knight of the Trail" was every jot as good as it was advertised to be and the wise theater man will nail it.

Copyrighted by Charles Reynolds, 1911

FILM CHARTS--Continued

8 EDUCATIONAL TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Awakening of Galatea	POWERS	SAT., MAY 6	Stone	Stone	Grief turns some to stone	Good	The transformation.	1
Grenadier Roland	AMBROSIO	WED., MAY 3	Spectacular	Profound	They sure can make pictures on the other side	Hearty	The death of the Grenadier	2
Ibsen's Pillars of Society	THANHOUSER	TUES., MAY 2	Disgraced	Vindicated	Let the guilty keep their blame	Good	Consul Bernick confessing all	2
Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia	CHAMPION	MON., MAY 1	Craft	Capture	A place with that name ought to be captured	Hearty	The surprise of the British	3
U. S. Cavalry Drill (with California love story, West. Track)	AMERICAN	MON., MAY 1	Camp	Drill	They could lick 600,000 Mexicans	Hearty	There's "never nothin'" big in San Anton'	4
Fountains of Rome (with Foolshead, Com. Track)	ITALA	FRI., MAY 5	Wet	Wet	That's the nearest they get to water in Italy	Good	Splash! Splash!	4
The Blue Nile (with For Their Mother, Dram. Track)	ECLAIR	MON., MAY 1	Wetter	Wettest	You're not the only thing that's blue	Good	Ripple! Ripple!	4

"Galatea," of course, came in first. "Capture of Kaskaskia" got a warmer reception than "Grenadier Roland," due to its portrayal of George Roger Clark, the American patriot, but the "Roland" reel leads in intrinsic merit. The three scenic entries being merely the tail-ends of split reels, must go last, not through a lack of strength, but purely because of their length, which is necessarily short. A split reel's final standing is, as a rule, best judged by the rating of its larger half.

DER KINEMATOGRAPH, DUSSELDORF

The leading Organ for the Motion Picture Trade in Germany.

Special Supplement for Talking Machines, &c.
Published every Wednesday. Annual Subscription 11/- Post Free.
Advertisements (4 columns to page); 2s. 6d. per inch. Situations Wanted, 1½d. per line.
Reduced Price for a Series of Insertions.
Publisher—Ed. LINTZ. Chief Editor—EMIL PERLMANN.

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"
IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE
ANIMATED PICTURE BUSINESS,
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
28 Large Pages. Eight Shillings per annum.
Editor-Proprietor: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABBRI,
1a, Via Arcivescovado Turin (Italy).
"La Cinematografia Italiana" is the official organ of the Universal Exhibition of 1911 at Turin.

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

Branches at the Following Cities

LONDON .....18 Charing Cross Rd.
PARIS .....11 Rue St. Augustin
BERLIN .....238 Friedrich Strasse
MOSCOW .....3 Glenischewsky Pereul
BARCELONA .....59 Paseo de Gracia
RIO DE JANEIRO .....A. Sestini
BUENOS AYRES.....A. Sestini
CARACAS .....Levy & Co.

And the Following Agencies

MILAN	ST. PETERSBURG	VIENNA
TURIN	ODESSA	AMSTERDAM
GENOA	KEIFF	COPENHAGEN
NAPLES	VLADIVOSTOCK	STOCKHOLM
BOLOGNA	MARSEILLES	BUDA PESTH
VENICE	BRUSSELS	FRANKFORT
DRESDEN	LILLE	LEIPSIC
TOKIO	SYDNEY	CAPE TOWN
JOHANNESBURG	LIMA	HAVANA

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK - - - - - - - - LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - - - - - - - - - 3,750,000

FULLY PAID UP - - - - - - - - - LIRE 5,750,000

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPHS: CINES NEWYORK

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" FILMS OF QUALITY

Scene From "The Nun"

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, MAY 6th

THE LUCKY BANANA SELLER

A hustling comedy

A WOULD-BE SPORTSMAN

A ludicrous trick-comedy

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, MAY 13th

THE NUN

A magnificent dramatic feature production, splendidly enacted. Exquisite toning and tinting throughout.

Great Northern Film Co.

7 East 14th St

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

All Up-to-date Independent Exchanges Handle Our Product

The Moving Picture Show the Modern Drama.

In the moving picture show of to-day is to be seen the essence of the modern drama. It is the antithesis of the ancient classic drama which thrilled the Greeks and the Romans of two thousand years ago.

In the days when drama first developed out of religious festivities, there was little or no attempt at scenic verisimilitude. Such a thing was impossible, for the art of scene painting, the closed stage, and the high artificial lighting of to-day were undreamed of. In that same day there was no action, in the strict sense of the word as it is understood to-day. Inadequate scenery prevents realistic representation, and, lacking that, all deeds of great moment were done off the stage. It was an added factor, under those conditions, that these events taking place, away from the eye of the audience, had a greater effect on the imaginative faculties of the audience. To take the place of action, the various characters were forced to stand on the stage, and declaim for many minutes concerning the deeds which they were about to perform, and which were to be impelling, the climactic, or the tragic incidents of the drama.

The modern stage has, with its intricate development, met the demands of modern life, that is, that it be able to present artificially, and intelligibly, or in such a manner as it will add to an illusion, the better part of the happenings of the modern world. But even fifty years ago, the play was mostly talk.

It remained for the moving picture to reduce the drama to its essence; a particular character, performing certain deeds under given circumstances, which are stated at the outset of the story, or play. In the course of twenty minutes you may see every detail of action that is necessary to show the most intricate workings of an impelling force and incident and its results as expressed in modern life. There is no dead wood, no timber, no twenty minute speech forthcoming from the character, which is what the playwright thought the character ought to have said under the circumstances. It is not what people think or say, but what they do that counts in life. The moving picture show can represent just this.

The result is that the moving picture play is the essence of the drama. It is the drama intensified, highly intensified, expressing the cream of social activity. The spectator is not doomed to sit through hours of moralizing or speechifying. He is in a position to see as much as he can grasp, to interpret as much as he can comprehend, in his own particular way, and for his own particular uses, of what the playwright presents to him.

New York, N. Y.—The Stainach-Hordes Co. have purchased the property at 28-32 S. Fifth Avenue, and will erect a $50,000 theater there.

ANOTHER LOBBY DISPLAY

Realizing that personalities in the moving picture business are vital factors, Carl Laemmle, of the "Imp" company, is furnishing exhibitors with the finest lobby display of picture stars ever conceived. It is a large frame of double panel containing handsome photographs of the ten leading posers of the "Imp" company. The pictures are 7 x 9 inches in size from one of the finest studios in New York, and the frame is of oak, ornate and rich in design, making the display at once attractive and an ornament to any lobby. The display will be sold to exhibitors at a price to barely cover the cost and carriage charges.

New York, N. Y.—Plans have been prepared for a new theater at Wadsworth and 181st Street, for G. L. Lawrence, to cost $50,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Sauer & Hahn have completed plans for a one-story theater at 42-48 W. Chelten Avenue, Germantown, for J. F. Zimmerman.

Geneva, N. Y.—Frank C. Pierce and Jacob F. Nagel have purchased the Dove property, on Exchange Street, and will erect a $50,000 theater.

SOLAX MILITARY PICTURES

As we go to press we are informed that the military pictures, which are a big feature of the Solax Co., are meeting with an unprecedented success, and theater managers report a large increase in patronage since featuring these releases.

ANDREWS PICTURES, Ltd.

Have been granted some exclusive positions for cinematographing THEIR MAJESTIES' CORONATION PROCESSION on June 22nd next.

Approximate length 650 feet. Code word, "Corona"

Also the ROYAL PROCESSION of June 23rd, including the Illuminations along the line of route.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Ropill"

THE REVIEW AT SPITHEAD on June 24th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Respit"

And the ROYAL PROCESSION through the North-East of London on June 29th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code Word, "Ropel"

All above subjects at 3½d (Three Pence Halfpenny) Per Foot Net.

Terms 50% Cash with Order. Balance C. O. D. to Agent or Carriers.

Address 90 CHARING CROSS ROAD, LONDON, W. C.

Cable "ANDREORA, London." Code A B C. 5th Edition.

THE GUARDSMAN

Rex Release, May 11th

History is replete with conspirators against kings, and many a monarch's blood has flowed as a result of political or personal enmity, but here is a story of how a humble inn maid was elected by fate to thwart malicious machinations of mighty plotters and save the life of her sovereign.

The king frequents the favorite inn when out on the hunt, where he sups and relaxes from the strain of the chase. To the same comes a countess who, with others, plots to take the monarch's life. Anxious to ascertain when next the king will be there, she infatuates Carl, a guardsman of the king's troupe, and with her wiles secures the information from him. Gretchen, Carl's sweetheart, and the daughter of the innkeeper, unhappily notes the change of Carl's affection, and, broken-hearted, determines to bide developments.

On the day upon which the king is to be at the inn, the countess comes to the innkeeper, tells him that she greatly desires the pleasure and honor of personally serving the king. And, against the earnest protestations of his daughter, and because of a gold piece given to him, the innkeeper consents to permit her to act as maid. The king arrives and orders his wine, and the countess pours something besides the wine into the glass. Her act went undetected by all except Gretchen, who suddenly cries out to the king not to empty the goblet. The king calls for an explanation, and, following it, the Countess and Carl are taken into custody. The king, out of gratitude, presents Gretchen with a ring which he says he will redeem by granting any favor which the girl might ask, and at once Gretchen prays for the pardon of Carl, which is at once granted, although the king dismisses him from his service.

THE NUN

Great Northern Release, May 13th

A monk who cherishes a secret passion for a young lady, sees her receive an admirer in secret, and tells her father. The father declares that he will place the girl in a convent. This is just what the crafty priest wants, and he soon has everything in readiness to carry out the parent's wishes. The next time the lover calls upon the lady he is surprised, and captured by a band of armed men, who take him to a dungeon. Before the day arrives on which she is to take the veil, the girl finds a means of conveying to her lover a file and a note telling him of her impending fate. He manages to get away, but powerless to take effective action unaided, the young man appeals to a powerful prince, who listens kindly to his story, and promises assistance. On the night before her admission to the convent, the wicked priest visits the girl. The girl, for lack of any other weapon, attacks her persecutor with a crucifix. He calls in the prioress and accuses the girl of blasphemy. A hasty trial is given her, and she is condemned to be buried alive in the vaults of the convent. The dreadful sentence is being carried out, and the last stones are being placed in position when the prince arrives at the head of a band of men; the girl is saved, and falls into the arms of her lover, and the wretched monk is hurried away to punishment.

THE BANANA PLANTER'S PERIL

Yankee Release, May 19th

In this beautiful and instructive story of the famous Yankee World Tour Series, it deals with a subject new to motion picture plays. It shows an ambitious American who engages in the hanana industry in that picturesque country, and has a hard battle for success, as the natives do not at all times welcome the foreigner among them.

The opening scene shows a massive banana plantation, with the native men and women at work. A hrutal overseer has abused a little native maid and discharged her from the plantation. The young American finds her in tears, and learns the story of her persecution by the overseer, whom he sends for, and, after a wordy war, the overseer is discharged. He leaves the plantation, vowing vengeance upon the American, which he soon proceeds to do by inciting the plantation hands to kill the American and hurn his home.

The little native maid overhears the plot, and starts to warn the American. She has been caught evesdropping by the overseer and others, and they pursue her and overtake her and leave her for dead. The girl, however, is far from dead, as shown in the picture. With agonizing efforts she drags herself through a field of ferns to where the American is lying in his hammock, and tells him of the contemplated attack upon his home. He carries her into his house, and proceeds to barricade the place against invasion. The girl, in her weakened condition, unknown to the American, goes to the house of the Padre and begs the good Father to come to the aid of the American, which he proceeds to do, hut the natives have reached the American's home in advance of him and besieged it, almost totally wrecking it.

The American, aided by a native hoy, has put up a gallant fight with overwhelming odds against him. With burning brands the place has been fired. Every window has been broken. The tumult is at its height as the priest reaches the scene and taking the holy cross from his girdle, he raises it aloft and in the name of the church he commands the natives to desist. The great power he wields over the natives is shown as they kneel in submission to his command. He orders them to carry off their wounded and leave in peace.

The young American, wounded, totters from his ruined home, and humbly gives thanks to the good Father for saving his life. The scene is most impressive as the girl and the young American kneel to receive the Padre's blessing. This is one of the strongest dramatic stories offered in the Yankee World Tour Series, besides its educational scenes.

THE ANGELUS BELL

Yankee Release, May 12

The ringing of the Angelus which causes a beautiful young girl to pause in the step she is ahout to take in leaving her dear old daddy to go forth in the world in the company of an artist who has become smitten with her beauty and who has told her about the wonderful city he was going to take her to; but as she sees her dear old daddy in devout prayer and listens to the Angelus, a moral sense of duty dawns upon her and she decides to remain at home, safe in the keeping of her loving parent.

This is another triumph in scenic effects and emhodies scenic locations on hoth sides of the water.

One of the scenes show the famous natural arches of Bermuda and the beautiful waterways about the Island of the Lily and the Rose. The scenes where action takes place in New York are along the world-known Riverside Drive, Union Square and the Great White Way, making this one of the most interesting pictures ever shown to the public.

Don't Kill One Bad Odor With Another Use

CLEANS
DEODORIZES
DISINFECTS
NON-POISONOUS
NON-CORROSIVE

Sanapan

Registered in U. S. & Mexico

DEATH TO DISEASE GERMS

KILLS ALL ODORS IN ONE MINUTE

Odorless Disinfectant

Used by Motion Picture Theatres, Hotels, Clubs, Railroads, Restaurants, Office Buildings, Hospitals

Send $1.00 for Can Making 3 Bbls. Solution

Testimonials from RR's, Hotels, etc., upon request

SANAPAN CO., 5th Ave. and 45th St., N. Y.

Works: NASHVILLE, TENN. N. W. Corner

The Shepperley Sisters

We had the pleasure of hearing last week at the Yorkville Theater one of the daintiest musical acts on the vaudeville stage to-day. The Shepperley Sisters describe their act The Musical Act De Luxe, and we certainly think the name fitting.

Their act consists of high-class solos and duets on cornet, violin, violoncello, Spanish mandolin and banjoes, Japanese one-string fiddles and bugles, and they are masters, or mistresses, of the art of getting artistic results from their many instruments, while their manner of working leaves little to be desired.

These two young ladies are hardly old enough to have left school, and have been before the public for the last seven years, first appearing at the Islington Empire, London, England, where their work met with instant success; later their parents moved to Canada where they had a successful run of forty-two weeks before coming to the United States.

Miss Mabel Shepperley, the cornet soloist, who is a pupil of the great Walsham, who delighted American audiences some twenty years ago with his superb cornet solos, is the proud possessor of a silver commemoration medal, presented to her at the express wish of his late Majesty King Edward VII for her cornet solos, on the occasion of the corner-stone ceremonies of the great Liverpool Cathedral in July, 1904.

These young ladies are playing Loew's circuit and this week are at the Circle and Jones' Theater, Brooklyn. It is an act we can cordially recommend to all lovers of good music.

FOR SALE

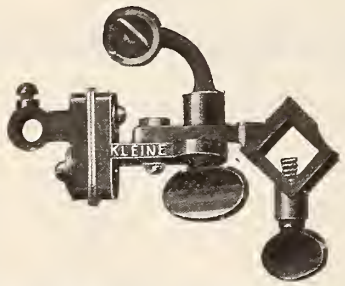
First-class Moving Picture Theatre seating 750 in the heart of city of 60,000—eight miles from New York City. Owner leaving city, will sacrifice. Address, Theatre No. 45, care M. P. NEWS.

FOR RENT—Open air theatre, seating capacity, 1400 to 1600; no opposition. Address Herman, care M. P. NEWS.

MOVING PICTURE NEGATIVE STOCK FOR SALE

Unexposed, perforated and in perfect condition, 2½c. per ft. Apply "STOCK," M. P. NEWS

THE KLEINE



Carbon Holder

APPROVED MARCH 1st, 1911
By the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity of New York City
Manufactured by
C. B. KLEINE
19 East 21st Street New York

THE BIGGEST FEATURE PICTURES EVER MADE

"THE COWBOY AND INDIAN FRONTIER CELEBRATION" HELD AT CHEYENNE, WYO., AND REVIEWED BY COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

3,000 feet of the greatest Wild West motion pictures in the world, showing the West as it was.

A masterpiece in photography, clear and intensely interesting throughout.

Will rent them for $10.00 a day.

Ten one-sheet colored posters free.

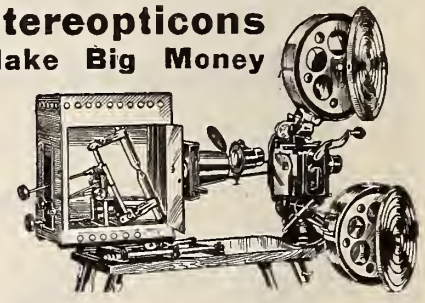
You pay express both ways.

Write for dates to the

TOURNAMENT FILM CO.
FRANKFORT, KY.

Moving Picture Machines

Stereopticons Make Big Money



MOTION PICTURE THEATRE SUPPLIES.

We carry on hand at all times the largest and most complete line of Repairs and Supplies for all Standard Machines, also Tickets, Carbons, Screens, Chairs, etc. Can ship at once Special Slides made to order. We also handle Motiograph, Edison and Powers Machines. Write today for THEATRE CATALOGUE.

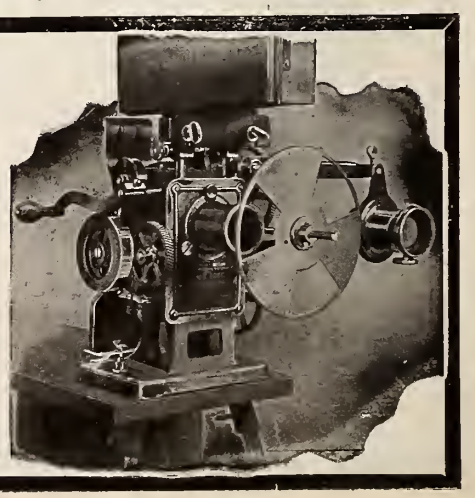
CHICAGO PROJECTING CO.
Dept. 2, 219 Dearborn St., South, Chicago, Ill.

THE PERFECT MOVING PICTURE MACHINE

Power's Cameragraph No. 6

THE PICTURE MACHINE FOR PARKS AND AIRDOMES.
GIVES NO TROUBLE.
REQUIRES PRACTICALLY NO REPAIRS.
LASTS FOREVER.
SALES NOW EXCEED THOSE OF ANY TWO OTHER MAKES OF MOVING PICTURE MACHINES.
SEND AT ONCE FOR CATALOG D.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York
For thirteen years the leading makers of moving picture machines.



Scene from "Col. C. D. Baker, 1st California." Champion Release May 8th

The efforts of the Champion Film Company to produce military pictures of the highest standard are fully demonstrated in the class of films recently released. When we were privileged to witness their excellent picture, "With Stonewall Jackson," we complimented Manager Dintenfass for having given to the public the kind of subjects that would establish for him a reputation and bring credit to his company as well as financial returns. "General Mead's Fighting Days" met with the warm reception which it deserved and now they will, on May 8th, release a strong military drama, a scene from "Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California" which is given in the above picture. The story is taken from the War of Secession in which the hero, James Thornton, is in love with Marjory Caselton, but who has a rival in the sheriff of the village who is vindictive towards Thornton on account of being repulsed by Marjory. Jim is called to the front with his regiment under Col. E. D. Baker, during which time the sheriff, Haskins, has renewed his suit and has about won the fair Marjory when Jim appears on the scene, in the meantime having won distinction and rank through his bravery and courage in the conflict, and all ends well. Haskins is outwitted and Jim wins his bride. It is a strong, realistic story throughout, and as an educational subject is to be highly commended. Excellent settings and acting mark it as a typical Champ.

Roseville, Cal.—Godfrey & Cox, of Vacaville, Cal., have purchased from D. S. Carter the Dorris theater here.

Martinez, Cal.—Joseph A. Kelly is planning the erection of a new moving picture theater here.

Philadelphia, Pa.—John Kroellm has had plans prepared by Architects Stearns & Kastor for the erection of a new moving picture theater at 2640 Kensington avenue.

Vancouver, Wash.—Messrs. Rice & Hutchins, of Portland, have leased the Grand theater here from William Rasmus, and taken possession.

New York, N. Y.—A new Yiddish theater, to cost $750,000 will be built on Houston and Second Avenue, by Louis Minsky, Boris Tomashefsky, David Kessler and Jacob Adler.

Portland, Ore.—The old Lyric Theater, at Seventh and Alder Streets, will be torn down and a new theater will replace it.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.

228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Telephone: 3790 Oxford

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

		Feet
Mar.	1—War of the Cossacks
Mar.	8—Prisoner of Caucasus (Dr.)	900
Mar.	15—A Coward (Dr.)
Mar.	15—Adventures of a Countryman in Town (Com.)	322
Mar.	22—Tweedledum's April Fool Joke (Com.)	900
Mar.	29—A Glimpse of Neapolitan Camorra.
Apr.	12—The Necklace Affair	950
Apr.	19—The Mute of Portici	950
May	3—Grenadier Roland	950
Apr.	26—How Winter Decorates Nature	500
Apr.	26—The Quartermaster	500
May	3—The Traces on the Snow	950

AMERICAN.

Mar.	30—Osteopathy (Com.)	277
Mar.	30—Two Girls (Dr.)	723
Apr.	3—Oh! You Suffragette (Com.)	460
Apr.	3—A Cure for Laziness (Com.)	540
Apr.	6—Reddy's Redemption (Dr.)	995
Apr.	10—Cupid's Pocketbook (Com.)	1000
Apr.	13—Jim Minds the Baby (Com.)	350
Apr.	13—The Bungalow Craze (Com.)	750
Apr.	17—Two Plucky Girls (Dr.)
Apr.	20—One Month to Live (Com.)
Apr.	24—Bud Nevins, Bad Man (W. Dr.)	990
Apr.	27—The Boss of Lucky Ranch (W. Dr.)
May	1—A California Love Story (Dr.)	828
May	1—United States Cavalry Drill (Mil.)	172
May	4—Grazy Gulch (W. Com.)	520
May	4—The Hobo's Roundup (Com.)	470

CHAMPION.

Feb.	22—The Old Man and Jim	990
Mar.	1—Western Girl's Choice	1000
Mar.	8—The Vindication of John	1000
Mar.	15—The Girl and the Oath	985
Mar.	22—The Payroll	940
Mar.	29—The Bachelor's Old Maid	1000
Apr.	5—The Price He Paid	975
Apr.	12—Men of the West	980
Apr.	17—With Stonewall Jackson	960
Apr.	19—A Halfbreed's Courage	950
Apr.	24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days	965
Apr.	26—She Wanted a Man with Brains	970
May	1—Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia	1000
May	3—Out of the Dark	990
May	8—Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California	1000
May	10—Making a Man of His Son	910
May	15—Gen. Marion—The Swamp Fox	950
May	17—Circle C's New Boss	950

ECLAIR

Mar.	6—King Pbillip the Fair and the Templars	975
Mar.	13—An Unforeseen Introduction (C.)	470
Mar.	13—A Day of Storms (Com.)	430
Mar.	20—Cain (Dr.)	790
Mar.	20—The Rock Climbers (Scenic)	195
Mar.	27—Hurrah!Hurrah! Let Us Marry!	975
Apr.	3—A Strike in the "Make Young" Business	534
Apr.	3—Mr. Nearsight's Marriage	426
Apr.	10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr.	17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr.	17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr.	24—Herodias	955
May	1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May	1—The Blue Nile	290
May	8—A Village Flirt (Com.)	910
May	15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.)	910
May	22—A Mother's Distress	430
May	29—The Two Gardeners (Com.)	940

GREAT NORTHERN.

Jan.	28—Triumpb of Intelligence	391
Feb.	4—The Criminal Chief's Capture
Feb.	11—Found Again (Dr.)
Feb.	18—The Life of a Muschik
Feb.	18—The False Alarm
Feb.	25—His Great Duty (Dr.)
Mar.	4—The Rival Servants (Dr.)
Mar.	11—The Son of the Executioner (Dr.)
Mar.	18—Between Love and Duty (Dr.)
Mar.	18—Life and People South of the Equator (Scenic)
Mar.	25—The Fakir's New Servant (Com.)
Mar.	25—Troubles of a Trip (Com.)
Apr.	1—A Victim of His Double (Dr.)
Apr.	8—A Confidence Trick
Apr.	15—Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr.	22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)
Apr.	29—The Cossack Duke (Dr.)	894
May	6—The Lucky Banana Seller (Com.)
May	6—A Would-be Sportsman (Com.)

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Feb.	23—Artful Kate (Dr.)	1000
Feb.	27—A Manly Man (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	2—Army Manoeuvres in Cuba (Edu.)	500
Mar.	2—The Dynamiters (Com.)	500
Mar.	6—Tracked (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	9—The Message in the Bottle (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	13—The Secret of the Palm (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	16—The Fishermaid (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	20—In Old Madrid (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	27—Sweet Memories (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr.	6—The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	10—A Good Cigar
Apr.	10—A Faithless Man
Apr.	13—The Storm
Apr.	20—The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr.	24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000
May	1—Second Sight (Dr.)	1000
May	4—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
May	8—Four Lives (Dr.)	300
May	8—The Fair Dentist (Com.)	700
May	11—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

Feb.	25—Havana Cigar
Mar.	2—Nini's Doll
Mar.	4—Cato and the Flag
Mar.	4—Foolshead More than Usual
Mar.	9—Nobility (Dr.)	900
Mar.	11—Foolshead Shooting (Com.)	900
Mar.	16—A Dog and Two Mistresses	986
Mar.	18—Foolshead in Soiree (Com.)
Mar.	18—Toto on the State (Com.)
Mar.	23—Waiting for the Midnight Express	900
Mar.	25—Toto Wants to Get Thinner	500
Mar.	25—Queen of the Sea	500
Apr.	1—Foolshead Goes to See a Cockfight.
Apr.	8—Foolshead—Lady of Company
Apr.	15—The Fall of Troy
Apr.	22—Marriage Midst the Sausages (Com.)	500
Apr.	22—Foolshead — Wrangler for Love (Com.)	500
Apr.	27—Little Lewis Toy (Dr.)	950
Apr.	29—Foolshead Telegraph Boy	500
Apr.	29—The Bottle of Milk (Com.)	500
May	4—The Cry of the Native Country (Dr.)	950
May	6—Foolshead—Life Insurance Agent (Com.)	950
May	6—The Fountains of Rome
May	11—The Marchioness of Ansperti (Dr.)	950

LUX.

By Prieur.

Mar.	10—Jones' Remedy (Com.)	524
Mar.	17—Dogs Not Admitted (Com.)	534
Mar.	17—Bill Has Kleptomania (Com.)	380
Mar.	24—Cowboy Friendship (Dr.)	636
Mar.	24—Editb Has Some Sport (Com.)	322
Mar.	31—The Greed of Gain (Dr.)	652
Mar.	31—He Wanted a Hoop (Com.)	281
Apr.	7—Bill's Little Plan (Com.)	386
Apr.	7—A Desperado (Dr.)	586
Apr.	14—Bill and the Greasy Pole (Com.)	432
Apr.	14—They Did Not Budge (Com.)	501
Apr.	21—Dr. Grant's Wonderful Discovery (Dr.)	885
Apr.	28—Naughty Miss Edith (Com.)	472
Apr.	28—Bill's Garden (Com.)	419
May	5—Bill as a Toreador (Com.)	419
May	5—Fashion and Its Consequence (Com.)	426
May	12—The Postmistress (Dr.)	700
May	12—A Walk in Tunis	252
May	19—Bill at Work (Com.)	367
May	19—All Through a Rat (Com.)	475

NESTOR FILM CO.

Jan.	18—Their New Minister (Dr.)
Jan.	25—The Man in 23
Jan.	25—New Minister
Feb.	1—The Bridal Trail
Feb.	8—The Transgressor
Feb.	15—The Light Beyond
Feb.	22—His Father's House (Dr.)
Mar.	1—The Professor's Romance (C.-D.)	990
Mar.	8—In the Commissioned Ranks
Mar.	8—In the Commissioned Ranks (Dr.)
Mar.	15—Was It Worth While? (Dr.)
Mar.	22—Could You Blame Him? (Com.)
Mar.	29—The Truth (Dr.)
Apr.	5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr.	12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr.	19—The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr.	26—His Wife (Dr.)
May	3—The Other Man (Dr.)
May	10—After Twenty Years (Dr.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Feb.	21—The Way of a Red Man (Dr.)
Feb.	24—The Fate of Joe Dorr (Dr.)
Feb.	28—A Warrior's Faith
Mar.	3—Owanee's Great Love
Mar.	7—Dick Farrell's Prize
Mar.	10—Her Prisoner (Dr.)
Mar.	14—Starlight the Squaw (Dr.)
Mar.	17—Sacrifice of Silver Cloud (Dr.)
Mar.	21—Was He Justified? (Dr.)	900
Mar.	24—The Cowboy's Waif (Dr.)	900
Mar.	28—An Indian Nemesis (Dr.)
Mar.	31—The Red Avenger (Dr.)
Apr.	4—At Bar U Ranch (Dr.)
Apr.	7—Avery's Dream (Com.)
Apr.	11—An Indian's Mistake	950
Apr.	14—A Man of Honor	950
Apr.	18—Return of Company D (Dr.)	950
Apr.	21—A Cowboy for a Day (Com.)	950
Apr.	25—An Indian's Ambition	950
Apr.	28—A Red Man's Gratitude	950
May	2—Sbifty's Claim (W. Com. Dr.)	950
May	5—A Knight of the Trail	950

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Apr.	4—Oh! You Motber-in-Law (Com.)
Apr.	4—Touring Atbens (Scenic)
Apr.	8—A Western Ruse
Apr.	11—How the Doctor Made Good
Apr.	11—Reclamation
Apr.	15—At the Window
Apr.	18—Copper Wit (Com.)
Apr.	18—The Wine Harvest
Apr.	22—The Last Rose
Apr.	25—A Day with an English Bargeman (Com.)
Apr.	25—Melody of Fate (Dr.)
Apr.	29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.)
May	2—The Crisis (Dr.)
May	2—The Joys of Persecution (Com.)
May	6—The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)
May	9—The Four of Us (Com.)
May	9—Contagion (Com.)
May	13—As Your Hair Grows Wbiter (Dr.)

RELIANCE

Apr.	5—Ricksbaw the Detective
Apr.	5—Summer Skies
Apr.	8—The Gloved Hand (Dr.)
Apr.	12—Tbirty Minutes (Dr.)
Apr.	15—Her Mother's Love	950
Apr.	19—A Tale of Ebon Tints (Com.)	950
Apr.	22—In the Tepee's Light (Dr.)	950
Apr.	26—Vengeance Hath Been Had (Dr.)	950
Apr.	29—Locked Out (Dr.)	950
May	3—Such is the Kingdom	950
May	6—Over the Shading Edge (Dr.)	950
May	10—A Left Hook (Com.)	950

REX

Mar.	2—"By the Light of the Moon" (Com.)	950
Mar.	9—"The Fall of a Knight" (Com.)	958
Mar.	16—Where the Shamrock Grows (Dr.)	950
Mar.	23—Five Hours
Mar.	30—As Ye Sow
Apr.	5—"The Heiress" (Com.)	975
Apr.	13—"The Little Major" (Dr.)	960
Apr.	20—A Daughter of the Revolution (Dr.)
Apr.	27—The Realization (Dr.)

SOLAX COMPANY

Apr.	7—The Rose of the Circus (Dr.)	1,000
Apr.	12—Tramp Strategy (Com.)
Apr.	12—The Scheme that Failed (Com.)
Apr.	14—The Little Flower Girl (Dr.)
Apr.	19—The Old Excuse (Com.)
Apr.	21—The Voice of His Conscience (Dr.)
Apr.	26—The Count of No Account (Com.)
Apr.	28—Across the Mexican Line (Military)
May	3—Sensible Dad (Com.)
May	3—Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May	5—The Somnambulist (Dr.)

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Feb.	28—The Litle Mother (Dr.)
Mar.	3—Stage Struck (Dr.)
Mar.	7—The Mummy (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	10—The Spirit Hand (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	14—His Younger Brother
Mar.	17—Robert Emmett
Mar.	21—Divorce (Dr.)
Mar.	21—Waiting at the Church (Com.)
Mar.	24—The Tramp (Dr.)
Mar.	28—The Imposter	1000
Mar.	31—Silas Marner	1000
Apr.	4—Charity of the Poor (Dr.)
Apr.	7—Vindicated
Apr.	11—Velvet and Rags
Apr.	14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.)
Apr.	18—Cally's Comet (Com.)	1000
Apr.	21—Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr.	25—Poet of the People (His.)
Apr.	28—An Elevator Romance (Com.)
May	2—The Pillars of Society (Dr.)
May	5—The Sinner (Dr.)
May	9—The Railroad Builder (Dr.)	1000
May	12—The Regimental Ball (Dr.)	1000

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Mar.	10—The Senorita's Sacrifice (Dr.)
Mar.	13—The Test of Love (Dr.)
Mar.	17—His Double Treasure (Dr.)
Mar.	20—The Open Gate (Dr.)
Mar.	24—Love's Ebb and Flood (Dr.)
Mar.	27—Tom and Jerry (Dr.)
Mar.	31—Her Mother's Fiance (Dr.)
Apr.	4—Secret of the Opal Mine (Dr.)
Apr.	4—The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr.	10—An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.)
Apr.	14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.)
Apr.	17—A Close Call (Dr.)
Apr.	21—The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr.	24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr.	28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May	1—A Kentucky Girl (Dr.)
May	5—Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.)
May	8—In Sunny Italy (Dr.)
May	12—The Angelus Bell (Dr.)

LICENSEES OF PATENTS CO.

BIOGRAPH

		Feet
Mar.	9—Conscience (Dr.)	995
Mar.	13—Comrades (Dr.)	998
Mar.	16—Was He a Coward? (Dr.)	994
Mar.	20—Teaching Dad to Like Her (Com.)	995
Mar.	23—The Londale Operator (Dr.)	998
Mar.	27—Priscilla's April Fool (Com.)	686
Mar.	27—Cured (Com.)	308
Mar.	30—The Spanish Gypsy (Dr.)	996
Apr.	3—Priscilla and the Umbrella (Com.)	997
Apr.	6—The Broken Cross (Dr.)	996
Apr.	10—The Chief's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	13—Paradise Lost (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	17—Madam Rex (Dr.)	996
Apr.	20—A Knight of the Road (Dr.)	996
Apr.	24—His Mother's Scarf (Dr.)	994
Apr.	27—How She Triumphed (Com.)	998
May	1—The Two Sides (Dr.)	998
May	4—Misplaced Jealousy (Com.)	503
May	1—Cupid's Joke (Com.)	493
May	2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May	6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000

EDISON

Mar.	14—All for the Love of a Lady (Dr.)	990
Mar.	15—The Department Store (Com.)	625
Mar.	15—Baby's Fall (Com.)	375
Mar.	17—The Wedding Bell (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	21—The Test of Love (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	22—Who Gets the Order (Com.)	995
Mar.	24—The Disreputable Mr. Raegen (D.)	1000
Mar.	28—Jim the Mule Boy (Dr.)	975
Mar.	29—April Fool (Com.)	985
Mar.	31—Between Two Fires	1000
Apr.	4—Monsieur (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	5—The Resurrection of John	1000
Apr.	7—Nell's Last Deal (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	11—The Strike at the Mines (Dr.)	995
Apr.	12—Silver Threads Among the Gold (Dr.)	500
Apr.	12—Card of Introduction (Com.)	500
Apr.	14—A Buried Past (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	18—The Haunted Sentinel Tower	1000
Apr.	21—Turned to the Wall	1000
Apr.	25—The Twin Towers (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	26—The Two Heroes (Com.)	975
Apr.	28—The Child and the Tramp (Com.)	1000
May	1—The Panama Canal in 1911	990
May	3—Josh and Cindy's Wedding Trip	1000
May	5—Aida (Dr.)	1000
May	9—Edna's Imprisonment (Com.)	975
May	10—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)	1000
May	12—The Quarrel on the Cliff (Dr.)	1000
May	16—In the Baggage Coach Ahead (Dr.)	1000

ESSANAY FILM CO.

Feb.	21—Just as the Clock Struck Nine (C.)	412
Feb.	25—The Outlaw and the Child (Dr.)	1000
Feb.	28—Taming a Tyrant (Com.)	1000
Mar.	4—On the Desert's Edge (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	7—The Little Drudge (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	11—The Romance of "Bar O"	1000
Mar.	14—Oh, You Teacher! (Com.)	1000
Mar.	18—The Faithful Indian (Dr.)	975
Mar.	21—Hans' Millions (Com.)	1000
Mar.	25—A Thwarted Vengeance (W. Dr.)	1000
Mar.	28—Getting His Own Back (Com.)	600
Mar.	28—Lost: A Baby (Com.)	400
Apr.	1—Across the Plains (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	4—Caught with the Goods (Com.)	1,000
Apr.	8—The Sheriff's Chum (Dr.)	1,000
Apr.	11—An Orphan's Flight (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	18—The Bad Man's First Prayer (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	18—What Happened to Auntie (Com.)	800
Apr.	18—Catching the Deep Sea Turtle (Edu.)	200
Apr.	22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	25—The Two Mothers (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	29—What a Woman Can Do (Dr.)	950

GAUMONT

G. Kleine

Mar.	14—The Sword and the Cross	840
Mar.	14—Breakers in the Clouds	155
Mar.	18—The Privateer's Treasure	860
Mar.	18—Rocky Caves of France	110
Mar.	21—The Lieutenant's Wild Ride	1002
Mar.	25—Cupid's Conquest	595
Mar.	25—The People of the Arabian Desert	405
Mar.	28—His Image in the Water	575
Mar.	28—Family Troubles	430
Mar.	29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar.	29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr.	1—The Secret of the Forest (Dr.)	625
Apr.	1—Tribulations of Jiggers	375
Apr.	4—The Letter with the Red Seal	865
Apr.	4—The City of Amalfi in Italy	135
Apr.	8—The Atonement of Thais	865
Apr.	8—Italian Coast Scenes	135
Apr.	11—The Court Martial (Dr.)	725
Apr.	11—Picturesque Waterfalls in Northern Spain	275
Apr.	15—The Oppressor (Dr.)	640
Apr.	15—Jimmy the Fox (Com.)	380
Apr.	18—Lost Years	630
Apr.	18—Brest, a Fortified Harbor of France	370
Apr.	22—The Erring Son (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	25—The Romance of a Valet	510
Apr.	25—Old Folks	490
Apr.	29—A Priestess of Carthage	1060
May	2—The Young King of Rome	440
May	2—Tunis, Africa, the City of White	560
May	6—The Crusade of the Templars	1000
May	9—Three of a Kind	740
May	9—Spring-Heeled Jack	245
May	13—In the Days of Nero	1000
May	16—The Bankrupt	1000
May	20—Jimmie on a Lark	570
May	20—Shooting the Rapids	450
May	23—The Emperor's Return	795
May	23—Swans	205

KALEM CO.

Feb.	22—The Open Road (Dr.)	995
Feb.	24—Priscilla and the Pequot (Dr.)	925
Mar.	1—Sailor Jack's Reformation (Dr.)	1005
Mar.	3—Mexican Filihusters (Dr.)	1005
Mar.	8—The Irish Honeymoon (Dr.)	950
Mar.	10—The Mission Carrier (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	15—The Driver (Educ.)	565
Mar.	15—The Hunter's Dream (Com.)	365
Mar.	17—A War Time Escape (Dr.)	980
Mar.	22—A Saw Mill Hero (Dr.)	960
Mar.	24—Rescued from the Desert (Dr.)	990
Mar.	29—The Lass Who Couldn't Forget (Dr.)	960
Mar.	31—The Hero Trackwalker (Dr.)	950
Apr.	5—By a Woman's Wit (Dr.)	995
Apr.	7—Big-hearted Jim (Dr.)	1,000
Apr.	12—In Old Florida (Dr.)	965
Apr.	14—Slim Jim's Last Chance (Dr.)	970
Apr.	19—The Phoney Prince (Com.)	990
Apr.	21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	26—A Night and a Day (Com.)	995
Apr.	28—Slabsides (Dr.)	1005
May	3—The Fiddle's Requiem (Dr.)	1000
May	5—When the Dead Return (Dr.)	990

LUBIN

Mar.	2—Father's Birthday Ring (Com.)	600
Mar.	2—Woman's Curiosity (Com.)	400
Mar.	6—Vanity and Its Cure (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	9—Her Friend, the Burglar (Com.)	1000
Mar.	13—The Actress and the Singer (Com.-Dr.)	1000
Mar.	16—Mandy's Social Whirl (Com.)	1000
Mar.	20—Her Artistic Temperament (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	23—The Spinster's Legacy (Com.)	600
Mar.	23—Bridget and the Egg (Com.)	400
Mar.	27—Her Child's Honor (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	30—When Women Strike (Com.)	1000
Apr.	3—The Wife's Awakening (Dr.)	1,000
Apr.	6—His Best Girl After All (Dr.)	600
Apr.	6—A Visit to Nassau, Bahama (Travel)	400
Apr.	10—Opportunity and the Man (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	13—Their Mothers-in-Law (Com.)	1000
Apr.	17—The Two Fathers (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	20—Helping Him Out (Com.)	1000
Apr.	24—The Hoyden (Com.)	1000
Apr.	27—The Sheriff and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May	1—A Fascinating Bachelor (Com. Dr.)	1000
May	4—The Belated Bridegroom (Com.)	1000

G. MELIES.

Mar.	23—Sir Percy and the Punchers	1000
Mar.	30—The Warrant for Red Rube	1000
Mar.	24—On the Border Line	600
Mar.	24—Great War Game	950
Apr.	6—Her Faithful Heart	1000
Apr.	13—Jack Mason's Last Deal	1000
Apr.	20—An Unwilling Cowboy
Apr.	27—The Reformation of Jack Rohin	1000
May	4—Mary's Strategem	1000
May	11—The Spring Round-Up	1000
May	18—The Redemption of Rawhide (Com.)	980
May	25—The Immortal Alamo	1000

PATHE FRERES

Mar.	15—The Paoli Brothers	295
Mar.	17—The Inventor's Rights	784
Mar.	17—Pepper Industry in the Malay Peninsula	190
Mar.	18—The Sheriff's Daughter	1000
Mar.	20—Max is Stuck Up (Com.)	460
Mar.	20—How Tommt's Wit Worked (Com.)	462
Mar.	22—The Cattle Rustlers	1000
Mar.	24—Lieutenantsliehe	1000
Mar.	25—The Kid from Arizona	960
Mar.	31—Athaliah	1000
Mar.	27—Love in Madrid	443
Mar.	27—The Trickster Tricked (Com.)	446
Mar.	29—A Fatal Resemblance (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	1—Their Mother (Dr.)	872
Apr.	1—Fred Sato and His Dog	128
Apr.	3—The Apple of His Eye	1000
Apr.	5—The Trading Stamp Mania (Com.)	990
Apr.	7—The Three Whiffles	655
Apr.	7—Native Industries in Cochin-China	341
Apr.	8—The White Squaw	1000
Apr.	10—The Justice of Claudius	260
Apr.	12—A Cowhoy's Adventure (Western)	364
Apr.	14—Wiffles' Home Troubles	440
Apr.	14—How Edam Cheese Is Made	480
Apr.	15—Burglar's Fee (Com.)	1,000
Apr.	17—Robert the Silent (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	19—A New Life (Dr.)	990
Apr.	21—Boil Your Water
Apr.	21—Mary Long and Sammy Short (C.)	360
Apr.	22—The Chief's Talisman (Western)	820
Apr.	24—Lai Chyeim	997
Apr.	26—The Rival Brothers' Patriotism (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	28—Enemies	833
Apr.	28—Pastime in Chili	160
Apr.	29—The Foster Father (Dr.)	950
May	1—Forgiveness is Sweet	754
May	1—Scenes Along the Mekong	240
May	3—Indian Justice	1000
May	5—Max is Forced to Work	670
May	5—Through Venice	295
May	6—Short-Lived Happiness (Dr.)	1000
May	8—My Daughter	748
May	8—Over Lucerne (Switzerland) in an Airship	253
May	10—The Abernathy Kids' Rescue (Dr.)	771
May	10—The Ocean Harnessed	216
May	12—The Samourai's Expiation	640
May	12—American Beauties	351
May	13—Lucia's Broken Romance (Dr)	958
May	20—A Close Call
May	26—Semiramis

SELIG

Mar.	13—The Code of Honor
Mar.	13—The Man from the East
Mar.	20—Her Words Come True
Mar.	20—After a Hundred Years
Mar.	23—The Way of the Transgressor
Mar.	27—Her Adopted Fathers
Mar.	30—1861
Apr.	3—The Fortune Hunters
Apr.	6—Red's Conquest
Apr.	10—The Cowhoy and the Shrew
Apr.	10—His Best Girl's Little Brother (Com.)
Apr.	13—Zulu-land
Apr.	17—The Haven of Refuge
Apr.	20—The Mother
Apr.	24—Unto Us a Child Is Born
Apr.	27—The Witch of the Everglades
May	1—Her Master	1000
May	4—In Old California, When the Grin-goes Came	1000
May	5—Tournament of Roses
May	8—Lost and Won	1000
May	11—Back to the Primitive	1000

URBAN ECLIPSE

G. Kleine

Feb.	15—Catherine Howard	1005
Feb.	22—The Golden Sickle	882
Feb.	22—Felling a Smoke-stack	113
Feb.	22—The Golden Sickle	882
Mar.	1—Comrades	638
Mar.	1—Beauties of Sans Souci	362
Mar.	8—The Fury of a Woman Scorned	720
Mar.	8—Beautiful Wye Valley, England	300
Mar.	15—Redemption	508
Mar.	15—The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond	472
Mar.	22—The Money Lender	688
	Nemours and the Banks of the River Loing, France	320
Mar.	29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar.	29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr.	5—At the Old Mill (Dr)	675
Apr.	5—Making Bamboo Hats in Java	325
Apr.	10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr.	17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr.	17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr.	19—Solving the Servant Problem (C.)	465
Apr.	19—In the Province of Kwang Tung, China	535
Apr.	24—Herodias	955
May	1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May	1—The Blue Nile	290
Apr.	26—The Last Edict of Francis II	875
Apr.	26—Scenes at Colomho, Ceylon	125
May	3—The Page's Devotion	790
May	3—Wismar, Germany	210
May	10—The Traitor (Dr.)	620
May	10—Rubber-Neck Percy (Com.)	370
May	17—The Juggler's Vengeance (Dr.)	396
May	17—Fishguard Harhor, Wales	600

VITAGRAPH

Feb.	17—When the Light Waned	994
Feb.	18—The New Stenographer (Com.)	994
Feb.	21—A Tale of Two Cities, Part I	1014
Feb.	24—A Tale of Two Cities, Part II	1013
Feb.	25—A Tale of Two Cities, Part III	994
Feb.	28—Captain Barnacle's Courtship (Com.)	998
Mar.	3—Bertha's Mission (Dr.)	988
Mar.	4—Mammy's Ghost (Dr.)	985
Mar.	7—The Wild Cat Well	960
Mar.	10—The Bridegroom's Dilemma (Com.)	990
Mar.	11—Red Eagle	960
Mar.	14—Betty Becomes a Maid (Com.)	957
Mar.	17—The Aching Void (Dr.)	990
Mar.	18—Davy Jones, or His Wife's Husband (Com.)	977
Mar.	21—Tho' the Seas Divide	968
Mar.	24—The Widow Visits Sprigtown (C.)	985
Mar.	25—A Little Lad in Dixie (Dr.)	999
Mar.	28—Billy's Valentine (Com.)	995
Mar.	31—The Inherited Taint (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	1—A Republican Marriage	996
Apr.	4—Unexpected Review (Com.)	660
Apr.	4—Hop Picking (Indust.)	335
Apr.	7—The Winning of the Stepchildren (Dr.)	965
Apr.	8—Winsor McCay (Com.)	650
Apr.	8—Bob Sledding	350
Apr.	11—The Wooing of Winifred (Com.)	988
Apr.	14—Though Your Sins he as Scarlet (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	15—Easter Babies (Com. Dr.)	980
Apr.	18—The Leading Lady (Com.)	985
Apr.	21—The Troublesome Secretaries (Com.)	990
Apr.	22—The Spirit of the Light (Dr.)	995
Apr.	25—A Klondike Steal (Dr.)	998
Apr.	28—The Peace Offering (Com.)	998
Apr.	29—Piccolla (Dr.)	993
May	2—The Derelict Reporter (Dr.)	975
May	5—Soldiers Three (Com.)	1000
May	6—Hungry Hearts (Dr.)	985

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

Getting 2 Thanhousers a Week?

RELEASED TUESDAY, MAY 16

A PATRIOTIC MASTERPIECE

The Colonel and the King

is a pretty promoter of patriotism and the "Thanhouser Twist." The patriotism is apparent right through the last half of the reel and the twist, of course, at the end. The story swings from the royal palace at Saxonia to a dingy Continental shipping port, thence to Ellis Island in the Land of Liberty, and next to a fort out West.

No. 211. Code Word, Coling.

RELEASED FRIDAY, MAY 19

Lady Clare

AFTER THE POEM
BY ALFRED TENNYSON

The story this famous poem tells is familiar to all. The lines

"'I am a beggar born,' she said,
'And not the Lady Clare,'" have become historical for the very air of simple frankness that runs through them, and the film-story MUST be a success with so pleasing a motif.

No. 212. Code Word, Clare.

THE NEW THANHOUSER PHOTOFRAME

consisting of five original photos (11x14 inches) of the leading Thanhouser players, framed in solid oak, mission finished, complete with glass, GOES TO YOU FOR $2.50 with order. This is the prize outfit that tickled-to-death exhibitors the country over are calling THE GREATEST LOBBY DISPLAY BARGAIN EVER KNOWN. Address Manager's Dept.

THE THANHOUSER LOBBY PHOTO

consisting of five splendid individual photographs (11x14) of Thanhouser principals, sent postage prepaid for $1.00 with order. Address Manager's Dept.

THE THANHOUSER NEWS

"The Exhibitor's Guide," containing the Thanhouser Lobby-Decorator, sent FREE OF CHARGE to all who can show connection with the Moving Picture Business. Address Manager's Dept.

THANHOUSER COMPANY
NEW ROCHELLE — NEW YORK

CINEMATOGRAPH FILMS IN UNITED KINGDOM

(From Consul General John L. Griffiths, London.)

There are no official returns showing the imports of cinematograph films into the United Kingdom, but it is stated that from January 1, 1911, separate statistics will be preserved, giving the values and countries of origin. Those conversant with the business of picture shows state that the large majority of cinematograph films is imported from the United States, the amount varying from 60 to 75 per cent. The other countries, in order of importance, are Italy, France and Sweden.

Cinematograph theaters have proved so popular in Great Britain and so remunerative, especially to the pioneers, that every town of any size has one or more of these "picture palaces." Indeed, in the suburbs of London, where the population is congested, there are often three to five of these theaters in the same street. The customary program consists of six to eight pictures, and the charges for admission range from 6 to 50 cents.—(Daily Consular and Trade Reports, April 28th.)

Hastings, Minn.—H. J. Lovejoy has sold his interest in the Theater Royal here, to C. J. Morey.

Portland, Ore.—Dr. M. S. Fenton has secured a permit for the erection of a new moving picture theater on Grand avenue.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Messrs. Lashner & Friedman have commenced the erection of a new moving picture theater at 1332 South Fifth street.

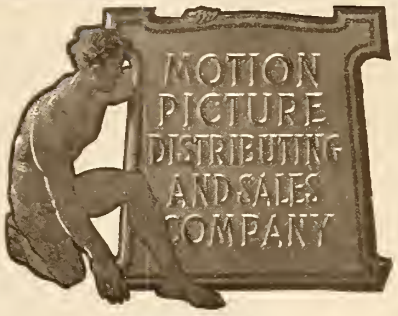
Liverpool, N. Y.—George L. Gramer, of Syracuse, is preparing to open a new moving picture theater in the Hand Block.

Estherville, Ia.—Charles Howe is making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater in the Ayres Building.

Oakwood, Mo.—W. Z. Link can give information regarding the establishment of a new moving picture theater in his building.

Chambersburg, Pa.—J. W. Knaussen is making arrangements to open a moving picture theater at 519 Locust street, to be known as the Pastime.

The Moving Picture Cream of America and Europe



Original prints of this unexcelled program can be obtained in U. S. and Canada only from the following exchanges:

PROGRAM

MONDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Eclair—Eclair Film Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.
Champion—The Champion Film Co.

TUESDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.

WEDNESDAY
Ambrosio—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Champion—The Champion Film Co.
Nestor—David Horsley.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories
Solax—Solax Company

THURSDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Rex—Rex M. P. Mfg. Co.

FRIDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Lux—R. Prieur
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.
Solax—Solax Company
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.

SATURDAY
Gt. Northern—Gt. Northern Film Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories

List of BUYING EXCHANGES, May 6th, 1911

All others offering these brands for rent can supply only dupes or worn-out subjects.

CANADA

Applegath, L. J., & Sons	145	Yonge St.	Toronto, Ont.
Canadian Film Exchange		Princess Theater	Vancouver, B. C.
Gaumont Co.	154	St. Catherine St.	Montreal, Que.
Great Western Film Co.		Winnipeg	Man.

ALABAMA

Dixie Film Co.	503	Chamber of Com. Bldg.	Birm'ham

CALIFORNIA

California Film Exchange	1065	Mission St.	San Francisco
Miles Bros.	790	Turk St.	San Francisco
Miles Bros.	411	W. 8th St.	Los Angeles

COLORADO

Co-operative Ind. Film Co.		Barclay Block	Denver
W. H. Swanson Film Exch.	301	Railroad Bldg.	Denver

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Washington Film Exchange	428	9th St., N. W.	Washington

GEORGIA

Consolidated Film Exchange		Rhodes Bldg.	Atlanta, Ga.

ILLINOIS

Anti Trust Film Co.	79	So. Clark St.	Chicago
Globe Film Service	107	E. Madison St.	Chicago
H. & H. Film Service Co.	98	Jackson Blvd.	Chicago
Laemmle Film Service	196	Lake St.	Chicago
Standard Film Exchange	155	E. Washington St.	Chicago

INDIANA

Central Film Service Co.	119	N. Illinois St.	Indianapolis

KANSAS

Wichita Film & Supply Co.	122	N. Market St.	Wichita

LOUISIANA

Dixie Film Company	720	Maison Blanche Bldg.	New Orleans

MASSACHUSETTS

Boston Film Rental Co.	665	Washington St.	Boston
W. E. Green Film Exchange	228	Tremont St.	Boston

MARYLAND

B. & W. Film Exchange	412	East Baltimore St.	Baltimore
Philadelphia Film Ex.	610	E. Baltimore St.	Baltimore

MINNESOTA

Laemmle Film Service	400	Sykes Block	Minneapolis

MICHIGAN

Michigan Film & Supply Co.	1106	Union Trust Bldg.	Detroit

MISSOURI

J. W. Morgan	1310	Walnut St.	Kansas City
Swanson-Crawford Film Co.		Century Bldg.	St. Louis
Western Film Ex.	217	Miners Bank Bldg.	Joplin

NEBRASKA

Laemmle Film Service	1517	Farnam St.	Omaha

NEW YORK STATE

Albany Film Exchange	418	Broadway	Albany
Victor Film Service	39	Church St.	Buffalo

NEW YORK CITY

Empire Film Exchange	150	East 14th St.	New York City
Great Eastern Film Exchange.	21	East 14th St.	New York City
Peerless Film Exchange	5	East 14th St.	New York City
Western Film Exchange	51	East 19th St.	New York City
Wm. Steiner Film Exchange	110	Fourth Ave.	New York City

OHIO

Cincinnati Buckeye Film Co.	422	N. High St.	Columbus
Cincinnati Buckeye Film Co.	315	West 4th St.	Cincinnati
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co.	106	Prospect Ave., S.E.	Cleveland
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co.			Columbus
Toledo Film Service	319	Superior St.	Toledo
Victor Film Service		Prospect & Huron Sts.	Cleveland

OREGON

Independent West. F. Ex.	84	7th St.	Portland

OKLAHOMA

United Motion Picture Co.	112	Main St.	Oklahoma City

PENNSYLVANIA

Eagle Film Exchange	143	N. 8th St.	Philadelphia
Independent Film Exchange	415	Ferry St.	Pittsburg
Philadelphia Projection Co.	44	North 9th St.	Philadelphia
Philadelphia Film Exchange	934	Arch St.	Philadelphia
Pittsburg Photoplay Co.	412	Ferry St.	Pittsburg
Swaab Film Service Co.	129	Eighth St.	Philadelphia
Exhibitors Film Service Co.	23	N. 9th St.	Philadelphia

TEXAS

Texas Film Exchange	311	Elm St.	Dallas

UTAH

Co-operative Ind. Film Co.	320	Atlas Block	Salt Lake City

WASHINGTON

Pacific Film Exchange		Globe Bldg.	Seattle

WISCONSIN

Western Film Exchange	307	Enterprise Bldg.	Milwaukee

Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.

111 East 14th Street, New York City

Solax

COMEDY

BRIGHT—CLEAN—LAUGHABLE

EVERY WEDNESDAY

There's a new way to spell "COMEDY"--Just go to your Exchanges and say "WEDNESDAY SOLAX." He'll understand and hand you the regular Wednesday rollicking reel--a thousand feet of fun.

MILITARY

BIG, STRONG, OUTDOOR PRODUCTIONS

EVERY FRIDAY

JOIN OUR CAMP - - FOLLOW THE FLAG

Features always pack your house. Each one of our MILITARY PICTURES is a Big Feature. Demand them of your Exchange.
PATRIOTISM--THE FLAG--SMASH-UP CLIMAX.

GET OUR TWO COLOR LOBBY DISPLAY

RELEASES

WEDNESDAY, MAY 10th	NEARLY A HERO and BENEATH THE MOON	Split Reel	Comedy
FRIDAY, " 12th	BETWEEN LIFE AND DEATH		Military
WEDNESDAY, " 17th	HIS DUMB WIFE		Comedy
FRIDAY, " 19th	IN THE NICK OF TIME		Military
WEDNESDAY, " 24th	THE DEVIL IN A TIN CUP		Comedy

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED THROUGHOUT

Sold exclusively through the M. P. D. & S. Co.

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 19

May 13th
1911

PRICE
TEN CENTS

SCENE FROM

"THE KING OF KAZAM"

A FORTHCOMING POWERS RELEASE

(Imp de Luxe No. 2)

The Imp Decoration Day Film

"THE FORGED DISPATCH," will be released Monday, May 22. This is not an ordinary holiday release, but a story so powerful, a plot so unique, staging so true to life, acting so gloriously good that you will be justified in billing it as a feature and raising your price of admission! A remarkable battle scene with a shell exploding in the very midst of a group of fiercely fighting soldiers is but one of many mighty features in "THE FORGED DISPATCH. "If you want to make a "killing" see that you get an early booking on this Imp de Luxe No. 2. On Thursday, May 25th, we release "THE MINOR CHORD," one of the most beautiful and touching stories ever filmed. WAKE UP! GET BOTH!

EVERY INDEPENDENT EXHIBITOR should send his order at once for this Imp Lobby Display Frame and ten elegant photographs of Imp artists. It beats 'em all. You get the whole combination for five dollars. It will pay for itself in no time. Send for descriptive circular.

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America.
102 W. 101st Street, New York: Carl Laemmle, Pres.
Watch for news about the "Imp Book." Something new!
$500 Reward for information leading to conviction of anyone "duping" Imp films. We want your name and address at once for our mailing list. Important!

Rex

PICTURES ARE REPUTED TO BE AN EXCEPTION TO THE RULE

OUR PLOTS ARE EXCEPTIONALLY CLEVER
OUR PRODUCTIONS ARE EXCEPTIONALLY WELL EXECUTED
OUR PATRONS ARE TICKLED WITH THE RESULTS
WE ARE PROVING THIS EVERY WEEK

THE PARTICULAR PROOF FOR THURSDAY (REXDAY), MAY 18th, 1911, IS

Scene from "An Exception to the Rule"

"An Exception to the Rule"

THERE ARE MILES OF SMILES WITH THIS COMEDY. IT'S EASIER TO TELL YOU HOW FUNNY IT ISN'T THAN TO TELL YOU HOW FUNNY IT IS. IT'S AS FUNNY FOR INSTANCE AS ENGLISH HUMOR ISN'T—AS FUNNY AS A FUNERAL ISN'T—AS FUNNY AS ONLY A REX CAN BE. IT WILL SOAR 5 DEGREES ABOVE THE LAUGH THERMOMETER.

YOU'LL BE AN EXCEPTION TO THE RULE IF YOU DON'T GET IT.

REX

Rex KNOWHOW MFG. CO.

573-579 ELEVENTH AVE.,
NEW YORK CITY.

SALES CO. REALIZE THAT REX FILL-EMS WEEKLY ARE AN EXCEPTION TO THE RULE.

Of National Interest

CHAMP MONDAY FILMS
THEY TEACH HISTORY, AS

"With Sheridan at Murfreesboro"

Monday, May 22d

The story certainly arouses one's sympathies

Champ All Western

WEDNESDAY STORIETTES
RELEASE OF MAY 24TH, ENTITLED

"In the Great Big West"

A physician's mental combat between professional principle and the dictates of his affianced love

With the stock of Historic and Western features we are turning out, isn't it about time to quit all else and get going for CHAMPS?

THE CHAMPION FILM CO.

MARK M. DINTENFASS, GEN. MGR.
12 E. 15TH ST., N. Y. CITY.

Two Yankee Feature Reels

MONDAY, MAY 22nd

"THE LITTLE WESTERN ROSE"

A dramatic sensational story of the cattle country

FRIDAY, MAY 26th

"THWARTED BY NELL PIERCE"

A startling marine detective story

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

344 East 32d St., New York City

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

Getting 2 Thanhousers a Week?

RELEASED TUESDAY, MAY 23

A TIMELY PICTURE

The Stage Child

is just the release for this period in our national existence when the matter of the right of the child to act is being so strenuously agitated everywhere. The present picture leans to neither one side nor the other; it gives merely a new, true view of the question, one based on an actual happening from real life.

No. 213. Code Word, Stald.

RELEASED FRIDAY, MAY 26

A NEW KIND OF BUNCO STORY

Get Rich Quick

is the story of a poverty-stricken man and wife who, after they had gotten the riches, concluded they were better off poor. How this realization came to them is just what makes this story the dramatic gem it is.

No. 214. Code Word, Rich.

THE NEW THANHOUSER PHOTOFRAME

consisting of five original photos (11x14 inches) of the leading Thanhouser players, framed in solid oak, mission finished, complete with glass, GOES TO YOU FOR $2.50 with order. This is the prize outfit that tickled-to-death exhibitors the country over are calling THE GREATEST LOBBY DISPLAY BARGAIN EVER KNOWN. Address Manager's Dept.

THE THANHOUSER LOBBY PHOTO

consisting of five splendid individual photographs (11x14) of Thanhouser principals, sent postage prepaid for $1.00 with order. Address Manager's Dept.

THE THANHOUSER NEWS

"The Exhibitor's Guide," containing the Thanhouser Lobby-Decorator, sent FREE OF CHARGE to all who can show connection with the Moving Picture Business. Address Manager's Dept.

Getting 2 Thanhousers a Week?

THANHOUSER COMPANY

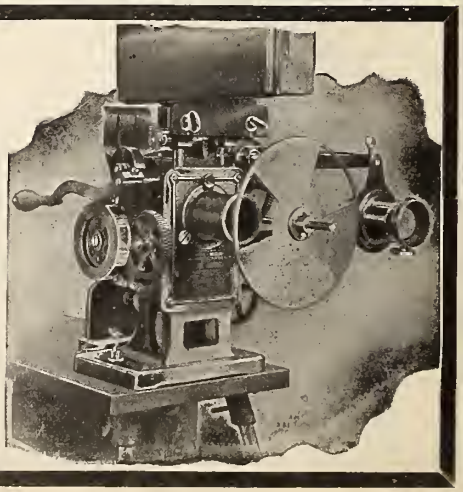
NEW ROCHELLE NEW YORK

Are You Getting It?

We refer to "POWER'S POINTERS ON PROJECTION" — the little folder that we send out every month to every exhibitor and operator on our mailing list.

Most people think it an artistic production. Many find it interesting. It deals chiefly with the best moving picture machine in the world.

Send us your address in time to receive the June issue.



NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York

For thirteen years the leading makers of moving picture machines.

©CLB244225

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan, 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City. ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV | May 13, 1911 | Number 19

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

This week we present to our readers a scene from the "King of Kazam," a release of the Powers Company with Nat M. Wills appearing in the role. This will shortly be released and will without a doubt be awaited with much interest.

CASTING THE HOROSCOPE

Under this head a paper makes side by side quotations of a certain Montague A. Pike and ourselves which we have space to reproduce. It was an exceedingly laughable reading, especially as owing to the dense ignorance of the writer, and we want our readers to understand that the person quoted is one of the largest buyers and agents of American film to the exclusion of English, and it is perfectly natural for him to boost that which to him is pounds, shilling and pence. Another clause though is as follows:

"Who invented moving pictures? This is a question we are often asked. Our reply has invariably been, No one can either legally or morally lay claim as the inventor."

This in spite of the fact that only a few months ago he heralded W. Friese-Greene as the inventor and hoodwinked the supporters of his paper out of a considerable sum of money to import the real article. But out of charity we will draw the veil over the attendant circumstances.

Without any realization of what the effect would be, he clamors for the open market and says: "Cinematography should be as free as any other trade." Among the trades he specifies is bricklaying, oblivious of the fact that bricklayers have the strongest kind of a union and brickmakers have a strong business organization to safeguard their business. But is it flattering for those who look upon cinematography as one of the fine arts to be classed with bricklayers and tailors?

And we are perfectly justified in saying that the above quotation is as absolutely false as anything can be, inasmuch as we made no such quotation as is placed to us, nor did we classify the beautiful art of cinematography as this writer misleads his readers into saying that we do."

As regards our friend Friese-Greene, we never claimed him the inventor of cinematography. What we claimed was that he invented the first camera to our knowledge to take pictures which was prior to the Edison camera and are perfectly willing to stand by our assertions as made. We did not try to mislead anyone; we certainly were instrumental in his coming over, but we feel quite sure that the last has not yet been heard of the matter as the following letter will show:

On board R. M. S. "Adriatic,"
April 27, 1911.

My Dear Saunders:

You will see I am in dear old England again, but I am coming back to New York in about six weeks' time to hold up and force my rights for fairness and justice to the inventor of the cinematograph. I thank all those that were kind to me, and I will forgive those who for greediness and gain forgot the appreciation of the one by whom they have been able to make money by. I have had a most delightful voyage with Mr. Boncus and friends who are with me and who will see to my English affairs, and you will hear something very important in a few weeks. Give my kindest regards to Mrs. Saunders, the boys and all inquiring friends and enemies.

Trusting you are all well.

Yours very sincerely,
W. FRIESE-GREENE.

And we wished and always have wished our friend Friese-Greene every success that he can claim and it may be that he will find the missing letter which we believe was written to him by Edison and on his return to America we feel sure that quite a number of misunderstandings will be smoothed away.

We have stated that passing down Brooke and Sloane streets, London, in the year 1889 we were first initiated into cinematography and as such we are prepared to stand upon what we know. We are not like the pseudo editor whom we instructed in everything that he knows in cinematography in the year 1907, but we will have no quarrel with him on that. The other paragraph which we wish to take exception to is the following:

Again, with Rip Van Winkle perspicacity, our oracle asks: "Has any member of the licensees of the Patents Company turned out an educational film?" Indeed they have, and the supply has hitherto been in excess of the demand. Surely he is not ignorant of the fact that at least one Patents Company licensee expended a large sum of money in the compilation of a catalogue of educational films and endeavored to force a market in the educational field. That work has borne fruit. The demand for educational films is increasing and manufacturers, both licensed and independent, are preparing to compete for the business. Many of them have already a supply of negatives of educational subjects on hand to be released when the proper time comes. And what is more, before the close of another year we will see established an educational film bureau in New York City with distributing branches in other populous centers. In the evolution of the business it was bound to come, and to insure its permanency and success it must not be affiliated with the amusements field. But it is not necessary that "before all this can dawn, the people of 'nickelodia' must demand justice and petition Congress to inquire into the methods of the M. P. P. Co."

If the writer of the above knows the truth he is merely a prevaricator of the same and we are prepared to stand upon the statement that while the catalogue was published in America it was merely a copy, a pirating if you like, a burglarism to use the proper word of Charles Urban's educational catalogue which was published some years previous, and we have in our possession now a copy issued by Charles Urban in the year 1902. We certainly have no object in reiterating our statement that at present there is not a manufacturer in the industry who is turning out educational film or who is in a position to properly turn out these films, and in conversation with several of the most prominent manufacturers their statement to us is that such an equipment would not pay; therefore, we say we want a Charles Urban, or a J. J. Murdock, or any other man who has the means, the brains, the money, and the proper help to bring out what the American public demand in America, American products and not foreign products, nor old films put under a new name and foisted on the American public as being American products.

JOURNALISTIC UNCERTAINTIES

We very much question the motive of some writers who call themselves smart newspaper men and we think if they would use a little common sense, a little case of personal interview and questioning, they would get far better details than at present they seem to obtain. A point we want to drive home is in reference to the Kinemacolor of America corporation, and to this end we make the quotations from.

First—Our good friend, Variety, who wrote up in their issue of April 29th the following:

New Picture Corporation May Swallow Industry

The Kinemacolor Corporation of America, with a capital of $6,000,000 and offices in the Theatrical Exchange Building on West Forty-fifth street, may eventually become the father of the moving picture industry on this side of the ocean.

The corporation has secured the American rights to the Charles Urban process of photography in natural colors for moving pictures. The product can be made in this country at a price which will enable the company to compete on an equal footing with the moving picture manufacturers, now selling the black and white film only.

The head of a Wall Street trust company is the principal factor in the financial promotion of the large capitalized corporation. From the circle of the Wall Street man's wealthy business associates have been drawn the sinews with which to propel the new company into the lead of the film business. Interested are bankers of New York and Chicago, and merchants of both cities, while many leaders in large commercial concerns having dealings with the trust company have taken stock, besides pledging unlimited capital as it may be required.

At a meeting of the directors held last Saturday, John J. Murdock was given unequivocal power. He will be the general manager. Tuesday, Mr. Murdock admitted the existence of the company, and the securing by it of the rights to the Urban process. He stated to a Variety representative that the company intended thoroughly organizing by dividing the business into departments, with a head to each, upon whom will fall the responsibility of his department's success.

The Kinemacolor Company will manufacture as well as lease and rent. The process will be rented to manufacturers who join with the corporation, but to none outside. Two manufacturers have been accepted by the company, Mr. Murdock said, but he preferred not to mention their names before a full announcement would be in readiness.

Asked if he contemplated heading an independent movement which has been gaining some strength in the picture business, Mr. Murdock said that was not at all intended, nor was anything being given attention other than the regulating of the affairs of the company for the manufacturing and sale of colored pictures.

The Urban pictures have been a feature in the English halls for a long while. It has often been a matter of conjecture why they have never been introduced to the American market, the success of the process admittedly having been pronounced.

Some months ago a company was formed over here with a capital of $250,000 for the promotion of the pictures. A plant was established at Allentown, Pa., but the venture failed to give evidence of fruitfulness. A few of the men interested in the first company quietly investigated. Becoming satisfied with the results, an expert picture man was called in for counsel. He advised that Mr. Murdock be secured to direct the operations of a big corporation. After several weeks of negotiations, Mr. Murdock consented to take hold, with the present Kinemacolor Corporation as the result.

The American factory will take important events, exchanging negatives with the Urban English factory, each making prints from them. For the forthcoming public coronation ceremonies of King George in London, a separate company will be formed to handle the colored film on this side. It will be a subsidiary corporation to the Kinemacolor Company, and will distribute the Coronation films over the country in districts.

The English Lloyds, an insurance company, which insures almost anything, has taken a risk against rain during coronation time, which protects the Kinemacolor sub-corporation and its customers against loss.

Colored moving pictures in America will practically reopen the picture business. Up to date the domestic manufacturers have turned out only black and white films. Colored ones now and then have been made by Pathe Freres, the French manufacturers, but meagerly, and generally have been hand-painted. They were sufficient, however, to place the Pathe Brothers in the lead of all picture makers, and gave the firm a high standing over here.

Pathe Brothers are members of "The Association," as "The Trust" or Motion Picture Patents Company is known. "The Trust" comprises the leading American manufacturers. Aligned against it in a wavering force are the "independent" factories, which have been seeking a solid formation for some time, without much success.

The strong competition colored pictures will create in the film field, along with the large capital stock of the Kinemacolor Company, are expected among the picture men say, to draw in a number of the manufacturers to the Kinemacolor's side; and it will mean, the picture people believe, that sooner or later "The Trust" manufacturer will have to negotiate with the colored film concern for a hearing.

Mr. Murdock was the first to start an independent movement after "The Trust" formed. At that time he formed the International Company at Chicago, but later disposed of his interests in it, turning back once more to vaudeville.

Next along the line comes the opposite side of the question which unfortunately is a very biased article indeed. We refer to the excerpt from the Film Index under date of May 13th as follows:

A LAUGH AND A LEMON

Kinemacolor, a Six-Million-Dollar Corporation, Evidently Intended for Wall Street

One of the heartiest laughs furnished the picture business for some time was handed out with the announcement that the Urban-Smith Kinemacolor device had been turned over to an American corporation with a capital of $6,000,000, with offices in this city.

To increase the joy of the announcement it is added that the directors have followed expert advice in procuring the services of John J. Murdock as manager of the concern with unlimited power. Mr. Murdock, since his experience with the Independent interests, has been devoting his attention to the "small time" end of the United Booking Offices; the vaudeville trust.

According to the announcement, apparently authorized by him, the corporation will license manufacturers under the Urban-Smith patents, overlooking the fact that the Urban-Smith patents do not cover a non-infringing camera, and the general procedure, as announced, will strongly resemble the operations of the licenses of the Motion Pictures Patents Company.

Kinemacolor was introduced into this country in the latter part of 1909 through the medium of a special exhibition at the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall. A plant was established at Allentown, Pa., and the device was put into the Eden Musee, in New York City, with a great flourish of trumpets and after a brief run withdrawn without so much as a single toot to mark its passing.

In brief, it consists of a device for interposing two screens, one of red and one of green glass, in front of a projection machine and projecting these colors alternately by means of positives which also have been taken behind screens of the same tint. The pictures are projected with sufficient rapidity to blend the colors through the persistence of vision and the result is a tinted picture that suggests some of the early results obtained with the three color printing process. Where the colors have been selected with care the results are good, though the best production does not equal the results obtained by the Pathe stencil process either in depth, brilliancy or richness of color.

The double projection calls for a machine much heavier than any make now on the American market and a special machine has been offered at a cost of about £100. Whether the company will sell these machines is not stated, but although it has been announced that any machine may be adapted for kinemacolor it is admitted that the American made machines are entirely too light to stand the double strain.

The process has not yet been brought to a point where the halation of the colors is preventable and accurate registry of the two sets of colors does not appear to have been reached. Owing to the necessity for penetrating both film and screen about 100 volts are required at the arc.

It appears to be argued that the increased cost will be compensated for by the novelty of all colored pictures, but since the cost of the film will be doubled, two thousand feet being run in the same time required for a single thousand in monochrome, it remains to be proven that the novelty will continue to repay the doubled cost of current and film.

The manufacturing end offers greater obstacles in the matter of lighting and coloring. To obtain the best effects only certain shades of colors may be used in costumes and settings and the cost of painting the backings in colors will more than double the expense for settings.

Kinemacolor in its present form seems to be impractical as a commercial proposition, but the rainbow chasers of Wall Street will welcome the successor of the unlamented Cameraphone, even though this particular rainbow is one of two colors only and is liable to prove a lemon. The company has an advantage over the Associated Motion Picture Patents Company, in that it really has a patent, which the so-called Patents Company lacks, but otherwise it seems to belong to the class of companies which make the well-posted laugh, but the general public welcome the tradition that motion picture investments are certain to make money, and it is not improbable that the stock will find eager purchasers if it is offered on the curb.

Now taking the two together Variety is a very much superior report to the Film Index, because while they have not got the full facts they have got everything that is necessary and that does not mislead either their or our readers. The Film Index will naturally support the M. P. P. Co. and as a consequence will try to belittle anything that occurs outside of their own masters. Just to put our readers wise regarding this company, and we think that if news appears in our columns our readers are sufficiently well versed in our methods and the fact that they can trust us to give them the truth and nothing but the truth, and when we say we understand that Mr. Charles E. Ford, well-known western banker who is a director in Central, the largest western bank, is the president of the new Kinemacolor Company. The first notice we gave scooped the whole trade and was correct, and our readers can watch for authentic information in the columns of the News in the course of a week or two. We personally have seen the new quarters and can say that they are unique in their arrangements, and for the care of their patrons every effort will be made to display kinemacolor and we feel sure that in the capable hands of J. J. Murdock as general manager and A. H. Sawyer as corresponding secretary kinemacolor is bound to be a very important factor in the near future.

In addition to the above we can give our readers another insight into what will shortly transpire when we say we know that another company also well backed, largely financed with figures that can go into the millions, has been formed to buy out exchanges who are desirous to sell to the company and also to subsidize manufacturers of film who are deserving of this subsidization and that the News will be able in a very short while to give them the full facts of all that is transpiring.

MILITARY PICTURES

Just at this time and around Decoration Day military pictures are desired by all of the patrons of the motion picture shows.

The spirit is aroused to the utmost intensity and scenes depicting historical events of the war are eagerly watched by the war veterans as well as by the present generation of scholars, eager to learn more about the stirring scenes of the battlefields brought to their minds in a realistic manner through the medium of the twentieth century wonder, the moving picture machine. Managers should not overlook this fact and the wishes of their audience. Good, strong, historical military films are being released by many of the Independent manufacturers and we would advise a careful perusal of the release dates of the Independent manufacturers and secure the cream of pictures. Look over the list and the Solax, Imp, Champion, Rex or Thanhouser will supply you with subjects that will fill your house to capacity.

A COMPLIMENT TO THE NEWS

Allentown, Pa., May 8, 1911.

The Moving Picture News,
30 West 13th street, New York City.

Gentlemen:—I wish to compliment you on film charts as the most unique and novel innovation.

It is just the thing for the busy manager. At a glance he can pick his show.

The Independents are filling a long felt want by producing good military pictures and I hope they will go a step higher and make educational films a specialty.

Keep on the good work. Tell the manufacturers on every page of your bright, clean and sunny paper that educational films must be produced.

Success will crown your efforts.

Yours truly, D. E. KNORR.

THE ASSOCIATED MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

Our readers will notice that the Moving Picture News has not mentioned this company in any way before. We have been receiving from a Thomas Bedding press matter for publication in the News, but have held it out owing to the fact that we promised our friend, Rich. G. Hollaman, of the Eden Musee, whom we learned at the time had been approached to invest money in the same and accept the vice-presidency of the company. Others of our friends, including J. Wesley Rosenquest, had also been approached and had referred to us for the standing. When we learnt that Rich. G. Hollaman had accepted the vice-presidency tentatively, we interviewed him, and he explained to us his position therein; we agreed that we would neither condemn nor praise the company until a period of thirty days had elapsed, when he would give us his decision. After the publication, by circularizing, and press write-ups in other papers (who are very eager to get and will spread anything of such nature in their columns) had given the industry the facts as presented by the said publicity agent, T. Bedding, the News was still silent; many queries came to us both by letter and 'phone. We referred them all to Mr. Hollaman, who informed them that he would give them his decision in the course of a few days. His decision is now public and our readers will find enough thought in the letter we publish below (which fully explains Mr. Hollaman's position in the matter); those readers who have applied to us in any shape or form can now draw their own conclusions and act accordingly.

New York, May 10, 1911.

Mr. J. A. Leggett,
Associated Motion Picture Patents Co.,
1482 Broadway, New York.

Dear Sir:—Please accept my declination of the vice-presidency of your company. As you remember, my acceptance was contingent upon you showing me certain proofs absolutely necessary for the carrying out of your ambitious projects. This proof not having been furnished in the thirty days past I withdraw my tentative offer to subscribe to your stock. I am still in hearty sympathy with the objects so pleasantly outlined in your original prospectus and hope that you will yet be able to carry it through.

Hoping that you will give orders to at once withdraw my name from your printed matter.

Yours very truly, RICH. G. HOLLAMAN.

REX COMPANY

We saw a great picture the other day—a picture that made us open our eyes and stare and gasp and wonder. It was "The Ultimate Sacrifice," a Rex, and a tribute to Rex. Graphically and stirringly it depicts the eternal story of the woman who by coy coquetries and wanton wiles forces a man to lose his head and his heart to her, and then laughs at him for his devotion to her. The man, angered out of his senses by her scornful disregard, brands her and goes away. It is only then that she comes to the realization that she loves him (a strong scene this, and a difficult role, yet the part is played almost without a flaw). She writes him that she regrets having made him suffer, and is to enter a convent for expiation. Upon receiving the note his old love surges back, takes possession of him, overwhelms him. He goes in search of her, and, after a weary pilgrimage, he finds her in a convent. He runs to her and is about to embrace her when she holds him off and tells him she has taken the life vows. He pleads with her to reconsider, but the appeal is in vain. That night he breaks into the convent, makes his way to her cell and finds that the Grim Reaper has come to claim the holocaust harvest that had grown from the wild seeds she has sown—finds that the grim grief and anguish has silenced her heart forever.

It is a strong plot, strongly and stirringly portrayed. It teaches us that we have to consider Rex as a maker of masterpieces. It means that a new epoch of motion picture acting is upon us—for the portrayal of the several roles deserves all the praise we can put in printers' ink. That staff of Rex's are really artists.

Keep your eye on Rex—at least for twenty minutes on Thursday of each week.

EDUCATION IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF NEW YORK CITY

By Margaret I. MacDonald

The education of the children determines the future of a nation. The thing of greatest importance after the government of a country is the education of its children.

The system of education in the City of New York is one of the finest and most modern systems in the world to-day. It is a wheel within a wheel; or, a number of small wheels revolving each on its own axis within the larger circle. Apart from the higher authorities such as the Commissioners, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, etc., each separate department has its head. Improvements are constantly being made, and each year some new suggestion is placed before the commissioners and is acted upon or not as they see fit.

In the City of New York there are some five or six hundred public schools, in which between sixteen and seventeen thousand teachers impart knowledge to about six hundred thousand pupils. The total amount of resources from which this gigantic system draws its support is in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. Besides the elementary schools, there are some twenty-two high schools and about forty-nine or fifty corporate schools whose sustenance is included in figure above mentioned. In the year 1909, from which report I am citing, the total expenditure for the necessities of the educational system, such as teachers' salaries, water, fuel, school supplies and a score of other things, was $777,941.85, leaving a balance in the treasury of $1,353,305.70. The revenue of the educational system is derived from various sources, such as deductions for absences, deduction of one per cent from salaries, interest on deposits, interest on investments, etc.

In addition to the teachers doing actual duty in the schools, there are also visiting teachers whose duty it is to visit the homes of the truant children to determine the reason of absence. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it has been found that the children have gone to work, and that the cause of their absence is not intentional truancy.

There are also savings banks in connection with the public schools, over eight thousand of which are now in operation, over $5,000,000 having been deposited in them by the school children since the year 1885, when the first one was introduced.

The educational advantages in the City of New York are legion. In addition to the free lectures for adults, which are given at the different lecture centers, there are now given each year at the Museum of Natural History illustrated lectures for children on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, which have been attended by some 7,500 children.

There are many, many interesting things to be told of the workings of this great institution, too much to incorporate in one short article, but there is one thing more of which I must speak, and which is most beautiful in sentiment and of moral value to the children. Outside of the great city people pity us because we have no flowers, no fresh green grass—nothing but the parks, yet some of the painstaking teachers in the public schools have made use of small facilities, and have accomplished wonderful things in the court between school buildings. With mere boxes of earth they have shown the little ones how they can beautify the barren, unattractive places. The little boys in their eager interest have found places where they can get some earth, and have dragged it long distances in their little wagons and placed it in the boxes. From the seeds planted they have realized many beautiful plants and blossoms. From the planting of one split potato they have been able in the fall to dig up a number of little ones; from a couple of hills of corn they have gathered a sparse ear or two of corn; from a tomato plant they have picked a half dozen ripe red tomatoes; and thus they have learned by actual experience of the growth of things with which they were familiar only as they saw them on the market stands.

Besides the schools which are in actual service, and those in the course of erection, there are also many school sites which have been bought up, and which will in time be pressed into service. The school accommodation is not yet sufficient for the large number of pupils in attendance, and in some of the more congested districts it has been compulsory to have part time classes.

Some little time ago one of the prominent members of the Board of Education of the City of New York was interviewed by the M. P. N. with regard to the use of motion pictures for the illustration of the free lectures in the public schools. At the annual banquet of the lecture corps the matter was touched upon by Dr. Leipziger in his address, and favorably commented upon. By inquiring further I find that the matter will in all probability be discussed at the next meeting of the Board of Commissioners, which will take place in all probability in July. However, should the suggestion be received with favor by them, no decisive measure can be taken until the Board of Estimate and Apportionment have also passed upon the matter. The Board of Estimate and Apportionment meets but once a year, in November, when all new matters are taken up and discussed.

At a more recent interview with one of the members of the Board, I ventured the suggestion that it might be a good hing to introduce moving pictures in the public schools in connection with the daily lessons. The suggestion was taken in good part, and my attention was drawn to the fact that such an innovation would require some readjustment, as it would not be possible to have moving pictures in every room. It seems to me that most effective work could be done with the help of the motion pictures. When the importance of the educational film has fully dawned upon the people, I fancy that steps may be taken to chronicle important events in the history of the country in moving picture films, which may be used in teaching the children, instead of laboring through so many pages of what the children call "dry stuff."

There is no doubt but that the future will open up ways and means of education which at the present time are unthought of. And we must always bear in mind that on the education of the children depends the fate of our constitution.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, Ark., May 10.—The past week was one of the merriest and liveliest that the old town has seen since Teddy Roosevelt visited the "Valley of Vapors" last October. You see, there were 5,000 loyal, shouting Elks in the city and they had the "Sage of Sagamore Hill" looking like a deaf and dumb candidate to the anti-noise society. Gee, but they sure cut up, and then some. And I guess the picture houses didn't do a great business. Harry Hale, at the Lyric, added as a special feature Battling Nelson, the former lightweight champion of the world, who is here with a reel of pictures showing the more important rounds of the Nelson-Wolgast scrap, on which he lectured, while every other house in the city was there with some added attraction, to say nothing of decorations that were pictures in themselves. It was one large, juicy week, believe me, and the convention of the Elks, which was the third annual meeting of the State Association, also brought to Hot Springs the initial aviation meet ever held in Arkansas. Jimmie Ward, the youngest aviator in the world, former instructor in aviation of the United States Army and Navy officers in Cuba and winner of sixty-seven cups, was the big feature, and Jimmie fairly outdid himself.

The Elks had free entree to every house in the city; also the ladies. In fact, the local lodge gave each one of them who desired to take it a free bath, and they all splashed in the porcelain before they hiked for "Home, Sweet Home."

The debut of Battling Nelson in our midst came somewhat of a surprise. The Battler isn't feeling so well as formerly. One may so judge for the reason that he did not let any one know he was coming, and even after he got here he kept quiet until a hotel reporter caught his name on the register of the Park Hotel. I had quite an interesting chat with the Battler, who has brought with him a complete camping outfit, which he will pitch at the conclusion of his engagement at the Lyric on one of the mountains surrounding the city and try the "simple life." He's going to be a regular "Fletcherite," he says,—getting just far enough away from the curious mob that always hangs around a fighter's quarters and at the same time be within hailing distance of these God-given waters, when he can run down, take his daily bath and then climb the mountains to his retreat. Bat, by this means, is going to start a course of training; also he is going to take a legal crack at some wise "geek" who runs a poolroom in this city and who recently used his name to pack his place of business, advertising that Battling Nelson would referee a pool match to be played in that place. Bat at that time wasn't within hundreds of miles of this city, but he hadn't been here long before he was tipped off as to the true state of affairs, and now he is going after the proprietor in the courts for damage.

I heard his lecture this week at the Lyric and it was all to the good. The Battler has developed into quite a talker. There was a time a few years ago when he was a waiter in Frisby's Café, this city, that he had to have an interpreter with him when he took an order, but to-day it's different. He didn't fail to give the little man who took the lightweight crown away from him due credit, but assured his audience that he would try and "come back." The pictures of the fight were very good and the Lyric did a big business.

Frank Head's popular Airdome opened last Monday night for the summer season and has been doing a capacity business ever since. This is without doubt one of the most popular open-air theaters in Arkansas. The grounds are beautiful, to begin with, with ample stage room, and more than the usual quota of facilities. Billy Allen's big musical show, "The King of Kokomo," was the initial offering, headed by that inimitable comedian, and the attraction was a winner. The chorus was especially good, the girls pretty, capable and costumes most becoming.

The Princess also had a big bill on for the Elks week, while at the Lyceum the special pictures of Niagara Falls were shown to large and appreciative audiences. That was the first time I had seen "Old Niag" since playing in Buffalo the time McKinley laid in state there, and the reel brought back many memories of former theatrical days, for the bunch of us hiked out to the Falls one Sunday and were duly impressed with the grandeur we beheld.

Exit Dick Beard; also vamoose Frank Ritter—two old showmen of the city. The former resigned as manager of the Lyceum-Orpheum Theater, owing to the serious illness of his sister in Paris, Tex., and is there now. He has been in Hot Springs in the picture show business for the past two years, having managed the aforementioned theaters, as well as the Scenic, and it was through his persistency and willingness to stand for arrest that other managers came to his way of thinking and made the fight against Sunday closing. Dick has been pinched more times than he has fingers and toes, until it became a habit with him. Dick used to notify the officers in advance how many bonds he had made out before they came after him and they always knew about how often to get him for running on Sunday. He is also one of the most experienced operators that has ever been here, a thorough electrician and had a large circle of friends who were pained to learn of his sister's illness and also regretted that Dick left town.

Frank Ritter has been the illustrated song singer at the Lyceum for about eighteen months. His health finally broke down and he took a long rest. At present he is handing out the illustrated songs at the "Majestic 4," in Memphis, from which place he writes me that he is making good, feeling fine and likes his new job. Go to it, Frank.

We were also closed last Sunday. That Supreme Court decision, which I mentioned in my last letter has not as yet materialized and until it does there will be no more picture shows in Hot Springs on the Sabbath, and maybe not then. One can never tell. The eliminating of the pictures deprived thousands of visitors of refreshing, harmless amusement this past Sunday, for the city was crowded with visitors who came to the big convention of the Elks and who had no place to go to pass the time Sunday but sit around the hotel, pay many, many more times the amount of a ticket for a team if they wanted to drive, or walk the streets—and a majority choose the latter.

I am going to ask Mr. Saunders to excuse the review of pictures in this letter, for the reason that I have been under the weather all week, suffering with a combination of grip and malaria and have been making a beaten path to the doctor's office all week. I simply could not get busy with the pictures, for when the day's work was done and we put our daily on the streets, I broke records getting home and into the hay for a little rest. At this writing I am still sick. (What's that you said, Yankee? You hope I choke? Oh, I beg pardon.) I'll be on the job, I sincerely trust, in my next letter, but just now it's the old fireside for

THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Alfred S. Reis is preparing plans for the erection of a new theater at Grand Ave. and Second St. to cost $30,000.

New Orleans, La.—The Lyric Moving Picture Theater was damaged to the amount of $500 by fire.

Columbus, Ohio.—Architect J. S. Goldsmith is drawing plans for a new moving picture theater on the East Side.

Davenport, Ia.—The contract for the new Empire Theater on Fourth Ave. has been let to Wylie Bros., of Dubuque.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—T. A. Clark & Co., 26 Court St., will erect a new theater at De Kalb Ave. and Broadway to cost $350,000.

Bedford, Ia.—John J. Clark will erect an opera house on the site of the old Clifton Hotel building.

South Pasadena, Cal.—A new theater to cost $25,000 will be erected on Fair Oaks Ave.

THE LATEST FROM LONDON

(By our English Correspondent)

It is gratifying to note that Prince Alexander of Teck has received from Mr. Charles Urban the sum of £250 for the Prince Francis of Teck Memorial Fund for the Middlesex Hospital, the proceeds of the kinemacolor entertainment and Herr Paul Lincke's operetta, "Castles in the Air," given at the Scala Theater on the ocasion of its inauguration.

* * * * *

On Thursday (April 13th) 60,000 feet of film, representing all the copies of the famous Henry VIII release, were burned in the grounds of the Ealing studio by Mr. Barker, of the Barker Motion Photography, Ltd. The films, which had been recalled from the circuit of the leading picture theaters in this country, were destroyed in the presence of representatives of the press in accordance with the promise made when the subject was taken. The negative, safely deposited in the Barker safe at "Topical House," is now the only film in existence. A large number of the films were in excellent condition, but they had served their purpose. I am informed that the film depicting the great blaze will be shown privately to members of the trade and that a copy will also be presented to Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, as a momento of his association with Barker Motion Photography, Ltd., in the production of this filmic masterpiece.

* * * * *

Out of 3,208 fires which occurred in the area of the London County Council in 1910, only seven were at picture exhibitions.

* * * * *

An interesting demonstration was given recently in connection with the Municipal Technical Institute, Belfast, at one of the principal picture theaters in that city. The vast possibilities associated with the employment of the cinematograph as a means of impressing upon the minds of students the instruction received in the science, geography and art classes. It was apparent to all who had the privilege of witnessing the display which had been prepared by the president of the institute that the experiment should have an important bearing upon the future of education in this country. The films shown were as follows: 1. Metallurgy-Creusot Works. 2. Wilbur Wright's Aeroplane. 3. A visit to Niagara Falls. 4. Nature's Realm. 5. Natural History Subjects: (a) Cheese Mites, (b) the Freshwater Hydra, (c) the Brickmaking Rotifer, (d) Circulation of Protoplasm in the Waterweed, (e) Circulation of Blood in a Frog's Foot, (f) the Snail, the Tortoise and the Toad, (g) Chameleon's Feeding, (h) the Boa Constrictor, (i) Pugilistic Toads and the Tortoise Referee. 6. The Silk Worm. 7. The Birth of a Flower. 8. Reedham Schoolboys at Drill.

The attendance at the demonstration included members of the Corporation Co-opted, members of Library and Technical Instruction Committee, members of Art Sub-Committee, Corporation Officials, Inspectors of the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, head masters of secondary schools in Belfast, Staff of Municipal Technical Institute, representatives of the film trade, pupils of trade preparatory schools of Municipal Technical Institute, students of day technical course of Municipal Technical Institute, Art Students of the Municipal Technical Institute, etc., etc.

This was the first occasion on which the cinematograph had been used in Belfast for purely scientific purposes. The president remarked that there was an especial appropriateness in the circumstance that the motion picture machine, which depended so much for its effectiveness upon electricity, should have been employed for purposes of instruction within those walls, for in that building was born one of the most distinguished electricians and educationists the world had ever known, namely, Lord Kelvin. For that display they were much indebted to the help of a number of firms who had lent films.

The Library and Technical Instruction Committee intend to collect suitable films and arrange for their exhibition in public halls.

* * * * *

Since their Highnesses Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck (accompanied by the son and daughters of the Duke of Teck) opened the beautiful Scala Theater, Mr. Urban has enjoyed the patronage of many distinguished persons, including the Lady Mayoress, Mr. Alderman and Sheriff Johnston, the Right Hon. Sir Joseph Dimsdale, K. C. V. O., and Lady Dimsdale, Lady Tyler, Sir James Ritchie, Sir Frederick Ponsonby, Sir Douglass Dawson, Sir Edward Henry, Mr. H. P. Hansell (tutor to the Royal Princess), Sir Henry Trueman Wood (Royal Society of Arts), the Rev. F. C. Lambert, the Rev. Stewart Headlam, L. C. C., and many others.

London, April 25, 1911. L. W. D.

FROM THE OBSERVATORY

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Hyatt, of California, has sent out to county school superintendents a circular of which the following is a part:

"The possibilities of moving pictures in educational work are immense, and so far have been overlooked entirely throughout the country. So far as I can see, no better investment could be made by county superintendents than in a moving picture outfit. This could be sent about to all the prominent schools in the county in rotation to the great profit of all the pupils and an increased interest in the work, which might be supplemented by the films sent out."

Mr. Hyatt is in error when he says the possibilities of the moving picture in educational work have been overlooked throughout the country. Only last week John Collier, a member of Mayor Gaynor's advisory motion picture committee, advocated the use of the schools for afternoon and evening displays of educational films. A couple of weeks ago Thomas A. Edison was quoted as saying that "in a few years every grammar and high school and every church in the country will have a moving picture machine in it. I'll illustrate what I mean: You be the class and I'll be the teacher.

"The lesson to-day will be on Madagascar. First, I'll throw a picture on the screen showing the geographical relation of Madagascar to Africa. Then we will have moving pictures of principal streets of the big towns. They will show just what is going on in those streets, whether there are trolley cars and such things or whether it is an uncivilized place.

"Then we might show a motion picture, say, of a mountain range, taken probably from a railroad train. Few persons remember such dry things as the principal products. I would show pictures of the products and show how they are raised. In that way, you see, I could teach more geography in fifteen minutes than you can teach in fifteen days. When the machine and films can be had cheap enough they will be so used."

* * * * *

It may be true that truth is stranger than fiction, but it is a fact that fact is stranger than fiction. There have been various photoplays wherein the pictures taken by a moving picture camera were thrown on an improvised court-room screen at the psychological stage of the villain's trial, with the resultant conviction of the bad and the vindication of the innocent.

Now comes the story that during the wine riots in France the local prosecuting attorney caused to be made motion pictures of the turbulent crowds, and, of course, he will use the films as evidence. It will tax the inventive talent of even a Frenchman to devise an alibi that will beat out evidence of this sort.

* * * * *

Out in Bismarck, N. D., there is trouble over a law passed by the last Legislature, which prohibits the operation of motion pictures on the Sabbath. Must be something the matter with that Legislature. The constituents of a Solon who would vote to close moving picture houses on Sunday should know what treatment to prescribe. A good long rest from legislative responsibilities for such benighted men would be of undoubted benefit to his immediate community. Some churchmen and all saloon men want picture houses closed on the Sabbath. There may be a doubt as to whether the aforesaid churchmen have a comprehensive knowledge of the "evils" of which they complain, but there is no doubt as to whether or not the saloon men know why they want the shows closed on Sundays. It interferes with their business.

That there are, however, churchmen who appreciate the availability of the pictures as a means of filling a church on a Sunday evening is proved by the action of the pastor and officials of a Dunkirk (N. Y.) church. Their exhibition of selected films was greeted by an audience in which were many not affiliated with the church—or any church. As the congregation increased so likewise did the contributions, the best evidence of appreciation. But the mayor of that town said the show was contrary to the Law and ordered it stopped. The church denies that it is a wrongdoer and has procured an injunction restraining the mayor and marshal from enforcing the law, which goes to prove the truth of the remark of the eminent Mr. Choate that "This shows that some things may be done as well as others."

Speaking impersonally, it is strange, isn't it, that the average municipal official is obsessed with the idea that the saloon keeper is the only man who should be allowed to do business on Sunday?

* * * * *

A bill has been introduced in the New York Legislature requiring all booths in which motion picture apparatus is used to be fireproofed. The bill should pass.

Here's a home run batted out by the Evening Sun of this city:

"In calm Montclair, where dogs are not allowed to bark and roosters are forbidden to crow, they have ruled out the moving picture show as too stimulating. Cannot some one invent a motionless, moving picture show to meet the needs of this pluperfect spot?"

The wizard of Menlo Park should point out to his unneighborly neighbors that moving pictures often have been known to exercise a soporific effect upon those habitually inclined to drowsiness.

* * * * *

A committee of Chinese recently appealed to the mayor of New Orleans asking that a photoplay portraying the murder of Elsie Siegel be debarred. Americans might well have reached the mayor first. The Chinese, however, are not to be pitied so much as are the Indians. The noble redman has suffered much at the hands of the writers and directors. Still, for a' that, a letter from a friend in an Oregon town situated near two Indian reservations tells me that the redskins are the most regular attendants at the picture shows, and, while they may not be able to read the guide lines, manifest the deepest interest. And right here I want to express my surprise that some of the manufacturers have not used the real instead of a bad imitation article in Indian plays. The government ought to sanction it. The aborigines have been employed in innumerable Wild West shows. Why not in picture shows?

* * * * *

Captain Bob Bartlett, North Pole Peary's skipper, is organizing a summer expedition to Arctic waters and lands. He will "personally conduct" a party of twenty-five wealthy sportsmen in search of walrus, bear and narwhal. A moving picture outfit will be taken along, for the future entertainment of house parties. The party may go as far north as Etah. If photographs can be secured of the data said by Dr. Cook to be cached there, and which the doctor thinks would fortify his Arctic claims, they should prove a "moving" sight.

TALKING ABOUT TWO DIFFERENT THINGS

(From the Brooklyn Standard Union)

Really the Church Club people who recently adopted resolutions are talking about one thing when they discuss the "crime wave," and the vast majority of the law-abiding people have something else in mind. The resolutions start off with alleging "a large increase of crime," and then they specify—"Sunday saloons, moving picture shows and vaudeville." It is true, they go on to mention "those other forms of crime which these resorts breed at all times; but the specific 'crimes' are those enumerated."

Sunday saloons, moving picture shows and vaudeville are deprecated by many of the wisest people who are not puritanical. But these mala prohibita are not generally regarded as crimes. They are resorted to by such vast numbers of self-respecting people who would regard it as comic to suppose themselves engaged in "vice" that the resolutions are not a basis for union of all the law-abiding elements of the community.

All our former reform administrations have been wrecked by the insistent demand, suddenly made upon them and not made upon other administrations, that they show good faith by undertaking to shut up saloons and amusements on Sunday.

The saloons ought to be shut up, but we never get a bit nearer creating a public sentiment for their closing by coupling them with moving picture shows and vaudeville and characterizing them all together as vice and crime.

MOTION PICTURE PIRATES

Klaw & Erlanger have begun an active campaign against the motion picture pirates who have been exhibiting films purporting to be reproductions of the scenes in "Ben Hur." The first action was against the Kalem Company, and after a series of exhaustive hearings Klaw & Erlanger, on April 27, 1908, were granted a most sweeping injunction restraining the defendants from exhibiting any motion pictures of "Ben Hur." This injunction was afterwards affirmed by the United States Court of Appeals and is now in force.

Recently several persons and firms in different parts of the country have begun to show these "Ben Hur" films in their picture houses. Klaw & Erlanger met this with immediate and most drastic action. On May 5th Charles E. White, manager of the Lyceum Bio-Scenmograph Company, of Chicago, was arrested, taken before United States Judge Killetts, sitting at Toledo, O., and sentenced to serve sixty days in jail. Action has also been begun against E. N. Thomas, L. W. Seamon and Laura Seamon, operating under the name of the Aladdin Amusement Company in Springfield, Mo., for the same offense. This case will come up in the near future.

As the United States Court has indicated in the White case that jail sentences may be expected for violation of its injunctions, the indications are that Klaw & Erlanger will succeed in effectually stopping the pirating of copyrighted plays. Klaw & Erlanger have instructed their agents in various parts of the country to begin criminal proceedings against all offenders against this injunction.—Eagle, May 9, 1911.

* * * * * *

I noticed the other evening in a Kalem picture, "A War Time Escape," one or two inexcusable inaccuracies. One was a Federal cavalryman with a bayonet in scabbard. The Federal soldiers also were armed with a bolt-action musket, which came into use quite some time after the close of the war. Soldiers these days do not hold a rifle in one hand and throw up the other hand to salute. Nor did they do this in Civil War days, either.

In "Hungry Hearts" (Vitagraph) when Mr. Warren is called to the 'phone by a servant he finds the receiver nestling on the receiving hook, yet from the manner in which he begins conversation there is no hint of the fact that in a real telephone the party at the other end of the wire would have been cut off.

* * * * *

So Nat Wills, the Merry Tramp, has signed up for the picture game. Welcome, Tramp, medals and all. More Powers to you. I shall never forget one scene in which Wills was a most active participant, in which, in fact, he held the center of the stage. And this is no figure of speech, either.

It was a couple of years ago come next month. The writer, with a friend, was sitting down front in the orchestra at a matinee performance in the old Brighton Beach Music Hall. A most unusual and heavy thunder storm was centered right at the beach. The sky was black and it seemed as if night had fallen. Wills had laughingly given up an attempt to talk to his audience and announced that he would sing. The cannonade was practically continuous. Then came a terrific report and a sound as if a big shell had entered the western side of the house and passed out at the eastern. Pandemonium in the audience ensued. My companion was looking over the audience. "There's a streak of smoke back there!" she said. I didn't look behind. I could hear the commotion of people hurriedly rising from their chairs, but my eyes were on Wills. It was a sight worth witnessing. The smile came off his face, and was succeeded by a moderately stern expression—just a good businesslike look. Before he could get to the footlights there was another explosion so near it seemed as if the theater must have been struck. A young man, presumably the stage manager, hurried from the wings. There was apprehension written on every line of his face. One good look at him was sufficient to upset hitherto steady nerves.

"Sit down in your seats!" shouted Wills; and he had to shout to be heard. "You are safer in here than you are outside. Everybody get back to your seats; I'm having trouble enough with this outside noise without having a lot more on the inside."

The audience gradually settled down, but everyone seemed on edge the rest of the afternoon. There had been present all the elements of a dangerous panic. Had there been on the stage a man less strong than Wills the result would have been serious. When a man can rise to an occasion and play the hero in real life, in "stern realities," surely he should be entitled to play the hero in a studio.

* * * * *

There is one aspect, however, of the entrance of Wills into the motion picture business that marks a distinct advance for American manufacturers. Wills, perhaps, is the best-known man to come from the stage to the canvas. May the time come, and come speedily, when we will produce in this country something that for dignity, pictorial effect, lasting impressiveness and rank of principals shall be the peer of "Robert the Silent." The work of M. Ravet and of Mlle. Napierkowska is superb.

M. RAVET.

Baltimore, Md.—John M. Alexander will erect a one-story moving picture theater at Jefferson and Bradford Sts. to cost $3,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Moving Picture Theater occupied by Edward Potter, at 5039 Baltimore Ave., was destroyed by fire. Loss, $500.

Buffalo, N. Y.—A new $10,000 moving picture theater is to be erected in Gennessee St. and Goodyear Ave. for Frank Nowak.

MAY 18 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS SCENARIOS

Copyright by Alfred H. Saunders

SYNOPSIS OF "A COLONIAL ROMANCE"

By Miss B. Nemone

Colonel Dunwoodie, a gallant British officer serving in Virginia, loves Rose Fairfax, the ward of Doctor Tolliver, who desires to marry her himself. The Colonel is forbidden the house, so he comes with a company of colored musicians to serenade her. While the serenade is going on, the girl appears and tosses a note and a rose to the Colonel. She is violently pulled back from the window and the Doctor appears with a bucket of water, which he throws over the Colonel, and throws the bucket over the head of one of his minstrels. The Colonel and they retire and then the musicians clamor for their pay. When they get it they politely but insistently demand more, until they finally exhaust his patience and he drives them before him, belaboring them with the flat of his sword. After they have disappeared, he stands musing sadly over the failure of his plans, when the village barber happens along; he greets the Colonel, who tells him of his failure to get a few words with Rose. The barber proposes to get him into the house in the guise of a private soldier billeted on the Doctor. Dunwoodie agrees and hurries off to change his uniform while the barber passes on to the house to tell the Doctor of the arrival of the fresh troops, some of whom are to be billeted on the people. When he arrives at the house he finds the Doctor in close confab with the village lawyer, and he incessantly interrupts until they leave the room in disgust. Rose enters and the barber tells her about the Colonel's ruse and also that the Doctor is going to marry her himself in spite of everything. The Doctor rushes on in great excitement, followed by the Colonel, who is made up as a private very much overcome with drink. He insists on the Doctor taking the order for his billet, and when he declines to do so chases him about the room brandishing his sword and knocking down pictures and bric-a-brac in his course. He drives the Doctor from the room and then revives Rose, who is almost fainting with terror. He excuses his conduct. They embrace as the Doctor enters, leading several soldiers and a sergeant; the sergeant arrests the Colonel, but he reveals his rank and they want to arrest the Doctor instead for interfering with him. The Doctor hustles Rose off scene and is driven off himself by the sergeant. Dunwoodie orders them from the house and calling the Doctor tells him that he will not remain in a house where his uniform has been insulted, and follows the soldiers off. The Doctor comes back and pretends to read, when Smith enters and gives him a note saying that Perkins will not be able to leave the house for some time but that he has sent his assistant to give Rose her music lesson. The Doctor is angry and when the Colonel, disguised as a music teacher, enters, he greets him very shortly, but sends for Rose, orders the lesson to begin, and tells the barber to shave him. The music lesson is mixed with love-making, and every time the piano stops the Doctor tries to rise from his chair to see what they are doing, but Smith holds him down by various means, jabbing him in the eye with the lather brush, etc. During Rose's song, the Colonel persuades her to elope with him by signs. Perkins enters at this juncture and is surprised to hear that he is sick-a-bed, but Rose, the Colonel and the barber force him out before he can demand an explanation. The Doctor chases the Colonel from the house and then tells Rose that he is the most notorious Don Juan in the colony and makes love to all the girls. He arouses her jealousy, and in a funny love scene almost gains her consent to marry him. He embraces her just as Smith enters. The Doctor gives Smith a note to Perkins, telling him to come that night prepared to marry him to his ward. Smith takes the note, but on the way stops and reads the contents to the Colonel. When the Colonel has finished dressing, they rush out, mount their horses and ride to the Doctor's house. The barber procures a ladder and after some hesitation, Rose descends into the Colonel's arms, just as the notary arrives accompanied by a parson. The Colonel compels them to silence, and makes the parson marry them on the spot. As the ceremony finishes, the Doctor, with several soldiers, comes upon them and they are about to arrest Dunwoodie but he reveals his rank and also tells them that it is too late, as he and Rose are married. The Doctor is wild but, seeing that he can do no better, he finally blesses them. They both shake the barber's hand vigorously.

Curtain

"A COLONIAL ROMANCE"

Scene—Colonial Virginia, A. D. 1760.

Dramatis Personae.

Colonel Dunwoodie.....A Young English Officer
Doctor Tolliver.....The Village Doctor
Rose Fairfax.....The Doctor's Ward
Eleazer Perkins.....The Village Notary and Music Teacher
John Smith.....The Village Barber and General Factotum
Negro Minstrels and British Soldiers

Scene I. The Serenade.

Outside the mansion of Doctor Tolliver, Colonel Dunwoodie appears with a corps of black musicians and serenades Rose. The serenaders come into view very cautiously. The musicians timorous. The Colonel confident. They look about very carefully. Colonel signals Rose's window by throwing gravel. Musicians tune up, Colonel is angry at the noise. The shutter is opened and at the signal of the officer the minstrels play. He sings, as he warms up he uses his sword as a guitar, throws back his cloak, so as to show his uniform, etc. The shutters open. Rose peeps out, she kisses a flower and throws it to the cavalier. She follows it with a note. She hastily slams the shutters closed. The Colonel continues serenade. The shutters are opened again. The minstrels redouble their ardor. The shutters open wide suddenly and a bucket of water is thrown over the Colonel and the bucket over the head of one of the minstrels. Doctor Tolliver appears on balcony and denounces Colonel. Colonel shakes his sword in defiance, and starts away with his serenaders.

Scene II. Paying the Piper.

The Colonel is surrounded by the minstrels who demand payment. He gives them all the money he has, and after they have split it up they demand more (continued ad lib.). He wrenches away and runs, they block his way and again demand money. They are very polite but insistent. After every gift they thank him profusely. The last time he chases them and belabors them with the flat of his sword.

Scene III. The Barber.

The Colonel, alone on the road, peruses the note. He is enraptured but puzzled. The village barber passes on his way to shave Doctor Tolliver. He greets the Colonel who tells him of his attempts to see Rose. The barber proposes to get him into the house in the guise of a soldier billeted on the Doctor. Dunwoodie joyfully agrees. He hurries off to change his uniform. The barber goes to the house to shave the Doctor.

Scene III. The Billeted Soldier.

The Doctor is seated in an armchair telling Perkins of his approaching marriage to Rose. Perkins obsequiously assents to all the Doctor says. Their conversation is repeatedly interruped by the barber who enters with the most ridiculous things as an excuse for the intrusion.

They repulse him angrily, and drive him from the room. However, finally wearied by his pertinacity, they go out. Rose enters, Smith tells her about Dunwoodie, and also the resolve of Doctor Tolliver to wed her willy nilly. The Doctor rushes in in great excitement, followed by Dunwoodie, who insists on him taking the paper billeting him (Dunwoodie) in the house. Dunwoodie is disguised as a private soldier, and apparently very tipsy. The Doctor flies into a rage, and refuses to take him in. Dunwoodie then chases the Doctor around the room, upsetting statuary and bric-a-brac, and waving his sword in a reckless manner about the Doctor's back. He finally drives the Doctor from the room. Rose, terrorized out of her wits, is crouched in a corner, never recognizing in the drunken soldier the gallant Colonel whom she loves. Dunwoodie, after some trouble, persuades her that he is still all that she could desire in a lover, and embraces follow. He excuses his boisterous conduct on the ground of necessity, as he had to force himself on the Doctor and was afraid to speak for fear his voice would be recognized. They embrace once more. Enter the Doctor leading a sergeant and a file of soldiers. The sergeant speaks roughly to Dunwoodie, and orders his men to throw him out of the house. He whispers his identity to the sergeant, whose demeanor at once changes from hostility to the utmost respect. The sergeant turns to the Doctor and threatens him with arrest for his rudeness to a soldier billeted on him by Colonel Dunwoodie. The Doctor hustles Rose off scene, and stands in the door defying the sergeant, while Rose throws kisses over her shoulder at the Colonel. The sergeant pursues the Doctor and he turns to fly when Rose slams the door in his face, bumping his nose. He forces the door open, and in turn slams it on the sergeant's fingers. The sergeant dances with pain. Dunwoodie orders the soldiers from the room, tipping them liberally. Dunwoodie then knocks at door through which Rose and the Doctor disappeared, and when the Doctor appears through the half-opened door tells him that he will not remain in a house where his uniform has been insulted. He snaps his fingers in the Doctor's face and goes off.

Scene IV. A Musical Shave.

The same room. The Doctor is reading and fretting because the barber is late. Smith comes in, apologizes profusely, and hands the Doctor a note. Doctor reads:

Doctor Tolliver

Honored Sir:

I regret that the events of the morning have so exhausted me that I will not be able to leave my house for a few days, but in order that your beautiful ward may not go without her usual music lesson, I send in my place my talented young assistant. I am sure she will learn rapidly under him.

Your Obedient Servant,

Eleazer Perkins.

The Doctor slams the note on the table in a very bad humor. Dunwoodie enters, dressed in black, wearing a long cloak and steeple hat, also a long wig that completely disguises him. The Doctor greets him shortly, tells the barber to call Rose and then shave him at once. Rose enters, takes her seat at the piano and after a few glances at the new teacher, enters into the spirit of the thing. Smith brings on a towel, basin of hot water and a large razor, he tucks a towel under the Doctor's chin and places himself between him and the lovers. The Doctor tells him to stand at the other side of the chair, but he won't do so. He lathers the Doctor, who every once in a while sits up to see what Rose is doing. The Doctor notices that the music has stopped and tries to leave his chair. Smith holds him down and commences to shave him (comedy scene ad lib). Meanwhile Dunwoodie and Rose are kissing more than they are playing and singing. The Doctor attempts to rise in his chair. Smith jabs him in the eye with the brush. Dunwoodie comes to the Doctor's chair in answer to his call. The Doctor denounces him as an impostor but consents that the lesson shall continue. Smith pulls a hair from the Doctor's head and tries the razor with it. Doctor jumps, but Smith holds him down by pressing the razor against his face. Dunwoodie while Rose plays and sings, persuades her, by signs, to climb out of the window the coming night, and elope with him. She consents. They kiss. Doctor annoyed at the renewed stopping of the music forces himself from the chair. Dunwoodie takes music from the rack and makes an elaborate explanation of the difficulties he's having teaching Rose. Perkins enters. General consternation. Perkins is told he is ill in bed ,and appears to be surprised to hear it. Tolliver is about to question him when Dunwoodie, the barber and Rose surround him, tell him how badly he looks and force him from the room in spite of his struggles. The Doctor is now certain that the Colonel is an impostor and orders him from the house. The Doctor then tells Rose that the Colonel is the most notorious Don Juan in the Colony of Virginia, that he makes love to all the girls and is engaged to about a dozen. He arouses her jealousy, and in a burlesque love scene, almost gains her consent to marry him. He embraces her. Smith enters, and seeing the embrace, rushes off, pretending to be shocked. The Doctor calls him back and gives him a note for Perkins telling him to come to the house that night and marry him and Rose.

Scene V. The Colonel's Room at the Inn.

The Colonel is taking off the robes of the teacher and also the uniform of the private, and getting into the uniform of his rank, Smith rushes in and reads the Doctor's note. He wants the Colonel to read it himself, but he refuses, as it would be dishonorable. The barber reads:

"Dear Perkins:

I hope you are well. But, any way, come to-night prepared to marry Rose and I, as I have decided to wait no longer.

Alexander Tolliver."

He tells the Colonel that he will have to carry her off early, elope into Maryland and be married there. When the Colonel has finished dressing, they rush out.

Scene VI. The Army Wins.

The Colonel and barber mount horses at the inn and ride furiously to the Doctor's. When they arrive, they hitch their horses out of sight of the house, and creep under Rose's window. Dunwoodie throws a pebble at the shutter and Rose appears. The Colonel pleads and finally Rose descends the ladder procured by the barber, into the arms of the impetuous Colonel, just as Perkins and a parson arrive. The Colonel and Smith capture them and compel the parson to marry them on the spot. The Doctor and a company of soldiers surprise them just as the ceremony is finished. They are about to arrest Dunwoodie. He reveals his rank, and also that it is too late, as they are already married. The officers shake hands, and the Doctor, seeing that he can do nothing else, blesses the happy couple. Bride and groom both grasp the barber's hand.

KINEMACOLOR'S NEW FIELD

"Kinemacolor" goes on from triumph to triumph. No more gratifying recognition of the system of natural color kinematography associated with the name of Mr. Chas. Urban could be desired than that which has just been given by the several Governments and large commercial organizations which have recently commissioned the taking of series of films in colors for use in publicity campaigns. The superiority of the natural color films over the black and white product has in this manner been recognized by, amongst other parties, the Canadian Government, the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the National Cash Register Company. With the last named alone, Mr. Urban's contract is said to amount to $30,000, and in order to insure that a completely comprehensive view of the company's works at Dayton, Ohio, shall be secured, views will be taken from a captive balloon and a special staff and complete developing plant is being transported to Ohio.

Mr. J. Mackenzie, one of Mr. Urban's oldest employees, and recognized as a moving picture photographer with no superior in the country, is in charge of the staff which left for Canada on May 6th. A special car has been built for the party by the C. P. R. Co., including dark rooms, sleeping and living accommodations, etc., in which the operators will travel from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the car being sidetracked at various points to allow of the exploitation of the points of greatest natural beauty and interest in the neighborhood. This trip will last for a full year, and its results should do much to stimulate the emigration from this country—which is, of course, their object.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Gustave Zwaiss will erect a one-story moving picture theater at Wharton & Hollywood Sts.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Alex Weil, 123 Grand Ave., will remodel the store building at Eleventh and Winnebago Sts. into a moving picture house to cost $18,000.

Germantown, Pa.—Louis H. Cahan will erect a vaudeville house at W. Chelten Ave.

Rome, N. Y.—J. H. Carroll has awarded the contracts for his new theater.

Mexia, Texas.—A new $25,000 opera house will be erected here.

Murphysboro, Ill.—The Gem Theater is to build an airdome at Ninth and Walnut Sts.

ANDREWS PICTURES, Ltd.

Have been granted some exclusive positions for cinematographing THEIR MAJESTIES' CORONATION PROCESSION on June 22nd next.

Approximate length 650 feet. Code word, "Corona"

Also the ROYAL PROCESSION of June 23rd, including the Illuminations along the line of route.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Ropill"

THE REVIEW AT SPITHEAD on June 24th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Respit"

And the ROYAL PROCESSION through the North-East of London on June 29th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code Word, "Ropel"

All above subjects at 3½d (Three Pence Halfpenny) Per Foot Net.

Terms 50% Cash with Order. Balance C. O. D. to Agent or Carriers.

Address 90 CHARING CROSS ROAD, LONDON, W. C.

Cable "ANDREORA, London." Code A B C. 5th Edition.

FOR SALE OR LEASE

MOVING PICTURE STUDIO AND LABORATORIES

Fully equipped and ready for immediate use. Capacity, thirty thousand (30,000) feet daily.

Address HOOPER BROS.

308 E. Baltimore St. BALTIMORE, MD.

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E. E.

WATTHOUR METERS AND HOW TO READ THEM

In complying with the numerous requests that I have received asking for directions how to read a Wattmeter, I am departing from my regular series of articles by publishing the following in advance of its regular position:

Directions for Reading Recording Wattmeter Dials

To read correctly the dial of a recording meter, some care is necessary. The figures marked under or over a dial (1,000, 10,000, etc.), are the amounts recorded by a complete revolution of the hand, therefore, one division on a dial indicates one-tenth of the amount indicated above or below. A complete revolution of the first hand (the one to the extreme right) in diagram No. 6, Fig. 38, for example, indicates 1,000, and moves the second hand one division of the second dial. The first hand, in the position given it in the diagram, indicates 700—not 7,000.

In deciding on the reading of a hand, the hand before it (to the right) must be consulted. Unless the hand before it has reached or passed the 0, or, in other words, completed a revolution, the other has not completed the division on which it may appear to rest. For this reason, ease and rapidity are gained by reading a meter from right to left. For example, in Diagram No. 2, the first dial (the extreme right) reads 900. The second apparently indicates 0; but, since the first has not completed its revolution, but indicates only 9, the second cannot have completed its division; hence the second dial also indicates 9. The same is true of the hand of the third dial; the second, being 9, has not quite completed its revolution; so the third has not completed its division, and therefore we again have 9. The same holds true of the hand of the fourth dial. The last hand (the extreme left) appears to rest on 1; but since the fourth is only 9, the last has not completed its division and therefore indicates 0. Putting the figures down from right to left, the total reading is 999,900, though one might erroneously read 1,999,900, making a mistake of 1,000,000 units.

The hands sometimes become slightly misplaced, as shown in diagrams Nos. 8, 9 and 10. In No. 8 we have on the first dial (the extreme right) 0; we therefore put down three zeros, thus: 000. The hand of the second dial is misplaced; for inasmuch as the first registers 0, the second should rest exactly on a division; therefore we know that it should have reached 8, making 8,000. The remaining hands are correct, and make a total of 9,928,000.

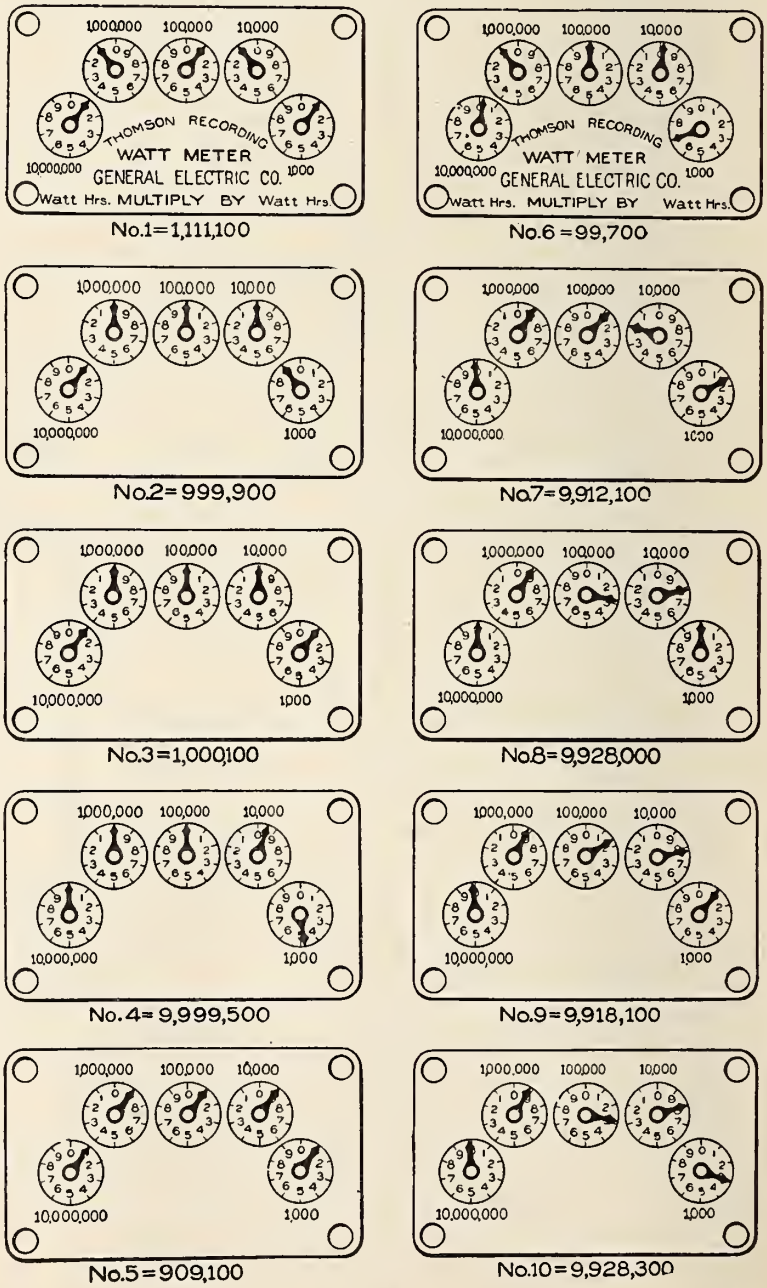

FIG. 38

The Thomson Watthour Meter in its simplest form embodies three necessary elements, namely, a motor causing rotation, a generator providing the necessary load or drag, and a registering device, the function of which is to integrate the instantaneous values of the electrical energy passing in the system to be measured.

The element of the direct current Thomson Watthour Meter causing rotation is an electric motor which, being without iron in its fields and armature and rotating at a very low speed, has little or no counter electromotive force. Its armature current, therefore, is independent of the speed of rotation, and is constant for any definite potential applied at its terminals. The torque of this motor being proportional to the product of its armature and field currents, must vary directly as the energy passing through its coils. In order then that the meter shall record correctly it is necessary only to provide some means for making the speed proportional to the torque. This is accomplished by applying a load or drag, the strength of which varies directly as the speed. This leads to a brief consideration of the generator element.

FIG. 37

The electromotive force induced in a conductor passing through a field of constant strength is proportional to the number of magnetic lines of force cut in a given time; therefore, if the resistance of the conductor remains constant, the drag is proportional to the speed. An aluminum disk is directly connected to the meter armature by means of a vertical shaft and, passing between the jaws of permanent magnets (the field of fixed strength), constitutes the second necessary element of the Thomson Watthour Meter.

A means of combining all the instantaneous values of energy is found in the registering mechanism, the third element of the Thomson Watthour Meter. This is a revolution counter properly calibrated in the desired energy unit, for which purpose the watthour or kw. hour has become almost universally adopted.

ENORMOUS DEMANDS FOR MOVING PICTURE OPERATORS AT $15 TO $35 A WEEK

Positions Positively Guaranteed. Can be Learned in Two Weeks. Day or Evening. Call or Write, New York Journal, May 3, 1911.

Dear Sir:—

What do you think of the above ad under the heading of Education and Instruction?. What about the enormous demand that has ceased to be for some time now, in fact, I think it dates from the time the schools began. The salaries at that figure have also nearly all disappeared from the same date and cause. Did you, Sir, or any of the operators you know to be reliable men, learn in two weeks? Did Mr. W. E. Smith know in that time much more than how to turn the crank? No fear, it took many a long month before perfection was arrived at, and as I've heard you say, you don't know it all yet. A school such as the above is not bad if at the end of the two weeks the law compelled each student to work at least six months in a theater with a man who knows his business as an assistant, say three hours a day, before he applied for a license. Then, with the instruction he got at the school, together with the experience he would receive at the theater, he has a good chance of being a good operator. But to advertise in the above style and flood the city with men who have only two weeks at a machine is certainly ruining the profession of cinematographic moving picture operating. M. P. OPERATOR.

New York, May 6, 1911.

Editor M. P. News.

Dear Sir:—

Here is the President of the United States and the King of England almost ready to put their signatures to the greatest treaty that ever was known betwcen the two greatest countries on the earth, and yet one of those nations refuses to allow the other one's sons to work in their chief city. Can you beat it? ENGLISH OPERATOR.

Many New Theaters in Moving Picture Field

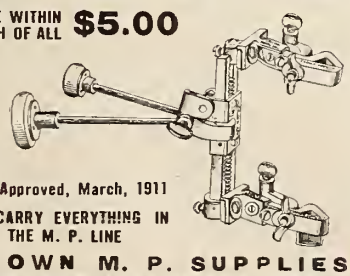
Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," reports, among many sales of equipments for new theaters, the sale of a Powers No. 6 with Hallberg Standard Economizer, and complete line of supplies to W. M. Vincent, Carthage, N. Y.; one Powers No. 6 with Standard Hallberg Economizer, complete line of supplies for Jacob Fischel, New Rochelle, N. Y.; and one Powers No. 5 to Henry Arps, 1117 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!

Motion Picture Machines, Stereopticons, Etc. Fort Wayne Compensarc $35, Stereopticon and Model B Gas Outfit, cost $68, only $35. Get Supplement 33. Many Bargains. Motion Picture Machines Wanted.

HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE FINEST AND BEST LAMP ON THE MARKET
PRICE WITHIN REACH OF ALL $5.00



N. Y. Approved, March, 1911
WE CARRY EVERYTHING IN THE M. P. LINE
CROWN M. P. SUPPLIES
138 THIRD AVENUE, NEW YORK

Advertisers want results. When writing to them it is our due that you mention The Moving Picture News

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES
REPAIRED
by skilled mechanics at short notice and reasonable prices. Work guaranteed.
Supplies of All Kinds.
CHAS. E. DRESSLER,
388 2nd Ave., City, near 23rd St.
Take elevator.

THE SALES COMPANY

The following films have been released during the week of May 15th by the Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.:

May 15—The Master and the Man (Imp)..1000
May 15—The Ranchman's Vengeance (American) 1000
May 15—An Indian Brave's Conversion (Yankee) 950
May 15—Gen. Marion, Swamp Fox (Champ.) 995
May 15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (Eclair) .....
May 16—Bronco Buster's Rival (Bison)..... 985
May 16—The Colonel and the King (Thanhouser) 985
May 16—Oklahoma (Powers) 1000
May 16—Matrimonial Surprise (Powers)....
May 17—His Dumb Wife (Solax).....
May 17—Circle C's New Boss (Itala).....
May 17—Grenadier Roland (Ambrosio).....
May 17—His Second Choice (Nestor).....
May 17—The Harvest (Reliance)..... 990
May 18—The Lighthouse Keeper (American)
May 18—An Exception to the Rule (Rex)...
May 19—The Banana Planter's Peril (Bison)
May 19—Lady Clare (Thanhouser).....
May 19—Bunga Bin (Solax).....
May 19—In the Nick of Time (Reliance)...
May 19—Bill at Work (Lux).....
May 19—All Through a Rat (Lux).....
May 20—Two Girls in Love with F. (Eclair) .....
May 20—Voice of Conscience (Dr.) (Great Northern) 786
May 20—Bern, Switzerland (Gt. Northern). 204

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

THE FORGED DESPATCH
Imp Release, May 22d

The introductory and closing scenes of the story are laid in the north.

Jack Haskins and Jim Darrow are rivals for the hand of Bess Kemp. Haskins is the favored suitor, whereat Darrow is furious.

Fort Sumter is fired upon, and there is a call for volunteers. A company is formed, and Jack Haskins is made Captain. There is a scene of enrolling for duty, and Dave, the brother of Bess, has enlisted as a drummer boy. Jim Darrow applies, and is duly made a member of the company. The soldiers are seen, marching away to the front, the leave-taking of the men and the villagers being affecting.

The scene reverts to the front, with Jack and a small body of men fighting desperately to hold an outpost against the onslaught of the enemy.

The commanding officer writes a despatch commanding Jack to hold his position until reinforcements can be sent to strengthen his meagre force, and the order is entrusted to Jim Darrow, who has been detailed as an orderly. Darrow takes the despatch and rides away. At a lonely spot, where he is unobserved, he reads the despatch and conceives a plot to humiliate Jack.

He forges a despatch, ordering Jack to abandon his position and retreat, destroying the genuine order. He comes to the side of Jack, who is cheering on his men, and delivers the spurious order. Jack is reluctant to act on the seemingly genuine order, but is reminded by Jim that he had best obey. Jack orders a retreat with little Dave by his side.

A shell explodes near them, and the arm of Jack is torn off and Dave receives a mortal wound. Jack is in the act of placing the order in his pocket when he is struck by the missile, but it drops to the ground. The boy staggers toward him and, in a dazed condition, places the despatch in his pocket, being unable to reach Jack, and falls dead.

Jack, recovered from his wound, with an empty sleeve, is summoned before his superior officers, court-martialed, and sent home, branded as a coward on the evidence of Jim.

The scene reverts to the north. An officer brings the coat and cap worn by Dave to Bess and gives her a letter from Jack, who writes that he has been proven a coward and releases her from their engagement. Her grief is pitiful.

The story is carried forward twenty years. It is Memorial Day, and the Union survivors of the war are having their annual parade. Jack, ostracized by his fellow townsmen, is seated in his home and hears the strains of the fife and drum. It awakens unpleasant memories, and he rails bitterly at his fate.

In her home, Bess, now a saddened unmarried woman, sees the old soldiers march past. She gets the clothing of her dead brother to wave out of the window and the forged despatch drops out of the pocket where it has laid so long. She reads with dilating eyes, and then rushes to the street.

Jack is surprised to find his old comrades at his window yelling for him to come out. He is told the forged despatch has been found, which proves his innocence. He rushes from his house to clasp Bess in his arms and to be placed at the head of the soldiers, in command. Three rousing cheers are given for Captain Jack Haskins and the old veterans march away.

The closing scene is at the cemetery, with Jack and Bess decorating the grave of Dave, with the grizzled veterans in the background.

THE MINOR CHORD
Imp Release, May 25th

Carl Danmitz, a poor but talented violinist, engages a room in an obscure boarding house, and pursues his studies while leading a precarious existence.

Gretchen Bleeker resides across the street, and through the open window where she is wont to sit, hears the sweet strains of his violin. An acquaintance is thus formed.

One day while Gretchen is listening, enraptured by the music, she knocks over a potted plant, which falls from the window ledge to the street. The musician hastens out, picks up the flower gallantly and thus they meet and go for a stroll. During the interval in which Carl is waiting for an engagement to display his talent, the young couple become fast friends, the girl evincing a deeper feeling than mere friendship for the handsome violinist.

At last the long anticipated opportunity comes, and Carl receives an offer to play at a fashionable society benefit for charity. He is overjoyed at the chance, feeling that it will be the stepping stone to fame. His exuberance is of short duration, for he realizes that he has not the proper clothing to appear at the benefit.

Gretchen has been hoarding her money to buy a new coat and hat, and offers to make a sacrifice for his sake. She gives him her little savings of months, and he is enabled to make a presentable appearance at his debut. His first public performance is an immediate success, and the way is paved for a triumph which comes as the natural result of the favor of a rich patroness. He is invited to the homes of the wealthy and influential, and is a favorite of society. It is only natural that he forgets the young girl who was kind to him in his poverty and he meets and falls in love with Marie Von Blumen, the handsome daughter of the woman who first brought him out. His love is returned and the young musician becomes prosperous.

Gretchen, never strong, pines for her lover, and gradually wastes away in strength. On the eve of dying, she expresses a wish to see Carl once more, and hear the sweet tones of his violin. Her mother seeks him out, finding him at the home of his fiancee, surrounded by admirers. She is persistent in her request to see him, and is finally admitted. She implores him to come to her daughter. Marie grasps the situation and urges him to go to the bedside of the girl, and he does so, accompanied by his fiancee.

They find Gretchen dying. She holds out her arms to Carl and is taken to him, happy, supremely happy in the knowledge that he loves her and ignorant of his vows to Marie. It is all explained to Marie, and she bids her lover make the girl his wife. A marriage ceremony is hastily performed and then Carl plays as he has never played before. Gretchen expires in an ecstasy of joy, to the strains of her favorite melody.

IN THE GREAT BIG WEST
Champion Release, May 24th

Here is a story of deep heart-interest told with that directness and simplicity which is the perfection of art.

Harold Walters, a young physician, is in love with Dorothy Desmond, a young aristocrat, and at the same time, most charming young woman. Harold has arranged to escort Dorothy to a ball. He is there promptly on time to do so, but suddenly remembers that at the same hour a patient is expecting his services. He loves Dorothy, but duty is all paramount with him; he must go to his patient. A scene ensues, the engagement is broken, he rushes forth, his heart crushed, but his professional honor untarnished.

The scene shifts to the West. Dorothy has gone there on a visit to relatives. The young doctor, seeking an outlet for his talents in a new country, and to hide away from the sorrow that is gnawing at his vitals, acts on the advice of the great Horace Greeley and "Goes West" also.

Strange vicissitudes overtake him—fate deals unkindly by him, as if to make the joy that is soon to be his, climaxically greater; and that climax comes when one day, at the bedside of a patient, he meets his sweetheart.

That meeting is a most joyous one, indeed, for Dorothy has learned, since that one sad and bitter parting, that her sweetheart is more worthy to be loved, since proving himself a man, true to a great principle, in spite of her seductive charms, rather than if he were the possessor of a backbone of jelly, ready to bend to her selfish demands, forgetful of his professional honor, and the dignity of his manhood.

The other characters which revolve around these two are well drawn—the crafty lawyer, the overbearing mine owner, the cowboys. These latter give an atmosphere—a wild Western flavor, that forms a splendid setting to this beautiful story of—Love and Duty.

WITH SHERIDAN AT MURFREESBORO
Champion Release, May 22d

The incidents depicted in this beautiful and most realistic story are many and thrilling, and knowing them to have been enacted, with slight modifications, in similar vein again and again during the sad and trying period of the Civil War, there is an added charm to their portrayal in this striking picture.

George Wentworth, a Tennessean, lived with his parents near the home of his sweetheart, Marion Caldwell, in Murfreesboro. War had broken out between the North and South, and George's father had obtained a commission for him in the Southern Army and summoned him home from West Point. But the joy of the old patriot was turned to grief, for his son refused to don the Gray.

He appealed to the youth, but George was firm in the belief that the Stars and Stripes meant an indissoluble Union—a Union to be preserved at any cost, and he vows to never desecrate the colors in his uplifted hand. At his outraged father's command, he leaves his boyhood's home to give his life if need be to the Cause he upheld.

And the swirling and churning of the fiery vortex of War brings these two—father and son—again together, the father a prisoner in the camp of his son. "My place is not in your tent, but with my men," replied the stern old soldier to his son's offer to ameliorate the hardships of his lot.

Then a missive arrived from the wife and mother, ill unto death; each word depicting her agony and crying out for her boy and his father. George hastens to his father with the heartrending news. One of them must go to her with all speed. The boy thrusts his revolver into his parent's hand, who, half dazed, rushes forth to the side of his wife.

The news of the escape reaches General Sheridan, and George is immediately court-martialed and sentenced to be shot at sunrise. His father, as in a vision, at his wife's bedside, sees his boy led to his execution. With aching heart, he springs to his feet, crosses the river and on entering the Federal lines, sees the firing squad with guns raised to shoot his son. With a mad cry, he lunges forward, bearing his son to the ground and sheltering him with his own body, as the death volley rings out over their heads. They are saved!

Carried wounded before Sheridan, the old soldier tells the truth. That noble leader's heart is touched. George is restored, with unstained honor, to his former rank and his father freed on parole. The long, cruel War is over—peace and contentment abounds, and the old soldier is seen playing horse with a little boy and girl—his son's children.

THE RANCHMAN'S VENGEANCE

American Release, May 15th

Lorenz Pedro, a Mexican halfbreed, owns a small sheep ranch, and lives happily with his wife, Marie, and little daughter, Lois.

One exceedingly hot afternoon, Tom Flint, riding across the ranch, looking for work, is overcome by the heat, and Pedro, acting the part of a good Samaritan, takes him to his home, where Marie, through careful nursing, soon has him quite himself again.

Pedro is out daily with his flock, leaving Marie and Flint together, offering an opportunity which Flint ungratefully takes advantage of, resulting in his completely winning Marie's love. Manuelito, Marie's father, is suspicious, and comes upon them while Flint is declaring his love. He goes to Pedro in the field and tells what he has seen and heard. Hastening home he finds his wife in Flint's embrace, and in his great love for Marie bids Flint take her, but warns him his life shall pay the penalty should he ever treat her unkindly.

Eventually Flint tires of Marie, and at the end of five years we find him shamefully abusing both mother and child.

Manuelito sends a telegram to Pedro, who is working on a distant ranch, telling him of this abuse. Arriving home, he comes upon Flint in the act of striking Marie, whose health having been undermined by ill treatment, at the sight of Pedro, falters for a moment, and falls dead at his feet. Flint is terror-stricken. At the point of a gun Pedro summarily marches him off to a high cliff overlooking the sea. Here Pedro tosses away his gun and a terrible hand-to-hand combat ensues, ending when Flint is thrown from the cliff to a watery grave. The death of Marie is avenged.

A few days later little Lois prevents the grief-stricken Pedro from taking his own life, and clasping the little child in his arms, kneels in resignation by the mother's grave.

A COWBOY'S SACRIFICE

American Release, May 18th

There are some noble natures that will undergo any suffering, even unto death, for those they love and surely, greater love hath no man than this that he will lay down his life for his friend.

Jack Redmond is a handsome young cowboy in the employ of Wesley Ross, owner of "The Circle X Ranch," and it was natural that he should fall in love with Ross's daughter, Edith, although he had never dared to declare his love, and while she admired him above all the men employed on the ranch, woman-like, she concealed her real feelings.

Edith's brother, George, had fallen into evil ways, and was a source of anxiety to both Jack and Edith. One morning George came home intoxicated, and Jack, finding him in this condition, took him to the house, where his mother tenderly takes care of him and Edith stops long enough to thank Jack and tell him how much his watchfulness over her wayward brother is appreciated.

Jack is hardly out of sight when George determines to go to the Betoora Saloon and spend the day in drunken ribaldry. Against the pleadings of his mother, who knows his quarrelsome nature, while intoxicated, he rides to town and enters the saloon. There he engages in a quarrel with Texas Jim, owner of "The Bar O Ranch," who forcibly ejects him from the saloon. George swears vengeance, and rides away full of seething hatred for the man who put this indignity on him.

Out on the range he waits until he sees Texas Jim returning home, and taking his gun from his breast pocket he deliberately shoots his enemy, who falls from his horse mortally wounded. Then whipping up his horse he rides rapidly away.

The sheriff finds the body on the prairie and, finding life extinct, rides rapidly to the nearest ranch to form a posse to avenge the murdered man. George in his haste to get away from the scene of his crime drops his gun, the posse finds it, and soon after come up with the craven man, lasso him, and drag him from his horse. Jack Redmond comes up as they are about to hang George and assumes the blame for the crime by claiming the gun and showing them his empty holster. He feels that in so doing he will spare the girl he loves the sorrow of knowing her brother to be a murderer. Like all cowards, George allows Jack to make this supreme sacrifice, and riding home he pours out the story of his crime and the contemplated lynching of Jack into the horrified ears of his mother and sister. Bidding them good-bye he leaves the country, and goes out of their lives forever.

Edith's thoughts are all with Jack Redmond, whom she realizes she loves, and intuitively knows that he has taken her brother's crime upon his own shoulders out of his great love for her. Getting her horse she rides rapidly to save him and arrives just in time. Even now Jack does not realize the awakening of her love, and clumsily asks her "Why did you try to save me?" and receiving no answer he mounts and rides away. Out on the prairie the thought constantly re-occurs to him, and he wonders if she understands. Ah! how surely she understands and when she overtakes him, she proves it to him in the sweetest way a woman knows.

IN THE NICK OF TIME

Solax Release, May 19

Rose Patton, left alone in the family ranch house outside of Arizona, during a visit of her parents to St. Louis, is approached by Pedro, a Mexican vacquero, who has long admired Rose and who takes advantage of the opportunity presented to declare his affection for her. Rose angrily resents his actions, whereupon he became more insistent, and Rose's lover, Lieutenant King, of the U. S. Cavalry, arrives upon the scene in time to witness the annoyance that his sweetheart is being subjected to. It doesn't take long for the lieutenant to interpose and he sends Pedro upon his way with a warning that any repetition of this action will result disastrously for him. His treacherous soul filled with burning anger the Mexican determines to get even. He follows the lieutenant and his sweetheart at a safe distance, witnesses the presentation by the lieutenant to his sweetheart of a medallion portrait, and as they separate mounts his horse and follows the officer who, unconscious of all danger, is homeward bound, his heart filled with loving thoughts of the girl he has just left behind him. Stealthily creeping up Pedro takes advantage of the officer's mental abstraction to lasso him and drag him from his horse. He quickly proceeds to tie the unconscious man with his lariate and to drag him along the ground. Arriving upon the edge of a precipitous declivity overlooking a yawning ravine Pedro takes the unconscious man and hurls him over the brink. Fearful of intervention he hurries from the scene of his crime, but fortune seemed to have favored the victim, for as he is hurled over the edge of the chasm the lariat with which he was bound wraps itself about a projecting stump which stops his travel.

In the meantime the American camp is startled to see the lieutenant's horse dash into camp riderless. The intelligent animal indicated his desire that someone accompany him back, and the commanding officer accordingly leads a column of troops after the horse, which takes them back to the point where Pedro lassoed the lieutenant.

Finding his hat it is an easy matter for them to trace the crime and they arrive at the cliff just in time to rescue the lieutenant.

Pedro, feeling that his hated rival was put out of his way, hurries back to the ranch house with the intention of inflicting further revenge upon Rose. His diabolical intentions are frustrated by the unexpected appearance of the rescuing party, led by the lieutenant whose life was so miraculously saved.

HIS DUMB WIFE

Solax Release, May 17

Fritz becomes deeply infatuated with Miss Ray, the beautiful daughter of a wealthy man, but much to his dismay, he finds that she is dumb. He persists in his ardent wooing, however, and finally marries the girl, despite the fact that the object of his affection returns not his love by word of mouth.

Madly in love and much concerned as to how the marriage vows may be kept unbroken, he appeals to Dr. Coffit, and that worthy tells Fritz that there is only one operation that is at all likely to effect a cure. This is performed, and much to the joy of Fritz and his wife her voice is restored. But alas, Fritz's joy is short-lived, for immediately upon his wife regaining use of her voice she proceeds to make up for lost time.

Fritz, in despair, again consults Dr. Coffit for a remedy and deliverance from the continual tongue-lashing that he now is continually subjected to. The doctor tells Fritz that there is one remedy, and that is to make him deaf. Filled with apprehension, but nevertheless determined, Fritz consents to undergo the operation, and is delighted, upon going home, to find that no longer does the shrill voice of his worthy spouse hold any terror for him, for he has been rendered stone deaf.

The story closes with a scene of Mrs. Fritz engaged in one of her vigorous tirades against her husband, but Fritz, oblivious to everything and with a contented smile on his face, reads placidly on.

This is a comedy that is a comedy.

THE STAGE CHILD

Thanhouser Release, May 23

There is not always another man in the case, when a woman leaves her husband. Some couples drift apart, become more and more indifferent from day to day, and finally there is a separation.

This was what happened in this case. The husband was not cruel, he was what is called a "good provider," but he never could realize that his wife ought to have a chance to spend money. And when she found that she could earn a good living because of her excellent voice, she left him, taking their baby daughter along. Then she joined an opera company, went on the road, and speedily achieved success. To her mind, she had made an excellent exchange.

But six years later she found that the sun does not always shine. Her voice failed her, and the skilled physician who was called in was forced to tell her that she would never recover it again.

Thus in one day she fell from the proud position of a star to that of a woman with no prospects. Her little daughter felt sorry for "Mama," and going to the theater, applied for a position as dancer. And it was promptly given to her.

Then the law stepped in. A big policeman informed her that a child of her tender years had no right to appear on the stage. It was the order of the Mayor, he said.

So the child called upon the Mayor, and expressed her opinion of a statute that would prevent a little girl from supporting her sick mother. The mayor was won by her entreaties, and went to see the mother. Then he realized why he had taken such a fancy to the child. He and his wife mutually forgave each other, and their home is much happier than it was when they "just drifted along."

GET RICH QUICK

Thanhouser Release, May 26

A young workingman, with a steady job, good health and the wife he loves devotedly, is thoroughly happy, hut the woman is not. She hates her shabby clothes and her narrow surroundings and is constantly hoping and praying that good fortune will knock at their door.

One of Jack's friends is a shifty individual who lives by his wits. With another acquaintance he evolves a "Get-Rich-Quick" scheme that promises great returns—to the promoters. The two crooks want the workingman with them, figuring that his good reputation and the confidence that his fellow-workers repose in him will be a valuable asset.

The young man refuses, but his wife insists. She tells him that the world owes him a living, and that she wants to be somebody, and not a nobody. And to fulfil her dreams he consents.

Like other propositions of its kind, this is a swindle from the start. The crooks regard everything that comes in as theirs, and prevent money going out by false promises of wonderful profits. Jack takes his share of the loot, and his wife finds that she can dress as she wishes, eat what she wants, and meet the people she desires to know. Therefore she is happy.

But the full nature of his crime is brought home to Jack when a poor widow calls to tell him that his partners have vanished, and that every cent the old woman has in the world is swept away. She is friendless, too old to work, and also has a tiny grandchild dependent upon her. Jack, realizing that he is responsible for blasted lives and ruined homes, is convinced that he has paid too large a price for the jewels and gowns of his wife. Remorseful, he decides to die.

His wife reaches his side just in time to save his life. She demands an explanation, and he tells her. She tears off her gems, expresses sorrow for her selfishness, and tells him they will face the world together.

Jack makes restitution to his dupes so far as he is able, and through the intercession of the old widow, they agree to give him a fresh start. And he returns to his former life, both he and his wife realizing that there is sorrow and seldom happiness in money made dishonestly.

THE TWO GARDENERS

Eclair Release, May 29th

Mrs. St. Albans and Mrs. Plume devise a romantic plan to cause Yvonne St. Albans and Oncsimus Plume to fall in love with each other. Onesimus is to be employed as Mrs. St. Alban's gardener, and in this disguise he is to try to win the affections of Yvonne by his charming manners. Yvonne is already in love with a young nobleman, Count de Charmettes, and by a strange coincidence she has planned to have her lover apply for the position of gardener to her mother, in order to be near her lover, and that he may get into the good graces of Mrs. St. Albans. The count applies, and Mrs. St. Albans employs him, thinking he is the son of her friend, Mrs. Plume. Later young Onesimus calls, and Mrs. St. Albans really requiring a gardener, employs him also.

Mrs. Plume pays a visit to her friend to learn how things are progressing, and is pleased to learn than Yvonne has become very intimate with the gardener; in fact, they discover that young lady enjoying a tête-à-tête with the gardener, but imagine Mrs. Plume's disgust when the young man is discovered not to be her son, but an entire stranger, while her dear Onesimus is working hard in the garden. She leaves the house in anger, and Yvonne blushingly confesses her little plot. At last, half angry, and half amused, Mrs. St. Albans consents to the marriage.

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, MAY 13TH

THE NUN

This historic dramatic feature film is not only elaborate in costuming, interior and scenic views, but is also admirably enacted by star performers. Photography, tinting and toning are beyond compare.

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, MAY 20TH

THE VOICE OF CONSCIENCE

Tells a most powerful and thrilling story which cannot fail to make a deep and vivid impression on every audience—786 feet.

BERN

"THE CITY BEAUTIFUL"—SWITZERLAND SCENIC—204 FEET

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

ALL UP-TO-DATE INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT—THE FILMS THAT SATISFY

A MATRIMONIAL SURPRISE

Powers Release, May 16

POWERS PICTURE PLAYS TRADE MARK

John Wise is the president of the Weisenheimer Club and therefore conscious of his own wisdom. One of his strong points is his single blessedness, and he laughs derisively at his married friends. At the club's regular poker session he sees frequent interruptions by the irate wives of members, but John, all the three hundred pounds of him, sits contentedly by and pokes fun at them for their fate.

But his turn finally comes, and his fall is ignominious. He marries a little woman, a ninety-pound bantam, and what she doesn't do to poor John is a caution. She tames him to such an extent that the time he used to spend at the club is now consumed in useful activity at a wash tub, and John dare not deny her orders, either. The grand climax to his fate is shown where, in the appropriate attire, he is protesting governess to a bawling yelling twin.

OKLAHOMA

It is during the old days of land lottery in Oklahoma that Jack Dave, the bandit, got into trouble with the authorities in Kansas. When he was shot he stumbled over old man Rance and his daughter Dolly, and they gave him shelter, for which he left with them coupon 1607 for some land in Oklahoma.

It's shortly after that Rance is dispossessed, and determines to cross into Oklahoma. Here he takes his chance in the homestead lottery, and sure enough 1607 is one of the winning numbers. But the sheriff interferes, claiming that the ticket is non-transferable, and that Dolly is not the original owner. It looks pretty blue, but Jack Dave wants to see his little present reach home, so he takes a daring chance by showing up and backing up his ownership of the lottery ticket, winning the home for Dolly, and Dolly for himself.

GUNGA DIN

Powers Release, May 20

You may talk o' gin an' beer
When you're quartered safe out 'ere,
An' you're sent to penny-fights an' Aldershot it;
But if it comes to slaughter
You will do your work on water,
An' you'll lick the bloomin' boots of 'im that's got it.
Now in Injia's sunny clime,
Where I used to spend my time
A-servin' of 'er Majesty the Queen,
Of all them black-faced crew
The finest man I knew
Was our regimental bhisti, Gunga Din.

He was "Din! Din! Din!
You limping lump o' brick-dust, Gunga Din!
Hi! slippy hitheroa!
Water, get it! Hance lao!
You squidgy-nosed old idol, Gunga Din!"

The uniform 'e wore
Was nothin' much before,
An' rather less than 'arf o' that be'ind,
For a twisty pi'ce o' rag
An' a goatskin water bag
Was all the field-equipment 'e could find.
When the sweatin' troop-train lay
In a sidin' through the day,
Where the 'eat would make your bloomin' eyebrows crawl,
We shouted "Harry By!"
Till our throats were bricky-dry,
Then we wopped 'im 'cause 'e couldn't serve us all.

It was "Din! Din! Din!
You 'eathen where the mischief 'ave you been?
You put some juldee in it,
Or I'll marrow you this minute
If you don't fill up my helmet, Gunga Din!"

'E would dot an' carry one
Till the longest day was done,
An' 'e didn't seem to know the use o' fear.
If we charged or broke or cut,
You could bet your bloomin' nut,
'E'd be waitin' fifty paces right flank rear.
With 'is mussick on 'is back,
'E would skip with our attack,
An' watch us till the bugles made "Retire."
An' for all 'is dirty 'de
'E was white, clear white, inside
When 'e went to tend the wounded under fire!

It was "Din! Din! Din!"
With the bullets kickin' dust spots on the green.
When the cartridges ran out,
You could 'ear the front-files shout:
"Hi! ammunition-mules an' Gunga Din!"

I sha'n't forgit the night
When I dropped be'ind the fight
With a bullet where my belt-plate should 'a' been.
I was chokin' mad with thirst,
An' the man that spied me first
Was our good old grinnin', gruntin' Gunga Din.
'E lifted up me 'ead,
An' 'e plugged me where I bled,
An' 'e guv me 'arf-a-pint o' water—green;
It was crawlin' and it stunk,
But of all the drinks I've drunk,
I'm gratefullest to one from Gunga Din.

It was "Din! Din! Din!
'Ere's a beggar with a bullet through 'is spleen;
'E's chawin' up the ground
An' 'e's kickin' all around:
For Gawd's sake git the water, Gunga Din!"

'E carried me away
To where a dooli lay,
An' a bullet come an' drilled the beggar clean.
'E put me safe inside,
An' just before 'e died:
"I 'ope you liked your drink," sez Gunga Din.
So I'll meet 'im later on
In the place where 'e is gone,
Where it's always double drill and no canteen;
'E'll be squattin' on the coals
Givin' drink to pore damned souls,
An' I'll get a swig in Hell from Gunga Din!

"Din! Din! Din!
You Lazarushian-leather, Gunga Din!
Tho' I've belted you an' flayed you,
By the livin' Gawd that made you,
You're a better man than I am, Gunga Din!"

NORDISK FILM TIDNING

The first trade paper in Scandinavia.
Best advertising medium in North Europe.
Subscription 6 shillings.
Sample copy free upon request.

Editor, A. SEABURY, Post Box 163, Stockholm, Sweden.

EVERY EXHIBITOR reads the Moving Picture News. ADVERTISEMENTS BRING RESULTS

AN EXCEPTION TO THE RULE

Rex Release, May 18

Faith and fate sometimes get mixed up. Dorothy has implicit faith in her husband, and when an old friend of hers, a bachelor girl, visits her, the first topic of discussion is Dorotby's husband. Dorothy describes him as something indeed unusual in masculinity, but her friend Helen seems to think they are all just about the same, all weak, all need watching. To prove her point, she says she will send a note to Dorothy's husband, whom she has never seen, telling him that she has admired his talents and asks for a meeting in the park and for identification he was to wear a white flower in his coat buttonhole, and she likewise will wear one. The note is put on the husband's desk. He enters in company with a friend, a traveling salesman, reads the note and is about to destroy it when he asks his friend's opinion. His friend thinks enough of it to carry out the girl's instructions, and does so. In the meantime, hubby remembers it is his wife's birthday, and he goes to a florist and purchases as a gift a very fine plant. The florist pins a white flower on bis coat lapel with his compliments. Hubby proceeds home and when he enters the house it occurs to him that he has forgotten the plant, and he is about to leave the house to go after it when Dorothy enters and inquires where he is going, and wishing to surprise her he answers her that he will be back in a little bit. The sudden departure as well as the white flower almost convinces Dorotby that her husband has accepted the invitation.

Helen, the bachelor girl, goes to the park and meets the man whom she supposes to be Dorothy's husband. She does not hesitate to tell him what she thinks of him in deceiving his wife, and he finds it impossible to explain to her the joke. Hubby returns home with the plant only to find his wife in tears instead of greeting him with smiles. A few minutes later the bachelor girl comes in and is surprised to receive an introduction to Dorothy's husband, who is an entirely different man than the one she met in the park. Jack's pal, the traveling salesman, comes in and a general explanation follows, which is appreciated, and causes much laughter.

THE TWO COCKADES

Lux Release, May 26

This is an exceptionally fine Lux drama, of well sustained interest. The time is that of the Revolution, and the Marquis d'Auville and his wife are among the suspected. Their old servant, Gorga, hides his real feelings under demeanor stern and menacing of a "son of the people," but d'Auville, taking him aside, confides bis little boy to his care, ere he and his wife are taken before the tribunal and sentenced to death. True to his trust, Gorga determines to save the young Marquis, and the boy is disguised in girl's clothes, and succeeds in escaping. Twenty years clapse, and the Marquis—now a well-grown young fellow—learning that his beloved country is in danger, sails for France and, hastening to Napoleon, offers to fight for him, at the same time throwing the white cockade away. With a grim smile Bonaparte regards the young aristocrat, and then, taking the tricolor from his hat, pins it to d'Auville's coat. Subsequently, in a fierce battle, the young man is severely wounded, fighting to retain the flag. Napoleon passes, and has the Marquis carried away. A few weeks later tbe Marquis rides up to his old home and, dismounting, seeks out the old servant, Gorga. With a cry the old man staggers forward, and is rapturously greeted by the man he served so well and truly.

TIDYING UP PARIS

The Commissioner of Works at Paris is greatly annoyed by the reports in tbe press, in which complaints of the untidiness of the strets are made. Angrily summoning the foreman, the Commissioner gives him instructions that the streets must in any circumstances be kept clean and tidy. Accordingly the foreman rouses up his subordinates and a round dozen of them, all armed with brooms, set about cleaning the streets. They perform their task very effectively, too, for stalls, barrows, lamp-posts, tram-cars, cycles and all kinds of pedestrians are cleared out of the streets. At length, satisfied with his work, the foreman dismisses his men and with a polite how, disappears. A very amusing trick comedy.

THE VOICE OF CONSCIENCE

Great Northern Release, May 20th

A powerful dramatic story. The foreman at a large works is dismissed for overbearing conduct to those under him, and resolves to revenge himself on his former employer. He constructs an infernal machine, and when the head of the house has gone to business, the miscreant, with a refinement of cruelty, shows himself to his enemy's little girl and gives her the bomb as a toy. The man then goes. The mother, coming into the house, does not know what the strange object is that her child is holding. However, as she is suspicious, she throws it out of the window, and just then it explodes. Part of the house is blown down, but fortunately the inmates are uninjured. Back in his own room, the perpetrator of the crime sees in a vision the child for whose death he supposes himself to have been responsible, and the constant recurrence of the vision nearly drives him mad. Meanwhile, the police are hot-foot on his track. The child's description is recognized by the father as that of his ex-employee, and the man is soon found and arrested. In his cell be seems likely to lose his reason, so, in mercy the child is brought to him, and in a superbly acted scene, the prisoner convinces himself that the apparition is flesh and blood. Deeply touched ,the father forgives, and promises that when the unhappy man has paid the penalty of his crime, he will befriend him.

THE LITTLE WESTERN ROSE

Yankee Release, May 22d

Rose Martin, the pretty daughter of a ranchman, is loved by Tom Belden, a young cattle owner, but Rose prefers Jack Bennet, a handsome young puncher employed by her father, which arouses the enmity of Belden, and he picks a quarrel with Jack. The boy is game. He catches Belden unarmed but refuses to take advantage of him. Pointing to Belden's saddle horn he says, "You have your rope with you?" Belden smiles and nods, yes, so a lariat duel is arranged on horseback. They ride to a clearing and soon the lariats go whizzing through the air, each bent on roping the other and dragging him to his death. Belden makes a lucky throw, which Jack is not quick enough to dodge, and drags bim from his mount, and starts over the prairie, dragging the helpless lad to certain death.

Little Rose has suspected trouble, and has ridden in the direction in which she has seen both men ride. She comes upon the scene as Jack, unconscious, is being dragged to his death, and riding hard, she meets them, and at the point of her gun, makes Belden halt. He tries to explain that it was a fair duel, but she orders him from her sight and administers to the unconscious boy. Later, as her father discovers that his daughter loves Jack, and being a sensible man, with an eye to his only daughter's happiness, he prevails on his wife to give their daughter and Jack her blessing.

Belden, learning of this, in his anger sees red, and plans vengeance on the girl. He sends a Mexican cattle puncher with a decoy note to the girl, whom he meets some distance from the ranch, with her borse and faithful bull dog, "Yank." Rose, suspecting no harm, follows the Mexican, who takes her to a shack and locks her in, then rides off to inform Belden; but the Mexican overlooked "Yank," the dog, who attacks the door of the shack where his mistress is a prisoner.

Rose writes a note which she forces out through a small crack in the door. The dog grasps it in his mouth and is told by Rose to take it home to mother. The dog dashes off with the note to the ranch house, and places it in the hands of Rose's mother, whom he sees at the door. She summons her husband and shows him the note, which notifies them that she is held a prisoner. Her father summons the boys, who mount and ride off with "Yank" in the lead. The dog leads them to the shack and Rose is soon liberated. She tells her story to the boys, who start out to round up Belden and his Mexican, which they finally succeed in doing, and roping them with lariats, they force the two worthies to go to the ranch, and at the point of guns they compel them to kneel and apologize to little Rose. But this doesn't seem to satisfy "Yank," for, with a flying leap, he grabs the Mexican in the rear and hangs on with a grip such as only bulldogs can. The efforts of the Mexican to shake off the dog cause the boys to roar with laughter.

The last scene shows the happy young couple, Rose and Jack, with their best man and girl, mounted on their horses, which are bedecked with garlands of flowers, ready for their ride to church, the boys and girls giving them a hearty send-off.

THWARTED BY NELL PIERCE

Yankee Release, May 26th

This is the most thrilling Nell Pierce story ever produced. The nautical scenes are most startling to a degree.

Nell has undertaken to run down a band of jewel thieves, who take to sea in a sailing yacht, and are followed by Nell Pierce in a motor boat. She runs down the yacht, and the thieves drop tbe bag of jewels overboard, but Nell's quick eye has taken in the action, and notes the location where the jewels went over.

Nell meets with a series of startling adventures and is captured, but eventually makes her escape. In the meantime, she has trailed the thieves to the home of a marine diver, whom they engage to go down and recover the jewels. The diver and his assistant proceed out to sea, and get ready to go overboard when Nell, with an assistant, overhaul the diver's craft just as they anchor.

The captain and his assistant are overpowered and bound, and Nell Pierce takes the diver's suit, gets into it while her assistant screws on the head piece. She is then assisted overboard and sinks to the bed of the ocean, and after a long search finds the jewels, and is pulled aboard.

This daring feature is the most sensational piece of business ever attempted by a woman in cinematography. Just as she recovers the jewels the thieves come along in a sailing yacht, but Nell enters her fast sailing motor boat and escapes with the jewels safe in her keeping, which she returns to the rightful owners; thus, the most novel theme ever produced comes to a happy ending.

Install the Motiograph Increase Receipts AT ONCE

MADE to meet the requirements of particular users.
OIL BATH for Geneva Star and Cam.
TAKE-UP ARM with quick idler belt adjustment.
INSIDE Double Cut Shutter—25 per cent more illumination.
OUTSIDE, Disc Type, Shutter can also be had.
GEARS all enclosed—easy to get at—interchangeable.
REWIND incorporated in mechanism. Patented. Exclusive.
ARC LAMP The Heaviest—Lamp House The Largest.
PICTURES of the "Painted on the Wall sort." The Best.
HAS NO EQUAL in material, workmanship and finish.

1911 Catalogs now ready—Send for one today.

MANUFACTURED AND JOBBED BY
THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO., 564 W. Randolph St., CHICAGO
AGENTS IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

FILM CHARTS

COMMENTS ON THE RUNNING OF RELEASES OF THE WEEK, AS SEEN FROM THE FOURTEENTH STREET, UNIQUE, COMEDY AND SALES COMPANY STANDS

9 DRAMATIC TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Opium Smuggler....	AMERICAN..	MON., MAY 8....	Mystery	Mastery	Always give your daughter's hand to the man who rescues you.....	Big	The rescue of the sinking fisherman.	1
For Her Brother's Sake	IMP	THURS., MAY 11...	Mortgage ...	Madge	Girls, take care of your brothers.....	Big	Madge winning the race	1
The Conflict.....	RELIANCE..	SAT., MAY 13...	Wrong	Rectitude ...	Worldly things concern not the holy-minded	Impressive ..	The final rejection of the rake's advances	1
Regimental Ball....	THANHOUSER..	FRI., MAY 12...	Enlistment...	Engagement..	The way to the heart is sometimes through the sick room	Fine	The recruit going to the side of the smallpox patient..	1
The Guardsman.....	REX	THUR., MAY 11...	Inn	Pardon	Try to do some King a service.....	Fine	The inn-keeper's daughter warning the monarch of poison	1
Four Lives.....	IMP.....	MON., MAY 8....	One-two	Three-four ..	Visions are ghastly things at times...	Good	Just four.....	2
Between Life and Death	SOLAX	FRI., MAY 12...	Pop	Pop	Join the army.....	Good	All the battle moments	2
The Nun.....	GREAT NORTH...	SAT., MAY 13...	Rivals	Vault	The guilty, even to monks, will get theirs'.....	Good	Stopping the imprisonment of the nun	2
Angelus Bell.....	YANKEE ...	FRI., MAY 12...	Sling	Slong	When the Angelus calls, pause.....	Good	The girl hearkening to the bell.....	3
As Your Hair Grows Whiter	POWERS ...	SAT., MAY 13...	Young	Old	Absence makes the heart grow fonder	Quiet	The winning of the girl—finally	3
Marchioness of Ansperti	ITALA	THURS., MAY 11...	Settings	Settings	They know how to dress pictures in Italy	Good	The marchioness....	3
Air Bubbles..... (with Tweedledum Com. Track)	AMBROSIO..	WED., MAY 10...	Rowdy	Reformed ...	The worst of us bow to her—Mother...	Strong	The boy seeing the vision	4
In Sunny Italy.....	YANKEE ...	MON., MAY 8....	Jealousy	Joined	Never fling a girl from a cliff.....	Good	Vindication of the American	4
After Twenty Years	NESTOR	WED., MAY 10...	Aphasia	Restored	Film and fact are stranger than fiction	Good	Showing the old picture to the husband	4
The Postmistress... (with A Walk in Tunis, Edu. Track)	LUX	FRI., MAY 12...	Proposal	Pinch	Look up your sweetheart's record, girls	Good	The arrival of the police	4
Four of Us..... (with contagion, Com. Track)	POWERS ...	TUES., MAY 9....	Pals	Pals	Time makes changes	Good	Welcoming back the pal who went astray	4

Little comment is necessary about this track this week but plenty of commendation is coming to the entries on it. Only two or three over-sad or over-disagreeable reels were entered, all told.

10 COMEDY TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
A Left Hook.....	RELIANCE..	WED., MAY 10...	Gab	Knockout ...	Wear a mask when you learn to box..	Fine	The dude, bruised up, getting the girl's note.....	1
The Fair Dentist... (with Four Lives, Dram. Track)	IMP	MON., MAY 8....	Ouch!	Wow!	Beware of pretty tooth grabbers....	Fine	The last.....	1
Nearly a Hero and Beneath the Moon (Split)	SOLAX	WED., MAY 10...	Papa	Love	Two good halfs make a whole.....	Fine	When the nearly-hero gets the girl	1
Contagion ..... (with Four of Us, Dram. Track)	POWERS ...	TUES., MAY 9....	Yawns	Yawns	Beware of yawners.	Good	Every yawning one.	2
Foolshead Lost a Needle and Marriage Advertisement (Split).....	ITALA	SAT., MAY 13...	Hunt	Needle	Keep your needles in a cushion.....	Good	All of those through the search.....	2
A Village Flirt.....	ECLAIR	MON., MAY 8....	Wooing	Wet	Quit flirting, boys..	Good	The flirt's final drop	3
Tweedledum Is Late (with Air Bubbles, Dram. Track)	AMBROSIO..	WED. MAY 10...	Rushed	Crushed	Rise early on your wedding day.....	Good.....	Tweedledum turned down by his bride	3

They certainly got the laughs on this track. Everything was funny enough to go big, and we only hope we can say the same of next week's entries.

EXHIBITORS WATCH THESE CHARTS EVERY WEEK
INTERESTING REVIEWS OF INDEPENDENT FILMS

Copyrighted by Charles Reynolds, 1911

FILM CHARTS--Continued

11 WESTERN TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Crow Chief's Defeat	BISON	TUES., MAY 9....	Bing	Bang	Stop stealing squaws	Big	The Rescue of the Sioux chief's squaw	1
Sheriff's Captive....	AMERICAN..	THURS., MAY 11...	Recognition..	Romantic ...	It's handy to have a daughter around the house.....	Fine	Nell changing the Handcuffs	2
Foreman's Bride....	BISON	FRI., MAY 12...	Bum	Bride	To win a man, girls, dress as a man...	Good	The foreman telling cook he's wise to her sex.....	2
Making a Man of His Son.....	CHAMPION..	WED., MAY 10...	Tempted	Trusted	An honest man will not fall twice.....	Good	Boy deciding whether to help convict...	3

All on this course were good, with "Crow Chief's Defeat" the most realistic Indian war picture seen in a long while.

12 EDUCATIONAL TRACK

"GRENADIER ROLAND" RELEASED WEDNESDAY, MAY 17—"Grenadier Roland," the Ambrosio masterpiece through a confusion in dates, was announced in the last chart for release on Wednesday, May 3. The fact of the matter is that barring the advance views, the picture will not be shown until Wednesday, May 17, to the public, when the chart will review its public running.

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
The Railroad Builder	THAN-HOUSER..	MON., MAY 8....	Flame	Smoke	Even fire can't hold some back.....	Hearty	The girl freeing the builder	1
Col. E. D. Baker, First California...	CHAMPION.	TUES., MAY 9....	Cheers	Tears	It's fine to die a martyr's death....	Hearty	Col. Baker falling on the firing line.	2
A Walk in Tunis... (with The Postmis-mistress, Dram. Track)	LUX	FRI., MAY 12...	Scenes	Sights	Take a trip to torrid Tunis	Big	None, but many interesting ones....	3

The top entry is the most realistic portrayal of some of the difficulties encountered by the railroad construction engineer that we have seen in many a day. And it presents one of the best series of actual fire views that has ever been known. The Civil War entry will win admiration for the heroic Baker from anyone, Northerner or Southron. "A Walk in Tunis" was one of the most educating film-strolls we ever took.

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

Branches at the Following Cities

LONDON .....18 Charing Cross Rd.
PARIS .....11 Rue St. Augustin
BERLIN .....238 Friedrich Strasse
MOSCOW .....3 Glenischewsky Pereul
BARCELONA .....59 Paseo de Gracia
RIO DE JANEIRO .....A. Sestini
BUENOS AYRES.....A. Sestini
CARACAS .....Levy & Co.

And the Following Agencies

MILAN	ST. PETERSBURG	VIENNA
TURIN	ODESSA	AMSTERDAM
GENOA	KEIFF	COPENHAGEN
NAPLES	VLADIVOSTOCK	STOCKHOLM
BOLOGNA	MARSEILLES	BUDA PESTH
VENICE	BRUSSELS	FRANKFORT
DRESDEN	LILLE	LEIPSIC
TOKIO	SYDNEY	CAPE TOWN
JOHANNESBURG	LIMA	HAVANA

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK - - - - - - - - LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - - - - - - - - - 3,750,000

FULLY PAID UP - - - - - - - - - LIRE 5,750,000

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPHS: CINES NEWYORK

FILMS FOR RENT

Best Service -- Reasonable Prices
Machines and Accessories

T. A. MACK EXCHANGE, Room 510 70-72 Dearborn St.
NEW NO. 140 N. Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Get Ready For Summer

by hooking up with me and getting the full benefit of my Feature Film Department. Let me help you with some business-boosting ideas as well as with the best films and the best service ever known in the history of the moving picture business. If you're not sure whether you are on my mailing list, send me your name and address this very day.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
209 Fifth St., Des Moines, Iowa.
The biggest and best film renter in the world.

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation
and slides for every purpose made to order
GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

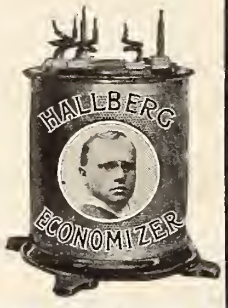
THE WORLD'S GREATEST
THEATRE CHAIR
Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving.
To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

HALLBERG

THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"

SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.

I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.



Free Catalogue No. N 1

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City.

THE BIGGEST FEATURE PICTURES EVER MADE

"THE COWBOY AND INDIAN FRONTIER CELEBRATION" HELD AT CHEYENNE, WYO., AND REVIEWED BY COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

3,000 feet of the greatest Wild West motion pictures in the world, showing the West as it was.

A masterpiece in photography, clear and intensely interesting throughout.

Will rent them for $10.00 a day.

Ten one-sheet colored posters free.

You pay express both ways.

Write for dates to the

TOURNAMENT FILM CO.
FRANKFORT, KY.

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"
IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE
ANIMATED PICTURE BUSINESS,
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
28 Large Pages. Eight Shillings per annum.
Editor-Proprietor: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABBRI,
1a, Via Arcivescovado Turin (Italy).
"La Cinematografia Italiana" is the official organ of the Universal Exhibition of 1911 at Turin.

DER KINEMATOGRAPH, DUSSELDORF
The leading Organ for the Motion Picture Trade in Germany.
Special Supplement for Talking Machines, &c.
Published every Wednesday. Annual Subscription 11/- Post Free.
Advertisements (4 columns to page); 2s. 6d. per inch. Situations Wanted, 1½d. per line.
Reduced Price for a Series of Insertions.
Publisher—Ed. LINTZ. Chief Editor—EMIL PERLMANN.

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

(America's Leading Cinematograph Weekly)
30 WEST THIRTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK

Is the Official Organ of the Independent Movement. Keep in touch with live news of the day by cutting off and mailing the following without delay:

To the Cinematograph Co., Inc., 30 West 13th Street, New York.

Please enter my name as a subscriber to THE MOVING PICTURE NEWS, commencing issue _____ for which I agree to pay _____ for twelve months (six months).

Name _____

Address _____

Date _____ City _____

SUBSCRIPTION, $2.00 PER YEAR

N. B.—If you have not got $2.00 to spare, and you promise to pay some time, we trust you. But do not go without THE NEWS.

"THE FORGED DESPATCH"—IMP.

Scene from the second of the "Imp de Luxe" series, showing Federal skirmishers at bay in a farm yard. A Civil War film to be released just before Decoration Day.

Youngstown, Ohio.—A new vaudeville theater will be erected at Boardman and Phelps Sts.

Harley, Idaho.—The Bush Orchestra is planning the erection of an opera house on the main street.

Galesburg, Ill.—A $75,000 opera house will be erected here by the Gaiety Vaudeville Co.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Wheelock & Boland will erect a new theater at Fraser's Pier, Ocean Park, to cost $13,000.

Hannibal, Mo.—The Goodwin Theater was badly damaged by fire.

Beacon, Ia.—Postmaster Tom Morrish is considering the establishment of a moving picture theater here.

Lynchburg, Va.—The Lynchburg Academy of Music was destroyed by fire. Loss, $50,000.

SCENE FROM "WITH SHERIDAN AT MURFREESBORO"
Champion release—May 22d

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.
228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.
Telephone: 3790 Oxford

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

Mar. 15—Adventures of a Countryman in Town (Com.) 322
Mar. 22—Tweedledum's April Fool Joke (Com.) 900
Mar. 29—A Glimpse of Neapolitan Camorra.
Apr. 12—The Necklace Affair..... 950
Apr. 19—The Mute of Portici..... 950
May 3—Grenadier Roland 950
Apr. 26—How Winter Decorates Nature.... 500
Apr. 26—The Quartermaster 500
May 3—The Traces on the Snow..... 950
May 10—Air Bubbles 500
May 10—Tweedledum is Late..... 500
May 17—Grenadier Roland 950

AMERICAN.

Apr. 3—Oh! You Suffragette (Com.) 460
Apr. 3—A Cure for Laziness (Com.) 540
Apr. 6—Reddy's Redemption (Dr.) 995
Apr. 10—Cupid's Pocketbook (Com.) 1000
Apr. 13—Jim Minds the Baby (Com.) 350
Apr. 13—The Bungalow Craze (Com.)..... 750
Apr. 17—Two Plucky Girls (Dr.).....
Apr. 20—One Month to Live (Com.).....
Apr. 24—Bad Nevins, Bad Man (W. Dr.)... 990
Apr. 27—The Boss of Lucky Ranch (W. Dr.)
May 1—A California Love Story (Dr.).... 828
May 1—United States Cavalry Drill (Mil.).. 172
May 4—Grazy Gulch (W. Com.)..... 520
May 4—The Hoho's Roundup (Com.)..... 470
May 8—The Opium Smuggler (Dr.)..... 900
May 11—The Sheriff's Captive (W. Dr.)...1000

CHAMPION.

Feb. 22—The Old Man and Jim..... 990
Mar. 1—Western Girl's Choice.....1000
Mar. 8—The Vindication of John.....1000
Mar. 15—The Girl and the Oath..... 985
Mar. 22—The Payroll 940
Mar. 29—The Bachelor's Old Maid.....1000
Apr. 5—The Price He Paid..... 975
Apr. 12—Men of the West..... 980
Apr. 17—With Stonewall Jackson..... 960
Apr. 19—A Halfbreed's Courage..... 950
Apr. 24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days..... 965
Apr. 26—She Wanted a Man with Brains... 970
May 1—Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia.....1000
May 3—Out of the Dark..... 990
May 8—Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California..1000
May 10—Making a Man of His Son..... 910
May 15—Gen. Marion—The Swamp Fox... 950
May 17—Circle C's New Boss..... 950

ECLAIR

Mar. 6—King Phillip the Fair and the Templars 975
Mar. 13—An Unforeseen Introduction (C.). 470
Mar. 13—A Day of Storms (Com.)..... 430
Mar. 20—Cain (Dr.) 790
Mar. 20—The Rock Climbers (Scenic)..... 195
Mar. 27—Hurrah!Hurrah! Let Us Marry!.. 975
Apr. 3—A Strike in the "Make Young" Business 534
Apr. 3—Mr. Nearsight's Marriage..... 426
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)..... 955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf..... 660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives 315
Apr. 24—Herodias 955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)..... 695
May 1—The Blue Nile..... 290
May 8—A Village Flirt (Com.)..... 910
May 15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.) 910
May 22—A Mother's Distress..... 430
May 29—The Two Gardeners (Com.)..... 940

GREAT NORTHERN.

Feb. 4—The Criminal Chief's Capture.....
Feb. 11—Found Again (Dr.).....
Feb. 18—The Life of a Muschik.....
Feb. 18—The False Alarm.....
Feb. 25—His Great Duty (Dr.).....
Mar. 4—The Rival Servants (Dr.).....
Mar. 11—The Son of the Executioner (Dr.)
Mar. 18—Between Love and Duty (Dr.)....
Mar. 18—Life and People South of the Equator (Scenic) .....
Mar. 25—The Fakir's New Servant (Com.).
Mar. 25—Troubles of a Trip (Com.).....
Apr. 1—A Victim of His Double (Dr.)....
Apr. 8—A Confidence Trick.....
Apr. 15—Hamlet (Dr.) .....
Apr. 22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.).....
Apr. 29—The Cossack Duke (Dr.)..... 894
May 6—The Lucky Banana Seller (Com.).....
May 6—A Would-be Sportsman (Com.).....
May 13—The Nun (Dr.).....

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Mar. 2—The Dynamiters (Com.)..... 500
Mar. 6—Tracked (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 9—The Message in the Bottle (Dr.)...1000
Mar. 13—The Secret of the Palm (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 16—The Fishermaid (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 20—In Old Madrid (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 27—Sweet Memories (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.) .....
Apr. 6—The Image of Fate (Dr.) 1000
Apr. 10—A Good Cigar .....
Apr. 10—A Faithless Man .....
Apr. 13—The Storm .....
Apr. 20—The Hero (Com.)..... 500
Apr. 24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.) 1000
Apr. 27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.).....1000..
May 1—Second Sight (Dr.).....1000
May 4—The Temptress (Dr.).....1000
May 8—Four Lives (Dr.)..... 300
May 8—The Fair Dentist (Com.)..... 700
May 11—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.).....1000
May 15—The Master and the Man (Dr.)....1000
May 15—The Lighthouse Keeper (Dr.).....1000

ITALA

Mar. 9—Nobility (Dr.)..... 900
Mar. 11—Foolshead Shooting (Com.)..... 900
Mar. 16—A Dog and Two Mistresses..... 986
Mar. 18—Foolshead in Soirée (Com.).....
Mar. 18—Toto on the State (Com.).....
Mar. 23—Waiting for the Midnight Express. 900
Mar. 25—Toto Wants to Get Thinner..... 500
Mar. 25—Queen of the Sea..... 500
Apr. 1—Foolshead Goes to See a Cockfight.
Apr. 8—Foolshead—Lady of Company.....
Apr. 15—The Fall of Troy .....
Apr. 22—Marriage Midst the Sausages (Com.) 500
Apr. 22—Foolshead — Wrangler for Love (Com.) 500
Apr. 27—Little Lewis Toy (Dr.)..... 950
Apr. 29—Foolshead Telegraph Boy..... 500
Apr. 29—The Bottle of Milk (Com.)..... 500
May 4—The Cry of the Native Country (Dr.) 950
May 6—Foolshead—Life Insurance Agent (Com.) 950
May 6—The Fountains of Rome.....
May 11—The Marchioncss of Ansperti (Dr.) 950
May 13—Marriage Advertisement (Com.).... 500
May 13—Foolshead Has Lost a Needle (C.). 500
May 18—Little Mother 950

LUX.

By Prieur.

Mar. 17—Bill Has Kleptomania (Com.)..... 380
Mar. 24—Cowhoy Friendship (Dr.) 636
Mar. 24—Edith Has Some Sport (Com.).... 322
Mar. 31—The Greed of Gain (Dr.)..... 652
Mar. 31—He Wanted a Hoop (Com.) 281
Apr. 7—Bill's Little Plan (Com.)..... 386
Apr. 7—A Desperado (Dr.)..... 586
Apr. 14—Bill and the Greasy Pole (Com.)... 432
Apr. 14—They Did Not Budge (Com.)..... 501
Apr. 21—Dr. Grant's Wonderful Discovery (Dr.) 885
Apr. 28—Naughty Miss Edith (Com.)..... 472
Apr. 28—Bill's Garden (Com.)..... 419
May 5—Bill as a Toreador (Com.)..... 419
May 5—Fashion and Its Consequence (Com.) 426
May 12—The Postmistress (Dr.)..... 700
May 12—A Walk in Tunis..... 252
May 19—Bill at Work (Com.)..... 367
May 19—All Through a Rat (Com.)..... 475
May 26—The Two Cockades (Dr.)..... 698
May 26—Tidying Up Paris (Com.)..... 268

NESTOR FILM CO.

Jan. 25—The Man in 23.....
Jan. 25—New Minister .....
Feb. 1—The Bridal Trail.....
Feb. 8—The Transgressor .....
Feb. 15—The Light Beyond.....
Feb. 22—His Father's House (Dr.).....
Mar. 1—The Professor's Romance (C.-D.). 990
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks.....
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks (Dr.).
Mar. 15—Was It Worth While? (Dr.).....
Mar. 22—Could You Blame Him? (Com.)...
Mar. 29—The Truth (Dr.) .....
Apr. 5—The Stolen Necklace .....
Apr. 12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.).....
Apr. 19—The Rival Artists (Dr.).....
Apr. 26—His Wife (Dr.).....
May 3—The Other Man (Dr.).....
May 10—After Twenty Years (Dr.).....
May 17—His Second Choice (Com.).....

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Feb. 28—A Warrior's Faith.....
Mar. 3—Owanee's Great Love.....
Mar. 7—Dick Farrell's Prize.....
Mar. 10—Her Prisoner (Dr.).....
Mar. 14—Starlight the Squaw (Dr.).....
Mar. 17—Sacrifice of Silver Cloud (Dr.)....
Mar. 21—Was He Justified? (Dr.)..... 900
Mar. 24—The Cowboy's Waif (Dr.) 900
Mar. 28—An Indian Nemesis (Dr.).....
Mar. 31—The Red Avenger (Dr.) .....
Apr. 4—At Bar U Ranch (Dr.).....
Apr. 7—Avery's Dream (Com.).....
Apr. 11—An Indian's Mistake..... 950
Apr. 14—A Man of Honor..... 950
Apr. 18—Return of Company D (Dr.)..... 950
Apr. 21—A Cowboy for a Day (Com.)..... 950
Apr. 25—An Indian's Ambition..... 950
Apr. 28—A Red Man's Gratitude..... 950
May 2—Shifty's Claim (W. Com. Dr.).... 950
May 5—A Knight of the Trail..... 950
May 9—The Crow Chief's Defeat (Dr.).... 950
May 12—The Foreman's Bride (Com. Dr.).. 950

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Apr. 11—How the Doctor Made Good.....
Apr. 11—Reclamation .....
Apr. 15—At the Window.....
Apr. 18—Copper Wit (Com.).....
Apr. 18—The Wine Harvest .....
Apr. 22—The Last Rose .....
Apr. 25—A Day with an English Bargeman (Com.) .....
Apr. 25—Melody of Fate (Dr.).....
Apr. 29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.).....
May 2—The Crisis (Dr.).....
May 2—The Joys of Persecution (Com.)...
May 6—The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)...
May 9—The Four of Us (Com.).....
May 9—Contagion (Com.).....
May 13—As Your Hair Grows Whiter (Dr.).....
May 16—Oklahoma (Dr.) .....
May 16—A Matrimonial Surprise (Com.)....
May 20—Gunga Din (Dr.).....

RELIANCE

Apr. 8—The Gloved Hand (Dr.).....
Apr. 12—Thirty Minutes (Dr.).....
Apr. 15—Her Mother's Love..... 950
Apr. 19—A Tale of Ehon Tints (Com.)..... 950
Apr. 22—In the Tepee's Light (Dr.)..... 950
Apr. 26—Vengeance Hath Been Had (Dr.) 950
Apr. 29—Locked Out (Dr.)..... 950
May 3—Such is the Kingdom..... 950
May 6—Over the Shading Edge (Dr.)..... 950
May 10—A Left Hook (Com.)..... 950
May 13—The Conflict 950
May 17—The Harvest (Dr.)..... 950

REX

Mar. 16—Where the Shamrock Grows (Dr.). 950
Mar. 23—Five Hours .....
Mar. 30—As Ye Sow.....
Apr. 5—"The Heiress" (Com.)..... 975
Apr. 13—"The Little Major" (Dr.)..... 960
Apr. 20—A Daughter of the Revolution (Dr.)
Apr. 27—The Realization (Dr.).....
May 4—The Ultimate Sacrifice.....
May 11—The Guardsman (Dr.).....

SOLAX COMPANY

Apr. 12—Tramp Strategy (Com.).....
Apr. 12—The Scheme that Failed (Com.)....
Apr. 14—The Little Flower Girl (Dr.).....
Apr. 19—The Old Excuse (Com.).....
Apr. 21—The Voice of His Conscience (Dr.).
Apr. 26—The Count of No Account (Com.).
Apr. 28—Across the Mexican Line (Military)
May 3—Sensible Dad (Com.).....
May 3—Nearly a Hero (Com.).....
May 5—The Somnambulist (Dr.).....
May 10—Nearly a Hero (Com.).....

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Mar. 7—The Mummy (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 10—The Spirit Hand (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 14—His Younger Brother.....
Mar. 17—Rohert Emmett .....
Mar. 21—Divorce (Dr.) .....
Mar. 21—Waiting at the Church (Com.)....
Mar. 24—The Tramp (Dr.).....
Mar. 28—The Imposter 1000
Mar. 31—Silas Marner 1000
Apr. 4—Charity of the Poor (Dr.) .....
Apr. 7—Vindicated .....
Apr. 11—Velvet and Rags.....
Apr. 14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.).....
Apr. 18—Cally's Comet (Com.).....1000
Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance.....1000
Apr. 25—Poet of the People (His.).....
Apr. 28—An Elevator Romance (Com.).....
May 2—The Pillars of Society (Dr.).....
May 5—The Sinner (Dr.).....
May 9—The Railroad Builder (Dr.).....1000
May 12—The Regimental Ball (Dr.).....1000
May 16—The Colonel and the King.....
May 19—Lady Clare .....

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Mar. 17—His Double Treasure (Dr.).....
Mar. 20—The Open Gate (Dr.).....
Mar. 24—Love's Ebh and Flood (Dr.).....
Mar. 27—Tom and Jerry (Dr.).....
Mar. 31—Her Mother's Fiance (Dr.).....
Apr. 4—Secret of the Opal Mine (Dr.)....
Apr. 4—The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr. 10—An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.).....
Apr. 14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.).....
Apr. 17—A Close Call (Dr.).....
Apr. 21—The Minister's Son (Dr.).....
Apr. 24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)....
Apr. 28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May 1—A Kentucky Girl (Dr.).....
May 5—Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.).....
May 8—In Sunny Italy (Dr.).....
May 12—The Angelus Bell (Dr.).....
May 15—An Indian Brave's Conversion (Dr.)
May 19—The Banana Planter's Peril (Dr.)..

LICENSEES OF PATENTS CO.

BIOGRAPH

	Feet
Mar. 16—Was He a Coward? (Dr.)	994
Mar. 20—Teaching Dad to Like Her (Com.)	995
Mar. 23—The Londale Operator (Dr.)	998
Mar. 27—Priscilla's April Fool (Com.)	686
Mar. 27—Cured (Com.)	308
Mar. 30—The Spanish Gypsy (Dr.)	996
Apr. 3—Priscilla and the Umbrella (Com.)	997
Apr. 6—The Broken Cross (Dr.)	996
Apr. 10—The Chief's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Paradise Lost (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 17—Madam Rex (Dr.)	996
Apr. 20—A Knight of the Road (Dr.)	996
Apr. 24—His Mother's Scarf (Dr.)	994
Apr. 27—How She Triumphed (Com.)	998
May 1—The Two Sides (Dr.)	998
May 4—Misplaced Jealousy (Com.)	503
May 4—Cupid's Joke (Com.)	493
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 8—In the Days of '49 (Dr.)	995
May 11—The Country Lovers (Dr.)	995

EDISON

Apr. 5—The Resurrection of John	1000
Apr. 7—Nell's Last Deal (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 11—The Strike at the Mines (Dr.)	995
Apr. 12—Silver Threads Among the Gold (Dr.)	500
Apr. 12—Card of Introduction (Com.)	500
Apr. 14—A Buried Past (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—The Haunted Sentinel Tower	1000
Apr. 21—Turned to the Wall	1000
Apr. 25—The Twin Towers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 26—The Two Heroes (Com.)	975
Apr. 28—The Child and the Tramp (Com.)	1000
May 1—The Panama Canal in 1911	990
May 3—Josh and Cindy's Wedding Trip	1000
May 5—Aida (Dr.)	1000
May 9—Edna's Imprisonment (Com.)	975
May 10—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)	1000
May 12—The Quarrel on the Cliff (Dr.)	1000
May 16—In the Baggage Coach Ahead (Dr.)	1000
May 17—In and Around Havana, Cuba	450
May 17—How the Hungry Man was Fed (Com.)	550
May 19—A Case of High Treason (Dr.)	1000
May 23—Captain Nell (Dr.)	1000
May 24—Madeline's Rebellion (Com.)	990
May 26—Hearts and Flags (Dr.)	1000
May 30—The Niece and the Chorus Lady (Com.)	975
May 31—The Inheritance (Com.)	625
May 31—It Served Her Right (Com.)	375

ESSANAY FILM CO.

Mar. 18—The Faithful Indian (Dr.)	975
Mar. 21—Hans' Millions (Com.)	1000
Mar. 25—A Thwarted Vengeance (W. Dr.)	1000
Mar. 28—Getting His Own Back (Com.)	600
Mar. 28—Lost: A Baby (Com.)	400
Apr. 1—Across the Plains (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 4—Caught with the Goods (Com.)	1,000
Apr. 8—The Sheriff's Chum (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 11—An Orphan's Flight (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—The Bad Man's First Prayer (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—What Happened to Auntie (Com.)	800
Apr. 18—Catching the Deep Sea Turtle (Edu.)	200
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Two Mothers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 29—What a Woman Can Do (Dr.)	950
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 9—Holding His Own (Com.)	600
May 9—The Laundry Lady's Luck (Com.)	400
May 13—The Cow Puncher's New Love (Dr.)	1000

GAUMONT
G. Kleine

Mar. 14—The Sword and the Cross	840
Mar. 14—Breakers in the Clouds	155
Mar. 18—The Privateer's Treasure	860
Mar. 18—Rocky Caves of France	110
Mar. 21—The Lieutenant's Wild Ride	1002
Mar. 25—Cupid's Conquest	595
Mar. 25—The People of the Arabian Desert	405
Mar. 28—His Image in the Water	575
Mar. 28—Family Troubles	430
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 1—The Secret of the Forest (Dr.)	625
Apr. 1—Tribulations of Jiggers	375
Apr. 4—The Letter with the Red Seal	865
Apr. 4—The City of Amalfi in Italy	135
Apr. 8—The Atonement of Thais	865
Apr. 8—Italian Coast Scenes	135
Apr. 11—The Court Martial (Dr.)	725
Apr. 11—Picturesque Waterfalls in Northern Spain	275
Apr. 15—The Oppressor (Dr.)	640
Apr. 15—Jimmy the Fox (Com.)	380
Apr. 18—Lost Years	630
Apr. 18—Brest, a Fortified Harbor of France	370
Apr. 22—The Erring Son (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Romance of a Valet	510
Apr. 25—Old Folks	490
Apr. 29—A Priestess of Carthage	1060
May 2—The Young King of Rome	440
May 2—Tunis, Africa, the City of White	560
May 6—The Crusade of the Templars	1000
May 9—Three of a Kind	740
May 9—Spring-Heeled Jack	245
May 13—In the Days of Nero	1000
May 16—The Bankrupt	1000
May 20—Jimmie on a Lark	570
May 20—Shooting the Rapids	450
May 23—The Emperor's Return	795
May 23—Swans	205

KALEM CO.

Mar. 3—Mexican Filibusters (Dr.)	1005
Mar. 8—The Irish Honeymoon (Dr.)	950
Mar. 10—The Mission Carrier (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 15—The Driver (Educ.)	565
Mar. 15—The Hunter's Dream (Com.)	365
Mar. 17—A War Time Escape (Dr.)	980
Mar. 22—A Saw Mill Hero (Dr.)	960
Mar. 24—Rescued from the Desert (Dr.)	990
Mar. 29—The Lass Who Couldn't Forget (Dr.)	960
Mar. 31—The Hero Trackwalker (Dr.)	950
Apr. 5—By a Woman's Wit (Dr.)	995
Apr. 7—Big-hearted Jim (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 12—In Old Florida (Dr.)	965
Apr. 14—Slim Jim's Last Chance (Dr.)	970
Apr. 19—The Phoney Prince (Com.)	990
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 26—A Night and a Day (Com.)	995
Apr. 28—Slabsides (Dr.)	1005
May 3—The Fiddle's Requiem (Dr.)	1000
May 5—When the Dead Return (Dr.)	990
May 10—The Loyalty of Don Luis Verdugo (Dr.)	980
May 12—The Carnival (Dr.)	1000

LUBIN

Mar. 6—Vanity and Its Cure (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 9—Her Friend, the Burglar (Com.)	1000
Mar. 13—The Actress and the Singer (Com.-Dr.)	1000
Mar. 16—Mandy's Social Whirl (Com.)	1000
Mar. 20—Her Artistic Temperament (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 23—The Spinster's Legacy (Com.)	600
Mar. 23—Bridget and the Egg (Com.)	400
Mar. 27—Her Child's Honor (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—When Women Strike (Com.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Wife's Awakening (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 6—His Best Girl After All (Dr.)	600
Apr. 6—A Visit to Nassau, Bahama (Travel)	400
Apr. 10—Opportunity and the Man (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Their Mothers-in-Law (Com.)	1000
Apr. 17—The Two Fathers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 20—Helping Him Out (Com.)	1000
Apr. 24—The Hoyden (Com.)	1000
Apr. 27—The Sheriff and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 1—A Fascinating Bachelor (Com. Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Belated Bridegroom (Com.)	1000
May 8—That Awful Brother (Com.)	1000
May 11—Drifting (Dr.)	1000

G. MELIES.

Mar. 24—On the Border Line	600
Mar. 24—Great War Game	950
Apr. 6—Her Faithful Heart	1000
Apr. 13—Jack Mason's Last Deal	1000
Apr. 20—An Unwilling Cowboy
Apr. 27—The Reformation of Jack Robin	1000
May 4—Mary's Strategem	1000
May 11—The Spring Round-Up	1000
May 18—The Redemption of Rawhide (Com.)	980
May 25—The Immortal Alamo	1000
June 1—In Time for Press	1000
June 8—Her Spoiled Boy	1000

PATHE FRERES

Mar. 22—The Cattle Rustlers	1000
Mar. 24—Lieutenantsliebe	1000
Mar. 25—The Kid from Arizona	960
Mar. 31—Athaliah	1000
Mar. 27—Love in Madrid	443
Mar. 27—The Trickster Tricked (Com.)	446
Mar. 29—A Fatal Resemblance (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—Their Mother (Dr.)	872
Apr. 1—Fred Sato and His Dog	128
Apr. 3—The Apple of His Eye	1000
Apr. 5—The Trading Stamp Mania (Com.)	990
Apr. 7—The Three Whiffles	655
Apr. 7—Native Industries in Cochin-China	341
Apr. 8—The White Squaw	1000
Apr. 10—The Justice of Claudius	260
Apr. 12—A Cowboy's Adventure (Western)	364
Apr. 14—Wiffles' Home Troubles	440
Apr. 14—How Edam Cheese Is Made	480
Apr. 15—Burglar's Fee (Com.)	1,000
Apr. 17—Robert the Silent (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 19—A New Life (Dr.)	990
Apr. 21—Boil Your Water
Apr. 21—Mary Long and Sammy Short (C.)	360
Apr. 22—The Chief's Talisman (Western)	820
Apr. 24—Lai Chyeim	997
Apr. 26—The Rival Brothers' Patriotism (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 28—Enemies	833
Apr. 28—Pastime in Chili	160
Apr. 29—The Foster Father (Dr.)	950
May 1—Forgiveness is Sweet	754
May 1—Scenes Along the Mekong	240
May 3—Indian Justice	1000
May 5—Max is Forced to Work	670
May 5—Through Venice	295
May 6—Short-Lived Happiness (Dr.)	1000
May 8—My Daughter	748
May 8—Over Lucerne (Switzerland) in an Airship	253
May 10—The Abernathy Kids' Rescue (Dr.)	771
May 10—The Ocean Harnessed	216
May 12—The Samourai's Expiation	640
May 12—American Beauties	351
May 13—Lucia's Broken Romance (Dr)	958
May 20—A Close Call
May 26—Semiramis
May 14—Leo Tolstoi
May 15—The Accomplice (Dr.)	836
May 15—Winter Sports at Lucerne	150
May 17—Billy in Trouble (Com.)	950
May 20—Paul and Francesco	859
May 20—The Fastest Motor Boat in the World	50

SELIG

Mar. 13—The Code of Honor
Mar. 13—The Man from the East
Mar. 20—Her Words Come True
Mar. 20—After a Hundred Years
Mar. 23—The Way of the Transgressor
Mar. 27—Her Adopted Fathers
Mar. 30—1861
Apr. 3—The Fortune Hunters
Apr. 6—Red's Conquest
Apr. 10—The Cowboy and the Shrew
Apr. 10—His Best Girl's Little Brother (Com.)
Apr. 13—Zulu-land
Apr. 17—The Haven of Refuge
Apr. 20—The Mother
Apr. 24—Unto Us a Child Is Born
Apr. 27—The Witch of the Everglades
May 1—Her Master	1000
May 4—In Old California, When the Grin-goes Came	1000
May 5—Tournament of Roses
May 8—Lost and Won	1000
May 11—Back to the Primitive	1000

URBAN ECLIPSE
G. Kleine

Feb. 15—Catherine Howard	1005
Feb. 22—The Golden Sickle	882
Feb. 22—Felling a Smoke-stack	113
Feb. 22—The Golden Sickle	882
Mar. 1—Comrades	638
Mar. 1—Beauties of Sans Souci	362
Mar. 8—The Fury of a Woman Scorned	720
Mar. 8—Beautiful Wye Valley, England	300
Mar. 15—Redemption	508
Mar. 15—The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond	472
Mar. 22—The Money Lender	688
Nemours and the Banks of the River Loing, France	320
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 5—At the Old Mill (Dr)	675
Apr. 5—Making Bamboo Hats in Java	325
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 19—Solving the Servant Problem (C.)	465
Apr. 19—In the Province of Kwang Tung, China	535
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
Apr. 26—The Last Edict of Francis II	875
Apr. 26—Scenes at Colombo, Ceylon	125
May 3—The Page's Devotion	790
May 3—Wismar, Germany	210
May 10—The Traitor (Dr.)	620
May 10—Rubber-Neck Percy (Com.)	370
May 17—The Juggler's Vengeance (Dr.)	396
May 17—Fishguard Harbor, Wales	600

VITAGRAPH

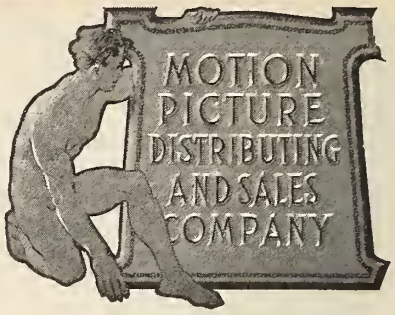
Feb. 17—When the Light Waned	994
Feb. 28—Captain Barnacle's Courtship (Com.)	998
Mar. 3—Bertha's Mission (Dr.)	988
Mar. 4—Mammy's Ghost (Dr.)	985
Mar. 7—The Wild Cat Well	960
Mar. 10—The Bridegroom's Dilemma (Com.)	990
Mar. 11—Red Eagle	960
Mar. 14—Betty Becomes a Maid (Com.)	957
Mar. 17—The Aching Void (Dr.)	990
Mar. 18—Davy Jones, or His Wife's Husband (Com.)	977
Mar. 21—Tho' the Seas Divide	968
Mar. 24—The Widow Visits Sprigtown (C.)	985
Mar. 25—A Little Lad in Dixie (Dr.)	999
Mar. 28—Billy's Valentine (Com.)	995
Mar. 31—The Inherited Taint (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—A Republican Marriage	996
Apr. 4—Unexpected Review (Com.)	660
Apr. 4—Hop Picking (Indust.)	335
Apr. 7—The Winning of the Stepchildren (Dr.)	965
Apr. 8—Winsor McCay (Com.)	650
Apr. 8—Bob Sledding	350
Apr. 11—The Wooing of Winifred (Com.)	988
Apr. 14—Though Your Sins be as Scarlet (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 15—Easter Babies (Com. Dr.)	980
Apr. 18—The Leading Lady (Com.)	985
Apr. 21—The Troublesome Secretaries (Com.)	990
Apr. 22—The Spirit of the Light (Dr.)	995
Apr. 25—A Klondike Steal (Dr.)	998
Apr. 28—The Peace Offering (Com.)	998
Apr. 29—Piccolla (Dr.)	993
May 2—The Derelict Reporter (Dr.)	975
May 5—Soldiers Three (Com.)	1000
May 6—Hungry Hearts (Dr.)	985
May 9—His Mother (Dr.)	995
May 12—The Welcome of the Unwelcome (Com.)	1000
May 13—Prejudice of Pierre Marie (Dr.)	985

The Moving Picture Cream of America and Europe

Original prints of this unexcelled program can be obtained in U. S. and Canada only from exchanges purchasing film through

Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.

111 East 14th Street, New York City



OUR PROGRAM

MONDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Eclair—Eclair Film Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.
Champion—The Champion Film Co.
TUESDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.
WEDNESDAY
Ambrosio—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Champion—The Champion Film Co.
Nestor—David Horsley.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories
Solax—Solax Co.
THURSDAY
American—Amer. Film Mfg. Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Imp—Independent M. P. Co.
Rex—Rex M. P. Mfg. Co.
FRIDAY
Bison—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Lux—R. Prieur
Thanhouser—Thanhouser Co.
Solax—Solax Company
Yankee—Yankee Film Co.
SATURDAY
Gt. Northern—Gt. Northern Film Co.
Itala—N. Y. Motion Picture Co.
Powers—The Powers Co.
Reliance—Carlton M. P. Laboratories

FRANK WINCH WRITES ONE OF THE SEASON'S MOST POPULAR SELLERS

Frank Winch, author of "Thrilling Lives of Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill," who has just turned his thirtieth year, has led a life of wondrous activity. Newspaper man, playwright, student of criminology and author, Mr. Winch measures his success in life with a long rule. He was born in California, the only son of Henry W. Winch, pioneer steamboat man of Oregon, and was educated at Gonzaga College, Spokane, Wash., Portland University, Portland, Ore., and the University of Oregon, at Eugene.

At the age of seventeen he finished his studies, and returned to San Francisco, to take up newspaper work, but other plans had been made for him. There being a strong parental prejudice against reportorial work, he was invited to enter the employ of a large San Francisco commercial house. This he declined to do, and not being able to place himself on the staff of any of the local papers, Mr. Winch manifested the spirit of independence that has characterized all his later life, and struck out for himself, finally securing a position as bellboy in the California hotel. Here he remained for seven months, until one of the guests at the hotel, Fremont Older, famed the world over as the instigator of the graft prosecutions in San Francisco and the managing editor of the Evening Bulletin, took notice of young Winch, and placed him in the Bulletin office.

Winch's aptitude as a newspaper man soon manifested itself, and promotion after promotion rapidly followed, until he was recognized as one of the shrewdest and keenest writers in the field. He then turned to playwrighting, and was successful in having Frederic Belasco produce many of his plays, which won further honors for the young fellow. He returned to editorial work, and became one of the star writers. For the sake of a newspaper story he walked across Death Valley, organized the Tonopah (Nev.) Press Club, rode the great five-mile championship race with Barney Oldfield, was the first civilian to ever ride in a submarine boat, and served as correspondent in the Jap-Russian war.

About this time there were rumors of municipal graft in San Francisco, and it was in the early stages of investigation that Winch's researches were responsible for the aftermath that sent Mayor Schmitz and Abe Ruef to the penitentiary.

One day the entire world was shocked with the news that nearly every man and officer on the United States battleship Oregon, had been caught smuggling dutiable property. Thousands of packages were confiscated all over the country, and secret service agents throughout the United States were set at work gathering in goods that valued nearly $175,000. The exposure was made by Frank Winch, who at that time was marine editor of the San Francisco Evening Post, and for which he received a substantial reward from the government.

Then came the fire and earthquake in San Francisco, through which Winch served as a deputy sheriff. In the fall of 1906, he was offered the general press agency of a very well known Chicago theatrical firm, and this he retained until called to New York to manage the New York office of one of America's leading amusement weeklies. His caustic satire, good-natured humor and breezy style of writing soon attracted universal attention in both Europe and America. Among his best known efforts are "The Stage of a Hundred Years Ago," "The Critic" and "The Criminal."

"The Thrilling Lives of Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill" is one of the most exciting, intensely interesting historical works ever written. His intimate friendship with both Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill enabled him to gather many facts heretofore unpublished. He has traced in fine narrative the complete lives of the great frontiersmen, from their early childhood to the present day. He has collected fifty illustrations that are remarkable for their beauty and exclusiveness. There are twenty-two chapters in the volume, which is handsomely bound in vellum de luxe. The book is on sale at any news store.

San Antonio, Texas.—Karl Hoblitzelle, president of the Interstate Amusement Company, will erect a vaudeville theater here.

Phillips, Neb.—The Phillips Opera House was destroyed by fire.

Kellog, Idaho.—Plans for Kellog's new $25,000 theater have been completed by architect Walter Frieling, of Spokane, Wash.

Clinton, Ia.—Hart Bros. have purchased the Colonial Theater at 402 Second St., and will conduct the same.

Solax

COMEDY

EVERY WEDNESDAY

ANY ONE OF THE 16000

FUNNY PICTURES WHICH MAKE A SOLAX COMEDY WILL MAKE YOU SMILE

WE GUARANTEE { 12000 LAUGHS / 4000 SMILES } PER REEL

MILITARY

BIG, STRONG, OUTDOOR PRODUCTIONS

EVERY FRIDAY

WAKE UP--YOU ARE OVERLOOKING

THE BIGGEST FEATURE ON THE PROGRAM

Hundreds of Theatres are writing us they are packing their houses with these big features

GET OUR TWO COLORILOBBY DISPLAY

RELEASES

WED.,	MAY 17th—	"HIS DUMB WIFE," Comedy
FRIDAY,	" 19th—	"IN THE NICK OF TIME," Military
WED.,	" 24th—	"THE DEVIL IN A TIN CUP," Comedy
FRIDAY,	" 26th—	"AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN," Military
WED.,	" 31st—	"A MARVELOUS COW," Comedy

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED THROUGHOUT

Sold exclusively through the M. P. D. & S. Co.

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"All Wise Independents Buy and Boost Flying A Cowboy Pictures"

DEMAND

"Two Flying A Cowboy Pictures a Week"

RELEASE OF MONDAY, MAY 15th

A Picture of Suspense and Surprises

"The Ranchman's Vengeance"

A Drama as powerful in attention-holding as the grip of a third rail.

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, MAY 18th

A Feature Film

"A Cowboy's Sacrifice"

Shines resplendent amid the film features of the year.

REAL WESTERN PICTURES -- REAL WESTERN SETTINGS
Pictures that will appeal to all who like sentiment, rapid action, or glimpses of the real Western Life of the Cowpuncher.

Ask Your Exchange Man—DEMAND—"Flying A" Pictures

THEY WILL FILL, CROWD AND JAM YOUR THEATRE

American Film Mfg. Co.,

Bank Floor, Ashland Block
CHICAGO, ILLS.

JUL 6 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 20

May 20th
1911

SCENE FROM

"THE LAST APPEAL"

IMP RELEASE, JUNE 1st

PRICE
TEN
CENTS

"The Peril of Diaz"

MONDAY CHAMP—RELEASED MAY 29th

THE FILM OF THE MONTH

FIRSTLY—It's appropriate for Decoration Day.
SECONDLY—It's a photo of the American Army.
FINALLY—The Mexican Border is the Setting.

AN INSTRUCTIVE, INSPIRING, REAL REEL.

Such a reel must not be overlooked. You must not delay a second. The demand is large. To get it means satisfaction, but to miss it means regret. Every foot of it is genuine. Every inch brimful of life.

Next Champ Western

"How He Redeemed Himself"

WEDNESDAY, MAY 31st

The betterment of a bad character under a woman's gentle influence.

FOR JUNE 5th, IN SERVICE UNDER JOHNSTON AND LEE

THE CHAMPION FILM CO.
MARK M. DINTENFASS, Gen. Mgr.

12 East 15th Street
New York City

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

Branches at the Following Cities
LONDON	18 Charing Cross Rd.
PARIS	11 Rue St. Augustin
BERLIN	238 Friedrich Strasse
MOSCOW	3 G'enischewsky Pereul
BARCELONA	59 Paseo de Gracia
RIO DE JANEIRO	A. Sestini
BUENOS AYRES	A. Sestini
CARACAS	Levy & Co.

And the Following Agencies
MILAN	ST. PETERSBURG	VIENNA
TURIN	ODESSA	AMSTERDAM
GENOA	KEIFF	COPENHAGEN
NAPLES	VLADIVOSTOCK	STOCKHOLM
BOLOGNA	MARSEILLES	BUDA PESTH
VENICE	BRUSSELS	FRANKFORT
DRESDEN	LILLE	LEIPSIC
TOKIO	SYDNEY	CAPE TOWN
JOHANNESBURG	LIMA	HAVANA

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK - - - - - - - - LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - - - - - - - - - 3,750,000

FULLY PAID UP - - - - - - - - - LIRE 5,750,000

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232

TELEGRAPHS: CINES NEWYORK

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

Getting 2 Thanhousers a Week?

RELEASED FRIDAY, JUNE 2

A GREAT TALE OF THE TANBARK.

A Circus Stowaway

is one gripping, powerful story of circus adventure, with enough thrills and enough human interest to send it straight to the spectator's heart.

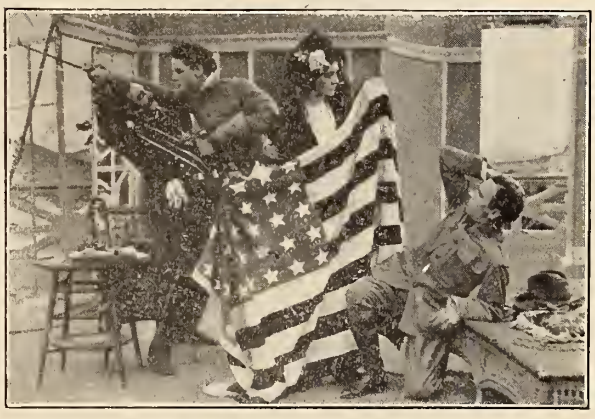
No. 216. Code Word, Stow.

RELEASED TUESDAY, MAY 30

THE DECORATION DAY SPECIAL.

A War Time Wooing

is an up-to-date war story—dealing with the late unpleasantness in Cuba and telling of an affair of the heart between a young Yankee lieutenant and a pretty senorita. No. 215. Code Word, Rider.



BOOK NOW! OUT FRIDAY, JUNE 16

"THE PICTURE THEY BURNED DOWN A HOUSE TO GET"

FLAMES AND FORTUNE

THE BEST SENSATIONAL FIRE FILM EVER MADE

BOOK NOW! OUT FRIDAY, JUNE 16

THANHOUSER COMPANY

NEW ROCHELLE — NEW YORK

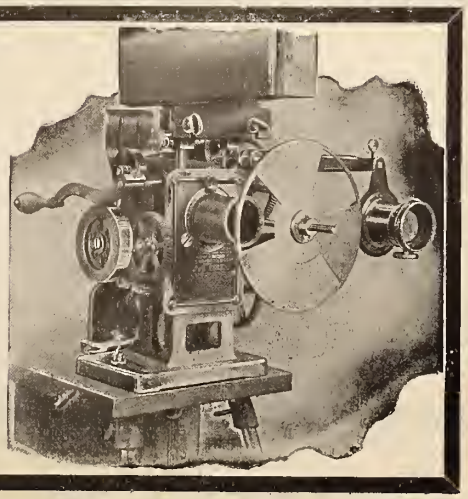
MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

Are You Getting It?

We refer to "POWER'S POINTERS ON PROJECTION"—the little folder that we send out every month to every exhibitor and operator on our mailing list.

Most people think it an artistic production. Many find it interesting. It deals chiefly with the best moving picture machine in the world.

Send us your address in time to receive the June issue.



NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York

For thirteen years the leading makers of moving picture machines.

It's a SCREAM!

The "Imp" Release of Monday, May 29th will tear your house loose in the biggest laugh it has had for months. "Three of a Kind" is the title. Remember it. Get after it now. For the love of heaven, don't miss it. As a direct contrast the "Imp" release of Thursday, June 1st, is one of the most touching heart stories we have ever produced. See that you get "The Last Appeal" and "Three of a Kind," if you have to change your exchange to do it.

This Lobby Display

is 3½ feet wide by 2½ feet deep. Most strikingly rich thing ever devised for use in front. Exhibitors are wildly enthusiastic about it. We've placed our third order with the manufacturers. If you want one, send your $5 instantly. Descriptive circulars upon request. Frame of oak and ten fine photos, all for $5.

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America.
102 W. 101st St., New York. Carl Laemmle, Pres.
Get early booking on our Decoration Day reel!
We want your name and address immediately!
$500 Reward for information leading to the conviction of "dupers" of "Imp" films!
The "Imp Book" will tickle you immensely!

INDEPENDENT MOVING PICTURES CO. IMP AMERICA

Cl.B245608

"The contents of this issue are copyrighted"

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan. 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City. ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV May 20, 1911 Number 20

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

The picture this week illustrates a scene from "The Last Appeal," an Imp release of June 1st, and we can safely commend this film to our readers as being one that can be repeated several times to the advantage of the patrons of any theater.

OUR PRESENT ISSUE

Our readers will note this week we have commenced another advance in motion picturedom. We try in every possible way to be up-to-date with our methods, and, to show how eagerly other papers copy our ideas, we will simply mention a copyrighted heading, "Seen on the Curtain," which has been stolen by a contemporary without so much as "by your leave, or thank you." This issue is an Imp number, and is the first of a series of issues relating to the manufacturers whom we consider deserving of being written up in our columns.

Imp has made great progress both in the quality and plot of their stories. The photographic end is in the hands of good capable men, and we believe that they will advance to still greater success in the very near future. Our readers will look out week by week for special issues of the News which will be called by the name of the manufacturer who is in that special issue; thus this week call it the Imp number. Other Independent issues will follow in succession. We believe that by so doing we are meeting the wishes of many of our readers.

TRUST LITIGATION

It has been the contention of The Moving Picture News that the Motion Picture Patents Company was a trust or a combination formed for the restraint of trade, that it was illegal and as such should be banned and fought on the lines of a combination to keep men from earning an honest living, and restrict the motion picture industry to a combination of men who in former times were the biggest dupers of other people's film and ideas ever known, and to further help our contention we note the following from a decision rendered on the Standard Oil combination by Justice Harlan:

"All Combinations Prohibited"

Those were the men who were before this court at that time, and what was their contention? That that act of Congress did not embrace reasonable restraint of trade, but only unreasonable restraint of trade. That was the question that they pressed upon this court.

What did this court say? Pardon me for reading a little to show exactly what was in their minds. It is said, in an opinion delivered by a great jurist, Mr. Justice Peckham:

"While the statute prohibits all combinations in the form of trusts or otherwise the limitations are not confined to that form alone. All combinations which are in restraint of trade or commerce are prohibited, whether in the form of trusts or in any other form."

And then they came directly to the question pressed by these eminent lawyers upon the attention of the court, and the court said in the opinion:

"The next question to be discussed is as to what is the true construction of the statute, assuming that it applies to common carriers by railroad. What is the meaning?" the court asks, "of the language used in the statutes that every contract, combination in the form of trusts, or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the states or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal?"

What is the meaning of that, asks the court. Is it confined to a contract or combination which is only an unreasonable restraint of trade or commerce, or does it include what the language of the act plainly and in terms covers—"all contracts of that nature"—all contracts that restrain trade at all among the states are prohibited by this statute.

It is now, with much amplification of argument, urged that this statute, in declaring illegal every combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce, does not mean what the language used therein plainly imports, but that it means only to declare illegal any such contract which is in unreasonable restraint of trade, while leaving all others unaffected by the provisions of the act; that the common law—we hear a good deal about that in this opinion—"that the common law meaning of the term 'contract in restraint of trade' includes only such contracts as are in unreasonable restraint of trade, and where that term is used in the Federal statute, it is not intended to include all contracts in restraint, but only those which are in unreasonable restraint thereof."

And we fully believe now, after reading the above, that if the Patents Company were attacked on the combination for restraint of trade much good would result. It certainly falls in line with the Standard Oil Tactics and ramifications.

MOVING PICTURES ON GRAND STREET

By Margaret I. MacDonald

To walk along Grand street, or, in fact, any portion of the East Side of New York, in the more congested districts, is a revelation. On a sunny Sunday afternoon the streets in this portion of the city are hardly navigable, so great are the crowds sauntering aimlessly along, dressed principally in gala attire. Naturally the man with an eye to business is awake to the fact that a crowd such as this is on the lookout for something to amuse them; he therefore sets himself to work to provide some amusement. He knows that there are multitudes of stray pennies rolling listlessly about in the pockets of the youths, hankering for escape. What more profitable place for the moving picture man?

A few Sundays ago I wended my way slowly through the crowded streets, turning in eventually at a little theater on Grand street. Outside the door were many and attractive bright colored advertisements surmounted by the flag of our country, floating languidly in the soft spring breeze.

Fordon's Music Hall, as the little theater was called, turned out to be managed by a very young and courteous man, Mr. Irving Fordon. The theater is a very large square room, with a seating capacity, I should say, of probably four hundred people. Its arrangement has been made with an eye to comfort, being comfortably seated, lighted, and ventilated. In fact, the atmosphere is almost that of a roof garden.

I was surprised to find the audience composed principally of men. It was a well behaved audience, too. I was exceedingly glad to find the pictures shown of a good type. To be sure, the usual vaudeville divertisement was sandwiched in between the pictures. To me this portion of the performance is never intensely entertaining, but then I do not constitute the public, fortunately for performers.

As I sat in the comfortable little box seat provided for me, I mused upon the thousands upon thousands of people crowded up together in the cramped tenements to whom just such a comfortable little place of amusement as this would be a boon.

In addition to the usual program there is given here on Sunday afternoons, short, illustrated talks on some subject of general interest. On this particular afternoon on which I happened in, the talk was on the present state of affairs in Mexico. Some very good slides were shown and explained in an interesting way by a native of Mexico. This is an excellent idea, and I was glad to find this educational plan being carried out in a portion of the city where it is very much needed. Mr. Fordon has a large field to work in, and a wonderful opportunity to be of use to his race. There is but one objection I would raise with regard to his theater, and that is in connection with the vaudeville acts. The vaudeville stage is sadly in need of refining, and I must say that in its present condition it works more harm than good. The coarse joke is the joke that gets the laugh. Why cater to the unrefined mind? One of the saddest things in connection with the vaudeville stage is the fact that there are many young women of gentle hearts, and often with a more than passing amount of talent, who, in order to make their bread and butter, are driven to stand before the howling mob, go through all sorts of vulgar contortions, and shout with an unteminine braggadocio. It is a pitiful sight to witness their efforts to please the vulgar masses, when perhaps behind it all their hearts are breaking.

However, I found nothing worse in this line in this little Grand street theater than in some of the more pretentious houses of the same kind, and I congratulate Mr. Fordon on the success of his efforts to provide the public in that vicinity a comfortable place of amusement. His audiences would justify even more strenuous efforts along educational lines. There, near the heart of poorer New York, is where the most careful selection of programs should be made. So much of the molding of the minds of the future generation, as well as the purifying of the minds of the present generation, is largely in the hands of just such men as Mr. Irving Fordon. The men controlling the smaller and cheaper theaters are, to my way of thinking, in more responsible positions than those controlling the larger ones which the people of wealth frequent.

IMPORTANT DECISION

VICTORY FOR INDEPENDENCE!!!

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS,

Second Circuit.

Before,
COXE, WARD and NOYES,
Circuit Judges.

Motion Picture Patents Company,
Complainant-Appellee,
vs.
Yankee Film Company,
Defendant-Appellant.

Motion Picture Patents Company,
Complainant-Appellee,
vs.
William Steiner, et al.,
Defendants-Appellants.

Appeals from orders of the Circuit Court, Southern District of New York.

The patent in suit (Edison re-issue patent No. 12037) has four claims. In March, 1907, it was declared valid by this Court as to claims 1, 2 and 3 and invalid as to claim 4. The bill of complaint in this suit was filed in November, 1910, and the complainant has never filed a disclaimer of claim 4.

PER CURIAM:

The question presented upon these appeals is whether the complainant by its failure to enter a disclaimer of the claim declared invalid by this Court has "unnecessarily neglected and delayed," and so lost its right to maintain suits for the infringement of the other claims.

Were we certain that all the facts were before us we should consider it our duty to examine the question upon its merits for the purpose of determining whether the Circuit Court should be directed to dismiss the bills. But the complainant insists that it has not had full opportunity to present the facts, and in view of this contention we shall go no further than to say that, in our opinion, the case presented is too doubtful to warrant the issuance of preliminary injunctions.

The orders of the Circuit Court are reversed with costs.

"THE PERIL OF DIAZ"

The Champion Film Co. is a live wire organization when productions of timely subjects are desired and demanded by the exhibitors. Manager Mark Dintenfass is full of enterprise and their latest film, "The Peril of Diaz," is sure to meet with a reception in keeping with the merit it deserves. The release date is May 29th, and for a genuine portrayal of the American Army in a large war spectacle, with every branch of the service represented not a reproduction, the participants are real live soldiers of Uncle Sam. This Champion film is unsurpassed.

Although Champion's Monday historical subjects are faithfully reproduced, this present film, "The Peril of Diaz," is reality itself. Especially is this release so opportune on account of Mexico's vital problem of to-day and it conveys to the people an excellent idea of Uncle Sam's readiness to cope with any unexpected emergency likely to arise.

Our belief is that moving pictures of such a nature can only tend to uplift the estimation of this industry in the minds of the people, and the continuation of the good work must at all times reflect on the manufacturer, the Champion Film Co.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington, D. C., May 14th.

At various times the Sunday bill for the closing of all amusements comes up in Congress, but it has never had sufficient support to become a law as yet. The measure has been presented during the present session, but no definite action has been taken. It appears that the moving picture theaters have made those who favor the Sunday closing of amusements bend more efforts than previously. Consequently the managers of these houses have felt the necessity of combining their forces to be able to oppose this bill when the time comes. A preliminary meeting of those connected with moving pictures was called with A. C. Joy, manager of the Niagara, in the chair, and Wm. R. Mack, assistant manager of the General Film Exchange, acting as secretary pro tem. The matter was discussed and laid before those assembled and resulted in the organization of the Washington Exhibitors Association with the following officers: A. C. Joy, president; A. Brylawski, treasurer, and F. Brylawski, secretary. The business of this organization will be to fight in a united manner and with proper funds the Johnston bill now before the House of Representatives. This is a matter that is of interest to both licensed and independent and it is just this spirit that has been manifested among the managers here. All reliable houses are represented in the organization or have expressed their intention of joining. With the many other matters on hand, it is probable that this bill will not come before the House until next fall. In the meantime the Washington Exhibitors Association will be gaining in strength.

"THE EMPRESS," MARCUS NATES, MANAGER, USING MOST EXPENSIVE INDEPENDENT SERVICE IN NATIONAL CAPITAL AND VICINITY. THREE REELS ON DAY OF RELEASE. HAD EXTRAORDINARY RUN OF "FALL OF TROY"

Airdromes are now coming into favor in the national capital with the advent of the warm weather. Three such parks are in operation and others are contemplated and in course of construction. Air had been quite in demand here for the past week and is likely to continue in demand for some time, so the airdromes will become popular.

Sig. G. Boernstein, of the Capital Film Co., has been taking some pictures of games, sports and closing exercises of Kendall Green, the deaf and dumb institute here. He also secured a short reel of the recent retirement of Dr. E. M. Gallaudet as director, in which many men of prominence appear on the film.

Among the airdomes that have opened their gates for the summer are Northeast, with L. Simons at the head; Imp Park, under Harry Warder, of the Colonial, which he has closed for the warm months; the Maycroft, bearing the name of its manager; the Crandell, under the management of Harry Stein; Starlight, Staunton and Truxton. Others are promised. This number is in excess of the open air theaters that Washington has had formerly, so the outlook is that the patrons of motion pictures will have ample opportunities to sit in the cool and enjoy the shows. Speaking of cool, it has been conceded that the National Capital has the coolest house theaters to be found. Every manager has a strong point for ventilation and breeze and here is the Alhambra serving its patrons with ice water during the performance.

"Grenadier Roland" or "The Burning of Moscow" is having a run of several days at the Empress, where special Russian and French music is being heard with a small orchestra. Manager Nates has spared no trouble to make this thoroughly dramatic.

The Washington Film Exchange is located in its new quarters. The present offices are more commodious with a more dignified bearing for the Independents in the National Capital. A better display is now possible. Since Manager Lucus is on the road so much, Jos. L. Marentette is at the helm here.

Wm. Airey, of the Alhambra, is using a daylight screen with fine satisfaction, while the installation of his new ventilation plant makes this theater one of the coolest spots in the hot downtown district. Mr. Airey continues to meet the requests of the school children for their favorite plays and is thereby being of educational assistance.

The Flea Circus, consisting of a motion picture of the trained fleas of Prof. R. A. Nokes, who also addresses the audience, has been having a week's run as a vaudeville stunt at the New Lyceum, one of the men's theaters of the city. It has created quite a sensation as well as a popularity. Professor Nokes and his Flea Circus have been booked by Manager Dikeman for an extensive road tour.

The Virginia, with Manager Chick at the head, has had a big run of "Grenadier Roland" and "The Burning of Moscow" for four days. Educators and those interested in history have been much interested in this film. It is films like this that show something of the unlimited possibilities of the motion picture industry.

J. Boyd Dexter, who holds the distinction of being the first in the National Capital to establish an Independent film exchange, and who was recently associated with the Washington Film Exchange, is again at the head of his own exchange. Mr. Dexter is well known in this vicinity and has always been able to secure a following. He is also busy with his sign painting and has the reputation of making some of the neatest, most attractive and quickest lobby posters displayed before the motion picture houses.

W. H. Bradley, well known in the motion picture industry in this city, New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere, is having a theater constructed in the most improved style for pictures. The house is expected to be ready for occupancy in the fall, displaying Independent goods.

Tom Moore has resigned as manager of the General Film Exchange and Manager Cohen has filled his place. This has been long contemplated by Mr. Moore, who will soon enter the exhibitors' ranks.

THE LATEST FROM LONDON

(By our English Correspondent)

You will read with interest that a bill is being discussed by Parliament that will very probably settle the much discussed problem of cinematograph copyright. I quote the main points which are of moment to the industry. For the purpose of this act "copyright" means the sole right to produce or reproduce the work or any substantial part thereof in any material form whatsoever and in any language; to perform, or, in the case of a lecture, deliver the work of any substantial part thereof in public—if the work be unpublished, to publish the work; and shall include the sole right—(a) in the case of a novel or other dramatic work, to convert it into a novel or other non-dramatic work; (b) to convert it into a dramatic work, either by way of multiplication of copies or by way of performance in public; (c) in the case of a literary, dramatic or musical work, to make any record, perforated roll, cinematograph film or other contrivance by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered, and to authorize any such acts as aforesaid.

Copyright in a work shall also be deemed to be infringed by any person who sells or lets for hire, or express, offers or has in his possession for sale or hire, or distributes or exhibits in public, or imparts for sale or hire into any part of His Majesty's dominions to which this act extends any work which to his knowledge infringes copyright or would infringe copyright if it had been made within the part of His Majesty's dominions in or unto which the sale or hiring, exposure, offering or having in possession for sale or hire or importation took place.

* * * * *

Copyright in a work shall also be deemed to be infringed by any person who for private profit permits a theater or other place of entertainment to be used for the performance in public of the work without the consent of the owner of the copyright, unless he proves that he acted innocently. It is intended that the act should come into force in the United Kingdom on July 1, 1912, or such earlier date as may be fixed by order in council.

I notice that the bill has recently passed the second reading without a division in the House of Commons, and there is every indication that the same will become law.

* * * * *

The free churches of London have not been backward in responding to the suggestion of Prebendary Carlisle, which has recently appeared conspicuously in the daily press on this side, that the churches themselves should use the cinematograph on Sundays. Already one clergyman in East London has adopted it for his Sunday morning service, whilst the president of the Hackney Free Church Council (the Rev. Evan Williams) is, at the moment of mailing, appealing for funds to carry on a three-months' experiment at a picture theater in the evening. "The pictures have captured the public," said this gentleman recently, "and suppression is now out of the question. But I would advocate, in the interests of the employees, that the shows should not commence before eight p.m. Personally I would like to see the churches take over the whole of the picture theaters on Sundays, and run free shows of lantern and motion pictures. My own idea," he added, "if funds are forthcoming, is to have helpful or instructive pictures, some hymns that all may sing, and an address, but no payment of any kind. The churches might very well support and maintain such an effort throughout the year, as good pictures can only be an influence for good."

* * * * *

Spain held a highly important and an extremely picturesque ceremony on Sunday last (April 30th). Before the King, riding at the head of a brilliant assemblage of his military staff, the whole of the Spanish troops took the oath of allegiance. Mr. Chas. Urban, who obtained the Royal permission, filmed the entire proceedings and now includes the remarkable scenes in the program submitted at the Scala Theater. Mr. Urban's operators in Rome have lately enjoyed exclusive privileges in connection with Prince Arthur's official visit, and some intimate scenes already have a place in the Scala program.

* * * * *

Mr. W. Clegg, who was for so long connected with Mr. Charles Urban, is doing excellent business with the sacred and educational films at his new offices in Wardour street W.

* * * * *

The Co-operative Cinematograph Company have made arrangements to act as sole agents for the gentleman who has the sole and exclusive rights to film the Pageant of London and Festival of Empire to be held at the Crystal Palace, which will be opened by Their Majesties, the King and Queen, on May 12th. The views will possess immense educational and artistic value, and will indeed be a veritable motion picture history book. I will refer to this interesting function in my notes again later.

London, May 1, 1911. L. W. D.

FROM THE OBSERVATORY

By G. F. Blaisdell

The moving picture show men of New York City were very much wrought up recently over published reports that hereafter they would have to pay $500 yearly for their license instead of $25, as heretofore. There was no foundation in fact for the reports. It seems that some of the houses operating under theater licenses, which cost $500, have been paying for them quarterly or semi-annually. On May 1 many of the houses change to the picture basis, for which, within limitations, the license fee is $25. This year the corporation counsel decided they would have to take out a yearly license, with no alteration in the form of the license or in cost during the summer. The houses working under the $25 fee were not affected by the decision.

* * *

In talking with Mr. Ostrander, of the License Bureau, he said the average number of picture shows in New York City is about 650, and that in the summer licenses were issued for about 150 open-air shows.

Mr. Ostrander also told the Observer of a story he heard the other evening from the proprietor of a moving picture house. It is a story with a plain moral, and may well confound those ill-informed, superior beings who assume it is prima facie evidence of taste and refinement to decry picture shows and to class them with "vice and crime." Here is the proprietor's story:

"A woman came to me the other evening and said: "I want to thank you for your pictures. You know, my husband was for years a heavy drinker. His business day was over at 4 o'clock, but he rarely reached home before 12, and very seldom sober. He saw practically nothing of his children. His health was being undermined, but he would stay out with friends. But since he began coming here there has been a wonderful change in him, and all for the better—for him and for all of us. Now he comes directly home at the close of business, chases us all through our dinner, and then we all go to the show. Some nights we go afterward to another show. He is infatuated with pictures, but I can't describe to you what a blessing it has been to us.'"

A domestic tragedy averted!

* * *

Here's one from a little neighbor, who, talking across the street to a playmate, proudly informed her: "I am going to the 'movies' to-night."

* * *

Terse and picturesque.

Humble apologies to M. Ravet. Through inadvertence the name of that splendid French actor was signed to this column last week.

* * *

Among the amusement features provided for passengers on one of the Bermuda lines will be during calm evenings the projection of films descriptive of the scenes that are to be found in Bermuda, and, on the return trip, pictures will be shown depicting events in which the tourists participated.

* * *

The New Bedford Standard does not believe there need be any fear that the moving picture will "go," in the sense of absolute disappearance. It thinks, however, that close and constant acquaintance has dulled the edge of enchantment. In the experience of the Observer, the reverse is true. Acquaintance sharpens. The more pictures the average devotee sees the more he desires to see. With the improvement that is bound to come, in mechanical appliances as well as in the directing ability and in the rank of performers, there is every reason to believe that an increasing ratio of the people will become interested in pictures. Interest in the drama has not receded; the rising prices of theatrical entertainments of the higher class, however, have put the speaking stage beyond the reach of all but a small proportion of the population.

* * *

In watching the unfolding of Pathe's "Lai Chyeim" (good luck) the Observer was wondering if he would see at the end of the reel the stereotyped card "Approved by the National Board of Censorship." It was conspicuous by its absence. "Lai Chyeim" is a story with a moral. This is the moral: If you are a woman and you have married the man you don't love and never have loved, and a year after your marriage your husband's former servant, with whom you are in love and have been since before marriage, appears and asks you to go away with him, take your infant and go. It need not matter that your husband has been all that a woman could ask—gentle, considerate, affectionate and lavish in his provision. It need not matter that after your departure he should go down hill, to the lowest depths of dissipation—his clothes in rags, his home in a hovel. When you have been away from him four or five years, put a veil over your face, take your child and his child with you, stop at his door and ask for a drink of water. When he has gone to fetch the water leave under the bottle of spirits from which he has been drinking a note.

After drinking the water, place a coin in the hand of your child and his child and tell her to give it to the man who is her father and who is your husband and then depart. Don't wait to see him read your note, for did you not write: "You have just seen your child. Live in peace, for we are both happy."

* * *

Vitagraph's "The Derelict Reporter" is a good piece of work—well conceived and well executed. Kalem's "Diver" is educational and spectacular. The explosion of dynamite under the wreck of a ship and the resulting upheaval of water and timbers make a sight worth seeing.

* * *

Rex's "A Daughter of the Revolution" and "A Little Major" were strong, the former especially so. The major was good, but his two girl playmates were insufficiently trained to their parts. Speaking of children, Vitagraph has a gem in little Adele de Garde. She is an actress.

* * *

Pathe's "Over Lucerne (Switzerland) In An Airship" is a short reel, but it is full of interest.

* * *

Have you seen Winsor McCay in his "moving drawings"? The result of this clever artist's work in making four thousand drawings of characters familiar to Sunday Herald readers is laughable in the extreme. The idea surely is in a class by itself, and is one of the most remarkable "stunts" ever thrown from a reel.

* * *

Assemblyman Fry has introduced at Albany a bill providing for a state moving picture commission. The commission is to consist of three members, at a salary of $3,000 each. The proposed commission will have general supervision over the motion picture business and adequate powers for investigation. An appropriation of $25,000 is provided for the commission's expenses.

I have not seen a copy of the bill, but this matter of supervision, so far as this city is concerned, may well be left in the hands of the local authorities. Mayor Gaynor is taking a sympathetic and an intelligent interest in the whole subject, and there is no doubt that the welfare of the public and of the proprietors will be better guarded by the mayor, acquainted with local conditions, than by a political commission of placehunters from upstate. In the course of an after-dinner speech last week, the Mayor said: "They said before I was elected that these picture shows were indecent. I proved that to be not so. The moving picture show is the poor man's theater. The class of men who go there wouldn't stand for that thing. You can get that on Broadway in the White Light District and in other theaters, but not in moving picture shows."

Another provision of this bill levies a license fee on operators of $5 a year. The operators' union should get busy. Taxing men $5 a year for a $3 a day job is nothing short of an imposition. If men were permitted to walk into a booth and without undergoing a course of hard study proceed to turn the crank it might be another matter. There is such a thing as overregulation. Just now the moving picture is the object of attack from too many people who know too little about the general subject.

* * *

Henry K. Webster, in a recent magazine article, says that the moving picture show is the most revolutionary of all agencies in the Philippines. He says it is found everywhere.

* * *

Among recent incorporations are the following:

New Jersey—The J. Frank Hatch Film Company, to manufacture, buy, sell and lease films; capital, $25,000; incorporators, J. Frank Hatch, George R. Askin, John F. Behan.

New York—International Motion Picture Company, New York City; manufacturing motion picture apparatus; capital, $75,000; incorporators, G. E. Reynolds, L. Reynolds, G. M. Saxe.

Illinois—Anti-Trust Film Company; capital, $5,000; theatricals, moving pictures and amusements; incorporators, Rudolph Frankenstein, H. S. Tuchseherer, Luke F. Mitchen.

* * *

Dennis McCarthy, of Syracuse, fiscal supervisor of state charities, is having made a series of motion films showing life in farm schools, reformatories, prisons and industrial plants, which are to be shown free at state fairs.

* * *

The Observer dropped in at the Comedy, on East Fourteenth Street, on Monday, and saw the American's "Ranchman's Vengeance." It was good. The pictures of the sheep ranch were especially commendable, and the sight of thousands of sheep will prove of deep interest to those who do not see a sheep from one year's end to the other. Also, the picture was strong from a dramatic standpoint. Another picture was Bison's "The Red Man's Gratitude." This is a story of a good Indian, which undoubtedly will be duly appreciated by Poor Lo, who ordinarily sees himself represented as bad—very bad. Assistant Manager William Leith said that Indians frequently visit his shows.

* * *

Some Thanhousers seen recently were "The Railroad Builder," "Divorce," and "A Pillar of Society." In the first of these the Observer is bound to confess that for photography (especially of interiors) he has never seen its superior. In "Divorce" there is a scene of a dinner table, illuminated by a large lamp, which is remarkably effective. The simulation of surrounding darkness is perfect. The portrayal of Ibsen's "A Pillar of Society" is good work, the characterization of Johan being especially notable.

A Pianist Speaks on Music

Moving Picture News,
30 West 13th Street,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

I desire to say a few words regarding the musical part of the motion picture biz. As we all know, music plays a most important part in pictures. A well-known and popular melody, be it pathetic or comic, will move an audience to tears or laughter as the case may be, whereas the same picture without appropriate music does not produce the same degree of emotion. In behalf of the musicians engaged in this biz, I want to call the attention of the producers of dramatic films to one very important feature, one that will give the musicians an opportunity to properly play a picture and that will, thereby, produce a better effect on the audiences. Take, for instance, a Reliance Film entitled "If It Were Ever Thus." In this picture the leading man takes the part of a professional violinist and is supposed (?) on two occasions to play a number that greatly pleases the hostess and her guests. Now, the time allowed this particular scene is not sufficient to play more than one or two measures of a violin and piano duet (as the picture suggests). To make the attempt would be to make the effect of the musician absurd. To continue with the music already being used on picture does not give character and force to that attractive part of the picture. A fraction more time allowed just at this scene would enable the musicians to introduce some appropriate strain with great effect. Other scenes that are frequently unnecessarily long and drawn out could be cut a little, thereby bringing said picture to the average length. Some time back the films entitled "Gounoud's Ave Maria" and "Mendelssohn's Spring Song" gave excellent opportunity to produce the effect that these pictures required, consequently they pleased, and were much talked about. I feel confident that musicians in this line of work who make an intelligent and conscientious attempt at featuring pictures will quite agree with me upon this subject.

Respectfully, A. L. Walker.

THE IMP COMPANY

TRUST MANUFACTURER DOFFS HAT TO LAEMMLE

Declares That Laemmle's World-Famous "Flimco" Ads Have Hurt the Trust More Than Any Other One Thing

"My hat's off to Carle Laemmle! There's no use denying that the man is the keenest fighter we've had to contend with and that his advertisements about Gen. Flimco have hurt us more than any other one thing."

So, in a burst of generosity, declared one of the leading spirits of the Moving Picture Patents Co.

This is perhaps the first admission by the trust of a fact which has been the cause of much comment among moving picture men during the past twelve months.

Mr. Laemmle's campaign against "Gen. Flimco"—his nickname for the General Film Company—has attracted attention not only throughout America, but all over the world. The "Flimco" advertisements have been copied from the Moving Picture News by trade papers in all the countries of Europe. And when the Imp Company made its recent tour through Cuba, one of the members ran across a Spaniard in the moving picture business who had clipped and saved every "Flimco" advertisement.

Mr. Laemmle's plan was to show the ridiculous side of the trust's plan of action. He had a famous cartoonist draw a series of illustrations, showing "Gen. Flimco, wearing a feathered hat, a long sword and a pair of epaulettes and appearing in all sorts of absurd attitudes. Readers of this paper know the character by heart. They seldom speak of "The General Film Company." It is always "Flimco." And such is the power of ridicule when used in a righteous cause that Mr. Laemmle is credited with having converted nearly four thousand trust exhibitors to the Independent cause during the past year.

The admission by the trust manufacturer that "Flimco hurt us more than any other one thing" only confirms what has been known to the trade for some time.

With characteristic quickness, Mr. Laemmle went straight to the heart of things when the above remark of the trust manufacturer was repeated to him.

"I'm glad to hear that they admit it," said he, "but let me tell you one thing. All the Flimco ads in the world would not make exhibitors stick to the Independent cause if we were not turning out the kind of films they want. We work hard to win exhibitors to the Independent cause, but we work ten times harder to keep them by producing films that will help them make money. And that's what we are doing!"

"What about my retiring from the moving picture business? Well, really now I understand that story originated in a foreign trade paper and it is one of the jokes of the season. The man who made the statement must be demented; at best he is entirely ignorant of the situation. Instead of 'going out,' I'm getting 'in' deeper all the time and expect to expand. I have now over 300 people in the employ of the interests of which I am connected. In addition to being at the head of the Imp Company, have five film exchanges and my interests extend to the foreign countries and the Imp films are known in almost every civilized portion of the globe. I have plans under way which will crystallize that will be hailed with delight by exhibitors of motion pictures; always forging ahead and never taking a step backward has been my motto and how well I have succeeded can best be attested by the success of the enterprises with which I am connected. Going out of business. I should say not."

Carl Laemmle can justly lay claim to being "The biggest and best film renter in the world," which expression is one of the slogans of his vigorous and concentrated advertising campaign. It is no idle boast at that, for he makes the assertion good in the way of the "biggest" by the volume of business conducted, and that he is the "best" is proven by satisfied customers in all parts of the country. In the way of publicity Mr. Laemmle is unique. His "demand two Imps a week" admonition to exhibitors is familiar to every reader of the trade publication. He has the courage of his convictions; faith in his own output, and the honesty to assist patrons in the way of increasing their business while insisting that they get the best of the film output.

While Mr. Laemmle is an old timer in the moving picture world, he enjoys the distinction of being a pioneer in the Independent movement, and he is proud of the fact. He has borne the brunt of the fight waged against the Independents by the patents people. He is a good friend, loyal and sympathetic; but he can fight, when he is sure he is right, to the last ditch, and he generally wins, having a just quarrel. Of his struggles in the cause of the Independents every person with knowledge of the moving picture business knows. He has been a fair and honorable foe of the Trust and has fought methods that have been condemned as despicable with an innate knowledge that right would eventually triumph, firm in his conviction that oppression could not prevail and that a brighter dawn in the moving picture business is surely inevitable after a stormy period for the Independent cause.

The rapid strides of the Independent Moving Pictures Company of America is due to the untiring efforts of Mr. Laemmle and his tenacity of purpose. He set about the making of films with a high ideal, and the popularity of the Imp product was established at once and the advancement has kept pace with the progress of the motion picture and the enterprise is just in its infancy, insofar as the general development goes and the future looks bright.

Imp films are known all over the world and the word "Imp" is synonymous with Laemmle. Imp films will compare favorably with the product of any manufacturing concern, licensed or unlicensed, in story, plot, photography and acting. Mr. Laemmle spares no pains or expense to make Imp films perfect, regardless of anything else, and some notable releases have been the result. Imp films are unique in a way, in that he is always looking for innovations, having a desire to get out of the beaten path and invest his output with originality and striking departures from the usual picture. Others have followed his lead, suffering by comparison in the way of excellence.

In the way of coming releases the Imp concern has some agreeable surprises in store for exhibitors and patrons. The first notable release will be "The Forged Despatch," a military story, which is one of the most elaborate war stories ever filmed. It is intended for a Memorial film and will be released May 22d. It is a costly production, with a wealth of exterior scenery and with realistic effects in the military development. One of the big scenes is the bursting of a shell in the midst of soldiers while fighting desperately to hold a strategic position which is one of the most faithful effects ever shown on a screen. The plot has to do with the forging of an order which causes the disgrace of the hero to avenge the grievance of a rival. In after years the wrong is righted in a peculiar way by the finding of the forged despatch in the pocket of the blouse of a dead soldier brother which was sent to his sister. The old veterans are wending their way to the cemetery to drape the graves of the fallen heroes when the sweetheart of the disgraced officer hails them with proof of the heroism of the man she has loved in silence for years. There is an order to march to his house and he is summoned to the presence of his old command to be revered, cheered and placid at the head of the column in the march to the cemetery where the scene closes with members of the G. A. R. strewing graves with flowers and the old sweethearts, reunited, weep at the grave of the brother hero who perished at the side of his friend during the fierce fighting when both were laid low by the exploding shell. It is a great story graphically told, with hundreds of soldiers and G. A. R. men appearing in the cast.

SCENE FROM "FOR THE QUEEN'S HONOR." NOTABLE IMP RELEASE

Following this release will be "The Minor Chord," a beautiful story of the love of a young musician, who is lifted from penury to affluence by reason of his talent being discovered by rich and influential society people just as he is enduring the pangs of starvation. How he forgets the girl who made sacrifices because she loved him and made it possible for him to appear in suitable apparel in the parlors of the wealthy, and of his subsequent remorse and marriage of the poor girl, makes a story of sweet appeal and of intense interest. This story is interpreted by the stars of the Imp Company and the version is an admirable one excellently acted.

In contrast to "The Minor Chord" is "Three of a Kind," pronounced by competent critics to be one of the very funniest comedies of the year. The members of the Imp Company are in their element in portraying comedy of the refined sort and in "Three of a Kind" they have an opportunity to display their laugh-producing proclivities to a successful degree. It is the story of a childless young couple who must produce an heir in order to extract a fat check from a rich uncle, as the family exchequer needs replenishing, and creditors are hounding them. It is a cleverly conceived plot, but well laid plans often go amiss and they do in this case. The husband takes the initiative in borrowing a baby for the occasion and—as usual with young and inexperienced husbands—makes a mess of it. The babies literally pile up on the family until the husband is forced to confess to the rich relative that he is the father of triplets—a complicated predicament truly. The young people escape from their dilemma in a way most miraculous. The uncle receives a telegram that he is the father of twins and is so elated that he empties his plethoric wallet and dashes out to repair to the cradle of his own heirs. "Three of a Kind" was produced for laughing purposes only and certainly fulfills its mission. It is for release Monday, May 29th.

"The Last Appeal," the release of June 1st, is a story with heart interest that cannot fail to grip. The little crippled girl, a vendor of papers, will certainly have the sympathies of any audience, and the husband, who has deserted his wife and child, makes all the amends possible for his neglect in a manner to win approbation in contrast to former neglect. It is an excellently acted story with appropriate stage settings and cannot fail to please.

"The Grind" and "The Chicago Stockyards Fire" are the two-on-one reel releases of Monday, June 5th. The former is an entertaining college story depicting the trials of a new student in the way of hazing at the hands of the older scholars and his turning the tables in a way that will at once be interesting and amusing. He becomes proficient in the manly art of attack and defense and puts his tormentors to rout in a most effective way. "The Chicago Stockyards Fire" is pronounced one of the greatest fire scenes ever produced and the Imp Company is being congratulated on its enterprise in having a camera man on the ground to film the conflagration that rendered hundreds homeless and destroyed many lives and millions of dollars worth of property. The photographer worked under falling walls, in the midst of the heat and smoke, and never abandoned his work until he secured the most striking scenes of the fire. It is a great film and shows the handicap under which fire departments in large cities are forced to work.

"Back to the Soil," the release of Thursday, June 8th, is a pretty little story of a youth who goes to the city, finding life on the farm irksome. He relinquishes the real for the sham and is not long in discovering true worth. His sweetheart takes an interest in his career and through her love and loyalty he is won back to his parents and the rural life, for which he is fitted, and all ends happily. It is a film that will please, with the right sort of appeal—a wholesome story of real life with a preachment that illustrates a wholesome moral.

"Behind the Stockade" is a drama of the Philippines and has to commend it a strong story plot, the scene being laid on a tobacco plantation. Incidental to the story, an entire tribe of savages is introduced which is beaten back by a company of United States cavalry. The gallant fight of the beleaguered little band of whites, pending the arrival of succor, while entrenched in an insecure stockade, is a situation that is thrilling in the extreme. It is a big spectacle—one of the largest ever attempted—and entailed an enormous expense to produce. It will prove one of the most successful films of the year.

"The Piece of String" will be released June 15th and is a story of a young man falsely accused of theft, who is eventually proven innocent by a dog, only to be plunged into despair as he is made the target for suspicion by a rival who stoops to despicable means to rid himself of the favored lover. The story is a strong one with the essential elements of a well-balanced drama.

Another notable story is "For the Queen's Honor," a costume play of Italy, with appropriate costumes of the period depicted. It tells of the loves, jealousies and hatreds of the nobility, and the sacrifice of a beautiful young woman. The story is one of the most elaborate ever attempted by the Imp Company and will be a revelation to the patrons of Independent theaters who enjoy pomp and splendor, with the flashing of swords, theglittering of armor and the handsome gowns of court ladies.

The Imp Company has other films in the process of completion of which mention will be made later, each and every one a feature production, and the summer program will be one of the most enjoyable ones ever put out by any firm.

Mention of the finished product would not be complete without reference to the picture "Science," in which Lassie and Imp, the Imp dogs, appear at their best. Lassie is the mother of Imp and the scene of her mourning at the grave of her offspring is one of the very best pieces of canine acting ever witnessed. The dogs really carry this story from start to finish and it is a reel that will please adults as well as children. The famous dogs will appear in other pictures. The dog Lassie takes a very prominent part in "The Piece of String," and has been featured in several films.

The Imp Company now has in hand another military story which will be one of the biggest things ever attempted in the way of a war romance. It will be one of the most expensive films ever attempted, with the war spirit predominating from the first scene to the last, put on in the Imp way with close attention to the small details as well as the large.

The Imp Company has been augmented recently by the addition of several stars in the moving picture world who will pose in the future, really making very nearly an all-star cast in all the pictures. The facilities for studio work have been greatly improved until the concern is equipped in a thorough, up-to-date manner for making the very best films to be turned out. Eastman stock is now used in all films, insuring faultless photography and, by a special process, films will be delicately tinted, giving them a finished effect that will be enjoyed by all lovers of Imp films.

Mr. Laemmle is very enthusiastic in his promises for the future, his optimism being born of long experience and he is sanguine of that success which always follows an honest and painstaking effort to advance in one's chosen enterprise. Success always crowns the efforts of the man who is conscientious and makes the pleasing of his customers paramount to everything else.

ANOTHER BOOSTER FOR EXHIBITORS

Imp Company Working on Enormous Half-Tone Cuts, Proofs of Which Will Be Mailed to Users of Imp Films Every Week or So

If we walked into the sanctum of President Laemmle, of the Imp Company, and found that he had nothing new to spring on us, we are of the opinion that the shock would turn our hair gray.

One of the latest stunts from this indefatigable "business-booster" is now in work. It consists of a series of enormous half-tone cuts, proofs of which are to be mailed to exhibitors who use Imp films. These proofs can be posted in the lobby of the theater when an "Imp" is on the program.

The cuts are made from special "still" photographs, taken with an especially fine camera bought for this purpose. The "still" camera is placed alongside the moving picture camera while "Imp" productions are being made; and the best scenes are snapped.

The huge half-tone cuts are to be printed on a fine quality of white paper, together with a very brief synopsis of the plot of the particular subject illustrated. The cuts will be larger than any ever used in the moving picture business, and instead of being dimmed by the use of colored ink they will be printed in black, the same as in a magazine.

In other words, the exhibitor, when he is showing an "Imp" film, can give his prospective patrons an actual "news photograph" of its best scene by posting the half-tone proof in his lobby.

"Exhibitors have been asking me for something like this," said Mr. Laemmle, "but I was determined not to send out anything until I was dead sure I had secured the very best thing for the purpose. And incidentally I was determined that whatever I did send out would be so much better than anything ever issued by anybody else that the exhibitors would fall on my neck and congratulate the Imp."

SHE'S LOYAL TO THE IMP

In the near future the Imp Company plans to release a film in which one of the prominent parts is taken by "the Imp dog," Lassie. The plot is such that the dog is called upon to mourn the death of another dog, her puppy, and she does it much better than we have seen it done by many a human being. We enjoyed an advance view of the picture in question. This intelligent canine crouches low to the ground and sneaks away from her master until she finds the grave of her puppy. Then she lies across the grave, rests her head upon her paws and looks directly into the eye of the camera with the most woebegone expresson imaginable. The "Imps" took the dog with them on their Cuban trip. She was a prime favorite with the whole organization.

Canadian Operators, Take Notice

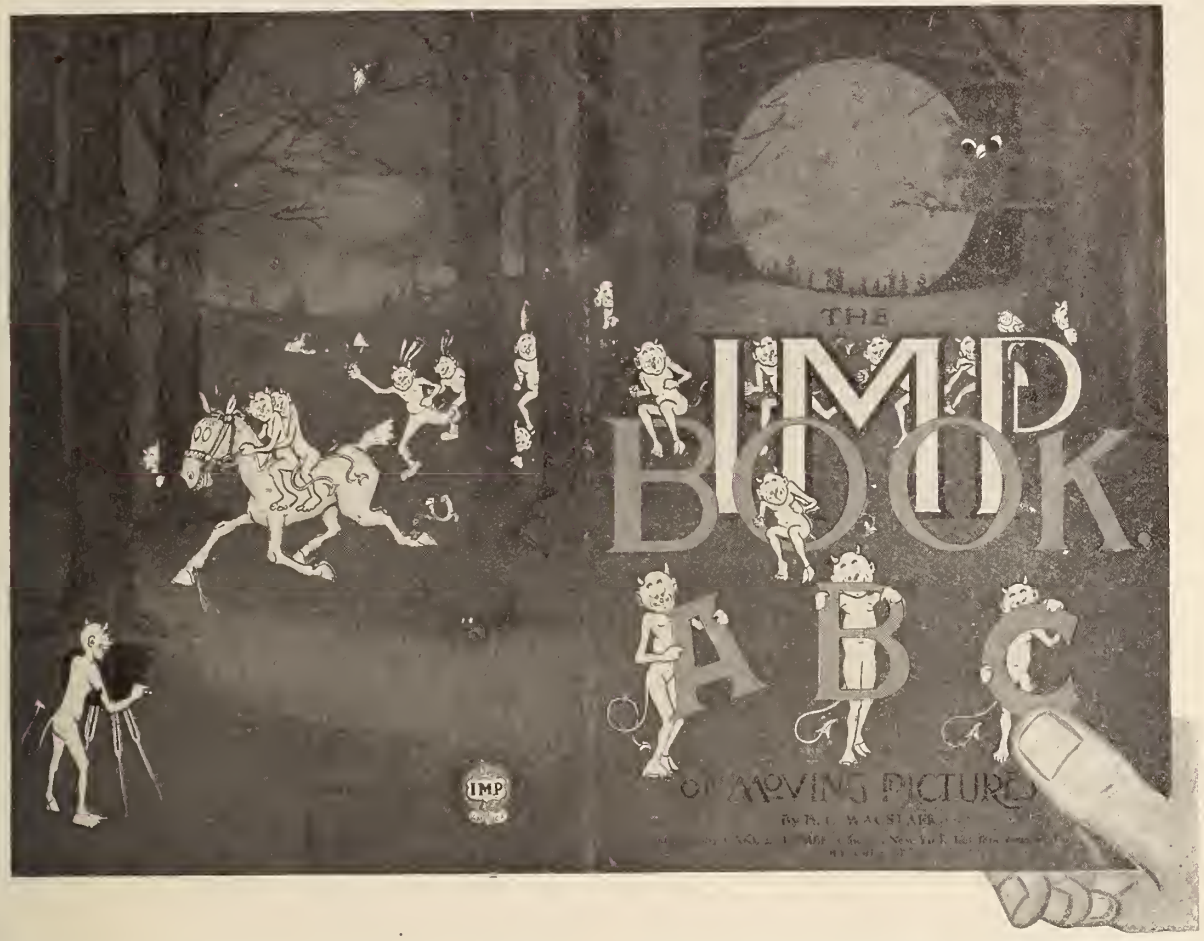
Mr. James Girvan, formerly of Toronto, would like to hear from brother operators in Toronto, Quebec, Ottawa, Sherbrooke and Montreal regarding the motion picture projection in the above cities, which he believes will be of interest to all operators and of which due mention will be made in the News.

OFFICER, THEY'RE OUT AGAIN!

Yes, They Come Out Weekly On REXDAY, THURSDAY

THAT NEW "IMP BOOK"

(Back Cover) (Front Cover)



We present herewith the first illustration of Carl Laemmle's latest and best "business-booster." In a recent issue of the News we made a brief mention of the "Imp Book" for children and grown-ups. Since then we have received requests for further information, and as Mr. Laemmle is not quite ready to divulge all his plans in connection with the "Imp Book," we secured permission to give our readers this advance glimpse of the novelty.

The "Imp Book" is a book of A, B, C's, each letter of the alphabet standing for some definite thing in the moving picture business. The entire book is written in rhyme, the jingle of which is merry and humorous. At the same time it gives interesting facts about the business and is therefore educational.

The above illustration shows how the "Imp Book" appears when fully opened. The back and front cover pages form a continuous or panoramic scene, showing little imps performing various stunts.

The book, both inside and out, is printed in rich green, red, orange and black on a splendid quality of paper stock.

Mr. Laemmle's plan, as roughly outlined at present, is to distribute the "Imp Book" among Independent exhibitors at less than the actual cost of printing and paper, so that the exhibitors can sell them if they wish or even give them away as souvenirs on special matinee days. He has already tried it out in a couple of small towns to make a test, and has found that the book makes such a good impression that it sells "like hot cakes."

We read the book from beginning to end. One of the verses that sticks in our memory is on the "M" page. It reads:

"M is for music the orchestra plays
As pictures are shown on the screen.
Piano and fiddle and drum-i-tum-tum
Add pleasure and fun to the scene."

The El Dorado opened Monday evening, May 15, at Freeman street and South Boulevard, Bronx, with outdoor show. The proprietor is Mr. John J. Wittman, who has conducted the house for some time. The opening was a success in every respect. The employees presented Mr. Wittman with a large horseshoe floral piece. The operator is Ben Turner, who is a past master in the art of projection. The pianist is Wm. Chris. Jones and the singer Chris Traynor. An audience of 1,200 greeted the opening of this house.

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"
IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE
ANIMATED PICTURE BUSINESS,
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
28 Large Pages. Eight Shillings per annum.
Editor-Proprietor: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABBRI,
la, Via Cumiana, 31 (Barriera di S Paolo) (Italy)
"La Cinematografia Italiana" is the official organ of the Universal Exhibition of 1911 at Turin.

OFFICER, THEY'RE OUT AGAIN!!
Yes, They Come Out Weekly On REXDAY, THURSDAY

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E. E.

WATTHOUR METERS

To facilitate the intelligent selection of watthour meters the principles underlying their operation are gone into at some length in this article. The importance of this subject is often overlooked, but a brief consideration shows that it is well worth careful study.

In a central station, as in any commercial enterprise, financial sucess depends fully as much on marketing the entire product at a fair price as it does upon reducing the cost of production. It is as important to receive compensation for all the power delivered to a consumer as it is to deliver this power at a minimum cost, and this can be accomplished only by the use of permanently accurate measuring instruments. Accurate meters on the power-plant switchboard make possible a calculation of the cost of energy per kilowatt-hour delivered to the lines, which forms the basis for a fair schedule of rates. With this schedule established, accurate meters at the receiving end insure that every kilowatt-hour delivered from the lines is actually sold.

A flat rate based on capacity of apparatus installed is at best only an approximation, and is more or less unfair to both the central station and the customer. It is unfair to the central station in that it leads inevitably to unnecessary waste on the part of the consumer and prevents temporary use of extra power, a particularly bad feature at the present time when electric household appliances are coming into general use. It is unfair to the consumer in that it either prevents him from the temporary use of extra energy, or causes a permanently additional expense for his occasional maximum demand.

Experience has shown that the installation of meters not only prevents waste of energy, but induces the customer to use it more freely, because it makes him feel that he is paying only for what he actually receives. In the case of a municipal plant in the South, the installation of meters reduced the coal bill to one-third what it was on the flat rate basis, making unnecessary a contemplated increase in generator capacity, without reducing the annual income. In nearly every case a overloaded plant charging on a flat rate basis can save considerably, both in investment and in operating expenses, by installing meters instead of extra generators.

The question of hours during which energy is used enters into the rate problem, but simplifies itself if considered as a separate problem of building up the off-peak load rather than of arranging a schedule of rates to equalize the load. In any event, though a schedule modified by hours of load is often justifiable, yet the necessity of basing charges fundamentally on the energy actually consumed, as measured by meter, is not diminished.

The accuracy of meters may at first sight seem an unimportant consideration. Yet an average error of three or four per cent in the meters on a system causes three or four per cent loss of income, which, considering that the cost of production is the same, means a much larger percentage loss in profits. This also reflects to the disadvantage of the consumer whose meter is correct, as he is thus deprived of the lower rate which the central station would be able to charge if all its product were paid. The proportions that the loss due to slow meters may reach is sometimes enormous. In practically every case the saving in unaccounted for output by a thorough test and adjustment of service meters amounts to more than the average annual expense of the meter department. In one case, that of a small station, a thorough overhauling of the meters after several years resulted in an increase of 38 per cent in the annual income.

Such figures would indicate that a system of thorough meter testing pays for itself and is an important branch of any central station business. It is true of meters, however, as it is of any other class of apparatus, that the cost of maintenance, in this case the cost of the meter-testing department, can be materially reduced by care in the selection of the apparatus. In fact, as meters often represent in a plant serving residence consumers a investment equal to two-thirds of the generating equipment, it would seem that their proper selection is worth considerable care. Care should be taken not only to select meters which register accurately at all loads when adjusted, but also to select those which embody those principles of operation and construction, as well as the workmanship and material, that will retain that accuracy for the longest period. With the present tendency toward using low wattage lamps, the accuracy of residence meters at light loads is particularly important. Nor are accuracy over a wide range and permanence the only desirable qualities. Efficiency is an important item, as it is in any apparatus, while the cost of maintenance is reduced by using meters which are easily tested and adjusted and require little attention.

Moving Picture Outfits for the Whole World

Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," is keeping up the pace in furnishing complete equipments for all parts of the country. He reports this week the following sales: One 1911 model motiograph for Keith's Theater, Columbus, O.; one Powers No. 6 with Hallberg special shutter for A. D. Frantz, Ackley, Iowa; one 1911 model motiograph with double dissolving attachment, and two Hallberg standard A. C. economizers to Theo. H. Sachs, Catskill, N. Y.; one 1910 model motiograph to Shanske & Co., Bronx, N. Y.

Messrs. Rosen & Nowak are building a new moving picture theater on Genesee Street, near the corner of Nevada, Cleveland, O. These two enterprising young men are now the owners and proprietors of the Lincoln Theatre, one of the largest moving picture theaters on the East Side, situated at the corner of Broadway and Titus. Mr. Rosen was the former owner and manager of the Savoy Theater on Broadway. The new theater on Genesee Street will be called the Victor Theater, and will use Independent service exclusively. It will be ready for the public about June 1. All patrons and friends of Messrs. Rosen and Nowak wish them much success in their latest venture.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, May 17.—Pity the poor "Man in the Baths," readers of The Moving Picture News, for he is not on the job. The illness referred to in his last letter is still part of his system, so he has asked me, his better half, who used to do considerable newspaper work in Buffalo, N. Y., and other cities, but who relinquished the typewriter, the smell of printers' ink and also grease-paint and the glare of footlight for the more quiet and peaceful precincts of a "comfy" home, to try and get my hand back in the game, and, under his dictation, transcribe this letter, together with a few thoughts of my own.

"It doesn't make any difference how bad I feel," ordered this "Mr. Man in the Baths," "The Moving Picture News must have its letter; so, girlie, between the two of us we'll see what we can do, and if it contains news of interest to the trade Mr. Saunders won't care a continental whether you wrote it or whether I did." So here goes.

The first item of interest, my husband stated, a "lead to the story," is the fact that the moving picture men, who have gone through a great campaign brought by the local prosecutor, have demonstrated that they can "come back," and last Saturday they served a written notice on Judge J. B. Wood, calling his attention to the fact that there were a number of business enterprises open on Sunday and doing a big business, calling his especial attention to the fact that Whittington Park, which is under his immediate jurisdiction, was "wide open"; that there the dip-the-dip, carousel, picture shows and other entertainments had not been forced to close on the Sabbath; that they knew him to be a good, honest and fearless official; that, when these violations were called to his attention, they believed he would close them immediately, and that they expected that this would be done.

I am also informed that when this notice was presented in person by Harry Hale, manager of the Lyric theater, that the Judge was somewhat taken by surprise, and in order that, as the men say, they would get "action" on the same, a copy was also tendered the high sheriff of the county, Charles C. Webb. Last Sunday the moving picture managers who, since the decision against them in Circuit Court, have been closed on Sunday, hired teams from the local livery stables and drove to Whittington Park, taking several of their friends with them, where they bought admission to many of the places of amusement and got all the evidence necessary in case they desire to bring this state of affairs to the attention of the grand jury, in the event of the prosecuting attorney declining to act on the notice served on him and close them up himself.

This, "hubby" informs me, is what they intend to do. They are also going one better—impeachment proceedings are to be brought and they intend to let the people know just the manner in which they have been discriminated against. This will make "good copy" when it comes off, but the local papers are keeping away from the story at present, at the special request of the moving picture managers, who do not want a wrong impression to get out before the true facts in the case are known.

Regarding the shows here the past week, there was at the Princess one of the daintiest little artistes that ever trod the boards—little Miss June Roberts, presenting, with her parents and baby sister, a most clever sketch, "The Doll Maker's Dream," which captivated the audiences during the three days she was here. The Princess' bill was exceptionally strong all the way through. There was not a weak spot in it.

The best show of the week, however, was staged on West Mountain, where a score or more of residents and visitors chased all day an educated pet monkey belonging to a vaudeville performer at the Lyric, that "jumped his claim" and ran into the tree tops. The monkey was educated to such an extent that it tried to chew the cherries off the hat of a blushing bride and scared a man who was "in his cups" until that individual was as sober as if he had taken the Keeley cure. I'll leave it to any man if it isn't an awful sight when one is recovering from "one of those things" to see a grinning monkey before you in a land where you know there are no beasts of this kind?

While "The Man in the Baths" was trying to get well during the week I visited several of the picture shows for him and must say that I liked very much the improvement that is being made by the American company in their series of Western pictures. Their "California Love Story" was most interesting, and their comedies, "Crazy Gulch" and "The Hobo's Roundup," also went with roars of laughter. "Out of the Dark," by Champion, was also much enjoyed, as was the Great Northern's masterpiece, "Hamlet." I saw this reel twice—that's how much I liked it, and I must state that it was staged magnificently and acted in most artistic manner. There was only one criticism I would make in the "Hamlet" production, and that is that the method of shaking hands was entirely too modern. People did not shake hands in those days as they do now. Great Northern. Itala gave us a beautiful picture in "The Fountains of Rome." We enjoyed "The Railroad Builder," by Thanhouser, and must compliment that firm on the great fire scene, which was some blaze and most realistic.

There were also a number of very good Trust pictures seen here the past week; the first of which deserves commendation is Biograph's pretty story, "The Broken Cross," which was much enjoyed. I liked very much the little leading lady of this production, while the other women of the cast were exceptionally true to their respective parts. Edison also gave us a very good picture in "The Strike at the Mines," and Gaumont's half reel, "Lost Years," while containing features that were not at all pleasant, was, nevertheless, marked with some excellent acting. Melies, every one seemed to praise "Jack Mason's Last Deal." It was a story of deep human interest, and the finale of the picture was one of those pretty "slow, quiet curtain" effects that sent the story home to a happy and powerful conclusion. In "Robert the Silent" Pathe came true—something like the Pathe of old; and this picture, if I may be permitted to use a little slang, was a winner in every sense of the word. There was one reel that delighted me, possibly because it took me back to scenes over which I had been some years ago, "The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond." Many a time have I gone down that course, Eclipse, and the old scenes brought back many, many pleasant recollections. Vitagraph, which usually does things worth while, presented a very pretty story here the past week in "The Spirit of the Light," made more interesting even than the original when read in script; so, taken all in all, the past week was a most enjoyable one from the motion picture standpoint.

My "Lord and Master" now demands to see my "dopy." I hope he won't "blue pencil" most of it. His disposition when sick, which he has been for the past two weeks, is not anything like that when well. It's up to him now; after that, to a higher journalistic court—ye editors.

THE LADY OF THE BATHS.

Cortland, N. Y.—L. H. Hewitt is preparing plans for another new theater.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!

Motion Picture Machines $35. Lubin 1908 Marvel, cost $150, only $100. Motiograph $90. Fort Wayne Compensarc $35. Postal Card Machines. Send for Supplement 33. Bargain List. Motion Picture Machines Wanted.

HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST THEATRE CHAIR

Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving. To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.

Write Today for Circular W

HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation

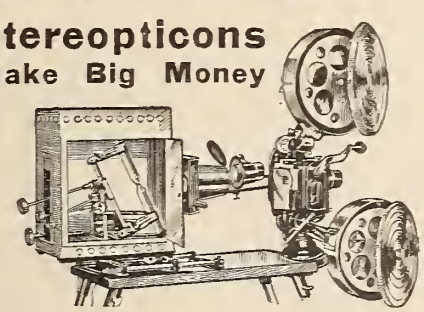
and slides for every purpose made to order

GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

Moving Picture Machines

Stereopticons

Make Big Money



MOTION PICTURE THEATRE SUPPLIES.

We carry on hand at all times the largest and most complete line of Repairs and Supplies for all Standard Machines, also Tickets, Carbons, Screens, Chairs, etc. Can ship at once Special Slides made to order. We also handle Motiograph, Edison and Powers Machines. Write today for THEATRE CATALOGUE.

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO.

Dept. 2, 219 Dearborn St., South, Chicago, Ill.

THE SALES COMPANY

The following films have been released during the week of May 27th by the Motion Picture Distributing and Sales Co.:

May 22—Forged Dispatch (Imp).....1000
May 22—Branding a Bad Man—a Western Dream (American).....1000
May 22—Little Western Rose (Yankee).... 950
May 22—With Sheridan (Champion)..... 990
May 22—A Mother's Distress. A Waistcoat with Points (Eclair)..... 965
May 23—The Outlaw and the Female Detective (Bison) 1000
May 23—The Stage Child (Thanhouser).... 995
May 23—Her Atonement (Powers).....1000
May 24—Devil in a Little Cap (Solax).....
May 24—There's Many a Slip (Reliance).... 970
May 24—In the Great Big West (Champion) 990
May 24—Snow Maiden (Ambrosio)..... 943
May 24—At Panther Creek (Nestor)..... 892
May 25—The Minor Chord (Imp)..... 999
May 25—Trooper's Heart—Daughter of Liberty (American) 1000
May 25—Marchionese of Ausperti (Itala).... 957
May 25—Called Back (Rex).....
May 26—Thwarted by Nell Pierce (Yankee).
May 26—Brave Swift Eagle's Peril (Bison). 978
May 26—Get Rich Quick (Thanhouser).....
May 26—An Officer and a Gentleman (Solax)
May 26—Two Cockadoos. Tidying of Paris (Lux) 966
May 27—Fifty Years Ago (Powers)..... 950
May 27—O'er Grim Fields Scarred (Reliance)
May 27—Foolshead, Insurance Agent, and Fountain of Rome (Itala) 822

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

A WARTIME WOOING
Thanhouser Release, May 30

A Spanish nobleman who resides on his large estate in Cuba, goes to fight for his country when war with the United States is declared. He is a widower and his only child, a daughter, remains home chafing, because she, too, cannot go to the front.

The father is killed in one of the early battles, and his old army friend brings his last message and his sword to the grief-stricken girl. She declares she will devote her life to vengeance, and as it is impossible for her to fight in the ranks she decides to become a spy.

Disguised as a dancing girl, she visits the public halls where American officers are found, and picks up much information of value to her country.

On one occasion she meets a young lieutenant and despite her hatred of his cause is much attracted by him. He saves her from the unwelcome attentions of one of his comrades and escorts her home. But the girl knows that the lieutenant has papers that would be of value to her cause, and decides that duty is more important than love.

So she lures the lieutenant outside the lines and aids in bringing about his capture. Then when it is too late she relents and repents. She aids the lieutenant to escape through a secret passage in her home, but he is seen, pursued and overpowered after a fight. But again the girl saves him, this time by the aid of the flag she once thought she despised.

A CIRCUS STOWAWAY
Thanhouser Release, June 2

Ted, a tiny orphan, sees his first circus parade, and is much impressed with it. So much so, in fact, that he follows the line of march to the "Big Tent," and manages to get a free ticket by helping to care for the animals, a scheme that many boys have tried in many widely scattered parts of the globe. He liked the show, and thought he would like to see more of it. So he became a circus stowaway.

This is something that small boys frequently attempt, but seldom "get away with." But Ted, despite his youth, was resourceful. He hid in an empty animal wagon, and had a perfectly delightful, sleepless goose-flesh-raising ride to the next town. For he figured that perhaps a Royal Bengal tiger might come home at any moment and object to crowded quarters.

But nothing terrible happened except that the next day he was discovered and dragged from his place of refuge. The man who found him was about to throw him out, and would have done so had it not been for a kindly circus rider, who came along, rescued him, took him to his dressing-room, fed him some wonderful circus sandwiches and put him to sleep on a pile of clothes in the corner.

Ted vowed that he would do anything in the world for the man who had been so kind to him, and his chance came shortly. For one of the ring-masters, applied to for assistance in locating a missing heir to a large estate, laid a plot to swindle the rightful heir out of his fortune.

He did not notice Ted, who was lying very quiet in the corner, but Ted did not miss a word, especially when he realized that it was his benefactor who was to be swindled. Ted foils the plot in a decidedly novel way, just when the wicked ringmaster and his accomplice thought that victory was in their grasp. And Ted's benefactor never forgot that he owed his life of ease and luxury to the tiny circus stowaway whom he had befriended out of pure good nature.

"THREE OF A KIND"
"Imp" Release, May 29

Howard Kelley, a young husband, is worrying about bills; he is unable to meet them, when his wife suggests a solution to the difficulty. She proposes that he telegraph his rich uncle in the West, reminding him of his promise to send a substantial check on the occasion of the birth of Kelley's first child. The Kelleys are childless, but think they can put over the deception.

The telegram is sent, but is forwarded to the relative, who is East on a business trip, and is in New York, the home of the Kelleys. The uncle immediately sends a note to his nephew that he is in the city and will be delighted to call and see the child and leave a substantial reminder of his visit.

There is consternation in the Kelley household, and a hurried consultation. The ingenious wife hits upon a plan to carry out the deception. Kelley is despatched to find a baby. He secures one from an Italian family and starts for home. The uncle has preceded him, and the wife is in the throes of alarm. She pretends the baby is sleeping, and she does not like to awaken it. The uncle is shown his room.

The husband arrives with the baby, but the mother shows up and demands its return. The mother is thrust into an adjoining room, while he skirmishes for another baby. The uncle has emerged, and with his face lathered for a shave, is holding his supposed namesake.

Mrs. Kelley receives a note from her dressmaker saying it is impossible for her to finish her dress as she is the mother of twins. A boy is immediately sent for one of the twins, Mrs. Kelley thinking she can give the Italian her child and have one in reserve for the deception. During this interval Kelley has secured a baby from an Irish family and returned to his home. The uncle discovers the two children, and Kelley and his wife are forced to announce that they are the parents of twins.

The Italian woman has tired of waiting and has forced her way into the bedroom, endeavoring to get her baby. The uncle takes her for a kidnapper and telephones the police. The dressmaker's baby arrives, and the complication begins in earnest as the Kelleys have a trio of babies on their hands.

The Irish father arrives on the scene and demands his child. The police have arrested the Italian woman and return with her to investigate the case, and affairs look bad for the Kelleys when the uncle receives a telegram to return to his home in San Francisco, as he is the father of twins. He grabs his belongings, gives the promised $10,000 to his nephew, and hurriedly leaves the house, while Mr. and Mrs. Kelley square things with the police and return the babies to their respective parents, when peace and quietude once more reign supreme.

"THE LAST APPEAL"
"Imp" Release, June 1

Mrs. Ellis, the mother of a little crippled girl, is reduced to penury, and is residing in a dismal attic. Alice, her daughter, essays to support the mother, who is in the last stages of tuberculosis, by selling papers.

The mother has been abandoned by her husband just prior to the birth of the child, and, in her desperation, she writes him a letter, announcing that she has but a short time to live, imploring him to care for their daughter. The child goes out, making her way painfully on her crutches and mails the letter.

Ellis receives the—to him—unwelcome message, and ignores it, being engrossed in business and social engagements. He meets his daughter on the street and buys a paper, dropping his wallet.

Alice brings the purse home to her mother in childish glee, but the honest woman bids her return it to the owner. Little Alice hobbles to the palatial home of her father and is denied admittance. She finally succeeds in restoring the lost purse, and Ellis becomes interested in the unfortunate child, whom he accompanies home, to find his wife in the throes of death. She dies while being supported in his arms, and Ellis promises her to cherish and protect the child.

Ellis leaves her and the succeeding scenes show Alice under the care of a physician, gradually recovering the use of her limbs.

The story closes with Ellis tucking his daughter in bed, when a vision of his neglected wife appears, smiling approval of his kindness to the child.

THE DEVIL IN THE TIN CUP and THE HOUSE OF PEACE
Solax Release, May 24

House of Peace

Mr. Sollemn, the man of the house, detests all unnecessary noises. Coming home from a fatiguing day at the office he sinks wearily into a chair and prepares to beguile away the evening hours by reading his daily paper. No sooner is he comfortably seated when the peace and quiet is broken by a medley of discordant noises. His daughter Jane seats herself at the piano and begins to pound out some ragtime, and Willie, the small boy, starts the blaring phonograph. Sollemn cannot stand it, and in disgust he leaves the room and starts for the dining-room. No sooner is he seated when he is again disturbed by the shrill voice of his mother-in-law's pet parrot. Maddened to a great degree he seizes the offending bird by the neck and swings it around his head, hoping thereby to stop its noise. That noise is stopped temporarily, but no sooner is his grasp relinquished upon the bird when in comes Willie with a rattle and in a very enthusiastic manner proceeds to demonstrate the noisy contrivance. Sollemn takes the kid and gives him a good spanking.

Poor Sollemn, going from room to room in search of peace and quiet, but being unable to find it, decides that he will go to bed. In the quiet of his chamber he finds it almost impossible to sleep for the thump-thump of the boys' punching bag, the rattle of the coal going down the chute, the clash and smash issuing from the department of cookery, etc. But finally dropping into an uneasy doze he is suddenly awakened by a strange noise. Investigating he finds there are burglars in the house, and upon going down to intercept the burglars he forms an idea, and the idea is to have the burglars take all the noise contrivances away. This he makes the burglars do at the point of a revolver, and after this duty is attended to he goes to bed feeling that the old adage, "There are more ways than one to skin a cat," was never truer.

The Devil in the Tin Cup

The Flybynight circus pitched its tents in the grounds of a nearby railroad station in New England. In a short time the small boys, town bummers, country hayseeds and sightseers swarmed about the place and proceeded to make life anything but pleasant for the ticket agent and the telegraph agent by projecting their thirsty carcasses into the waiting-room and swallowing down great dipperfuls of cold water set aside especially to cool the parched throats of hot and legitimate travelers. The railroad agent stood it as long as he possibly could, and finally he conceived the idea of attaching to the chain of the water dipper an electric wire and then to an electric battery. The consummation of this idea furnished unlimited pleasure to the operator and ticket agent.

To see the different characters grotesquely funny clinging to the charged dipper set them into fits of laughter. Mike Donovan, a trainman, finally grasps the dipper and while he is twitching and twisting with pain he sees the boys with handkerchiefs stuffed into their mouths to stop their laughing.

In anger he bursts the chain and rushes into the office and makes a general rough house. During the scene the villagers come into the waiting-room and begin where Mike left off, leaving the boys down and out.

AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN

Solax Release, May 26

Lieutenant Fielding, a young officer of 9th U. S. Cavalry, returns with his regiment to Alvero, Ariz., and finds himself in command with other officers of the regiment, warmly welcomed by the ladies of the post, who have been awaiting their return. Among these are Mrs. Gary, wife of the Colonel, and her sweet little sister, Grace, for whom Fielding has a very tender spot in his heart A new Commandant has been recently appointed to the command of troop "C," and having joined while the regiment was in the field, the return of the regiment to its post affords the ladies the first opportunity to meet the new arrival.

Mrs. Gary recognizes in him an old admirer of whom she had been very fond prior to her marriage with the Colonel, who is several years her senior. The unexpected meeting results in a revival of the old friendship and an elopement is planned, which is frustrated by the efforts of Lieut. Fielding, but whose interference results, however, in placing him in a compromising position which he cannot explain without implicating the Colonel's wife. This he will not do and maintains silence, though he is placed under arrest and ordered before court-martial.

The Captain, his plans interrupted by the interference of Lieutenant Fielding, realizing that sooner or later the truth must be known and he will be dismissed from the service, determines upon flight. Fielding's little sweetheart, Grace, realizes that with the Captain gone and with her sister's lips sealed by the necessity of preserving her good name, her lover's chances for exoneration are slim. Accordingly she starts in pursuit of the Captain, heads him off with the aid of a trusty six-shooter, extorts from him a confession of what actually transpired and returns to the post, bursting in upon the court-martial with the confession which vindicates her lover, and all ends happily.

CALLED BACK

Rex Release, May 25

The battle of good woman versus bad woman, love versus desire, sin against virtue, is a world-old strife—and men's hearts are the battlefields.

Phil Thompson and his wife have not much, but they are content with the little they have. Their hut in the backwoods, each other, and their baby. In spite of the hardships and the travail and toil for their daily bread, life is a merry song with them.

Then the young wife receives a note from her sister, a woman who has seen the gayety and the misery of life, the sunlight and the shadows, a woman of the world. She writes that she is weary of chasing will-o'-the-wisp happiness, that she wants to settle down to a quiet life and a peaceful one, and asking leave to stay with them. Mrs. Thompson is reluctant to endorse the suggestion, knowing her sister's ways and weaknesses, but the husband points out that it is her duty to grant her another chance—and the invitation is sent.

For a few days after the sister's arrival, things are of an even tenor—then the usual thing occurs. The woman begins to exert her wanton wiles over the husband and the husband struggles to cast the magic spell she has wrought, but he is weak and powerless before her charms, and the inevitable result ensues. He puts all thought of wife and child from his mind and promises to fly with the sister. They arrange to go to the city, and while waiting for the train Phil hears from the station operator that the forest near his house is on fire. Phil thinks of the peril his wife and child are in; he sees a vision of his wife fighting for her baby's life and her own. Suddenly he runs toward his home, rescues his loved ones, and thanks Providence for having shown him the way.

THE RANCH TENOR

American Release, May 29

Wm. Steers, the owner of "The Bar 'L' Ranch," fell in love with young widow Smith, whose ranch adjoined his own and, knowing that she was fond of music, organized a trio composed of his foreman, a Mexican cowboy, and himself, to serenade her.

The singing of the foreman irritated the widow and she abruptly stopped the vocal efforts of the trio with a bucket of cold water. The next day she wrote the ranchman that if he wanted to serenade her he should leave that "bum" tenor at home.

Although his foreman had been with him for years he discharged him, employing in his place a young cowboy of remarkable vocal powers, and with the new tenor, his next serenade was a musical triumph. The widow was highly pleased and, as a mark of favor, gave him a rose and the trio returned home rejoicing. His happiness was short-lived, for the widow admired the new tenor and sent him a note to call upon her—alone.

When Wm. Steers called to pay his respects to the fickle widow he found her in the arms of his new foreman. Mounting his horse he goes out to seek his old foreman, and comes upon his camp on the prairie. He finds ready sympathy when he tells his troubles to his old friend and together they unite and sing "Comrades, Comrades, Ever Since We Were Boys."

RATTLESNAKES AND GUNPOWDER

American Release, May 29

The sheriff of Kickup Gulch had long been enamored of the beautiful daughter of the hotel-keeper and his suit was progressing favorably when an Eastern drummer appeared in the Gulch and started paying marked attentions to the hotel-keeper's daughter. She was very favorably impressed and, finding it difficult to choose between the two after their simultaneous proposal, decided to give them a test for bravery in order to win her hand.

The test consisted of thrusting an arm in a rattlesnake's hole and the drummer became panic-stricken, for he knew that it meant almost certain death to obey the request. The sheriff, however, knowing that rattlesnakes always avoid tobacco, sprinkled the hole with tobacco from his pouch and thrust in his arm with impunity. Of course, the lady chose the sheriff and left the crestfallen drummer to think it over.

Left to his own devices he discovers the trick played by the wily sheriff, and determines to even up the score. He effects an entrance to the general store and substitutes iron filings for the stock of giant powder.

The next day he appears at the store and makes a purchase of several pounds of his substituted giant powder. Returning to the hotel he creates a panic by spreading his powder on a paper and sitting beside it with a lighted cigar in his mouth. The frightened spectators send for the sheriff to subdue the madman, and he now appears with his fiance, gun in hand, to arrest the drummer. The drummer calmly lights a match and orders "Drop that gun or I'll drop this match," which he holds in close proximity to his fake powder. The sheriff is panic-stricken and turns in ignominious flight, leaving his fiance to her fate. The fate in store for her, however, is a complete revulsion of feeling, and she decides that Eastern wit is better than cheap heroics.

THE SHEEPMAN'S DAUGHTER

American Release, June 1

There were many deadly feuds interwoven with the history of the West, and isolated as were the pioneers in that vast country, known as the cattle range, it is natural that very few have ever come to light.

It was a case of "The survival of the fittest," and the cattlemen reigned supreme. While everywhere abounded free grass and free water, the cattlemen watched, with jealous eyes, the growing encroachments of the sheepherders for the sheep would graze the range too closely for the cattle to exist wherever the sheep had been. This picture is built around the old Chisholm Trail, and deals with a feud of this nature.

Richard Mead was a sheepherder who lived with his daughter in a hut in the mountains. He was hated by the cattlemen with a fierce, vindictive hatred, and one day, while laying in a stock of provisions at the general store, he was peremptorily ordered to quit the range. Returning to his home he tells his daughter what has happened and prepares to protect himself. The cattleman orders two men to go to his hut and put him out of the way.

In the battle that follows the sheepman is wounded and one of the cowboys killed. The surviving one returns to town for assistance and the sheepman secretes himself in the mountains. On the arrival of the posse they find the sheepman gone and force his daughter to leave also. She arrives intown to be scorned by the women and jeered by the men.

The new parson hears the insulting remarks and befriends her, offering her a home with his mother. In the meantime a cowboy has discovered the hiding place of the girl's father and comes to inform the posse and is overheard by the minister, who determines to reach the fugitive first—if he can—and assist him.

The daughter pleads to be taken along and the two set out and come upon the sheepman in his refuge in the mountains. Shortly after the posse ride in and demand the immediate surrender of the sheepman. The minister knocks the leader down and, at the point of the gun he has taken from the prostrated cattleman, preaches his first sermon, the first, perhaps, these men had heard in years.

The posse return guiltless of the sheepman's blood and the minister has settled a desperate feud, filled his church and gained a wife.

THE LOVE OF THE GYPSY GIRL

Great Northern Release, May 27

A young Count is giving a dinner, and to amuse his guests, he takes them to a gypsy encampment where some of the gypsy girls dance to entertain the young men. The Count is attracted by one of the gypsies, and falls in love with her. A litle later the girl sees the Count drive to his wedding with the daughter of a neighboring aristocrat, and she returns sorrowfully to her own people. Five years elapse, and some gypsies call on the Count when he is sitting with his wife and little daughter and ask for alms. He sends them away angrily, and they, in revenge, return and kidnap the child who is taken to the gypsy encampment. The gypsy girl recognizes the child by the father's locket which it is wearing, and when the gypsies are sleep, she slips out intending to return the child to its parents. The gypsies pursue, but the girl ferries across the stream and safely reaches the Count's estate. She finds the sorrowing parents, and the father is filled with contrition on discovering that the woman he has wronged has returned good for evil.

"THE BIRTH MARK"

Yankee Release, May 29th

The story opens in England where George Raven and his pretty wife, Polly, and their infant boy dwell in a neat lodge on a gentleman's estate. George is head hostler who perhaps at time pays more attention to his horses than he does to Polly. A young gentleman rake, named Duke Norman, has become attracted by Polly's big black eyes, and often stops for a chat while George is busy about the stables.

One day she is showing Duke the wonderful and most curious birthmark upon the baby's right shoulder, when George enters unseen. After Duke leaves the window in which he was leaning in at the time, George goes into a rage and abuses his wife; after this he treats her very coldly and will not even speak to her until at last she decides to leave him and go to America, which she does, taking the baby with her, and leaving a note to the effect that as he does not love her she has taken this course.

George on finding the note realizes his folly, and believing that Duke was the main cause of her leaving him, vows to hunt him down and kill him, and so he starts for the new world where he travels from place to place hunting for some clue of the wife and child and the man he blames. At last his money gives out and he is forced to give up the hunt, and drifting out into the Canadian Northwest, he enlists in the Royal Mounted Police and soon becomes known as the most daring and fearless man on the force. In the meantime Polly has secured a divorce and in after years marries Duke Norman, and they live together under the name of Norton. The infant with the strange birthmark has grown into manhood and has formed a strong attachment for Marie Du Bois, the daughter of a famous trapper in that district.

One day a renegade Indian enters the trading post with a pelt to sell. Duke, who has been drinking, abuses the Indian, throwing the pelt in his face and kicking him out, all because the Indian asked too much for the pelt. The Indian vows vengeance.

Shortly after this the little daughter of the trapper enters and Duke attempts to make free with her. Just as soon as Ned, Duke's stepsson, enters, there is a scene as Ned throws his stepfather aside and berates him. The stepfather orders Ned from the house despite the pleading of the boy's mother (Polly). The trapper (Du Bois), learning of the quarrel through his daughter, invites Ned to live with him, to be his partner and hunt together, which the boy joyfully accepts. Soon after this the Indian, whom Duke had kicked out, gets Duke unawares and shooting through the window mortally wounds the trader. The Sheriff

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, MAY 20TH

THE VOICE OF CONSCIENCE

A POWERFUL AND VIVID STORY ADMIRABLY TOLD. LENGTH 786 FEET

BERN

"THE CITY BEAUTIFUL" (SWITZERLAND)—SCENIC. LENGTH—204 FEET

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, MAY 27TH

THE LOVE OF A GYPSY GIRL

FEATURE DRAMA

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

ALL UP-TO-DATE INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT—THE FILMS THAT SATISFY

is sent for and Duke makes a dying statement to him, that he had quarreled with Ned, his stepson, and that it was he that shot him. The trapper's daughter hearing of this, hastens to her home and pleads with Ned to cross the border into Canada and remain there until the guilty person was found or the trouble blew over. Ned goes, against his will. Soon after the Sheriff learns of his flight and wires Ned's description to the Commander of the Royal Police to be on the lookout for Ned. The Commander on receiving this dispatch sends for Raven, his trusted officer, and details him on the job.

Du Bois, the trapper, comes upon the Indian who did the shooting; the Indian was suffering with cold and Du Bois carries him to his home and nurses him back to health; the Indian then becomes the devoted slave of the trapper and his daughter.

Ned goes to the general store for a letter from the trapper's daughter. While the postman is hunting for the letter, Raven has stepped up unseen and overhears the name and quietly locks the door and touching Ned on the shoulder, says "Your name is Norton." Ned strikes the officer and makes his escape through the window; the officer staggers to his feet and shoots after him. The boy makes for his boarding place and pleads with the woman to hide him, which she does in a clothes press. The officer enters, demanding the boy, she pleads with him, but to no avail; he gives the boy ten seconds to come out of his hiding place, at the end of which time he shoots him, wounding him. The officer goes to the lad and opens his shirt to see how badly he is hurt, and is surprised when he sees the strange birthmark. At first the officer can't realize, but it dawns upon him that no child but his own was ever marked in this manner.

By a strange coincidence Raven's second term of enlistment in the Royal Mounted had expired some two days prior to taking consignment of capturing the lad, so torn between two conflicting conditions he does not know which path to take—but blood is thicker than water—besides, his baby was not to blame for leaving him—so taking advantage of his expired term he hands in a letter to his Commander stating that as his term had expired he wishes to be relieved.

The Indian makes a full confession of the shooting and later on the boy leads his mother to the trapper's home where his father is staying, and holding her hand out to him he says "Father, here is my mother." Raven turns, sees his wife, both embrace and everything ends happily.

"HIS ROMANCE"

Yankee Release, June 2nd

This is a strong romantic tale among the fisherfolk showing the picturesque rocky coast with its mighty elevated pinnacles and dangerous footings.

A young student is visiting the coast and while climbing the rocks misses his footing and falls from an immense height. His fall is broken by scrub cedars that grow among the rocks, where he is found by a young fishermaid, who goes for help, and he is carried to her father's home and cared for.

The girl is loved by a young fisherman. In a month the young student is able to be about and in recognition of the girl's kind service, he presents her with a ring. As the young student reads to the girl daily, love for him has awakened in her, but through a chain of circumstances she is brought to realize that he is not for her, even though he professes to love her. She is true to her first love, the young fisherman, and returns the ring to the student. The young student realizes the girl's feelings, and leaving his book which he had read for her, with a note of fond remembrances and good wishes for her future, and with a last look through the window where the girl and her lover are seated, he turns away to face the city life again, leaving the girl safe in the keeping of her own people.

THE PERIL OF DIAZ

Champion Release, May 29th

Again the world's eye is directed at the United States troops now patrolling the Mexican border. The greatest Foreign Powers are anxiously awaiting action on the part of the States, but as yet Congress is only the scene of heated debates; some members agitating an invasion of that turbulent territory, and others urging peace or neutrality.

Above the smoke of controversy, the President, serenely and seemingly preserves an air of silent composure, but, nevertheless, with an ever watchful eye, reviewing the situations in its fluctuating state. Tense feeling prevails amongst Americans, brought on and inspired by the yellow journals, advocating American intervention, and by others holding a negative view of the disturbance.

However, should we have to enter Mexico, the Champion Film pictures the uniform preparations instituted by the War Department and the readiness of our Army for such emergencies. Arriving at the point of mobilization, we find all branches of the service—soldiers clad in khaki campaign uniforms—the Infantry, Cavalry and Artillery—not excluding those daring, hard-working Signal Corps troops, exercising and manoeuvering, and wheeling in the various intricate formations in which United States troops are so ably drilled.

Then, presuming that orders had been issued, we see Army Engineers engaged in throwing pontoon bridges across the river, bordering the head of action, for the crossing of regiments into the objective country. This movement appears so realistic as to momentarily deceive the spectator into accepting its motive as actual. The clever tactics adopted in the military drills and the fine appearance of the Army excite respect and admiration.

Not least, however, we view the hungry boys at Mess, partaking of their rations. Their healthy and hearty participation bear testimony to the watchfulness of the Government.

And this grand display of military strength is what heightens the citizen's feelings and fills his countenance with patriotic ardor for his national Flag. As a fitting ending to this photo play of exceptionally interesting and educationally value, the wind-up displays the Colonial Flag dissolving into the Bars and Stripes of the Southern Confederacy, and lastly encompassed by the emblem of our grand Union, the Stars and Stripes.

"HOW HE REDEEMED HIMSELF"

Champion Release, May 31st

In the breast of every wicked man there is always working a leaven of good.

Gerald Rodgers, the outlaw, has been stung by his conscience again and again, until one day he resolved to throw over the old life and make a start, at least, at a new and better one. So he applied for a job on the ranch of old Ted. Tovelt, a square man and stern, but big hearted and generous to a fault.

But Ted, knowing Rodgers' record, turned him down, or would have done so had not his daughter, Alice, interfered. The fine looking form of the outlaw appealed to her woman's heart, for Gerald was a fellow who looked good to most women; and her appealing eyes worked havoc on Gerald, and he was more than ever determined to lead a good life.

After a month's labor, Gerald went off to purchase a new outfit, promising to return, but, alas! old companionships are hard things to break with; hut, although Gerald fell temporarily from grace, even these he eventually overcame.

But the old man had now lost faith in him, and cast him off, on his return, in spite of his daughter's pleadings for mercy and forgiveness for him. But she took him back, and until some means could be devised to reach Ted's heart, she hid him in the stable and here is how fate is very kind to us at times:

In the stable came two robbers. They secreted themselves, having first decoyed the Ranchman from the house hy a fake letter from a cattleman. But, hefore leaving, Ted Tovelt had placed his wad in a strong hox which he later had entrusted to the keeping of Alice.

Upon his departure the burglars entered the house and levelled their guns at the girl, hut Gerald was right there at their heels, and the next moment, heeled with their firearms, he had them "hors de combat," or as the Westerners would put it; "Unhorsed and hands up."

At this juncture the old man came in, and seeing Gerald with guns raised in hold-up fashion, hut not seeing the outlaws, he covers him and fires, hut the girl is quick and like a flash throws up her father's hand and saves Gerald's life, thus returning the compliment he had paid her. Can anyone wonder that the father, realizing his blunder, and recognizing the ex-outlaw's undoubted claim, acknowledges its validity; that is to say, his right as an honest man, and as such he gave him his daughter, for was it not largely through her that he redeemed himself.

INDEPENDENT RELEASES

MONDAY: American, Champion, Eclair, Imp, Yankee.

TUESDAY: Bison, Powers, Thanhouser.

WEDNESDAY: Ambrcsio, Champion, Nestor, Reliance, Solax.

THURSDAY: American, Imp, Itala, Rex.

FRIDAY: Biscn, Lux, Sclax, Thanhouser, Yankee.

SATURDAY: Great Northern, Itala, Powers, Reliance.

Two Yankee Features

MONDAY, MAY 29TH

"THE BIRTH MARK"

A powerful dramatic production of the great Northwest

FRIDAY, JUNE 2ND

"HIS ROMANCE"

A picturesque romance among the fisherfolk

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

344 East 32d St., New York City

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

EVERY EXHIBITOR reads the Moving Picture News. ADVERTISEMENTS BRING RESULTS

SPECIAL

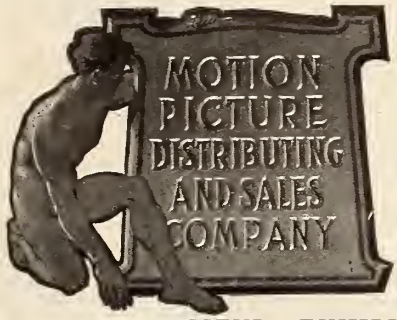
Right up to the minute—We made last Saturday 1200 ft. of the world's best organized and trained police force. This film has been boiled down to

700 FEET--REGULAR PRICE

THE NEW YORK POLICE

Orders filled in turn as received.

It shows Mayor Gaynor decorating for bravery fine looking men who risked their lives in the past year for their fellow men; then the magnificently drilled patrolmen, mounted police, bicycle police, bloodhound squad and platoon after platoon of the tall, handsome, well-built guardians of the peace in the commercial capital of the world, all passing in review before Governor DIX, MAYOR GAYNOR, POLICE COMMISSIONER CROPSEY, GENERAL GRANT and many other city, state, national and foreign notables.



LOOK

LISTEN

HOW SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS HAVE MADE MONEY AND HOW UNSUCCESSFUL CAN DO THE SAME.

LOOK AT THIS

UNEXCELLED PROGRAM

MONDAY	IMP	ECLAIR	YANKEE
	AMERICAN	CHAMPION
TUESDAY	THANHOUSER	BISON	POWERS
WEDNESDAY	CHAMPION	SOLAX	RELIANCE
	AMBROSIO	NESTOR
THURSDAY	IMP	AMERICAN	ITALA REX
FRIDAY	BISON	SOLAX	LUX
	THANHOUSER
SATURDAY	POWERS	ITALA
	GREAT NORTHERN	RELIANCE

COUNT THEM--TWENTY-SIX

WEEKLY RELEASES.

Comprising the cream of American and European films.

THEY ARE UNFAILING BUSINESS GETTERS.

LISTEN TO THIS

It is our business to help your business and in that we are past masters.

Insist on showing films from the above program in your theater and you will play to packed houses.

If the exchange you are now dealing with does not supply you with these films write or wire us at once and we will put you in touch with the buying exchanges nearest to you.

ORIGINAL PRINTS

Of this unexcelled program can be obtained in the United States and Canada only from exchanges purchasing film through

Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.

111 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

FILM CHARTS

COMMENTS ON THE RUNNING OF RELEASES OF THE WEEK, AS SEEN FROM THE FOURTEENTH STREET, UNIQUE, COMEDY AND SALES COMPANY STANDS

13 DRAMATIC TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
The Lighthouse Keeper	IMP	THURS., MAY 18...	Jealousy	Retribution...	There are plenty of girls in the sea of "yes"	Big	Tom and Polly at the mercy of the mad sea	1
In the Nick of Time	SOLAX	FRI., MAY 19...	Arizona	Arizona	Think of love if you must, but look around	Big	Lieut. King dangling over a deep ravine	1
The Colonel and the King	THANHOUSER..	TUES., MAY 16...	Kingship	Americanism.	O, ye kings, despair not; America is here	Big	When the Little king becomes a plain American	1
The Harvest	RELIANCE..	WED., MAY 17...	Letter	Repulse	Stick to your wife and leave thy neighbor's alone..	Good	The Shielding of a woman	2
The Voice of His Conscience	GREAT NORTH...	SAT., MAY 20...	Dismissal	Death	Have nothing to do with remorse.....—it's killing	Quiet	The final one	2
Sonata of Souls	RELIANCE..	SAT., MAY 20...	Music	Sobs	Genius is often found in lowly places...	Good	The delirium	2
The Master and the Man	IMP	MON., MAY 15...	Liberty	Prison	Even crooks can be self-sacrificing	Tense	More than one	3
Little Mother	ITALA	THUR., MAY 18...	Pathos	Pathos	Itala delivers the goods	Warm	All the pathetic ones	3

Certainly "Lighthouse Keeper," the Imp entry, and those flying the Thanhouser and Solax colors, showed some form. Small wonder the Independent exhibitors are looking happy even in the hot days. Pictures like "The Harvest" will bring the crowds; so will "Voice of His Conscience" and "Master and Man." "Little Mother" was coached by a director who knows his business. Here's to another fast week on this interesting track!

14 COMEDY TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
An Exception to the Rule	REX	THURS., MAY 18...	Mischief	Laughter	Wear no white flower on your coat lapel	Big	Jack's final appearance	1
His Second Choice..	NESTOR	WED., MAY 17...	City	Country	There are pretty girls galore in New York; but, oh, you village maidens...	Big	The meeting in the lane and many others	1
Engaged in Spite of Themselves	ECLAIR	MON., MAY 15...	Plan	Materialization	Hands off! The young people know their business....	Warm	All the loving ones.	2
His Dumb Wife....	SOLAX	WED., MAY 17...	Dumb	Deaf	Always leave well enough alone.....	Fine	Mrs. Dumb's first speech — and the last	2
Two Girls Love Foolshead	ITALA	SAT., MAY 20...	Two	Three	Two girls can't keep Foolshead quiet...	Good	The fool ones	3
A Matrimonial Surprise	POWERS	TUES., MAY 16...	Wise	Bawling	They do come back at times	Good	Minding the twins..	3
Bill at Work	LUX	FRI., MAY 19...	Sleep	Waking	Beware of dreams..	Fair	The kicking one....	4
All Through a Rat..	LUX	FRI., MAY 19...	Noise	Rat	Why not a rat?.....	Fair	Discovering the rat.	4

Here is the loveliest bunch of comedy steppers that ever appeared on our track and it gives the lie direct to those who cannot or will not find comedy. Though Rex may be termed "an exception to the rule," Nestor's "Second Choice" was considered first by many. Solax's entry ran strong and steady and lost first honors by a tongue. Eclair, "in spite" of the speedy track, finished well in front with Foolshead trying to pull away from "A Matrimonial Surprise." Lux also ran—and ran mighty well.

15 WESTERN TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
The Ranchman's Vengeance	AMERICAN..	MON., MAY 15...	Ranch	Tomb	Be kind to strangers and watch them..	Impressive ..	The hand-to-hand fight over the cliff	1
A Cowboy's Sacrifice	AMERICAN..	THURS., MAY 18...	Hope	Happiness ..	It's grand to shoulder another's crimes, but—	Big	The near-lynching of an innocent man..	1
The Broncho Buster's Rival....	BISON	TUES., MAY 16...	Buster	Busted	What fools these jealous mortals be	Warm	The chase over the chasm	1
Circle C's New Boss	CHAMPION..	WED., MAY 17...	East	West	Be good and you'll win out — sometimes	Good	The scrap between King and Newton.	2
An Indian Brave's Conversion	YANKEE	MON., MAY 15...	Conversion	Confession ..	Many a white heart beats under a red skin	Good	The Indian's Confession	2
Oklahoma (with "A Matrimonial Surprise"—Comedy)	POWERS	TUES., MAY 16...	Kindness	Lottery	The right girl can turn a bandit into a benedict	Good	The Bandit winning the girl	3
The Cheyenne Medicine Man	BISON	FRI., MAY 19...	Sale	Bliss	Feathers are not as light as they seem	Good	Big Feather's return	3

The fastest kind of a race was put up on this track. The Bison and the two Americans brought home the bacon. The race was the most nip-and-tuck ever seen on any film track with many thinking "Circle C's New Boss" under the wire with the leaders; but the judges decided it to be second together with the Yank "Medicine Man" and "Oklahoma" were found to be right after them.

Copyrighted by Charles Reynolds, 1911

FILM CHARTS--Continued

16 EDUCATIONAL TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Grenadier Roland...	AMBROSIO..	WED., MAY 17...	Martial	Spectacular..	Don't monkey with Moscow	Impressive...	A cascade of them; one bigger than the other.....	1
Lady Clare.....	THAN-HOUSER..	FRI., MAY 19...	Deception ...	Truth	Love levels everything	Fine	The last one.....	1
The Banana Planter's Peril	YANKEE ...	FRI., MAY 19...	Banana	Blessing	It pays to help thy neighbor	Big	The priest overpowering the mob with the holy cross....	2
Gen. Marion, the Swamp Fox.....	CHAMPION.	MON., MAY 15...	War	Peace	Arbitration is better than war, because war is ——!... ..	Enthusiastic..	All the strenuous ones — and there were quite a few.	2
Gunga Din.....	POWERS ...	SAT., MAY 20...	Gunga	Din	Be a G. Din and Kipling will do the rest	Good	Gunga Din is "Powerized" in one big moment	3
Berne	GREAT NORTH ...	SAT., MAY 20...	Scenes	Sights	A nickel or a dime for a trip to Switzerland	Good	The appearance of rosy-cheeked Bernese girls.....	3

Educators, cranks on education, lovers of educational film, etc., will rejoice over this week's splendid showing. Historical, industrial, classic and scenic entries—all deserving unstinted commendation. Ambrosio's "Grenadier Roland," a veritable film giant, easily wins the honors for Italy. "Lady Clare's" undefinable charm will add materially to Thanhouser's excellent reputation; while the Champion's "Gen. Marion" will be classed "With Stonewall Jackson." The banana industry as shown by the Yankee entry, is worthy of more than passing notice, and the tour of Berne is a delight.

EXHIBITORS WATCH THESE CHARTS EVERY WEEK
INTERESTING REVIEWS OF INDEPENDENT FILMS

NORDISK FILM TIDNING

The first trade paper in Scandinavia.
Best advertising medium in North Europe.
Subscription 6 shillings.
Sample copy free upon request.

Editor, A. SEABURY, Post Box 163, Stockholm, Sweden.

DER KINEMATOGRAPH, DUSSELDORF

The leading Organ for the Motion Picture Trade in Germany.
Special Supplement for Talking Machines, &c.
Published every Wednesday. Annual Subscription 11/- Post Free.
Advertisements (4 columns to page); 2s. 6d. per inch. Situations Wanted, 1½d. per line.
Reduced Price for a Series of Insertions.
Publisher—Ed. LINTZ. Chief Editor—EMIL PERLMANN.

ADVERTISERS GET RESULTS
FROM THE MOVING PICTURE NEWS The Only Educational Paper in the Industry

ITS PERFECT PICTURES LEASE ARTICULAR EOPLE

Its perfect construction pleases particular users.
The superior workmanship of the MOTIOGRAPH long ago placed it far in advance of all others.
It is the operator's friend.

AGENTS { J. H. HALLBERG, 36 E. 23RD ST., NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
E. H. KEMP, 833 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
J. FRANK BROCKLISS, LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO., 564 West Randolph St., CHICAGO, ILL.

OFFICER, THEY'RE OUT AGAIN!!
Yes, They Come Out Weekly On REXDAY, THURSDAY

Still Another One!

(MY GAWD! WILL THEY NEVER STOP?)

May 25th is the Day, Brothers.
It is called

"CALLED BACK"

And deals with the fire of human hearts and of how a forest fire CALLED BACK a husband and father to wife and child. It depicts the world-old battle of love versus desire, sin versus virtue, in the end love and virtue win, as they always do, and besides all this

A REALISTIC FOREST FIRE!

"CALLED BACK"

WILL BE "CALLED BACK" FOR REPEAT.

REX

Rex KNOWHOW MFG. CO.

573-579 ELEVENTH AVE.,
NEW YORK CITY.

REX "CALLED BACK"-BONE OF THE INDEPENDENTS

MOVING PICTURES OF VALLEY SCENES

Moving pictures are to be shown at the Avenue Theater as an illustration to members of the Commercial Club of the kind of publicity offered this locality by the Western State Illustrating Company, of Seattle. Preceding the display there will be a meeting at the Commercial Club of the publicity committee which will hear the proposition of H. S. Merritt and H. J. Thomas, the representatives of the Seattle house; W. H. Harbeck, official photographer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, will also be here.

The proposition is to advertise the Yakima country by means of free moving pictures, showing town and country and the various and varied activities of the people during seed time and harvest. It is expected to get a sufficient number of commercial organizations willing to contribute to meet the expense of the undertaking and then, in the East, to show the pictures at each and every place where it is possible to attract or make use of a crowd already attracted. The exhibition this morning is an illustration of the kind of work proposed.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Frank Nowak, 1584 E. Genesee street, is erecting a one-story theater to cost $1,000.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Colonel Edward Hart has purchased the Lyceum Theater at Central and Fifth avenues and will establish a theater for the colored folks.

Bradford, Pa.—The Mt. Jewitt Opera House was completely destroyed by fire. Loss is $15,000.

Bedford, Ia.—The old Commercial Hotel is being torn down to make room for a new opera house to cost $20,000.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Frank L. Talbot Theater Co. will erect a new theater at 15-17-19-21 S. Sixth street.

Santa Monica, Cal.—Miles and Tegner will erect a new theater on Oregon avenue.

New York, N. Y.—Dan W. McCahill has prepared plans for a new theater to be erected at Bathgate avenue and 174th street.

Atlantic, N. J.—Walter Martin has sold the Lyric Theater at 1800 Atlantic avenue to Beard & Avadon.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

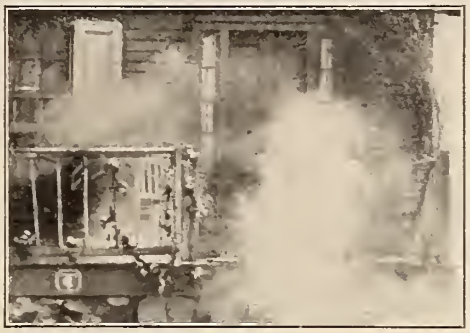
W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.

228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Telephone: 3790 Oxford

SCENES FROM "FLAMES AND FORTUNE" (Thanhouser)

THE TREASURE HIDDEN



THE BLAZE STARTS

THE TOT CAUGHT

ANOTHER FIRE FILM FROM THANHOUSER

A pretty country house basks peacefully in the golden sunlight—a few minutes elapse and it is a roaring, seething furnace. The one minute you see two lovers talking pleasantly in front of the pretty manor; the next you see of them is in retreat from a mere wooden frame that belches smoke and flame. Such are the wonders that are presented to your vision through the wondrous ingenuity and enterprise of the twentieth century film producer.

A short space of years ago, when the filming of an onrushing train or a galloping squad of cavalry was considered most remarkable, the total destruction of a house for a moving picture was a feat never even dreamed of. And so you can consider "Flames and Fortune," which the Independent exhibitors should book now to secure after its release on Friday, June 16th, as a real epoch marker and something that will reflect real credit on your show-picking ability. Film men who have seen the picture call it a very masterpiece of realism, something that is easily the best film of a sensational kind that the Independent side has yet developed. The Thanhouser people, who produced the film, extend their thanks to the New Rochelle, N. Y., fire department, who kindly stood by during the burning of the house to see that the flames did not extend to adjoining property.

New York, N. Y.—Plans have been prepared by G. L. Lawrence, 2228 Broadway, for a new theater at Wadsworth avenue and 181st street to cost $50,000.

OPERATORS

We want to call special attention to our contemporaries on the other side of the herring pond. We are receiving occasionally letters from operators in England, France, and Germany, asking the possibilities for operators in America. They are tempted by seeming great salaries paid from $20 to $35 per week. It certainly seems a large sum, but the reverse is the order; $8 to $15 is a general average. Again, operators from foreign countries cannot obtain a license in New York City owing to the alien act passed in Albany last year, which bill has not yet been repealed. Will our contemporaries please prevent any from emigrating to New York just at present?

Portsmouth, O.—Devoss and Wilson are planning for the new theater of D. W. Curtis on Chillicothe street.

Red Lodge, Mont.—Arrangements have been completed by the Finnish Temperance Society for the erection of a new opera house here.

Galesburg, Ill.—A new vaudeville theater will be erected here to cost $75,000.

Marvin, S. Dak.—A new opera house is to be erected here.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A new vaudeville theater will be erected at Broad and Federal streets.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Frank G. Koenig is preparing plans for a vaudeville theater to cost $100,000 to be erected at Frankfort and Allegheny avenues.

OUR CARTOONIST, "DARIAN," HAS RETURNED FROM A RAMBLE THROUGH THE STATES, AND IN CONVERSATION WITH THE EXHIBITORS FROM MAINE TO CALIFORNIA THE ABOVE IS HIS IDEA OF THE OPINION THE "NEWS" IS HELD BY READERS.

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

	Feet
Mar. 15—Adventures of a Countryman in Town (Com.)	322
Mar. 22—Tweedledum's April Fool Joke (Com.)	900
Mar. 29—A Glimpse of Neapolitan Camorra.
Apr. 12—The Necklace Affair	950
Apr. 19—The Mute of Portici	950
May 3—Grenadier Roland	950
Apr. 26—How Winter Decorates Nature	500
Apr. 26—The Quartermaster	500
May 3—The Traces on the Snow	950
May 10—Air Bubbles	500
May 10—Tweedledum is Late	500
May 17—Grenadier Roland	950

AMERICAN.

May 1—United States Cavalry Drill (Mil.)	172
May 4—Grazy Gulch (W. Com.)	520
May 4—The Hobo's Roundup (Com.)	470
May 8—The Opium Smuggler (Dr.)	900
May 11—The Sheriff's Captive (W. Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Ranchman's Vengeance (Dr.)	1000
May 18—A Cowboy's Sacrifice (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder (W. Com.)
May 29—The Ranch Tenor (W. Com.)
June 1—The Sheepman's Daughter (W. Dr.)
June 5—A Sage Brush Phrenologist (W. Com.)
June 5—The Elopments on Double L Ranch (W. Com.)
June 8—$5,000 Reward—Dead or Alive (W. Com. Dr.)

CHAMPION.

Mar. 15—The Girl and the Oath	985
Mar. 22—The Payroll	940
Mar. 29—The Bachelor's Old Maid	1000
Apr. 5—The Price He Paid	975
Apr. 12—Men of the West	980
Apr. 17—With Stonewall Jackson	960
Apr. 19—A Halfbreed's Courage	950
Apr. 24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days	965
Apr. 26—She Wanted a Man with Brains	970
May 1—Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia	1000
May 3—Out of the Dark	990
May 8—Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California	1000
May 10—Making a Man of His Son	910
May 15—Gen. Marion—The Swamp Fox	950
May 17—Circle C's New Boss	950
May 22—With Sheridan at Murfreesboro (Dr.)	950
May 24—In the Great Big West (Dr.)	950

ECLAIR

Mar. 6—King Phillip the Fair and the Templars	975
Mar. 13—An Unforeseen Introduction (C.)	470
Mar. 13—A Day of Storms (Com.)	430
Mar. 20—Cain (Dr.)	790
Mar. 20—The Rock Climbers (Scenic)	195
Mar. 27—Hurrah!Hurrah! Let Us Marry!	975
Apr. 3—A Strike in the "Make Young" Business	534
Apr. 3—Mr. Nearsight's Marriage	426
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
May 8—A Village Flirt (Com.)	910
May 15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.)	910
May 22—A Mother's Distress	430
May 29—The Two Gardeners (Com.)	940

GREAT NORTHERN.

Feb. 18—The Life of a Muschik
Feb. 18—The False Alarm
Feb. 25—His Great Duty (Dr.)
Mar. 4—The Rival Servants (Dr.)
Mar. 11—The Son of the Executioner (Dr.)
Mar. 18—Between Love and Duty (Dr.)
Mar. 18—Life and People South of the Equator (Scenic)
Mar. 25—The Fakir's New Servant (Com.)
Mar. 25—Troubles of a Trip (Com.)
Apr. 1—A Victim of His Double (Dr.)
Apr. 8—A Confidence Trick
Apr. 15—Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr. 22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)
Apr. 29—The Cossack Duke (Dr.)	894
May 6—The Lucky Banana Seller (Com.)
May 6—A Would-be Sportsman (Com.)
May 13—The Nun (Dr.)
May 20—The Voice of Conscience (Dr.)	786
May 20—Berne (Switzerland) (Sc.)	204

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Mar. 9—The Message in the Bottle (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 13—The Secret of the Palm (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 16—The Fishermaid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 20—In Old Madrid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 27—Sweet Memories (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr. 6—The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 10—A Good Cigar
Apr. 10—A Faithless Man
Apr. 13—The Storm
Apr. 20—The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr. 24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000
May 1—Second Sight (Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
May 8—Four Lives (Dr.)	300
May 8—The Fair Dentist (Com.)	700
May 11—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Master and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Lighthouse Keeper (Dr.)	1000
May 22—The Forged Despatch (Dr.)	1000
May 25—The Minor Chord (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

Mar. 16—A Dog and Two Mistresses	986
Mar. 18—Foolshead in Soiree (Com.)
Mar. 18—Toto on the State (Com.)
Mar. 23—Waiting for the Midnight Express.	900
Mar. 25—Toto Wants to Get Thinner	500
Mar. 25—Queen of the Sea	500
Apr. 1—Foolshead Goes to See a Cockfight.
Apr. 8—Foolshead—Lady of Company
Apr. 15—The Fall of Troy
Apr. 22—Marriage Midst the Sausages (Com.)	500
Apr. 22—Foolshead — Wrangler for Love (Com.)	500
Apr. 27—Little Lewis Toy (Dr.)	950
Apr. 29—Foolshead Telegraph Boy	500
Apr. 29—The Bottle of Milk (Com.)	500
May 4—The Cry of the Native Country (Dr.)	950
May 6—Foolshead—Life Insurance Agent (Com.)	950
May 6—The Fountains of Rome
May 11—The Marchioness of Ansperti (Dr.)	950
May 13—Marriage Advertisement (Com.)	500
May 13—Foolshead Has Lost a Needle (C.)	500
May 18—Little Mother	950
May 20—Two Girls Love Foolshead (Com.)
May 26—The Little Rider (Dr.)

LUX.

By Prieur.

Mar. 17—Bill Has Kleptomania (Com.)	380
Mar. 24—Cowboy Friendship (Dr.)	636
Mar. 24—Edith Has Some Sport (Com.)	322
Mar. 31—The Greed of Gain (Dr.)	652
Mar. 31—He Wanted a Hoop (Com.)	281
Apr. 7—Bill's Little Plan (Com.)	386
Apr. 7—A Desperado (Dr.)	586
Apr. 14—Bill and the Greasy Pole (Com.)	432
Apr. 14—They Did Not Budge (Com.)	501
Apr. 21—Dr. Grant's Wonderful Discovery (Dr.)	885
Apr. 28—Naughty Miss Edith (Com.)	472
Apr. 28—Bill's Garden (Com.)	419
May 5—Bill as a Toreador (Com.)	419
May 5—Fashion and Its Consequence (Com.)	426
May 12—The Postmistress (Dr.)	700
May 12—A Walk in Tunis	252
May 19—Bill at Work (Com.)	367
May 19—All Through a Rat (Com.)	475
May 26—The Two Cockades (Dr.)	698
May 26—Tidying Up Paris (Com.)	268

NESTOR FILM CO.

Jan. 25—New Minister
Feb. 1—The Bridal Trail
Feb. 8—The Transgressor
Feb. 15—The Light Beyond
Feb. 22—His Father's House (Dr.)
Mar. 1—The Professor's Romance (C.-D.)	990
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks (Dr.)
Mar. 15—Was It Worth While? (Dr.)
Mar. 22—Could You Blame Him? (Com.)
Mar. 29—The Truth (Dr.)
Apr. 5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr. 12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr. 19—The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr. 26—His Wife (Dr.)
May 3—The Other Man (Dr.)
May 10—After Twenty Years (Dr.)
May 17—His Second Choice (Com.)
May 24—At Panther Creek (Dr.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Mar. 7—Dick Farrell's Prize
Mar. 10—Her Prisoner (Dr.)
Mar. 14—Starlight the Squaw (Dr.)
Mar. 17—Sacrifice of Silver Cloud (Dr.)
Mar. 21—Was He Justified? (Dr.)	900
Mar. 24—The Cowboy's Waif (Dr.)	900
Mar. 28—An Indian Nemesis (Dr.)
Mar. 31—The Red Avenger (Dr.)
Apr. 4—At Bar U Ranch (Dr.)
Apr. 7—Avery's Dream (Com.)
Apr. 11—An Indian's Mistake	950
Apr. 14—A Man of Honor	950
Apr. 18—Return of Company D (Dr.)	950
Apr. 21—A Cowboy for a Day (Com.)	950
May 2—Shifty's Claim (W. Com. Dr.)	950
May 5—A Knight of the Trail	950
May 9—The Crow Chief's Defeat (Dr.)	950
May 12—The Foreman's Bride (Com. Dr.)	950
May 16—The Broncho Buster's Rival
May 19—The Cheyenne Medicine Man

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Apr. 11—How the Doctor Made Good
Apr. 11—Reclamation
Apr. 15—At the Window
Apr. 18—Copper Wit (Com.)
Apr. 18—The Wine Harvest
Apr. 22—The Last Rose
Apr. 25—A Day with an English Bargeman (Com.)
Apr. 25—Melody of Fate (Dr.)
Apr. 29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.)
May 2—The Crisis (Dr.)
May 2—The Joys of Persecution (Com.)
May 6—The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)
May 9—The Four of Us (Com.)
May 9—Contagion (Com.)
May 13—As Your Hair Grows Whiter (Dr.)
May 16—Oklahoma (Dr.)
May 16—A Matrimonial Surprise (Com.)
May 20—Gunga Din (Dr.)

RELIANCE

Apr. 15—Her Mother's Love	950
Apr. 19—A Tale of Ebon Tints (Com.)	950
Apr. 22—In the Tepee's Light (Dr.)	950
Apr. 26—Vengeance Hath Been Had (Dr.)	950
Apr. 29—Locked Out (Dr.)	950
May 3—Such is the Kingdom	950
May 6—Over the Shading Edge (Dr.)	950
May 10—A Left Hook (Com.)	950
May 13—The Conflict	950
May 17—The Harvest (Dr.)	950
May 20—A Sonata of Souls
May 24—There's Many a Slip

REX

Mar. 23—Five Hours
Mar. 30—As Ye Sow
Apr. 5—"The Heiress" (Com.)	975
Apr. 13—"The Little Major" (Dr.)	960
Apr. 20—A Daughter of the Revolution (Dr.)
Apr. 27—The Realization (Dr.)
May 4—The Ultimate Sacrifice
May 11—The Guardsman (Dr.)
May 18—An Exception to the Rule (Com.)

SOLAX COMPANY

Apr. 14—The Little Flower Girl (Dr.)
Apr. 19—The Old Excuse (Com.)
Apr. 21—The Voice of His Conscience (Dr.)
Apr. 26—The Count of No Account (Com.)
Apr. 28—Across the Mexican Line (Military)
May 3—Sensible Dad (Com.)
May 3—Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May 5—The Somnambulist (Dr.)
May 10—Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May 17—His Dumb Wife (Com.)
May 19—In the Nick of Time (Dr.)

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Mar. 14—His Younger Brother
Mar. 17—Robert Emmett
Mar. 21—Divorce (Dr.)
Mar. 21—Waiting at the Church (Com.)
Mar. 24—The Tramp (Dr.)
Mar. 28—The Imposter	1000
Mar. 31—Silas Marner	1000
Apr. 4—Charity of the Poor (Dr.)
Apr. 7—Vindicated
Apr. 11—Velvet and Rags
Apr. 14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.)
Apr. 18—Cally's Comet (Com.)	1000
Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr. 25—Poet of the People (His.)
Apr. 28—An Elevator Romance (Com.)
May 2—The Pillars of Society (Dr.)
May 5—The Sinner (Dr.)
May 9—The Railroad Builder (Dr.)	1000
May 12—The Regimental Ball (Dr.)	1000
May 16—The Colonel and the King
May 19—Lady Clare
May 23—The Stage Child (Dr.)
May 26—Get Rick Quick (Dr.)

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Mar. 17—His Double Treasure (Dr.)
Mar. 20—The Open Gate (Dr.)
Mar. 24—Love's Ebb and Flood (Dr.)
Mar. 27—Tom and Jerry (Dr.)
Mar. 31—Her Mother's Fiance (Dr.)
Apr. 4—Secret of the Opal Mine (Dr.)
Apr. 4—The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr. 10—An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.)
Apr. 14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.)
Apr. 17—A Close Call (Dr.)
Apr. 21—The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr. 24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr. 28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May 1—A Kentucky Girl (Dr.)
May 5—Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.)
May 8—In Sunny Italy (Dr.)
May 12—The Angelus Bell (Dr.)
May 15—An Indian Brave's Conversion (Dr.)
May 19—The Banana Planter's Peril (Dr.)
May 22—The Little Western Rose (Dr.)
May 26—Thwarted by Nell Pierce (Dr.)

LICENSEES OF PATENTS CO.

BIOGRAPH

Feet

Mar. 23—The Londale Operator (Dr.)..... 998
Mar. 27—Priscilla's April Fool (Com.)..... 686
Mar. 27—Cured (Com.) 308
Mar. 30—The Spanish Gypsy (Dr.) 996
Apr. 3—Priscilla and the Umbrella (Com.)....997
Apr. 6—The Broken Cross (Dr.)..... 996
Apr. 10—The Chief's Daughter (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 13—Paradise Lost (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 17—Madam Rex (Dr.)..... 996
Apr. 20—A Knight of the Road (Dr.)..... 996
Apr. 24—His Mother's Scarf (Dr.)..... 994
Apr. 27—How She Triumphed (Com.)..... 998
May 1—The Two Sides (Dr.)..... 998
May 4—Misplaced Jealousy (Com.)..... 503
May 1—Cupid's Joke (Com.)..... 493
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.).....1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.) 1000
May 8—In the Days of '49 (Dr.)..... 995
May 11—The Country Lovers (Dr.)..... 995
May 15—The New Dress (Dr.)..... 998
May 18—The Manieure Lady (Dr.)..... 998

EDISON

Apr. 26—The Two Heroes (Com.)..... 975
Apr. 28—The Child and the Tramp (Com.)..1000
May 1—The Panama Canal in 1911..... 990
May 3—Josh and Cindy's Wedding Trip....1000
May 5—Aida (Dr.) 1000
May 9—Edna's Imprisonment (Com.)..... 975
May 10—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.) 1000
May 12—The Quarrel on the Cliff (Dr.).....1000
May 16—In the Baggage Coach Ahead (Dr.).1000
May 17—In and Around Havana, Cuba..... 450
May 17—How the Hungry Man was Fed (Com.) 550
May 19—A Case of High Treason (Dr.)....1000
May 23—Captain Nell (Dr.).....1000
May 24—Madeline's Rebellion (Com.)..... 990
May 26—Hearts and Flags (Dr.).....1000
May 30—The Niece and the Chorus Lady (Com.) 975
May 31—The Inheritance (Com.)..... 625
May 31—It Served Her Right (Com.)..... 375
June 2—A Sane Fourth of July.....1000
June 7—Father's Dress Suit (Com.)..... 500
June 6—The Cardinal's Edict (Dr.).....1000
June 7—A Lesson Learned (Dr.)..... 500
June 9—The Wager and the Wage Earners (Dr.) 1000
June 13—Her Brother's Photograph (Dr.)..1000
June 14—Heroes Three (Com.)..... 500
June 14—Mistakes Will Happen (Com.).... 500

ESSANAY FILM CO.

Mar. 25—A Thwarted Vengeance (W. Dr.)..1000
Mar. 28—Getting His Own Back (Com.) ... 600
Mar. 28—Lost: A Baby (Com.) 400
Apr. 1—Across the Plains (Dr.) 1000
Apr. 4—Caught with the Goods (Com.).....1,000
Apr. 8—The Sheriff's Chum (Dr.).....1,000
Apr. 11—An Orphan's Flight (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 18—The Bad Man's First Prayer (Dr.).1000
Apr. 18—What Happened to Auntie (Com.) 800
Apr. 18—Catching the Deep Sea Turtle (Edu.) 200
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.).1000
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.).1000
Apr. 25—The Two Mothers (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 29—What a Woman Can Do (Dr.)..... 950
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.).....1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.) 1000
May 9—Holding His Own (Com.)..... 600
May 9—The Laundry Lady's Luck (Com.).. 400
May 13—The Cow Puncher's New Love (Dr.) 1000
May 16—Wild Animals in Captivity (Edu.)..1000
May 20—"Alkali" Ike's Auto (Com.).....1000

GAUMONT

G. Kleine

Mar. 28—Family Troubles 430
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds..... 528
Apr. 1—The Secret of the Forest (Dr.).... 625
Apr. 1—Tribulations of Jiggers..... 375
Apr. 4—The Letter with the Red Seal..... 865
Apr. 4—The City of Amalfi in Italy 135
Apr. 8—The Atonement of Thais 865
Apr. 8—Italian Coast Scenes 135
Apr. 11—The Court Martial (Dr.)..... 725
Apr. 11—Picturesque Waterfalls in Northern Spain 275
Apr. 15—The Oppressor (Dr.)..... 640
Apr. 15—Jimmy the Fox (Com.)..... 380
Apr. 18—Lost Years 630
Apr. 18—Brest, a Fortified Harbor of France 370
Apr. 22—The Erring Son (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 25—The Romance of a Valet..... 510
Apr. 25—Old Folks 490
Apr. 29—A Priestess of Carthage.....1060
May 2—The Young King of Rome..... 440
May 2—Tunis, Africa, the City of White... 560
May 6—The Crusade of the Templars.....1000
May 9—Three of a Kind..... 740
May 9—Spring-Heeled Jack 245
May 13—In the Days of Nero.....1000
May 16—The Bankrupt 1000
May 20—Jimmie on a Lark..... 570
May 20—Shooting the Rapids..... 450
May 23—The Emperor's Return..... 795
May 23—Swans 205
May 24—The Gaul's Honor..... 582
May 24—On the Frontier of Thibet, Asia.. 420
May 27—Alone at Night..... 480
May 27—Jimmie the Sportsman..... 510
May 30—Science vs. Quackery..... 970
June 3—Mistrust 985
June 6—The Drawn Curtain..... 735
June 6—Chrysanthemums 240
June 10—The Love Story of a Great Actress 1000

KALEM CO.

Mar. 10—The Mission Carrier (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 15—The Driver (Educ.)..... 565
Mar. 15—The Hunter's Dream (Com.)..... 365
Mar. 17—A War Time Escape (Dr.)..... 980
Mar. 22—A Saw Mill Hero (Dr.) 960
Mar. 24—Rescued from the Desert (Dr.).... 990
Mar. 29—The Lass Who Couldn't Forget (Dr.) 960
Mar. 31—The Hero Trackwalker (Dr.)..... 950
Apr. 5—By a Woman's Wit (Dr.)..... 995
Apr. 7—Big-hearted Jim (Dr.).....1,000
Apr. 12—In Old Florida (Dr.)..... 965
Apr. 14—Slim Jim's Last Chance (Dr.)..... 970
Apr. 19—The Phoney Prince (Com.)..... 990
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.) 1000
Apr. 21—The Insurreeto (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 26—A Night and a Day (Com.)..... 995
Apr. 28—Slabsides (Dr.) 1005
May 3—The Fiddle's Requiem (Dr.).....1000
May 5—When the Dead Return (Dr.)..... 990
May 10—The Loyalty of Don Luis Verdugo (Dr.) 980
May 12—The Carnival (Dr.).....1000
May 17—A Tragedy in Toyland (Dr.)..... 940
May 19—In Blossom Time (Dr.).....1000

LUBIN

Mar. 13—The Aetress and the Singer (Com.-Dr.) 1000
Mar. 16—Mandy's Social Whirl (Com.).....1000
Mar. 20—Her Artistie Temperament (Dr.)....1000
Mar. 23—The Spinster's Legacy (Com.)..... 600
Mar. 23—Bridget and the Egg (Com.)..... 400
Mar. 27—Her Child's Honor (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 30—When Women Strike (Com.).....1000
Apr. 3—The Wife's Awakening (Dr.).....1,000
Apr. 6—His Best Girl After All (Dr.)..... 600
Apr. 6—A Visit to Nassau, Bahama (Travel) 400
Apr. 10—Opportunity and the Man (Dr.)...1000
Apr. 13—Their Mothers-in-Law (Com.).....1000
Apr. 17—The Two Fathers (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 20—Helping Him Out (Com.).....1000
Apr. 24—The Hoyden (Com.).....1000
Apr. 27—The Sheriff and the Man (Dr.)....1000
May 1—A Fascinating Bachelor (Com. Dr.).1000
May 4—The Belated Bridegroom (Com.)..1000
May 8—That Awful Brother (Com.).....1000
May 11—Drifting (Dr.) 1000
May 15—The Angels of the Slums (Dr.)....1000
May 18—Her Humble Ministry (Dr.).....1000

G. MELIES.

Mar. 24—On the Border Line..... 600
Mar. 24—Great War Game 950
Apr. 6—Her Faithful Heart 1000
Apr. 13—Jack Mason's Last Deal.....1000
Apr. 20—An Unwilling Cowboy.....
Apr. 27—The Reformation of Jack Robin...1000
May 4—Mary's Strategem 1000
May 11—The Spring Round-Up.....1000
May 18—The Redemption of Rawhide (Com.) 980
May 25—The Immortal Alamo 1000
June 1—In Time for Press.....1000
June 8—Her Spoiled Boy.....1000

PATHE FRERES

Mar. 27—The Trickster Tricked (Com.)..... 446
Mar. 29—A Fatal Resemblance (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 1—Their Mother (Dr.) 872
Apr. 1—Fred Sato and His Dog 128
Apr. 3—The Apple of His Eye 1000
Apr. 5—The Trading Stamp Mania (Com.). 990
Apr. 7—The Three Whiffles 655
Apr. 7—Native Industries in Cochin-China. 341
Apr. 8—The White Squaw 1000
Apr. 10—The Justice of Claudius..... 260
Apr. 12—A Cowboy's Adventure (Western). 364
Apr. 14—Wiffles' Home Troubles..... 440
Apr. 14—How Edam Cheese Is Made..... 430
Apr. 15—Burglar's Fee (Com.).....1,000
Apr. 17—Robert the Silent (Dr.).....1000
Apr. 19—A New Life (Dr.)..... 990
Apr. 21—Boil Your Water.....
Apr. 21—Mary Long and Sammy Short (C.) 360
Apr. 22—The Chief's Talisman (Western).. 820
Apr. 24—Lai Chyeim 997
Apr. 26—The Rival Brothers' Patriotism (Dr.) 1000
Apr. 28—Enemies 833
Apr. 28—Pastime in Chili..... 160
Apr. 29—The Foster Father (Dr.)..... 950
May 1—Forgiveness is Sweet..... 754
May 1—Scenes Along the Mekong..... 240
May 3—Indian Justice 1000
May 5—Max is Forced to Work..... 670
May 5—Through Venice 295
May 6—Short-Lived Happiness (Dr.).....1000
May 8—My Daughter 748
May 8—Over Lucerne (Switzerland) in an Airship 253
May 10—The Abernathy Kids' Rescue (Dr.). 771
May 10—The Ocean Harnessed..... 216
May 12—The Samourai's Expiation..... 640
May 12—American Beautics 351
May 13—Lucia's Broken Romance (Dr)..... 958
May 20—A Close Call.....
May 26—Semiramis .....
May 14—Leo Tolstoi .....
May 15—The Accomplice (Dr.)..... 836
May 15—Winter Sports at Lucerne..... 150
May 17—Billy in Trouble (Com.)..... 950
May 20—Paul and Francesco..... 859
May 20—The Fastest Motor Boat in the World 50
May 22—Shooting the Rapids in Japan..... 150
May 22—Boxing Match—Astrier-Quendreux.. 823
May 24—The Heart of an Indian Maid (Dr.) 990
May 26—Semiramis 945
May 27—All for Money (Dr.).....1000

SELIG

Mar. 30—1861 .....
Apr. 3—The Fortune Hunters.....
Apr. 6—Red's Conquest.....
Apr. 10—The Cowboy and the Shrew.....
Apr. 10—His Best Girl's Little Brother (Com.)..
Apr. 13—Zulu-land..... .....
Apr. 17—The Haven of Refuge.....
Apr. 20—The Mother.....
Apr. 24—Unto Us a Child Is Born.....
Apr. 27—The Witch of the Everglades.....
May 1—Her Master 1000
May 4—In Old California, When the Gringoes Came 1000
May 5—Tournament of Roses.....
May 8—Lost and Won.....1000
May 11—Back to the Primitive.....1000
May 15—Discharging the Cook (Com.).....
May 15—Dear, Kind Hubby.....
May 18—The Still Alarm.....
May 22—The Herders.....
May 23—Stability vs. Nobility.....
May 25—Jim and Joe.....

URBAN ECLIPSE

G. Kleine

Mar. 1—Beauties of Sans Souci..... 362
Mar. 8—The Fury of a Woman Scorned.... 720
Mar. 8—Beautiful Wye Valley, England.... 300
Mar. 15—Redemption 508
Mar. 15—The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond 472
Mar. 22—The Money Lender..... 688
Nemours and the Banks of the River Loing, France 320
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole 478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds..... 528
Apr. 5—At the Old Mill (Dr)..... 675
Apr. 5—Making Bamboo Hats in Java..... 325
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)..... 955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf..... 660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives 315
Apr. 19—Solving the Servant Problem (C.).. 465
Apr. 19—In the Province of Kwang Tung, China 535
Apr. 24—Herodias 955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)..... 695
May 1—The Blue Nile..... 290
Apr. 26—The Last Edict of Francis II..... 875
Apr. 26—Scenes at Colombo, Ceylon..... 125
May 3—The Page's Devotion..... 790
May 3—Wismar, Germany 210
May 10—The Traitor (Dr.)..... 620
May 10—Rubber-Neck Percy (Com.)..... 370
May 17—The Juggler's Vengeance (Dr.)... 396
May 17—Fishguard Harbor, Wales..... 600
May 31—The Musketeer..... 588
May 31—The Sleuth..... 404
June 7—The Young Interne..... 750
June 7—Heligoland, an Isle of the North Sea 250

VITAGRAPH

Mar. 4—Mammy's Ghost (Dr.)..... 985
Mar. 7—The Wild Cat Well..... 960
Mar. 10—The Bridegroom's Dilemma (Com.) 990
Mar. 11—Red Eagle 960
Mar. 14—Betty Becomes a Maid (Com.)..... 957
Mar. 17—The Aching Void (Dr.)..... 990
Mar. 18—Davy Jones, or His Wife's Husband (Com.) 977
Mar. 21—Tho' the Seas Divide..... 968
Mar. 24—The Widow Visits Sprigtown (C.). 985
Mar. 25—A Little Lad in Dixie (Dr.)..... 999
Mar. 28—Billy's Valentine (Com.)..... 995
Mar. 31—The Inherited Taint (Dr.) 1000
Apr. 1—A Republican Marriage 996
Apr. 4—Unexpected Review (Com.)..... 660
Apr. 4—Hop Picking (Indust.)..... 335
Apr. 7—The Winning of the Stepchildren (Dr.)..... 965
Apr. 8—Winsor McCay (Com.)..... 650
Apr. 8—Bob Sledding 350
Apr. 11—The Wooing of Winifred (Com.).. 988
Apr. 14—Though Your Sins be as Scarlet (Dr.) 1000
Apr. 15—Easter Babies (Com. Dr.)..... 980
Apr. 18—The Leading Lady (Com.)..... 985
Apr. 21—The Troublesome Secretaries (Com.) 990
Apr. 22—The Spirit of the Light (Dr.)..... 995
Apr. 25—A Klondike Steal (Dr.)..... 998
Apr. 28—The Peace Offering (Com.)..... 998
Apr. 29—Piccolla (Dr.) 993
May 2—The Derelict Reporter (Dr.)..... 975
May 5—Soldiers Three (Com.).....1000
May 6—Hungry Hearts (Dr.)..... 985
May 9—His Mother (Dr.)..... 995
May 12—The Welcome of the Unwelcome (Com.) 1000
May 13—Prejudice of Pierre Marie (Dr.)... 985
May 16—When a Man's Married (Com.)....1000
May 19—The Show Girl (Dr.)..... 990
May 20—Sunshine and Shadow (Dr.)..... 990

FILMS FOR RENT

Best Service -- Reasonable Prices
Machines and Accessories

T. A. MACK EXCHANGE, Room 510 70-72 Dearborn St.
NEW NO. 140 N. Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

HALLBERG

THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"

SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.

I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.

Free Catalogue No. N 1

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City.

Advertisers want results. When writing to them it is our due that you mention The Moving Picture News

THE BIGGEST FEATURE PICTURES EVER MADE

"THE COWBOY AND INDIAN FRONTIER CELEBRATION" HELD AT CHEYENNE, WYO., AND REVIEWED BY COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

3,000 feet of the greatest Wild West motion pictures in the world, showing the West as it was.

A masterpiece in photography, clear and intensely interesting throughout.

Will rent them for $10.00 a day.

Ten one-sheet colored posters free.

You pay express both ways.

Write for dates to the

TOURNAMENT FILM CO.
FRANKFORT, KY.

$ummer Dollar$

are every bit as good as winter DOLLAR$ and there's no reason on earth why you shouldn't do a rattling good business right through the hot weather. Hook up with me and you'll get films and service and ideas that will prevent that summer slump. If you are lazy with spring fever, let me help do your thinking and scheming!

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
209 Fifth St., Des Moines, Iowa.
The biggest and best film renter in the world.

NEWSY ITEMS FROM EL CAJON VALLEY

The Production Headquarters of the "Flying A" Western Aggregation

The producing force of the Western Company of the American Film Manufacturing Company has recently been augmented and its efficiency greatly improved by the addition of Mr. Allan Dwan. Mr. Dwan is well known in theatrical circles as one of the promising playwrights of the younger school. Two or three of his productions have already entertained Broadway under the management of Wm. A. Brady. The latest of his plays has been accepted by Liebler & Co. for Broadway production, during the coming season, with Walker Whiteside as the star. This production is entitled "Into the Light," and it is confidently predicted by the various critics who have seen the scenario that it undoubtedly will be accepted favorably by the theatergoing public.

Mr. Dwan's penchant, however, is moving pictures. He is not only a capable producer, but likewise originates each and every picture made by him. He is versatile in that his pictures are extremely laughable and original and his dramas invariably enthrallingly interesting.

Two negatives that we have already received from the West and which have been made under Mr. Dwan's directions are particularly notable. They are entitled "Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder" and "Elopments on Double 'L' Ranch." We know that they will both be acknowledged by the exhibitors throughout America as being the most original and funniest Western comedies ever projected by them in their theater.

El Cajon Valley, southern California, now the headquarters of the production department of the American Film Manufacturing Company, is a veritable moving picture man's paradise. It is situated about forty miles east of San Diego, and within a twenty-five mile radius of this valley the most typical, the most beautiful and withal the most original Western scenery in America is found. The territory adjacent to our headquarters, while generally extremely rugged and picturesque to a degree, is nevertheless interspersed at intervals with rolling land that is used by the ranchers as pasture and grazing land for their cattle.

Thirty miles still further east and 2,000 feet lower in altitude than the El Cajon Valley is the Great American Desert. In this section called the Imperial Valley the mountain peaks, the canyons and the desert lands, the range country and the typical ranch life in and around our new headquarters in the West assure the picture-going public of a treat in cowboy films, such as they have not experienced in months. The fact that a moving picture camera has never been in this portion of the country prior to the advent of the American Film Manufacturing Company will lend the added attraction of originality to the backgrounds of the "Flying A Cowboy" stories that undoubtedly will place them immediately to the forefront in point of popularity with the exhibitors and their patrons.

Warren Kerrigan, ordinarily termed "the handsomest lead in moving pictures," and who is at present playing the leading roles in our Western Stock Company, has greatly surprised a goodly number of his admirers through the medium of his exceedingly capable horsemanship.

Mr. Kerrigan was born and raised in Kentucky and virtually lived in a saddle during all of his early life. Upon entering his theatrical career his love of horse flesh, born and bred in his bone in the blue grass regions of Kentucky, still remained. His extremely attractive presence in Western garb won him many laurels; he being cast for important parts in some of the most popular and successful Western dramas staged within the last few years. Upon taking up the moving picture business as a profession, his worth as a Western actor was not considered, and for three successive years he has been starred in studio productions.

Upon the formation of our Western Company we discussed, with Mr. Kerrigan, the possibility of our placing him in leading roles in our Western productions. He assured us of his capability, but, in spite of his assurance, he was included in our Western Company with a certain amount of misgiving on our part. Our aggregation included such good horsemen that we were of the opinion possibly a comparison of Mr. Kerrigan's horsemanship with that of the native Westerners would prove to be to his disadvantage. We were pleasantly surprised. Mr. Kerrigan is undoubtedly the best horseman, the best rider and the best appearing Westerner in the entire company. He is a veritable Centaur and we predict that he will be acclaimed the most popular Western lead in moving picturedom within a very short while.

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"All Wise Independents Buy and Boost Flying A Cowboy Pictures"

RELEASE OF MONDAY, MAY 22ND

"BRANDING A BAD MAN"
"A WESTERN DREAM"

Two Dashing, Rearing, Rousing Western Screams. Cowboys cutting-up. Cowboys everywhere and everywhere a laugh. Two on one reel. Both better than the other one.

SCENE FROM "BRANDING A BAD MAN"

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, MAY 25TH

"A TROOPER'S HEART"
"A Daughter of Liberty"

"A TROOPER'S HEART" is a story woven around the American Army on the Mexican Border. Extremely sensational. A regular army cavalry charge that will bring your audience out of their seats.

"A DAUGHTER OF LIBERTY" is reminiscent of Colonial days and is an exceedingly strong, interesting Drama.

BOOK THEM BOTH FOR DECORATION DAY.

SCENE FROM "A TROOPER'S HEART"

COMING

RELEASE OF MONDAY, MAY 29TH
Western Comedy—Split Reel.

"RATTLESNAKES AND GUNPOWDER"
"THE RANCH TENOR"

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JUNE 1ST
Western Drama—An Epic of the Range

"THE SHEEPMAN'S DAUGHTER"

American Film Mfg. Co., Bank Floor, Ashland Block CHICAGO, ILLS.

ARE YOU GETTING TWO FLYING A COWBOY FILMS EACH WEEK?

WANTED

FIRST CLASS MOVING PICTURE MACHINE REPAIR MAN

Must have a high-class reference. Salary no object. State full particulars first letter. Address

ROSE CITY FILM EXCHANGE, Portland, Ore.

ANDREWS PICTURES, Ltd.

Have been granted some exclusive positions for cinematographing THEIR MAJESTIES' CORONATION PROCESSION on June 22nd next.

Approximate length 650 feet. Code word, "Corona"

Also the ROYAL PROCESSION of June 23rd, including the Illuminations along the line of route.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Ropill"

THE REVIEW AT SPITHEAD on June 24th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Respit"

And the ROYAL PROCESSION through the North-East of London on June 29th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code Word, "Ropel"

All above subjects at 3½d (Three Pence Halfpenny) Per Foot Net.
Terms 50% Cash with Order. Balance C. O. D. to Agent or Carriers.

Address 90 CHARING CROSS ROAD, LONDON, W. C.
Cable "ANDREORA, London." Code A B C. 5th Edition.

Solax

COMEDY

EVERY WEDNESDAY

For the past THREE MONTHS, EVERY WEDNESDAY, we have released a good COMEDY and still we get letters from Exchanges and Theatres urging us to make Comedy because there is a big demand. Evidently you are not correctly informed on what is offering REMEMBER SOLAX WEDNESDAY RELEASE IS ALWAYS COMEDY.

MILITARY

EVERY FRIDAY

Hundreds of Theatres are writing us how they are packing their houses with our Military Pictures.

There is no question but what BIG OUTDOOR PICTURES with thrilling scenes of battle and rescue are what the people want.

Get the SOLAX Friday Release ALWAYS A BIG MILITARY PICTURE.

GET OUR TWO COLOR LOBBY DISPLAY

RELEASES

WED., MAY 24th—	"THE DEVIL IN A TIN CUP,"	Split Reel
	"THE HOUSE OF PEACE,"	Comedy
FRIDAY, " 26th—	"AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN,"	Military
WED., " 31st—	"A MARVELOUS COW,"	Comedy
FRIDAY, JUNE 2d—	"NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND,"	Military
WED., " 7th—	"BRIDGET THE FLIRT,"	Comedy

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED

Sold exclusively through the M. P. D. & S. Co.

JUL 6 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 21

May 27th
1911

PRICE
TEN CENTS

SCENE FROM
THE ELOPEMENT ON DOUBLE L RANCH
AMERICAN RELEASE, JUNE 5

Solax

COMEDY

EVERY WEDNESDAY

EVERY WEDNESDAY BETWEEN NOW AND ETERNITY we will release a COMEDY, a COMEDY that is not of the hackneyed or stereotyped variety, a COMEDY that will provoke laughs from the most solemn cynic.

REMEMBER --- EVERY WEDNESDAY (Laugh-day) A SOLAX COMEDY

MILITARY

EVERY FRIDAY

OUR MILITARY PICTURES are so realistic, so genuinely descriptive, you can hear the beat of the drum, the roar of the musketry and the crash of shell and shot throughout.

EVERY FRIDAY a thousand feet of stirring, INSPIRING ACTION

FEATURE THEM

GET OUR TWO COLOR LOBBY DISPLAY

RELEASES

FRIDAY, JUNE 2d—"NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND," Military
WED., " 7th—"BRIDGET THE FLIRT," Comedy
FRIDAY, " 9th—"A MEXICAN GIRL'S LOVE," Military
WED., " 14th—"A BAD EGG," Comedy
FRIDAY, " 16th—"A DAUGHTER OF THE NAVAJO," Military

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED

Sold exclusively through M. P. D. & S. Co.

MR. INSISTER

MR. INSISTER SAYS:

When the warmer weather comes, I meet it by merely INSISTING harder than ever on

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

Released Tuesday, June 6th

The Other Side of the Picture

The Stepmother

is the story of a GOOD stepmother—and despite the family story papers, there are really a FEW good stepmothers.

No. 217 Code Word, Step

RELEASED FRIDAY, JUNE 9th

A PERFECT COMEDY "2-on-1"

MOTORING

Showing a new way to win a wife, and

Rescue of Mr. Henpeck which will entertain all Apron-Strings-Hubbies and some others.

No. 218. Code Word, Mopeck.

BOOK NOW! OUT FRIDAY, JUNE 16

"THE PICTURE THEY BURNED DOWN A HOUSE TO GET"

FLAMES AND FORTUNE

THE BEST SENSATIONAL FIRE FILM EVER MADE

BOOK NOW! OUT FRIDAY, JUNE 16

THANHOUSER COMPANY
NEW ROCHELLE NEW YORK

Over 1000 Sold Since January First

That is the record of "Power's No. 6" since New Year's Day.

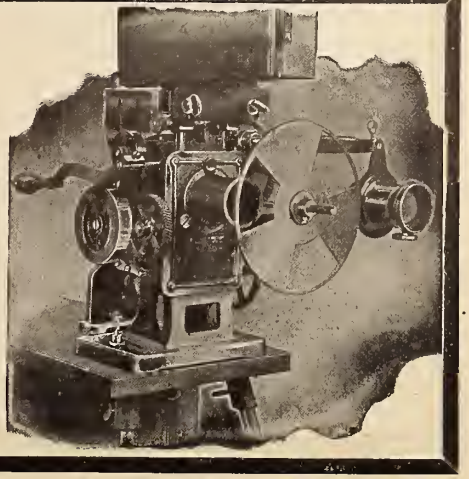
If you are going to buy a picture machine, buy the only one of proved merit.

And do it now.

Don't delay and be disappointed in delivery.

Any live dealer can supply you.

Catalogue D sent postpaid on request.



NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York

For thirteen years the leading makers of moving picture machines.

ORTHO FILM CO.

(INCORPORATED)

We have reorganized and increased our capital stock. Our main office is located at 208 Market St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

We are now prepared to manufacture FILMS for special features, such as Educational and Advertising purposes, by our "Hochstetter Exclusive Process."

Interior pictures, printing and developing is our specialty. We redevelop and clean FILMS, by our "Hochstetter Exclusive Process," making them as good as new.

Demonstration free of charge in any part of the United States.

Main Office: 208 MARKET STREET, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Branch Office, New York: 40 EAST 12TH ST., NEW YORK.

F. W. HOCHSTETTER, President and Manager.

A. I. DE ROY, Secretary and Treasurer.

WATCH THE JUNE CALENDAR FOR

CHAMPION'S BEST RELEASES

ON MONDAY, JUNE 5TH

Service Under Johnston and Lee

A heart-throbbing incident of the Southern Confederacy, showing a child's pathetic efforts in her father's defense. HARD FIGHTING NEAR RICHMOND, VA.

HAVE YOU ASKED FOR

THE PERIL OF DIAZ

RELEASED MONDAY, MAY 29TH? DON'T DELAY!

FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7TH

"THE COST OF DRINK"

Effectively tells a tale of the "bottle" and its ultimate grasp on the victim.

ON MONDAY, JUNE 12TH

"LONGSTREET AT SEVEN PINES"

MONDAY, JUNE 19TH

See "MOLLY PITCHER"

THE CHAMPION PHOTO-FRAME COSTS $1.00

MOTION PICTURES SUPERVISED BY THE ASHLAND COMPANY

THE CHAMPION FILM CO.

MARK M. DINTENFASS, GEN. MGR.

12 E. 15TH ST., N. Y. CITY.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.

228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Telephone: 3790 Oxford

Cl. B 245609

"The contents of this issue are copyrighted"

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan. 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City. ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV May 27, 1911 Number 21

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

This week represents a scene from the American, Flying A film, "The Elopment on Double L Ranch," released June 5th. This a sparkling Western comedy of high class.

INDEPENDENT VICTORY

On Monday, May 22, 1911, the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York by his Honor E. H. Lacombe, Circuit judge, filed a memorandum in the case of Motion Picture Patents Company against Independent Moving Pictures Company of American ad Carl Laemmle denying the motion for preliminary injunction. The decision was based on the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in the case of Motion Picture Patents Company vs. Yankee Film Company and Motion Picture Patents Company vs. William Steiner, Herbert L. Miles, Joseph Miles and Charles V. Henkel. The motion for preliminary injunction thus denied by Judge Lacombe had been directed against the use of the Gaumont camera.

The Gaumont camera first came before the courts in the case of the Motion Picture Patents Company against Champion Film Company. Judge Lacombe decided on December 30, 1910, that the Gaumont camera was an infringement of the Edison camera patent 12037, and injunction issued against the Champion Film Company. A few days later Judge Lacombe decided the cases against Yankee Film Company and against William Steiner, et al, granting an injunction against the Gaumont camera. On January 11th, 1911, the Motion Picture Patents Company made a motion for attachment for contempt against the Independent Moving Pictures Company of America and Carl Laemmle for use of the Gaumont camera while under injunction. An elaborate defense was made by affidavits served on the complainant and at the hearing on February 1st the motion was withdrawn in so far as it concerned the use of Gaumont cameras. About two months later the complainant began a new suit against the Independent Moving Pictures Company of America and Carl Laemmle directed particularly against the Gaumont camera and made a motion for preliminary injunction based upon elaborate affidavits replying to the defendants' affidavits served on the contempt motion in January. This motion was fully defended and was argued on Friday, May 5th, 1911, before Judge Lacombe and has just been denied as stated above.

In the interval appeal was taken by the Yankee Film Company and by Messrs. Steiner, et al, to the Circuit Court of Appeals and the question of unreasonable neglect or delay on the part of Edison and the Edison Manufacturing Company and the Motion Picture Patents Company to enter disclaimer of claim 4 of reissue 12037 was argued and on Thursday, May 18th, the appeals were decided in favor of the defendants.

The Circuit Court of Appeals in the decision in the Yankee Film case called attention to the fact that in March, 1907, it had held Edison patent 12037 valid as to claims 1, 2 and 3 and void as to claim 4, but that there had been no disclaimer since that time of such claim 4. Under these circumstances the court held that the validity of the Edison patent 12037, even as to claims 1, 2 and 3, was so doubtful that preliminary injunctions should not issue, and that the orders for the issue of preliminary injunctions against the Yankee Film Company and against William Steiner, Herbert L. Miles, Joseph Miles and Charles V. Henkel should be reversed.

It was this decision by the Circuit Court of Appeals on the disclaimer question that caused the court to deny the motion for injunction against the Independent Movig Pictures Company of America and Carl Laemmle and made it unnecessary for the court to consider or pass upon the other defenses raised on that motion. Judge Lacombe's memorandum decision in full was as follows:

"In accordance with the opinion of the C. C. A. in Motion Pictures Co. vs. Yankee Film Co., the motion for preliminary injunction is denied.

May 22, 1911. E. H. Lacombe."

ALIEN OPERATORS

The Moving Picture News started a campaign to assist "Alien operators" and so far we have met with very little success in our efforts to induce every operator who comes under the alien ban to send us his name and address, so that it may be possible to influence the Senators or Assemblymen to withdraw the obnoxious clause. It seems to us as though every man who has been refused is afraid to send his address in to our office. We learned the other day that this was owing to a man high up in the Union desiring to take all the praise for any work the News may have done. We are perfectly willing that he shall have this praise; we are perfectly willing he shall have all the honor, that does not matter to us; what we want to do is to endeavor, as far as we possibly can, to get all the operators in a position where they can earn a living. Take the following from Brooklyn, New York, of an operator who is the only support of his aged parents and on May 16th pleaded guilty to a charge of having operated a motion picture machine in a show place on Bell avenue, Bayside, without a license, but declaring that he had thus supported his aged parents for five years, and that the only reason a license that he had had was taken from him was because he was not a citizen of the United States. Edward Schwarz was arraigned before Justices Wilkin (presiding), Fleming and Deuel in the Court of Special Sessions on this charge. The inspector who made the charge admitted that he knew of no reason why Schwarz should have been deprived of his license except because of his foreign birth. Schwarz was fined $10.

We think the above is one of the hardest cases ever brought to our notice of a man being debarred from earning an honest living, and, if the operators are wise, they will immediately let us have their name and address so that we can do our part in bringing their cases individually and collectively before the higher authorities, and while on this point.

(Foreign exchanges please copy)

Many operators from England, Scotland, France, Germany and Italy have written to us asking the prospect of a position in New York. They are evidently tempted by the wages advertised by a so-called school which puts them from $25 to $35 per week. This is a false statement. The average earnings of such operators are $8 to $15; in addition to that no alien can obtain a license to operate a machine, and during the past week three foreign operators have called upon us, for whom we are very sorry, but we had to tell them the facts. They immediately asked what could they do, and we had to confess our ignorance. If the editors of our foreign exchanges will kindly call attention to all their readers that at the present time the field is closed for foreign operators, they will be doing a service to their readers and the operators in New York City.

IDIOTIC OPERATORS

It is not often we use such a term, but we think in the present instance it is more than fully deserved. In New York City there are men anxious to get a good light on the curtain at the least possible trouble to themselves; they are taught in a school how to bridge a fuse by inserting pennies or screws such as are illustrated in the cuts 2 and 3, or by using the nail as illustrated in the same cuts. We have it on the authority of an operator that he was told by this school instructor that if he used those things it would not only make him give a fine light but would also make him the smartest man in the bunch, because he would surprise the exhibitors with such a good light that he would be willing to raise his wages double and triple. After a week or so trial we very much question this statement, but the same man offered to go before a notary public, swear an affidavit and mention names. He also said that somebody greater than Edison had also recommended such devices to be used.

Fig. 1

We want to say that such tactics as these are criminal, and when we say criminal, we use the term advisedly because by using such a device the operator is endeavoring to murder in cold blood every patron of the house in which he is an operator. If our readers will look at our cut No. 1 they will see an innocent looking plug of the usual type and not one exhibitor in a hundred would know sufficient about electricity to see anything out of place in it; even if it was open as is displayed in our Fig. No. 2, he would still be ignorant, and referring to Fig. No. 3 he will see how the nail bridged or jumped the current, tampering with the regulations of the city ordinances. By using such a device it simply means that the operator will blow out every light in the house and probably short circuit the whole of the district, also with a danger of setting fire to the house through the greater heat generated igniting the film. The reason we specially illustrate these fuses is to enable every exhibitor to go round his house, examine every fuse, and, if he finds anything like what we have illustrated above, let him for his own safety sake throw the operator out by the scruff of his neck, immediately call up Mr. Wynkoop, of the Water, Gas and Electricity Bureau, and let them take the proceedings they ought to take. If an operator knows of other operators using such a device let them do the same and less fires or danger will be the result.

Fig. 2

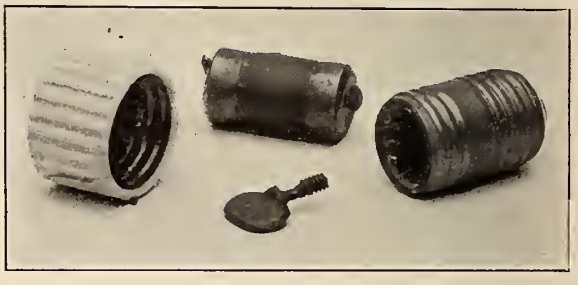

Fig. 3

From Philadelphia we learn that a fire occurred a week or two ago simply because, as Chief McLaughlin reported, he found that someone had "bridged the fuse," an operation which permitted the circuit to carry more electric current, but resulted in the wires becoming overheated and set fire to the place. The fuse, which acts as a safety valve, is made of lead, and melts when too much current is thrown upon one circuit, automatically shutting off the current.

McLaughlin says he found that a piece of copper wire had been inserted in the lead fuse, this operation being known as "bridging the fuse." This had increased the capacity of the circuit by preventing the fuse from melting. The only safety of a fuse lies in the fact that when a larger amperage is being pulled the fuse blows and so saves the situation. Calling the attention of H. S. Wynkoop to this matter he said; "The situation is giving us great concern and we are disciplining the operators severely whenever we catch them jumping or improperly reloading fuses; we feel that this warning will be sufficient to prevent it occurring in the future." The operator's name and address who used the above is in our possession, and two other devices which were used by two other operators whose name and addresses we have are ready to be placed before the Board unless they promise to be good in the future.

While on this same subject, from Atlantic City we learn that a film was burned by a cigarette at the Lyric Theater, 1806 Atlantic avenue, on May 18th. The fire was caused by a boy smoking a cigarette while rewinding a roll of film which instantly caused the trouble, and Boyle, the boy in question, was blown to the sidewalk. Fortunately the disturbance was averted by the cool-headed action of the attendants, who immediately illuminated the house and with the use of a few chemicals the fire was put out; the correspondent to whom we are responsible for report of this remarked, "The operator who was in charge was only a boy; anything goes in this town; they have no rules or regulations, and managers think as long as one can turn the crank and keep the light on the film for five minutes at a stretch he is an expert; also, if he will work for $8 to $10 per week, the cheaper he is the better operator he is." What is the American Federation of Labor doing to prevent such being allowed in our ranks. We think the A. F. L. should give a license or a charter rather to every body of operators in the country who will pay their dues, discipline them under their own laws and so keep a check on the product of incompetent schools and the still more incompetent producers thereof.

CINEMATOGRAPH FIRES

We wonder if the trade fully realize the very small percentage of fires brought about by cinematography. Our London correspondent in the May 13th issue gave the following significant fact:

Out of 3,208 fires which occurred in the area of the London County Council in 1910 only seven were at picture exhibitions which is 109/500 or 1/5th of 1 per cent. Noting these figures for London, a correspondent gives us the figures for New York City. Out of 4,032 fires in 1910 only two were caused by cinematograph films and the damage infinitesimally small.

In New York State the fires for 1910 were 11,098, and out of this large proportion only five were caused by films. We tried to verify these figures from Mr. Forsyth, of the Board of Fire Underwriters; he happened to be engaged in Court at the time so we could not reach him. If these figures are near correct, is it not time the cry of Fire! Fire!! Danger!!! and the glaring scare headlines in the press should be eliminated, and due credit be given to the careful handling of the films and the safety devices used by the machine manufacturers; if only the cigarette fiend could be eliminated, we would soon hear the last of cinematography being put in the most dangerous class of fire causers. Will our readers bring these facts before their local editors and get them to give as large a publicity to them as they do when one poor little fire breaks out through the carelessness of the cigarette boy, or the school product who bridges a fuse? By so doing they will earn the thanks of all in the industry.

EDUCATION BY CINEMATOGRAPHY

In a recent issue our London correspondent, under the above caption, made a slight error which we wish to correct regarding the Kinemacolor Co., Ltd. Our correspondent said the Charles Urban Trading Company informed our London correspondent that they have succeeded in securing a stirring series of kinemacolor scenes of Kitchener reviewing troops at Khartoum. Our correspondent was in error inasmuch as Mr. Urban severed his connection with the Urban Trading Company some months ago. The Eclipse Company of Paris continues to trade in London under the old name, fully realizing the asset of Mr. Charles Urban's name, but we want our readers to fully understand that Mr. Urban is only connected and concerned with the Natural Color Kinematograph Company, Ltd., and Kineto, Ltd. The paragraph in question is evidently an incorrect copy of one written by the Kinemacolor press agent, which appeared in all the papers in England preceding the opening of the Scala.

The above correction is due to Mr. Charles Urban, and our attention has been called by an esteemed friend who concludes his letter with, "I tell you these facts because over here the MOVING PICTURE NEWS has a considerable reputation, and we don't like to see in it inaccuracies and signs of scissors and paste. I am sure you will take this information—which is quite unprejudiced—in the spirit in which it is meant."

We have pleasure in giving the above facts as we want to keep up the reputation of only giving a truthful representation of the trade as it is to-day and hereby tender our apologies to Charles Urban and his confreres.

KINEMACOLOR

As usual in connection with any up-to-date information regarding the moving picture industry, the News usually publishes it first, and we point with pride to the fact that this paper was the first to give any authentic information regarding the Kinemacolor Company of America. As will be seen by the advertisement in this issue, the new company that is exploiting the wonderful "natural color" motion pictures are making their first public announcement of the policy of the company. We have dwelt at length in former issues on the beauties of Kinemacolor, and we have before us at the present time notices from practically every newspaper in London telling of the wonderful success of Kinemacolor, as shown at the Scala Theater now. These pictures have been improved wonderfully since their first showing nearly three years ago, and the writer can personally vouch for the fact that the natural color pictures produced by the Kinemacolor Company are practically perfect. The first extensive showing that Kinemacolor will have in this country will be the King's Coronation. State rights are being sold at the present time and there is no doubt but that these pictures will make more money for exchanges and exhibitors than any other special series of pictures ever shown here. As arrangements have been made for most of the projecting machine manufacturers to put the Kinemacolor attachment on the present machines, it will be particularly attractive to exhibitors. As we published in this paper, the Kinemacolor Company in London has been made the official photographer for the Coronation ceremonies and special concessions have been made to this company for recording all the events, not only the street parades, but all the private official ceremonies as well. These concessions were made to secure a record of these events in color for future generations. The American owners of the State Rights will have the advantage of these special pictures which cannot be taken by any other photographer. The showing of the Coronation pictures, by the Kinemacolor Company, to be shown throughout the United States, is to be done principally to acquaint exhibitors and the general public with the beauties of the Kinemacolor process. Shortly after these pictures are shown, the Kinemacolor Company will release sufficient black and white film which, used in connection with the Kinemacolor subjects, will provide a full program for any exhibitor in the United States. There have been erroneous impressions that Kinemacolor film costs much more than the black and white. As a matter of fact while the films do cost a little more than the black and white, they will be sold to those who intend using the black and white service at the same price as the black and white films.

Mr. J. J. Murdock, general manager of the Kinemacolor Company, has just returned from a several weeks' trip through the Middle West where he has been engaged in looking over the ground and making arrangements with exchanges to handle the Kinemacolor and black and white films. Arrangements have already been completed with a few of the best moving picture manufacturers in this country to affiliate with the Kinemacolor Company, and we have the promise of an early notification of the names of these manufacturers.

We also wish to state that only one film is used in projecting Kinemacolor, and after the original negative is taken, prints can be made in any numbers, the same as with black and white film. At the present time the Kinemacolor Company of America have in their new vaults, on 45th Street, over 200 full reels of Kinemacolor pictures, amongst which are some wonderful scientific subjects, also many dramatic and comedy subjects. In view of the fact that we have witnessed the forming of some big moving picture corporations in the last few months and also have seen the closing up or the disappearing from view of some of these companies, it gives us great pleasure to follow up our original statements of the Kinemacolor Company that here at last we have a moving picture organization composed of men with unlimited capital who are intent on bettering the general conditions in the moving picture industry.

We notice in the Kinemacolor advertisement that assistance will be given those purchasing state rights in securing bookings in the best dramatic and vaudeville houses throughout the country for summer engagements. This should be a good inducement to anyone considering purchasing state rights, as the Kinemacolor Company is in a particularly strong position to make this possible.

FROM THE OBSERVATORY

By G. F. Blaisdell

Among the best friends and most militant partisans of motion pictures are the clergy. The minister visits many homes. He comes more closely in touch with common people than does any other man in any community. He meets the children, he talks to them—draws from them that which most interests them. A pastor realizes that in moving picture halls there are dangers to be avoided; he realizes also that there are dangers outside of picture theaters. Experience has taught him that it is far preferable that a child should pass an hour a day in a lighted, ventilated and clean picture hall, looking at educational films interspersed with comedy and drama, than that he should be always on the street when not in school or in bed. Reference is here made to the child whose mother is busy with the actual work of the household; not to the child whose mother has the time and the inclination to give personal attention to him.

Therefore is it surprising to read that at a recent communion service in St. Vincent's Church, in Germantown, Pa., the pastor, the Rev. J. A. Hartnett, administered a pledge to 500 boys and girls obligating them to abstain from visiting motion picture shows.

* * *

The Rev. Mr. Hartnett well might have taken a leaf from the book of the Rev. Father Swinko, of St. Hyacinth's Dunkirk, N. Y. Father Swinko has been compelled to resort to injunction proceedings to restrain Mayor James and Chief of Police Quandt from interfering with exhibitions of moving pictures on Sunday afternoons in St. Hyacinth's parochial hall. The priest contends that the entertainments are purely of an educational character, and consequently the authorities have no right to interfere. The court intimated at the hearing that he was most impressed by the charge that inadequate measures had been taken to protect the audience from the dangers of fire.

* * *

The Rev. Mr. Hartnett should at least so far modify the pledge he administered as to permit the children to see pictures of his own selection and in his own church. Manifestly it is a hardship to expect children to forego what has become one of their chief delights.

* * *

The University of Missouri, in conjunction with the Columbia (Mo.) Commercial Club, have had taken 1,000 feet of film showing views of the university and various phases of college life and also pictures of Columbia. The reels will be sent through the state this summer for the purpose of advertising the university and the university town.

* * *

In the two years that the National Board of Censorship has been scrutinizing films it has passed upon 5,200 subjects and has caused the destruction of 2,000,000 feet of films. It is well. Only last week the board sent out a letter to the exhibitors indicating the objectionable features of a film about to be released. One proprietor informed the Observer that he felt compelled, after an examination of the picture, to cut out 88 feet. The excision should have been made at the factory. The description of the offending strip given to the Observer caused him to wonder what the directors could have been trying to do. Manufacturers well

LOST!

JAMES A. BLISS

THE FAMOUS BROADWAY STAR.

Known throughout the amusement world as the "Somewhat Stout Comedian."

When last seen, Mr. Bliss was leaving Wm. A. Brady's theatrical office on Broadway. Age 32; height, 5 feet 8 inches; dark hair and eyes; wore a navy blue suit. For the past year has been starring in "Baby Mine." Reward for information.

THE A. B. AGENCY,

42nd Street, New York.

might impress upon their directors the fact that one objectionable film affects a dozen desirable ones. A manager of one of the largest downtown shows told the writer, in speaking of the foregoing incident, that such transgressions from the line of decency were especially regrettable at the present time, when there was such a diminution in the agitation against picture shows as a form of entertainment. "One indiscreet manufacturer," said the manager, "can do incalculable harm not only to himself but to the whole industry. We want to give the people good stuff; our living depends on doing just that thing. Of course, it makes a great deal of difference where a house is located—in other words, as to the character of your clientele. But in those neighborhoods where there is the greatest demand for sensationalism are the very points where the greatest care should be exercised, where the possibilities for harm are greatest. Practically all of the manufacturers have eliminated the pistol from their posters. Many of the companies have cut out the actual discharge of pistol or gun. You see the weapon raised and the scene shifts. This is only a feature of the general advance being made in the business."

* * *

All of which is correct. The picture industry attained such enormous proportions in so short a time that the determination of what is best is going to require patience on the part of critics and careful study on the part of purveyors.

* * *

At the National Conference of Charities and Corrections in Boston, June 7-14, there will be a demonstration of some of the possibilities of the motion picture as an institution for popular education.

* * *

The social workers of Montclair, N. J., are striving to induce the authorities of that cultured haven of seclusion to withdraw their opposition to moving pictures as a form of popular entertainment. Dr. Josiah Strong says that he would be glad to give an open-air show for several weeks so that people may see the character of the amusement it is proposed to produce in a permanent theater. If the sample show should influence the Council to grant a license, the Recreation Company will erect a building to seat 1,000 persons as one feature of social center work.

* * *

Forty of the five or six hundred picture machine operators in Philadelphia met recently and decided to organize a union and to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor. In the opinion of the Observer, if the operators do join the A. F. of L. they will follow the wiser course.

To the Fitchburg (Mass.) State Normal School falls the honor of being the first institution of learning to take definite steps in securing the motion picture as an adjunct of an educational course. According to the plans of the faculty, a booth will be erected in the lecture room and apparatus installed. Principal John G. Thompson has given serious thought to the subject of pictures as an educational factor. He believes points which in verbal explanations are difficult to grasp will be absorbed readily through pictures. The range of study will cover the fields which are especially adapted for normal school pupils.

* * *

The time will be short before the plans of every new school structure will make provision for the permanent installation of moving picture apparatus. Boards of Education may as well realize this now as later on, and save money by avoiding expensive alterations. It is well to be progressive and up-to-date; it is inexcusable to be behind the times.

* * *

The Picturegraph Company, New York, for manufacturing moving picture apparatus, has recently been organized, with a capital of $250,000. The announced incorporators are B. A. Proctor, F. C. Morgan, W. S. Allen, New York City.

* * *

At a meeting of the Exhibitors' League of Moving Picture Men of Ohio, at Columbus early this month, it was decided to hold a national convention of moving picture men for the purpose of forming a national association. The convention will be held in Cleveland August 1. C. J. A. Kale, of Lebanon, is the secretary of the Ohio organization.

* * *

Biograph's "Cupid's Joke" is a clever skit. The work of the four principals is excellent. The young woman who takes the character of the "Lady of Quality" charms and fascinates her audiences even as she does her fellow-player. The stage "business" is carefully arranged.

* * *

Eclipse's "The Last Edict of Francis II" is a strong production. Edison's "Edna's Imprisonment" is fine comedy. The office boy is good, as also is the head bookkeeper. The safe expert turned spank expert brings out a hearty laugh. "In the Baggage Coach Ahead," the dramatization of an old song, there are several strong dramatic situations. Selig's "In Old California" portrays the old-time swashbuckling American, the caricaturing of whom caused Dickens some temporary unpopularity in this country in the early forties.

FOUND!

Smiling, James A. Bliss

THE SOMEWHAT STOUT COMEDIAN

who was reported missing on Broadway last Thursday. Friends found him happy and contented at the Rex studio. He told them that Rex is in the kidnapping business, and that he wished he had been kidnapped sooner. He was very busy manufacturing laughs for his initial appearance which is in a reel to be released June 1st, entitled "The Monogram J. O."

A late report on Broadway has it that Wm. A. Brady, Chas. Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger, and the rest of Rex's competitors have hired Pinkertons to watch Rex.

You keep your eye on Rex as well!

Rex Achievements

If a moving picture manufacturer had caught a comet and you heard that it was to appear in pictures, you would sit erect and wonder some.

Well, the Rex Co. has kidnapped a star—a real shining Broadway star, and he is going to twinkle and sparkle in

1

Rex pictures in the dangerously near future. A real Broadway star—do you follow us? Stick right behind us so you don't miss anything. A real glittering satellite of the Big Alley, who has made millions laugh a million times, who will repeat the stunt and more in the future for wonder Rex. You have laughed at him in "Baby Mine," forgot your worries and your cares and the fact that the baby had the whooping cough, watching him in "The Traveling Salesman." You giggled yourself silly at his stunts and smiles in "The Bachelor's Honeymoon." Ah, you do know him? You are right, somewhat stout James A. Bliss, the funny man of Broadway, and Rex has nabbed him.

Some feat? Yes, some feet, and some head, too.

We don't know how Rex did it. We don't know how it does things anyhow. It's all such a marvel to us, but it does them and it's doing them right, right along. Wm. A. Brady, Bliss's erstwhile manager, must be heartbroken over the loss, and as we go to press, we hear that Chas. Frohmann, Klaw & Erlanger, and the rest of the managerial

2

3

If there is a laugh left in you it will come out when you see the funnies in "The Monogram J. O," A film that doesn't need an X-ray to find the comedy. It's a Rex, of course.

mighty, have provided their respective stars with body guards to prevent a like fate occurring to them. They realize that Rex is a "Boogie Man" and will get them if they don't watch out. So they are watching out, in and out, thin and stout—and stout Jimmy Bliss is sitting around the Rex quarters executing his cherubic inimitable smile upon his captors, and his captors slowly close one eye and their lips slip. James A. Bliss off Broadway and in Rex—will Rex never stop? Can it be sheer good luck? No. Can it be merely initiative? No, because all the manufacturers have that more or less, and only Rex has secured this Gay White Way Heavy Weight—the answer must be something we are not yet acquainted with. A quality we haven't yet run across, something that contradicts all such old played out assertions as "there's nothing new under the sun," etc. This quality indefinable, mysterious, Rex has got, and for want of which for a better phrase let us call it "business genius," as enterprise, initiative and aggressiveness are too tame to define Rex's spectacular maneuvers. Business genius, a gift of beating everybody else out, and by a long way, that is the remarkable characteristic of the Rex Co.

4

6

It's all very nice for one to climb to the top of a mountain and gaze up at the clouds and dream dreams and plan plans, but in doing so he is missing lots of things that are happening down in the valley, but Rex is up on the mountain summit a success, gazing into the clouds and catching stars, and has an eye and a sharp one for the valley as well, and does not miss anything, but sometimes when its less-awake competitors rouse themselves and rub their eyes they do miss something, and in its latest achievement no less a personage than a big Broadway manager is missing one of his strong arms.

5

Rex has been tested, proven and found to be all there, and somewhere else at the same time. Since it began releasing it has turned out about eleven miles of good startling film, eleven miles of happiness of those who find joy in successful film productions, and we cannot help but think that when it comes to shaking up things, Rex is the equivalent to two earthquakes, a milk punch, and a storm at sea.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, Ark., May 24—Motion pictures and popular-priced vaudeville, beginning June 1 at the Orpheum Theater, will give way to ice-cream, cake, candy and other delicacies of the season, for a big bakery company has taken a lease on the building now occupied by the Orpheum and will install their combination confectionery-bakery establishment there at that time. This change marks the passing of one of the first motion picture theaters that Hot Springs ever had, for it is about as old a theater in point of service catering to the film industry. At present it is under the control of the Arkansas Amusement Association, which also conducts the Lyceum. The Orpheum has made a barrel of money in its day—but its day passed out of existence when the more modern and pretentious theaters sprung up around it, and level-headed and energetic business men realized that motion photography was not a "fly by night" experiment, but one of the greatest of all amusement and educational features. Opposition killed the Orpheum, which, hampered by limited stage facilities and other causes, could not keep the pace set by the more up-to-date houses, and for the past year it has been on the market. There have been enough men and women engaged in the managment of motion pictures who looked this proposition over to pack the house, but after each investigation they all "backed water," so to speak, and every deal fell through. The location is a most excellent one, being situated right in the very heart of the business district, where trade is the greatest, and the new establishment is sure to be a success. Adios, Signor Orpheum. In the vernacular of the blackface comedian, "It shoa was a good wagon, but, chile, it done broke down."

The Princess Theater will eliminate vaudeville for the summer and run one of the best high-class moving picture shows seen in this section of the country. Manager Frank Head has demonstrated what capable executive ability will do for a house by building up a patronage at the Princess that made the theater the most talked-of place of amusement west of St. Louis. The vaudeville there is always pleasing. It's the biggest, cheapest show that I have ever looked at. You always see a good show there, and many times a great bill. Furthermore, I am glad of one thing. Mr. Head informs me that he is going to run strictly independent pictures in his house, and get material that will not be older than a week after release. I hope that he will do so, for I must state that some of the Independent product that is coming into this city has whiskers on it that even Senator Peffer in his prime would envy. At present during the regime of vaudeville at this house only two reels of pictures are used a week, being run as a "chaser," but these are very good. There are two other houses in the city that are using Independent material, the Orpheum and the Scenic, the latter of which took on this service after a run-in the past week with the General Film Company in St. Louis, of which I will speak later. I want to see good Independent pictures in this town. The Independents have a large following here, especially since Little Mary went over to the Imps, but the Trust, so far as patronage goes, has the field practically to itself. With new Independent pictures, four reels a day and change daily—going some, eh, brother?—I am sure that the business at the Princess will materialize an account on the right side of the ledger. Mr. Head tried to negotiate with the Swanson-Crawford firm in St. Louis; also Memphis and New Orleans, to furnish his house with pictures, but they replied that his demands were too great. I don't wonder that the former house could not come across, for the reason that they are booking the Orpheum up to the limit; but I told Mr. Head to try my dear friends who have charge of the United Motion Picture Exchange in Oklahoma City, where he will get a square deal and some great pictures. Also, recommended him to Carl Laemmle's exchange in Chicago, who claims to be able to book the universe. I am awaiting these new Independent pictures with as much pleasant anticipation as a convict looks forward to a Christmas pardon or the small boy to his first long pair of trousers.

Some time ago, according to the statement told me by Manager Morrison, of the Scenic Theater, there arrived there a reel in very bad condition, and his operator called attention to the same. It was patched up, I believe, and then run, after which it sustained additional damage. The General Film Company of St. Louis, according to Manager Morrison, is now trying to collect the full price of that reel. When Morrison objected they stopped his service, but they didn't wait until they got all of their last shipment back.

He has, so he says, a shipment of reels from them, which he intends to keep until he is either reinstated or they have withdrawn suit against him. Morrison is a little fellow, but, take it from me, he fears not the Trust, and the litigation will be interesting.

Little Rock did itself proud the past week, at which time it entertained very nearly 200,000 visitors who came to attend the annual Confederate Veterans' Reunion. It was some mob, completely swamping that city and sending about 20,000 to Hot Springs for accommodations. We took good care of them here. But the point I wish to make is that even this great event was not a success without the evidence of the motion picture man, who was on the job in great shape and who secured some excellent pictures of the great parade, as well as all the old Confederate veterans of note. Also, he snapped Andrew Jackson's old negro cook and several other old-time negroes who still love their "Marsa" and who decline to believe that they have been liberated for very near fifty years. These pictures were taken by a corporation known as the Moving Picture Company of Chicago, and were secured under the personal direction of R. J. Johnson, who was the special photographer of the company. Here's hoping they are O. K., Mr. Johnson, for you certainly had the greatest "picture weather" that ever happened to get these films.

Last week we had the Hastings Stock Company, a very good organization, at the Airdome, their opening bill, "The Man on the Box," being exceptionally well staged, and this week the Albert Taylor Company opened a week's engagement, producing Nat Goodwin's late success, "A Gilded Fool," which was written by Guy Carlton. Mr. Carlton, it will be remembered, was here last summer for his health, but never recovered. The Taylor attraction is also meeting with great patronage and the Airdome is proving a great Mecca for those who love this kind of outdoor amusement.

The excessive hot weather the past two weeks has not hurt this resort any where the theaters are concerned, and this is especially true of the Lyric, where the crowds have compelled the hanging out of the "S. R. O." sign nightly. The show there the past week, especially the pictures, was of exceptional worth, and Harry Hale, the proprietor, informs me that he has made a ten strike in the booking of Consul the First, the celebrated monkey, whose act has been a great feature on the big time in the East. The monk will make his debut at the Lyric next week.

There were any number of interesting films shown here the past week, and among those of Independent make that made a favorable impression were the following: "How Winter Decorates Nature," Ambrosio; "The Opium Smugglers," American, a rattling good film; "General Marion, the Swamp Fox," a Champion and a hit; "Life of the People South of the Equator," Great Northern, which, you may be sure, was a big success; "Sweet Memories," an Imp, and "The Fair Dentist," by the same maker, which, as usual, went big, as Imps always do; "Fashion and Its Consequence," a Lux, very funny; "A Cowboy for a Day," Bison, and right up to the mark; "Over the Shading Edge" and "A Left Hook," two excellent Reliance pictures; "Daughter of the Revolution," 'Rex—the King; "Across the Mexican Line," Solax; "Old Home Week" and "Pillars of Society," two Thanhouser reels that were in a class by themselves for merit. In fact, I liked the Independent output as seen here the past week.

In the Trust line there were also several that went with a roar of applause, and we doff our hats once more to Biograph and "Madame Rex." Edison gave us an instructive film, "In and Around Havana, Cuba," and Essanay, departing from its usual worthy dramas and its generally poor society material, sent us an educational film much appreciated in this land hundreds of miles from the ocean, and showed us "Catching the Deep Sea Turtles." I have engaged in that pleasant occupation in Atlantic City, when we used to go out to the nets located out of sight of land, and I enjoyed the film very much. "The People of the Arabian Desert" and "Picturesque Waterfalls of Old Spain" were beutiful, indeed, and Gaumont has the thanks of Hot Springs patrons. And now Flo, here's to you. Was almost beginning to think that you had lost your grip, but you have reassured us that you are still very much in evidence where artistic work before the camera is concerned. Also, Dad Lubin, you deserve hearty thanks for your reel, "Her Child's Honor," which, though a little late getting here, was duly appreciated. I humbly opine that if Miss Lawrence has the material to work with, and the scenario that will give her the chance to display the best of her ability, she will continue to be one of the big drawing cards. At any rate, her work in this film was a decided treat. "Winsor McCay" was much in evidence at the Lyric, and "The Leading Lady" was a scream from beginning to end at the Photoplay Theater. Vitagraph, these two were winners.

I trust that last week's letter by "The Lady of the Baths" was acceptable. She showed her willingness, at least, to tackle the newspaper game and help me out, which I appreciated.

As a closing paragraph and further testimonial to motion photography, will state that during the week a report reached me that the Chamber of Commerce, Houston, Tex., is thinking of advocating the installation of moving pictures in the public schools. Go to it, ye Texans; it's the right "dope." Here's hoping.

THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

CHICAGO NEWS NOTES

The Chicago Child Welfare Exhibit, which opened at the Coliseum May 11th to 25th, are doing all their demonstrating on child labor. Other youths' conditions through the medium of moving pictures. A Sunlight curtain and Motiograph outfit have been installed and hourly demonstrations are made with films taken especially for this work in all parts of the United States. Another good use moving pictures are being put to.

Elsie Palambeck, the child who has been missing for several months, has been found to have been murdered by gypsies and her body cast into the drainage canal, and did not run away herself on account of stories she had seen in moving pictures, as the Chicago papers declared.

The House of Representatives at Springfield, Ill., passed a bill to-day by a vote of 104 to 4 to abolish the use of trading stamp coupons or souvenirs when given as an inducement to draw people to the purchase of real estate of any description, merchandise, or any commodities. Now Mr. Exhibitor, if you are giving away souvenirs and you are hit by this law it goes to prove that moving pictures are a commodity, one of life's necessities; such being the case, the Film Trust, in restricting the salable or rental use of moving pictures prove themselves to be a monopoly. There, oh you Trust Busters, get busy. Too bad I was not a lawyer.

Well, we saw Milwaukee avenue the other evening, and, believe me, were it not for the five-cent theaters on the street there would not be much life to it.

Starting in at the Banner, on Robert, just off the corner, we were greeted by a full house, and the Banner Theater holds some people. Our next stop was at the Star Theater, owned by Jones, Linish & Shaefer Co. This house is managed by Chas. Hagedorn, one of the oldest managers, yet one of the youngest in years, employed by this firm. We next visited the Gem and then the Wonderland, where crowds waited to see the Independent releases advertised for the day. So Milwaukee avenue is a good street for the picture shows as well as other business.

THE LATEST FROM LONDON

(By our English Correspondent)

I have been informed that the Natural Color Kinematograph Co., Ltd., 80-82 Wardour street, W., has just entered into important contracts to take advertising-industrial films in Kinemacolor for Government and business purposes. The immense advantages of a complete range of color in films of this kind will be apparent. The National Cash Register Company has commissioned Mr. Urban to secure comprehensive pictures of their large works at Dayton, Ohio,

If there is a laugh left in you it will come out when you see the funnies in "The Monogram J. O." A film that doesn't need an X-ray to find the comedy. It's a Rex, of course.

Coming!—"The Crusaders"

STATE RIGHTS MEN! WATCH FOR THIS!

and the magnitude of the undertaking may be judged from the fact that the contract price is almost £6,000 ($30,000). An expert staff is being dispatched to Ohio, as I write, with complete developing plant, etc. In order to obtain a general view of the extensive premises of the National Cash Register Company it has been arranged to use a captive balloon, and from this commanding position a portion of the film will be exposed.

* * *

Other large industrial concerns, recognizing the superiority of records of manufacturing process presented with the degree of actuality that Kinemacolor affords, are negotiating for a similar series of films.

* * *

On May 6th Mr. J. Mackenzie and a staff of assistants are leaving London for Canada in fulfillment of an agreement entered into by the Natural Color Co. with the Canadian Government and the Canadian Pacific Railway to illustrate the natural and scenic advantages of Canada in the Kinemacolor process. A special car has been built by the C. P. R. Co., with dark room facilities, sleeping and culinary accommodation, etc. In this car the operators will travel from the Atlantic to the Pacific, their moving headquarters being side-tracked at various points while they exploit the scenery and interesting sights in the neighborhood. I understand that an entire year will be spent in these delightful pursuits. Judging from the achievements of Kinemacolor in scenic subjects in the past, we shall expect Mr. Mackenzie's labors to result in a considerable acceleration of the flow of Canadian emigration in the near future.

* * *

The theaters under the control of Mr. Montagu A. Pyke —the pioneer of the "Nickelodeon" on this side—are all making good. The leading West End Theater, a photograph of which I am able to give below, is patronized by the elite. The latest films are always shown, many of them being of an exclusive character. This house is situated in the heart of the theater area in this city, viz., at Piccadilly Circus W., and record patronage is expected during the Coronation festivities.

CINEMATOGRAPH THEATRE (PYKE CIRCUIT), PICCADILLY CIRCUS, LONDON.

The fact that Mr. Pyke is also managing director of the Cinematograph Film Hiring Co., Ltd., undoubtedly facilitates the admirable manner in which his theaters are worked, and the up-to-date programs provided at each.

* * *

May I be permitted to boast the claim that I have been exclusively informed that on account of the recent disastrous film fire in Russia the Russian Government have prohibited the use of inflammable films in their country, and that henceforth all subjects sent there from London are to be of the non-flame variety?

Conspicuous amongst Shakespearean productions is Mr. Chas. Urban's "Falstaff," which is released to-day (May 10th). The staging, acting and photography are alike excellent. "Shakespeare's Land" is another beautiful Kinemacolor subject, which is 505 feet in length. The irresistible charm and beauty of the Warwickshire country is perfectly depicted in this film, which affords one delightful glimpses of the River Avon, bordered by magnificent trees, and of the old-world town of Stratford, and its associations with the immortal bard.

* * *

The Cinematograph occupied an important place in the deliberations of the first public section of the Imperial Education Conference, held in London recently, when Mr. H. J. Mackinder, M.P., Reader in Geography at the University of London, read a paper dealing with the teaching of geography from an Imperial point of view. The necessity for the visualization of the distant, as well as the things of the Empire, was the main theme of Mr. Mackinder's paper, and at the close of it he referred to "the ubiquitous cinematograph" as one of "many methods of depicting scenes to the eye." "At present," he added, "at any rate for the purposes of school-teaching, unless under exceptional circumstances, the cinematograph appears too cumbrous—and too expensive. But, apart from these practical difficulties, I venture to plead for the simplicity of the lantern slide. Our object in visual instruction is not to render thought unnecessary, but rather to call forth the effort of imagination."

* * *

I am informed that Mr. Grahame-White—the intrepid English aviator—has undertaken a contract to deliver films of the Coronation by aeroplane to Birmingham, Bristol and Rugby. Immediately after the films have been taken they will be developed and placed in aeroplanes at Hendon (N.W. London), whence they will be transported through the air to their destination.

* * *

In the House of Lords recently the Movable Dwellings Bill was discussed and the Government accepted a proposal by Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, to the effect that where a County Council prohibited or limited the number of moving dwellings at any one time on specified places, due regard should be made to the interests of traveling showmen, so as to secure that they should not be hampered in the exercise of the legitimate business of their calling. The bill as amended passed through committee.

* * *

So popular has natural-color cinematography become with patrons of Mr. Chas. Urban's "Kinemacolor" theater that he is reluctantly withdrawing the operetta "Castles in the Air" this week to give "Kinemacolor" even greater scope, and several new series, accompanied by vocal as well as exquisite instrumental music, to be produced will include "Telemachus" (classical), "The Fall of Babylon" (scriptural), five playlets of great beauty (theatrical), "Ostend," "Lake Garda" (travel), and "Strange Mounts" (zoological).

* * *

Since the opening of the picture theaters on Sunday there has been a marked improvement in order in the streets of Brighton. I hear that the Town Council have decided to grant seven-day licenses to picture theaters on condition that they do not open on Sundays before 5 o'clock in the afternoon. There was considerable opposition to the proposal, mainly on religious grounds.

* * *

Messrs. Pathe Freres have produced a fine film dealing with the celebrated story of the "Lyons Mail." This production is certain to have a ready sale on this side, the leading role in the play of the same name being a great favorite with the late Sir Henry Irving.

London, May 18th. L. W. D.

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E. E.

ALTERNATING CURRENT WATTHOUR METERS

Principles of Construction and Operation

The advantages of light weight of moving element, absence of commutator, general simplicity of construction and wide adaptability possessed by the induction type of watthour meter have resulted in the general adoption of meters operating on this principle in preference to all others for alternating current work. The induction watthour meter is in principle an induction motor generator provided with a suitable registering mechanism.

Every commercial meter of this type is made up of a number of elements described below. Each of these elements and parts has certain functions, and is therefore necessary to the successful operation of the meter. On the other hand, each element, unless correctly designed, may introduce a source of inaccuracy. These elements are: (a) the field producing element; (b the moving element; (c) the retarding element; (d) the registering element; (e) the mounting frame and bearings; (f) the friction compensator; (g) the power factor and frequency adjustment; (h) the case and cover.

(a) The field producing element consists of the electromagnetic circuit and the measuring coils. One of these coils, connected in series with the circuit to be metered, is wound of few turns and is therefore of low inductance. The current through it is in phase with the current in the metered circuit. The other coil, connected across the circuit, is highly inductive, and therefore the current in it is nearly 90 per cent. out of phase with and proportional to the voltage of the metered circuit across its terminals. Therefore, when the current in the circuit is in phase with the voltage (100 per cent. power factor) the currents in the meter coils are displaced almost 90 degrees with respect to each other. This angle is made exactly 90 degrees by means of the "power factor adjustment" (g). The coils are so mounted on the core that the currents in them produce a rotating or shifting field in the air-gap, in somewhat the same manner that the currents in the primary windings of an induction motor produce a rotating field. The strength of this shifting field with 90 degrees phase difference between the currents is proportional to the product of the currents in the two coils and therefore proportional to the product of current and voltage in the metered circuit. At any other power factor the field is proportional to this product multiplied by the sine of the angle of phase difference between the two meter currents. If the current in the voltage coil is exactly in quadrature with the voltage of the metered circuit, at any power factor the sine of the angle of phase difference between the currents in the meter circuits will be equal to the cosine of the angular displacement between the current and voltage in the metered circuit. Under these conditions, therefore, the strength of the shifting field is proportional also to the power factor of the circuit. In other words, the strength of the rotating field is proportional to the product of the volts, amperes, and power factor and is therefore a measure of the actual power.

It will be noted that it is the field producing element that consumes power from the circuit and consequently it is upon the design of this element that the losses in the meter depend. Current is flowing through the shunt coil continuously, even when no energy is being taken, and the higher the inductance of this coil the smaller will be the energy component of the constant flow. The series coil causes a loss of energy proportional to the square of the current flowing. It also causes a drop in voltage, both inductive and resistive. Therefore, the resistance and inductance of the series coil of the meter should be as low as possible.

The insulation of the meter coils is also an important item, as upon this depends the ability of the meter to withstand lightning and other high-tension disturbances.

The proper design of the magnetic circuit is highly important. Owing to the varying permeability of the iron at different degrees of saturation, special means must be employed to make the voltage component of the field proportional to the current in the voltage coil, otherwise the meter will not give correct measurement. The design should also be such that the increase of magnetic flux with high voltage or high current will not have a retarding action but will act only to increase the torque. If the retarding effect is not prevented, the meter will, of course, run slow at overloads. A comparative test of meters at varying load and at varying voltages will reveal the characteristics of the magnetic circuit, and is recommended.

(b) The moving element usually consists of a light metal disk or cylinder revolving through the air gap in which the rotating or shifting field is produced. This disk acts like the squirrel cage rotor of an induction motor. Currents are induced in it which combine with the rotating field to produce a torque or pull proportional to the power in the circuit. This torque is counter balanced by that of the retarding element (c) so that the speed is exactly proportional to the torque.

To make the wear on the bearing a minimum and thus give a long life to the meter, the disk should be made as light as possible consistent with strength. It should also be of uniform thickness and free from holes or irregularities, which tend to make the meter stick at certain positions at light load.

The proper speed of the moving element is determined by two factors, its effect on the life of the bearings and convenience in checking. Within the limits of permissible speed, that speed should be selected which renders calculation most easy, preferably a multiple of 5 or 25.

(To be continued)

Mr. W. E. Smith in New Position

Our Mr. W. E. Smith, of the Oracle department, has accepted a position with H. A. Mackie, of 853 Broadway, as general manager and entered on his duties last week. Mr. Smith will still continue to enlighten our readers on matters pertaining to the electrical branch of the motion pictures through his Oracle department in the News, and we wish him much success in his new field.

PICTURE SHOW IN GARDEN

Big Building Will Not Be Sold If Experiments Succeed

A novel departure will be made by the management of Madison Square Garden, New York, on Thursday, May 25, when the big auditorium will be turned into a moving picture show, with a women's orchestra as an added attraction.

For years the big Garden has been a non-paying institution in the summer months. The horse show, dog show, automobile exhibition, motor boat display and various other sporting and commercial shows and expositions occupy the Garden during the fall, winter and spring. The circus invariably marks the end of the exhibition season, and for four months the income is cut off. This has been one of the reasons for trying to sell the Garden, as the summer months have eaten up all the profits of the remainder of the year.

The picture show will be continuous from 1 to 11 p. m., and every precaution will be taken to keep it up to the high standard of the usual Garden shows and exhibitions. Should the experiment prove a success the Garden will be given over to moving picture shows four months every year, and the building will be withdrawn from sale.

Mandan, N. Dak.—The Topic Theater was destroyed by fire. Loss, $1,000.

Wilmington, Del.—The Lyric Theater here was destroyed by fire. Loss, $100,000.

Princeton, Ind.—The Kidd opera house, which was destroyed by fire, will be rebuilt.

Nevada, Ill.—The plans for the new Princess Theater to be erected here have been completed.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Crawford Orndorf has sold the Star Theater to its former owner, A. L. Helton, who will remodel it.

EVERY EXHIBITOR reads the Moving Picture News.
ADVERTISEMENTS BRING RESULTS

INDEPENDENT RELEASES

MONDAY: American, Champion, Eclair, Imp, Yankee.

TUESDAY: Bison, Powers, Thanhouser.

WEDNESDAY: Ambrosio, Champion, Nestor, Reliance, Solax.

THURSDAY: American, Imp, Itala, Rex.

FRIDAY: Bison, Lux, Solax, Thanhouser, Yankee.

SATURDAY: Great Northern, Itala, Powers, Reliance.

ANDREWS PICTURES, Ltd.

Have been granted some exclusive positions for cinematographing THEIR MAJESTIES' CORONATION PROCESSION on June 22nd next.

Approximate length 650 feet. Code word, "Corona"

Also the ROYAL PROCESSION of June 23rd, including the Illuminations along the line of route.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Ropill"

THE REVIEW AT SPITHEAD on June 24th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Respit"

And the ROYAL PROCESSION through the North-East of London on June 29th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code Word, "Ropel"

All above subjects at 3½d (Three Pence Halfpenny) Per Foot Net. Terms 50% Cash with Order. Balance C. O. D. to Agent or Carriers.

Address 90 CHARING CROSS ROAD, LONDON, W. C.
Cable "ANDREORA, London." Code A B C. 5th Edition.

THE SALES COMPANY

The following films have been released during the week of May 29th by the Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.:

May 29—Three of a Kind (Imp).....
May 29—Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder (American) .....
May 29—The Ranch Tenor (American).....
May 29—The Birth-Mark (Yankee).....
May 29—Peril of Diaz (Champion).....
May 29—The Two Gardeners (Eclair).....
May 30—Redskin's Bravery (Bison).....
May 30—Saddling and Riding a Bucking Bronco (Bison) .....
May 30—A Wartime Wooing (Thanhouser)..
May 30—Civilization (Powers) .....
May 31—A Marvelous Cow (Solax).....
May 31—Dad's Girl (Reliance).....
May 31—How He Redeemed Himself (Champion) .....
May 31—Tweedledum's Dream (Ambrosio)..
May 31—Exploits of Napoleon Admirer (Ambrosio) .....
May 31—The Savage (Nestor).....
May 31—A Sure Cure (Nestor).....
June 1—The Last Appeal (Imp).....
June 1—The Sheepman's Daughter (American) .....
June 1—The Collector's Purse (Itala).....
June 1—International Exhibition (Itala)....
June 1—The Monogram J. O. (Rex).....
June 2—His Romance (Yankee).....
June 2—Tale of the Foothills (Bison).....
June 2—A Circus Stowaway (Thanhouser)..
June 2—Never Too Late to Mend (Solax)..
June 2—Just Bill's Luck (Lux).....
June 2—Arnold Has a Good Try (Lux)....
June 3—Eyes that See Not (Powers).....
June 3—In Flowers Paled (Reliance).....
June 3—Knows All, Anthropological Dr. (Itala) .....

THE BIGGEST FEATURE PICTURES EVER MADE

"THE COWBOY AND INDIAN FRONTIER CELEBRATION" HELD AT CHEYENNE, WYO., AND REVIEWED BY COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

3,000 feet of the greatest Wild West motion pictures in the world, showing the West as it was.

A masterpiece in photography, clear and intensely interesting throughout.

Will rent them for $10.00 a day.

Ten one-sheet colored posters free.

You pay express both ways.

Write for dates to the

TOURNAMENT FILM CO.
FRANKFORT, KY.

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation
and slides for every purpose made to order
GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!

Motion Picture Machines, $35; Powers Cameragraph No. 5, only $110; Edison Kinetoscope, $45; Fort Wayne Compensarc, $35; 20 Century Marvel, cost $150, only $110; Get Sup. 33 Bargain List Machines Supplies, etc., Motion Picture Machines Wanted.

HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST THEATRE CHAIR

Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving.
To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

HALLBERG
THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"

SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.

I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.

Free Catalogue No. N 1

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City.

Some More "Laemmle Luck"

When I was the only person not hurt in an auto smashup the other day, everybody said "more Laemmle luck." When they hear of the wonderful success of the Laemmle Film Service and its customers, they say "more Laemmle luck." Very well. If you care for a slice of "Laemmle luck" hook up with the biggest and best film renter in the world and do it without further jockeying.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
209 Fifth St., Des Moines, Iowa.
The biggest and best film renter in the world.

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

"CIVILIZATION"
Powers' Release Tuesday, May 30

A masterpiece of Indian life showing how the redskin of old fought the advance of Civilization and endeavored to rule his tribe as his forefathers had done. The theme is beautiful, the scenic effects are superb.

"EYES THAT SEE NOT"
Powers' Release June 3

A drama that is different, showing how the perseverance of a good woman eventually leads the usual man from the pitfalls of life into the beautiful sunshine of happiness, and love. We want to call your attention particularly to the acting and settings used in this production. This is the first appearance of some of the new members of our stock company, and they certainly have outdone their past successes to make this production one long to be remembered.

"THE MARVELOUS COW"
Solax Release, May 31

Jones, becoming tired of city life, decides to move to the country. We find him and his wife sitting on the front porch of their new country home, admiring it and its pretty surroundings. Now that they are living in the country, Mrs. Jones decides they must have a cow, and she forthwith induces Mr. Jones to go forth in search of one. Poor Jones, absolutely ignorant of the points to be considered in purchasing a cow, has a hard time of it, but finally he comes trudging wearily homeward, leading by a rope the object of his long pilgrimage.

Highly elated, Jones and his wife get a pail and set it under the cow, but much to their surprise, no milk is forthcoming, and Jones, after doing everything within his power and limited knowledge to promote the flow of milk, gives it up as a hopeless job, and advertises for a professional milkman. The position is readily filled, and Jones, in his elation, invites all the neighbors and friends in to take part in the milkfest, not knowing that the cow could not possibly supply the quantity of milk which would be wanted. Of course, the cow's supply of milk is soon exhausted, and Fritz, the new milkman, in his anxiety to please, stops a milkwagon and buys the full supply of milk and butter. Jones, on the front porch, continues to distribute with a lavish hand the products of the cow, the while he sings her praises.

Everything goes merrily on, and finally the guests depart loaded down with butter and milk and with nothing but praise for Jones and his wonderful cow. But when the milkman comes around in the morning with the bill for milk and butter that Fritz has contracted—well, Jones is ready to admit that perhaps after all his cow is no different from thousands of other bovines.

"NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND"
Solax Release, June 2d

Jack Pierce, a handsome private of a United States regiment, is stricken with the dreaded disease, consumption. Upon passing a physical examination, he is told that he must leave the heavy air of the Eastern states and go to the Southwestern Territory, Mexico. He obtains a leave of absence from his colonel, and we see him starting on his journey for old Mexico.

Arrived at his destination, he takes rooms in an old Mexican Inn, where he meets the beautiful daughter of the proprietor. After a short and ardent courtship he marries the Mexican girl, not realizing for the moment what a difference there was in their stations of life.

After the lapse of a few happy months he receives a call from his regiment to return East for duty. What is he to do? He cannot bring his Mexican wife along with him, and he cannot very well leave her alone. He now realizes the mistake he has made in marrying a woman so far beneath him. After a sleepless night and great mental anguish he decides that the call to arms must be obeyed at any cost, and, accordingly, he prepares to leave his wife.

Twenty-five years pass, and Juan, the son that was born a few days after Jack's departure, has grown to manhood. Born in the open and unrestricted and uncontrolled by fatherly advice, he early falls in with bad companions. As a result at an early age we find him with a vicious gang of cattle thieves, rapidly becoming to be known to be the most daring and bloodthirsty of the whole Southwest.

The depredations of this nefarious gang of thieves become so numerous that complaint is sent to the U. S. Army and a regiment is sent to the Southwestern Territory, headed by no other than our hero, Jack Pierce. Arrived at the scenes of pillage they at once proceed to scour the country for the gang. They surprise them in active operation, and after a running fight, they capture Juan, who has become weak from loss of blood from a wound. Entering the village Jack recognizes it as being the place where he spent the many happy months with his Mexican wife, and as they proceed down the main thoroughfare and approach the Inn, a feeling of remorse and shame seizes him. As they near the Inn he sees a woman standing in the doorway, and upon closer examination he finds it to be his Mexican wife, and after explanations are offered a happy reunion follows. But Juan, the bandit, must be dealt with. It is a case of official duty, and fatherly love. But the great love that has been awakened for his own triumphs over all, and we see Jack write his resignation and again take his rightful place in the midst of his family, happy in the undying love of his wife and the promise of his son to be an honest and upright man.

"SERVICE UNDER JOHNSTON AND LEE"
Champion Release, June 5

Robert Downey was one of the tried and true soldiers who saw service under both of these great captains, and to one of these he was very close, for he had married Alice Johnston, the General's daughter. Robert was living peacefully and happy with his young wife and child, when hostilities broke out—and then was enacted in that quiet Virginia home the heart-rending scene which had its counterpart in those terrible days, everywhere throughout the land, "The Breaking of the Home-Ties."

Our young hero served humbly but gloriously the cause he loved, and rejoiced in being ever near his distinguished relative and leader; and so it came to his lot to receive him in his arms and bear him from the field of carnage, when he was struck down on that fatal day of May 31st, 1862, at Seven Pines.

And now was the army over-shadowed by a threatened catastrophe, through reason of the incompetent hands into which it had fallen; but the masterful Lee arose and snatched victory from the jaws of defeat; and so it came about that Robert Downey was fighting under a new and glorious leader.

Time wore on, until one day sorrowful tidings came to Robert of his beloved ones. It was a message to repair at once to his home and take their darling child to Richmond and to safety, and not leave her to the mercy of the vultures of war by whom she was then surrounded.

With the coming of that dolorous message to Robert, came also disaster. In the short and swift conflict of Yellow Tavern, the same year, he fell into the hands of the enemy. In his breast now raged a deeper emotion than he ever experienced in any physical conflict in which he had heretofore taken part. The wife of his bosom no more, and his beloved child alone and unprotected, he decided on a desperate course.

Pretending illness, the sentry on guard, all unsuspecting, came to his side. In an instant Robert seized him by the throat and bore him to the ground. The struggle was soon over, and the prisoner, like a grey-hound, dashed away, free!

Hotly pursued, he reached the Confederate lines and was brought before Lee, to whom he told his story, showing him the letter from his daughter. The General's heart was moved, and with a fervent blessing he gave him a passport and started him on his mission. Making his way through the lines of the enemy, Robert succeeded in reaching his home, where he had the happiness of pressing his daughter to his heart; but, alas! his presence had been discovered, and soon the door of his house was battered down and the Federals poured in.

While the men started their search in one direction, their officer turned in another, to find his passage blocked by—the child. Kindly, but firmly, he put her aside, and soon the father was uncovered. It looked to be all over with him now, but the sweet child pleaded with the Union officer, and told her sad story, which her father corroborated with his letter and passport. The officer was touched, and sending Robert back into the other room, and pretending to his men that his search had been fruitless as their own, he marched them off, leaving the father and child to pursue their way to Richmond.

And so, it was with a heart full of gratitude to God that Robert Downey pressed his beloved offspring once more to his bosom.

"THE COST OF DRINK"

Champion Release, June 7

In this Western picture we have a phase of life not peculiar to any part of the globe, but as we see it here portrayed in a way that is calculated to stir the blood of the most sluggish, for the vivid picturing of this theme is due in this case largely to the high coloring of the Western amosphere, with its rugged and unusual conventions.

The story deals at first with a true Western love romance. The woman in the case is Martha Orme, a splendid type of femininity of that section.

Bill Edwards, the foreman of F. Carson ranch, loves her, but to him she says nay, and poor Bill goes off dejectedly. Then comes along Bob Longford, a splendid specimen of manhood. He proposes and is accepted. But Bob drinks, and drinks, and it soon comes to pass that he loses his finer feelings and grows ugly dispositioned and brutal to the woman he swore to love and cherish, as do all drunkards.

He finally loses his position; then, all his self-respect gone, he goes to the gin-mill to trade off his chaps and spurs for drink—the things which are necessary for him to live by—to gain a subsistence with. Then, when he has squandered his last cent, and his boon companions had turned their backs on him, when he saw how they thrust him from them, his mind befuddled, and his passions unbridled by liquor, he drew his gun and fired. The next minute a fearful struggle ensued, and he went down to death by his own weapon—in his own hand; and thus was he brought home a corpse to his heart-sore and heart-broken wife. Oh, what a price he paid for Drink!!

But fate, which is sometimes cruel, is not always so; she can be kind at times, as she was in this instance to Bill Edwards. He came with the boys and broke the news to his old sweetheart. He was every inch a man, however, and would not think of taking advantage of the circumstance.

Martha had long since realized the great mistake she had made in turning Bill aside for a man who put that into his mouth which robbed him of his soul—of his very God! and so she turned to Bill now for consolation, and Bill was not averse, for he still loved her, and a joyous time came to them both a year after Bob had been put away.

In these days of mighty censorships, this film story should have great vogue for the lesson it teaches is truth! "Which is mighty and must prevail." Indeed, more powerful in its directness than the great temperance story of "Ten Nights in a Bar-room," is the realistic Western story of "The Cost of Drink."

"THE GRIND"

"Imp" Release, June 5

A story of college life which rings true. David Collins, an honest, unsophisticated young man, studiously inclined, enters a university to prepare for the struggle with the world. He is spotted the instant he appears on the campus and is dubbed a "grind" instanter, and the students decide to make life miserable for the new arrival.

He is attacked and subjected to all sorts of insults, his tormentors taking keen delight in giving him the third degree. David marvels at his reception, but decides to bide his time. He seeks the seclusion of his room and tries to study, but the din in the room below is terrific, and he decides to put a summary stop to it. Gaining an entrance to the room in which the students are enjoying themselves in a hilarious way, he is once more humbled, the scene ending by his being thrown downstairs. He goes to his room again, and his life is made miserable.

David concludes to turn the tables on his tormentors, and seeks the services of an instructor in boxing. The young man is an apt pupil, and rapidly takes on the rudiments of the art of self-defense, as he is an athlete.

After the final lesson his tormentors are lying in wait for him, eager to resume the sport. To their consternation David enters into the spirit of the occasion with a zest that bodes no good o the hazers. He is a lion at bay, and sails into the crowd in scientific style. From the start the battle is one-sided, with David in the role of punisher literally wiping up the crowd in approved style.

Once victor, our hero repairs to his room and resumes his studies uninterrupted, while the students, thoroughly cowed, seek the seclusion of their rooms, nurse their bruises and con their books with an air of meekness which is quite in contrast to their hilarious torture of the newcomer. David jumped into favor at once, and is the hero of the hour at the institution of learning.

"THE CHICAGO STOCKYARDS FIRE"

"Imp" Release, June 5th

One of the most disastrous fires in the history of Chicago was the recent conflagration in the stockyards district in which over 500 people were rendered homeless and many lost their lives in the roaring, seething cauldron of flames which stubbornly resisted the efforts of the fire department.

It occurred in "Whisky Point," a ramshackle tenement district, in the outskirts of the Union Stockyards, the largest in the world.

The Imp Company had a camera man on the grounds immediately after the fire started and the moving picture representation is one of the most notable efforts ever made in the way of a film while laboring under handicaps.

It is pronounced the very best picture of a fire ever taken, the scene being photographed from many points. There is the spectacular work of the firemen, the falling walls, the flames shooting hundreds of feet in the air, illuminating the sky for many miles. There are scenes of horror, depicting the grief of the poor victims, being rendered homeless by the devouring element, the hasty removing of household effects from the tumble down dwellings and the miraculous escapes from danger of those fleeing from the flames or fighting the blaze. The camera man took many chances to get the views, often being obliged to flee with his garments on fire to avoid being burned to death.

"BACK TO THE SOIL"

"Imp" Release, June 8th

George Dupont, a young farmer, is living with his parents on the farm, while his sweetheart, Sadie Allen, resides on an adjoining farm. George finds rural life irksome and is satisfied that he has talent as an artist. He longs to attend art school in the city, having read of fabulous sums received for paintings. He resolves to quit the farm for a career, despite the protests of his father; but his mother, wrapped up in her son, gives him money she has saved by years of economy and he goes to the city to gratify his ambition. He departs, bidding adieu to his parents and sweetheart.

He enters a school of art. The professor encourages him, having an eye to the main chance, as the student has money, but the pupils laugh at his efforts and he is the butt of many a joke. He writes home, giving glowing accounts of his progress, and the mother and sweetheart are happy, but his father is skeptical.

A year passes and his money is exhausted, so the instructor tells him he has no talent and dismisses him from the school. George tries to write home of his failure, but his nerve fails him. Meanwhile those at home have been waiting in vain for a letter, so Sadie resolves to go to the city and look him up.

She takes lodgings in the same house with him in an adjoining room and pays the rent of his room without his knowledge. George offers the landlady one of his paintings to satisfy her, but she indignantly refuses it. His sweetheart buys the painting from the landlady, inducing her to take it, and thus aiding him without his knowledge, the landlady refusing to divulge the name of the buyer.

George decides to return to the farm and packs his belongings, his sweetheart listening on the other side of the wall, satisfied with her mission. Sad, Sadie returns home without his knowing that she was near him.

Arriving at home George finds Sadie there and they concoct a little joke on his parents. Finding a pair of boots in the barn, he dons them and goes into the field to plow. Sadie calls out the father and mother and points to the field and the old man gets his dinner bell and rings it, summoning the help to dinner.

The father and mother and Sadie and the farm hands seat themselves at table. George enters the dining-room without attracting attention and then gives way to his grief, breaking down entirely when there is a general awakening. His plate is piled high with food and the wanderer is welcomed home with warmth, satisfied with the farm and its environments and above all with his faithful sweetheart.

"THE STEPMOTHER"

Thanhouser Release, Tuesday, June 6th

When the two little daughters of a young widower are told that he is preparing to bring up to the house to see them a young lady who is to be their new mamma, they are at once plunged into the depths of despair. They feel that their home will be no longer bearable if they are to have a stepmother, so they run away to go out into the world to earn their own living.

Their father is very much worried as well as indignant at their departure. He sets the police at work to locate them. and when they are found, determines to bring them home, and teach them once for all that he is master in his own house.

But this is where the prospective stepmother, who is a practical business woman and a diplomat, shows her good sense. She persuades the father to allow her to win the girls over in her own way. This she does by taking a room in the same poor lodging house to which the girls have fled. Here she introduces herself to them as the lodger across the hall, and the girls, in a short time, grow to love her dearly and to rely entirely on her judgment. She arranges with them to become reconciled to their father, and assures them that she knows he would not marry if they did not desire it. The girls go back to their home, thoroughly penitent, but full of glowing accounts of their charming new friend, from whom they exact a promise that she will come to see them often. They finally decide that home would be much happier if she were there all the time, so they sternly command their father to marry "their lady" unless he wishes to incur the everlasting displeasure of his daughters. Father, with seeming reluctance, consents, and all family discord is at an end.

MOTORING

Thanhouser Release, June 6th

A young millionaire, whose hobby is mechanics, takes his newly overhauled car out for a trial spin, and he would have laughed had anybody told him that it was to be the most eventful trip of his life. For the young man was heart free but impressionable, and when he saw a pretty young woman in the road, asking him to help her, he stopped and would have done so even had his time been really important.

The young woman, with her aunt, was taking an auto trip too, and something went wrong with the engine. Her chauffeur was able to stop the car, but be could not start it again. All he could do was to poke the works of the machine with a chisel and remark that something seemed to be radically wrong.

The millionaire rendered first aid to the injured auto by producing a long rope, and towing it to a nearby roadhouse. There he had time to investigate, and not being a professional chauffeur, he was able to get thing right in a jiffy.

The regular chauffeur was much grieved, and his sorrow increased when the aunt came out and chatted with him regarding his shortcomings. In a rage the chauffeur quit his job on the spot, leaving his passengers stranded far from home.

What more natural than that the aunt should ask the young man to run her car? He looked like a chauffeur, and she thought he was a chauffeur. He didn't want the job, of course, but he did want to see more of the pretty girl. And like the aunt, he too had made a mistake. He thought the well-born, well-to-do girl a lady's maid.

The girl induced her aunt to let her carry on the deception, "just for a lark," and the maid and the chauffeur enjoyed the trip immensely. She learned how to run an automobile and he learned that the most unfortunate men in the world were the blind ones who could not see the beautiful girl he gazed at so fondly. It was natural that he should ask the privilege of calling upon her, and it was natural that she should refuse, as the joke had gone far enough. But she accidentally learned who her chauffeur really was, and her heart was filled with gladness. For she found that he was a man worthy of her love.

But he had been tricking her, so she decided to give him some of his own medicine. She allowed him to call, but received him in the kitchen, introduced the cook as her mother and in other ways tested his devotion. To her joy she found that his love for her could overlook and forgive all drawbacks, so in the end she revealed herself to him in her proper guise, and made him happy by agreeing to be his wife, and to motor through life by his side.

THE RESCUE OF MR. HENPECK

Here are a few hundred feet of funny film that give an accurate depiction of a recent adventure of a certain chap by name o' Henpeck, and much genuine entertainment will be afforded Apron-String-Hubbies and some others.

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, MAY 27TH

THE LOVE OF A GIPSY GIRL

FEATURE DRAMA

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 3RD

THE BOGUS GOVERNESS

ONE OF THE BEST SHERLOCK HOLMES DETECTIVE FILMS EVER PRODUCED

SECURE A BOOKING OF THIS ATTRACTION AT ONCE

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

ALL UP-TO-DATE INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT—THE FILMS THAT SATISFY

"THE SCANDAL MONGER"

Yankee Film Company Release, June 5th

Joe Manly, a handsome young country lad who owns the village blacksmith shop, has just been married to the belle of the village, Jim Webster's daughter, Mary.

Everything is going along smoothly, until one day Mr. Forbes, a respectable gentleman, who has stopped to have a loose shoe on his horse adjusted, meets Mary.

Later, Mary again meets Mr. Forbes accidentally, and is seen talking to him by Si Butterworth, the village gossip, who carries the news, highly exaggerated, to the villagers.

The news at last reaches the ears of the husband, who becomes the laughing stock of the town. This preys upon his mind so that he neglects his business and becomes a drunkard. His wife returns to her parents.

The father of Mary, a very prominent citizen, runs down the source of gossip and threatens to horsewhip the author of it.

The sheriff, interfering, saves Si from a whipping. The father seeks Mr. Forbes, the second innocent party, and between them they effect a reconciliation between Mary and her husband. With renewed hopes they seek to nail the mischievous tale-bearer, and eventually get him to confess that the rumors he started were merely malicious lies.

As a fit punishment he is ducked in the pond while the villagers cheer his helpless struggles as he tries to dodge the missiles thrown at him.

"MRS. BIFFINS' DEMISE"

Yankee Film Co. Release, June 9

Willie Jones, a persistent young book agent, calls on Mr. Biffins at his office and endeavors to sell him a set of books. Biffins despises book agents and drives Willie away in scorn; but Willie is destined to come into the life of Biffins again, unknown to either one and create havoc in the quiet Quaker household of Biffins.

Willie making a canvass in the residential district meets a pretty little Quakeress who is none other than Biffins' own daughter. Willie finds her a willing subscriber on the installment plan. The mother, a quite dignified Quakeress, does not object to her daughter having the books. For other reasons besides collecting the payments, Willie is a frequent caller.

Biffins is in the dark for a while, but one day he comes upon the lovers billing and cooing and what Biffins says and does to Willie would daunt the heart of any gay Lothario; but Willie possesses true Yankee grit, besides his winning ways, which has not only made him a successful book agent, but also successful in love.

The mother of the girl likes Willie, besides, it is her daughter's first love, and she pleads with Biffins to sanction the union of hearts; but nothing doing in that line for Biffins. No book agent shall ever marry his child. Now, Biffins is a straight-laced man and was never known by his Quaker wife to take of drink of anything strong. Unknown to the good wife, Biffins takes a little stimulant for his nerve, but to hide the fact from his loving ones, he labels the bottle "Poison," and cautions his family not to touch it. This is for external use only, which he is supposed to apply on a sprained wrist.

After a stormy scene with his weeping daughter and wife regarding the marriage of the book agent and the girl, he goes to his office. Mrs. Biffins is left alone in sorrow. She decides that her life is not worth while, and makes up her mind to die. She orders a wreath from the florist, dons her old wedding dress and, taking Biffin's bottle marked poison, she drinks a goodly portion and waits for death. But the grim monster is slow in coming, so she takes a little more, and with tears she is bidding her home a long farewell. While waiting for the fatal potion to take effect, the wreath of flowers arrives. The poison now seems to be getting in its work. She drops on the sofa, drags the wreath over her chest, dead to the world. At this stage her sister calls. The sister almost faints with fear. She sees the farewell letter, the poison bottle and other evidence of preparations for the other world, so, grasping the letter she hastens off to the office of Biffins and poor Biffins reading it gets the shock of his life. Together they hasten to a doctor's office, and the trio start for Biffin's home. One glance at Mrs. Biffins, laid out in her bridal robe, is enough to stun the distracted husband. The doctor calls for water.

The sister hastens for some. The first thing she finds is a big sprinkling can of the garden variety. This she carries to the doctor, who waves it aside and orders drinking water. Again she exits. In the meantime the learned medico gets the aroma of the poison and aside to Biffins inquires if his wife is temperate in her habits. Biffins assures him that she is, but he looks at the bottle, and the truth dawns on him. He whispers to the doctor, and a smile mantles the doctor's face. Then they both smile as they take a nip from the poison marked bottle. The doctor leaves a prescription for a throbbing head and takes his leave.

Biffins looks about with a humorous twinkle in his eye, and picking up the sprinkling can proceeds to moisten the wreath of flowers on Mrs. Biffins' chest.

In the meantime Willie and the little Quakeress, in blissful ignorance of the near tragedy, 'neath the apple blossom, have settled their own affair.

ANOTHER ENTERPRISE TRIUMPH

A Motiograph Watch Fob FREE

To every Theatre Manager and Operator, no matter what machine you have. It is yours for the asking—just as High-Class as THE MOTIOGRAPH itself.

YOU WANT IT NOW—
WE WANT YOU TO HAVE IT.
A HANDSOME GOLD FOB FREE

You won't be ashamed to wear it—We are not ashamed to give it away. Write today.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO., Makers of the MOTIOGRAPH 564 W. Randolph St., CHICAGO, ILL.

"$5,000 REWARD, DEAD OR ALIVE"

A "Flying A" Cowboy Masterpiece

The American Company, of Chicago, are firm believers in the oft-repeated axiom that "it pays to advertise"—not only for themselves but for the exhibitor.

The title of one of their coming releases, "$5,000 Reward, Dead or Alive," is surely that which is ordinarily termed a "crowd-getting" title. We are informed that the picture so entitled is a comedy drama and is a feature production in every respect.

The astounding progress evidenced in the recent releases of the American Company augurs well for the popularity of subject as announced above. In this connection the title of the release of the American Company for Monday, May 29th, is one that will be conducive of increased receipts to the exhibitor. "Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder" is a Flying A Cowboy comedy film and has, for a reel-mate, subject entitled "The Ranch Tenor."

If the subject, theme and story of the "Flying A" films, announced as above, approach their titles in originality and advertising value, the Independent exhibitors throughout the United States have a sure enough treat in store for them.

Two Yankee Features

MONDAY, JUNE 5TH

"THE SCANDALMONGER"

A Rural Drama Combining Pathos and Laughter

FRIDAY, JUNE 9TH

"MRS. BIFFINS' DEMISE"

A Refined Mirth-Provoking Comedy

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

344 East 32d St., New York City

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THE MOTIOGRAPH WATCH FOB

We desire to call the attention of our readers, this week, to the advertisement of the Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co., which appears in this issue, in which they offer free to every Manager and Operator of a Motion Picture Theater a very attractive watch fob; besides being a souvenir, it makes a splendid gift and a useful one. It is unique in design, attractive and rich in appearance, and it is the wish of the Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co. for the readers of this paper to take advantage of this offer, as they have gone to considerable expense to make this fob one of the best which has ever been offered as a souvenir in this country.

As will be seen by the illustration in their advertisement, this fob illustrates the Motiograph Motion Picture Machine, and on the reverse side, in neat lettering is only the name of the makers, and no one could have an objection to wearing as handsome and useful a souvenir as this, particularly at this season of the year, when the weather necessitates the discarding of heavy clothing.

As the 1911 catalog issued by this company is now ready for distribution, they will be glad to send one to anyone interested.

The New York Film Renovating Co.

The above concern, located at 12 Union Square, whose announcement appears in this issue, report that their business is showing a remarkable increase. They are supplying films of any subject obtainable. They are the newest people in this line, and from our own observation their sales have been phenomenal. This speaks well and shows that honest and reliable methods applied to business are sure to win.

That "Film They Fired a House For"

This week we are enabled to give further advance views from the film for which a house was destroyed by fire—"Flames and Fortune," released by Thanhouser Friday, June

16. In our last issue we did not give the names of the principals in the picture, and we may as well say here that they are William Garwood, as the lover; Peggy Snow, as the girl whose home is destroyed, and "The Thanhouser Kid" as the child whom the lover rescues. It is interesting to note that

3,000 feet of film were taken for this picture, out of which only a thousand feet could possibly be used. This condition naturally resulted in the impressing into the reel of only the most realistic sections of the photographed stuff. Two cameras were trained on the conflagration, and one of them operating in very close proximity to the actual "doings" caught fire twice.

FILM CHARTS

COMMENTS ON THE RUNNING OF RELEASES OF THE WEEK, AS SEEN FROM THE FOURTEENTH STREET, UNIQUE, COMEDY AND SALES COMPANY STANDS

17 DRAMATIC TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
Called Back	REX	THURS., MAY 25	Peace	Love	Fate is greater than Fancy	Enthusiastic..	The Forest Fire....	1
The Forged Dispatch	IMP	MON., MAY 22	Rivalry	Vindication	In time the world will know	Big	When Jack is struck by the bullet.....	1
A Daughter of Liberty	AMERICAN..	THUR., MAY 25	Colonial	The U. S.	The war of 1776 was not won by men alone	Big	Proof of Femininity	1
Love of a Gipsy Girl	GREAT NORTH...	SAT., MAY 27	Dance	Contrition	The Nobility of woman	Interested ..	Recognition of the Count .....'	2
The Stage Child....	THANHOUSER..	TUES., MAY 23	Separation ..	Reunion	Providence, through the agency of a child, manifests many marvels ...	Tense	Child pleading with her unknown father	2
The Minor Chord...	IMP	THURS., MAY 25	Melody	Melody and Death	Play not with a woman's heart, for it is sacred	Tears	The last	2
There's Many a Slip	RELIANCE..	WED., MAY 24	Slippery	Slippery	Verily, brothers, there's many a slip in life	Good	All the slippery ones	3
Snow Maiden	AMBROSIO..	WED., MAY 24	Good	Better	Good photography is a joy sublime	Quiet	When the operator ran away with the film	3
Get Rich Quick	THANHOUSER..	FRI., MAY 26	Rebellion ...	Remorse	Pearls made from tears cannot bring happiness	Big	When the money-crazed see the vice and the vanity of it	3
O'er Grim Fields Scarred	RELIANCE..	SAT., MAY 27	Great	Too Soon	Life's mire and muck and mockeries	Intense	The last few.....	3
Her Atonement	POWERS	TUES., MAY 23	Meeting	Meeting	Often woman's fortitude is greater than man's	Warm	Nell assuming guilt to save the name of the man she loves	4
Fifty Years Ago...	POWERS	SAT., MAY 27	Retrospect ..	Introspect	Oh, that all dreams could so come true! .....'.	Respectful ..	Fifty years have many	4
A Mother's Distress.	ECLAIR	MON., MAY 22	Heart battle.	Victory	Be strong in the hour of stress	Warm	Sacrifice of the child	4
Thwarted by Nell Pierce	YANKEE	FRI., MAY 26	Chase	Caught	Yankee goes A. Conan Doyle one better	Suspense	The capture of Nell.	5
The Two Cockades..	LUX	FRI., MAY 26	Suspected ...	Reward	A good servant of man is a saint	Applause	The old servant and his ward sentenced to death	5

Rex "Called Back" struck a responsive chord throughout. Well executed and interest-upholding. "The Stage Child," Thanhouser, convinces us that the Thanhouser kid is "there." The dramas turned out by Independent manufacturers this week are really an inspiration. May they be but a forerunner of greater things to come.

18 WESTERN TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
A Trooper's Heart..	AMERICAN..	THURS., MAY 25	Mexico	Paradise	A trooper's heart is still a man's heart	Big	Whenever the trooper is on	1
Branding a Bad Man	AMERICAN..	MON., MAY 22	Scream	More	Cowboys is awful critters	Big	Many
A Western Dream ..	AMERICAN..	MON., MAY 22	Laugh	Laugh	A dream isn't always a nightmare.	A tribute...	When we thought we were laughing too loud ..'
In the Great Big West	CHAMPION..	WED., MAY 24	East	West	East is East, and West is West—but Cupid doesn't bother about that	Warm	Breaking of the engagement	2
The Little Western Rose	YANKEE	MON., MAY 22	Ranch	Rage	A woman in love is dangerous — to those who come in her way	Big	When the noble dog dashes off with the note for help	2
The Outlaw and the Female Detective..	BISON	TUES., MAY 23	Suspected ...	Detected	Woman, woman, when will thy wonders cease?	Good	Lots of them	3
Brave Swift Eagle's Peril	BISON	FRI., MAY 26	Peril	Safety	The Indians knew how to fight for life—still they're nearly all dead...	Impressive ..	The Eagle's Flight..	3

A fast and furious race was run on this track. "A Trooper's Heart," American, won by a nose. "The Little Western Rose," and "The Outlaw and the Female Detective," were neck and neck, but the Yankee film managed it just before the wire was reached. Jockey American had a trifle too much weight, but it was good. All in all, a hard race to decide.

EXHIBITORS WATCH THESE CHARTS EVERY WEEK
INTERESTING REVIEWS OF INDEPENDENT FILMS

Copyrighted by Charles Reynolds, 1911

FILM CHARTS--Continued

19 COMEDY TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT	RAN
The Devil in a Tin Cup	SOLAX	WED., MAY 24	Circus	Funny	Don't believe in a devil, and save a lot of annoyance..	Fine	When the hoax is discovered	1
The House of Peace.	SOLAX	WED., MAY 24	Noise	Poise	"It's an ill wind," etc.	Solid	When Solemm acts the Solomon	1
The Waistcoat With Points	ECLAIR	MON., MAY 22	Pointed	Laughter	Don't fall for all the advertising signs..	Roar	When he falls for it	2
Foolshead, Life Insurance Agent	ITALA	SAT., MAY 27	Hope	Soap	A life insurance agent is often the one who most needs insurance ..	Hearty	When we thought he was dead, and found a spark of life still in him...	2

Well, to begin, Solax is turning out comedies that are comic. Our only regret was that the reel was only one thousand feet. "The Waistcoat With Points," Eclair, scored a big hit, and deserved it. The American Western comedies have sparkle and vim. Keep it up!

20 EDUCATIONAL TRACK

ENTRIES	OWNER	RELEASED	START	FINISH	MORAL	RECEPTION	BIGGEST MOMENT
At Panther Creek ..	NESTOR	WED., MAY 24	The Start ...	The Top	If it's in you, it'll come out, however handicapped you are	Big	Those in the mine..	1
With Sheridan at Murfreesboro	CHAMPION.	MON., MAY 22	War	Peace	The end of all strife is calm	Hearty	Sentenced to be shot at sunrise	1
Tidying Up Paris ..	LUX	FRI., MAY 26	Soil	Brooms	Parisians D. S. C. can teach New York a trick	Good	The foreman of the street cleaners bowing	2
The Fountains of Rome	ITALA	SAT., MAY 27	Neat	Sweet	Who'd drink intoxicants looking upon water such as this?	Big	At the biggest fountain	3

This track is on the right track. Nestor combines in an unique and wholly pleasing manner a well-rounded plot, and an industrial film of much merit. Sheridan brings the Champ to the front in a maze of glory. Lux teaches us that an energetic and systematic stret-cleaning department can accomplish wonders. "The Fountains of Rome," Itala, are a fountain of joy. Oh, you educational films, this week you deserve the victor's wreath.

"Chicago Stockyards Fire"—Imp.

One of the Imp's camera men happened to be near the Chicago stockyards when the reeent disastrous fire broke out. He "snapped" over a thousand feet of film, showing the spectacular work of the firemen, the falling walls, the destruction of millions of dollars' worth of property and narrow escapes from death. The best five hundred feet of these scenes have been arranged for early release and should prove a winner on any program beeause of its departure from the general run of pictures.

St. Louis, Mo.—A new vaudeville theater to cost $250,000 will be erected here.

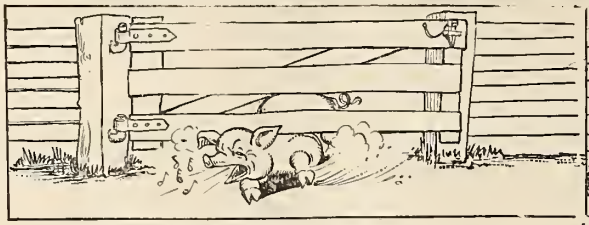
Baltimore, Md.—Plans have been prepared by F. R. Loomey for Schmidt & Cook for a building to be erected at Madison and Gold streets, to cost $10,000.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The Saxe Amusement Co., of this city, will erect a new theater at Sixth and Villa streets, Racine, Wis

To Advertisers

In placing the MOVING PICTURE NEWS before the advertisers of films, machines, electrical apparatus, supply houses, exchanges, &c., we desire to call attention to the fact that our publication is the foremost one catering to the interests of the trade and advocating the uplifting of the industry to a place it should rightfully occupy. That we are meeting with success in our efforts can easily be judged from the rapid strides we are making. The News to-day is recognized as an authority on all subjects pertaining to cinematography, and from correspondence in our possession we can show that this claim is genuine.

Frequently we are advised by our advertisers that letters have been received by them from parties desiring to further their own interests and with intent to rob the NEWS of its standing among the trade, and while this has not to our knowledge had any effect we only desire to reiterate our claim: We publish the most reliable, extensively circulated, fearless, honest Moving Picture trade paper in America. Do you want your advertising in a paper of this class?



"What makes more noise than a pig under a fence?"

"TWO pigs!"

"What brings you more money than an 'Imp' every week?"

"TWO Imps every week!"

TELL your exchange you simply must have the Imp release of Monday, June 5. It is a split reel, containing a corking good picture of the terrible Chicago Stockyards fire, one of the most spectacular fire pictures ever snapped! It will be intensely interesting to your audiences. On the same reel you will find "The Grind," a dandy comedy showing how college students haze one of their classmates and how he gets a sweet revenge. On Thursday, June 8, we release "Back To The Soil," a comedy drama of city and country life that leaves a good taste in the mouth and a soft feeling in the heart."

THIS Imp Lobby Display is making a terrific hit with exhibitors everywhere. It is 3½ feet wide by 2½ feet high; wide oak frame with heavily glassed openings; ten fine photographs. Send for descriptive circular or send $5 and get frame and ten photos complete. Also send us your name and address for our mailing list. Also get your exchange to give you an early booking on the Imp's glorious Decoration Day film, "The Forged Dispatch."

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America.
102 West 101st St., New York.
Carl Laemmle, Pres.

INDEPENDENT MOVING PICTURES CO. IMP OF AMERICA

Risk a Penny or Two

Drop us a line and we will obtain for you any film or subject, old or new, that you are looking for at a very reasonable price.

NEW YORK FILM RENOVATING CO.

12 UNION SQUARE, EAST
NEW YORK :: :: NEW YORK

DER KINEMATOGRAPH, DUSSELDORF

The leading Organ for the Motion Picture Trade in Germany.

Special Supplement for Talking Machines, &c.
Published every Wednesday. Annual Subscription 11/- Post Free.
Advertisements (4 columns to page); 2s. 6d. per inch. Situations Wanted, 1½d. per line.
Reduced Price for a Series of Insertions.
Publisher—Ed. LINTZ. Chief Editor—EMIL PERLMANN.

NORDISK FILM TIDNING

The first trade paper in Scandinavia.
Best advertising medium in North Europe.
Subscription 6 shillings.
Sample copy free upon request.

Editor, A. SEABURY, Post Box 163, Stockholm, Sweden.

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"All Wise Independents Buy and Boost Flying A Cowboy Films"

When you think of WESTERN—think of "FLYING A COWBOY" films.

RELEASE OF MONDAY, MAY 29

"RATTLESNAKES AND GUNPOWDER"

and

"THE RANCH TENOR"

Two "Flying A Cowboy" comedies on one reel. A combination of laughable explosions and song. Both real Comedy—both real Cowboy.

Scene from "The Ranch Tenor."

Scene from "Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder."

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JUNE 1

"THE SHEEPMAN'S DAUGHTER"

An epic of the Range. Depicting, in a vividly dramatic manner, the feud between the Cattlemen and the Sheepmen on our Western plains. A masterpiece in Western production.

COMING--NEXT WEEK

TWO MORE FLYING A's

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JUNE 5
Flying A Cowboy Comedy—split reel.

"THE SAGE BRUSH PHRENOLOGIST" and "THE ELOPEMENTS ON DOUBLE L RANCH."

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JUNE 8
Flying A Cowboy comedy-drama.

"$5000 REWARD, DEAD OR ALIVE"

First scene in "The Sheepman's Daughter."

For Heaven's sake, get two Cowboy films a week—Flying A's. Ask your exchange for them

MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS

Last scene in "The Sheepman's Daughter."

American Film Mfg. Co.,

Bank Floor, Ashland Block
CHICAGO, ILLS.

"A SURE CURE"
Nestor Release, May 31

His daughter, Dora, so Major Breeze irritably declared, seemed to divide her thoughts between the young doctor, Jack Wells, and amateur photography; the latter he would tolerate, but the former he had sternly forbidden his house. She felt almost like drinking some of her deadly poisonous solution of chromic acid, so the girl told him, but disrespectful Dr. Wells suggested that she give it to the Major instead.

This flippant remark gave Dora an idea. The solution of chromic acid was about the color of her father's whisky. They could put the chromic acid label on his bottle, trusting to his near-sightedness not to observe it; then, after he had taken a good, big drink, Dora would point to the label and make him think he was poisoned.

Jack's fellow colleagues, in the vicinity, were to be let into the secret, and when called, tell the poor Major that his case was utterly hopeless; it would then be Dr. Wells' cue to appear—marvelously cure the old gentleman, and as a reward receive his happy daughter.

The whole scheme worked like a charm; the young people, however, had no sooner received the Major's blessing, than they hurried him off to the Rev. Geo. Brooks, taking no chances, should the old gentleman learn of their deception.

"THE STRANGER'S PLATE"
Powers Release, June 3rd

An old Puritan custom was that of setting an extra plate for an unexpected visitor, and this obtained with the Wainwrights, whose life and aims in the long ago are accurately depicted in this reel.

The father was a stickler for the above narrated custom, but his wife and daughters found much objection to it, due to the dangerous guests it forced them to welcome.

An Indian, wounded, weak and famished, comes to them, and is nursed back to health. But, his vigor restored, the mother and daughters decline to have him sit at the family table, although the kindly father pleads vigorously against this procedure. So the father gives the red man a generous basket of food and sends him on with his blessing.

Weeks later the older daughter, out picking flowers, is captured by Indians and carried to their camp. The chief offers her as a squaw to the highest bidder. The red man who was befriended by her father recognizes the girl as one of them who had refused him a seat at the table. He outbids the others and takes her to her father's home. In the meantime the parents have discovered the loss of the daughter and are frantic with grief. And when the red man comes to them with her who was lost and found again, all insist that he occupy a place of honor at the table with them, and they make haste to serve and comfort him. And the father, wise in his generation, knew that he had merely "Cast his bread upon the waters and it had come back to him two-fold."

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

		Feet
Mar.	22—Tweedledum's April Fool Joke (Com.)	900
Mar.	29—A Glimpse of Neapolitan Camorra.
Apr.	12—The Necklace Affair	950
Apr.	19—The Mute of Portici	950
May	3—Grenadier Roland	950
Apr.	26—How Winter Decorates Nature	500
Apr.	26—The Quartermaster	500
May	3—The Traces on the Snow	950
May	10—Air Bubbles	500
May	10—Tweedledum is Late	500
May	17—Grenadier Roland	950
May	24—The Snow Maiden (Dr.)

AMERICAN.

May	1—United States Cavalry Drill (Mil.)	172
May	4—Grazy Gulch (W. Com.)	520
May	4—The Hobo's Roundup (Com.)	470
May	8—The Opium Smuggler (Dr.)	900
May	11—The Sheriff's Captive (W. Dr.)	1000
May	15—The Ranchman's Vengeance (Dr.)	1000
May	18—A Cowboy's Sacrifice (Dr.)	1000
May	29—Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder (W. Com.)
May	29—The Ranch Tenor (W. Com.)
June	1—The Sheepman's Daughter (W. Dr.)
June	5—A Sage Brush Phrenologist (W. Com.)
June	5—The Elopement on Double L Ranch (W. Com.)
June	8—$5,000 Reward—Dead or Alive (W. Com. Dr.)

CHAMPION.

Mar.	22—The Payroll	940
Mar.	29—The Bachelor's Old Maid	1000
Apr.	5—The Price He Paid	975
Apr.	12—Men of the West	980
Apr.	17—With Stonewall Jackson	960
Apr.	19—A Halfbreed's Courage	950
Apr.	24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days	965
Apr.	26—She Wanted a Man with Brains	970
May	1—Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia	1000
May	3—Out of the Dark	990
May	8—Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California	1000
May	10—Making a Man of His Son	910
May	15—Gen. Marion—The Swamp Fox	950
May	17—Circle C's New Boss	950
May	22—With Sheridan at Murfreesboro (Dr.)	950
May	24—In the Great Big West (Dr.)	950
May	29—The Peril of Diaz	950
May	31—How He Redeemed Himself	950

ECLAIR

Mar.	6—King Phillip the Fair and the Templars	975
Mar.	13—An Unforeseen Introduction (C.)	470
Mar.	13—A Day of Storms (Com.)	430
Mar.	20—Cain (Dr.)	790
Mar.	20—The Rock Climbers (Scenic)	195
Mar.	27—Hurrah!Hurrah! Let Us Marry!	975
Apr.	3—A Strike in the "Make Young" Business	534
Apr.	3—Mr. Nearsight's Marriage	426
Apr.	10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr.	17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr.	17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr.	24—Herodias	955
May	1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May	1—The Blue Nile	290
May	8—A Village Flirt (Com.)	910
May	15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.)	910
May	22—A Mother's Distress	430
May	29—The Two Gardeners (Com.)	940

GREAT NORTHERN.

Feb.	18—The False Alarm
Feb.	25—His Great Duty (Dr.)
Mar.	4—The Rival Servants (Dr.)
Mar.	11—The Son of the Executioner (Dr.)
Mar.	18—Between Love and Duty (Dr.)
Mar.	18—Life and People South of the Equator (Scenic)
Mar.	25—The Fakir's New Servant (Com.)
Mar.	25—Troubles of a Trip (Com.)
Apr.	1—A Victim of His Double (Dr.)
Apr.	8—A Confidence Trick
Apr.	15—Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr.	22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)
Apr.	29—The Cossack Duke (Dr.)	894
May	6—The Lucky Banana Seller (Com.)
May	6—A Would-be Sportsman (Com.)
May	13—The Nun (Dr.)
May	20—The Voice of Conscience (Dr.)	786
May	20—Berne (Switzerland) (Sc.)	204
May	27—The Love of a Gypsy Girl (Dr.)

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Mar.	9—The Message in the Bottle (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	13—The Secret of the Palm (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	16—The Fishermaid (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	20—In Old Madrid (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	27—Sweet Memories (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr.	6—The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	10—A Good Cigar
Apr.	10—A Faithless Man
Apr.	13—The Storm
Apr.	20—The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr.	24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000
May	1—Second Sight (Dr.)	1000
May	4—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
May	8—Four Lives (Dr.)	300
May	8—The Fair Dentist (Com.)	700
May	11—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
May	15—The Master and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May	15—The Lighthouse Keeper (Dr.)	1000
May	22—The Forged Despatch (Dr.)	1000
May	25—The Minor Chord (Dr.)	1000
May	29—Three of a Kind (Dr.)	1000
June	1—The Last Appeal (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

Mar.	18—Toto on the State (Com.)
Mar.	23—Waiting for the Midnight Express.	900
Mar.	25—Toto Wants to Get Thinner	500
Mar.	25—Queen of the Sea	500
Apr.	1—Foolshead Goes to See a Cockfight.
Apr.	8—Foolshead—Lady of Company
Apr.	15—The Fall of Troy
Apr.	22—Marriage Midst the Sausages (Com.)	500
Apr.	22—Foolshead — Wrangler for Love (Com.)	500
Apr.	27—Little Lewis Toy (Dr.)	950
Apr.	29—Foolshead Telegraph Boy	500
Apr.	29—The Bottle of Milk (Com.)	500
May	4—The Cry of the Native Country (Dr.)	950
May	6—Foolshead—Life Insurance Agent (Com.)	950
May	6—The Fountains of Rome
May	11—The Marchioness of Ansperti (Dr.)	950
May	13—Marriage Advertisement (Com.)	500
May	13—Foolshead Has Lost a Needle (C.)	500
May	18—Little Mother	950
May	20—Two Girls Love Foolshead (Com.)
May	26—The Little Rider (Dr.)

LUX.

By Prieur.

Mar.	31—He Wanted a Hoop (Com.)	281
Apr.	7—Bill's Little Plan (Com.)	386
Apr.	7—A Desperado (Dr.)	586
Apr.	14—Bill and the Greasy Pole (Com.)	432
Apr.	14—They Did Not Budge (Com.)	501
Apr.	21—Dr. Grant's Wonderful Discovery (Dr.)	885
Apr.	28—Naughty Miss Edith (Com.)	472
Apr.	28—Bill's Garden (Com.)	419
May	5—Bill as a Toreador (Com.)	419
May	5—Fashion and Its Consequence (Com.)	426
May	12—The Postmistress (Dr.)	700
May	12—A Walk in Tunis	252
May	19—Bill at Work (Com.)	367
May	19—All Through a Rat (Com.)	475
May	26—The Two Cockades (Dr.)	698
May	26—Tidying Up Paris (Com.)	268
June	2—Just Bill's Luck (Com.)	403
June	2—Arnold Has a Good Trial (Com.)	462
June	9—The Companion Governess (Dr.)	639
June	9—Bill at Play (Com.)	331

NESTOR FILM CO.

Feb.	8—The Transgressor
Feb.	15—The Light Beyond
Feb.	22—His Father's House (Dr.)
Mar.	1—The Professor's Romance (C.-D.)	990
Mar.	8—In the Commissioned Ranks
Mar.	8—In the Commissioned Ranks (Dr.)
Mar.	15—Was It Worth While? (Dr.)
Mar.	22—Could You Blame Him? (Com.)
Mar.	29—The Truth (Dr.)
Apr.	5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr.	12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr.	19—The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr.	26—His Wife (Dr.)
May	3—The Other Man (Dr.)
May	10—After Twenty Years (Dr.)
May	17—His Second Choice (Com.)
May	24—At Panther Creek (Dr.)
May	31—The Savage (Dr.)
May	31—A Sure Cure (Com.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Mar.	17—Sacrifice of Silver Cloud (Dr.)
Mar.	21—Was He Justified? (Dr.)	900
Mar.	24—The Cowboy's Waif (Dr.)	900
Mar.	28—An Indian Nemesis (Dr.)
Mar.	31—The Red Avenger (Dr.)
Apr.	4—At Bar U Ranch (Dr.)
Apr.	7—Avery's Dream (Com.)
Apr.	11—An Indian's Mistake	950
Apr.	14—A Man of Honor	950
Apr.	18—Return of Company D (Dr.)	950
Apr.	21—A Cowboy for a Day (Com.)	950
May	2—Shifty's Claim (W. Com. Dr.)	950
May	5—A Knight of the Trail	950
May	9—The Crow Chief's Defeat (Dr.)	950
May	12—The Foreman's Bride (Com. Dr.)	950
May	16—The Broncho Buster's Rival
May	19—The Cheyenne Medicine Man
May	23—The Outlaw and the Female Detective
May	26—Brave Swift Eagle's Peril

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Apr.	15—At the Window
Apr.	18—Copper Wit (Com.)
Apr.	18—The Wine Harvest
Apr.	22—The Last Rose
Apr.	25—A Day with an English Bargeman (Com.)
Apr.	25—Melody of Fate (Dr.)
Apr.	29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.)
May	2—The Crisis (Dr.)
May	2—The Joys of Persecution (Com.)
May	6—The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)
May	9—The Four of Us (Com.)
May	9—Contagion (Com.)
May	13—As Your Hair Grows Whiter (Dr.)
May	16—Oklahoma (Dr.)
May	16—A Matrimonial Surprise (Com.)
May	20—Gunga Din (Dr.)
May	23—Her Atonement
May	27—Fifty Years Ago

RELIANCE

Apr.	22—In the Tepee's Light (Dr.)	950
Apr.	26—Vengeance Hath Been Had (Dr.)	950
Apr.	29—Locked Out (Dr.)	950
May	3—Such is the Kingdom	950
May	6—Over the Shading Edge (Dr.)	950
May	10—A Left Hook (Com.)	950
May	13—The Conflict	950
May	17—The Harvest (Dr.)	950
May	20—A Sonata of Souls
May	24—There's Many a Slip
May	27—O'er Grim Fields Scarred (Dr.)
May	31—Dad's Girl

REX

Mar.	30—As Ye Sow
Apr.	5—"The Heiress" (Com.)	975
Apr.	13—"The Little Major" (Dr.)	960
Apr.	20—A Daughter of the Revolution (Dr.)
Apr.	27—The Realization (Dr.)
May	4—The Ultimate Sacrifice
May	11—The Guardsman (Dr.)
May	18—An Exception to the Rule (Com.)
May	25—Called Back (Dr.)

SOLAX COMPANY

Apr.	26—The Count of No Account (Com.)
Apr.	28—Across the Mexican Line (Military)
May	3—Sensible Dad (Com.)
May	3—Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May	5—The Somnambulist (Dr.)
May	10—Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May	17—His Dumb Wife (Com.)
May	19—In the Nick of Time (Dr.)
May	24—House of Peace (Com.)
May	24—The Devil in the Tin Cup (Com.)
May	26—An Officer and a Gentleman (Dr.)

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Mar.	21—Divorce (Dr.)
Mar.	21—Waiting at the Church (Com.)
Mar.	24—The Tramp (Dr.)
Mar.	28—The Imposter	1000
Mar.	31—Silas Marner	1000
Apr.	4—Charity of the Poor (Dr.)
Apr.	7—Vindicated
Apr.	11—Velvet and Rags
Apr.	14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.)
Apr.	18—Cally's Comet (Com.)	1000
Apr.	21—Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr.	25—Poet of the People (His.)
Apr.	28—An Elevator Romance (Com.)
May	2—The Pillars of Society (Dr.)
May	5—The Sinner (Dr.)
May	9—The Railroad Builder (Dr.)	1000
May	12—The Regimental Ball (Dr.)	1000
May	16—The Colonel and the King
May	19—Lady Clare
May	23—The Stage Child (Dr.)
May	26—Get Rick Quick (Dr.)
May	30—A Wartime Wooing
June	2—A Circus Stowaway

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Mar.	24—Love's Ebb and Flood (Dr.)
Mar.	27—Tom and Jerry (Dr.)
Mar.	31—Her Mother's Fiance (Dr.)
Apr.	4—Secret of the Opal Mine (Dr.)
Apr.	4—The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr.	10—An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.)
Apr.	14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.)
Apr.	17—A Close Call (Dr.)
Apr.	21—The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr.	24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr.	28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May	1—A Kentucky Girl (Dr.)
May	5—Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.)
May	8—In Sunny Italy (Dr.)
May	12—The Angelus Bell (Dr.)
May	15—An Indian Brave's Conversion (Dr.)
May	19—The Banana Planter's Peril (Dr.)
May	22—The Little Western Rose (Dr.)
May	26—Thwarted by Nell Pierce (Dr.)
May	29—The Birth Mark (Dr.)
June	2—His Romance (Dr.)

LICENSEES OF PATENTS CO.

BIOGRAPH

	Feet
Mar. 27—Cured (Com.)	308
Mar. 30—The Spanish Gypsy (Dr.)	996
Apr. 3—Priscilla and the Umbrella (Com.)	997
Apr. 6—The Broken Cross (Dr.)	996
Apr. 10—The Chief's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Paradise Lost (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 17—Madam Rex (Dr.)	996
Apr. 20—A Knight of the Road (Dr.)	996
Apr. 24—His Mother's Scarf (Dr.)	994
Apr. 27—How She Triumphed (Com.)	998
May 1—The Two Sides (Dr.)	998
May 4—Misplaced Jealousy (Com.)	503
May 4—Cupid's Joke (Com.)	493
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 8—In the Days of '49 (Dr.)	995
May 11—The Country Lovers (Dr.)	995
May 15—The New Dress (Dr.)	998
May 18—The Manicure Lady (Dr.)	998
May 22—The Crooked Road (Dr.)	997
May 25—The White Rose of the Wilds (Dr.)	998

EDISON

Apr. 26—The Two Heroes (Com.)	975
Apr. 28—The Child and the Tramp (Com.)	1000
May 1—The Panama Canal in 1911	990
May 3—Josh and Cindy's Wedding Trip	1000
May 5—Aida (Dr.)	1000
May 9—Edna's Imprisonment (Com.)	975
May 10—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)	1000
May 12—The Quarrel on the Cliff (Dr.)	1000
May 16—In the Baggage Coach Ahead (Dr.)	1000
May 17—In and Around Havana, Cuba	450
May 17—How the Hungry Man was Fed (Com.)	550
May 19—A Case of High Treason (Dr.)	1000
May 23—Captain Nell (Dr.)	1000
May 24—Madeline's Rebellion (Com.)	990
May 26—Hearts and Flags (Dr.)	1000
May 30—The Niece and the Chorus Lady (Com.)	975
May 31—The Inheritance (Com.)	625
May 31—It Served Her Right (Com.)	375
June 2—A Sane Fourth of July	1000
June 7—Father's Dress Suit (Com.)	500
June 6—The Cardinal's Edict (Dr.)	1000
June 7—A Lesson Learned (Dr.)	500
June 9—The Wager and the Wage Earners (Dr.)	1000
June 13—Her Brother's Photograph (Dr.)	1000
June 14—Heroes Three (Com.)	500
June 14—Mistakes Will Happen (Com.)	500

ESSANAY FILM CO.

Mar. 28—Lost: A Baby (Com.)	400
Apr. 1—Across the Plains (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 4—Caught with the Goods (Com.)	1,000
Apr. 8—The Sheriff's Chum (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 11—An Orphan's Flight (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—The Bad Man's First Prayer (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 18—What Happened to Auntie (Com.)	800
Apr. 18—Catching the Deep Sea Turtle (Edu.)	200
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Two Mothers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 29—What a Woman Can Do (Dr.)	950
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 9—Holding His Own (Com.)	600
May 9—The Laundry Lady's Luck (Com.)	400
May 13—The Cow Puncher's New Love (Dr.)	1000
May 16—Wild Animals in Captivity (Edu.)	1000
May 20—"Alkali" Ike's Auto (Com.)	1000
May 23—The Atonement (Dr.)	1000
May 27—The Lucky Card (Dr.)	1000

GAUMONT
G. Kleine

Mar. 28—Family Troubles	430
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 1—The Secret of the Forest (Dr.)	625
Apr. 1—Tribulations of Jiggers	375
Apr. 4—The Letter with the Red Seal	865
Apr. 4—The City of Amalfi in Italy	135
Apr. 8—The Atonement of Thais	865
Apr. 8—Italian Coast Scenes	135
Apr. 11—The Court Martial (Dr.)	725
Apr. 11—Picturesque Waterfalls in Northern Spain	275
Apr. 15—The Oppressor (Dr.)	640
Apr. 15—Jimmy the Fox (Com.)	380
Apr. 18—Lost Years	630
Apr. 18—Brest, a Fortified Harbor of France	370
Apr. 22—The Erring Son (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Romance of a Valet	510
Apr. 25—Old Folks	490
Apr. 29—A Priestess of Carthage	1060
May 2—The Young King of Rome	440
May 2—Tunis, Africa, the City of White	560
May 6—The Crusade of the Templars	1000
May 9—Three of a Kind	740
May 9—Spring-Heeled Jack	245
May 13—In the Days of Nero	1000
May 16—The Bankrupt	1000
May 20—Jimmie on a Lark	570
May 20—Shooting the Rapids	450
May 23—The Emperor's Return	795
May 23—Swans	205
May 24—The Gaul's Honor	582
May 24—On the Frontier of Thibet, Asia	420
May 27—Alone at Night	480
May 27—Jimmie the Sportsman	510
May 30—Science vs. Quackery	970
June 3—Mistrust	985
June 6—The Drawn Curtain	735
June 6—Chrysanthemums	240
June 10—The Love Story of a Great Actress	1000

KALEM CO.

Mar. 15—The Hunter's Dream (Com.)	365
Mar. 17—A War Time Escape (Dr.)	980
Mar. 22—A Saw Mill Hero (Dr.)	960
Mar. 24—Rescued from the Desert (Dr.)	990
Mar. 29—The Lass Who Couldn't Forget (Dr.)	960
Mar. 31—The Hero Trackwalker (Dr.)	950
Apr. 5—By a Woman's Wit (Dr.)	995
Apr. 7—Big-hearted Jim (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 12—In Old Florida (Dr.)	965
Apr. 14—Slim Jim's Last Chance (Dr.)	970
Apr. 19—The Phoney Prince (Com.)	990
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 26—A Night and a Day (Com.)	995
Apr. 28—Slabsides (Dr.)	1005
May 3—The Fiddle's Requiem (Dr.)	1000
May 5—When the Dead Return (Dr.)	990
May 10—The Loyalty of Don Luis Verdugo (Dr.)	980
May 12—The Carnival (Dr.)	1000
May 17—A Tragedy in Toyland (Dr.)	940
May 19—In Blossom Time (Dr.)	1000
May 24—Carrier Pigeons (Dr.)	970
May 26—Tangled Lives (Dr.)	1000

LUBIN

Mar. 20—Her Artistic Temperament (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 23—The Spinster's Legacy (Com.)	600
Mar. 23—Bridget and the Egg (Com.)	400
Mar. 27—Her Child's Honor (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—When Women Strike (Com.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Wife's Awakening (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 6—His Best Girl After All (Dr.)	600
Apr. 6—A Visit to Nassau, Bahama (Travel)	400
Apr. 10—Opportunity and the Man (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Their Mothers-in-Law (Com.)	1000
Apr. 17—The Two Fathers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 20—Helping Him Out (Com.)	1000
Apr. 24—The Hoyden (Com.)	1000
Apr. 27—The Sheriff and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 1—A Fascinating Bachelor (Com. Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Belated Bridegroom (Com.)	1000
May 8—That Awful Brother (Com.)	1000
May 11—Drifting (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Angels of the Slums (Dr.)	1000
May 18—Her Humble Ministry (Dr.)	1000
May 22—The Gambler's Chance (Dr.)	600
May 22—A Hero—Almost (Com.)	400
May 25—A Good Turn (Dr.)	1000

G. MELIES.

Apr. 13—Jack Mason's Last Deal	1000
Apr. 20—An Unwilling Cowboy
Apr. 27—The Reformation of Jack Robin	1000
May 4—Mary's Strategem	1000
May 11—The Spring Round-Up	1000
May 18—The Redemption of Rawhide (Com.)	980
May 25—The Immortal Alamo	1000
June 1—In Time for Press	1000
June 8—Her Spoiled Boy	1000
June 15—When the Tables Turned (Com.)	1000
June 22—The Kiss of Mary Jane (Dr.)	1000
June 29—The Honor of the Flag	1000

PATHE FRERES

Apr. 7—The Three Whiffles	655
Apr. 7—Native Industries in Cochin-China.	341
Apr. 8—The White Squaw	1000
Apr. 10—The Justice of Claudius	260
Apr. 12—A Cowboy's Adventure (Western).	364
Apr. 14—Wiffles' Home Troubles	440
Apr. 14—How Edam Cheese Is Made	430
Apr. 15—Burglar's Fee (Com.)	1,000
Apr. 17—Robert the Silent (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 19—A New Life (Dr.)	990
Apr. 21—Boil Your Water
Apr. 21—Mary Long and Sammy Short (C.)	360
Apr. 22—The Chief's Talisman (Western)	820
Apr. 24—Lai Chyeim	997
Apr. 26—The Rival Brothers' Patriotism (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 28—Enemies	833
Apr. 28—Pastime in Chili	160
Apr. 29—The Foster Father (Dr.)	950
May 1—Forgiveness is Sweet	754
May 1—Scenes Along the Mekong	240
May 3—Indian Justice	1000
May 5—Max is Forced to Work	670
May 5—Through Venice	295
May 6—Short-Lived Happiness (Dr.)	1000
May 8—My Daughter	748
May 8—Over Lucerne (Switzerland) in an Airship	253
May 10—The Abernathy Kids' Rescue (Dr.)	771
May 10—The Ocean Harnessed	216
May 12—The Samourai's Expiation	640
May 12—American Beauties	351
May 13—Lucia's Broken Romance (Dr)	958
May 20—A Close Call
May 26—Semiramis
May 14—Leo Tolstoi
May 15—The Accomplice (Dr.)	836
May 15—Winter Sports at Lucerne	150
May 17—Billy in Trouble (Com.)	950
May 20—Paul and Francesco	859
May 20—The Fastest Motor Boat in the World	50
May 22—Shooting the Rapids in Japan	150
May 22—Boxing Match—Astrier-Quendreux	823
May 24—The Heart of an Indian Maid (Dr.)	990
May 26—Semiramis	945
May 27—All for Money (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Love Proves Stronger Than Duty	689
May 29—Bob's Microscope	300
May 31—The Flag Didn't Rise (Dr.)	950
June 2—Shame on Max (Com.)	390
June 2—Loyal Love	604
June 3—His Baby's Doll (Dr.)	997

SELIG

Mar. 30—1861
Apr. 3—The Fortune Hunters
Apr. 6—Red's Conquest
Apr. 10—The Cowboy and the Shrew
Apr. 10—His Best Girl's Little Brother (Com.)
Apr. 13—Zulu-land
Apr. 17—The Haven of Refuge
Apr. 20—The Mother
Apr. 24—Unto Us a Child Is Born
Apr. 27—The Witch of the Everglades
May 1—Her Master	1000
May 4—In Old California, When the Grin-goes Came	1000
May 5—Tournament of Roses
May 8—Lost and Won	1000
May 11—Back to the Primitive	1000
May 15—Discharging the Cook (Com.)
May 15—Dear, Kind Hubby
May 18—The Still Alarm
May 22—The Herders
May 23—Stability vs. Nobility
May 25—Jim and Joe

URBAN ECLIPSE
G. Kleine

Mar. 1—Beauties of Sans Souci	362
Mar. 8—The Fury of a Woman Scorned	720
Mar. 8—Beautiful Wye Valley, England	300
Mar. 15—Redemption	508
Mar. 15—The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond	472
Mar. 22—The Money Lender	688
Nemours and the Banks of the River Loing, France	320
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 5—At the Old Mill (Dr)	675
Apr. 5—Making Bamboo Hats in Java	325
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 19—Solving the Servant Problem (C.)	465
Apr. 19—In the Province of Kwang Tung, China	535
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
Apr. 26—The Last Edict of Francis II	875
Apr. 26—Scenes at Colombo, Ceylon	125
May 3—The Page's Devotion	790
May 3—Wismar, Germany	210
May 10—The Traitor (Dr.)	620
May 10—Rubber-Neck Percy (Com.)	370
May 17—The Juggler's Vengeance (Dr.)	396
May 17—Fishguard Harbor, Wales	600
May 31—The Musketeer	588
May 31—The Sleuth	404
June 7—The Young Interne	750
June 7—Heligoland, an Isle of the North Sea	250

VITAGRAPH

Mar. 11—Red Eagle	960
Mar. 14—Betty Becomes a Maid (Com.)	957
Mar. 17—The Aching Void (Dr.)	990
Mar. 18—Davy Jones, or His Wife's Husband (Com.)	977
Mar. 21—Tho' the Seas Divide	968
Mar. 24—The Widow Visits Spigtown (C.)	985
Mar. 25—A Little Lad in Dixie (Dr.)	999
Mar. 28—Billy's Valentine (Com.)	995
Mar. 31—The Inherited Taint (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—A Republican Marriage	996
Apr. 4—Unexpected Review (Com.)	660
Apr. 4—Hop Picking (Indust.)	335
Apr. 7—The Winning of the Stepchildren (Dr.)	965
Apr. 8—Winsor McCay (Com.)	650
Apr. 8—Bob Sledding	350
Apr. 11—The Wooing of Winifred (Com.)	988
Apr. 14—Though Your Sins be as Scarlet (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 15—Easter Babies (Com. Dr.)	980
Apr. 18—The Leading Lady (Com.)	985
Apr. 21—The Troublesome Secretaries (Com.)	990
Apr. 22—The Spirit of the Light (Dr.)	995
Apr. 25—A Klondike Steal (Dr.)	998
Apr. 28—The Peace Offering (Com.)	998
Apr. 29—Piccolla (Dr.)	993
May 2—The Derelict Reporter (Dr.)	975
May 5—Soldiers Three (Com.)	1000
May 6—Hungry Hearts (Dr.)	985
May 9—His Mother (Dr.)	995
May 12—The Welcome of the Unwelcome (Com.)	1000
May 13—Prejudice of Pierre Marie (Dr.)	985
May 16—When a Man's Married (Com.)	1000
May 19—The Show Girl (Dr.)	990
May 20—Sunshine and Shadow (Dr.)	990
May 23—A Dead Man's Honor (Dr.)	1000
May 26—Tim Mahoney, the Scab (Dr.)	1000
May 27—The Fires of Fate (Dr.)	1000

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

Branches at the Following Cities

LONDON	18 Charing Cross Rd.
PARIS	11 Rue St. Augustin
BERLIN	238 Friedrich Strasse
MOSCOW	3 Glenischewsky Pereul
BARCELONA	59 Paseo de Gracia
RIO DE JANEIRO	A. Sestini
BUENOS AYRES	A. Sestini
CARACAS	Levy & Co.

And the Following Agencies

MILAN	ST. PETERSBURG	VIENNA
TURIN	ODESSA	AMSTERDAM
GENOA	KEIFF	COPENHAGEN
NAPLES	VLADIVOSTOCK	STOCKHOLM
BOLOGNA	MARSEILLES	BUDA PESTH
VENICE	BRUSSELS	FRANKFORT
DRESDEN	LILLE	LEIPSIC
TOKIO	SYDNEY	CAPE TOWN
JOHANNESBURG	LIMA	HAVANA

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK - - - - - - - LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - - - - - - - - - 3,750,000

FULLY PAID UP - - - - - - - - LIRE 5,750,000

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPHS: CINES NEWYORK

CORRESPONDENCE

Readers, Please Note

May 20, 1911.

Editor Moving Picture News,
30 West 13th Street, City.

Dear Sir:

Our attention has been recently drawn to the advertisements in the trade papers by certain makers of cheap and inferior sheet-metal ware, in which the use of our name is made in describing the goods.

We cannot say at the moment whether any such advertisements have appeared in your columns, though we are under that impression.

We are now writing to ask that you bear this in mind, and inform any parties presenting advertisements of goods described as ours, or the same as ours, that you cannot accept such advertisements. This, of course, does not relate to second-hand goods of our manufacture, but to new goods made by other people who are endeavoring to trade upon our name and reputation.

Yours very truly,
NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY,
Baxter Morton,
General Manager.

(In reply to the above, The Moving Picture News has refused several advertisements of the above class. One maker told us he was making near Powers and thought he could get good trade. But—not through the News, and so we informed him and bade him good-bye. The News selects its advertisers, and all doing business through its advertisers can expect a "square deal."—Editor M. P. N.)

Los Angeles, Cal., May 12, 1911.

Moving Picture News,
30 West 13th Street,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

You, no doubt, are aware of the fact that the California Film Exchange have succeeded the Western Film Company and are now releasing in Los Angeles.

Would appreciate very much if you would put a little notice or mention this fact in your valuable magazine.

We have, after good hard work, succeeded in having several trust houses turn Independent, among them being the Hyman and College theaters, two of the finest houses in Los Angeles, who are again using Independent service.

Thanking you in advance for any space which you may give us in your valuable magazine, we remain,

Yours very truly,
CALIFORNIA FILM EXCHANGE.
Per Daniel S. Markowitz, Mgr. Los Angeles Office.

Allegan, Mich.—The Variety Theater, owned by M. B. Moore, has been sold to J. O. Ellenburgher, of Sturgis.

Milwaukee, Wis.—A new moving picture theater is to be erected at Eleventh avenue and Washington street, by the John Bruemmer estate.

Eveleth, Minn.—F. E. Carpenter will establish a new motion picture house in the Feldman Block.

Jerseyville, Ill.—A new $25,000 opera house will be erected here.

WANTED--FIRST CLASS MOVING PICTURE MACHINE REPAIR MAN

Must have a high-class reference. Salary no object. State full particulars first letter. Address

ROSE CITY FILM EXCHANGE, Portland, Ore.

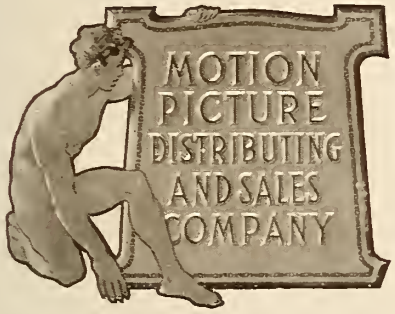
I HAVE A CASH BUYER FOR A COMPLETE STUDIO, LABORATORY AND MACHINERY FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF MOTION PICTURES. Would also consider the purchase of a partially equipped plant. All negotiations strictly confidential.

A. V. HARRIS,
Upper Montclair, New Jersey.

WHAT WE HAVE DONE WITH YOUR MONEY

WHOSE MONEY? EXHIBITORS' MONEY

WE GIVE YOU FILM QUALITY IN LARGER QUANTITY.
WE MAKE IT POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO REMAIN IN BUSINESS.
WE SAVE YOU ONE HUNDRED AND FOUR DOLLARS PER YEAR ON ROYALTIES ALONE, AND ON 10,000 EXHIBITORS $1,040,000.00.
WE MAKE IT POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO OPPOSE THE PATENT COMPANY'S OPPRESSIVE TACTICS.
WE GIVE YOU THE FINEST WEEKLY PROGRAM OF AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN FILMS THAT BRAINS, TALENT AND MONEY CAN PRODUCE.
WE RELEASE ALL SPECIAL FILMS ON LOCAL, NATIONAL AND FOREIGN TOPICS OF THE DAY.



GET THE NEW YORK POLICE FILM

700 FT. REGULAR PRICE.
NO POSTERS.

ORDERS FILLED IN TURN AS RECEIVED.

COMING CORONATION CEREMONIES IN ENGLAND

FIRST SHOWN IN THIS COUNTRY OF THE CORONATION OF KING GEORGE, WHICH TAKES PLACE IN LONDON ON JUNE 21ST.

SEND ORDERS NOW

And same will be FILLED IN TURN as received. You can not well afford to be without this film of international interest. This is a SPECIAL but sold at REGULAR PRICE. Advise how many posters you wish.

WEEKLY PROGRAM

MONDAY	IMP	ECLAIR	YANKEE	AMERICAN	CHAMPION
TUESDAY			THANHOUSER	BISON	POWERS
WEDNESDAY	CHAMPION	SOLAX	RELIANCE	AMBROSIO	NESTOR
THURSDAY		IMP	AMERICAN	ITALA	REX
FRIDAY	YANKEE	SOLAX	LUX	THANHOUSER	BISON
SATURDAY		POWERS	ITALA	GT. NORTHERN	RELIANCE

COUNT THEM. TWENTY-SIX WEEKLY RELEASES

ORIGINAL PRINTS OF THIS UNEXCELLED PROGRAM CAN BE OBTAINED IN U. S. AND CANADA, ONLY FROM EXCHANGES PURCHASING FILM THROUGH

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES CO., 111 EAST 14th STREET NEW YORK

KINEMACOLOR COMPANY OF AMERICA

CAPITAL STOCK, SIX MILLIONS

145 West 45th Street, (FIFTH FLOOR) NEW YORK

JOHN J. MURDOCK, General Manager — ARTHUR H. SAWYER, Corresponding Secretary

---

EXCLUSIVE STATE RIGHTS

KING'S CORONATION IN NATURAL COLORS

TAKEN BY KINEMACOLOR COMPANIES (URBAN-SMITH PATENTS)

Reflecting Nature in Her Natural Colors. Every Color Reproduced Perfectly in Lights and Shades. No Painting, Stenciling, Staining or Brush Work Done

The Kinemacolor Company of London has been appointed the Official Motion Picture Photographer for the King's Coronation, to make complete records of all the festivities for historical purposes, connected with the King's Coronation for the forty-day period of the Coronation events, thus placing the Kinemacolor Company in a position to take, in addition to the parades, thousands of feet of film of the private festivities that no other photographer could possibly secure.

The comparison of Kinemacolor to black and white is what modern photography is to the old style daguerreotype.

The Kinemacolor Company will assist those purchasing State Rights, in securing bookings through the best Dramatic and Vaudeville houses throughout the Country for summer engagements.

TO EXHIBITORS AND EXCHANGES

BEGINNING IN SEPTEMBER

THE KINEMACOLOR COMPANY OF AMERICA WILL RELEASE EACH WEEK

TWO REELS AMERICAN KINEMACOLOR
TWO REELS EUROPEAN KINEMACOLOR
TWELVE REELS AMERICAN BLACK AND WHITE
FOUR REELS EUROPEAN BLACK AND WHITE

TWENTY REELS PER WEEK

EXTRA--The Acting Companies for the American Kinemacolor and Black and White subjects will comprise ALL the best known Motion Picture Artists in this country, also many well known artists from other branches of the Amusement Field.

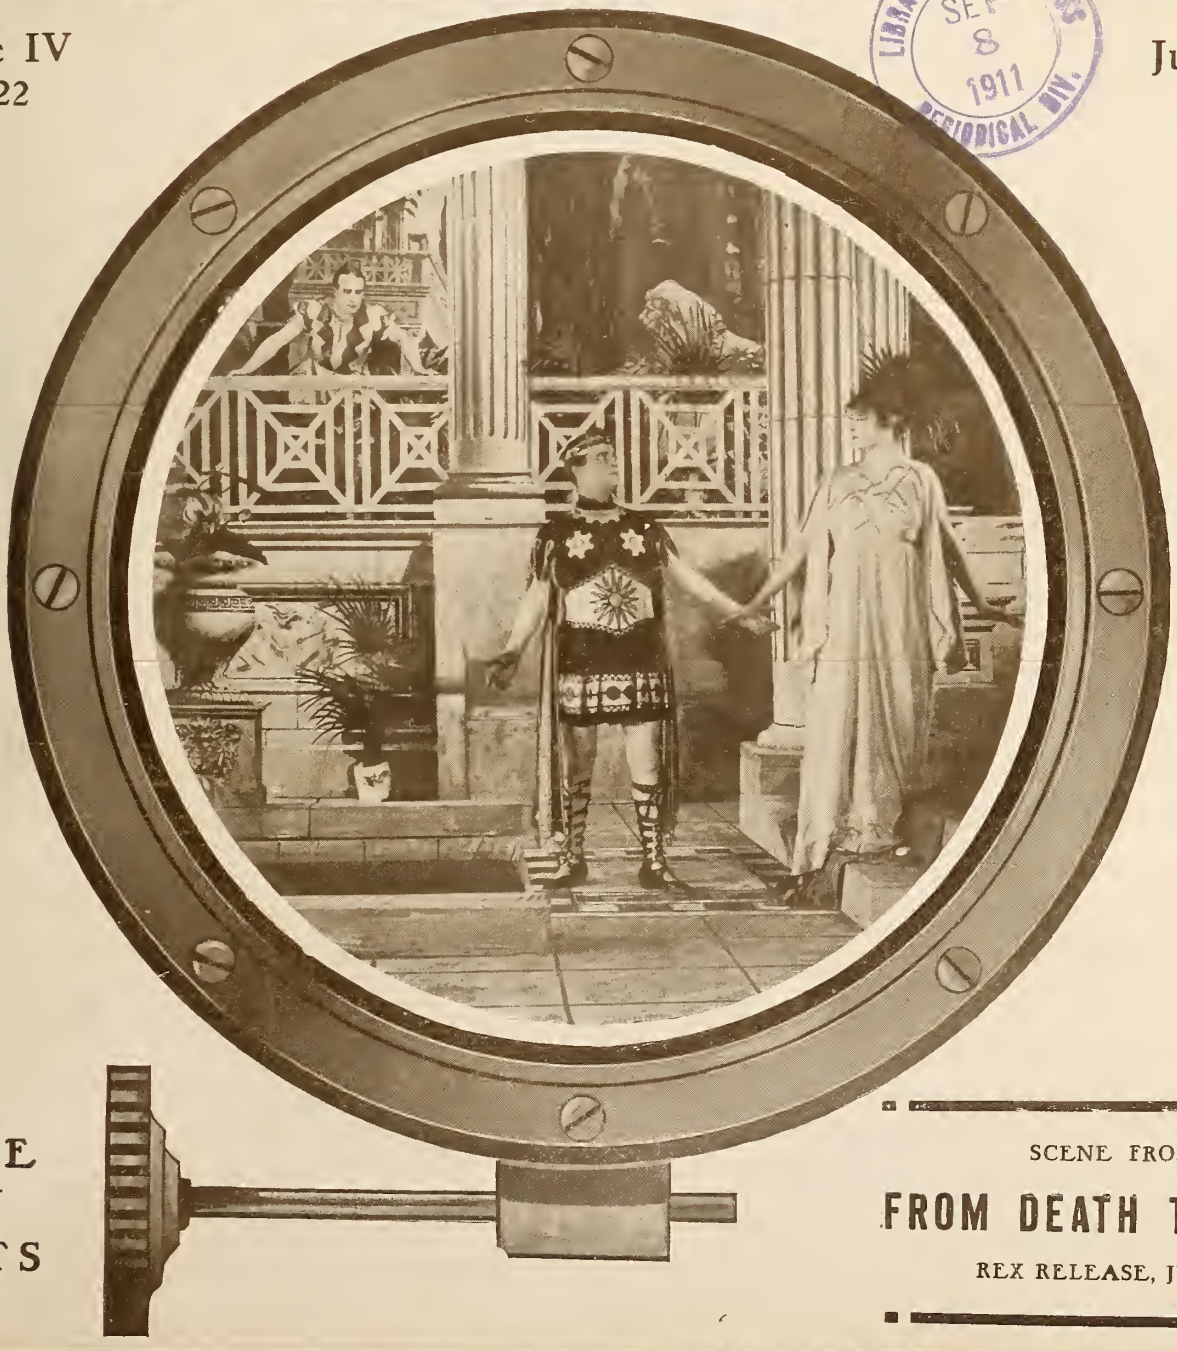
ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS AS ABOVE

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 22

June 3d
1911

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS
SEP 8 1911
PERIODICAL DIV.



PRICE
TEN CENTS

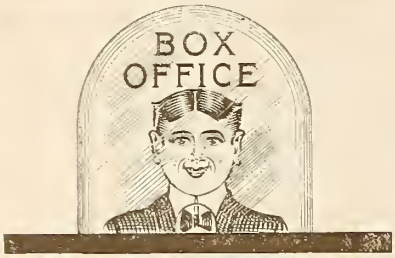
SCENE FROM

FROM DEATH TO LIFE

REX RELEASE, JUNE 8



MR. INSISTER

MR. INSISTER SAYS: I shall INSIST, INSIST. AND INSIST on being booked NOW for the "FLAMES AND FORTUNE" release of

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

SCENES FROM "FLAMES AND FORTUNE"

RELEASED TUESDAY, JUNE 13
With Great Bird's-eye Views of the Great City

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

is a story of the pitfalls that await the country boy in the Big City. There are shoals of them, and he shouldn't forget it. This reel will make him remember. But aside from the moral value of the film, it carries an interest-value that will be appreciated by those who aren't country boys. In point of interest of story, many think it the best Thanhouser release of the month. And the city scenes are even better than those in our "City of Her Dreams" of last year.

No. 219. Code Word, Ny.

RELEASED FRIDAY, JUNE 16
The Most Talked-of Film of the Year

FLAMES AND FORTUNE

is the famous fire picture that was mentioned in all the leading newspapers of the country when a house in New Rochelle was burned down expressly for it. We took many more hundreds of feet of the fire than we needed, and reserved the most realistic of it for this reel. The reel is even more sensational than our recent "Railroad Builder," and will prove a striking example of what Thanhouser skill, Thanhouser brains and Thanhouser enterprise can do for your box-office. You will be amazed at the rescue of the child, the bravery of the bucket brigade, and the total destruction of the house.

No. 220. Code word, Flame.

COMING! LORNA DOONE (From the Great Novel)
THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

THANHOUSER COMPANY
NEW ROCHELLE — NEW YORK

ANOTHER ENTERPRISE TRIUMPH

A Motiograph Watch Fob FREE

To every Theatre Manager and Operator, no matter what machine you have. It is yours for the asking—just as High-Class as THE MOTIOGRAPH itself.

YOU WANT IT NOW—
WE WANT YOU TO HAVE IT.
A HANDSOME GOLD FOB FREE

You won't be ashamed to wear it—We are not ashamed to give it away. Write today.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO., Makers of the MOTIOGRAPH 564 W. Randolph St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

Branches at the Following Cities

LONDON	18 Charing Cross Rd.
PARIS	11 Rue St. Augustin
BERLIN	238 Friedrich Strasse
MOSCOW	3 Glenischewsky Pereul
BARCELONA	59 Paseo de Gracia
RIO DE JANEIRO	A. Sestini
BUENOS AYRES	A. Sestini
CARACAS	Levy & Co.

And the Following Agencies

MILAN	ST. PETERSBURG	VIENNA
TURIN	ODESSA	AMSTERDAM
GENOA	KEIFF	COPENHAGEN
NAPLES	VLADIVOSTOCK	STOCKHOLM
BOLOGNA	MARSEILLES	BUDA PESTH
VENICE	BRUSSELS	FRANKFORT
DRESDEN	LILLE	LEIPSIC
TOKIO	SYDNEY	CAPE TOWN
JOHANNESBURG	LIMA	HAVANA

CAPITAL

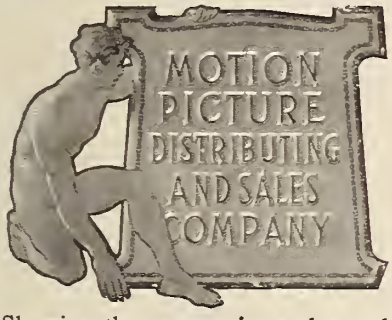
PREFERRED STOCK - - - - - - - - LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - - - - - - - - - 3,750,000

FULLY PAID UP - - - - - - - - - LIRE 5,750,000

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPHS: CINES NEWYORK



CORONATION OF KING GEORGE OF ENGLAND

WILL BE RELEASED FIRST IN AMERICA BY THE

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING & SALES CO.

Showing the ceremonies and grand processions preceding the CROWNING, a very ancient practice adopted as far back as Solomon, in the year B. C. 1015.

Showing, also, the English nobility and foreign notables, and all the festivities, parades and other functions pertaining to this most widely heralded event.

ALMOST ALL EXCHANGES HAVE THEIR ORDERS IN

IF YOURS HAS NOT—REMIND THEM OF IT BEFORE TOO LATE

Remember people are spending millions of dollars and going thousands of miles to see the event—so will millions of people pay to see these films.

WEEKLY PROGRAM

MONDAY	IMP	ECLAIR	YANKEE	AMERICAN	CHAMPION
TUESDAY			THANHOUSER	BISON	POWERS
WEDNESDAY	CHAMPION	SOLAX	RELIANCE	AMBROSIO	NESTOR
THURSDAY		IMP	AMERICAN	ITALA	REX
FRIDAY	YANKEE	SOLAX	LUX	THANHOUSER	BISON
SATURDAY		POWERS	ITALA	GT. NORTHERN	RELIANCE

Original prints of this unexcelled program can be obtained in the United States and Canada only from exchanges purchasing film through

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES CO., 111 EAST 14th STREET NEW YORK

To Advertisers

In placing the MOVING PICTURE NEWS before the advertisers of films, machines, electrical apparatus, supply houses, exchanges, &c., we desire to call attention to the fact that our publication is the foremost one catering to the interests of the trade and advocating the uplifting of the industry to a place it should rightfully occupy. That we are meeting with success in our efforts can easily be judged from the rapid strides we are making. The News to-day is recognized as an authority on all subjects pertaining to cinematography, and from correspondence in our possession we can show that this claim is genuine.

Frequently we are advised by our advertisers that letters have been received by them from parties desiring to further their own interests and with intent to rob the NEWS of its standing among the trade, and while this has not to our knowledge had any effect we only desire to reiterate our claim: We publish the most reliable, extensively circulated, fearless, honest Moving Picture trade paper in America. Do you want your advertising in a paper of this class?

Two Yankee Feature Reels

MONDAY, JUNE 12TH

"Thou Shalt Pay"

A high-class dramatic production.

FRIDAY, JUNE 16TH

"The New Congressman"

A refined humorous political production.

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

344 East 32d St., New York City

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Apex of Accurate HISTORICAL REPRODUCTIONS are in

CHAMP

MONDAY RELEASES

They are looked for by theatre-goers,
THEREFORE—
On JUNE 12TH, the curtain rises on

"LONGSTREET AT SEVEN PINES"

containing an episode founded on Longstreet's attack at Seven Pines.

BEAR IN MIND—CHAMP WEDNESDAY WESTERNS

Western terse methods of dealing with law-breakers enacted for WEDNESDAY, JUNE 14TH.

"HIS LAST CROOKED DEAL"

Come back to the period of '76.

EVERYBODY—EVERYWHERE—KNOWS

"MOLLY PITCHER"

MONDAY, JUNE 19TH—the memorable date.

The patriotism-imbued heroine of the Continental Army on duty at the cannon's side.

Write your exchange for these features and be sure to get each Champ. Write us for extra display sheets.

THE CHAMPION FILM CO.

MARK M. DINTENFASS, GEN. MGR.

OFFICE: 12 E. 15TH ST., N. Y. CITY.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.

228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Telephone: 3790 Oxford

"The contents of this issue are copyrighted"

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan, 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City. ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV June 3, 1911 Number 22

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

Our front cover illustration of this week's issue represents a scene from one of the Rex Co.'s famous films, "From Death to Life," released on June 8th. It is a great drama and fully up to the standard set by the Rex Co.; a beautiful story with charming scenes and settings. Read the synopsis in this week's issue and you cannot fail to become interested.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS

We have repeatedly asked for suggestions for an educational program, a program suitable for a lecture at the Board of Education series for the people. Many Y. M. C. A. secretaries write to us asking for suggestions and where they can procure films different to the usual run. University principals seek our advice to bring them in touch with manufacturers who will help them to gain what they require, and to send cinematographers to help them procure on their own grounds, etc., pictures for their students. We prepared a list which we sent to many correspondents, who wrote again to us, saying the films were in England, or Timbuctoo; anyhow, they could not get what they wanted.

Again, correspondents wrote for such impossible subjects, it was no wonder they could not be supplied. In addition to these, many good ideas were expressed in some of the letters, which, if we quoted, would not show the full drift of the requirements, and, as the whole of the letters were not for publication, we then generated a thought and give it to our readers. We will give ten dollars to the subscriber who sends in the best-suggested program of an educational nature that will be suitable for every class of audience. Do not make your article too long, state your reasons for selection, and your views on the different topics.

CASTING THE HOROSCOPE

How easy it is to be misquoted and misjudged, and, when this is brought about by malicious individuals who are jealous of our success, it is very hard to put the public—our readers—right on certain points.

A few issues ago we wrote on "Educational Films" (please make that very prominent, Mr. Linotyper), wherein we made a few statements among which were the following:

"We are only just on the threshold of advancement, and, when the industry is as free in America as it is abroad, then it will advance by leaps and bounds, producing pictures suitable for the time and age. We can see in our mind's-eye every educational center using moving pictures to illustrate all the great scientific problems, history, geography, travel, zoology, electricity, magnetism and a host of other subjects, including commercial life and the progress of great industries.

* * * * * *

"If the Patents Co. licensees were producing the best films in the world, it would not be so bad, but they are not. Not one of them is in a position to give the industry educational or elevating film stories. They run in the same old rut. Dollars before quality of subject. Some of the independents are as bad; some worse. Then if neither can do the work, why hinder others doing it?"

The above plain statement of facts—on educational films, please—not on the general run of subjects for the theater, was garbled to read as follows:

"When the industry is as free in America as it is abroad, then it will advance by leaps and bounds, producing pictures suitable for the time and age. Not one of them (the Patents Company's licensees) is in a position to give the industry educational or elevating film stories. Some of the Independents are as bad, some worse."—ALFRED H. SAUNDERS.

What was the writer's object? We leave our readers to judge. So far as we are concerned it does not much matter, but when the false statement goes abroad we want to be put right with the trade, and hope our English contemporary, The Kinematograph Weekly, will in justice to ourselves publish this defense of our position, then we will say "Thank you." The man this side refuses to do so.

Our reason for opening the subject again is the following article from England:

Interest in the question of the comparative merits of English v. Foreign Films continues unabated, and this week we are again compelled, in fairness to the two sections in the trade, and in our desire to exercise that absolute impartiality in the matter which it has ever been the desire of the Kinematograph Weekly to display, to devote a portion of our space to the subject.

Those who have read our pages carefully will have recognized how we have repeatedly urged manufacturers to do all that lies in their power, taking the continental and foreign films as a foundation, to improve upon the brilliancy displayed by their makers in costuming and stage-craft, and to inculcate in their actors a due appreciation of the fact that pantomimic ability, for which the foreign production is conspicuous, counts for much in the silent play. We have written much in our endeavors to get the British manufacturer to display larger ideas both in regard to plot, mounting, and the numerical strength of his forces, so that the time should speedily arrive when it could be said with truth that the English film was of such a high standard of excellence that was unattainable by any of its competitors. In all we have written that idea has been paramount in our minds, and we are proud to think that we have accomplished something in this direction. Of late years there has been a noticeable improvement all around in the all-British article. Many of the comics have been no misnomer of the term. The dramatics have levelled up considerably and with the impetus given to this class of film by Sir Herbert Tree's and Mr. H. B. Irving's consenting to play before the kinematograph, we look for even higher ideals in this direction. Criticism well meant, and taken in the right spirit, is bound to result in good. * * * It is in consonance with that wish that our columns have been open at all times to those who rightly or wrongly think themselves in a position to pronounce upon the merits of the English as compared with the foreign product and vice versa.

* * * * * *

An American Paper's View

"That the American films are popular over the water we know because the European demand has more than doubled the output of many of the American manufacturers.

"In justice to the European manufacturers, we must admit that they are, with few exceptions, almost entirely shut out from the American market. Exclusion from this profitable field is no doubt one reason why they do not or cannot put more money into their productions."

How Opinions Differ

That there are two sides to the question is markedly demonstrated by the opinions which we print at the head of this article. [These quotations are the preceding one—misquoted—and Montague A. Pyke's, following.—Ed. Moving Picture News.] Mr. Montague A. Pyke, as our readers well know, is one of the leading English exhibitors. Mr. A. H. Saunders is the editor of an American moving picture newspaper. How strange it is that in our own country an Englishman should decry the British product and that an American should also be found adopting the same standpoint in regard to film product in that country. Probably it is but further exemplification of the old proverb which says that a prophet hath no honor in his own country.

In giving the above excerpts from our English contemporary, we want to point out that we only called attention to the "Educational Science Films," which all the great universities, colleges, schools and the more advanced men in extension lectures are asking for—and which cannot as yet be supplied in America. The only approach to such have been provided by Charles Urban, and we want more. This is the whole front of our offending—only this and nothing more. One anomaly most noticeable is the fact that English films are barred by every Trust manufacturer in this country, while England is admitting every piece of American film she can lay her hands on. We ask for reciprocity, more especially the best of "Educational Films."

"There is no doubt about it, the American films are beyond comparison with any others now on the market. They are varied and clear, and the companies go to enormous expense and trouble to dress the actors for the parts and to enact their stories with the proper background of scenery and properties."—MONTAGUE A. PYKE.

The foregoing remarks are no doubt very biased and a severe censure on English makers' product, but, to quote from our London correspondent in last week's issue, shows why.

The fact that Mr. Pyke is also managing director of the Cinematograph Film Hiring Co., Ltd., undoubtedly facilitates the admirable manner in which his theaters are worked, and the up-to-date programs provided at each.

FILM THOUGHTS

Common Show-Moving Picture Licenses—What Do They Permit?

The question has often been asked and quite as often unsatisfactorily answered, as to where the line of distinction is drawn between what constitutes a common show-moving picture license and a concert or vaudeville license.

It is the intention of this article to try and explain, as clearly as the law on the subject permits, the real status of the case.

Most of our readers know that a common show-moving picture license is issued by the Bureau of Licenses, and that concert or vaudeville licenses, which include moving pictures, are issued by the Police Department. The former cost $25.00 per year and $12.50 each year thereafter if renewed within thirty days after the date of expiration by the person to whom they were issued. (See Sec. 309 of the Code of Ordnances.) Concert licenses are $500.00 each year, payable in advance, and cannot now be had for a quarterly period, as heretofore. This is the difference so far as the question of cost is concerned.

Now we come to the all-important question as to what privileges may be enjoyed under a moving picture-show license, before we encroach on the jurisdiction of the vaudeville license.

You may search a long while in the Code of Ordinances before you will find any rules or regulations governing moving picture shows. In fact, there are no specific rules on the subject, and the words "moving picture" show are hardly mentioned. The truth of the matter is moving picture shows came into existence and sprang into popularity so quickly that the City Fathers were caught napping, and had provided no adequate laws to cover same. In this dilemma the Corporation Counsel came to the rescue, and in a test case ruled that moving picture shows should be classed in the Code under the heading of "common shows," and there you are.

This does not get us entirely out of the woods, however, for under the heading of "common shows" there are no specific rules relating to moving picture shows. In fact, such rules as govern carousels, swings, merry-go-rounds, and the like which come under that head do not fit the requirements of a moving picture show.

Under Sections Nos. 1472-1473 of the Greater New York Charter will be found the laws pertaining to concert and vaudeville licenses and what may be operated under same. Taking this into consideration the Bureau of Licenses permits under their common show-moving picture license—appropriate music with the pictures, and also an illustrated song artist, provided such artist does not stand on a platform or stage. Beyond this, my moving picture friends, beware, for you may jeopardize your moving picture license and be called upon to pay for a concert license, or shut up shop.

CINEMATOGRAPHY—ANCIENT HISTORY

By W. A. Reed

In reading the very valuable newspaper writings of the trade papers, I find lots who claim that the first moving picture projected to the screen was at one place, some at another. Now, for the benefit of those who are looking for ancient history of the picture machine, I will state that the first public exhibition was at Koster & Bial's 34th Street Theater, New York City, on April 23rd, 1896, and was operated by Mr. James H. White of the Edison Co. The machine was Edison's Vitascope, and was the spoolbank and beater type, the films were 40 feet in length and ran continuous, after the instantaneous list. B. F. Keith installed them at his Philadelphia, Providence, and Boston Houses. The machine opened at his Boston house early in May, and I was at the first performance.

The reasons for B. F. Keith not having it in his New York house was on account of Koster & Bial's having the New York rights from Raff & Gammon, who were selling the state rights. A few of the old-timers who I remember were in the business at that time were James H. White, at present with Edison; Ed. Porter, who went to California with the vitascope, and is with the Rex Co. now; Chas. Webster, who went to Budapest, Hungary, and is somewhere in the New England States at present.

Raff & Gammon had offices at 43 West 28th street, and were overrun with orders for state rights. Machines at that time were not turned out as rapidly as they are at the present, and they were not turning out operators as fast as they are doing to-day. One had to know more than to just turn the crank, for in those days the machine was run by motor, and one had to have a good knowledge of electricity and understand his motor and also his film, etc., etc. It was a Holtzer Cabot one-eighth horsepower motor, and the lamp was a Colt universal hand feed kind, and it certainly was a fine piece of work for a lamp of those early days.

One of the largest buyers, if not the largest buyer of state rights for the Vitascope was P. W. Kiefaber, of Philadelphia, he bought Illinois, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Maryland, and he lost a lot of money by the deal as he could not get enough operators who were successful enough to make good, and that was the fault of the bottom dropping out of the business so early.

As I came back to New York in November of 1897, and there were but two machines running in New York. Eberhart Schneider at the Eden Musee and the Biograph at Keith's 14th Street Theater.

As far as I can learn about the pioneers of the business, the only old timer who bought a state right and is still in the business, is Wm. T. Rock, who bought Louisiana—the firm's name was Wainwright & Rock. I came on from Boston where I was in charge of the Kinetoscopes that were operated by placing a nickel in the slot, so I had some knowledge of the film. And in June of 1896 there were but two machines running in New York City, the Vitascope at Koster & Bials and the Idoloscope at the St. James on Broadway and 24th or 25th street. The Idoloscope was charging 25 cents admission.

I went to New Orleans with Messrs. Wainwright and Rock, and we opened at the West End a summer resort seven miles from New Orleans. We opened June 28th, 1896, to over 8,000 people, and the next Sunday to over 12,000 people. We were putting on five 40-foot pictures, and they held the audience spellbound.

Mr. Wm. T. Rock can be credited with being the very first to open a 10-cent moving picture show. It was called "Vitascope Hall," 23 Canal street. Doors open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m.; seating 450 persons.

We opened this place Sunday, July 28th, 1896. I say we; well, by this I mean I was the operator with an assistant by name of Edward Fowler, who worked the back end of the machine, as we still used the spool bank.

Our first performance consisted of fire pictures, "not reels" but 40-foot pictures, as follows:

1. Brooklyn Bicycle Parade—Edison.
2. The Duel—by Lumiere.
3. The Kiss, May Irwin and John C. Rice—by Edison.
4. White Wings' Parade—by Edison.
5. Trilby Dance, by the Sisters Leigh—Edison.

The people simply flocked to the place. We had many special performances by select society people of New Orleans who wished to see the pictures, and engagements were made and the time set for them to come.

AN APPRECIATION

We don't like to boast, as a rule, and publish letters of a complimentary nature; but don't you know that we have within the past few months received so many that if we had not by this time gotten quite accustomed to it, we would really feel quite chesty. Now this is a source of great satisfaction to us, and to know that our efforts to publish a clean, reliable and newsy publication and to hear it from our subscribers and advertisers that this is appreciated, is indeed gratifying.

We take this opportunity to thank all for their kind expressions, and assure them all that the News will continue to stand for all that is honest and good to the betterment of Cinematography.

PICTURES SUGGESTIVE OF THE FEUD BETWEEN LABOR AND CAPITAL

By Margaret I. MacDonald

Money may not be the root of all evil, but at least it is at the bottom of most of the evil in this world. That one man starves while another lives in affluence, that one man fails while another succeeds is due as often to a lack of money in each individual circumstance, as to the inability to accomplish.

The feud at the present time between labor and capital is very strong: the labor unions are very strong, and the big trusts designed to rob the poor man are equally strong. The circumstances governing the whole affair are so strenuous that I can see no permanent solution to the problem, except the abolishment of money as an exchange for the necessities of life.

In the meantime is it wise to do anything which will serve to add fuel to the flame? I think not—not until we have found a reasonable solution to warrant the stirring up of the opposing factions. Just recently I happened in a theater where a picture representing all the different stages of a strike was shown. The picture showed up the side of the employees in a most pathetic way—the employer was typified as a brute, whom no one on earth, even his wife, could have any influence over. The workmen came time after time with petitions for mercy—the mothers came with their babes, but to no avail. The most heart-rending scenes were enacted on the canvas, so much so that it seemed to me that were there any of the oppressed ones in the audience, which there surely must have been, it was enough to have raised a riot.

Of course, as usual, we are after sensation—many of the pictures shown are made with an eye to the popularity of the thing, and their likelihood to draw in the money. There is too little thought altogether given to the moral result of the showing of the picture.

In this world of fast flying events there is ample room to choose and select the most useful, and at least the least harmful themes. The moving picture is going ahead at more than a walking pace. All kinds of advertising is being done by means of the moving picture; all kinds of industries are explained to us through the means of the moving picture. The large apple growing concerns of the west are advertising their apple lands by this same means. They are used to-day not only as a means of pleasure and education, but as a convenience. It is progression we are after. We do not want the backward trend. When we do anything which is going to make trouble without first providing an outlet to the green pastures, we are going a step behind. Only the government of a country can settle the question of labor and capital. So long as there is money in circulation just that long will there be one man filling his pockets at the expense of the other man. Until we have something better than money to work for, we will continue to work for money. Just so long as money is made a necessity to stimulate life will we continue to hanker after its jingle and its glitter. We must eat and we must be clothed—nature has built us that way. But nature did not make money, nor did she institute any law which made exchange necessary to supply the fuel to the flame of life, in order to keep it alive. Exchange for food is a mockery to our creator who caused to grow on the face of the earth enough to supply the wants of all the creatures he created.

I have rambled along a lane which I had not intended to enter. I have offered no solution to the problem, because it is for solution by greater minds than mine. But sooner or later something must happen to correct the conditions which exist between labor and capital—conditions which are productive of the utmost misery, and which tend to make hotbeds of crime. What I want to say specially is, "Do not let the motion picture, which stands in one of the highest niches of progression, have a hand in arousing an unhealthy sentiment, or be an instigator of crime.

DISASTROUS FIRE IN LONDON FILM CENTER

Globe Film Co.'s Premises Destroyed—Our London Correspondent an Eye-witness

(Special and exclusive account.)

A disastrous fire occurred yesterday (May 17th) in the heart of the London film industry at the premises of The Globe Film Co., in Cecil Court, Charing Cross Road, W. News of the outbreak reached me within five minutes of this occurrence—about six o'clock in the evening. It was apparent that the fire had originated in the basement of the premises. Upon my arrival there was a burst of flame which stretched right across the court, and set fire to three houses on the other side. I might mention that Cecil Court is the center of the motion picture trade in this city, and the London houses of the Vitagraph, Nordisk, Williamson Dressler, and numerous other companies are situate here. But for the prompt action of the bystanders, especially three members of the theatrical profession, who, before the arrival of the fire escape, obtained a carpet and held it for the excited occupants of the building, while they jumped below, there is every probability that several persons would have been seriously, if not fatally, injured. At the moment of mailing, the cause of the conflagration has not been ascertained, but I hope to be able to give further particulars later. It is interesting to note that a lad of sixteen years of age—a member of the Boy Scouts—was near the spot at the outbreak, heard the alarm given, and at the same time saw a number of women, occupants of some adjoining mansions at the windows, evidently in great fear. Without a moment's hesitation, he rushed off in search of a ladder. There was one near by, but it proved to be too short. A hurried search, however, discovered another, and the scout's training and resource were given an opportunity. It was the work of a moment to splice the two ladders together and make one long enough to reach the windows. Flames were now bursting out furiously from the windows. A book store on the other side of the street caught fire and was very soon burnt out.

Leaps for Life

With the help of a workman the scout reared his improvised fire escape against the window sill of a flat, nimbly ran up, and conducted three women down, five others reaching safety in a similar manner. Before this, however, a foreigner had jumped in panic from the first floor window to the ground, escaping unhurt. Three of the frightened women who jumped from windows were caught in a large tablecloth held by spectators below. A panic-stricken girl made an attempt to jump into the sheet. She, however, sustained serious injuries and was conveyed to the hospital. An old lady then appeared at one of the windows, and in jumping into the cloth, fell towards the side and was badly injured and taken away. Several other girls and women managed to break their fall by leaping into the sheet. Another young woman got out of a window and walked forty-five feet along a narrow parapet. A plain clothes policeman, recognizing her great danger, scaled the parapet and succeeded in dragging the girl through the window into a place of safety. In the meantime the fire engines and the escape had arrived Ladders were thrown up and a number of women were safely brought to the ground. The fire had spread across the street, and three shops were soon well alight, waves of flames rolling across and along the narrow street.

In a remarkably short time the firemen got the fire under control, but not before the Globe Film Co.'s ground floor premises were burnt out, all the windows of the other three shops were destroyed, and a quantity of films were consumed in the flames. I was informed, but I cannot vouch for its authenticity, that the origin of the fire was in a flexible wire, attached to a light that was being used for the purpose of inspecting films. The premises of the Reliance Film Co. and the Williamson Kinematograph Co. fared badly, the latter, however, being a trifle more fortunate in the fact that most of their stock of motion picture machines were in the basement, and that part of the premises was not reached by the fire, although considerable damage was done by water.

£8,000 Damage

One of the directors of the Globe Film Co. stated that the stock destroyed in their premises alone was valued at between £7,000 and £8,000. I am sure that every one of the News readers will be grieved to hear of this unfortunate loss to the London industry. I am glad to state that many offers of assistance—in the way of loan of film, etc.—were received within a short time of the conflagration. The ubiquitous topical man was, of course, on the spot, but I understand that the films are not to be publicly exhibited. At a late hour last night the Tyler Apparatus Co. removed their entire stock to their new premises in Charing Cross Road, and the Globe Film Co. will for the present time occupy Tyler's premises in Cecil Court. The remaining film hiring houses situate in "Flicker Alley," which only sustained damage by fire and water, will, I understand, continue business as usual.

London, May 17, 1911. L. W. D.

Imp's Fourth of July Patriotic Film

Following "The Forged Despatch," the big Imp Memorial Day military story, will come a Fourth of July war story that will be one of the biggest things of the sort ever attempted, "The Fortunes of War," which has just been finished. It is a beautiful love story interspersed with the spirit of war. The battle scenes have been pronounced by experts to be the most faithful ever filmed, no pains or expense having been spared in the production. The story plot is a strong one, opening with a battle and closing with the Fourth of July celebration, a patriotic scene, true to life and very inspiring. "The Fortunes of War" will be released Thursday, June 22, and is sure to prove one of the most successful films of the sort ever offered exhibitors. It is an ambitious and praiseworthy effort.

Ashland, Wis.—Plans are on foot for the remodeling of the opera house here.

St. Louis, Mo.—Breman Theater Co., 3837 Florrissant avenue, will erect an airdome to cost $1,900.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Clara Held will erect a moving picture theater costing $8,000 on Fond du Lac avenue, between Tamarack and Pine streets.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—Plans have been completed by Devoss & Wilson for the Lyric Theater, to be erected on Chillicothe street.

A SURPRISE! ON JUNE 8TH
"FROM DEATH TO LIFE"
SCENIC CHARMS, BEAUTIFUL SETTINGS, AND AN INTERESTING STORY COMBINED INTO A MASTERPIECE. IT'S A GREAT DRAMA—IT'S A REX

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, May 31.—If ever Independent manufacturers had good grounds on which to point out the excellence of their productions and maintain that they compare with the Trust product, it was when Itala released their two reels embracing "The Fall of Troy." These pictures were here the past week. I have looked upon and reviewed hundreds of motion pictures since I became interested in the trade, but I have never seen any that represented such effort and realized so much as this beautiful story. Itala, you have done the Independent cause a service they should never forget. That production was wonderful. I can fully understand why you claim it represented an output of over $30,000, for the picture showed it. Furthermore, it captured the town. The theater that exhibited it in this city did a capacity business from the time it was first shown at the matinee at the beginning of the two days' run, until the last part had been concluded Saturday night. The Trust houses looked like deserts. The theater could not accommodate the crowd. I cannot praise this great production too highly. To me and others who looked at it it represented the acme of motion photography. It seemed that it was the biggest, grandest thing ever attempted before the camera. It did not appear to have one weak spot. It was awe-inspiring—it WAS IT. So great was the impression this release made that a request has been heard from those who were unable to see it, to bring it back for a return date. Certainly nothing like it has ever been seen in the line of motion photography. I congratulate you, Itala; go to the head of the class.

The Orpheum has sung its swan song and the house is dark. In my last letter I told of pies, cakes and candy delivering motion pictures and vaudeville a knockout blow. Well, it came to pass. The theater is no more. An effort is being made to sell the furnishing of the theater and the parties who have taken a lease on the building start tomorrow to remodel it. I also hear that there is another deal on for the sale of the Lyceum, the other theater controlled by the Arkansas Amusement Association Company, which, if it goes through, will enable the directors of this company to retire on their laurels. That Association also controlled the Orpheum. I understand that a very wealthy Greek is after the house and that he intends to remodel it in case he is successful in securing "the papers." The directors of the Arkansas Amusement Association are among the resort's most prominent business men, who entered the show business as an outside venture. The Lyceum has the reputation of showing the best pictures in the city, and the house has always made money. Competition in vaudeville is what killed the Orpheum.

They are telling a good story on Dick Baird, former manager of the Orpheum-Lyceum theaters, who resigned his position a few weeks ago. No one knows at present where the talkative Richard has gone to. Some of the ushers, little girls, state that they heard Dick talking over the telephone before he left, and, judging from his conversation, imagined in their young innocence that it was over the long-distance 'phone and that the conversation was "on the level." It was a fine "frame up" he had arranged for their especial benefit. They state that they heard Dick say that he really couldn't accept the position the man at the other end of the wire was supposed to be offering him for less than $150 a week. (Can you imagine it?) Then an agreement was reached whereby Dick was to get for the first two weeks $125. When he concluded his conversation he turned to the little girls and remarked: "Well, I'll take $125 from that fellow for two weeks, but after that he's got to give me $150." Dick never would have had the nerve to hand out that line of "dope" to any one older than the little ushers, and had he told it to an army mule the beast would have kicked his brains out. That, though, was Baird's long suit, but he really should have been ashamed to hand it out to children. Dick, how could you? He honestly has this one coming to him.

Carl Hanson, the trap drummer at the Lyric, is a great admirer of Selig films. In fact, he thinks so much of that firm's product that he has changed the name of his horse and now calls him "Selig."

The Princess has eliminated vaudeville for the summer and is giving during the hot months four reels of motion pictures. And, please make a note of this, they are first-run Independent reels. Hoop la, la! After waiting for weeks and months for some manager to wake up and realize the importance to his house of showing the real thing in motion pictures, Manager Frank Head, one of the best and most progressive showmen in the South, as soon as he eliminated vaudeville, owing to other houses on the circuit closing which book the same acts, jumped at the chance to get the best that there is in motion photography, so he booked the Independent pictures. My good friend Barney Rosenthal, the right-hand bower of "Billy" Swanson, is looking after the program for this theater. Previous to the closing of the Orpheum, which house the Swanson-Crawford Company was booking, it could not take care of the Princess business, but now it can put in there the best reels that Independent manufacturers put out. I have read bulletins galore which these gentlemen continue to send me, and for which I thank them, but I could never get to see the pictures new, for the reason that no house booked them until they approached commercial age, but it's different now, and I am anticipating a feast of good things at the Princess. Musical features will also be given in connection with the pictures, but the ban has been placed on regular vaudeville until the fall season opens.

"Consul the First," the celebrated and educated monkey, came to the Lyric the first half of the week and was a big sensation. This is his "monkeyship's" initial bow for local favor, and, believe me, he made good. "Consul" is "some monk," and if there is anything that those who developed his brain overlooked it was not noticed during his stay here. The Lyric intends to remain open all summer and has made special arrangements with the Hodkin's circuit to send in here a line of excellent vaudeville acts. It is going after the business in earnest. The Photo-Play Theater, Hot Springs' new house, is doing a great business and showing some excellent pictures, too.

I have seen Vitagraph put out some very excellent pictures in times past; also some very bad ones, and in the latter category refer to one that came here this week, "Though Seas Divide." Of all wishey-washey junk this was the limit. Instead of impressing one with the "soul thought" the manufacturers evidently intended that it would, it was laughed at. Really, Miss Turner, I pitied you that time. While I have no criticism to make of your work, I didn't like the idea of you, supposed to possess the "blind staggers," going scrambling over rocks with all the agility of one of the burros that scamper over the mountains hereabouts, and also have you crying in a manner that would have done credit to a fish peddler. Wonder when Vitagraph will get away from those detestable "blind features" they seem to delight in putting out? No one likes to look at affliction, especially blindness, and Vitagraph generally makes their blind characters act as if they possessed a fourth pair of eyes. Cut it out, Vitagraph; it's punk, and very bad punk at that. Those who were responsible for this freak should jump in the ocean that divided the two principal characters. Now, in your "Derelict Reporter," which wasn't so bad, you seemed to try and give a good newspaper story, but the query you received was not signed by the correspondent who sent it, and, furthermore, was a very bum query at that. Also, the tribe of scribes who tried to keep the "derelict" out of the cab were about as human as an Apache. Nothing like it, Vitagraph.

"The Nun," by Great Northern, was most impressive and enjoyed greatly. Also, Reliance gave us a good one in "A Sonata of the Souls," and Thanhouser came across handsomely in "The Stage Child." We, too, enjoyed "The Panama Canal in 1911," by Edison, and appreciated the "Snares of the City," from the Biograph manufacturers.

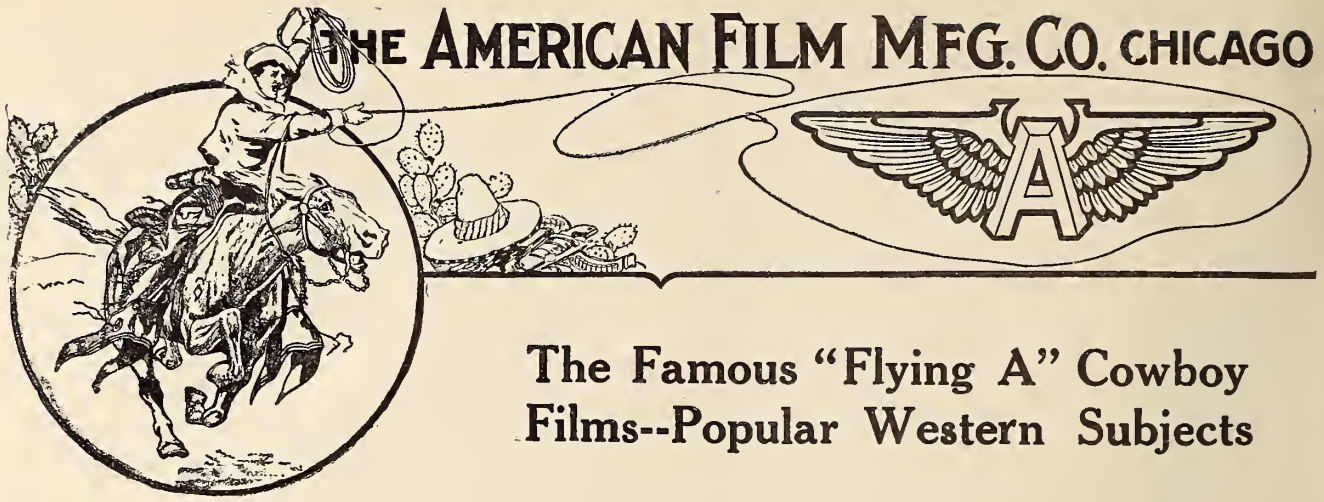
THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

A MUSICIAN SPEAKS

Editor Moving Picture News.
New York, N. Y.

Sir: I am writing you and asking you this question, not for the purpose of trying to tell you something that you no doubt already know, but to ask you why you do not start a "Music Department" in the Moving Picture News.

I am a musician, and I must say that the Music Department that is run by the Index is a joke in capital letters. For instance, I noticed the other day in one of the recent issues where some one wrote the music editor and asked where they could get music for a Chinese picture, and he told them to go to a Chinese laundry. That might be of help but I fail to see where it comes in; it would look as if the editor was either very ignorant in some respects, or he is afraid some one will learn more in regard to playing for pictures than he seems to think that he knows. He may know how to play for pictures, but he is certainly a big farce when he comes to tell any one else how to play for them as they should be played for. Yours truly,



The Famous "Flying A" Cowboy Films--Popular Western Subjects

NEWSY ITEMS FROM EL CAJON VALLEY

In the Western Stock Company, manufacturing "Flying A Cowboy" films, are numbered a goodly number of native Mexicans. These Mexicans were employed by us in Southern California and were taken, each and every one of them, from the ranches surrounding our Western headquarters. Very few of them can speak a word of English; their education being limited to a thorough knowledge of how to "punch" cattle and "punch" them well. This inability on their part to speak English necessitated our employing a cowboy who was thoroughly familiar with both Spanish and English as an interpreter, and our producer reports some extremely laughable complications in this interpreter's communication of his orders to the Mexicans.

In the film entitled "Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder," a comedy released by the American Company Monday, May 29th, there is a scene in which Warren Kerrigan, our Western leading man, is required to handle, in a very careless manner, a keg of what is supposed to be gunpowder. The keg used in the scene was very plainly marked in bold letters "gunpowder," but of course there really was no gunpowder in the keg at all; the same being filled with iron filings, and the effect in the picture in which, by the way, the gunpowder is not exploded, being satisfactory.

In order to lend atmosphere to the scene, Mr. Dwan instructed five or six of the Mexican cowboys to sit down on a bench which extended along the front of the general store, around which the action centers, and in his explanation of the required action, on the part of the cowboys, inadvertently mentioned the fact, without much consideration, that the keg was supposed to contain gunpowder. The interpreter, in the hurry of preparation, neglected to insert the word "suppose" in his interpretation and therefore, when the actual picture was being taken and Mr. Kerrigan holds—suspended over the keg—a lighted match, the action of our Mexican Supers can be imagined—the scene is a masterpiece in realism.

The work of Mr. George E. Periolat, the character man of our Western company, in film entitled "The Hermit's Gold," which will be released by us June 22nd, which is described in this issue of Film Facts, is worthy of note. His characterization of the morose and taciturn "Hermit of the Hills" at the start of the film, and of the hermit's insanity near its close, is a remarkable piece of work in every way.

Mr. Periolat is allowed to use a great deal of his own discretion in his make-up; the producer simply informing him as to his requirements for the particular picture to be produced. Mr. Periolat's ability in this connection is well evidenced by his striking appearance in the aforementioned film. Film in question, by the way, undoubtedly will prove to be extremely popular with the exhibitors, as it has been declared to be one of the most thrilling dramas produced in the West within the last twelve months.

Lakeside Inn, the hostelry in El Cajon Valley, which is at present housing our Western company, is beautifully situated in the geographical center of the valley in question. Within a radius of two miles from this hotel there are fifteen canyons branching off in every direction and all of them feel their tortuous way through the surrounding mountains for distances ranging from four to forty miles. One of these canyons is named "Foster Canyon," and along the side of the same, in some places from two to three hundred feet from the bottom of the ravine, winds a trail leading to the town of Foster, situated high up in the mountains about fifteen miles from El Cajon Valley.

Mr. Kennedy, the manager of the American Company, upon his recent visit to the West, and after his locating the company in El Cajon Valley, in the course of his examining the surrounding country locations, considered it advisable to investigate the scenic beauties of Foster Canyon. He therefore, one sunny Sunday afternoon, suggested to Mr.

A. M. KENNEDY

Dwan, the producer in charge, that the opportunity was a good one to thoroughly inspect the canyon in question. Mr. Dwan acquiescing, they repaired to a near-by ranchhouse and there obtained a buggy to which the ranchman attached an old gray mare. The journey was commenced and within two hours both Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Dwan had ascended the Foster trail four or five miles. The trail is an exceedingly steep and narrow one and difficulty was experienced in turning the horse, which by this time was pretty well winded on account of the continual hill climbing. Eventually, however, the journey down the mountain started.

Mr. Kennedy is not a light man by any means, and Mr. Dwan's avoirdupois is worthy of consideration. The ranchman's buggy, in which they were contentedly ensconced, had no brake; the hind legs of the old mare were tender, and the harness loose. They had not proceeded far on their downward journey before the effort on the part of the buggy to climb upon the back of the mare nettled her to such an extent that she started to go faster than the 200-foot drop on one side of them, the rugged road beneath and the tortuous trail would allow. Mr. Kennedy was driving. The old mare apparently knew it and Mr. Dwan's appreciation of the fact was well evidenced by his continual loudly yelled suggestions. These suggestions not having their desired effect, and the horse temporarily stopping its mad gait, with a view to kicking the buggy to pieces, Mr. Dwan decided to dismount. About the same time the horse decided to commit suicide and made for the edge of the trail. On one side of Mr. Dwan was a 200-foot drop into a rugged ravine, on the other side a balky old mare with an inexperienced driver. The position was a peculiar one for Mr. Dwan, but his decision was made in a moment. Appreciating that the entire complication was due to the balky mare, he decided that if he was going to perdition he would take the mare with him. Grasping the mare's bridle, he hung on for dear life. This so surprised the horse that she hesitated, and the momentary hesitancy was all that Mr. Kennedy required to right affairs in a satisfactory manner. The horse was quieted, the harness straightened out, and Mr. Dwan encouraged in his broncho busting proclivities. Whether it was the flattery so tendered or his appreciation of the fact that "discretion is the better part of valor," Mr. Dwan walked, in a precise and dignified manner, back to El Cajon Valley, quietly leading the mystified and humbled steed. Mr. Kennedy reported the ride back to the hotel as being a very pleasant one indeed, and Mr. Dwan is now hailed, in and around the environs of El Cajon Valley, as "Mr. Weston, Jr."

Cowboy Pictures

The romantic West of the early days lives mainly in story and song. The big ranches of the West are now being cut up into small farms. The farmer has come and come to stay. Gone are the buffalo, the Indian warwhoop, the free grass of the open plain. Save in some of the secluded valleys of Southern New Mexico and California, the maverick steer and the regal longhorn have been supplanted by their more profitable Durham and Herford cousins from across the seas.

In the secluded valleys of Southern California the last of the fast vanishing type of American cowboy sits his horse easily, riding through the wide valley enclosed by mountains, with his face turned steadily down the long, long, road—"the road that the sun goes down." That the cowboy was brave has come to be axiomatic. If his life of seclusion made him taciturn, it, at the same time, created a spirit of hospitality, primitive and hearty. To the cowboy, more than to gold seekers and more than to Uncle Sam's soldiers, is due the conquest of the West. Along his winding cattle trails the forty-niners found their way to California.

And here with him, the last of his type, is the stock company of the American Film Manufacturing Company, with their producers and expert camera men recording, into film classics, the romantic stories of the West amid the original scenery and backgrounds of the Range Country.

To the Independent exhibitor who exhibits "American Film," is assured some of the finest moving pictures ever produced. To-day the American Film Manufacturing Company, with its policy of straight cowboy films, is faithfully recording better than any other company ever in the field the story of the American cowboy as he was and is.

THE RECOIL

(Apologies to B. L. T., Chicago Tribune)

I met a friend of lofty brow—
As lofty as the laws allow.
I said to him, "You'll know, I'm sure:—
What's doing now in litrychoor?"
Said he: "I hate the very name;
I'm weary of the blooming game.
I read, whenever I have time,
Something by Phillips Oppenheim."

"Cheer up!" said I. "What's new in Art?—
You drift around the picture mart.
What do you think of Mr. Blum?—
Some say he's great, some say he's bum."
"I'm strong for Blum," my friend replied;
"His pictures are so queer and pied.
I wouldn't change them if I could;
I'd rather have things queer than good."

I spoke of this, I spoke of that;
But everything was stale and flat.
Said I, "You once adored the chaste;
You used to have such perfect taste."
"Good taste," he wailed, "brings but distress;
'Tis an affliction, nothing less;
While those whose taste is punk and vile
Are happy all the blessed while."

"Oh, take a brace, old man!" said I.
"Let me prescribe a nip of rye;
And then we'll go to see a play:
I've two for Barrymore to-day."
"No, no," he groaned, "'twould be a bore,
With all respect to Barrymore."
Said I: "Then whither shall we go?"
Said he: "A moving picture show."

Said I: "My friend, I'm surely there.
Let's to the Motion Pictures fare,
And see, I hope, a Flying A,
With Cowboys romping, riding gay,
Or perchance bravely making love,
As bashful as a turtle dove.
It's cowboy films for me, my friend,
On Flying A's we can depend."

My friend of lofty brow and I
To an Independent show did hie,
And there a Flying A did see.
"Why, this is marvelous," quoth he.
"Production that, e'en though it's canned,
Denotes the touch of master hand.
Perfect acting—theme that's mete,
Flying A's are sure a treat."

OUR LOS ANGELES CORRESPONDENT.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 24, 1911.

The Independent exhibitors in this city are congratulating themselves. Never before in the history of the moving picture industry or more specifically since the Independent manufacturers started the fight against trust methods, has business been so good as at present. From every exhibitor comes the same remark, always accompanied by a genial smile, "I was never more satisfied with the Independent pictures than right now." A great many of those who have been on the other side and who are in a position to judge the two services, state that the Independent service is the best to be had. They declare that capacity houses are the rule and not the exception, but what is more strange, state that the Independent business has increased by leaps and bounds since the General Film Company invaded the city.

Just before the offspring of the Patents Company came to this city, the Independent houses were few and far apart. There had once been a few first run houses, outside of Hyman's theaters, but they had dropped down. No one wanted to handle the exchange. Mr. Hyman, who controlled three of the first-class houses in the city and who had been Independent, sold his exchange to the California Film Exchange of San Francisco and turned trust. The Isis, another Independent, followed suit, and the Wonderland and two or three other theaters did likewise. These theaters just about comprised the Independent field. Things were in a bad shape, and it looked as if the trust had at last choked the exhibitors into submission.

A SURPRISE! ON JUNE 8TH
"FROM DEATH TO LIFE"
SCENIC CHARMS, BEAUTIFUL SETTINGS, AND AN INTERESTING STORY COMBINED INTO A MASTERPIECE. IT'S A GREAT DRAMA—IT'S A REX

It was at this time that the General Film Company arrived. Tally and Clune fell before it, and they sold their theaters, which are more like palaces, to it. This left Mr. Hyman with the remaining first-class houses in the city. The General Film Company then put the clamps on the smaller exhibitors. Where, heretofore, the five-cent houses had run four reels, they were now to be allowed only three. They protested, but it was useless. The small exhibitors were slowly being forced out of business.

About this time Miles Bros. of San Francisco opened an Independent exchange. The Wonderland changed; a few new Independents entered the field and the fight was on. Soon the Bijou was sold and the Isis was forced to do likewise. The new owners switched to the Independent service. A few more anti-trust theaters opened and business began picking up.

Mr. Hyman shortly followed by throwing out the trust pictures. This opened three first-class houses to the Independent trade. Since then new theaters are springing up everywhere, until now, out of the motion picture houses, of which there must be almost one hundred within the city limits, fully half of them are Independent and more are being added every month. Is it any wonder that the Independent exhibitors rejoice?

A new film exchange, known as The Independent Film Exchange, has started business on the second floor of the Shell building, Broadway near Sixth Street. It is owned by Messrs. Stutz and Campbell, co-partners of the Shell Theater. Arthur Bard is manager. The exchange will carry a full line of motion picture supplies and machine parts.

One of the most significant changes in film service is that of Hamburger's Arrow Theater, which is located in Hamburger's Department Store, considered the largest store west of Chicago. That it is using Independent pictures will come as a surprise to a great many. Hamburger's was always pointed to with pride. It was known as the "cleanest" and best show in the city for five cents, and was patronized almost exclusively by women and children. That this is one of the many significant signs that the Independent pictures are not only being placed on an equal footing with the trust pictures, but are sometimes placed ahead of them, no one will deny.

The Bijou, Sixth and Main, is preparing for the warm weather, and will install a new ventilation system which will probably consist of an addition of two huge suction fans built into the back wall of the house.

The same theater is using a novel method for advertising the Imp release, "The Forged Despatch." A young man, attired in soldier uniform is "made up" so that his face resembles that of a wax figure. In either hand he has a sign pertaining to the film. Electric wires run from his pocket to the box office, and to all appearances he is an automaton. Not a quiver of an eyelash can be detected and his body, head, arms and legs move by jerks as if run by clockwork.

The Wonderland, Main near Third, has just been remodeled. Four Independent releases are shown three times a week.

The Shell, Broadway near Sixth, is to be remodeled and redecorated. Three Independent second run pictures and an illustrated song comprise the bill. This theater was the first house in Los Angeles to run Independent films, and has never changed once.

The European, Wilmington and First, has again opened. The interior has been redecorated. Old Independent releases are used. This house has twice sent its owners into bankruptcy. What will it do to the present management?

The Tivoli, an old theater with a new name, has just been opened near First and San Pedro. Independent pictures are used. The management has installed an apparatus for changing the alternating current to a direct current.

The Novelty, Main near First, has opened its doors. Four Independent releases are shown.

Germantown, Pa.—Fred Zimmerman will erect a new moving picture theater at 42-48 West Chelten avenue, to cost $100,000.

Marine City, Mich.—Frank Baker has purchased property between the Home Savings Bank and Scott Brothers' Hardware Store and will erect a one-story theater.

FROM THE OBSERVATORY

By G. F. Blaisdell

Thousands of miles separate Los Angeles and Boston. News from the Atlantic Coast and from the Pacific Coast shows, however, that these two progressive communities are one on the subject of the use of the motion picture as an educational force in public schools.

In Los Angeles, at a recent meeting of the City Planning Commission, a body of public-spirited men and women interested in the development of their city along the most enlightened lines, serious consideration was given to the project of utilizing school buildings as minor civic centers.

In Boston Mary Boyle O'Reilly—how that name recalls the splendid Irishman, John Boyle O'Reilly, patriot, poet, publicist—before a meeting of the Submasters' Club advocated pictures in the schools as a medium to prevent truancy.

* * *

At the Los Angeles meeting, Mrs. Willoughby Rodman pictured the ideal conditions in the future, when "the school should become the neighborhood civic center, with a local health office, a public library, with free lectures; when the school shall be a center for civic festival and holiday celebrations; when the school shall be used as a moving picture theater and as a public art gallery, the school auditorium as a public dance hall, and the entire school building as a recreation center. The idea is to bring to the center all the people, the young first, for they are of the greatest importance; the middle-aged, the old; in short, the family. There is danger to the state when families take their pleasures separately."

* * *

Miss O'Reilly, who is a member of the Boston Children's Institutions Commission, divided about equally between irritable teachers and motion pictures the blame for most of the truancy in schools. She also said that child students of history are taught too much about "fancy ladies of past ages who were not all they should have been."

* * *

Memphis, Tenn., has its own board of censors. It has been named by the city commission, and consists of three men. The members of the board will keep a lookout for amusement features that may be offensive—not limiting themselves to any one form of entertainment. In the experience of many theatergoers the board will be doing well if it succeeds in bringing vaudeville to the general high level of the motion picture of to-day. It is rare that the average man sees a picture to which he can take serious exception, which it must be confessed is more than can be said for the brand of vaudeville on exhibition at some of the smaller theaters. Nor is the "high-class" variety entertainment always of such a tone that its patrons can afford to assume superior airs. In one instance what may be "raw" is in the other perhaps more or less elegantly expressd. The Observer desires to express his appreciation of the excellent entertainment he found at Keith's "Bijou Dream," in Fourteenth street, early last week. It is no wonder the house was filled at midday.

* * *

The picture operators of all the theaters of Boston are now members of Union No. 182, according to a report made to a recent meeting of that body. The union also has obtained jurisdiction of all the operators in cities outside of Boston from Brockton to Worcester. Lawrence Tempest and Bernard Corbett were elected delegates to the international convention at Buffalo.

* * *

The commercial bodies of Denver, Col., working through the publicity committee of the Chamher of Commerce, are planning to take advantage of the motion picture, the better to advertise to the people of the entire country the wonders of the city of altitude. The films will be made at the time of the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges. One of the entertainment features will be a parade on July 18, which will include 15,000 school children. The fact that pictures are to be taken of the paraders is spurring on the committee to make the event one of the most notable in the history of Colorado, to the end that thousands of settlers and tourists may be drawn to this enterprising State. Denver is a strong believer in itself.

* * *

Edwin R. Yanch, a carpenter of Galveston, has taken out a patent on a device for automatically winding films. He expects to put his invention to commercial use in a few months.

* * *

Dr. Britton D. Evans, medical director of the State Hospital for the Insane at Morris Plains, N. J., has made motion pictures a regular feature of the entertainment of the unfortunates in his charge. Dr. Evans thinks his institution is the pioneer in this form of diversion for the insane.

* * *

Score one for clubwomen, and especially for the clubwomen of Kansas City, Mo. The attorney-general recently ordered the closing of all picture shows on Sunday. The clubwomen have taken issue with the gentleman of brief but great authority, and say unequivocally that they are in favor of the Sunday exhibition of moving pictures. So also are the vast majority of thoughtful men and women.

* * *

"Are the picture shows hurting your business any?" the Observer recently inquired of a saloon keeper. "Well, yes," he responded, "some. You see," ruefully continued the hotel man, who, by the way, conducts a high-grade place, "they have me surrounded." Which was true, there being three picture theaters within the radius of a block.

* * *

The Observer saw, Tuesday evening, for the first time, Imp's "Their First Misunderstanding." It was well done, and that statement includes the work of the scenario writer, the director and the actors. There was good comedy, with careful attention to stage business. The conclusion, when the lights were extinguished and the sorrowing wife reclined in the light from the fire, to be awakened from her sleep by her husband's kiss, was particularly effective. There was a good moral. The company that can and will produce a good, clean comedy, with just a touch of the serious side of life—enough to cause thought on the part of those who are due to indulge in a little hard thinking—is the one that will win and retain the support of the public.

* * *

Some of the companies should be a little careful of their spelling. Such orthographical inaccuracies as "Big Chief Meyers" do not teach the young idea how to shoot. The brand of spelling turned out in the public schools in the last twenty years is an abomination. Those overseeing the work of the scene title printers should not aid and abet the school authorities. Had the late author of "Innocents Abroad" seen on a curtain an evident appropriation of the title of his book in the form of "Innocence Abroad," he might not have cared to recognize it. "Taken Unwares" was another error noted on the same evening.

* * *

Colored slides showing the operations of a counterfeiting den, together with photographs of paper and metal money, were seized by Secret Service men recently at a theater in Chicago. District Attorney Sims is said to favor the arrest of the New York manufacturer. Uncle Sam always has been very "touchy" about his coin.

* * *

Under authority given in a newly enacted law in Pennsylvania, prohibiting the exhibition of sacriligious shows, the Harrisburg police recently ordered the removal of two films from the program of a local theater.

* * *

The Hartford Courant, discussing moving pictures in an editorial article, very truly says: "Why the eye should be a better teacher than the ear is not a hard question to answer when it is remembered that example is better than precept, and the varied scenes enacted on the screen are very real examples to many of the watchers."

* * *

The Observer last week heard an old-time monologist say, in prefacing his stereotyped chatter: "I have been sent out here to talk to you a few minutes while they are winding a couple of reels." The remark was of the jocular sort, but it was significant as reflecting the frame of mind of the old-timer, who could not refrain from comparing conditions in former days, and the then lively demand for his services at big figures, with those of the present, when he realizes that many of his auditors are impatient at the interruption of the picture program. It can afford no satisfaction to the actor who depends on the speaking stage to witness the steady progression of motion picture art. American manufacturers were slow in getting started on the right path; from the French they have learned much. In black and white the best of the Americans now are practically the peers of the best of the foreigners. There is no reason why they should not maintain that relation. The motion picture in America is beginning to draft players of eminence from the speaking stage. It will not be long before we will see on the initial screen of the photoplay the cast of characters—with the names of the best-known artists prominently—and proudly—displayed.

What an Audience Likes

Is it hard to understand? Then study their expressions of approval. You can't go far wrong. They like, for example, the strange conceits which go to make up the Foolshead pictures. There isn't an atom of sense in any of them, and the things Foolshead does are utterly impossible; nevertheless the audience likes the films and will go see them again and again.

The audience, or the average audience, likes films in which there is a contest between a stronger and a weaker party. If the weaker party wins the audience likes it all the better. Witness the Essanay film of a few weeks ago in which a girl driving a prairie schooner succeeded in outwitting a band of Indians. Or that other even more impossible one where a girl on foot outran a party of Indians and escaped. The dominant note in both was contest, and whether there was sense or probability in either film it was liked.

The film recently released by the Solax people, "Across the Mexican Line," was equally a favorite because of the contest. The probability of the story, even the acting, and often the photography, may be weak, but if this idea of a contest is carried out there will be plenty of applause.

In the films which show long and furious rides interest never flags. In those where there are chases and where men or teams or what not overturn and destroy things without end the interest runs high. It is the action, probable or improbable, that makes these films popular, and the manufacturer that understands this fact is certain to score a hit.

This doesn't say that films of a more serious character are not liked. On the contrary many audiences prefer them. The Biblical subjects, the Roman subjects, the reproductions of famous plays and operas, all have their friends, and they are numerous. But even though this is true, if you want to bring a whirlwind of applause, if you want to create an interest in your house that will not wane, you have only to produce such films as those mentioned. They are sure winners.

This series admits of wide choice in selection, however. It is possible to obtain films that are good and films that fall short of performing what they are designed to perform. And herein lies the manager's opportunity to select. No two audiences are exactly alike. Some prefer one method of developing a certain subject. Some prefer another. The main point to be considered is the variety which your particular audience may like best.

Give your public what is best, and it will repay by liberal patronage. Undertake to serve up poor films and shortly your patronage will fall off. This seems so much a business axiom that it is difficult to understand how any manager can overlook it. Yet apparently some do. And ultimately they pay the price.

These matters have become so well understood and there is such an opportunity for judicious choice that it seems difficult to understand how a manager can make a mistake. The way lies straight before him. If he does not walk in it the fault is his alone. Give of your best and the best will come back to you in profitable houses.

The Yankee Film Co. in last week's advertising columns announced the release of "His Romance" for June 2. We have been requested by them to correct this and state that they will release "The Pretender" on this date.

COME TO LIFE! ON JUNE 8TH AND GET

"FROM DEATH TO LIFE"

IT WILL AWAKEN YOU to the FACT THAT YOU NEED REX to INSTILL LIFE INTO YOUR PROGRAM

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 3RD

THE BOGUS GOVERNESS

One of the best Sherlock Holmes detective films ever produced. Don't delay in booking this headliner.

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 10TH

TRUE LOVE NEVER DIES

An interesting and appealing story realistically portrayed. Perfect photography—Beautifully tinted and toned. Length 549 feet.

DREAM IN A WAXWORKS SHOW

A ludicrous comedy. Length 375 feet.

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

ALL UP-TO-DATE INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT—THE FILMS THAT SATISFY

CORRESPONDENCE

Alien Operators

Editor Moving Picture News,
30 W. Thirteenth St., N. Y. City.

Dear Sir:

I read your most valuable paper every week. The article concerning the Alien Operators in the last week's issue of the M. P. News certainly filled my heart with lots of hope.

I am an operator for the last three years; never guilty of violation of any kind in my operating; the thirteenth day of May, 1911, I was stopped from further continuing to earn an honest living because I am not a citizen of the United States.

I am Roumanian, have been four years in this country, have my first citizenship papers one year ago, but all these statements didn't help me one bit.

Therefore, anything the M. P. News will do to help us out in this matter will be highly appreciated by hundreds of us unfortunates.

Wishing you every success, I am

Very respectfully yours
Alien Operator.

Confidence in Motion Picture Business

Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," states that there apparently is no lack of confidence in the future of the moving picture business, judging from the number of new installations he is selling and refitting of old places. He has just furnished 156 additional automatic folding chairs to J. G. Becker, New Kensington, Pa.; one No. 5 Powers to Maxwell Hite, Harrisburg, Pa.; one 1911 Motiograph, Keith's Theater, Columbus, O.; and two additional Motiographs for Keith's Cleveland theaters; one Powers No. 6, A. D. Frantz, Ackley, Iowa; one 1911 Motiograph with Double Dissolver, together with Hallberg Economizers and complete line of supplies to Theodore Sachs, Catskill, N. Y.; one Exhibition Model, Edison machine to Fowler Bros., Philadelphia, Tenn. Considering the number of Hallberg Economizers already in use, the continued demand for same is surprisingly large.

THE SOLAX CO.

With the remarkable increase in the sales, and the continent-wide popularity of the Solax Film, have come numerous queries and suggestions from Exhibitors all over the country regarding the phenomenal success of this company, and, incidentally, showing the spirit of interest and co-operation that the product and individuality of the Solax Company has aroused.

Exhibitors, yes, and even the layman, write them, offering their opinions and criticisms of all the various phases of the manufacturers' art, but the point that seems to claim the greater part of their attention—and naturally so, for it is the potent and final factor that makes for the success or failure of a film—is the minute detail of scenic effect and costume, that are so easy to overlook, and the prominence or non-prominence of that very illusive unit—realistic.

Well knowing this to be the case, and by the judgment of which points the success of a picture must stand or fall, the Solax Comuany is daily striving, and succeeding, in effecting a departure from the usual thing in cinematography, and injecting into their productions that tone and artistic individuality that is now attracting the attention of all those interested in the motion picture industry.

Their release of June 16th, entitled "A Daughter of the Navajos," is a good example of the painstaking care and thorough knowledge with which the different subjects are dealt with, and it can be safely said that for truthful interpretation of the subjects in hand, and that realistic touch exhibited, it would be difficult to produce a scene that would rival this subject in any respect.

ANDREWS PICTURES, Ltd.

Have been granted some exclusive positions for cinematographing THEIR MAJESTIES' CORONATION PROCESSION on June 22nd next.

Approximate length 650 feet. Code word, "Corona"

Also the ROYAL PROCESSION of June 23rd, including the Illuminations along the line of route.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Ropill"

THE REVIEW AT SPITHEAD on June 24th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Respit"

And the ROYAL PROCESSION through the North-East of London on June 29th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code Word, "Ropel"

All above subjects at 3½d (Three Pence Halfpenny) Per Foot Net.

Terms 50% Cash with Order. Balance C. O. D. to Agent or Carriers.

Address 90 CHARING CROSS ROAD, LONDON, W. C.

Cable "ANDREORA, London." Code A B C. 5th Edition.

FOR SALE OR LEASE

MOVING PICTURE STUDIO AND LABORATORIES

Fully equipped and ready for immediate use.
Capacity, thirty thousand (30,000) feet daily.

Address HOOPER BROS.
308 E. Baltimore St. BALTIMORE, MD.

FILMING A FLIGHT

Cinematograph Pictures Taken From Aeroplane

(By Leonard Donaldson)

Taking cinematograph pictures from earth of an aeroplane in flight is a comparatively easy matter, and many excellent records have been obtained of notable aviation meets in this country and on the continent. However, the feat of taking motion pictures from an aeroplane whilst in flight would appear to be attended by no small danger and have its obvious disadvantages. This, however, has been successfully accomplished by Karl Seipert, a German aviator and photographer during a recent flight.

By employing a high-speed cinematograph camera of his own invention and construction he obtained a series of views of the country covered in his twenty-mile flight, whilst traveling at the speed of 80 km. per hour (or 22 meters per second).

An Exciting Flight

The intrepid aviator describes his unique experience as follows: "As an ardent cinematographer," he says, "my ambition had always been to obtain records of my flights by means of motion pictures. Of course, this was impossible with the camera used for ordinary cinematograph work, on account of the high speed at which the aeroplane travels. I found that it would be necessary to use a camera having a very rapid shutter, and I set to work to invent a contrivance which would surmount this difficulty. I succeeded by employing electrical aid, and I have now constructed a "dial" shutter having a rotary motion, which is electrically controlled. Although I have obtained some good pictures, there is still a certain "flou" (blurr) perceptible, but this I hope to remove when my apparatus is perfected.

On a recent occasion, when, of course, I was accompanied by a mechanic who was in charge of the aeroplane, I had the instrument charged with one thousand feet of film, and I commenced photographing when we were about twenty feet from earth. Objects below soon became indistinct, and a thin mist gathered, compelling me to suspend operations until the atmosphere cleared. Once again the winding roads and myriad roofs became distinguishable, and I again set my camera in action. We soon came alongside the railway track, which had the appearance of an even gravelly streak. Presently it broadened out, which told me that it was a cutting; and the ground was consequently higher. The permanent way then appeared to end abruptly, and I knew we were directly over a tunnel. With a little practice one can ascertain the different elevations of the land by the varying curves of the roads. Coming to the end of the tunnel I again set the electric motor connected with my camera in motion, and I was fortunate in securing photographs of a train emerging from the tunnel.

The mist again thickened, and, finding further filming impossible, I decided to descend. During my twenty-mile flight I had "released" 600 feet of film; portions of which, however, I was compelled to destroy.

Asked as to the possibilities of his invention, the inventor said: "At present I find a great difficulty in releasing the shutter of the camera at the correct moment. The speed at which one is traveling is very deceiving when in flight and objects are passed before one has time to commence operating. However, I hope to get over this difficulty with practice, and I intend to construct a new camera on a slightly different principle before making any further trials."

Mr. Seifert's invention will undoubtedly prove of great value in investigating certain conditions which influence aviation.

Notable Flights Filmed

Some notable cinematograph records of the great Aero Club meet held at St. Louis last year were obtained by the Edison Company. The film depicted the flights made by Graham-White, Latham and Drexel, and is of great historical value in the study of aviation. It was at this meeting that the first successful photograph of an aeroplane landing was obtained.

Colonel Cody's aeroplane accident last year was successfully filmed, and the colonel was able to witness his mishap on the screen upon his recovery. A very interesting series of pictures were also obtained by the Urban Company of the aviation meeting at Rheims. The Clement-Bayard airship was also filmed when starting on its cross-channel flight; some remarkable views being obtained of the giant air-vessel leaving the aerodrome.

Captain Madiot, who died from an aeroplane fall last year, was one of the first flying men successfully photographed by the cinematograph. The material which now obtains the best photographic records of the flight of kites was his invention; whilst he made some remarkable experiments in aerial photography.

FOREIGN OPERATORS IN NEW YORK CITY

By Arthur Lewis

If you want to see a place run slow—so slow that it is painful to watch them at work—go to the British Consul's office on State Street, New York City. Your business may be of the utmost importance, but that doesn't matter; they go their own pace—British like—and you must wait. It is small wonder that we lost this big country years ago if we were as slow then as we are to-day. And I am thinking that it is just for this same reason that British operators are idle in the city to-day.

Many months ago I paid my first visit to the Consul's office and explained to them that if something was not done British operators would not be allowed to work at the expiration of their licenses on account of a new law which compelled each operator of a moving picture machine operating in New York City to become a citizen of the United States before examination or making application for a new license. I was assured there was lots of time and everything would be straightened out before any action was taken by the city. Nothing was done, however, and every British operator found himself out of employment as his license ran out.

Then I paid my second visit to the Consul's office. Again I found them as slow as ever. They had forgotten such a man as myself or British operators existed in New York City. I was told to state my case on paper and send it to the British Consul General. This I did and, for a time, heard no more. Finally, after repeated visits, I was vaguely informed that certain proposed amendments to the law were pending, and until adopted there could be no change in the situation. Presumably British subjects must starve in the meantime.

I would like to give all the credit in the world to the Consul Generals of both Italy and Denmark, who have been smart and have secured for their countrymen what Great Britain has failed to do for her's.

According to competent opinion the authorities of New York City would have been justified, with the new law still in doubt, in renewing existing licenses of all foreign operators. Of course licenses to new men should not be issued but to take away a man's living in the way it was done was nothing short of cruel oppression.

Here is a license within the gift of the city issued to a man according to their own showing, competent and capable in every way (otherwise the license would not have been issued), and for no other reason than that that man has not been in the country for five years they revoke his license and bar him from getting a living. Will this same city keep this man and his family? Will the people stand for an able-bodied man being kept in their poor house when by a stroke of the pen he could be set to work?

It is notable that heads of the Electrical Bureau, whose hands have been tied by the new law and who have the interests of all good operators at heart, would do all in their power to remedy this evil.

ARTHUR LEWIS.

393 Eighth Avenue, New York.

BUREAU OF LICENSES, NEW YORK CITY

Interesting to New York Exhibitors

Mayor Gaynor has another athlete in his official family. James G. Wallace, Jr., who used to play on the Columbia eleven before football was banned up on Morningside Heights, is the latest addition to the Mayor's squad. He was appointed to succeed Francis V. S. Oliver as head of the Bureau of Licenses in the Mayor's office. Mr. Oliver resigned nearly two months ago to become secretary to Senator James A. O'Gorman.

Mr. Wallace is a lawyer, with offices at 277 Broadway. His father, James G. Wallace, Sr., is a prominent builder and was formerly Building Commissioner. The new license chief is 29 years old and unmarried. He was graduated from the Columbia Law School in 1905. Previously he had finished courses at the New York public schools and Columbia University.

Mr. Wallace is a Tammany man, being a member of the Sixteenth Assembly district's organization. For seeing to it that taximeters register correctly and that all of the other functions of the Bureau of Licenses are properly carried out he will receive $3,500 a year.

At the close of the McClellan Administration the position of Chief of the Bureau of Lincenses was placed under the civil service but shortly after Mayor Gaynor took hold the Municipal Civil Service Commission changed the job back to the exempt class at Mr. Oliver's own request. This change was not affirmed by the State Civil Service Commission until recently, however.

WICHITA FILM CO.

Another Live Independent Exchange

Olson Brothers first opened an office of this kind in Wichita in September, 1909, and since that time it has made a phenomenal growth, which is very unusual for a business of this kind in a city of this size. It has sprung into prominence very fast in spite of the fact that many predicted that it would only last for a few months here, as they thought that a business of that kind could only be made a success in the larger cities.

But on the 15th of May they were incorporated with a capital stock of $35,000, all of which stock has been sold with the exception of $1,500, or $2,000 worth.

The newly incorporated company held their first meeting Monday evening, May 15, in the office of S. B. Amidon, and elected the following officers: W. R. Savage, president, Wellington, Kan.; D. F. Cunningham, vice-president; C. E. Olson, secretary; E. G. Olson, treasurer. The directors are in addition: O. G. Olson, Lawrence, Kan.; S. B. Amidon and H. E. Herbert, Newton, Kan.

When Olson Brothers first opened their office here they started with two small inside rooms at 122 North Market street, and their entire stock consisted of a few moving picture supplies. But to-day they occupy the entire upstairs at the above address and have one of the most up-to-date offices in the city, equipped with every modern convenience that a busy office would demand.

Their office force and employees consist of twelve people and they are continually adding more new help, and booking several new shows each week.

The business consists of supplying films to the moving picture shows through the Southwest, booking vaudeville acts for theaters, parks, fairs, etc.; also to buy and sell theaters and conduct a general amusement business. During the next year the company intends to have control of at least ten first-class theaters in Kansas, Oklahoma, and the Middle West.

One can hardly imagine the wonderful growth the moving picture business has made in the last few years, and today every town of 1,500 population has from one to three moving picture shows.

These films are all purchased from the Motion Picture Distributing and Sales Company of New York City, who control the entire output of the Independent Manufacturers.

When this company first started the amount of business being done through the express companies amounted to seventy-five or one hundred shipments a month, and to-day the total amount of shipments average over one thousand a month; they order from ten to fifteen moving picture films each week, the average cost of which is $1,100 to $1,500 per week. Few people can imagine the enormous amount of capital that is invested in this industry.

T. A. Mack Exchange

The new address of the T. A. Mack Exchange is 140 N. Dearborn street, Chicago. In our previous issues we, through error, had their old address at both old and new locations. Will our readers note the address is as above?

Paterson, N. J.—A new theater to cost $100,000 will be erected on West street, on the site of the Folly Theater, which was destroyed by fire.

Minneapolis, Minn.—A first-class vaudeville theater will be erected on Lake street, between Nicollet avenue and First avenue, south.

Nashville, Tenn.—The Colonial Film Co., capital $20,000, will erect a new theater on Fifth avenue, between Church and Union streets.

Indianapolis, Ind.—M. E. Enoch will erect an airdome at Tenth and Oxford streets to cost $250.

Baltimore, Md.—Kolb & Bender will erect a new moving picture theater at Fayette street and Philadelphia avenue, to cost $8,000.

New York, N. Y.—Hunt & Wiseman, architects, have filed plans for an open air moving picture theater at Eighth avenue and 111th street for Michael Rowen.

South Centerville, Ia.—Dave and Louie Bromberg will install a moving picture show on South Eighteenth street.

East Moline, Ill.—East Moline Theater Co., capital $2,000, Geo. G. Kuhn, Edward Reavy, and C. R. Wood.

Webster, Mass.—A new theater to cost $25,000 will be erected here.

ORTHO FILM CO.

(INCORPORATED)

We have reorganized and increased our capital stock. Our main office is located at 208 Market St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

We are now prepared to manufacture FILMS for special features, such as Educational and Advertising purposes, by our "Hochstetter Exclusive Process."

Interior pictures, printing and developing is our specialty. We redevelop and clean FILMS, by our "Hochstetter Exclusive Process," making them as good as new.

Demonstration free of charge in any part of the United States.

Main Office: 208 MARKET STREET, PITTSBURGH, PA.
Branch Office, New York: 40 EAST 12TH ST., NEW YORK.

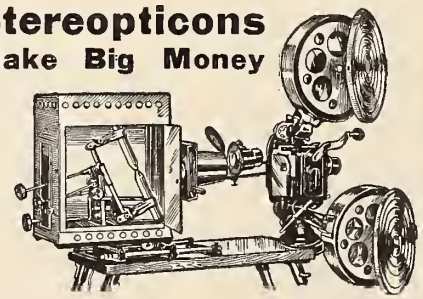
F. W. HOCHSTETTER, President and Manager.
A. I. DE ROY, Secretary and Treasurer.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!
Motion Picture Machines $35 Up. Powers Cameragraph No. 5 only $75. Stereopticon and Model B Gas Outfit $35. Carbons $1.50 per 100. Tickets $1 for 10,000. Fort Wayne Compensarc $35. Lubin 1908 Marvel, cost $150, only $100. Edison Model B, Powers No. 6 and Standard low. Dissolving Stereopticon Calcium and Optigraph $55. Get Supplement 33 Bargain List. Motion Picture Machines Wanted.
HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST
THEATRE CHAIR
Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving.
To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation
and slides for every purpose made to order
GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

Moving Picture Machines
Stereopticons
Make Big Money



MOTION PICTURE THEATRE SUPPLIES.

We carry on hand at all times the largest and most complete line of Repairs and Supplies for all Standard Machines, also Tickets, Carbons, Screens, Chairs, etc. Can ship at once Special Slides made to order. We also handle Motiograph, Edison and Powers Machines. Write today for THEATRE CATALOGUE.

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO.
Dept. 2, 219 Dearborn St., South, Chicago, Ill.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES
REPAIRED
by skilled mechanics at short notice and reasonable prices. Work guaranteed.
Supplies of All Kinds.
CHAS. E. DRESSLER,
388 2nd Ave., City, near 23rd St.
Take elevator.

FOR SALE CHEAP
On account of ill health, an up-to-date AIR-DOME doing fine business. Seating capacity 3000. Apply to M. B., 712 West Broad St.' Savannah, Ga.

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

FROM DEATH TO LIFE
Rex Release, June 8

Aratus, a chemist, invents an acid that will petrify living things into inanimate stone. Outside of his laboratory he has a little pond into which he throws the victims of his experimentation, flowers, small animals, and plants, in their petrified state. In his interest of science Aratus neglects and forgets everything, even his wife, and gives all his time to his labors, and once when she and his lifelong friend are in his laboratory, he seems disturbed and asks them to go for a walk and leave him to his study. His friend, who adores Aratus's wife, presses his suit and attempts to kiss her on the way, and in the struggle ensuing, she falls into the pond in which the chemical preparation of Aratus had been poured and she is petrified. Aratus, attracted by the noise, comes out and sees the disaster. He accuses his friend as being responsible for the accident, but the latter swears he is innocent. Aratus, stunned by his loss, has the pond drained and rescues the body, and placing it upon a pedestal, surrounds it with flowers and immediately sets his mind to work to invent a chemical that will bring her back to life, but his endeavors are in vain.

Time elapses, and in a mysterious manner one day all come back to life, the flowers, the animals and the woman, and Aratus thanks the hidden force that accomplished what he had failed to do.

BRIDGET, THE FLIRT
Solax Release, June 7

Hendrick Schwartz, an employee in a barber shop, is interrupted in his work by the arrival of his sweetheart, Bridget, with some razors that she has been given by her master to have sharpened. Hendrick is so much taken up with the presence of his sweetheart that he becomes careless in his work. As he proceeds to attend to a customer he has eyes only for Bridget. As a consequence Hendrick, while making eyes at his lady love, cuts off the customer's ear.

Of course as a result of his carelessness poor Hendrick loses his job, and we see him, with discouragement plainly written upon his face, slowly wending his way to Bridget's house to tell her of his misfortune. Bridget proves to be true blue, however, and promises Hendrick that she will stick to him through thick and thin. Much relieved at Bridget's words, and cheered on, he takes his way homeward.

Bridget's mistress goes for a trip to the country and instructs Bridget to act as her daughter's chaperon during her absence. Soon after the mother departs the daughter receives a visit from her beau, and Bridget, filled with the importance of her mission, makes herself all too apparent during the visit. Soon the charms of the young man begin to tell upon Bridget and after she can stand it no longer, she throws her arms wildly about the astonished young man's neck and repeatedly kisses him. Just as this little scene is transpiring Hendrick makes his appearance and, enraged at the conduct of this woman who so lately swore to be true to him, he grabs Percy by the scruff of the neck and the seat of the trousers and throws him bodily out of the open window.

This last incident proves too much for poor Hendrick; the loss of his job and the faithlessness of his love plunges him into deepest dejection. He resolves upon self destruction and takes his way to his room where he plans to end it all. But upon reaching his room he suddenly decides that life is too sweet to give up. But what can he do to get even with Bridget. Ah! happy thought. He will pretend to commit suicide. Suiting the action to the word he writes a letter to Bridget, telling her of his intentions. After despatching the note he makes ready for the joke. Getting his revolver and carefully placing the candles at the head and foot of the bed, he awaits Bridget's arrival. As he hears her come panting up the stairs he fires his revolver and falls on the bed as if dead, with the smoking revolver clasped in his hand.

As Bridget rushes frantically about the room, calling upon her dear Hendrick "not to die," Hendrick enjoys the show from under the cover of the sheet. Thinking to give Bridget a good fright, he, at the opportune moment, rises from the bed with the sheet wrapped about him and struts about the room, to the terror of poor Bridget. After a while, and thinking the joke has been carried far enough, and that he has been paid in full, he tells Bridget all, and poor Bridget, greatly relieved to find her Hendrick alive, promises to never look at another man, and all ends happily.

A MEXICAN GIRL'S LOVE
Solax Release, June 9

Coming one day into the Lone Star Ranch, Dolores, a pretty young Mexican girl, is insulted by one of the cowboys, but she finds a protector in Jack Harkley, the sheriff, who interferes to save her from further annoyance. The little Mexican girl expresses her gratitude and goes upon her way. In the meantime the ravages of Juandasco's band of cattle thieves have attracted the attention of the ranchmen and a price has been placed upon his head. Urged on by his fellows Harkley determines to go into the Mexican territory in search of Juandasco.

He arrives unexpectedly at the house of Dolores, where he applies for lodging. The household consists of Dolores, her father and mother, and sweetheart, Pedro. Although Dolores has no definite knowledge on the subject, she is morally certain that Pedro is affiliated with the band of cattle thieves, and with the arrival of Harkley, she realizes that his life may be in danger. She tries to warn Harkley. Pedro, seeing the apparent recognition between them, becomes insanely jealous. He demands of Dolores where she has met him before. Dolores denies ever having met him. Pedro, however, does not believe her, and his jealousy fanned by her refusal to give him the desired information, he determines to hand Harkley over to the Mexican bandits.

He goes to the bandit chief and apprises him of Harkley's presence at the house and returns with the band. As a result Harkley is taken captive after a thrilling fight against great odds.

Little Dolores, however, succeeds in getting away and bringing Harkley's friends to the scene of the conflict, and after a running fight the Mexicans are dispersed and Harkley is rescued.

"THOU SHALT PAY"
Yankee Release, June 12

Harry Mason has become infatuated with Nanon Belarez, a designing woman. The young man has been leading a fast life and lavishes costly presents on her. He soon runs through his income, and having no more money he resorts to taking money from the bank in which he is employed.

While at a restaurant with the woman he meets an old acquaintance, Walter Moore. Nanon learns that Walter is a wealthy politician, and she immediately sets out to make a conquest and is successful.

In the meantime, Harry's shortage in the bank has been discovered. He is warned by a friend to leave the country, but not realizing that Nanon has been misleading him, he goes to her and begs her to leave the country with him. She merely laughs at him. The boy now realizes that he has been made a dupe of by the woman.

Walter Moore comes to Nanon's house; on seeing him Harry realizes that he has been thrown aside for Walter; he warns Walter to take care that the woman does not ruin his life also. Two detectives who have been following Harry, arrive, and Harry is placed under arrest. Walter realizes the true nature of the woman, so decides to have nothing more to do with her. He leaves the country, meets a young society girl and immediately falls in love with her. The day for the wedding is set. Nanon sees the announcement in the paper and decides upon a plan of revenge. She sends Walter a threatening letter, advising him to visit her.

Walter, still in fear of Nanon's tongue, decides to see if he can come to some arrangement with her. Harry, who has been a year in the penitentiary, escapes and goes to Nanon to seek help from her. Both Harry and Walter arrive at the same time; Harry begs Nanon to help him escape. The woman, seeing that Harry was fool enough to play into her hands, is about to 'phone the police. She holds the boy back with a revolver, and as she takes down the receiver the boy diverts her attention and as she lowers the revolver he seizes her; in the struggle that follows the revolver is discharged and the woman is shot.

Walter, who has been waiting in the parlor for Nanon, hears the shot and goes to investigate. Harry makes his escape. Walter comes on the scene of the shooting and realizing that Nanon is dead picks up the revolver and stands bewildered; the police find him there, and he is accused of killing the woman. Harry has become crazed at the death of the woman and is run over by an automobile and seriously hurt. Walter, who has been taken to jail, is visited by his fiancee, who still believes in him, after she hears the story of Nanon.

Harry has made a confession at the hospital and Walter is eventually released from jail. True hearts are united once more.

"THE NEW CONGRESSMAN"
Yankee Release, June 16

This is a humorous political tale with quite a sprinkling of truth. The congressman is a good, clean type of the West, who has been elected to represent the people of his district, and who pledges himself to do it in a business-like way.

He is seen bidding the folks good-bye and with many a hand-shake and good speed, with wife and daughter he boards the train amid a wild demonstration from his faithful constituents, not knowing what the future holds for him in the big city of joys and political disasters.

For a time all goes smooth and even, for Honest Jim Flopper and his household, but later on rumors reach his native town that Jim is in the hands of the trusts. This arouses the ire of his friends who believed in him; a public meeting is called in Jim's home town, and after a stormy session, an investigation committee of four is appointed to go on to Washington and discover the true facts. They leave amid another wild demonstration as they board the train.

In the meantime we are introduced into the gayeties of Washington society, with its beautifully gowned ladies, as a banquet is given in honor of the congressman and his family.

While the banquet is at its height the investigators arrive and the fun begins. The manner in which the committee is disposed of must be seen to be appreciated, and later in the crowded town hall, where the committee report back home that it was all a lie, and that Honest Jim Flopper is the best congressman they ever had.

THE WITCH OF THE RANGE

American Release, June 12th

In the mountains near the Bar 40 Ranch there lived an old woman who claimed the gift of second sight. No one knew how long she had lived there and the superstitious cowboys called her "The Witch of the Range."

One morning the witch comes to the Bar 40 Ranch and induces Jim Garner, the foreman, to have his fortune told. Looking into his palm, and making her mysterious passes, she predicts a dire future for him. She continues on her way and Jim, approaching the ranchhouse, encounters Anna Taylor, the daughter of the ranch owner. Jim had long ago determined to make her his wife and, finding her alone, attempts to force his unwelcome attentions upon her. She is struggling to escape when Ed Warren, a neighboring ranchman, comes up and, taking in the situation at a glance, knocks her assailant down.

A few days later it is found that cattle are disappearing from the Bar 40 range and all indications point to Jim Garner as the culprit. The cowboys accuse him pointblank but he misleads them by attributing the loss to witchcraft and proposes lynching the witch. The superstitious cowboys agree and they go to the witch's hut and drag her, screaming and struggling, to the nearest tree.

Anna Taylor is picking flowers by the roadside as the lynching party approach and, realizing that a crime is about to be committed, conceals herself until they pass and then hurries to enlist the aid of Ed. Warren. They arrive in time to avert the tragedy and the witch is overcome with gratitude. She returns to her hut, muttering blessings upon her friends and curses upon her would-be murderers.

Jim Garner, realizing that the discovery of his depredations is close at hand, resolves to be avenged upon Anna for rescuing the witch and determines to kidnap her and compel her to marry him. He carries out his intentions with very little trouble, for Dan Taylor is old and is easily overcome. The witch witnesses the danger. Ed. hastily sends one of his men to notify the cowboys, and hurries away alone followed by the witch. He overtakes Garner in the mountains and in the fight that follows the witch is shot. The cowboys carry the desperado away to mete out justice in the stern court of Judge Lynch. Ed. Warren and Anna Taylor remain to care for the stricken woman, the first human sympathy she had ever known.

Here you have an absolutely new, original story of the West told in faultless photography and no exhibitor should fail to book it, feature it, and reap the harvest.

LAW AND ORDER ON THE BAR L RANCH

American Release, June 15th

The cowboys on the "Bar L" outfit are disposed to disregard the orders of the boss and do very much as they please. Moreover, his wife has a habit of dominating over him, and between the boys and their hilarity and his wife's peppery tongue, his lot is certainly an unhappy one.

One day he comes upon the boys playing and wrestling in the ranchyard when they should be attending to their duties, and he starts to remonstrate with them. They quickly rope him and suspend him from the ranchyard gate. His wife finds him in his predicament and, after cutting him down, proceeds to abuse him and give him a tongue lashing.

Smarting under the sense of his wrongs he determines to be avenged, and employs a gun-fighter to subdue his rebellious cowboys. Concealing his ally in the barn he goes among the boys and is immediately attacked by the fun-loving punchers. He whistles for his assistant, who now appears and lines the cowboys up at the point of his gun, when one of the belligerent cowboys recognizes the gun-fighter as his own brother. The tables are turned and the cowboys, reinforced by the assistance of the new employee, carry the boss to the watering-trough and give him a thorough soaking.

They go away leaving him stuck in the trough, where his wife finds him later and, prying him out, she assaults her luckless spouse and then leaves him to ponder on "What's the use?"

A roaring comedy, cleverly acted, that will touch the risibilities of any audience.

THE COWBOY'S RUSE

American Release, June 15th

John Norris, a wealthy Chicago broker, is spending the summer in the West accompanied by his daughter Nellie. He meets Mrs. Thompson, a young widow, and the trio spend many happy hours together.

One day on the golf links Mr. Norris instructs Mrs. Thompson in the mysteries of his favorite pastime and she becomes so interested she mistakes him for the ball. Nellie's ball has rolled under a fence and she is vainly trying to recover it when Walter Pierce, a young cowboy, rides up and, dismounting, returns the ball. They are mutually attracted and the cowboy is made happy by an invitation to call.

The following day he presents himself at the hotel and meets John Norris, who intimates that they do not desire his acquaintance. Walter Pierce determines to see more of Nellie, regardless of her father's objections, and plans a ruse. He calls the boys of the "Circle Heart" together and plans to hold up the Easterner and kidnap his daughter on their next drive in the mountains.

Accordingly Mr. Norris is held up by the erstwhile bandits, his daughter kidrapped, and he is left to the tender sympathy of the not unwilling widow.

The cowboys deliver Nellie to Walter and he "rescues her" from the bandits. Arrived at the scene of the holdup he returns the daughter to the distracted father, who is overcome with gratitude, and invites the young man to call whenever he wishes.

Matters have progressed most favorably for him with the widow and he feels that, should his daughter's acquaintance with her rescuer ripen into love, the widow—as his wife—will compensate for the loss of his daughter.

The film is full of humorous situations from the flash of the title to the trademark.

FLAMES AND FORTUNE

Thanhouser Release, June 16th

A Southern woman, widowed during the early days of the Civil War, lives with her baby in her home in a small village. Receiving word that the enemy is approaching and that the Confederates mean to make a stand in her house, she hastily departs, after ordering her faithful servant, Sam, to hide her money and jewels. Sam performs his mission, selecting a hiding place which he believes no one will discover, and is about to join his mistress when he is killed by a stray bullet. And the secret of his hiding place dies with him.

Forty-eight years later, the only members of the family are two girls, grand-children of the woman who ordered the treasure put safely away. They have a desperate struggle to get along, but the elder girl supports them by sewing. There is a mortgage on their home, which is held by a miserly old man, who refuses to show them any mercy. He is willing, however, to give the girl the home if she will marry him, but she hates him and is in love with a younger and better man, who, however, is poor.

But she loves her little sister, and while willing to stand poverty herself, cannot bear to think that the child will suffer. So she finally decides to accept the offer and goes to the man's house, prepared to tell him she will make the sacrifice.

The child is left alone in the house, and being warned not a play with matches, she naturally does so, and sets the place on fire. The big sister hears the news while she is telling the man she hates that she will marry him. She runs off to the fire followed by her unwelcome suitor.

There she finds the house blazing fiercely. She tries to enter the place but is held back. Her unwelcome suitor has a chance to win her love, but is not man enough to make good. But the lad she always loved proves to be the man for the emergency, dashes through fire and smoke and saves the little girl.

The big sister decides that she will not sacrifice herself, that somehow, in some way, they will get along. She spurns her wealthy suitor, and he goes away, vowing vengeance.

And good fortune comes through the fire. The little girl is playing around the fire ruins, delighted at the scene of disorder, and comes upon the treasure hidden years and years ago by the faithful servant of her ancestors. It came at the right time and proved that sometimes buried treasure is best buried until the time comes that somebody who really needs it and can appreciate it, comes along.

LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

Thanhouser Release, June 13

A country boy, spoiled and pampered by his mother, a widow, decides that it is time for him to make a name for himself in the great city. He has no doubt as to his ability, for he has been told all his life how wonderful he is. But he does not dare to tell his mother of his determination, fearing that she will still keep him tied to her apron string. So he cautiously steals out at night to show the world what a wonderful man he is.

The mother intercepts him, however, but when she hears his determination, she does not try to restrain him. She, too, knows that glory awaits her son, and is only sorry that he has decided to leave her. But she gives him money and good advice, and he starts out rejoicing.

There are youngsters of this kind coming to the city every day. As a famous confidence man once said, "There is one born every minute." The boy soon after his arrival in New York fell into the clutches of a confidence man, who induced him to "invest" in stocks on margin. Needless to say he was "wiped out" so quickly that it made his head swim, and realizing that he was not only a failure, but a miserable one at that, the youngster decided to end his troubles in the river.

Fortunately for him, the "broker" had a stenographer, a gum-chewing sophisticated damsel, who felt sorry for the boy she recognized as a "boob." She saved him from death, and restored to him his money by a clever ruse. And he was grateful.

He asked her to go to the country with him and make her home with his mother. If she had, there might have been a marriage some day, for gratitude is akin to love. But the girl decided that Little Old New York was good enough for her, and sent the boy back to his doting mother, which was where he really belonged.

THE PIECE OF STRING

Imp Release, June 15

Anton Paxton, a young man of saving habits, bids his aged mother good-bye at home and walks to the village. On his way he stops to chat with his sweetheart, Greta Anderson, at the gate of her home, and is surprised to find her talking with the village blacksmith, who is his rival for the hand of the girl. Anton is downhearted, but the girl shows her preference for him and the blacksmith goes away in a rage.

The blacksmith goes to his forge where he is accosted by a hunter on horseback, whose horse has a loose shoe, which the blacksmith tightens. In dismounting, the hunter drops his purse and his dog picks it up and in running through the forest drops the wallet among the rocks. The hunter mounts his horse, whistles to his dog, and rides to the village inn.

Anton leaves his sweetheart and goes on to the village, and in passing the shop of the smith, he stoops and picks up a piece of string which he absentmindedly places in his pocket, and passes on. The blacksmith and his assistant note his action but do not see what he picks up.

The hunter discovers his loss and writes a notice of reward for the return of the purse, pins it on the wall of the inn and starts out. The blacksmith tells him of Anton picking up an article near the smithy. Anton is found at the inn and accused of having the wallet. He is confronted by the smith and shows the piece of string. He is not believed and is taken before a magistrate, where he is searched, but the purse is not found on his person. However, he is denounced as guilty, his sweetheart sharing in the belief. His mother is convinced he is a thief, and his grief is pitiful.

At church the minister preaches a powerful sermon on the sin of stealing, and the congregation all of one accord look at Anton and he leaves the church disgraced.

In roaming through the wood the hunter's dog finds the purse and carries it to his master, who goes to the inn and announces that he has found his property. Anton is there among the crowd and he is overjoyed in the belief that he has been vindicated by the finding of the wallet. He becomes hysterical in his gladness, calling upon all present to proclaim him innocent. His joy is shortlived, however, for the evil blacksmith, in his jealousy, accuses Anton of finding the money and hiding it in the forest where it was discovered by the dog. All present agree with the smith and the revulsion of sentiment is too much and Anton is driven to raving madness and he drops dead, to the consternation of the villagers, who believe him innocent after he has expired.

BEHIND THE STOCKADE

Imp Release, June 12

The locale of the story is in the Philippines. Major Williams is engaged in tobacco culture and employs many natives and half-breeds. His daughter, Florence, a beautiful young woman, is quite a favorite on the ranch and has attracted the attentions of Pedro, the half-breed overseer, who loves her with a blind, unreasonable devotion.

Billy Thompson, from the States, the betrothed of Florence, is invited to sojourn at the ranch to join the Major in hunting while basking in the smiles of his daughter. This is noted by the overseer with a feeling of intense hatred.

Billy arrives and is being shown over the plantation when he observes the cruelties of Pedro. He comes upon him while the inhuman overseer has a native hitched to a cart, yoked to an ox, doing drudgery for some real or fancied inattention to work. The anger of Billy is aroused and he interferes in a humane way, compelling Pedro to release the tortured Filipino. Pedro is humiliated before his men and his rage is fearful, although he bridles it. Later Billy notices Pedro acting suspiciously and he resolves to keep an eye on him.

Pedro forces his attention on Florence and, thinking he is unobserved, tries to kiss her, crushing the girl in his arms. Billy surprises him in the act and administers a sound thrashing to the brute.

Pedro is incensed and resolves to wreck summary vengeance on the planter and his family. He goes to the chief of a wild tribe, which has heretofore been peaceful, and tells him that Major Williams is ill-treating the natives. He incites the chief to plan an uprising by telling him that the landed property should of rights belong to the natives, and the chief lends a willing ear. There is a conference of the wild men, terminating in a war dance, and the destruction of the planter, his daughter and intended son-in-law is planned.

Billy happens to be passing the field where the men are at work and notices the whip of Pedro lying idly on the ground. He is suspicious and repairs to the house of the planter. Major Williams, on his way home, notes the uneasiness of the natives and he is fearful. Looking through a powerful glass Billy and the Major see the advancement of the savage horde. There are hundreds of them coming through the dense brush, wading a small ravine.

The Major takes Florence and Billy and repairs to the stockade, a barbed wire fence enclosure. The men are armed and they resolve to make a bold stand. Pedro is in advance of the wild men and professes friendship. He gains the interior of the stockade, but is watched by Billy. The latter sees Pedro in the act of making an opening for the savages and he shoots him through the arm.

The beleaguered are in sore straits and Billy resolves to seek help. Holding Pedro before him as a target, he issues forth and is protected. He makes his way quickly to the garrison and summons the United States soldiers, who mount and ride quickly to the relief of the Major. The planter is making a gallant stand, doing execution with his hunting gun, and manages to stand off the black men. The soldiers arrive in time to rout them, and Billy is a hero, having saved his sweetheart and her father.

$5000 REWARD, DEAD OR ALIVE
American Release, June 8

Steve Frazer, a young cowpuncher on the Bar X Ranch, loved Madie, the winsome daughter of Chet Howard, the sheriff, and she was not indifferent to the manly cowboy.

Loverlike they had a postoffice in the mountains, among the rocks, and many little notes were exchanged between the happy pair. The mountains sheltered a pair of holdup men, who had long terrorized the country, and the cattlemen, after a conference, decided to offer a reward for the capture, dead or alive, of the mysterious bandits.

The notices were posted by the sheriff, but the depredations of the bandits continued and one morning a ranchman, going home with a large amount of money—the payroll for his employees, was held up and robbed by one of the pair. The bandit escaped into the shelter of the mountains and, by a strange coincidence, cached the bag of gold in the lovers' postoffice.

Shortly after, Steve Frazer rode up to get his accustomed note and found instead the bag of gold. Leaving the note and taking the gold he hurries to the sheriff's home to report his discovery. A posse is formed and they start immediately for the scene of the holdup.

In the meantime the bandit who committed the daring crime has sent his confederate, with minute instructions, to procure the gold cached in the lovers' postoffice. He finds the place but, instead of the desired gold, he finds a note, "If you love me as I love you, no knife can cut our love in two."

Believing that his partner has duped him he returns to the rendezvous and accuses him of double-crossing him. This is denied emphatically, and together they return to the rock, but find only the note. Both are now thoroughly angry, and accusations against each other are fast and furious. "When thieves fall out, honest men get their dues," and forgetting where they are, start to fight. They are thus engaged when the posse come upon them and they are easily captured. The reward offered for their capture goes to Steve Frazer, and he is now in a position to claim the winsome Madie Howard, and the culmination is a happy one.

LONGSTREET AT SEVEN PINES
Champion Release, June 12

Harriet Clyde, a typical Southern girl, was beloved by Jordon Primrose and Walter Maynard. Both gentlemen were brave and chivalrous, but human nature is not perfect; and so to one came the bitterness of despair and a thirst for revenge when his happiness had been blasted by the other's success.

Jordon's advances had been pleasing to Harriet—she liked his strong, vigorous, manly bearing—perhaps somewhat too rough in his ways; but this is usually a most admirable trait in the feminine eye, and thus it was that Harriet favored him and accepted his offer of marriage.

Now, Walter was gentle and considerate in look and action, with a tenderness of bearing which only the feminine heart can appreciate; but he lacked not, in his makeup, plenty of that stuff of which heroes are made, as was subsequently shown by the trend of events. When, therefore, he found that Harriet had accepted Jordon, he left the woman he loved dearer than life, with a heavy heart, and she, torn by her emotion, sank sobbing to the floor.

Jordon was indeed dear to her, but she discovered, alas, too late! that Walter was the idol of her soul. Then came the war, that terrible war when brother fought against brother, and the father against son. Jordon drew his sword for his native Virginia. Though Southern born, Harriet was loyal to the Union, and Jordon's decision to fight against IT caused her to brood and fret as her wedding day drew nigh.

Heroically stifling his deep grief, Walter was present as a guest at the day of the ceremony. At the height of it, however, Harriet, throwing aside all restraint, renounced her allegiance to Jordon and flung herself into the arms of the man she truly loved, Walter Maynard. With a bitterness of soul which only strong natures like his could feel, Jordon dashed away and Walter and Harriet were wed.

The second day's battle of Seven Pines was being fought, and Longstreet, with his monstrous beard, the personification of ferocity, hurled his forces again and again on the Union lines. The fierce, sanguinary contest surged and rolled, a veritable ocean of wild, tumultuous human passions. In one of the lulls of that awful strife, some Union prisoners were brought into Jordon's camp, and he came face to face with the man who robbed him of his prize, and hate burned within him.

LONGSTREET AT SEVEN PINES

A letter from Harriet, found on Walter, told of the birth of her child, and this Jordon read with a bitter heart. But that night a vision came to him of Harriet with her babe, her sweet face pleading for Walter, and this vision purified the soul of Jordon, who contrived Walter's escape.

Here is how it came about: Jordon exchanged coats with Walter, and so that he could escape from the Confederate lines, he with the Union blue on, was himself chased and shot by his own soldiers. He died that the man SHE loved might be spared to her, and that she might be happy. It was a noble sacrifice of a brave and true gentleman.

HIS LAST CROOKED DEAL
Champion Release, June 14

The postmistress at Cross Forks Junction was a comely widow, Edith Johnson. She was the one grand quarry of that section. Along came Albert Graybill, gay and debonair, and the widow was won by his sangfroid. But Albert had a rival in Harry Ludlim, the sheriff of the Forks. Ludlim was big and attractive in his own way, but he lacked the dash which most women admire in men.

One day Harry presented a gold watch and chain to the lovely widow, and she, in her exuberance, gave him a hug and a kiss. This prompted him to ask her to be his wife, but Edith refused him, for she only regarded him as a big brother. Shortly after his sad departure, Graybill entered, and on seeing the watch, learned the story of the sheriff's proposal. He laughed heartily, thereby exhibiting an unmannerly instinct, and then carries the widow's heart by storm, pressing her voluptuously to his breast. She consented, and they were married.

Al Graybill was an inveterate gambler, and he would barter his soul for a stake. His love for her soon cooled—he had become brutal when her money gave out, and he demanded the watch given her by the big-hearted sheriff. He fumed and raged when she dissented, but when she finally handed it over, he made a sad pretense of affection and rushed off.

With the money obtained for the watch he made for the gambling den where, it happened, Harry Ludlim was playing a friendly game, in the course of his duties. Graybill entered and in a little while had cleaned out the table with four aces. He raked in his pile gleefully, all having left the table, except the sheriff. The latter turned down his hand and remembered he had an ace in it. He re-examined his cards carefully to assure himself, and the next moment Graybill was looking into the muzzle of his gun. He is forced to return the money, and for the widow's sake the sheriff saves him from the boys, who would make a short shrift for him. But he is ordered to leave town in one hour.

The scoundrel rushes home, and his poor wife assists him to pack up. In his mad hurry, he throws off his coat, disclosing to his wife a great wrong, greater than that of the cards: the marriage certificate which bound him to another. With hellish fury she forced him at pistol point to the sheriff's office. His pleadings are in vain, and he meets his deserts. And the honest-hearted sheriff comes in for his own, enfolding in his arms his darling widow. And the sweets of living come to them both at last, finding happiness in each other's arms.

TRUE LOVE NEVER DIES
Great Northern Release, June 10

The love affair of two young people is roughly interrupted by the girl's father, who wants her to marry a wealthy suitor. The girl at first rebels, but at last gives way to her father's entreaties. An effective scene shows the departure of the pair from the church on the wedding morning, and the rejected lover's disconsolate grief. In despair he drinks heavily for a long period and brings himself to poverty. The husband of the woman he loves takes pity on him and helps him to regain his self-respect. A few years later the husband is killed in an accident, and not long afterwards the young fellow, now in a good position, learns from the widow that "love can never die."

Ashland, Wis.—Gus Johnson is contemplating the erection of a new moving picture house here.

Duluth, Minn.—Plans for the rebuilding of the Orpheum Theater at Eveleth have been prepared by E. S. Radcliffe.

New York, N. Y.—Sommerfeld & Steckler, architects, have filed plans for the erection of a moving picture theater at Seventh avenue and 137th street for Cortes & Comfort.

New York, N. Y.—Architect David Storrer has filed plans for an open air moving picture show at Eighth avenue and 145th street for Martin Meyer.

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

		Feet
Mar.	29	A Glimpse of Neapolitan Camorra.
Apr.	12	The Necklace Affair	950
Apr.	19	The Mute of Portici	950
May	3	Grenadier Roland	950
Apr.	26	How Winter Decorates Nature	500
Apr.	26	The Quartermaster	500
May	3	The Traces on the Snow	950
May	10	Air Bubbles	500
May	10	Tweedledum is Late	500
May	17	Grenadier Roland	950
May	24	The Snow Maiden (Dr.)
May	31	Tweedledum's Dream (Com.)
May	31	Exploits of a Napoleon Admirer

AMERICAN.

May	1	United States Cavalry Drill (Mil.)	172
May	4	Grazy Gulch (W. Com.)	520
May	4	The Hobo's Roundup (Com.)	470
May	8	The Opium Smuggler (Dr.)	900
May	11	The Sheriff's Captive (W. Dr.)	1000
May	15	The Ranchman's Vengeance (Dr.)	1000
May	18	A Cowboy's Sacrifice (Dr.)	1000
May	29	Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder (W. Com.)
May	29	The Ranch Tenor (W. Com.)
June	1	The Sheepman's Daughter (W. Dr.)
June	5	A Sage Brush Phrenologist (W. Com.)
June	5	The Elopement on Double L Ranch (W. Com.)
June	8	$5,000 Reward—Dead or Alive (W. Com. Dr.)

CHAMPION.

Apr.	5	The Price He Paid	975
Apr.	12	Men of the West	980
Apr.	17	With Stonewall Jackson	960
Apr.	19	A Halfbreed's Courage	950
Apr.	24	Gen. Meade's Fighting Days	965
Apr.	26	She Wanted a Man with Brains	970
May	1	Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia	1000
May	3	Out of the Dark	990
May	8	Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California	1000
May	10	Making a Man of His Son	910
May	15	Gen. Marion—The Swamp Fox	950
May	17	Circle C's New Boss	950
May	22	With Sheridan at Murfreesboro (Dr.)	950
May	24	In the Great Big West (Dr.)	950
May	29	The Peril of Diaz	950
May	31	How He Redeemed Himself	950
June	5	Service Under Johnston and Lee	950
June	7	The Cost of Drink	950

ECLAIR

Apr.	10	Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr.	17	Dog and Wolf	660
Apr.	17	Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr.	24	Herodias	955
May	1	For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May	1	The Blue Nile	290
May	8	A Village Flirt (Com.)	910
May	15	Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.)	910
May	22	A Mother's Distress	430
May	29	The Two Gardeners (Com.)	940
June	5	Impudence Punished (Com.)	550
June	5	Tommy at the Dentist's (Com.)	420
June	12	Caesar's Birotteau (Dr.)	950
June	19	Tommy Gets a Trumpet (Com.)	370
June	19	The Ingenious Accident (Com.)	620
June	26	The Death of Don Juan	965
July	3	Can He Save Her (Dr.)	515
July	3	Tommy Wants to Be an Actor (Com.)	435
July	10	A Child's Heroism (Dr.)	995

GREAT NORTHERN.

Mar.	18	Life and People South of the Equator (Scenic)
Mar.	25	The Fakir's New Servant (Com.)
Mar.	25	Troubles of a Trip (Com.)
Apr.	1	A Victim of His Double (Dr.)
Apr.	8	A Confidence Trick
Apr.	15	Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr.	22	The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)
Apr.	29	The Cossack Duke (Dr.)	894
May	6	The Lucky Banana Seller (Com.)
May	6	A Would-be Sportsman (Com.)
May	13	The Nun (Dr.)
May	20	The Voice of Conscience (Dr.)	786
May	20	Berne (Switzerland) (Sc.)	204
May	27	The Love of a Gypsy Girl (Dr.)
June	3	The Bogus Governess	945

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Mar.	9	The Message in the Bottle (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	13	The Secret of the Palm (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	16	The Fishermaid (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	20	In Old Madrid (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	23	The Penniless Prince (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	27	Sweet Memories (Dr.)	1000
Mar.	30	So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	3	The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr.	6	The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	10	A Good Cigar
Apr.	10	A Faithless Man
Apr.	13	The Storm
Apr.	20	The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr.	24	While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
Apr.	27	The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000
May	1	Second Sight (Dr.)	1000
May	4	The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
May	8	Four Lives (Dr.)	300
May	8	The Fair Dentist (Com.)	700
May	11	For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
May	15	The Master and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May	15	The Lighthouse Keeper (Dr.)	1000
May	22	The Forged Despatch (Dr.)	1000
May	25	The Minor Chord (Dr.)	1000
May	29	Three of a Kind (Dr.)	1000
June	1	The Last Appeal (Dr.)	1000
June	5	The Grind (Dr.)	700
June	5	The Chicago Stockyards Fire (Sc.)	500
June	8	Back to the Soil (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

Apr.	1	Foolshead Goes to See a Cockfight.
Apr.	8	Foolshead—Lady of Company
Apr.	15	The Fall of Troy
Apr.	22	Marriage Midst the Sausages (Com.)	500
Apr.	22	Foolshead — Wrangler for Love (Com.)	500
Apr.	27	Little Lewis Toy (Dr.)	950
Apr.	29	Foolshead Telegraph Boy	500
Apr.	29	The Bottle of Milk (Com.)	500
May	4	The Cry of the Native Country (Dr.)	950
May	6	Foolshead—Life Insurance Agent (Com.)	950
May	6	The Fountains of Rome
May	11	The Marchioness of Ansperti (Dr.)	950
May	13	Marriage Advertisement (Com.)	500
May	13	Foolshead Has Lost a Needle (C.)	500
May	18	Little Mother	950
May	20	Two Girls Love Foolshead (Com.)
May	26	The Little Rider (Dr.)
June	1	The Collector's Purse (Dr.)
June	3	International Exhibition at Turin.
June	3	Knows-All, Anthropological Doctor (Com.)

LUX.

By Prieur.

Mar.	31	He Wanted a Hoop (Com.)	281
Apr.	7	Bill's Little Plan (Com.)	386
Apr.	7	A Desperado (Dr.)	586
Apr.	14	Bill and the Greasy Pole (Com.)	432
Apr.	14	They Did Not Budge (Com.)	501
Apr.	21	Dr. Grant's Wonderful Discovery (Dr.)	885
Apr.	28	Naughty Miss Edith (Com.)	472
Apr.	28	Bill's Garden (Com.)	419
May	5	Bill as a Toreador (Com.)	419
May	5	Fashion and Its Consequence (Com.)	426
May	12	The Postmistress (Dr.)	700
May	12	A Walk in Tunis	252
May	19	Bill at Work (Com.)	367
May	19	All Through a Rat (Com.)	475
May	26	The Two Cockades (Dr.)	698
May	26	Tidying Up Paris (Com.)	268
June	2	Just Bill's Luck (Com.)	403
June	2	Arnold Has a Good Trial (Com.)	462
June	9	The Companion Governess (Dr.)	639
June	9	Bill at Play (Com.)	331

NESTOR FILM CO.

Feb.	22	His Father's House (Dr.)
Mar.	1	The Professor's Romance (C.-D.)	990
Mar.	8	In the Commissioned Ranks
Mar.	8	In the Commissioned Ranks (Dr.)
Mar.	15	Was It Worth While? (Dr.)
Mar.	22	Could You Blame Him? (Com.)
Mar.	29	The Truth (Dr.)
Apr.	5	The Stolen Necklace
Apr.	12	A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr.	19	The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr.	26	His Wife (Dr.)
May	3	The Other Man (Dr.)
May	10	After Twenty Years (Dr.)
May	17	His Second Choice (Com.)
May	24	At Panther Creek (Dr.)
May	31	The Savage (Dr.)
May	31	A Sure Cure (Com.)
June	7	The Cowpuncher (Dr.)
June	7	The Little Burglar (Com.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Mar.	28	An Indian Nemesis (Dr.)
Mar.	31	The Red Avenger (Dr.)
Apr.	4	At Bar U Ranch (Dr.)
Apr.	7	Avery's Dream (Com.)
Apr.	11	An Indian's Mistake	950
Apr.	14	A Man of Honor	950
Apr.	18	Return of Company D (Dr.)	950
Apr.	21	A Cowboy for a Day (Com.)	950
May	2	Shifty's Claim (W. Com. Dr.)	950
May	5	A Knight of the Trail	950
May	9	The Crow Chief's Defeat (Dr.)	950
May	12	The Foreman's Bride (Com. Dr.)	950
May	16	The Broncho Buster's Rival
May	19	The Cheyenne Medicine Man
May	23	The Outlaw and the Female Detective
May	26	Brave Swift Eagle's Peril
May	30	A Redskin's Bravery
June	2	A Tale of the Foothills

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Apr.	18	Copper Wit (Com.)
Apr.	18	The Wine Harvest
Apr.	22	The Last Rose
Apr.	25	A Day with an English Bargeman (Com.)
Apr.	25	Melody of Fate (Dr.)
Apr.	29	Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.)
May	2	The Crisis (Dr.)
May	2	The Joys of Persecution (Com.)
May	6	The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)
May	9	The Four of Us (Com.)
May	9	Contagion (Com.)
May	13	As Your Hair Grows Whiter (Dr.)
May	16	Oklahoma (Dr.)
May	16	A Matrimonial Surprise (Com.)
May	20	Gunga Din (Dr.)
May	23	Her Atonement
May	27	Fifty Years Ago
May	30	Civilization
June	3	Eyes That See Not (Dr.)

RELIANCE

Apr.	29	Locked Out (Dr.)	950
May	3	Such is the Kingdom	950
May	6	Over the Shading Edge (Dr.)	950
May	10	A Left Hook (Com.)	950
May	13	The Conflict	950
May	17	The Harvest (Dr.)	950
May	20	A Sonata of Souls
May	24	There's Many a Slip
May	27	O'er Grim Fields Scarred (Dr.)
May	31	Dad's Girl
June	3	In Flowers Paled
June	7	The Minute and the Maid

REX

Apr.	5	"The Heiress" (Com.)	975
Apr.	13	"The Little Major" (Dr.)	960
Apr.	20	A Daughter of the Revolution (Dr.)
Apr.	27	The Realization (Dr.)
May	4	The Ultimate Sacrifice
May	11	The Guardsman (Dr.)
May	18	An Exception to the Rule (Com.)
May	25	Called Back (Dr.)
June	1	The Monogram "J. O." (Dr.)

SOLAX COMPANY

May	3	Sensible Dad (Com.)
May	3	Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May	5	The Somnamhulist (Dr.)
May	10	Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May	17	His Dumh Wife (Com.)
May	19	In the Nick of Time (Dr.)
May	24	House of Peace (Com.)
May	24	The Devil in the Tin Cup (Com.)
May	26	An Officer and a Gentleman (Dr.)
May	31	The Marvelous Cow (Com.)
June	2	Never Too Late to Mend (Dr.)

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Mar.	28	The Imposter	1000
Mar.	31	Silas Marner	1000
Apr.	4	Charity of the Poor (Dr.)
Apr.	7	Vindicated
Apr.	11	Velvet and Rags
Apr.	14	Old Home Week (Com. Dr.)
Apr.	18	Cally's Comet (Com.)	1000
Apr.	21	Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr.	25	Poet of the People (His.)
Apr.	28	An Elevator Romance (Com.)
May	2	The Pillars of Society (Dr.)
May	5	The Sinner (Dr.)
May	9	The Railroad Builder (Dr.)	1000
May	12	The Regimental Ball (Dr.)	1000
May	16	The Colonel and the King
May	19	Lady Clare
May	23	The Stage Child (Dr.)
May	26	Get Rick Quick (Dr.)
May	30	A Wartime Wooing
June	2	A Circus Stowaway
June	6	The Stepmother
June	9	Motoring
June	9	The Rescue of Mr. Henpeck

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Mar.	31	Her Mother's Fiance (Dr.)
Apr.	4	Secret of the Opal Mine (Dr.)
Apr.	4	The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr.	10	An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.)
Apr.	14	Willie's Winning Ways (Com.)
Apr.	17	A Close Call (Dr.)
Apr.	21	The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr.	24	Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr.	28	The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May	1	A Kentucky Girl (Dr.)
May	5	Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.)
May	8	In Sunny Italy (Dr.)
May	12	The Angelus Bell (Dr.)
May	15	An Indian Brave's Conversion (Dr.)
May	19	The Banana Planter's Peril (Dr.)
May	22	The Little Western Rose (Dr.)
May	26	Thwarted by Nell Pierce (Dr.)
May	29	The Birth Mark (Dr.)
June	2	His Romance (Dr.)
June	5	The Scandal Monger (Dr.)
June	9	Mrs. Biffin's Demise (Dr.)

LICENSEES OF PATENTS CO.

BIOGRAPH

	Feet
Apr. 10—The Chief's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Paradise Lost (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 17—Madam Rex (Dr.)	996
Apr. 20—A Knight of the Road (Dr.)	996
Apr. 24—His Mother's Scarf (Dr.)	994
Apr. 27—How She Triumphed (Com.)	998
May 1—The Two Sides (Dr.)	998
May 4—Misplaced Jealousy (Com.)	503
May 4—Cupid's Joke (Com.)	493
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 8—In the Days of '49 (Dr.)	995
May 11—The Country Lovers (Dr.)	995
May 15—The New Dress (Dr.)	998
May 18—The Manicure Lady (Dr.)	998
May 22—The Crooked Road (Dr.)	997
May 25—The White Rose of the Wilds (Dr.)	998
May 29—A Romany Tragedy (Dr.)	996
June 1—A Dutch Gold Mine (Com.)	769
June 1—Curiosity (Com.)	228
June 5—A Smile of a Child(Dr.)	997
June 8—Their Fates Sealed (Com.)	396
June 8—Dave's Love Affair (Com.)	601

EDISON

Apr. 26—The Two Heroes (Com.)	975
Apr. 28—The Child and the Tramp (Com.)	1000
May 1—The Panama Canal in 1911	990
May 3—Josh and Cindy's Wedding Trip	1000
May 5—Aida (Dr.)	1000
May 9—Edna's Imprisonment (Com.)	975
May 10—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)	1000
May 12—The Quarrel on the Cliff (Dr.)	1000
May 16—In the Baggage Coach Ahead (Dr.)	1000
May 17—In and Around Havana, Cuba	450
May 17—How the Hungry Man was Fed (Com.)	550
May 19—A Case of High Treason (Dr.)	1000
May 23—Captain Nell (Dr.)	1000
May 24—Madeline's Rebellion (Com.)	990
May 26—Hearts and Flags (Dr.)	1000
May 30—The Niece and the Chorus Lady (Com.)	975
May 31—The Inheritance (Com.)	625
May 31—It Served Her Right (Com.)	375
June 2—A Sane Fourth of July	1000
June 7—Father's Dress Suit (Com.)	500
June 6—The Cardinal's Edict (Dr.)	1000
June 7—A Lesson Learned (Dr.)	500
June 9—The Wager and the Wage Earners (Dr.)	1000
June 13—Her Brother's Photograph (Dr.)	1000
June 14—Heroes Three (Com.)	500
June 14—Mistakes Will Happen (Com.)	500

ESSANAY FILM CO.

Apr. 18—What Happened to Auntie (Com.)	800
Apr. 18—Catching the Deep Sea Turtle (Edu.)	200
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Two Mothers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 29—What a Woman Can Do (Dr.)	950
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 9—Holding His Own (Com.)	600
May 9—The Laundry Lady's Luck (Com.)	400
May 13—The Cow Puncher's New Love (Dr.)	1000
May 16—Wild Animals in Captivity (Edu.)	1000
May 20—"Alkali" Ike's Auto (Com.)	1000
May 23—The Atonement (Dr.)	1000
May 27—The Lucky Card (Dr.)	1000
May 30—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
June 3—The Infant at Snakeville (Dr.)	1000
June 6—His Friend's Wife (Dr.)	1000
June 10—Forgiven in Death (Dr.)	1000

GAUMONT

G. Kleine

Mar. 28—Family Troubles	430
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 1—The Secret of the Forest (Dr.)	625
Apr. 1—Tribulations of Jiggers	375
Apr. 4—The Letter with the Red Seal	865
Apr. 4—The City of Amalfi in Italy	135
Apr. 8—The Atonement of Thais	865
Apr. 8—Italian Coast Scenes	135
Apr. 11—The Court Martial (Dr.)	725
Apr. 11—Picturesque Waterfalls in Northern Spain	275
Apr. 15—The Oppressor (Dr.)	640
Apr. 15—Jimmy the Fox (Com.)	380
Apr. 18—Lost Years	630
Apr. 18—Brest, a Fortified Harbor of France	370
Apr. 22—The Erring Son (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Romance of a Valet	510
Apr. 25—Old Folks	490
Apr. 29—A Priestess of Carthage	1060
May 2—The Young King of Rome	440
May 2—Tunis, Africa, the City of White	560
May 6—The Crusade of the Templars	1000
May 9—Three of a Kind	740
May 9—Spring-Heeled Jack	245
May 13—In the Days of Nero	1000
May 16—The Bankrupt	1000
May 20—Jimmie on a Lark	570
May 20—Shooting the Rapids	450
May 23—The Emperor's Return	795
May 23—Swans	205
May 24—The Gaul's Honor	582
May 24—On the Frontier of Thibet, Asia	420
May 27—Alone at Night	480
May 27—Jimmie the Sportsman	510
May 30—Science vs. Quackery	970
June 3—Mistrust	985
June 6—The Drawn Curtain	735
June 6—Chrysanthemums	240
June 10—The Love Story of a Great Actress	1000

KALEM CO.

Mar. 29—The Lass Who Couldn't Forget (Dr.)	960
Mar. 31—The Hero Trackwalker (Dr.)	950
Apr. 5—By a Woman's Wit (Dr.)	995
Apr. 7—Big-hearted Jim (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 12—In Old Florida (Dr.)	965
Apr. 14—Slim Jim's Last Chance (Dr.)	970
Apr. 19—The Phoney Prince (Com.)	990
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 26—A Night and a Day (Com.)	995
Apr. 28—Slabsides (Dr.)	1005
May 3—The Fiddle's Requiem (Dr.)	1000
May 5—When the Dead Return (Dr.)	990
May 10—The Loyalty of Don Luis Verdugo (Dr.)	980
May 12—The Carnival (Dr.)	1000
May 17—A Tragedy in Toyland (Dr.)	940
May 19—In Blossom Time (Dr.)	1000
May 24—Carrier Pigeons (Dr.)	970
May 26—Tangled Lives (Dr.)	1000
May 31—Bertie's Reform (Com.)	1005
June 2—Her Son (Dr.)	1000
June 7—Advertising for Mamma (Dr.)	1010
June 9—The Love of Summer Morn (Dr.)	990

LUBIN

Apr. 3—The Wife's Awakening (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 6—His Best Girl After All (Dr.)	600
Apr. 6—A Visit to Nassau, Bahama (Travel)	400
Apr. 10—Opportunity and the Man (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Their Mothers-in-Law (Com.)	1000
Apr. 17—The Two Fathers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 20—Helping Him Out (Com.)	1000
Apr. 24—The Hoyden (Com.)	1000
Apr. 27—The Sheriff and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 1—A Fascinating Bachelor (Com. Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Belated Bridegroom (Com.)	1000
May 8—That Awful Brother (Com.)	1000
May 11—Drifting (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Angels of the Slums (Dr.)	1000
May 18—Her Humble Ministry (Dr.)	1000
May 22—The Gambler's Chance (Dr.)	600
May 22—A Hero—Almost (Com.)	400
May 25—A Good Turn (Dr.)	1000
May 29—The State Line (Dr.)	1000
June 1—A Game of Deception (Com.)	1000
June 5—The Feud (Com.)	635
June 5—The Sardine Industry (Indus.)	365
June 8—The Professor's Ward (Dr.)	1000

G. MELIES.

Apr. 13—Jack Mason's Last Deal	1000
Apr. 20—An Unwilling Cowboy
Apr. 27—The Reformation of Jack Robin	1000
May 4—Mary's Strategem	1000
May 11—The Spring Round-Up	1000
May 18—The Redemption of Rawhide (Com.)	980
May 25—The Immortal Alamo	1000
June 1—In Time for Press	1000
June 8—Her Spoiled Boy	1000
June 15—When the Tables Turned (Com.)	1000
June 22—The Kiss of Mary Jane (Dr.)	1000
June 29—The Honor of the Flag	1000

PATHE FRERES

Apr. 15—Burglar's Fee (Com.)	1,000
Apr. 17—Robert the Silent (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 19—A New Life (Dr.)	990
Apr. 21—Boil Your Water
Apr. 21—Mary Long and Sammy Short (C.)	360
Apr. 22—The Chief's Talisman (Western)	820
Apr. 24—Lai Chyeim	997
Apr. 26—The Rival Brothers' Patriotism (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 28—Enemies	833
Apr. 28—Pastime in Chili	160
Apr. 29—The Foster Father (Dr.)	950
May 1—Forgiveness is Sweet	754
May 1—Scenes Along the Mekong	240
May 3—Indian Justice	1000
May 5—Max is Forced to Work	670
May 5—Through Venice	295
May 6—Short-Lived Happiness (Dr.)	1000
May 8—My Daughter	748
May 8—Over Lucerne (Switzerland) in an Airship	253
May 10—The Abernathy Kids' Rescue (Dr.)	771
May 10—The Ocean Harnessed	216
May 12—The Samourai's Expiation	640
May 12—American Beauties	351
May 13—Lucia's Broken Romance (Dr)	958
May 20—A Close Call
May 26—Semiramis
May 14—Leo Tolstoi
May 15—The Accomplice (Dr.)	836
May 15—Winter Sports at Lucerne	150
May 17—Billy in Trouble (Com.)	950
May 20—Paul and Francesco	859
May 20—The Fastest Motor Boat in the World	50
May 22—Shooting the Rapids in Japan	150
May 22—Boxing Match—Astrier-Quendreux	823
May 24—The Heart of an Indian Maid (Dr.)	990
May 26—Semiramis	945
May 27—All for Money (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Love Proves Stronger Than Duty	689
May 29—Bob's Microscope	300
May 31—The Flag Didn't Rise (Dr.)	950
June 2—Shame on Max (Com.)	390
June 2—Loyal Love	604
June 3—His Baby's Doll (Dr.)	997
June 5—A Rough Diamond	751
June 5—The Scorpion	249
June 7—The Insubordinate Soldier (Dr.)	1000
June 9—Khamara	810
June 9—Miss Blum	174
June 10—A Broken Life (Dr.)	987

SELIG

Apr. 24—Unto Us a Child Is Born
Apr. 27—The Witch of the Everglades
May 1—Her Master	1000
May 4—In Old California, When the Gringoes Came	1000
May 5—Tournament of Roses
May 8—Lost and Won	1000
May 11—Back to the Primitive	1000
May 15—Discharging the Cook (Com.)
May 15—Dear, Kind Hubby
May 18—The Still Alarm
May 22—The Herders
May 23—Stability vs. Nobility
May 25—Jim and Joe
May 29—A Novel Experiment	1000
May 30—One of Nature's Noblemen	1000
June 1—The Rose of Old St. Augustine	1000
June 5—Where There's a Will, There's a Way, and The Great Nitrate of Soda Industry of Chile	1000
June 6—Montana Anna (Com. Dr.)	1000
June 8—The Visiting Nurse (Dr.)	1000

URBAN ECLIPSE

G. Kleine

Mar. 1—Beauties of Sans Souci	362
Mar. 8—The Fury of a Woman Scorned	720
Mar. 8—Beautiful Wye Valley, England	300
Mar. 15—Redemption	508
Mar. 15—The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond	472
Mar. 22—The Money Lender	688
Nemours and the Banks of the River Loing, France	320
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 5—At the Old Mill (Dr)	675
Apr. 5—Making Bamboo Hats in Java	325
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 19—Solving the Servant Problem (C.)	465
Apr. 19—In the Province of Kwang Tung, China	535
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
Apr. 26—The Last Edict of Francis II	875
Apr. 26—Scenes at Colombo, Ceylon	125
May 3—The Page's Devotion	790
May 3—Wismar, Germany	210
May 10—The Traitor (Dr.)	620
May 10—Rubber-Neck Percy (Com.)	370
May 17—The Juggler's Vengeance (Dr.)	396
May 17—Fishguard Harbor, Wales	600
May 31—The Musketeer	588
May 31—The Sleuth	404
June 7—The Young Interne	750
June 7—Heligoland, an Isle of the North Sea	250

VITAGRAPH

Mar. 24—The Widow Visits Sprigtown (C.)	985
Mar. 25—A Little Lad in Dixie (Dr.)	999
Mar. 28—Billy's Valentine (Com.)	995
Mar. 31—The Inherited Taint (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—A Republican Marriage	996
Apr. 4—Unexpected Review (Com.)	660
Apr. 4—Hop Picking (Indust.)	335
Apr. 7—The Winning of the Stepchildren (Dr.)	965
Apr. 8—Winsor McCay (Com.)	650
Apr. 8—Bob Sledding	350
Apr. 11—The Wooing of Winifred (Com.)	988
Apr. 14—Though Your Sins be as Scarlet (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 15—Easter Babies (Com. Dr.)	980
Apr. 18—The Leading Lady (Com.)	985
Apr. 21—The Troublesome Secretaries (Com.)	990
Apr. 22—The Spirit of the Light (Dr.)	995
Apr. 25—A Klondike Steal (Dr.)	998
Apr. 28—The Peace Offering (Com.)	998
Apr. 29—Piccolla (Dr.)	993
May 2—The Derelict Reporter (Dr.)	975
May 5—Soldiers Three (Com.)	1000
May 6—Hungry Hearts (Dr.)	985
May 9—His Mother (Dr.)	995
May 12—The Welcome of the Unwelcome (Com.)	1000
May 13—Prejudice of Pierre Marie (Dr.)	985
May 16—When a Man's Married (Com.)	1000
May 19—The Show Girl (Dr.)	990
May 20—Sunshine and Shadow (Dr.)	990
May 23—A Dead Man's Honor (Dr.)	1000
May 26—Tim Mahoney, the Scab (Dr.)	1000
May 27—The Fires of Fate (Dr.)	1000
May 30—Cupid's Chauffeur (Com.)	1000
June 2—The Ends of the Earth (Dr.)	1000
June 3—A Clever Fraud (Com.)	1000
June 6—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
June 9—The Sacrifice (Dr.)	1000
June 10—The Changing of Silas Warner (Dr.)	1000

Keep Harping

on your exchange for two Imps every week. If you don't, you won't get 'em. If you don't get 'em, you're not buying with both sides of your dollars! Don't pay a stiff rental price to anyone unless he gives you two Imps every blessed week. And don't forget to send us your name and address for important mailing matter! Next releases:

"Behind the Stockade"

A thriller! Love, jealousy, hatred, fight, revenge, danger and rescue follow each other in rapid succession. RELEASED MONDAY, JUNE 12TH. Scrap for it.

"The Piece of String"

Adapted from a short story by one of the world's greatest writers. One of the most dramatic productions you ever saw. Shows the deadly effects of circumstantial evidence. RELEASED THURSDAY, JUNE 15TH. Scrap for it.

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America.
102 W. 101st St., New York. Carl Laemmle, Pres.

INDEPENDENT MOVING PICTURES CO. IMP AMERICA

IMP LOBBY DISPLAYS are selling like hot cakes. Get yours quick. Handsome wide oak frame and ten heavily glassed openings containing as many fine photographs. The whole combination for a five-dollar bill. Send for circular.

Jump In!

I buy every good film on the market, including the feature films, in greater quantities than any other exchange. If you hook up with me, you get this stuff weeks, and in most cases months, sooner than you do if you're dealing with a piker and have to wait your long turn. Dive into the pool of "Laemmle Luck." The water's fine.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
209 Fifth St., Des Moines, Iowa.
The biggest and best film renter in the world.

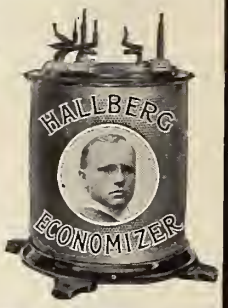
HALLBERG

THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"

SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.

I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.

Free Catalogue No. N 1



J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St New York City

$25,000 Lien Ties Up Moving-Picture Trust

The movement of the moving-picture trust to wipe out all the independent film exchanges struck a snag when an attachment for $25,000 was issued against the General Film Company by Charles A. Calehuff, of 50 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia.

It is understood that the General Film Company is a subsidiary concern of the Motion Picture Patents Company, which controls all the licensed moving-picture films used in this country.

Every person who runs a moving-picture film exchange must procure a license from this company. Every proprietor of a moving-picture place who patronizes the exchange and uses the films of the General Film Company is required to pay a tax of $2 a week.

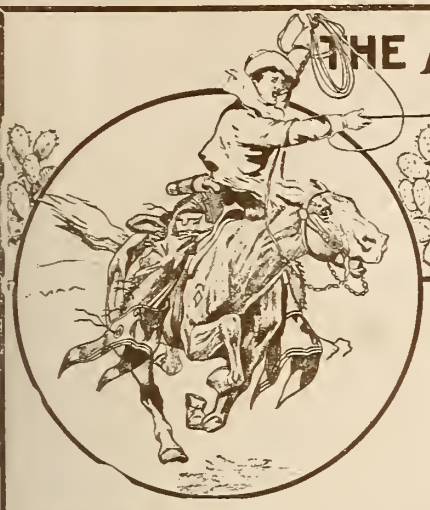
Until recently the majority of these exchanges have been run by individuals, but lately the General Film Company has been buying them up in all parts of the country. In the event of the owner refusing to sell, the Motion Picture Patents Company would revoke the license of the exchange.

Calehuff sold out his exchange to the trust, and $22,000 was due him last April from the General Film Company. He received no answer to letters his attorneys, Ladner & Ladner, sent the company, so, on the advice of former Judge James Gay Gordon, an attachment for $25,000 was issued.

As the company is a Maine corporation and doing business in Pennsylvania without being registered, a foreign attachment was issued. The result was that for eight hours both the Philadelphia exchanges, at 926 Market Street and 44 North Tenth Street, were tied up. The company's bank deposit was also attached. Not a film could be issued until the attachment was removed by the filing of a bond with the prothonotary for $25,000, the amount of the attachment.

According to Grover Cleveland Ladner, one of the counsel, the General Film Company still owes Calehuff several times as much as the attachment, the money being due at stipulated periods.

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO



"When you think of WESTERN think of FLYING A COWBOY FILMS"

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JUNE 5TH.

"A SAGE BRUSH PHRENOLOGIST"

"ELOPEMENTS ON DOUBLE L RANCH"

Original Western laughmakers. Original in story, theme and treatment. Original in that they will produce more roars than any Western comedies yet produced.

Scene from "Elopements on Double L Ranch"

Scene from "A Sage Brush Phrenologist"

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JUNE 8.

"5000.00 REWARD—DEAD OR ALIVE"

Some reward you'll acknowledge. Likewise some thriller. Some comedy. Some entertainment. A distinct Western triumph in comedy-drama and withal a novelty.

COMING

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JUNE 12.

"THE WITCH OF THE RANGE"

The apex of endeavor in Western Dramatic Production.

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JUNE 15.

"THE COWBOY'S RUSE"

"LAW AND ORDER ON BAR L RANCH"

Split reel Flying A Cowboy Comedy.

Scene from "$5,000 Reward—Dead or Alive"

TWO FLYING A COWBOY FILMS TWO ARE RELEASED EACH WEEK

Scene from "$5,000 Reward—Dead or Alive"

American Film Mfg. Co.,

Bank Floor, Ashland Block
CHICAGO, ILLS.

Lest You Forget

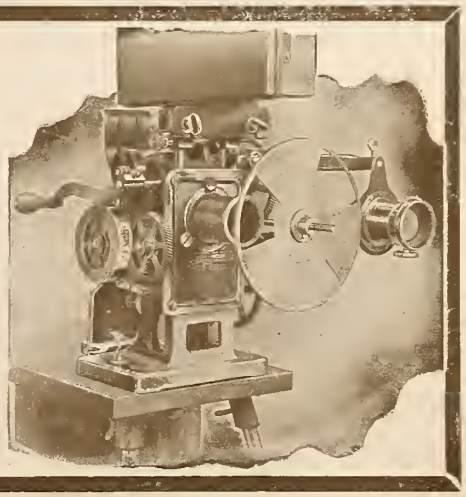
For more than thirteen years the name "POWER'S" on moving picture apparatus has stood for excellence. The buyer of POWER'S goods has known that he was getting the latest and best the market afforded.

This is truer today than ever before. The moving picture exhibitor who wants the best will buy that which has been tried and NOT found wanting.

Power's products make good.

Power's Inductor will accomplish surprising results on alternating current. Used in connection with Power's Cameragraph No. 6 equipped with a two wing exterior revolving shutter, it gives a bright, clear picture which is hard to beat with direct current. It keeps your electric light bills down to the lowest possible point and pays for itself in a short time.

Write for catalogue D, giving full details.



NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York

For thirteen years the leading manufacturers of motion picture machines.

Solax

ANNOUNCES GOOD NEWS

Have You SEEN Our New Pictures? No Doubt You've HEARD of Them!

THEY ARE BETTER!
THEY ARE TWICE AS GOOD!

Twice as good as SOLAX itself has been. And that's saying something!

OUR COMEDY IS BRINGING DOWN THE HOUSE
OUR MILITARY BRINGS THE AUDIENCE TO ITS FEET--AND GETS THE HANDS

We do not really believe that "He who hesitates is lost," but we do maintain that he who hesitates is going to fall behind. Join in the march of progress!

GET THE GOOD ONES

EVERY WEDNESDAY A ROUSING ROLLICKING COMEDY

EVERY FRIDAY—A MILITARY MASTERPIECE

A powerful pictorial personification of the excitement and glory of war.
WE RELEASE THEM. THE REST IS UP TO YOU. DO THE REST!

RELEASES

FRIDAY, JUNE 2d	"NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND,"	Military
WED., " 7th	"BRIDGET THE FLIRT,"	Comedy
FRIDAY, " 9th	"A MEXICAN GIRL'S LOVE,"	Military
WED., " 14th	"A BAD EGG,"	Comedy
FRIDAY, " 16th	"A DAUGHTER OF THE NAVAJOS,"	Military
WED., " 21st	"CUPID AND THE COMET,"	Split
	"JOHNNIE WATERS THE GARDEN,"	Comedy

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED

Sold exclusively through M. P. D. & S. Co.

JUN 29 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 23

June 10
1911

PRICE
TEN CENTS

SCENE FROM MOLLY PITCHER
CHAMPION RELEASE, JUNE 19th

Solax

GOOD COMEDY

YOU ought to know by this time that OUR COMEDY is far ahead of anything else on the market.

WHY? Because we have rounded up real comedy actors and are spending the money to get the best.

GET THE GOOD ONES
GO AND SEE THEM

BIG MILITARY

YOU can get new business with these pictures. Let them be the means of proving to your patrons how good INDEPENDENT FILMS are.

GO AND SEE THEM

FEATURE them and get the business.

Give Yourself a Square Deal! GET SOLAX!

RELEASES

WED., JUNE 14th—	"A BAD EGG,"	Comedy
FRIDAY, " 16th—	"A DAUGHTER OF THE NAVAJOS,"	Military
WED., " 21st—	"CUPID AND THE COMET,"	Comedy
FRIDAY, " 23rd—	"MARKED FOR LIFE,"	Drama
WED., " 28th—	"A FASCINATING WIDOW,"	Split reel
	"JOHNNIE WATERS THE GARDEN,"	Comedy

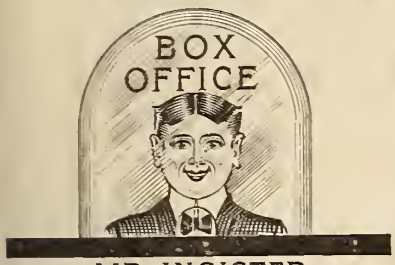
Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED

Sold exclusively through M. P. D. & S. Co.

"LORNA DOONE," OUT FRI. JUNE 30---Apply to Your Exchange NOW



MR. INSISTER

"THE COFFIN SHIP"

MR. INSISTER SAYS: I know what a stack of advance applications my exchange gets for "Good Things," so I'll be wise enough to INSIST on being booked TO-DAY for "Lorna Doone" and "The Declaration of Independence."

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

RELEASED TUESDAY, JUNE 20

A Tale of the Sea

THE COFFIN SHIP

is one of the most skillful sea stories that has ever been devised, and it plays up that "heart interest" element that has been such a feature of the best Thanhouser efforts. You MUST appeal to the heart and the sympathies to get a picture "over" best. Here the spectator's heart is drawn instantly to the bonnie bold skipper, his beauteous bride, and, lastly, to the father in his grief. Incidentally, let us tell you that the seascapes are nothing less than cinematographic gems. And the sinking ship—BUT wait till you SEE it sink! No. 221. Code Word, Cof.

RELEASED FRIDAY, JUNE 23

She Was a Bit Old But——!

FOXY GRANDMA

is surely one of the foxiest propositions that ever figured in a moving picture yarn, and you'll laugh WITH HER at the right smart way she did business with a "business man." But the "business man" was of the bunco brand and a game he tried to play on granny's grand-daughter was a "con" one. Grandma, however, spoiled it for him. She pitted her own wits against the "business man's," and won by a mile.

No. 222. Code Word, Foxy.

"FOXY GRANDMA"

THANHOUSER COMPANY

NEW ROCHELLE — NEW YORK

"DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE," OUT TUESDAY JULY 4th---Apply to Your Exchange NOW

ANOTHER ENTERPRISE TRIUMPH

A Motiograph Watch Fob FREE

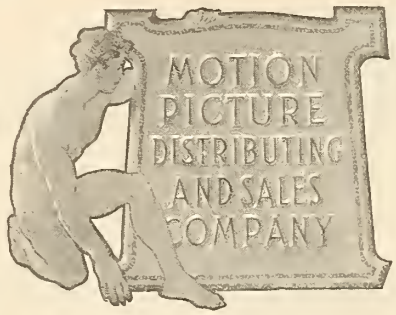
To every Theatre Manager and Operator, no matter what machine you have. It is yours for the asking—just as High-Class as THE MOTIOGRAPH itself.

YOU WANT IT NOW—
WE WANT YOU TO HAVE IT.
A HANDSOME GOLD FOB FREE

You won't be ashamed to wear it—We are not ashamed to give it away. Write today.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO., Makers of the MOTIOGRAPH 564 W. Randolph St., CHICAGO, ILL.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BOOK WITH YOUR EXCHANGE THE CORONATION FILM



IF YOU CAN NOT BOOK IT THERE WIRE US AT ONCE AND WE WILL PUT YOU IN TOUCH WITH EXCHANGES THAT CAN SUPPLY YOU WITH IT.

DON'T MAKE THE MISTAKE AND FAIL TO SHOW THIS GREAT EVENT, THIS MONEY DRAWER. BE AMONG THE FIRST.

BOOK THIS FILM NOW

AND GET YOUR POSTERS IN ADVANCE.

THE MOVING PICTURE CREAM OF AMERICA AND EUROPE IS IN THIS.

WEEKLY PROGRAM

MONDAY	IMP	ECLAIR	YANKEE	AMERICAN	CHAMPION
TUESDAY			THANHOUSER	BISON	POWERS
WEDNESDAY	CHAMPION	SOLAX	RELIANCE	AMBROSIO	NESTOR
THURSDAY		IMP	AMERICAN	ITALA	REX
FRIDAY	YANKEE	SOLAX	LUX	THANHOUSER	BISON
SATURDAY		POWERS	ITALA	GT. NORTHERN	RELIANCE

Original prints of this unexcelled program can be obtained in the United States and Canada only from exchanges purchasing films through

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES CO., 111 EAST 14th STREET NEW YORK

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK	LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK	3,750,000
FULLY PAID UP	LIRE 5,750,000

EXCHANGE MEN WRITE TO US FOR PARTICULARS OF OUR FIRST RELEASE

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPH: CINES NEW YORK

© CLB245052

"The contents of this issue are copyrighted"

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan. 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City. ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV June 10, 1911 Number 23

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

"Molly Pitcher," the Champion release of June 19th, graces our cover circle this week, and Mark Dintenfass is just chock full of enthusiasm over this release, and justly so, as the portrayal of this famous historical character by a Champion film is bound to create enthusiasm in every one.

POOR MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO!

We remember the old proverb: "Don't 'oller till you're out of the 'cod," and that it is as 'trite to-day as of yore. Still we cannot help feeling a kind of rejoicing in our bones at the result of the severe castigation the M. P. P. Co. have received at the hands of the courts in New York. It is a well-deserved verdict in the interests of the Independents, and the Sales Co. are to be congratulated on the victory gained by their members; and a still greater feeling of gratitude must go out to the able attorneys, Messrs. Kenyon & Kenyon, Davis, et al., who have so admirably pushed the cases to an issue, with the result that all the injunctions are dismissed, and that the manufacturers can now use the Gaumont camera,—and the Warwick, Prestwick, Urban, ? ———. We have been asked time and again by several if the dismissing includes these cameras. Our reply has been, and is still, Wait a little while, be content with what you have, and in a short time, no doubt, the Warwick will also be free for use. It is well within the recollection of our readers that we have, times without number, expressed our opinion that the result, if the case were handled in an intelligent and concertive manner, would be a complete reversal and dismissal of Edison's claims. The result more than satisfies us. It is the full consummation of what we have been fighting for —a principle of right and justice—justice to those who deserve it, as the pioneers of the movement—Freise-Greene among them. How it must gratify him to learn that he is near vindication! Some of our readers have written for information as to the Clause 4 on which the decision is founded.

Edison claimed in Clause 4 as follows:

"An apparatus for taking photographs suitable for the exhibition of objects in motion, having in combination a single camera, and means for passing a sensitized tape-film across the lens at a high rate of speed and with an intermittent motion, and for exposing successive portions of the film during the periods of rest, the periods of rest being greater than the periods of motion. Substantially as set forth."

The Court of Appeals held Edison was not entitled to such broad claims and dismissed it in the case of Edison vs. Biograph.

Claim 4 was then supposed to be amended in its re-issue, but the Court again threw it out as being identical with the original Claim 4, and it was on this claim that the Warwick camera was held to infringe. Edison claims 1, 2 and 3 were also held to be infringed by the Warwick. To give the actual words of the clauses in the summing of Judge Lacombe:

"* * * In our opinion the bifurcated fork with studs is the fair equivalent of the wheel with sprockets, and the combination shown in the Warwick camera is an infringement of claims 1, 2 and 3 of the re-issued patent.

"Claim 4 of the re-issue is identical with Claim 4 of the original and differs from Claim 3 of the original only by the insertion of the words 'the periods of rest being greater than the periods of motion.' It is obnoxious to the criticisms expressed as to original Claim 3 in our former opinion, and for reasons therein expressed must be held void."

Reasoning from this, we would advise our readers not to jeopardize their position at present by using a Warwick camera. It will come in time.

May we take our readers back to the time when the M. P. P. Co. was formed? May we point out to them, once again, that the Moving Picture News was the only paper in the Industry which protested against its tactics? What did the Moving Picture World say? Turn up its files and read how it plunged head first into the arms of the M. P. P. Co. and told its readers that every Independent exchange, exhibitor and manufacturer could close his house, pull down its shades, put up its shutters, and seek fresh fields and other occupations. It said the M. P. P. Co. had the men, might and money, all the patents, all the power needed to crush out of existence all those they refused to admit to their sacred (?) circle. We—The Moving Picture News—cast the horoscope—and told our readers the M. P. P. Co. was illegal, fraudulent, and because of its money and its might was doomed, and all along, fighting against the most adverse criticism in the columns of our contemporary, we encouraged the hope of final justice in the cause of right over might, and in consequence of the decisions rejoice in the cause of independence

Will our contemporary belittle us now for the stand we took? We look forward to learn what they have to say. While on this subject we want to call attention to another phase of the ramifications of the Octopus through one of its tentacles called the

GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

Is it illegal? Is it honest? On page 22 of our last issue we gave the report of the case brought in Philadelphia, Calehuff vs. General Film Co. It would appear from this case that the General Film Co., with its unlimited opportunities for helpfulness and profit, is operating in various States under the head of Local Exchanges; doing business without complying with the requirements of the various State laws.

What would be the result if the various heads of each State, through their State Attorneys, took action? It might result in considerable inconvenience to the local exhibitor, and also in great expense and loss of profit to the exchangeman. Each State has its corporation laws for the protection or benefit of the foreign corporation, as well as the domestic corporation. Large corporations, or combinations, such as the General Film Co., have the opportunity of either incorporating local companies for carrying on its business, or of operating under the foreign corporations law. Either way of protecting its interests would be not only helpful to itself but to the various exchanges and exhibitors patronizing it. Do not the exchanges who are under its thumb render themselves liable to heavy penalties? What about the exhibitors who are aiding and abetting such violations of the law of their State? Are they not liable for heavy damages for conspiracy? These are very moot questions and The Moving Picture News would like to have some of the legal luminaries answer their clients as to their liabilities. Will you, Mr. Trust Exchangeman, and you, Mr. Trust Exhibitor, ask legal opinion? We also think that as so many exhibitors have been paying $104.00 per year, on a false and fraudulent premise, it may be in order to make the Octopus disgorge its ill-gotten gains. One of the heads of the M. P. P. Co. boasted to a friend of ours that he had made millions of dollars out of the industry during the last three years. Don't doubt it! Nevertheless, like the Standard Oil Co., the Tobacco Trust and several others, it is an illegal combination for the restraint of trade and should be made to dissolve, and return some of the millions. Let the Independent exchange and exhibitors of each locality combine and make it a test question in the State Assembly.

INDECENT FILMS

'Tis true, 'tis pity 'tis, 'tis true. Oh, you trust manufacturers! You certainly do need a board of censorship. We thought you were the uplift department of the Motion Picture Industry! You started out as being the only men in the trade who were worthy of the support of exhibitors. You certainly had some years of start and experience, and as such you ought to keep your own house clean and in good order. How could you do it, Essanay? You have put back the clock of progress a long way. Cinematography was getting into good repute and getting fame in being an educational instrument for the benefit of the people. Now you go and put out a film depicting "Three Weeks." It passed the National Board of Censorship? How? Thank goodness, there was a higher tribunal, who quickly took action. Who were they? The following letter will tell you:

MAYOR'S OFFICE
BUREAU OF LICENSES
CITY HALL
NEW YORK.

June 1, 1911.

Sir:

I beg to inform you that moving picture film entitled "The Temptress," and manufactured by the Essanay Film Mfg. Co., of Chicago, has been condemned for the reason that it is unfit to be shown in places of public amusement.

I hereby notify you that this film must not, under any circumstances, be exhibited in your moving picture show or shows, under penalty of suspension or revocation of your license or licenses.

AS OUR ARTIST SEES THE VICTORY

Respectfully,
W. B. F. ROGERS,
Dep. Chief of Bureau.

The above letter at once shows who are the true and only censors—the licensing boards. They have the power and we hope they will use it with greater force, not only on new but the old films. It seems that once a loophole is opened some old salacious film on the shelves of the exchanges is brought out and the audiences insulted. This matter is noted in Observer's column. It would be a good plan if the exhibitor who gets one of these old things would hand it to the nearest police inspector, or ask him to come in and take it himself. We learn that two Independent manufacturers were staging something very near; they now think better of it. Reliance made a slip, but it lost Stanner vs. Taylor and his wife (Marion Leonard) their positions. It was the last straw that broke the camel's back. We have frequently remarked there is so much that is good to be obtained to uplift, why drag down?

VICTORY FOR THE INDEPENDENTS

On Friday, June 2d, the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, by His Honor, H. G. Ward, Circuit Judge, entered an order vacating the injunction granted on March 21, 1910, against Carl Laemmle and the Independent Moving Pictures Company of America, and also entered an order vacating the injunction granted January 10, 1911, against the Champion Film Company. These injunctions were vacated because of the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the case of the Motion Picture Patents Company against the Yankee Film Company, rendered on May 18th.

On the same day the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, by His Honor, H. G. Ward, Circuit Judge, entered an order in the case against the Yankee Film Company and in the case against William Steiner, Herbert L. Miles, Charles V. Henkel and Joseph Miles, directing the filing of the mandate of the Circuit Court of Appeals, and in pursuance of that mandate vacating the injunctions granted in those cases on January 10, 1911. The following are copies of these several orders:

At a Stated Term of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, held at the Post Office Building in the City of New York on the 2nd day of June, 1911.

Present, Hon. H. G. Ward, Judge.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY,
Complainant,
vs.
CARL LAEMMLE and INDEPENDENT MOVING PICTURES COMPANY OF AMERICA,
Defendants.

In Equity No. 5/95 on Edison Reissue Patent No. 12037.

Upon reading and filing a certified copy of the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, filed in the office of the clerk of that court on the 18th day of May, 1911, in Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. Yankee Film Company, Defendant-Appellant, and Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. William Steiner et al, Defendants-Appellants, directing the orders of the Circuit Court for preliminary injunctions in the said suits to be reversed,

Now, on motion of Kenyon & Kenyon, solicitors for the defendants, it is ORDERED that the order heretofore entered in the above entitled suit on the 21st day of March, 1910, directing the issuance of a preliminary injunction be and the same hereby is vacated, and that the injunction issued thereunder be and the same is hereby dissolved.

H. G. Ward, U. S. C. J.

At a Stated Term of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, held at the Post Office Building in the City of New York on the 2nd day of June, 1911.

Present, Hon. H. G. Ward, Judge.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY,
Complainant,
vs.
CHAMPION FILM COMPANY,
Defendant.

In Equity. No. 6/131. On Edison Reissued Patent 12037.

Upon reading and filing a certified copy of the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, filed in the office of the clerk of that court on the 18th day of May, 1911, in Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. Yankee Film Company, Defendant-Appellant, and Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. William Steiner et al, Defendants-Appellants, directing the orders of the Circuit Court for preliminary injunctions in the said suits to be reversed,

Now, on motion of Kenyon & Kenyon, solicitors for the defendants, it is ORDERED that the order heretofore entered in the above entitled suit on the 10th day of January, 1911, directing the issuance of a preliminary injunction and the impounding of cameras and films, be and the same hereby is vacated, and that the injunction issued thereunder be and the same is hereby dissolved; and it is further ORDERED that the cameras and films directed to be impounded by said order, and at present in the custody of Messrs. Kenyon & Kenyon, solicitors for defendant, as officers of this court, be returned to said defendant.

H. G. Ward, U. S. C. J.

At a Stated Term of the United States Circuit Court, held in and for the Southern District of New York, this 2nd day of June, 1911 at the United States Courts and Post Office Building, City, State and Southern District of New York.

Present, Hon. H. G. Ward, United States Circuit Judge.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY,
Complainant,
against
YANKEE FILM COMPANY,
Defendant.

In Equity No. 6/234.

On reading and filing the mandate of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, in this cause, bearing date the 29th day of May, A.D., 1911, and in obedience to said mandate and in cognizance with the opinion of the said United States Circuit Court of Appeals herein, and on motion of Seward Davis, Esq., solicitor for defendant, it is

ORDERED that the said mandate be entered of record in this cause and be and become the order of this Court; and it is further

ORDERED. ADJUDGED AND DECREED that said order of this Court made and entered herein on the 10th day of January, 1911, directing the issuance of injunction pendente lite, be and the same hereby is reversed, and that said defendant, the Yankee Film Company, recover of said complainant, Motion Picture Patents Company, its costs expended in said the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, taxed at Three hundred and ten and 35/100 dollars ($310.35); and that defendant have judgment and execution therefor.

H. G. Ward, U. S. C. J.

At a Stated Term of the United States Circuit Court, held in and for the 2nd day of June, 1911, at the United States Courts and Post Office Building, City, State and Southern District of New York.

Present, Hon. H. G. Ward, United States Circuit Judge.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY,
Complainant,
against
William Steiner, Herbert L. Miles and Joseph Miles, trading under the name Atlas Film Company, and William Steiner, Charles V. Henkel, Herbert L. Miles and Joseph Miles, Defendants.

In Equity No. 6/245.

On reading and filing the mandate of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, in this cause, bearing date the 29th day of May, A.D., 1911, and in obedience to said mandate and in cognizance with the opinion of the said United States Circuit Court of Appeals herein, and on motion of Seward Davis, Esq., solicitor for defendant, it is

ORDERED that the said mandate be entered of record in this cause and be and become the order of this Court; and it is further

ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED that said order of this Court made and entered herein on the 10th day of January, 1911, directing the issuance of injunction pendente lite, be and the same hereby is reserved, and that said defendants, William Steiner, Herbert L. Miles, Charles V. Henkel and Joseph Miles, recover of said complainant, Motion Picture Patents Company, their costs expended in said the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, taxed at One hundred ninety-two and 12/100 dollars ($192.12); and that defendants have judgment and execution therefor.

H. G. Ward, U. S. C. J.

On Tuesday, June 6th, the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of New York, by His Honor, Thomas I. Chatfield, Judge, entered an order vacating the injunction issued on December 23, 1910, against the New York Motion Picture Company; also an order vacating the injunction issued on December 23, 1910, against the Carlton Motion Picture Laboratories; also an order vacating the restraining orders issued on November 28, 1910, and December 2, 1910, against Adam Kessel, Jr., Charles O. Baumann and Louis Burstein. These injunctions were vacated because of the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the case against the Yankee Film Company. These several orders were as follows:

At a Stated Term of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of New York, held at the Post Office Building in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 6th day of June, 1911.

Present, Hon. Thomas I. Chatfield, U. S. Judge.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY,
Complainant,
vs.
NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE COMPANY,
Defendant.

In Equity. On Edison Reissue Patent 12037.

Upon reading and filing a certified copy of the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, filed in the office of the clerk of that court on the 18th day of May, 1911, in Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. Yankee Film Company, Defendant-Appellant, and Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. William Steincr et al, Defendants-Appellants, directing the orders of the Circuit Court for preliminary injunctions in the said suits to be reversed,

Now, on motion of Kenyon & Kenyon, solicitors for the defendants, it is ORDERED that the order heretofore entered in the above entitled suit on the 23rd day of December, 1910, directing the issuance of a preliminary injunction and the impounding of cameras and films, be and the same hereby is vacated, and thaat the injunction issued thercunder bc and the same is hereby dissolved.

Thomas I. Chatfield, U. S. J.

Approved as to form,
Warren H. Small,
Counsel for Complainant.

At a Stated Term of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of New York, held at the Post Office Building in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 6th day of June, 1911.

Present, Hon. Thomas I. Chatfield, U. S. Judge.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY,
Complainant,
vs.
CARLTON MOTION PICTURE LABORATORIES,
Defendant.

In Equity. On Edison Reissue Patent 12037.

Upon reading and filing a certified copy of the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, filed in the office of the clerk of that court on the 18th day of May, 1911, in Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. Yankee Film Company, Defendant-Appellant, and Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. William Steiner et al, Defendants-Appellants, directing the orders of the Circuit Court for preliminary injunctions in the said suits to be reversed,

Now, on motion of Kenyon & Kenyon, solicitors for the defendants, it is ORDERED that the order heretofore entered in the above entitled suit on the 23rd day of December, 1910, directing the issuance of a preliminary injunction and the impounding of cameras and films, be and the same hereby is vacated, and that the injunction issued thereunder be and the same is hereby dissolved.

Thomas I. Chatfield, U. S. J.

Approved as to form,
Warren H. Small,
Counsel for Complainant.

At a Stated Term of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of New York, held at the Post Office Building in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 6th day of June, 1911.

Present, Hon. Thomas I. Chatfield, U. S. Judge.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY,
Complainant,
vs.
Adam Kessel, Jr., Charles O. Baumann and Louis Burstein,
Defendants.

In Equity. On Edison Reissue Patent 12037.

Upon reading and filing a certified copy of the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, filed in the office of the clerk of that court on the 18th day of May, 1911, in Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. Yankee Film Company, Defendant-Appellant, and Motion Picture Patents Company, Complainant-Appellee vs. William Steiner et al, Defendants-Appellants, directing the orders of the Circuit Court for preliminary injunctions in the said suits to be reversed,

Now, on motion of Kenyon & Kenyon, solicitors for the defendants, it is ORDERED that the restraining order heretofore entered in the above entitled suit on the 28th day of November, 1910, and the order enlarging same entered on the 2nd day of December, 1910, be and the same hereby are vacated.

Thomas I. Chatfield, U. S. J.

Approved as to form,
Warren H. Small,
Counsel for Complainant.

On May 29th, in Los Angeles, California, the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of California, by His Honor, Olin Wellborn, Judge, dissolved a restraining order theretofore granted against the American Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago (which had restrained it from disposing of a certain Warwick camera) and postponed for two weeks the hearing of the motion for injunction in order to give the complainant time to explain its delay in filing disclaimer of claim 4 of the Edison patent 12037 if it so desired, the Court intimating that in any event it would follow the New York courts.

On Monday, May 29th, the case of the Motion Picture Patents Company against the Chicago Film Exchange was argued in Washington in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, before the Honorable Wendell P. Stafford, Judge. The Court took the papers and reserved decision. This case is for alleged infringement of Edison Reissue Patent 12038 for moving picture film and raises the questions of the validity of that patent and of its infringement. The case was argued by Mr. Melville Church, of Washington, on behalf of the complainant, and by the Hon. William J. Wallace and Mr. Wm. Houston Kenyon, of New York, on behalf of the defendant.

HURRAH! HURRAH! MORE VICTORIES!

We wonder how the M. P. P. Co. are feeling at being turned down so severely by the courts. The latest news to hand is that all the injunctions held over the heads of Carlton Motion Picture Co., Bison Co., Reliance and Messrs. Gaumont, Kessel, Bernstein have been dismissed, and they are free to use the Gaumont camera in their work. Are we not right in sending up a good old English yell on such a victory for the Independents? We will have more to say on this in our next issue.

KINEMACOLOR COMPANY OF AMERICA

Wednesday, June 7th, will be noted in the annals of this company as the "Christening day," for certainly it did rain some, when some six cameras were trained upon the "white wings" parade of New York City. The parade started somewhere along Sixty-fifth Street, came down Fifth Avenue, passed the reviewing stand at Madison Square Park, and the whole parade was filmed. Splendid pictures were taken of the Mayor, Commissioner Edwards, and satellites, and a good view of the reviewing stand with all the notables of the city present.

The work was rushed, and as it was a gala day for the city employees they were entertained at the Hippodrome with vaudeville, Kinemacolor, and a view of themselves, which fully brought down the house, and it was agreed that everything was a grand success.

Kinemacolor has had a staff of employees on the National Cash Register Company's works and the results are magnificent. They must be seen to be believed.

Another feature of special note is the fact that Kinemacolor attachment can be put on any machine. We saw it at work on the Motiograph with very fine results. A Powers machine was being fitted up when we were there, so that exhibitors need not go to any great expense in placing Kinemacolor in their houses.

J. J. Murdock is now in the picture business again, and we understand some remarkable results have been accomplished since his accession into Kinemacolor.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS

"Casting the Horoscope"

If any mistakes happen in an editorial it is generally laid to the printer's devil or one of the same ilk. Our editorial last week was thus treated. In the assembling of the matter from the linotype machine the tail end got assembled somewhere else and was in consequence left out. We now give it, and ask our readers to get the last issue and read the conclusion in this:—

Editor Moving Picture News:

Dear Sir: I notice in a recent issue of one of your contemporaries that you are personally taken to task for some alleged prophecies and horoscopes concerning the moving picture business.

Knowing that this fearful arraignment will cause you to lose so great an amount of well-earned editorial repose, I hasten to tender my sympathies and hope you will speedily recover your wonted calm. I have a right to do this, because I, too, have made some statements in your paper which I know must sooner or later call down upon me the anathemas of the I AM of motography.

For be it known that I have stated, not only in your paper but in other publications which do not circulate in moving picture circles, that the Patents Company are plainly unable to offer an educational program worth the name. Left to themselves there are possibly one or two individuals connected therewith who could turn out something of the kind, but that does not alter the awkward truth one iota. As to your contemporary's statement that thus far the supply of educational films is in excess of the demand, the existence of an educational section in such a publication should be a sufficient rebuke for a naughty pronouncement like that. That the demand exists, and is increasing, has time and again been stated both in the columns of a contemporary and in your own editorials; that it exceeds the supply is a self-evident truth to any educator who has tried to arrange a systematic educational program.

As to your contemporary's derogatory remarks, you ought to rejoice that you are worthy of them, and let the matter go at that.

Now, about what you have said and written concerning the suggestion that American film makers would do well to take a few pointers from their European competitors; nothing in the nature of good advice could be more apropos than this, and any film maker worth the name is painfully aware of the fact that we none of us know it all, and can learn from others just as they can learn from us.

It is not often that I am given to noticing mud-slinging remarks disguised as printers' ink, but the article in question was so childish that this reference to it may have one of two results; it may stir your contemporary up to further waste of his space, or it may show him the error of his ways and make him ashamed of his foolishness. If he follows the latter course, both papers will gain; if the former, he alone is the loser.

That is all. Selah!

LINDSAY BANCROFT.

BEHOLD THE ISLAND

By Margaret I. MacDonald

There is nothing more wonderful, nothing which will make a deeper impression on the history of our country, by chronicling with vivid exactitude events which take place throughout the world, and the natural phenomena which heretofore could only be described in word pictures than the moving picture.

A very interesting experiment in the moving picture world is about to take place, which will be one of the most interesting things in the way of reproducing the exact workings of one of Nature's idiosyncrasies.

Away off in the lonely regions of the north seas there is a peculiar condition of Nature's affairs which has been commented upon by the passerby at different periods of its occurrence. Between forty and fifty miles north of the Island of Unalaska, one of the largest of the Aleutian Group, and upon which is situated the half-way house of the sealers and traders, the town of Unalaska, and Dutch Harbor but a step across the way on another little island, is the small and transient group of the Bogislofs. The Bogislof Island itself remains stationary, but surrounding it are several small islands which are constantly sinking and rising, sinking and rising, and eventually disappearing from view. Mr. Dobbs, a photographer of Nome, Alaska, has conceived the unique idea of going to the scene where one of these islands is expected to emerge from the sea ere long, and photographing it in order of the progress of its reappearance. This film will, no doubt, cause a good deal of excitement among not only the producers and managers, but among the moving picture theatergoers as well.

The Bogislof is really one of the Aleutian group, and is due south of the Pribilof Islands. This section of the earth, as many well know, is a great seal-hunting district. The seals, sea otters, and walrus love to sun themselves upon the sands of these islands. On the Aleutian Islands are very few white people—principally natives, Aleuts, as they call them.

I could write a great deal of interesting stuff in connection with my trip north through the Aleutian Islands and in the near vicinity of Bogislof, but as we are dealing with the picture end of the subject I will dwell but little on circumstances connected with my own experiences. Suffice it to say that there is ample room for the motion picture man to gather much interesting material for the entertainment of the easterners, to whom, speaking in a general way, this part of the world is but little known. Mr. Dobbs

(Continued on page 13)

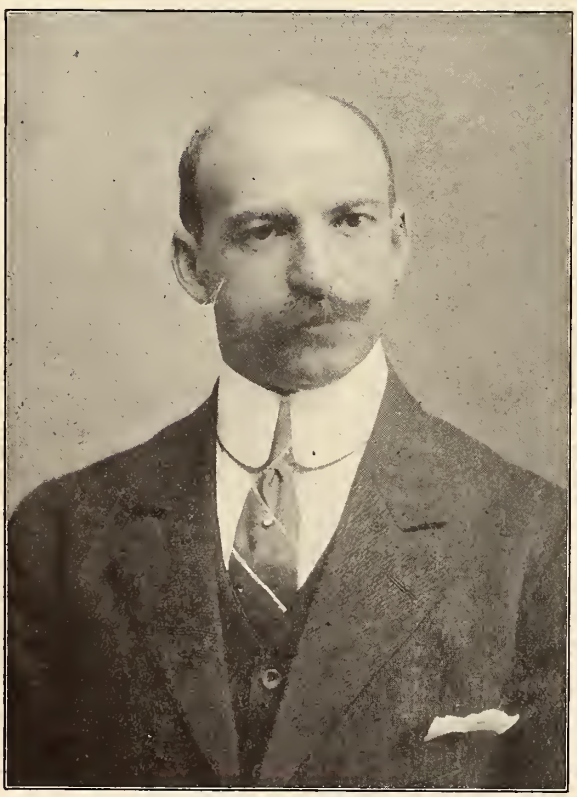
Everyone wants to Laugh, everyone likes to Laugh, but here's a Drama that will make you think that Rex knows what Drama is! It's entitled "THE TWINS." Released REXDAY, JUNE 15th.

The Champion Film Company

MARK M. DINTENFASS

Mr. Mark M. Dintenfass has been one of the most bitterly persecuted of men we know in the industry. We have often wondered how our good friend Mark managed to save his neck and keep out of limbo, owing to the fact that injunction after injunction, contempt proceeding after contempt proceeding were hanging over him, and we have no doubt that his nightmares were of the sheriff, or some other limb of the law, taking hold of him and rushing him to the Tombs or Sing Sing, or some of the other places where the guests of the Federal authorities are kept at the nation's expense.

At one time not so long ago, our friend Mark was so close to the bars that even his close friends consoled him by promising to bring him cigarettes and a chew of tobacco. However, all this is now past, and Mark can once more breathe the air of freedom of an American citizen; although this has come to him at tremendous expense, so that his coffers are almost depleted of the wherewithal to obtain food, clothing and the inevitable cigarettes.



MARK M. DINTENFASS

The expense of fighting this litigation has been such that we sincerely hope that the sale of Champions will more than recuperate him by their increase in the future for what he has lost in the past.

We wondered how friend Mark felt under these conditions and we asked him to give his opinion on the subject and whether he was able to sleep well now, compared with the former times, to which he replied:

"My experiences commenced with my taking up the Champion Film Company, and to give you a little past history I may say that the hardship that I have endured during the last eighteen months was almost beyond forbearance. It is impossible to tell you the innumerable difficulties that I had to contend with in order to keep making film. It is, however, a fact that even had I been caught taking pictures with a broom handle, or by some other miraculous method, I would have been up for contempt again. So you can see the position I was in. Even under those circumstances I have turned out pictures like 'The Old Man and Jim,' which is taken from the notable poem of the famous poet James Whitcomb Riley, the historic 'Stonewall Jackson,' 'Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia,' 'Gen. Meade's Fighting Days,' 'Gen. Marion, the Swamp Fox,' 'With Sheridan at Murfreesboro' and last but not least 'Molly Pitcher.'"

"All these pictures we presume, Mr. Dintenfass, were taken under severe mental strain and great difficulties, and we think great credit is due you for the admirable way in which you handled them, and the success that you have secured among the exhibitors and the public. What do you consider the future outlook for Champions now that all the injunctions are dismissed?"

"I may say that my heart is very much lighter and that I am able to think more lucidly and devote more of my attention and time to the production and selection of pictures."

"The outlook then looks very pleasurable to you, and, judging the past as a criterion, we suppose you will put the money you would spend in litigation into scenarios and pictures, employing actors and actresses of a higher quality, so that the Champions may be elevated to a still higher altitude."

"I give you my assurance that every effort will be exerted to produce real Champs."

"We have no doubt that now you are given an even chance, and having known you for so long and watched your progress, and very much admired your fighting and tenacious grip of what you believe to be right, you will make good and excel your past endeavors."

"You know, Mr. Saunders, I have been on the firing line for freedom of trade and the Independent cause since the combination of the Patents Company, and since the time I met you in Philadelphia, when I spoke from the platform to the organized Independent exhibitors, and when you so ably defended the righteousness of Independence. My only desire now is that I be left alone and be allowed to get to the position that I have aimed for as ideal,—the production of picture stories that I should appeal to every patron of the moving picture industry. The attainment of this victory is intensely gratifying to me, for, as a firm adherent to the single tax philosophy, I believe in the elimination of Trust monopolization, restraint of progress and the unjust hardship that has been oppressing us for years. I believe in our constitution whereby every man has a right to the greatest possible freedom, which is equal freedom."

TO THE VICTOR BELONGS THE SPOILS

A word about the Champion factory and studios

Situated in Coytesville, N. J., on a large tract of land, and solely owned by Champion, stands the one-story building wherein the actual work is performed. As the main building is 75x100 feet, one can imagine the enormous facilities to be had for the turning out of first-class films.

SCENE FROM "THE BOY SCOUTS," CHAMPION RELEASE JUNE 28

The location of the various operating departments and laboratories, i.e., perforating, developing, assembling, printing and property rooms, with clear light and fresh air, sanitary and protective methods being employed, plainly denotes a model institution.

Adjoining the factory is the studio which is quite an object of interest, considering the wealth of properties which are stored about for immediate use, and the large dimensions of the grounds for interior scenes. Altogether the valuation of this plant figures quite a few pennies.

In Connection with the Exhibitor

The Champion Company does a large amount of direct advertising to the motion picture theaters. Each week a very nobby looking booklet is circulated to their mailing list, and those theaters desiring attractive lobby displays will be able to secure same by simply dropping a line to that effect. Those who have already seen evidence of their work need only recall the three-color synopsis entitled "With Stonewall Jackson." Even at this late day this display is still in demand. Another feature of proper advertising is the Champ photo-frame mounted with select members of their cast. This can be obtained for the cost fee of $1.00. However, the photos are forwarded unmounted, without charge, when asked for.

SCENE FROM "MOLLY PITCHER," CHAMPION RELEASE JUNE 19

MR. DAVIS, CHAMPION DIRECTOR

Mr. Ulysses Davis, one of the directors of the Champion Film Company, has beyond any question demonstrated his capability to deserve to be placed on the rank amongst the best directors in the moving picture industry. We have, in the past six months, watched his productions with great interest and we are pleased to compliment him on his marvelous improvement and quickness of grasping the technicalities of the moving picture stage.

Mr. Davis is, comparatively speaking, a young man, but he started his theatrical career when he was sixteen years of age as dramatic reader of the Boston Concert Company in a tour of the West, and he has been following the profession ever since.

Amongst the many past experiences which helps Mr. Davis in his present occupation was one of being a property man in a fly-by-night repertory company. And later, when the great "Devil" productions were racing in New York, he entered the game with his own sketch of the "Devil" in vaudeville in New York City, a sketch that he himself had written and produced, and finally his attention was drawn to the moving picture industry where he was engaged as one of the actors.

His inspiration and the fancy that he had for the game led him to become a trial director with a certain concern. Mr. Mark M. Dintenfass immediately recognized in him a "rough diamond" and engaged him as director for the Champion Film Company. As we say above, he has made good and we even look forward to much greater things than he has produced up to the present, as he is very enthusiastic and has a heart-whole interest for the business, and is wrapped up in his work.

ULYSSES DAVIS

Even though his growing success tends to make one feel some pride in himself, he has not forgotten that to Mr. Dintenfass is due a large portion of the credit for aiding him to attain the present successful state which is evidenced by such pictorial works as "The Old Man and Jim," from James Whitcomb Riley, "Stonewall Jackson" and "Molly Pitcher."

From the conversation we have had with Mr. Davis, we gather that Mr. Davis holds Mr. Dintenfass in the highest esteem, and with this bond of mutual co-operation there is no reason but what the best of results should be obtained.

St. Louis, Mo.—E. Harry Pipe will erect a new moving picture theater.

Camden, S. C.—Hamby and Hamby have prepared plans for a $10,000 opera house.

Hermosa Beach, Cal.—A moving picture theater will be established here.

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E. E.

ALTERNATING CURRENT WATTHOUR METERS

Principles of Construction and Operation

(c) The retarding element acts as a load on the induction motor and enables the adjustment of its speed to normal limits. In order that the speed shall be proportional to the driving torque, which varies with the watts in the circuit, it is necessary that the torque of the retarding device be proportional to the speed. For this reason a short-circuited constant-field generator, consisting of a metal disk rotating between permanent magnet poles, has been generally adopted. The movement of the disk in the constant magnetic field generates an electromotive force between the inner and outer elements of the disk which is directly proportional to the speed. This electromotive force sets up eddy currents in the disk which consume the power passing through the meter coils. The generator or retarding disk may be the same disk used for the moving element, in which case the meter field acts on one edge while the permanent magnet field acts on the edge diametrically opposite. This arrangement simplifies the number of parts and saves space and weight of moving element.

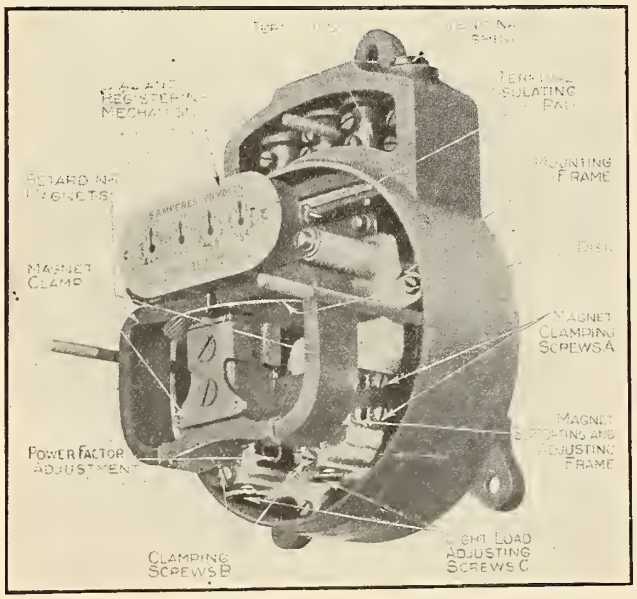

FIG. 38—WESTINGHOUSE SINGLE PHASE WATTMETER

It is apparent that if the strength of the permanent magnets changes from any cause the retarding torque will be changed and the calibration of the meter rendered inaccurate. One cause of change in the permanent magnets is their weakening with age, but this is overcome in good meters by special processes of "aging." Another frequent cause of change is the proximity of other magnetic fields. The series coil of the meter may, under short-circuit so affect the strength of the permanent magnets as to render the meter inaccurate, unless special means are taken to guard against this. The position of the permanent magnets should be easily adjustable, as this is the only practicable means by which speed adjustments can be made.

In meters where an additional retarding torque is present, not varying directly with the speed, the speed is no longer proportional to the torque and the watts in the circuit. This is the case with meters of the mercury type, where the retarding action of the mercury does not increase directly with the speed, and accounts to some extent for the inherent inaccuracy of such meters.

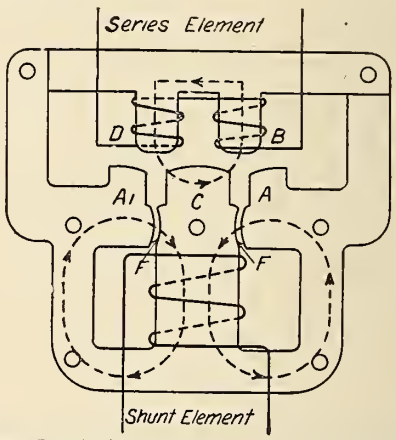

FIG. 39—DIAGRAM ELECTROMAGNETIC CIRCUIT

(d) The registering mechanism comprises the dials and pointers and the gear train necessary to secure the required reduction in speed. This gear train is driven directly by the rotor and therefore its friction should be low and constant. The dials should be easily read and should register directly in kilowatt-hours. If a constant is used to reduce the reading to kilowatt-hours it should be some multiple of ten, to avoid errors in multiplication. By means of suitable gears in the meters this is easily accomplished.

(e) The mounting frame and bearings have an important influence on the accuracy of the meter, as it is in the bearings that most of the friction in the meter occurs. The frame should be rigid and free from vibration, so that the bearings will be at all times in perfect alignment.

ANDREWS PICTURES, Ltd.

Have been granted some exclusive positions for cinematographing THEIR MAJESTIES' CORONATION PROCESSION on June 22nd next.

Approximate length 650 feet. Code word, "Corona"

Also the ROYAL PROCESSION of June 23rd, including the Illuminations along the line of route.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Ropill"

THE REVIEW AT SPITHEAD on June 24th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Respit"

And the ROYAL PROCESSION through the North-East of London on June 29th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code Word, "Ropel"

All above subjects at 3½d (Three Pence Halfpenny) Per Foot Net.
Terms 50% Cash with Order. Balance C. O. D. to Agent or Carriers.

Address 90 CHARING CROSS ROAD, LONDON, W. C.
Cable "ANDREORA, London." Code A B C. 5th Edition.

Initial friction is unavoidable in any meter construction and can be easily compensated for. A change in the initial friction, however, due to wear of bearings, makes readjustment necessary. Special attention should therefore be given in the selection of meters, to the construction of the bearings, particularly the lower bearing which supports the weight.

(To be continued)

LATEST FROM LONDON

(By our English Correspondent)

Readers of the News will be interested to learn that several negatives of excellent quality have been secured in the Arctic regions by Mr. Hubert G. Ponting, F.R.A.S., the official photographic artist to Capt. R. F. Scott's British Antarctic Expedition. About 8,000 feet of film was brought back by Captain Scott's ship (the "Terra Nova"), when she returned to New Zealand, and it arrived in London a few days ago. I understand that the exclusive rights for handling all the films taken in the course of the expedition have been acquired by the Gaumont Company; and although the matter has not been definitely settled at the time of mailing, it may be assumed with some degree of certainty that the films will be on exhibition in this country at no distant date. The negatives are being developed by Mr. Ponting in the Far South. I learn that the 8,000 feet of film that has already arrived will be the only batch that will come through until April next, when the expedition returns. There is therefore scarcely a possibility of a further supply reaching this country earlier than June or July of 1912.

* * *

Kinemacolor pictures of the unveiling of the memorial to Queen Victoria, which took place yesterday (May 16th), will be shown at the Scala-Kinemacolor Theater to-day, Wednesday, and subsequently twice daily.

* * *

I am informed that Mr. W. C. Scott, late of the Warwick Trading Co., Ltd., has received the appointment of manager of the Western Import and Film Company, Ltd., and will take complete charge of the business during Mr. R. C. Aitken's visit to the States.

* * *

Most of the showmen in Birmingham are hustling to be first in the field with the Coronation films. I am informed by the manager of a big theater in this city that he is making elaborate arrangements to have the pictures on the screen within an hour or two of the actual occurrence of the great function. The films will be carried to Birmingham in one of Mr. Grahame-White's aeroplanes, and they will be shown long before the Royal procession has actually returned to the palace.

* * *

On Saturday last, which was the anniversary of the death of King Edward VII, the Royal funeral film was screened at several London halls. Its exhibition met with unanimous appreciation, and I notice the films are still being shown at the moment of writing.

* * *

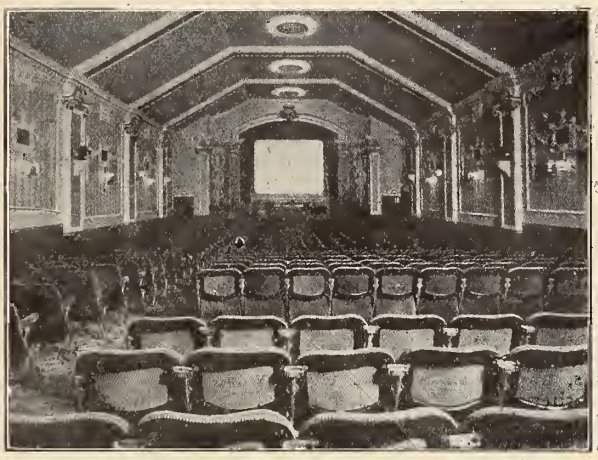
A rumor is abroad that the freehold of the old Globe Restaurant, Coventry street, West London, with four adjoining buildings in Rupert street, has just been sold; and on the site it is intended to erect the finest motion picture theater in the world. The transaction is costing over £100,000, and it is stated that £50,000 will be spent on the fabric of the theater. All the money for the venture has been found in Germany.

* * *

The latest addition to the series of Shakespearean subjects released in this country is Urban's "Falstaff." The staging is in every way up to the usual high standard, and the photographic quality even exceeds that of previous productions.

* * *

This week I am again able to inclose a photograph of another popular London theater on the Pyke Circuit. All the latest and best releases are screened at this hall, which is situate in the heart of populous Hammersmith, West London.



Pyke's Cinematograph Theater, Hammersmith, London

I notice that the grandstand at the Fulham Football Ground (S.W. London), is going to be utilized as an open-air theater, the public being accommodated on the stand facing a temporary stage in the grounds, where plays and motion pictures will be presented.

London, May 17. L. W. D.

BEHOLD THE ISLAND

(Continued from page 9)

has given already many interesting pictures of the north lands to the public. And it was he who prepared the films which have been shown here in the East by Miss Emma R. Steiner in her lecture on Alaska.

The East is greatly in need of education with regard to the northern possessions of the Union, so much so that the welfare of Alaska and her people has been neglected. In fact, neglected to such an extent that there have been secret whisperings that she might secede. How many of our people know of the wonderful mineral output of that northern possession, much less of her agricultural and stock-raising possibilities. Comparatively few people know that on the Aleutian Islands and, in fact, all the islands to south of Alaska are some of the finest farming and stock-raising lands in the world. In fact, it will be but a short time before she will be raising all the fruit, vegetable, grain and food stuffs sufficient to supply her own population. Not only this, but she will also be supplying the markets of the Orient which are almost at her doors.

We want illustration of all these things to educate the Eastern public. There is no more desirable spot on the face of the globe with regard to climate and facilities for different industries than is found in the southeastern part of Alaska, and on her islands.

We look forward to Mr. Dobbs' experiment with a great deal of pleasurable anticipation, and with the hope that he may still pursue his work of gathering unique motion pictures which will enlighten the world on subjects with which it is not yet familiar.

A Picture with Pure Pathos, Memories and a Moral is the Rex treat this week, entitled "THE TWINS." Released REXDAY, JUNE 15th. It's full of Heart Interest. It's another one of those Rex FILMS.

FROM THE OBSERVATORY

By G. F. Blaisdell

That the educational propaganda is making rapid strides is evidenced by news coming to hand from all over the country. In Alameda, Cal., a Mothers' Club has purchased a complete equipment of moving picture apparatus and presented it to the school authorities for use in teaching geography and history and also for giving children a better acquaintance with matters of present-day life in distant places. Alameda is to be congratulated on its possession of a body which shows such wisdom and such capacity for improving educational facilities.

* * *

Under the direction of the Latin-American Foreign Trade Association of St. Louis there were recently exhibited films illustrating the cultivation, treatment and shipping of coffee in Brazil. The pictures were the property of Dr. Eugenio Dahne, industrial commissioner of the Brazilian Government. While these pictures in a sense were for advertising purposes, at the same time there was distinct educational value in them. The same may be said of the pictures showing all the stages of the manufacture and assembling of a well-known automobile which were recently given their initial presentation at the Detroit opera house. Among those who saw the pictures and listened to the accompanying explanatory lecture were the faculty and students of the engineering department of the University of Michigan.

* * *

Another series of advertising-educational films, and perhaps the most important yet undertaken, is being planned by James J. Hill, the famous president of the Great Northern Railway. The pictures will cover the most interesting points between Ellis Island and Portland, Ore., following, of course, the route that would be taken by a passenger over the Great Northern. While it is the intention to use the films in a gigantic educational campaign, to show the people of Europe the opportunities in the Northwest for farmers and also for tourists and pleasure seekers, there is no question of their value to the people of the United States. Moving picture experts are now at the western end of the line selecting the best points at which to take pictures. Arrangements are being perfected to loan these pictures to lecturers, who will be furnished with suitable descriptive matter, for use in those European countries where are to be found the most desirable settlers for the millions of unoccupied acres of the Northwest.

* * *

The publicity bureau of the St. Paul Association of Commerce is formulating plans for a country-wide advertising of the advantages of St. Paul. The motion picture, of course, is to be the medium.

* * *

Thomas A. Edison, speaking last week at the convention of the National Electric Light Association, said: "We have the talking moving pictures now and we are only waiting until we can arrange some of the business matters and get enough stock ahead before we give them to the public. Already we have had eight dramas talked and acted for reproduction. We have about sixty actors working in the Bronx, where the films and phonograph records are being prepared."

Between kinemacolor and talking moving pictures, not to mention other innovations, there need be no fear on the part of the men in the picture business that the industry is in any danger of going into a decline.

* * *

More than 1,200 employees of the Du Pont Powder Company recently saw a moving picture representation of the experiments made at Holly Oak with dynamite as an aid to farming.

* * *

Calvary Baptist Church, at Seventh street and Snyder avenue, Philadelphia, together with a chapel in the rear, is to be converted into a picture theater. Ministers have been known who preferred to put on pictures in their churches. There is no record of a sale of any of these so far as is known.

* * *

Over in Brooklyn the writer has found a model picture theater. It is the Mardi Gras, at Nostrand avenue and Clarkson street. There are wide aisles, a thirty-foot ceiling, in which are two large suction fans; many other fans aid in keeping the hall at a comfortable temperature. There are five six-foot exits. The projection booth, equipped with two projectors, is fireproofed and is 10x10x10, and the base is ten feet from the floor. The proprietor, Mr. Houtman, and his manager, E. V. Murtha, are keen in their selection of educational films, in which they are firm believers.

In order to assist in the raising of $10,000 for the benefit of the babies of St. Louis, four of the largest airdomes of that city have asked the Save the Babies League to send women to make collections at the doors as the people are passing out. The Moving Picture Show Committee has arranged for collections at thirty of the most popular houses for Sunday and Monday nights. The picture houses will run films illustrative of the needs of the babies and the work of the league.

* * *

The Parents-Teachers Association of Dover, Del., has appealed to the Board of Education of that town to do something to reduce the attendance of children at picture shows. One of the complainants said that many pupils who attended the two shows in Dover were so excited by some of the stirring scenes presented that their studies were sadly interrupted. The board was requested to confer with the managers of the shows and try to secure an arrangement by which school children will be excluded six nights in the week, and that on the one night that children are admitted the films be suitable for children, instructing, amusing, but not unduly exciting.

* * *

This seems to be a very sad case. It is possible if the board should go to the exhibitors and suggest the exclusion of children the proprietors might suggest:

1. This show is for the entertainment of all persons lawfully entitled to witness it—adult or child.
2. Parents who are unable properly to supervise the recreation of their children without appealing to the Board of Education for assistance would do well also to apply to the courts for the appointment of an intelligent and competent guardian—for themselves.
3. If children were refused permission to attend picture shows until such hour as their school work was finished, the pictures could not help being beneficial to them—supplementing their studies.

* * *

The Evening Post, in an article describing the many new open air theaters in New York, says that, whereas formerly owners of vacant lots were often satisfied to erect single story structures yielding just enough return to cover taxes, now, by putting up a picture theater or by renting the property for open-air shows, they find a means of not only paying taxes, but also of securing a substantial interest on the value of their property.

* * *

As to the way Independent films are regarded in East Fourteenth street, it may be of interest to note that on Monday over eleven hundred had paid admission to the Comedy Theater at noon. Nor is this figure anything out of the ordinary. Frequently lines of people are kept waiting outside, as no one is admitted until there is a vacant seat. Assistant Manager Leith always has at least one eye on the curtain, taking care that films are shown to best advantage. He was enthusiastic on Monday over the photography in the American's release for the day—"A Sage Brush Phrenologist" and "The Elopement on Double L Ranch."

* * *

On Sunday and Monday the Fourteenth Street Theater was filled. Theaters are no longer "crowded." The fire department insists on no "standees." Among the pictures seen were a fine Eclair comedy, "Impudence Punished," and on the same reel a burlesque, "Tommy at the Dentist's." Great Northern's "The Bogus Governess" was a Sherlock Holmes story with plenty of action and interest. Champion's "Service Under Johnston and Lee" was well done; the role of the child, however, was taken by a comely young woman rather mature for the part. Imp's "The Grind" and "The Chicago Stock Yards Fire" were both good. In the former the moral was healthy—if you are a mollycoddle and you are imposed upon, take boxing lessons and, when proficient in the manly art, place one or two blows in the right spot at the psychological moment and command respectful treatment. The pictures of the fire were unusual, being taken while the blaze was at its height. Itala's panorama of the International Exhibition at Turin was of great interest and a good educational film. "In Flowers Paled" Reliance did strong work, especially at the finish. The ending was not of the happy, conventional, story-book type, but it was life. It was drama; it also was tragedy.

* * *

The report of the National Board of Censorship of motion pictures, dated May 1, 1911, and containing thirty-two pages, is of great interest to everyone in any manner concerned with or about motion pictures. It is impossible adequately to review this pamphlet in limited space. Briefly, the inception of the board is described; we are told how in March, 1909, a committee of the Association of Exhibitors of New York called on the People's Institute for advice regarding the disturbed condition of the business at that time and the public hostility to which the motion picture art was subject. The institute suggested that the exhibitors ask for the creation, on the initiation of the institute, of an unofficial board of censorship. The plan was adopted, and the exhibitors agreed to meet the expenses of the board for an experimental period.

In June, 1909, the censorship passed out of the experimental stage and became complete for about seventy per cent of the pictures produced for the American market. In November following there were completed arrangements, which still stand, whereby all motion pictures destined to pass through trade channels to the show houses of America were brought under the scrutiny of the board.

The board has passed on 5,200 subbjects and rejected 2,000,000 feet of film, representing a monetary value of $200,000. The picture program of 12,000 picture houses is practically completely controlled by the Board of Censorship.

The board conducts local inspection in the New York theaters, and has correspondents in about fifty cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific, who receive weekly reports from the board and many of whom carry on continuous investigation of the motion picture shows.

The report denounces as utterly without foundation the charge that an attempt has been made to conceal the fact that the funds supporting the board came from picture trade sources. The board says that not only have trade interests financed the work of the censors, but that the agents of the institute have frequently so stated. From the general fund of the institute, however, there have been contributed administrative services to the value of $4,000, representing contributions by citizens generally. In 1910 the receipts of the board were $5,739.47; expenses, $4,630.50.

The report closes with the following quotation:

"In America social workers have viewed the motion picture too exclusively from the standpoint of the possible evil it might contain. But the motion picture is a labor-saving device no more necessarily good or evil than the printing press. It is destined to accomplish for mankind as great a good, in the long run, as has the printing press. Evils there are, perils there are, which cannot be ignored. But the most fertile line of social effort, in motion pictures as elsewhere in the social problem, must be sought along the lines of undiscovered or unrealized possibilities for good, not merely, nor mainly along lines of evil that must be repressed."

OUR LOS ANGELES CORRESPONDENT

Los Angeles, June 1, 1911.

Local licensed exhibitors are wondering how to meet the latest move of the General Film Company which is that no 5-cent house will get more than six reels a week. Considering the fact that Clunes, which belongs to the General Film Company, runs five first-run pictures, shows two illustrated songs and offers vaudeville for 10, 15 and 20 cents and changes three times a week, the local dealers think they are not being treated fair. A committee of five has been appointed to visit the exhibitors to see what can be done. The general feeling seems to be to cut down the number of reels that the 10 cent houses receive so as to allow the cheaper houses to compete with them.

Arthur S. Hyman left for San Francisco last night for the purpose of meeting a clique of northern capitalists who have proposed to erect a 12-story building in San Francisco, consisting of offices and a moving picture theater with a seating capacity of 2,000. Mr. Hyman will be gone two or three days.

The Hyman Neptune Theater at Venice has been showing to capacity houses since its opening, May 22d. The management states that over 7,000 persons witnessed the shows on Memorial Day and that thousands of others were turned away for lack of accommodation.

The National, 430 South Main, is the latest recruit to the Independent side. This is the first time that the house has shown anti-trust pictures. Bert S. Lustig, the proprietor, states that at the first showing his present run of pictures gave more satisfaction than the licensed ever gave in the entire time they had been shown. Two exhaust fans placed in two large tin pipes which connect the interior of the house with the exterior have been installed.

The Crown, Spring between Fifth and Sixth, has been purchased by L. S. Frith and will be known hereafter as the Rose. The house is to be completely re-decorated both inside and out, new chairs are to be installed, and more lights and fans added. A daylight curtain will replace the present screen and another machine will probably be added. A new sign, on which an electrically illuminated rose will be the feature, will take the place of the present electric sign.

Improved inside & will be open next Stdy.
June 3rd. 12 A.M. under new management.
Come & See how distinct & fine pictures to show off.

Such is the sign which graces the exterior of the International, First below Wilmington, which was recently sold to K. Oku. The house caters to the Japanese and the foreigners' trade and will probably be open Saturday, when the alterations now under way are expected to be finished. D. B. Tana, who is at present in San Francisco, will manage the theater. The proprietor has not yet decided on what film service he will use. Independent pictures were shown heretofore.

The Star, East Fifth near Main, which was purchased by William M. Glasse two weeks ago, is once more to be sold. Mr. Glasse declines to state who the purchasers are, but declares that the house will be out of his hands at the end of this week. He declares his reason for selling is that he does not know the moving picture game well enough.

The Teatro Metropolitan, opposite the Plaza, shows a big increase in receipts since the house reduced its price of admission from 10 cents to 5 cents, according to the proprietors, Messrs. Kaiser and Bierhaus. The house caters to the Mexican public and gives Spanish and American vaudeville acts beside the pictures.

Butler's, Hill near Sixth, is again open after a close of a week. The house was forced to close because of a bowling alley on the second floor. According to Mr. Butler, the noise could be heard throughout the theater, also big chunks of the plaster on the ceiling would come down. He tried to arrange matters with the owners of the bowling alley, but they would do nothing. The public refused to come to the theater because of the racket and Mr. Butler was forced to close. Under the same alley, two large firms were conducting their businesses. They tried to have the noise stopped, but it looked as if nothing could be done. The matter was finally taken into court where an injunction was issued against the owners of the bowling alley restraining them from conducting their business. Everything was finally arranged and Mr. Butler received word from the proprietors of the bowling alley that they were going to move within a few days.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, June 7.—An effort will be made by the managers of motion picture theaters in this city to fight the edict that compels them to pay $200 a year license for the privilege of running their houses and it is to be hoped that attorneys who have been engaged on the case will be able to "put it over" so that the managers will be able to get off without paying anything to the city. Can you imagine that? If you can, brother, your imagination is greater than mine, and I have cooked up some real dreams in my journalistic days.

The result of a recent conference between local managers was the determination to test the city ordinance which compels them to cough up these two hundred "bones" a year, and it all came about because the city council was unkind enough to table a petition which local managers sent, and which requested the privilege of paying that license every four months instead of semi-yearly, as is the case at present. There were reasons why this petition was tabled, which means that it was killed, which I will explain later, but the thing that gives the picture men hope that they may get out of paying any license is the fact that an effort was made some time ago to tax the hotel and rooming houses of the city fifty cents for every room. The hotel men combined, raised "some fund" and carried the case to the Supreme Court and that high tribunal promptly announced that the ordinance was unconstitutional and could not stand and the hotel men got away with it in great shape. "Therefore," quote the picture manager, "if the hotel men can get by, why not us? Why should we have to give up $200 when we don't enjoy the business that the hotels do?"

Suit will also be entered against the city by the management of the Scenic Theater to recover part of a pro-rate assessment which it paid when the house first opened. The local managers pay from January 1st to the first of June. The Scenic opened in March, but from March until June it was forced to pay $100 and from June until the following year it paid another "century." Now, since that time there has been a new administration put into office and the Photo-Play Theater and the Airdome also opened. A pro-rate assessment was levied against them. The Photo-Play house opened in March and paid an assessment from that time until June and the Airdome opened and paid its assessment from a later date to June. The Scenic is going to politely ask that the city refund the assessment, basing it on the same rate granted the other two houses, and, if this is not done, suit will be brought to recover the amount the management of that house claims is due it because of concessions granted to the other two places of amusement.

I was informed that one of the reasons why the petition of the local theater managers was turned down so cold was because Harry Hale, manager of the Lyric Theater, had given a very chilly reception to the committee of business men who solicited funds for holding the next state fair. There was a committee of eighty business men left their respective places of business one day this week and made a canvass of other houses to raise an amount necessary to hold the state fair in October. They met with a most generous response, and the state fair will be held as usual, with, it is thought, President Taft as the big headliner for the opening day.

On that committee was Albert Mendel, treasurer of the Arkansas Amusement Association, himself largely interested in the Lyceum Theater, and it is stated that when Harry Hale, of the Lyric, was approached he turned down the committee flat and declined to contribute anything towards holding the fair. The following evening the petition of the local picture house managers was placed before council, signed by them, requesting that they be permitted to divide their assessment into quarterly payments instead of half yearly. One of the councilmen who looked at the petition noticed Mr. Hale's name among the others and, remembering the incident when Hale was asked to contribute to the state fair and the manager's refusal, promptly proceeded to "slip one over" on the managers generally and Mr. Hale in particular. The state fair is a great thing, especially for the picture houses and it was not thought, considering the thousands who will be here during that time, and the great business the theaters did, that any one of the local managers would have declined to contribute to such a worthy object.

Three reports were out this week concerning the Lyceum Theater, one that it had been sold, one that it wasn't sold and one that it would be greatly improved. There was a very wealthy Greek who wanted the house, and, so I was told, had his $2,000 in cash all ready. The Arkansas Amusement Association then demanded that he give bond for the payment of a five-year lease, which he requested be renewed for that length of time, and which he declined to do, objecting, too, to the specifications the directors of that association had written in the agreement, which limited his use of the building, preventing him from placing therein a clothing house, shoe store, restaurant, ladies' furnishing store, saloon, confectionery establishment and the Lord knows what not. The Greek promptly kicked on that document, and as the directors, at his request, had renewed their lease for five years, it was seen that the Greek had been a little bit too foxy and they are now compelled to pay rent for five years longer on a property they were trying to get rid of. One of the directors of the association informed me that it was the intention to remodel the Lyceum and make it one of the most attractive in the city, as well as enlarging the seating capacity. The truth of the matter is the Greek wanted to convert the Lyceum into a great confectionery store, and was using the theater merely as a blind to get possession of the property. Oh, we have some wise "geeks" in these parts.

Marie Neilsen Company opened at the Airdome for a two weeks' date. I didn't review this show, for the reason that reports that reached me the first night did not hold out sufficient inducements to want to see it. Marie and her leading man, I was told, were very good, but the rest of the company was equally bad and then some.

The Princess since it eliminated vaudeville for the summer and installed moving pictures has done a most excellent business. I managed to look at a few of the Independent ones there and the American manufacturers were generally worthy. Saw "The Little Major" and "Called Back," both Rex, and in one of them noticed a doctor after giving a "hypo" wiped the needle of the syringe off on his handkerchief. Oh, you very bum "quack." In "The Fight on the Cliff," by Edison, it was also seen that the two girls succeeded in accomplishing wonders at night with only the aid of a lantern, and, bless your heart, the lantern wasn't lighted, either. Can you beat it? Thanhouser's "Regimental Ball" made a big hit here this week. Imp also scored heavily with its "Minor Chord."

"In the Days of '49," Biograph, went big here, and Essanay handed out a silly Western drama, hardly like the kind of that life they have done in the past in "The Cow-Puncher's New Love." Melies, we sure liked "The Spring Round-Up," and that little leading lady you have can not only act and look pretty, but, gee whiz, how she can ride. The Pathe of old came across in great shape in "The Samourai's Expiation." It was a dandy, and the "American Beauty" who posed among the roses was about as twisty and self-conscious a dame that we have seen before the camera in many, many moons. The next time she attempts to act, Pathe, put her in a straight jacket. We didn't like her wiggle a little bit. "Back to the Primitive" was so realistic that a woman who sat back of me in the Photo-Play Theater yelled: "My Gawd, will them lions get her?" She caused a riot of laughter, but "them lions" didn't get her, possibly because it was noted, so another lady whispered, that the marooned beauty wore a corset for five long years. Never mind that, girlie, you've got a bunch of women now before the camera skinned a city block, and you bet we back your game every time we see you on the picture sheet. "Hungry Hearts," a Vitagraph, was a winner in every sense of the word.

So Rex has nailed James A. Bliss, the "somewhat stout comedian." Oh, you Jimmie. "The Lady of the Baths" let out a whoop when she saw James' numerous pictures in the Moving Picture News, for she and Jimmie trooped for a short time, let me see, about two or three years ago. Now, James, get to guessing. Remember when you were the principal comedian, and I might add the principal actor, too, of Ye Colonial Stock Company, Columbus, O.? One of Clyde Fitch's comedies was on and they needed some one to play the "Irish Cook" and a little lady of that city took the part for a week. That was "me better 'alf," James, and we have often talked many nice things about you ever since. You loved that bunch about as well as the Devil loves Holy Water, but "The Lady of the Baths" has never forgotten your courtesy and gentlemanly conduct during the time she obliged the management by playing that part, being in ill-health at the time. Here's to you, Jimmie; go to it. I am glad Rex captured you and I shall await you on the picture sheets here. Drop me a line, care of the Evening Bulletin, Hot Springs, Ark., for both my wife and self would like to hear from you. Rex, accept congratulations on capturing this recognized and talented artist.

THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

The Situation in Washington

Washington, D. C., June 3d.

With the change of managers at the General Film Exchange (the Licensed headquarters here), the introduction of new systems of rental, and proposed or actual increase in rentals, there is a growing feeling of discontentment against the Licensees agency and a turning towards the Independents. Some managers are grumbling under the discourtesy and indifference of the management of the General Film Exchange and have accordingly entered the ranks of the Independents where they say they will get better treatment. The Alhambra, which has stood by the Association through thick and thin, in the face of a gradual rise in price for rentals with no better service given, so I am told, has issued a proclamation on a big poster before its doors that after June 15th this house will run Independent pictures. "I have been driven to it," said the manager. "I've put up with poor service for big money long enough. I'll not be dictated to as to how I shall run my house."

Some say there will not be any "first runs" from the Association placed in Washington; that they are to go to Baltimore, and this has been a further cause of discontent.

One manager, who has just turned Independent, said he would not return to the Licensed exchange if the film service was given to him free. "It's the principle of the thing now," he declared. "And I don't know but what the Independents have got the others beat in the matter of pictures anyway. Certainly the Independents have more original ideas in their dramas, and not so much sameness."

Wm. R. Mack, formerly associated with Tom Moore, both in his own exchange and after his connection with the General Film Exchange, has opened the Mack Film Service, using Independent goods. This means something to the Independents.

Tom Moore, who was one of the originators of the motion picture industry in Washington and in this vicinity, in fact, is being urged by his friends to re-enter the exchange business. As yet he has made no move in this direction, declaring he has served many long, hard-working years in the renting business, building up a system of his own whereby service was manipulated in this vicinity with the least possible friction and now he is willing that someone else should do the same. Still, it is believed by some that with the proper inducements Mr. Moore would be ready to enter the Independent ranks. He is a man who knows and has helped to create the motion picture business in Washington, Baltimore and the nearby states.

It is claimed by some that it seems to be the purpose of the Licensed or Association or Trust officers to freeze out all little theaters by raising the price of rentals and thereby retaining only the large houses, who can afford the expensive service in the field. It may be something like a sieving process whereby the "little manager," who is now a hindrance to the "big manager," will fall through and leave only the large houses. Be that as it may, there is a likelihood of some houses going under in the present condition of affairs.

Anyway, there is something of a mixup in this vicinity with the Association houses which predicts not only loss of theaters, but of good will, and the Independent ranks are increasing.

* * *

The music at the Plaza is now being furnished by members of the U. S. Marine Band, while Jack Allman, the New York Irish tenor, is giving illustrated songs in a very effective manner. Manager Moore has just expended $500 on the ventilating and cooling of this house. It consists of two ½-horsepower fans which at one end of the theater will force in the air, to be circulated by a number of 16-inch wall fans, and finally the air is exhausted by two large fans in the front of the theater. This process makes a very delightfully cool atmosphere.

* * *

Headed by the men of the Ortho Film Company of New York and Pittsburg, the Military Field Mass was photographed by five camera men stationed at various points. It was the work of our own Sig. G. Boernstein, of the Washington Film Company, to look after the services of the Mass on the grounds of the Washington monument where at least 10,000 people were gathered, including President Taft, cabinet officers, diplomats, officials and people of prominence as well as more than a thousand Knights of Columbus carrying flags, and Spanish War veterans in uniform. The Mass was a tribute of the Catholics of Washington to the dead of the Spanish War and stands as one of the first of its kind in the capital city. The procession of priests, citizens, the vested choir, etc., have been caught on the screen, together with the various ceremonies, the President coming and leaving the services, the altar, the Catholic dignitaries, etc. It depicts a very interesting ceremony as well as having an educational value. Eight thousand feet of film were taken, which will make several reels for distribution soon by the Ortho Company. Despite the difficulty in securing such a ceremony, an excellent continuous picture has been obtained which will please every intelligent audience.

* * *

There is being installed in the Cosmos Theater, under Manager Brylawski, a cooling plant by the air-washed method that will certainly add to the comfort of the patrons of this theater. There will be two tanks, one at each end of the house, by which 120 gallons of water will be air-washed in a minute to a temperature of fifty degrees. In this way there will be brought into the theater 5,000 cubic feet of air at sixty degrees in a minute to be further cooled and circulated by a number of side fans and air shafts and adequate ventilation.

* * *

The electric storm which recently visited the city did considerable damage to the open-air theaters, so tangling wires, lights, demolishing fixtures and apparatus as to cripple business for the performances for that evening. Fortunately several of the parks were put in condition for use within an hour or so and the show was on hand as usual. There was fear that some of the houses would not be able to continue, but such was not the case. Poster signs went flying down the streets at a dangerous rate, while the screens of airdromes were picked up bodily and landed in broken condition far from the parks. The roof was taken off the Truxton Theater, a well-known Independent house, while a portion of its adjoining airdrome was badly torn away. The fixtures of this airdrome were put out of commission for a time. The large plate glass window of the Washington Film Company was shattered to bits, but nothing in the establishment was harmed. Sig. G. Boernstein, the manager of this Independent concern, was but a few feet from the window at the time and considers himself lucky to escape with so little damage, considering the big ball of fire he saw bolt through the window.

J. Boyd Dexter, the pioneer of the Independents in this city, has opened a film exchange in Baltimore known as the Dexter Film Service. This does not in any way detract from his office in this city, nor does it lessen the Dexter Sign Company, but it rather increases this latter business. Mr. Dexter is introducing a new lettering for posters by which the shadow letters made by the blowing process are brought out more distinctly. This makes very effective and artistic posters which please the picture houses.

* * *

The General Film Exchange is now located in larger and more elegant quarters in the Bank of Commerce and Savings Building. Manager Cohen is at the head here.

* * *

Since severing his connection with the General Film Exchange, Tom Moore has organized the Moore Amusement Company, which is at present operating five motion picture theaters in Washington, some of which use illustrated songs and high-class singers. Mr. Moore has associated with him in this enterprise his father and in the fall they expect to enter larger fields.

* * *

A man who is doing much to make attractive the posters of the motion picture houses is Mr. Alexander, who is an oil artist as well as a sign painter. His unique and effective letterings with some suggestion of the film advertised has caused some of the managers to discard the homely, often grotesque lithographs furnished by the film manufacturers. Owing to the fact that in Washington no pictures suggestive of crime, or pistols, knives, etc., can be exhibited, many lithographs have to be withheld from display and artistic posters are therefore supplied by the managers.

* * *

The Alhambra recently celebrated its fourth anniversary with an extra reel every day for a week and the giving of souvenirs to the ladies coming to the shows. Within two days Manager Aiery distributed more than seven thousand beautiful paper roses to his patrons.

LATE LONDON NEWS

London, May 24th.

"Kinemacolor" last week scored its greatest triumph and converted into enthusiasts many members of the trade who had professed skepticism as to the possibilities of the process by its wonderful representation of the ceremony of unveiling the Queen Victoria Memorial. The Kaiser was present with King George at this function and uniforms and ladies' dresses of all shades and tints came under the lens of the camera. The fidelity with which they have been reproduced was to be seen to be believed and if this picture comes to New York my advice to you is to see it. "The finest picture ever screened" were the words of a leading member of a rival firm who saw the picture in my company and they are hardly too strong.

* * *

British & Colonial Co. will not occupy their new premises after all in time to produce the "Derby" picture there, but they will be in plenty of time for the Coronation. "B. & C." have recently secured the service of a producer who has previously done good work for Creeks & Martin, for whom "Charley Smeler Joins the Boy Scouts" was his last subject—and a very good one.

* * *

The latest rumor to reach me is that as a result of the Cecil Court fire the fire brigade authorities are contemplating making a "danger zone" of the area in which the film manufacturers have their headquarters. This is, so far, unconfirmed, but if true means that a special extra premium will be demanded by the insurance companies, whose rates for film men are high enough already.

* * *

Tyler Film Co., Ltd., distributors here of Bison, Reliance, Itala and Eclair films, have just transferred their projecting theater at "The Film House" into a strikingly attractive facsimile of an Old English apartment—oak panelling, timbered roof, etc., all complete, which makes it about the prettiest in the trade, though there is quite a rivalry springing up in this direction and I expect some other firms to attempt to go one better shortly. At one time we used to see films in the office, at many films establishments, a hastily drawn blind serving to transform it into a theater for the time being, and nothing serves to illustrate the growth of the business better than this contrast between conditions then and now when every firm takes special pride in making its projection theater as attractive and comfortable as possible. The number of film buyers has, of course, increased tenfold over what it was as recently as four years ago and there are very many exhibitors who make a point of inspecting the new films for themselves and then getting their renting concern to supply them.

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 10th

TRUE LOVE NEVER DIES

A drama of realistic portrayal, and splendid photography

DREAM IN A WAXWORKS SHOW

A ludicrous comedy with many novel scenes

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 17th

HOTEL THIEVES

This is another of our feature detective stories in which exciting incidents of sensational and thrilling character follow one another in rapid succession. The kind that will fascinate your audience. DON'T DELAY IN BOOKING.

WATCH FOR OUR NEW PHOTO-LITHO POSTERS. A new edition of our Time Table will be shortly forthcoming.

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

ALL UP-TO-DATE INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT—THE FILMS THAT SATISFY

THE "FOURTH OF JULY SPECIALS" COMMENCE

That once more the Glorious Fourth draws near with its assortment of highly patriotic pictures was brought home to us by the Thanhouser Company's advance announcement of a film on "The Declaration of Independence," which they will release on said Fourth—naturally. We gain from the producer's description of the picture that it also takes up the life of John Hancock, the original signer of the Declaration, and that it accurately depicts Paul Revere's ride and the Boston Tea Party. All this makes the reel very much of a feature in the patriotic line and it is doubtful if the exhibitor, who hopes to show it any time in patriotic July, can get it unless his exchange has his application now. Covering the many big historical events it does, the picture is said to be the most expensive ever undertaken at the Thanhouser studios and to show more important incidents in American history than has ever been gotten into a one-reel effort.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.

228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Telephone: 3790 Oxford

FROM DEATH TO LIFE

Rex Latest Achievement

We want to call our readers' attention to the beautiful film as above which Rex will release June 8th. It is a beautiful story based on a real incident in life. By the time this notice is in the hands of our readers they will no doubt have seen the film that was illustrated on our front cover last week. The story shows a test of chemicals in which rabbits and other animals are tested and the wife accidentally partakes of some to the distraction of her husband, but after a time after the trial of several antidotes the rabbits and the wife return to life. We want to say regarding this film that all the stock company out-eclipsed themselves in making it so great a success and we may well term this Porter's masterpiece.

Nashville, Tenn.—Colonial Film Co., capital $20,000, will erect a theater.

Danville, Va.—M. L. Hofheimer, of Richmond, Va., will erect a new $25,000 theater.

Warsaw, Ill.—Harris & Reynolds have sold their moving picture theater to Ed. Kuse, who will remodel it and take possession.

A-1 ALL AROUND MAN, nine years' experience in manufacture of moving pictures, would like employment with good concern. F. E., care of M. P. News.

ORTHO FILM CO.

(INCORPORATED)

We have reorganized and increased our capital stock. Our main office is located at 208 Market St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

We are now prepared to manufacture FILMS for special features, such as Educational and Advertising purposes, by our "Hochstetter Exclusive Process."

Interior pictures, printing and developing is our specialty. We redevelop and clean FILMS, by our "Hochstetter Exclusive Process," making them as good as new.

Demonstration free of charge in any part of the United States.

Main Office: 208 MARKET STREET, PITTSBURGH, PA.
Branch Office, New York: 40 EAST 12TH ST., NEW YORK.

F. W. HOCHSTETTER, President and Manager.

A. I. DE ROY, Secretary and Treasurer.

POWERS PICTURE CO. BURNS UP

George Leach was busily turning the handle of a moving picture camera, shortly before three o'clock Monday afternoon, in a barnlike structure in the Bronx. Twenty women and half as many men, all dressed in evening clothes, were "canning" a "real society" drama for moving picture show enthusiasts. The polished villain, the manly hero, the timid, shrinking girl, and the dowager duchess were all there, and moving about to make the "ballroom scene" full of action.

The action came immediately, for the cry of "Fire!" rang out in the building, and the actors and moving picture operators, finishers, stage hands and other workmen, together with actors not actively engaged in the drama then going on, piled out of windows, out of doors and into the street, while the entire structure burned down. With it went another house, still one more was half burned, and the total damage amounted to about $15,000.

The place where the fire broke out was at the northwest corner of Richardson avenue and 241st street, just three blocks inside the city limits. It was an old two-story frame building, about 100 feet square, and was formerly used as a training stable for the Police Department. The fire began on the second floor, where the films were developed and made ready for use.

Paul R. Heddrick, the foreman, said a girl named Ethel was polishing a film, when a fuse near her blew out and a spark ignited a film. She screamed, and he added his heavier voice, together with those of two workmen, and the 140 busy workers and actors fled from the building. More than a hundred miles of film lay on the floor.

President Patrick A. Powers said that 20,000 feet of it had been dramatized and 40,000 feet of it was still "raw."

As William H. Finger, driver of Engine Company 62, drove up, he saw his own house, 661 West 241st street, next the moving picture factory, burning. He leaped from his seat, as the engine drew up to a hydrant, but when he saw his wife and nine children safe in the street he went back to his work.

There was much excitement. The wife of Leach, the camera operator, was the duchess in the play. When the fire broke, Leach got his camera, thinking his wife would follow him. He and P. W. Evans, manager of the concern, fought their way back through the smoke and found her lying in a faint on the floor. Vera Sinclair, the leading woman, was waiting her cue when she heard the yells. She remembered that Prince, the Great Dane, used in some of the shows was on the second floor. She ran and tried to get him to follow her downstairs. He refused, frightened by the smoke and flame, and she pushed him from the window, and then ran back down the stairs herself.

The actors and actresses stood bewildered in the street. Some tried to rush back for their street clothes. One of the men restrained them. The players were taken away in automobiles, still in their evening clothes, their others being lost.

In an hour the firemen had the blaze put out. There was a great crowd, checked by police reserves.

The building was valued at $3,000, covered by insurance. The contents was valued at $15,000, uninsured.

Poteau, Okla.—Blair and Mills have awarded the contract for the erection of an opera house here to cost $2,500.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Josephine Hannan, 1186 Seneca street, moving picture theater to cost $3,600.

Gary, Ind—Wm. Hamilton & Son are having plans prepared for the construction of a theater at South Broadway and Eleventh streets. Cost, $15,000.

Pittsburg, Pa.—The Harris Amusement Co. have made arrangements to erect a $1,250,000 play house here.

Philadelphia, Pa—Geo. A. Warner will erect a moving picture theater at 2709-15 Columbia avenue to cost $9,000.

Moline, Ill—East Moline Theater Co., capital $2,500, have purchased J. L. Green's new building now under construction on First avenue and Ninth street, and will establish a moving picture theater when completed.

Durand, Mich.—Wm. Whitmore and Chas. Carr are planning to establish a moving picture theater in the Steve Brown Building on Saginaw street.

Milwaukee, Wis.—M. Rice will erect a $10,000 moving picture theater on Fond du Lac avenue.

Tampa, Fla.—W. E. Dorchester will erect a moving picture theater at Emery street and Central avenue to cost $1,000.

Birmingham, Ala—Odeon Theater Co., capital $6,000, T. S. Abernathy, J. W. Gaston and O. H. Saltzman.

Louisville, Ky.—Oakland Amusement Co. will erect a moving picture theater to cost $8,500.

SPECIAL NOTICE

NON-BREAKABLE

Lantern Slides

ANNOUNCEMENT
ADVERTISING
LECTURE
MICROSCOPIC
NATURAL HISTORY

We makes slides of all kinds.

SLIDES

Artistic and beautifully colored.

Don't be faked by would-be Original Inventors who claim, and are trying to manufacture non-breakable slides.

SEND FOR CATALOG.

MICA NON-BREAKABLE SLIDE CO.
2737 N. Croskey St. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Two Yankee Feature Reels

MONDAY, JUNE 19
"SUN-BONNET SUE"
A stirring tale of the Kentucky Mountains

FRIDAY, JUNE 23
"THE TWO ROADS"
The first of a new and original Raffles series

YANKEE FILM COMPANY
344 East 32d St., New York City

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

"The Fortunes of War"

The Imp release for Thursday, June 22d, will be "The Fortunes of War," the big military story suitable to the Fourth of July period. It is pregnant with the spirit of '61 and is said to be the greatest military story ever produced, with a wealth of special scenery, an army of supernumeraries, the whole correctly staged and costumed. The film cost the Imp Company a big sum of money, but Carl Laemmle is satisfied that it was well spent. The story is a beautiful one, strong in plot and ingenuously worked out. It tells of the devotion of two brothers, the shooting of one of them by a Confederate soldier, and the capture of the rebel by the brother bent on vengeance. How the Confederate nursed the Union soldier, accompanied him to his home in the North and fell in love with his sister is a story with gripping interest, replete with the spirit of love, loyalty and domestic happiness, having a happy culmination on the Fourth of July with those who fought for what they believed was right reunited under one flag—one country.

The Enterprise Watch Fob

The Enterprise Optical Co., manufacturers of the motiograph motion picture machine, have advised us that the demand for their fobs has been far beyond their expectations and the recipients are more than pleased, stating that they are far superior to their expectations.

They want to hear from all interested as soon as possible as the first lot is all exhausted and they want to determine the quantity required for a new order.

The first ten thousand was entirely inadequate to meet the demand.

Herrin, Ill.—S. L. Rotenberry, manager of the Idle Hour Theater, is contemplating the erection of a new theater on North Park avenue.

Rockville, Conn.—Thurston M. Wilcox, of Springfield, is contemplating the erection of a new theater here.

Baraboo, Wis.—Plans have been made to raise money for the erection of a new theater here.

LOOK OUT, EXHIBITORS!

You don't stand much chance of making big money in the hot summer time UNLESS you are hocked up with a big exchange that will not only give you the best feature films and the best service BUT will also help you keep things lively by means of good practical business - boosting SCHEMES. Don't be satisfied with anything but the BEST. Write to

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
209 Fifth St., Des Moines, Iowa.
The biggest and best film renter in the world.

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation
and slides for every purpose made to order
GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

THE SALES COMPANY

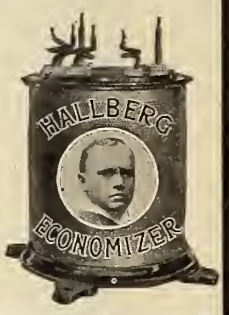
The following films have been released during the week of June 12th by the Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.:

June 12—Behind the Stockade (Imp).....
June 12—Witch of the Ranch (American)..
June 12—Thou Shalt (Yankee).....
June 12—Longstreet at Seven Pines (Champ.)
June 12—Caesar Birotteau (Eclair)..... 950
June 13—A Squaw's Retribution (Bison)...
June 13—Little Old New York (Than.)....
June 13—Smith's Marmalade (Powers).....1000
June 14—A Bad Egg (Solax).....
June 14—All Alone (Reliance).....
June 14—His Last Crooked Deal (Champion)
June 14—The Evolution in Womankind (Ambrosio) .....
June 14—Review of the Turin Exhibition (Ambrosio) .....
June 14—Sheriff's Mistake (Nestor).....
June 14—Plan that Failed (Nestor).....
June 15—The Piece of String (Imp).....
June 15—The Cowboy's Ruse (American)..
June 15—Law and Order on Bar L Ranch (American) .....
June 15—The Rights of Age (Itala).....
June 15—The Twins (Rex).....
June 16—The New Congressman (Yankee)..1000
June 16—The Desert's Lure (Bison).....
June 16—Flames and Fortune (Thanhouser)
June 16—A Daughter of the Navajos (Solax)
June 16—Bill Loses His Mother-in-Law (Lux)
June 16—He Went for a Rest (Lux).....
June 17—Haunted Island (Powers).....
June 17—A Pair of Pants (Reliance).....
June 17—A Bashful Son (Reliance).....
June 17—Foolshead Somnambulist (Itala)....
June 17—The Physician's Monkey (Itala)...

HALLBERG
THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"

SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.

I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.



Free Catalogue No. N 1

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!
Motion Picture Machines $35 Up. Powers Cameragraph No. 5 $80. Powers Cameragraph No. 5, latest, $110. Lubin 20th Century Marvel 1908 only $100. Edison Kinetoscope $50. Optigraph $50. Carbons $1.50 per 100. Tickets 10,000 for $1. All Supplies. Get Sup. 33 Bargain List.
Motion Picture Machines Wanted.
HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST
THEATRE CHAIR
Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving.
To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

The Lesson of Success

When a piece of machinery or other article made for service and not for show becomes an immediate success and remains a success does it tell anything of the merit of the article?

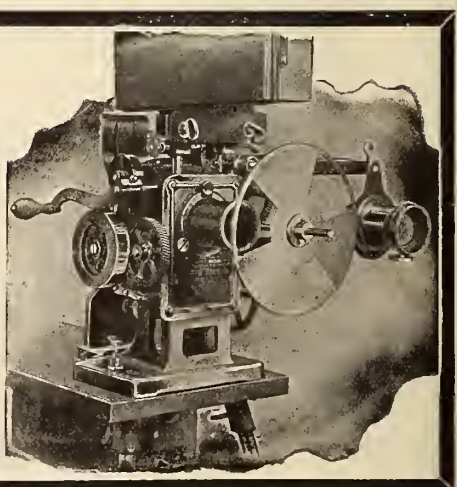
Can any machine go into extensive use and enjoy continued popularity if it does not render service that is satisfactory?

If success from its first appearance and constantly extending mean anything to you, you will consider the record of POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH NO. 6 before you buy a moving picture machine.

In a year after its introduction its monthly sales had become larger than those of any two competing machines.

Today its volume of sales in proportion to those of competitors is larger than ever.

Wouldn't it pay you to learn about it before you buy? Send now for Catalog D.



NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York

"POWER'S" CURRENT SAVERS give best arc regulation, maximum current saving, heaviest amperage at the arc. No others compare with them.

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

"A BAD EGG"

Solax Release, June 14th

Percy Prue, a dapper counter jumper, one day gets himself into trouble by trying to kiss a girl customer over the counter. She complains to the management of the store, and Percy loses his job.

He has no money laid by for a rainy day, and we see him in his hall bedroom preparing a meagre meal. As he picks up an egg preparatory to breaking it, he sees written on the shell the name and address of one "Bessie Kirk, General Delivery, Windsor, Ill." Greatly elated at his find, he immediately decides that here is a chance to get a loving little country lass for a wife, and he forthwith sets himself down and pens a proposal to her.

Again turning his atention to his meal he breaks the egg, but immediately the surrounding atmosphere is polluted with the horrible odor of decayed hen-fruit. Almost blinded Percy seizes the pan and egg and hurls them out of the window.

Here ensues a number of very funny incidents, out of which Percy emerges much the worse for wear.

As Percy again enters his room he receives a message telling him that his Bessie is on her way to him, and he no more than has time to straighten things out when she enters with her papa. Percy, greatly disappointed with his prospective bride, tries to fly the coop, but papa is too quick for him, and he promptly takes Percy back to the farm with them, where he is forced to do all sorts of menial work. But the climax is reached when they try to feed him on eggs. Percy, remembering his first experience with eggs from this farm, suddenly decides that the city, after all, is not such a bad place, and throwing precaution to the winds, leaves them to their farm and "bad eggs."

"A DAUGHTER OF THE NAVAJOS"

Solax Release, June 16th

Wanda, daughter of Thundercloud, chief of a tribe of Navajo Indians, is hurt, and falls exhausted in the woods. Lieutenant Clinton, out walking with Cora, daughter of Colonel West, who is in command of the U. S. Army post, discovers the little Indian maid, and Wanda is taken to the Colonel's home. Finally she departs, cured, but she leaves her heart in the keeping of Clinton, who does not suspect the state of the girl's feeling, and who is in love with Cora.

Later, Wanda meets Clinton, and, feeling that she is the equal of him by virtue of being a chief's daughter, lets him know the love that she bears him. Clinton, greatly surprised, tells her that it can never be, and she, hurt and indignant, returns to her village.

Meantime, a feeling of unrest has developed among the various tribes, and a council is called to discuss the matter. All the chiefs are in favor of war except Thundercloud, who, bearing in mind the kindness of the whites toward his daughter, is for peace. But when he returns to his wigwam and hears of the slight placed upon his daughter's shoulders, he is greatly angered, and returning to the council, signifies his intention of taking up the hatchet.

Wanda, seeing them depart, realizes that hundreds will probably be killed, and filled with remorse, decides to prevent the slaughter. The garrison, weakened by the departure of the greater part of the troops, is about to succumb. Wanda goes after the troops and returns just in time to the besieged post. Her father is brought in a prisoner. Wanda pleads with him for recognition, but the old chief spurns her. Clinton and Cora, however, take the little Indian maid to their arms, and promise her a home with them for the rest of her life.

"THE TWINS"

Rex Release, Thursday, June 15th

We hear of the joys of motherhood, and we hear of their pains and griefs, but of all the anguish that ever befalls the lot of any mother from the birth of a child to its maturity, the greatest and most poignant is the loss of the child.

The baby daughter of Mrs. Norton, a widowed seamstress, dies. The sorrow-stricken mother gazes at the empty cradle and decides to replace the departed soul with an orphan child upon whom she can lavish the love, the rightful object of which the Great Giver and Taker has taken from her. She goes to the orphanage and asks to be given a baby girl, and is given one of the twin baby sisters.

Richard Golden, a wealthy shirtwaist manufacturer, has an only son, a little boy, who yearns for a sister and continually begs his father to bring him a little sister to be a playmate to him, and the father, to satisfy the child's persistent pleading, goes to the orphan home and brings home the other little twin sister.

Years roll by, and both girls have grown to young womanhood in their different stations in life. Jack Golden, now grown to manhood, and knowing that the girl is only a foster sister, asks her to become his wife. The girl consents only to end his stubborn importunities, but she really loves a chauffeur, with whom she plans to elope. The girl and the chauffeur get away in an automobile, but a mishap occurs which changes the destinies of all the characters in the incident. The car goes over a cliff, and the chauffeur is killed, while the girl is taken unconscious to a hospital, there being nothing on her person to disclose her identity.

In the meantime, Lucy, now a seamstress, and earning a livelihood for both her foster mother and herself, has been delegated by her union to call upon the Board of Directors of the shirtwaist organization to petition for shorter hours and higher wages. Mr. Golden and his son, finding her there, the close resemblance to their missing one makes them believe that she is none other. The surprised girl tells her story, but they conclude she must have lost her reason. They follow her to the home of poor old Mrs. Norton, from whom they learn that this girl is only a sister to the one whom they seek. After many fruitless searches, Mr. Golden advertises for his lost daughter, and is informed by the house physician of the hospital that she is in his care. Mr. Golden hastens there only to find that she has expired. To fill the vacancy in their hearts and home, they offer a home of luxury to the poor twin and her aged foster mother, which offer is accepted, and the spirit of the departed girl brings to her poverty-stricken sister the joys and ease she had enjoyed while on earth.

"FOR HER SIN"

Champion Release, June 21st

She was not a Magdalene, as portrayed in this beautiful film sermon, but when she accepted the love of one man and became his wife, then deserted him for one who had been his rival for her hand, Alice Donaldson sinned. But this unholy passion soon turned to dead sea fruit, for the man she had gone to, Walter Rust, soon tired and sickened of her, and the man she had so basely deserted, Thornby Roberts, went forth into the world broken-hearted; and so they both tasted the bitterness of sorrow.

Out in the far West, young Roberts found solace in the wild whirl of a cowboy's life. Possessing all the requisites of courage and dash, he found himself in his element with the men of the plains. He met Mary Darley, a true Western girl, and the daughter of an old ranchman. They soon became attached to each other and loved happily. He revealed his past to her—and then, 'mid the joyousness of his life, came a cloud.

Alice Donaldson read of the approaching nuptials. But, her attempt to mar a second time the happiness of Roberts was unsuccessful, for the law of the state declared that wilful desertion of a spouse for seven years or more, warranted life separation. Already the wedding band had been placed on the finger of sweet Mary Darley, and the guests were joyfully toasting her, when Alice arrived.

She was overwhelmed with shame and sorrow. The ranch hands regarded her with amazement; but Robert and his bride pitied the wretched woman as she left in deep dejection the scene of festivity. Deprived of a husband's love and protection, despised and driven forth by the man for whom she sacrificed all, Alice turned for comfort in her miseries, not to self-destruction, as so many erring ones do, but to religion. In the garb of a member of the Salvation Army, Alice Donaldson went among the sick and lowly, administering the Word of Truth.

From first to last, the story enlists a heartfelt interest in its unexpected happenings, and awakens the keenest feelings of joy and sorrow, and a deep satisfaction at its unexpectedly bright and happy termination.

"MOLLY PITCHER"

Champion Release, June 19th

No story of the Revolution is more interesting to the American patriot than this one, of the heroine of the Continental Army, Molly Pitcher. Its development is simple and logical, but it is stirring in every scene, pulsat-ing with a human interest and righteous fervor that grips one to the very heart core.

Boohie Rank, at one time a traveling player, is anxious to marry. He pays court to Eleanor Stockton, and later to Molly Cairms, hut is unceremoniously thrust aside hy hoth. Sam Stockton and John Macaullay are rivals for Molly's hand. John is favored for having saved Molly's father from a dehtor's cell.

The Colonies revolt, and John and Sam go to the front under "Mad Anthony" Wayne. Molly goes as a water carrier, and gains the sobriquet of "Molly Pitcher." At the battle of Monmouth, John, who is a gunner, is killed, hut his brave wife takes his place and helps win the battle. General Wayne commends her action and recommends her for honors.

Five years later, the war heing about over, Molly gives her hand to her other sweetheart, Sam Stockton, who has always heen her late hushand's friend. General Wayne, at her wedding day, presents her with a commission of sergeant for her hrave services.

In the picture the devotion of the nohle woman of '76 is heautifully depicted as portrayed by Sam Stockton's mother and sister. and the heroic devotion to duty of Molly Macaullay, otherwise known to fame as "Molly Pitcher." The incidents preceding the opening and suhsequent hostilities are historically correct. This gives to the picture a peculiar value apart from the wonderfully interesting story which it unfolds.

Also, as in all similar reproductions of the Champion Company, the most careful research has heen made, hoth as to its character portraiture and historical incident, thus enhancing their value a hundred fold.

"HOTEL THIEVES"

Great Northern Release, June 17th

Here is another of our splendid detective productions in which exciting incidents follow one another in quick succession. We see the hotel thieves at work, and a man who is their victim engages Sherlock Holmes to track the criminals. Holmes takes rooms at the hotel, and the thieves, recognizing him, close up the fire-place chimney of the room. Holmes would have heen suffocated but for the chance visit of some hurglars who break through the window at the critical moment. He follows the thieves—a man and a woman—and in a train, during the ahsence of the woman, holds up the man. The accomplice, however, comes behind and trips up the detective, who is thrown out onto the railroad tracks. In a house to which Holmes is taken to recover, he has to escape to the roof, and an exciting pistol duel takes place there. He traces the thieves to Switzerland, and engages in a struggle with the arch-criminal, in which the latter, during the combat, falls over a precipice.

"SUN-BONNET SUE"

Yankee Release, June 19th

A heautiful story of the Kentucky mountains. Sue Rigby, an orphan, left in the care of a maiden aunt, is the owner of land which agents of the steel king, Sanders, have found very rich in iron ore.

Frank Denton, a young surveyor, is sent forth to find the owner and obtain the land for as little cost as possible. He finds the owner to be a little innocent mountain girl, who is known as Sun-Bonnet Sue, and is dearly beloved by all the mountaineers.

From her he learns of the death of her father who had willed all his property to her. The will had never heen registered and Sue had placed it in the family Bihle. Sue shows the will to the surveyor and he, won by her simplicity and heauty, decides to protect her interests at all hazards, although he is employed by those who desire to see the rightful owner lose the property or sell it far helow its value. The foreman of the surveyor's outfit uses every method possihle to secure the will and thus gain the praise of his employers.

A young mountaineer whom Sue has rejected is persuaded to steal the will, but, fortunately for him, is seen leaving Sue's cahin, and is chased hy a crowd headed by the young surveyor who is protecting Sue's interests. The young mountaineer is finally captured after a long and hazardous running fight in which he is wounded. Sue nurses the wounded man hack to health and he, out of gratitude, confesses his guilt, and tells where the will may be found. Headed hy Frank, the young surveyor, and hy this time, the recognized champion of Sue, the mountaineer friends of Sue drive the crowd who have taken possession of Sue's land from the mountains.

Under the guidance of her protector Sue sells her land for a large amount of money and, accompanied by her aunt, leaves the mountains for the city, the aunt taking along her beloved corn-cob pipe, which she still continues to smoke in her city mansion. The protection offered Sue by the young surveyor has gained her gratitude, which soon turns to love, and in the city home Sue gladly gives her heart and hand to the man who had protected her through her hitter fight against a powerful corporation.

"THE TWO ROADS"

Yankee Release, June 23d

Two college chums, just after graduation, have dinner, and pledge to meet again, if alive, at the same place, at the end of ten years.

Will Preston, one of the collegians, hecomes a famous detective, and is known as "The American Sherlock Holmes." A series of mysterious thefts in which large amounts have been stolen, have occurred, time and again, and no clue has heen found as to the identity of the thief, who for lack of identification is called "The American Raffles."

A magnificent jewel, owned by Mr. Deering, a prominent citizen, has heen stolen, and Will Preston is engaged to recover the gem. A letter from his chief warns him that the honor of the department is at stake and urges him to use his greatest efforts in recovering this jewel or the department would become the laughing stock of the country. This mysterious theft is also attributed to the now famous Raffles.

At the end of four years, Mr. Deering returns from a trip to Europe and upon being notified that the Thorpe diamond has not been recovered, writes a letter to the chief, ridiculing the department and upbraiding them for their lack of efficiency. Will Preston answers this, and assures Mr. Deering that his highest ambition is to recover the Thorpe jewel, and that he will continue the search until the jewel is recovered.

The mysterious Raffles is next seen at his work. Having packed a suitcase of plunder, he is ready to leave, when he delays his exit to write the following:

"Forewarned is forcarmed: Just thought I'd move. Enjoy yourself during my absence as I have an important engagement elsewhere.

"RAFFLES, Esq."

No sooner has the mysterious Raffles left the room when Preston enters with drawn gun and finds he is a moment too late. Preston's rage is frightful as he reads the letter and realizes that the mysterious Raffles has again thwarted him.

After ten years the two collegians again meet in the same room. Preston is prematurely gray and aged, due to the worries caused by the mystifying Raffles. Preston tells his chum of the troubles he has had, and attrihutes his aged and sorrowful appearance to his failure to recover the Thorpe diamond. While at their dinner a letter is handed to Preston which advises him to cease searching for the Thorpe diamond, as the owner, Mr. Deering, has given up all hope of its recovery—eight years having elapsed since it was stolen. Preston shows this letter to his friend, then hows his head in shame and chagrin. Bland looks pityingly at his friend, then slowly draws forth a jewel case from his pocket in which reposes the famous diamond and hands it to Preston.

Preston rises to his feet in surprise and gazes stupefied at his friend, who smilingly invites him to continue the dinner. Preston then knows who the mysterious Raffles is.

"THE HERMIT'S GOLD

American Release, Thursday, June 22d

Some women prefer the advantages gained through wealth rather than the honest love of a good man, and many a weak man has committed crime to gain the favor of such a woman only to find he has sacrificed his all for a worthless object.

George and Charles Wendell find they both love Clara Palmer, and she is not disposed to show favor to either. To set their minds at rest they ask her to choose between them. Frivolous and shallow, with no desire to lose the attentions of either man, she tells them both to seek a fortune for her and she promises to marry the one most successful.

Charles, the younger brother, realizes that punching cattle is a very slow method of accumulating wealth, and starts for the mountains to try his hand at mining. George remains at the ranch and wins favor with the fickle maiden.

Charles, in his quest in the mountains, becomes injured, and is succored hy an old miner, known as the "Hermit of the Hills." The hermit takes him to his cave and tenderly nurses him hack to health and strength. The old hermit has accumulated a fortune in gold ore, and Charles discovers its hiding place. Filled only with thoughts of Clara and her promise, Charles assaults his benefactor unawares, and, leaving him for dead, returns to the ranch with the hermit's gold. Clara transfers her favor from George to Charles, when he shows her the gold he has stolen from the hermit.

George knows that Charles could never have mined the great fortune he claims to have acquired in the short time he has heen away, and accuses him of theft. Charles denies it, and is upheld hy Clara. Charles at last acknowledges his guilt, and agrees to return the gold. Together the hrothers go to the hermit's cave in the mountains, to find that the blow inflicted by Charles has made the hermit insane. Charles returns the gold and goes hack to the ranch, leaving George to care for the poor, demented man.

George cares for the hermit until his death, and in gratitude for his kindness the old hermit leaves the gold to him. Charles, on his return to the ranch, goes to Clara, whose sympathy was with him when George compelled him to return the gold, but now meets only with her scorn, and he at last realizes that his crime has availed him nothing. Clara determines to to go to George, and starts for the hermit's cave alone. She comes upon George seated near the cave and pleads her love. George, who has learned her shallow nature, gives her that which she seeks, the gold that has made his hrother a criminal and encompassed the hermit's death. Taking the one remaining sack, he throws it in a shower on the Hermit's grave, and returns to civilization unsullied hy the curse of gold.

"THE YIDDISHER COWBOY"

American Release, June 19th

Ikey Rosenthal finds peddling a bum husiness in Wyoming. Consequently, he is highly elated when John Darrow, foreman of the "X Bar" outfit, offers him a job punching cows.

He is fitted out at the ranch in chaps, spurs, sombrero, etc., and feels that he is a regular cowboy. On his first appearance in his new outfit the boys work their game of gun music on him, and, in this instance, are treated to a genuine Yiddisher dance. Ikey is very angry, hut hides his time, until he can even up the score. He learns the work on the ranch, and one day succeeds in roping a cow, thinking he has roped a steer.

Pay day the boys follow their time-honored custom and go to town to celebrate. Ikey, however, with true business instinct, remains at the ranch and, during the howhoys' absence, gets out his old peddling pack and sets up a pawn shop in a corner of the ranch yard.

The hoys return from town hroke, and when Ikey shows them his pawn shop they decide to "hock" their guns. Ikey gets possession of every gun on the ranch, and then starts to do a little shooting himself. The boys scatter at his approach and the Yiddisher cowhoy is monarch of all he surveys.

THE BRONCHO BUSTER'S BRIDE

American Release, June 19

Jack Brandt, the foreman of the "IXL" Ranch, is married and goes to meet his bride. Established at the ranch, his wife proceeds to dominate over him and compels him to do the housework. He appears among the the hoys wearing his wife's apron, when she comes after him and compels him to return to the house to finish the housework.

The hoys determine to help Jack and give his wife a lesson in domestic duty. Accordingly they kidnap the bride and leave a note for Jack to show their good intentions:

Dear Jack:
We've took yer filly out to break her in.
The Bunch.

Mrs. Brandt is hustled out into a canyon where the boys compel her to work.

Jack finds the note and goes to the rescue of his wife. He finds her hard at work under the direction of the cowboys and she is overjoyed to see him. Returning to the ranch she proves such a model of industry that Jack feels called upon to thank the bunch for breaking in his bride.

"THE COFFIN SHIP"

Thanhouser Release, June 20

A wealthy ship owner cared for hut two things in life, his gold and his daughter. But his selfish love of the girl led him to frown upon her suitors, while his greed for gold induced him to follow a niggardly policy so far as his ships were concerned. He insured them, it is true, but he hegrudged the money he spent for repairs. He looked at it from the view-point that sailors were cheap, and could more easily he replaced than the money of which he was so fond.

Therefore, when one of his captains insisted upon repairs heing made, he was gruffly rehuffed. The owner told him that he could sail the ship as it was or hunt another job, and the captain decided to stick to the ship, hoping that things were not as had as he had imagined them to be.

For the captain was married, although the fact had heen kept a secret. His hride was none other than the daughter of his employer, the miser ship owner, and they were waiting for a favorable chance to hreak the news to him.

The girl wanted to sail with her husband. He refused, but did not tell her the real reason, as he knew it would frighten her, and cause the time on shore to be days and nights of dread. But the girl refused to accept his

WRITE AT ONCE WRITE AT ONCE

ENORMOUS AMOUNTS

ARE EARNED BY MY SENSATIONAL

MONOPOL FILMS

IN TWO ACTS—LENGTH (ABOUT) 2,500-3,000 FEET. I DISPOSE THE RIGHT OF THE SOLE PRODUCTION FOR THE ENTIRE CONTINENT. ASK ABOUT CONDITIONS AND PRICE AT ONCE.

GEORGE KLEINKE

STETTIN, FALKENWALDERSTRASSE 138

N. B.—I AM A BUYER OF USED DRAMAS, INDIAN AND COWBOY FILMS AS WELL AS OF SENSATIONAL ACTS.

commands, and secretly stowed herself away on the ship, revealing herself when the ship was out at sea.

The captain was glad to see her, but his joy was mingled with forebodings. He knew that he bad an undermanned, leaky ship, and that the chances were only even that he would reach port.

When the father found a letter from the girl, telling bim what sbe had done he broke down completely.

He had never worried ahout bis "coffin ship" hefore, but never before had the only person he loved been aboard one of them.

The hlow that he had expected came, for the ship was reported lost with all on board. And the old man realized that his niggardliness had lost him something that be would bave given all his wealth, miser though he was, to retain.

He neglected his business, be grew to hate his once beloved gold, and, at last, half demented, decided to end his life. The vision of the daughter for whose death he was responsihle was constantly with him, and he decided to die, as she did, in the water.

He went to the dock from which her ship bad sailed, and gazed down in the cool depths. There was oblivion. On land was only sorrow and remorse. He was ahout to leap overboard when he heard excited cries. Looking up he saw somc people landing from a ship nearhy. One of them was his daughter, or else it was a vision. But he decided to approach anyway.

It was no vision, but a living, loving daugbter, who flung herself into his arms, and rained kisses upon him. Her hushand was with her. They had heen rescued after a harrowing experience in an open hoat at sea.

They did not have a chance to ask the father's forgiveness. He humhled himself to them and diffidently asked them to accept bis love. He realized that the tragedy was due to him and him alone, hut determined that the lesson he had heen taught would never he forgotten, and that he would do his duty to the men who risked their lives to bring him wealth, and never count the cost when human lives were at stake.

"FOXY GRANDMA"

Thanhouser Release, Friday, June 23d

To all outward appearance she was simply a quiet old country woman, hut looks are deceiving. Actually she was well-to-do, hut resided in the country from choice. And the one person she deeply loved was her granddaughter, who made her home with her.

The girl went to the city to meet some snobhish relations. Tbe latter decided to do her a good turn, especially as it would not cost them a cent. So they practically arranged a marriage hetween her and a young lawyer hroker. They told the broker of the girl's prospects, and he was convinced that he could use the money in bis husiness. And there would probahly have heen a marriage had it not heen for "Foxy Grandma."

But she expected to put this unexpected suitor to the test. So grandma went to the city, arrayed herself in fine clothes, after taking a suite at an expensive hotel, and managed to meet the hroker on the plea of wanting to invest in securities. She had lots of money, and the hroker needed it. He figured that the girl was more or less of a speculation, as she might or might not get a fortune, hut that the other woman had the cash. Grandma carefully kept the relationship from him, and he did not even know that she was acquainted with the girl. Which is why be finally decided to he an old woman's darling.

Grandma lured him down to the country, exposed bis treachery before the reproachful eyes of the girl, and ordered him away. Then, with a sigh of relief, she put away her fine clothes, arrayed herself in her simple garh, took up her knitting, and hecame the plain old grandmother again.

"ALL FOR A BIG ORDER"

"Imp" Release, June 19th

Jenkins, an Eastern representative of a Chicago firm, is a hustler in a husiness way, always anxious to turn a trick to secure an order for his house. He receives a telegram from headquarters, advising him of the fact that a large Western dealer, Holly, will visit New York to place an order for goods, and it is up to Jenkins to show him a good time. The wire also mentions the fact that Holly has a penchant for pretty women and is something of a rounder.

Jenkins immediately casts about to land the order. He must provide a stunning woman to entertain his visitor. Now, Jenkins is not much of a lady's man, his acquaintance with the fair sex being limited to his stenographer and his wife. He is in a quandary, receiving the message in his office. He sizes up his stenographer, and decides that her face is not one to stimulate business.

He groans and starts out on a tour of discovery. Passing a pharmacy he notices a beautiful young girl serving cooling drinks, and he has an idea. Going into the store, he enters into negotiations with the girl to have her entertain the huyer. She resents his well-meant proposition, and he is chucked out of the drug store hodily to fall into the arms of a hurly policeman.

He next visits a hat store to purchase new head gear and discovers a very prepossessing looking young woman. Forgetting his previous experience, he approaches her with the proposition and promptly has a hat hox crushed over bis head.

In despair he thinks of his wife, who is a dowdy, and persuades her to entertain the buyer. He furnishes her with unlimited cash, and she later appears clad in fashionahle hahiliments. He is astonished and amazed at the metamorphosis, and rather renigs on the plan. She is anxious to enter into the spirit of the occasion, and when the huyer shows up in his office, he introduces Mrs. Jenkins as the woman who will entertain the Westerner.

Holly is a connoisseur in affairs in which women are concerned, and he is immediately impressed with the choice of the man with the goods to sell. Jenkins is forced to see his wife led away hy Holly, and he follows. They go to a swell restaurant, where the gay Westerner huys wine witb the utmost ahandon and disregard of cost.

Jenkins enters and is a witness to the little scene at the table. His wife is rather overplaying the part, enjoying the situation immensely, which fact is observed by Jenkins, who groans in anguish. Unahle to hear the suspense longer, Jenkins approaches the pair and announces the woman as his wife, much to her consternation, and the amazement of Holly. The latter is indignant and leaves the cafe. Jenkins is forced to pay the check, which he does gladly, for the sake of taking his wife from Holly, and they depart, Jenkins proud of his wife, and she rather ashamed of her part in the proceeding.

The next day Holly calls on Jenkins, and announces tbat he sees tbe humor of the situation, and gives him the order, complimenting him on his ingenuity and willingness to lend the services of his wife to entertain prospective customers.

(Continued on page 26)

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

	Feet
Apr. 19—The Mute of Portici	950
May 3—Grenadier Roland	950
Apr. 26—How Winter Decorates Nature	500
Apr. 26—The Quartermaster	500
May 3—The Traces on the Snow	950
May 10—Air Bubbles	500
May 10—Tweedledum is Late	500
May 17—Grenadier Roland	950
May 24—The Snow Maiden (Dr.)
May 31—Tweedledum's Dream (Com.)
May 31—Exploits of a Napoleon Admirer
June 7—Two Good Friends (Com.)
June 7—The Human Tigress

AMERICAN.

May 18—A Cowboy's Sacrifice (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder (W. Com.)
May 29—The Ranch Tenor (W. Com.)
June 1—The Sheepman's Daughter (W. Dr.)
June 5—A Sage Brush Phrenologist (W. Com.)
June 5—The Elopement on Double L Ranch (W. Com.)
June 8—$5,000 Reward—Dead or Alive (W. Com. Dr.)
June 12—The Witch of the Range (Dr.)
June 15—The Cowboy's Ruse (Com.)
June 15—Law and Order on Bar L (Com.)
June 19—The Yiddisher Cowboy (Com.)
June 19—The Broncho Buster's Bride (Com.)
June 22—The Hermit's Gold (Dr.)

CHAMPION.

Apr. 17—With Stonewall Jackson	960
Apr. 19—A Halfbreed's Courage	950
Apr. 24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days	965
Apr. 26—She Wanted a Man with Brains	970
May 1—Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia	1000
May 3—Out of the Dark	990
May 8—Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California	1000
May 10—Making a Man of His Son	910
May 15—Gen. Marion—The Swamp Fox	950
May 17—Circle C's New Boss	950
May 22—With Sheridan at Murfreesboro (Dr.)	950
May 24—In the Great Big West (Dr.)	950
May 29—The Peril of Diaz	950
May 31—How He Redeemed Himself	950
June 5—Service Under Johnston and Lee	950
June 7—The Cost of Drink	950
June 12—Longstreet at Seven Pines	950
June 14—His Last Crooked Deal	950

ECLAIR

Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
May 8—A Village Flirt (Com.)	910
May 15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.)	910
May 22—A Mother's Distress	430
May 29—The Two Gardeners (Com.)	940
June 5—Impudence Punished (Com.)	550
June 5—Tommy at the Dentist's (Com.)	420
June 12—Caesar's Birotteau (Dr.)	950
June 19—Tommy Gets a Trumpet (Com.)	370
June 19—The Ingenious Accident (Com.)	620
June 26—The Death of Don Juan	965
July 3—Can He Save Her (Dr.)	515
July 3—Tommy Wants to Be an Actor (Com.)	435
July 10—A Child's Heroism (Dr.)	995

GREAT NORTHERN.

Mar. 25—The Fakir's New Servant (Com.)
Mar. 25—Troubles of a Trip (Com.)
Apr. 1—A Victim of His Double (Dr.)
Apr. 8—A Confidence Trick
Apr. 15—Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr. 22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)
Apr. 29—The Cossack Duke (Dr.)	894
May 6—The Lucky Banana Seller (Com.)
May 6—A Would-be Sportsman (Com.)
May 13—The Nun (Dr.)
May 20—The Voice of Conscience (Dr.)	786
May 20—Berne (Switzerland) (Sc.)	204
May 27—The Love of a Gypsy Girl (Dr.)
June 3—The Bogus Governess	945
June 10—True Love Never Dies (Dr.)

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Mar. 9—The Message in the Bottle (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 13—The Secret of the Palm (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 16—The Fishermaid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 20—In Old Madrid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 27—Sweet Memories (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr. 6—The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 10—A Good Cigar
Apr. 10—A Faithless Man
Apr. 13—The Storm
Apr. 20—The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr. 27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
May 1—Second Sight (Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
May 8—Four Lives (Dr.)	300
May 8—The Fair Dentist (Com.)	700
May 11—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Master and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Lighthouse Keeper (Dr.)	1000
May 22—The Forged Despatch (Dr.)	1000
May 25—The Minor Chord (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Three of a Kind (Dr.)	1000
June 1—The Last Appeal (Dr.)	1000
June 5—The Grind (Dr.)	700
June 5—The Chicago Stockyards Fire (Sc.)	500
June 8—Back to the Soil (Dr.)	1000
June 12—Behind the Stockade (Dr.)	1000
June 15—The Piece of String (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

Apr. 22—Foolshead — Wrangler for Love (Com.)	500
Apr. 27—Little Lewis Toy (Dr.)	950
Apr. 29—Foolshead Telegraph Boy	500
Apr. 29—The Bottle of Milk (Com.)	500
May 4—The Cry of the Native Country (Dr.)	950
May 6—Foolshead—Life Insurance Agent (Com.)	950
May 6—The Fountains of Rome
May 11—The Marchioness of Ansperti (Dr.)	950
May 13—Marriage Advertisement (Com.)	500
May 13—Foolshead Has Lost a Needle (C.)	500
May 18—Little Mother	950
May 20—Two Girls Love Foolshead (Com.)
May 26—The Little Rider (Dr.)
June 1—The Collector's Purse (Dr.)
June 3—International Exhibition at Turin.
June 3—Knows-All, Anthropological Doctor (Com.)
June 8—A Life for the Czar (Dr.)
June 10—An Odd Adventure of Foolshead (Com.)
June 10—Experiments with Forlanini's Hydra-Plane

LUX.

By Prieur.

Mar. 31—He Wanted a Hoop (Com.)	281
Apr. 7—Bill's Little Plan (Com.)	386
Apr. 7—A Desperado (Dr.)	586
Apr. 14—Bill and the Greasy Pole (Com.)	432
Apr. 14—They Did Not Budge (Com.)	501
Apr. 21—Dr. Grant's Wonderful Discovery (Dr.)	885
Apr. 28—Naughty Miss Edith (Com.)	472
Apr. 28—Bill's Garden (Com.)	419
May 5—Bill as a Toreador (Com.)	419
May 5—Fashion and Its Consequence (Com.)	426
May 12—The Postmistress (Dr.)	700
May 12—A Walk in Tunis	252
May 19—Bill at Work (Com.)	367
May 19—All Through a Rat (Com.)	475
May 26—The Two Cockades (Dr.)	698
May 26—Tidying Up Paris (Com.)	268
June 2—Just Bill's Luck (Com.)	403
June 2—Arnold Has a Good Trial (Com.)	462
June 9—The Companion Governess (Dr.)	639
June 9—Bill at Play (Com.)	331

NESTOR FILM CO.

Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks
Mar. 8—In the Commissioned Ranks (Dr.)
Mar. 15—Was It Worth While? (Dr.)
Mar. 22—Could You Blame Him? (Com.)
Mar. 29—The Truth (Dr.)
Apr. 5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr. 12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr. 19—The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr. 26—His Wife (Dr.)
May 3—The Other Man (Dr.)
May 10—After Twenty Years (Dr.)
May 17—His Second Choice (Com.)
May 24—At Panther Creek (Dr.)
May 31—The Savage (Dr.)
May 31—A Sure Cure (Com.)
June 7—The Cowpuncher (Dr.)
June 7—The Little Burglar (Com.)
June 14—The Sheriff's Mistake (Dr.)
June 14—The Plan that Failed (Com.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Apr. 11—An Indian's Mistake	950
Apr. 14—A Man of Honor	950
Apr. 18—Return of Company D (Dr.)	950
Apr. 21—A Cowboy for a Day (Com.)	950
May 2—Shifty's Claim (W. Com. Dr.)	950
May 5—A Knight of the Trail	950
May 9—The Crow Chief's Defeat (Dr.)	950
May 12—The Foreman's Bride (Com. Dr.)	950
May 16—The Broncho Buster's Rival
May 19—The Cheyenne Medicine Man
May 23—The Outlaw and the Female Detective
May 26—Brave Swift Eagle's Peril
May 30—A Redskin's Bravery
June 2—A Tale of the Foothills
June 6—His Lordship's Hunting Trip (Com. Dr.)
June 9—A Child of the Rancho (Dr.)

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Apr. 18—Copper Wit (Com.)
Apr. 18—The Wine Harvest
Apr. 22—The Last Rose
Apr. 25—A Day with an English Bargeman (Com.)
Apr. 25—Melody of Fate (Dr.)
Apr. 29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.)
May 2—The Crisis (Dr.)
May 2—The Joys of Persecution (Com.)
May 6—The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)
May 9—The Four of Us (Com.)
May 9—Contagion (Com.)
May 13—As Your Hair Grows Whiter (Dr.)
May 16—Oklahoma (Dr.)
May 16—A Matrimoniai Surprise (Com.)
May 20—Gunga Din (Dr.)
May 23—Her Atonement
May 27—Fifty Years Ago
May 30—Civilization
June 3—Eyes That See Not (Dr.)
June 6—The Black Heart (Dr.)
June 10—The Stranger's Plate (Dr.)
June 13—Smith's Marmalade (Com.)
June 17—The Haunted Island (Dr.)

RELIANCE

May 6—Over the Shading Edge (Dr.)	950
May 10—A Left Hook (Com.)	950
May 13—The Conflict	950
May 17—The Harvest (Dr.)	950
May 20—A Sonata of Souls
May 24—There's Many a Slip
May 27—O'er Grim Fields Scarred (Dr.)
May 31—Dad's Girl
June 3—In Flowers Paled
June 7—The Minute and the Maid
June 10—The Broken Coin
June 14—All Alone (Dr.)

REX

Apr. 13—"The Little Major" (Dr.)	960
Apr. 20—A Daughter of the Revolution (Dr.)
Apr. 27—The Realization (Dr.)
May 4—The Ultimate Sacrifice
May 11—The Guardsman (Dr.)
May 18—An Exception to the Rule (Com.)
May 25—Called Back (Dr.)
June 1—The Monogram "J. O." (Dr.)
June 8—From Death to Life (Dr.)

SOLAX COMPANY

May 3—Sensible Dad (Com.)
May 3—Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May 5—The Somnambulist (Dr.)
May 10—Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May 17—His Dumb Wife (Com.)
May 19—In the Nick of Time (Dr.)
May 24—House of Peace (Com.)
May 24—The Devil in the Tin Cup (Com.)
May 26—An Officer and a Gentleman (Dr.)
May 31—The Marvelous Cow (Com.)
June 2—Never Too Late to Mend (Dr.)

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Apr. 4—Charity of the Poor (Dr.)
Apr. 7—Vindicated
Apr. 11—Velvet and Rags
Apr. 14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.)
Apr. 18—Cally's Comet (Com.)	1000
Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr. 25—Poet of the People (His.)
Apr. 28—An Elevator Romance (Com.)
May 2—The Pillars of Society (Dr.)
May 5—The Sinner (Dr.)
May 9—The Railroad Builder (Dr.)	1000
May 12—The Regimental Ball (Dr.)	1000
May 16—The Colonel and the King
May 19—Lady Clare
May 23—The Stage Child (Dr.)
May 26—Get Rick Quick (Dr.)
May 30—A Wartime Wooing
June2 —A Circus Stowaway
June 6—The Stepmother
June 9—Motoring
June 9—The Rescue of Mr. Henpeck
June 13—Little Old New York (Dr.)
June 16—Flames and Fortune (Dr.)

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Apr. 4—The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr. 10—An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.)
Apr. 14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.)
Apr. 17—A Close Call (Dr.)
Apr. 21—The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr. 24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr. 28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May 1—A Kentucky Girl (Dr.)
May 5—Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.)
May 8—In Sunny Italy (Dr.)
May 12—The Angelus Bell (Dr.)
May 15—An Indian Brave's Conversion (Dr.)
May 19—The Banana Planter's Peril (Dr.)
May 22—The Little Western Rose (Dr.)
May 26—Thwarted by Nell Pierce (Dr.)
May 29—The Birth Mark (Dr.)
June 2—His Romance (Dr.)
June 5—The Scandal Monger (Dr.)
June 9—Mrs. Biffin's Demise (Dr.)
June 12—Thou Shalt Pay (Dr.)
June 16—The New Congressman (Dr.)

LICENSEES OF PATENTS CO.

BIOGRAPH

	Feet
Apr. 17—Madam Rex (Dr.)	996
Apr. 20—A Knight of the Road (Dr.)	996
Apr. 24—His Mother's Scarf (Dr.)	994
Apr. 27—How She Triumphed (Com.)	998
May 1—The Two Sides (Dr.)	998
May 4—Misplaced Jealousy (Com.)	503
May 4—Cupid's Joke (Com.)	493
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 8—In the Days of '49 (Dr.)	995
May 11—The Country Lovers (Dr.)	995
May 15—The New Dress (Dr.)	998
May 18—The Manicure Lady (Dr.)	998
May 22—The Crooked Road (Dr.)	997
May 25—The White Rose of the Wilds (Dr.)	998
May 29—A Romany Tragedy (Dr.)	996
June 1—A Dutch Gold Mine (Com.)	769
June 1—Curiosity (Com.)	228
June 5—A Smile of a Child(Dr.)	997
June 8—Their Fates Sealed (Com.)	396
June 8—Dave's Love Affair (Com.)	601
June 12—Enoch Arden, Part I (Dr.)	998
June 15—Enoch Arden, Part II (Dr.)	999

EDISON

	Feet
Apr. 28—The Child and the Tramp (Com.)	1000
May 1—The Panama Canal in 1911	990
May 3—Josh and Cindy's Wedding Trip	1000
May 5—Aida (Dr.)	1000
May 9—Edna's Imprisonment (Com.)	975
May 10—The Bahy of the Boarding House (Com.)	1000
May 12—The Quarrel on the Cliff (Dr.)	1000
May 16—In the Baggage Coach Ahead (Dr.)	1000
May 17—In and Around Havana, Cuha	450
May 17—How the Hungry Man was Fed (Com.)	550
May 19—A Case of High Treason (Dr.)	1000
May 23—Captain Nell (Dr.)	1000
May 24—Madeline's Rehellion (Com.)	990
May 26—Hearts and Flags (Dr.)	1000
May 30—The Niece and the Chorus Lady (Com.)	975
May 31—The Inheritance (Com.)	625
May 31—It Served Her Right (Com.)	375
June 2—A Sane Fourth of July	1000
June 7—Father's Dress Suit (Com.)	500
June 6—The Cardinal's Edict (Dr.)	1000
June 7—A Lesson Learned (Dr.)	500
June 9—The Wager and the Wage Earners (Dr.)	1000
June 13—Her Brother's Photograph (Dr.)	1000
June 14—Heroes Three (Com.)	500
June 14—Mistakes Will Happen (Com.)	500
June 16—Van Bibber's Experiment (Dr.)	1000

ESSANAY FILM CO.

	Feet
Apr. 18—What Happened to Auntie (Com.)	800
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Two Mothers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 29—What a Woman Can Do (Dr.)	950
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 9—Holding His Own (Com.)	600
May 9—The Laundry Lady's Luck (Com.)	400
May 13—The Cow Puncher's New Love (Dr.)	1000
May 16—Wild Animals in Captivity (Edu.)	1000
May 20—"Alkali" Ike's Auto (Com.)	1000
May 23—The Atonement (Dr.)	1000
May 27—The Lucky Card (Dr.)	1000
May 30—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
June 3—The Infant at Snakeville (Dr.)	1000
June 6—His Friend's Wife (Dr.)	1000
June 10—Forgiven in Death (Dr.)	1000
June 14—The World's Most Daring Drivers	1000
June 17—The Trihe's Penalty (Dr.)	1000

GAUMONT
G. Kleine

	Feet
Apr. 4—The City of Amalfi in Italy	135
Apr. 8—The Atonement of Thais	865
Apr. 8—Italian Coast Scenes	135
Apr. 11—The Court Martial (Dr.)	725
Apr. 11—Picturesque Waterfalls in Northern Spain	275
Apr. 15—The Oppressor (Dr.)	640
Apr. 15—Jimmy the Fox (Com.)	380
Apr. 18—Lost Years	630
Apr. 18—Brest, a Fortified Harhor of France	370
Apr. 22—The Erring Son (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Romance of a Valet	510
Apr. 25—Old Folks	490
Apr. 29—A Priestess of Carthage	1060
May 2—The Young King of Rome	440
May 2—Tunis, Africa, the City of White	560
May 6—The Crusade of the Templars	1000
May 9—Three of a Kind	740
May 9—Spring-Heeled Jack	245
May 13—In the Days of Nero	1000
May 16—The Bankrupt	1000
May 20—Jimmie on a Lark	570
May 20—Shooting the Rapids	450
May 23—The Emperor's Return	795
May 23—Swans	205
May 24—The Gaul's Honor	582
May 24—On the Frontier of Thibet, Asia	420
May 27—Alone at Night	480
May 27—Jimmie the Sportsman	510
May 30—Science vs. Quackery	970
June 3—Mistrus:	985
June 6—The Drawn Curtain	735
June 6—Chrysanthemums	240
June 10—The Love Story of a Great Actress	1000
June 13—Jimmie, the Insurance Agent (C.)	640
June 13—The City of Florence, Italy	360
June 17—The King's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
June 20—His Leap to Liberty	648
June 20—Jiggers Buys a Watch Dog	337
June 24—The Ransom	980

KALEM CO.

	Feet
Apr. 5—By a Woman's Wit (Dr.)	995
Apr. 7—Big-hearted Jim (Dr.)	1,000
Apr. 12—In Old Florida (Dr.)	965
Apr. 14—Slim Jim's Last Chance (Dr.)	970
Apr. 19—The Phoney Prince (Com.)	990
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 26—A Night and a Day (Com.)	995
Apr. 28—Slahsides (Dr.)	1005
May 3—The Fiddle's Requiem (Dr.)	1000
May 5—When the Dead Return (Dr.)	990
May 10—The Loyalty of Don Luis Verdugo (Dr.)	980
May 12—The Carnival (Dr.)	1000
May 17—A Tragedy in Toyland (Dr.)	940
May 19—In Blossom Time (Dr.)	1000
May 24—Carrier Pigeons (Dr.)	970
May 26—Tangled Lives (Dr.)	1000
May 31—Bertie's Reform (Com.)	1005
June 2—Her Son (Dr.)	1000
June 7—Advertising for Mamma (Dr.)	1010
June 9—The Love of Summer Morn (Dr.)	990
June 14—Money in the Bank (Com.)	960
June 16—The Railroad Raiders of '62 (Dr.)	1000

LUBIN

	Feet
Apr. 10—Opportunity and the Man (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 13—Their Mothers-in-Law (Com.)	1000
Apr. 17—The Two Fathers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 20—Helping Him Out (Com.)	1000
Apr. 24—The Hoyden (Com.)	1000
Apr. 27—The Sheriff and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 1—A Fascinating Bachelor (Com. Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Belated Bridegroom (Com.)	1000
May 8—That Awful Brother (Com.)	1000
May 11—Drifting (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Angels of the Slums (Dr.)	1000
May 18—Her Humhle Ministry (Dr.)	1000
May 22—The Gamhler's Chance (Dr.)	600
May 22—A Hero—Almost (Com.)	400
May 25—A Good Turn (Dr.)	1000
May 29—The State Line (Dr.)	1000
June 1—A Game of Deception (Com.)	1000
June 5—The Feud (Com.)	635
June 5—The Sardine Industry (Indus.)	365
June 8—The Professor's Ward (Dr.)	1000
June 12—The Cook (Com.)	600
June 12—Athletic Carnival	400
June 15—Duke de Ribbon Counter (Com.)	1000

G. MELIES.

	Feet
Apr. 13—Jack Mason's Last Deal	1000
Apr. 20—An Unwilling Cowhoy
Apr. 27—The Reformation of Jack Rohin	1000
May 4—Mary's Strategem	1000
May 11—The Spring Round-Up	1000
May 18—The Redemption of Rawhide (Com.)	980
May 25—The Immortal Alamo	1000
June 1—In Time for Press	1000
June 8—Her Spoiled Boy	1000
June 15—When the Tahles Turned (Com.)	1000
June 22—The Kiss of Mary Jane (Dr.)	1000
June 29—The Honor of the Flag	1000

PATHE FRERES

	Feet
Apr. 26—The Rival Brothers' Patriotism (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 28—Enemies	833
Apr. 28—Pastime in Chili	160
Apr. 29—The Foster Father (Dr.)	950
May 1—Forgiveness is Sweet	754
May 1—Scenes Along the Mekong	240
May 3—Indian Justice	1000
May 5—Max is Forced to Work	670
May 5—Through Venice	295
May 6—Short-Lived Happiness (Dr.)	1000
May 8—My Daughter	748
May 8—Over Lucerne (Switzerland) in an Airship	253
May 10—The Ahernathy Kids' Rescue (Dr.)	771
May 10—The Ocean Harnessed	216
May 12—The Samourai's Expiation	640
May 12—American Beauties	351
May 13—Lucia's Broken Romance (Dr)	958
May 20—A Close Call
May 26—Semiramis
May 14—Leo Tolstoi
May 15—The Accomplice (Dr.)	836
May 15—Winter Sports at Lucerne	150
May 17—Billy in Trouhle (Com.)	950
May 20—Paul and Francesco	859
May 20—The Fastest Motor Boat in the World	50
May 22—Shooting the Rapids in Japan	150
May 22—Boxing Match—Astrier-Quendreux	823
May 24—The Heart of an Indian Maid (Dr.)	990
May 26—Semiramis	945
May 27—All for Money (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Love Proves Stronger Than Duty	689
May 29—Boh's Microscope	308
May 31—The Flag Didn't Rise (Dr.)	950
June 2—Shame on Max (Com.)	390
June 2—Loyal Love	604
June 3—His Baby's Doll (Dr.)	997
June 5—A Rough Diamond	751
June 5—The Scorpion	249
June 7—The Insubordinate Soldier (Dr.)	1000
June 9—Khamara	810
June 9—Miss Blum	174
June 10—A Broken Life (Dr.)	987
June 12—The Power and the Glory	764
June 12—Hawkins and His Dogs	203
June 14—There's a Woman in Town (Com.)	564
June 14—A Hippopotamus Hunt	423
June 16—Faust	1650
June 17—The Society Girl and the Gypsy (Dr.)	1000

SELIG

	Feet
May 5—Tournament of Roses
May 8—Lost and Won	1000
May 11—Back to the Primitive	1000
May 15—Discharging the Cook (Com.)
May 15—Dear, Kind Huhhy
May 18—The Still Alarm
May 22—The Herders
May 23—Stability vs. Nobility
May 25—Jim and Joe
May 29—A Novel Experiment	1000
May 30—One of Nature's Nohlemen	1000
June 1—The Rose of Old St. Augustine	1000
June 5—Where There's a Will, There's a Way, and The Great Nitrate of Soda Industry of Chile	1000
June 6—Montana Anna (Com. Dr.)	1000
June 8—The Visiting Nurse (Dr.)	1000
June 12—Ten Nights in a Barroom, Part I (Dr.)	1000
June 13—Ten Nights in a Barroom, Part II (Dr.)	1000
June 15—The Novice (Dr.)	1000

URBAN ECLIPSE
G. Kleine

	Feet
Mar. 8—Beautiful Wye Valley, England	300
Mar. 15—Redemption	508
Mar. 15—The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond	472
Mar. 22—The Money Lender	688
Nemours and the Banks of the River Loing, France	320
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 5—At the Old Mill (Dr)	675
Apr. 5—Making Bamhoo Hats in Java	325
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 19—Solving the Servant Prohlem (C.)	465
Apr. 19—In the Province of Kwang Tung, China	535
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
Apr. 26—The Last Edict of Francis II	875
Apr. 26—Scenes at Colomho, Ceylon	125
May 3—The Page's Devotion	790
May 3—Wismar, Germany	210
May 10—The Traitor (Dr.)	620
May 10—Ruhher-Neck Percy (Com.)	370
May 17—The Juggler's Vengeance (Dr.)	396
May 17—Fishguard Harhor, Wales	600
May 31—The Musketeer	588
May 31—The Sleuth	404
June 7—The Young Interne	750
June 7—Heligoland, an Isle of the North Sea	250
June 14—Sir John Falstaff	1000
June 21—Avenged	1000

VITAGRAPH

	Feet
Mar. 31—The Inherited Taint (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—A Repuhlican Marriage	996
Apr. 4—Unexpected Review (Com.)	660
Apr. 4—Hop Picking (Indust.)	335
Apr. 7—The Winning of the Stepchildren (Dr.)	965
Apr. 8—Winsor McCay (Com.)	650
Apr. 8—Boh Sledding	350
Apr. 11—The Wooing of Winifred (Com.)	988
Apr. 14—Though Your Sins he as Scarlet (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 15—Easter Bahies (Com. Dr.)	980
Apr. 18—The Leading Lady (Com.)	985
Apr. 21—The Trouhlesome Secretaries (Com.)	990
Apr. 22—The Spirit of the Light (Dr.)	995
Apr. 25—A Klondike Steal (Dr.)	998
Apr. 28—The Peace Offering (Com.)	998
Apr. 29—Piccolla (Dr.)	993
May 2—The Derelict Reporter (Dr.)	975
May 5—Soldiers Three (Com.)	1000
May 6—Hungry Hearts (Dr.)	985
May 9—His Mother (Dr.)	995
May 12—The Welcome of the Unwelcome (Com.)	1000
May 13—Prejudice of Pierre Marie (Dr.)	985
May 16—When a Man's Married (Com.)	1000
May 19—The Show Girl (Dr.)	990
May 20—Sunshine and Shadow (Dr.)	990
May 23—A Dead Man's Honor (Dr.)	1000
May 26—Tim Mahoney, the Scah (Dr.)	1000
May 27—The Fires of Fate (Dr.)	1000
May 30—Cupid's Chauffeur (Com.)	1000
June 2—The Ends of the Earth (Dr.)	1000
June 3—A Clever Fraud (Com.)	1000
June 6—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
June 9—The Sacrifice (Dr.)	1000
June 10—The Changing of Silas Warner (Dr.)	1000
June 13—The Trapper's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
June 16—Proving His Love (Dr.)	1000
June 17—Teaching McFadden to Waltz (C.)	1000

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"When you think of WESTERN think of FLYING A COWBOY FILMS"

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JUNE 12

"THE WITCH OF THE RANGE"

The apex of production endeavor in Western Dramatic subjects. A thrilling COWBOY Drama.

Scene from "The Witch of the Range"

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, June 15

"THE COWBOY'S RUSE"

"LAW AND ORDER ON BAR L"

Rollicking, dashing, laughable Cowboy Comedies. Two "Flying A's" on one reel. Both as funny as Cowboys can be.

Scene from "The Witch of the Range"

COMING

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JUNE 19

"THE YIDDISHER COWBOY"

"THE BRONCHO BUSTER'S BRIDE"

Two on one reel Flying A Cowboy Comedies

Scene from "The Cowboy's Ruse"

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JUNE 22

"THE HERMIT'S GOLD"

A Virile Drama of the West

GET TWO FLYING A COWBOY FILMS EACH WEEK

REGARDLESS

MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS

Scene from "Law and Order on Bar L"

American Film Mfg. Co.,

Bank Floor, Ashland Block
CHICAGO, ILLS.

(Continued from page 23)

"THE FORTUNES OF WAR"
"Imp" Release, June 22d

In response to Lincoln's call for troops, at the outset of the Civil War, Bill and Jim Clark leave for the front with the consent and blessing of their mother. The brothers take an affectionate farewell of their mother and sisters, Louise and Anna. Their regiment is reviewed by President Lincoln, and the soldiers march away with buoyant spirits and with loyal hearts.

The story reverts to the front, after a battle scene, within the Union lines, the brothers in the country of the enemy. They are doing picket duty, stationed on an outpost. They meet at the end of their rounds and Andrew Dowd, a rebel sharpshooter, comes upon them stealthily. He takes careful aim and shoots. Jim falls, apparently dead. Bill looks upon the body of his brother and is obsessed with rage and grief. Forgetting everything else in the knowledge that his brother has fallen, he dashes after the rebel. Dowd drops his gun and takes to his heels. Endowed with superhuman strength Bill gains on Dowd, bent on revenge, and the race is a highly exciting one.

With strength almost spent Bill reaches Dowd, but catches his foot under a root and falls. Dowd quickly turns and makes him his prisoner, securing his gun and covering him with the weapon. At this moment a detail of Union soldiers are seen coming toward them, and Dowd gives Bill to understand that if he will protect him, he will not shoot. Bill promises, and Dowd returns his gun. Bill threatens to shoot any one who lays a hand on Dowd, claiming him as his prisoner.

Dowd, a prisoner, repentant for shooting Jim, asks permission to nurse the brother, which is granted, and he gives him every attention.

An order is brought for him to be sent home, as he is convalescing, and at the same time Dowd is exchanged among other prisoners. Dowd expresses a desire to accompany Jim home safely, and he is given the privilege. Jim and Dowd take an affectionate leave of Bill and start North.

Arriving at the Clark home, the handsome young rebel makes a favorable impression, notwithstanding the fact that he is an enemy and is responsible for the condition of Jim.

Two weeks later Louise Clark and Andrew Dowd, the rebel, are discovered in the garden of the Clark grounds, confessing their love for each other—the old, old story.

Dowd takes leave of the Clark family and goes to join his regiment. He promises to return at the close of the war and claim Louise, and the scene of parting at the well is very affectionate.

The story reverts to the time of peace after the war, the Fourth of July. The family is reunited, Jim, Bill and Dowd having returned alive. Dowd and his wife, Louise, and their children, visit the Clark home. The children are given some fireworks, and they start to set them off. Jim goes to the flag-pole in the yard and commences to hoist the Union flag. As the stars and stripes flutter in the breeze, Dowd turns to his relatives and, with his arm around his wife, exclaims: "This is our flag now," they cheer the flag, shake hands with the former rebel, and the story closes with a display of fireworks to celebrate the occasion.

Another "Imp" Triumph!

Our Fourth of July feature film, to be released Thursday, June 22nd, is another glorious link in the powerful chain of attractions produced by the incomparable Imp. It is entitled "The Fortunes of War." It shows Lincoln and his cabinet in their war council, astonishingly good battle scenes in the Civil War, a beautiful love story and finally, years later, a Fourth of July celebration and a happy climax to the whole affair. If you don't get "The Fortunes of War" it is your own fault, Mr. Exhibitor. We have told you for weeks and weeks to hammer away at your exchange and get what you're paying for—TWO IMPS EVERY WEEK. Wake up! Go to it! Turn over! Demand!

SAY! HERE'S A FOOL FILM!

If you have a laugh concealed about your system, prepare to work it overtime when you see "All for a Big Order," the Imp release of Monday, June 19th. It is certainly one derned fool film, with a laugh in every picture and a giggle in every sprocket hole. A fat man gets into trouble, his wife helps him out and in the meanwhile your audiences will rock with laughter. Get this film or CHANGE YOUR EXCHANGE!

A BIG MONEY-MAKER FOR $5

Send us $5 and get one of these new Imp Lobby Displays QUICK! It will fairly drag passersby into your theatre. Exhibitors everywhere tell us their Imp Lobby Displays have paid for themselves over and over again. They are so big, so handsome, so high class that they catch the eye and stimulate interest and desire. Each heavy oak frame has ten heavily glassed openings containing splendid photographs of Imp performers. The backs of the openings are removable so that the photos are interchangeable. The frame and the ten photos are yours for a miserable $5. Send your order this minute before you forget.

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America.
102 W. 101st St., New York. Carl Laemmle, Pres.
Get your name on our mailing list. Important!

INDEPENDENT MOVING PICTURES CO. IMP AMERICA

Every Reel is a Heavy Champ

HEAVY IN SPLENDID SETTINGS---MILITARY CHARACTER---NOVELTY

RELEASED MONDAY, JUNE 19, 1911

YOU MAKE A POSITIVE MISTAKE IF YOU DON'T SEE IT!

MOLLY PITCHER

A MAGNIFICENT REALISTIC AND SOUL-STIRRING PRODUCTION

READ THIS LETTER AND ORDER NOW

RELEASE FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21st

FOR HER SIN

A highly dramatic intensely emotional and clearly presented story with a very unusual ending. Will reach the heart. Will touch the emotions.
Will please all.

RELEASE FOR MONDAY, JUNE 26th

WAR AND THE WIDOW

This is a treat of a picture. A widow living between the Union and Confederate forces falls in love with a young officer on each side, who meet at her home and try to capture each other. You can picture the complications.
Actually drawn from one of the most prominent pages of history.

The Champion Film Company Inc.

12 EAST 15th STREET

MARK M. DINTENFASS, Manager

STUDIO AND FACTORY
COYTESVILLE, N. J.

NEW YORK June 10th, 1911. 191

Mr. Exhibitor,
Dear Sir:-

Most of you have read my pereonal letters and you have seen the CHAMP Western and Military pictures that I havo featured. You will agree that each time that I have personally informed you of a special film that we were going to release, we furnished you with THE goods, and produced a real reel, and it came up to every assertion and to all the expectations of both the exhibitor and the exchange. Therefore, I take great pleasure in inporting this letter in the trade journal in the shape of an advertisement, so that it may be before every eye that looks with interest for progress in the moving picture industry and for films of quality.

We beg to draw your special attention to our release of June 19th, "MOLLY PITCHER." I personally aseure you it is the fineet and largest military production that has ever been produced by THE CHAMPION FILM CO., although we are the pioneers of absolutely correct military historic picturee. "MOLLY PITCHER" is not only a wonderfully etaged and stupendous production and the best picture that was shown on a curtain, but it is also educational.

I would conaider it a personal favor if you ask to see this film and I feel sure that you will agree with me that it is the kind of productions that you want for your exchangee and theatres.

Let me hear from you regarding special advertising matter.

Yours very truly,

THE CHAMPION FILM CO.

by Mark M. Dintenfass
Gen. Mgr.

PHOTOGRAPHED PERFORMANCE BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA TO THE RESCUE

EXTRAORDINARY TOPICAL RELEASE WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28th

Every phase of outdoor life and Scout sports and duties pictorially presented. A brave repulse of prowling Indians, and a forceful rescue of captured comrades by Scouts will be a source of delight and admiration. Inquire for Champ 3-color synopsis "14 x 21."

UPON SEEING THIS ANNOUNCEMENT SHOOT IN YOUR ORDER.

CHAMPION FILM CO.

MOTION PICTURE PRODUCTION ADMIRALS CORPORATION

MARK M. DINTENFASS, GEN. MGR. OFFICES—12 E. 15th ST., N. Y. C.

STUDIOS—COYTESVILLE-ON-THE-HUDSON, N. J.

JUN 20 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 24

June 17
1911

PRICE
TEN CENTS

SCENE FROM

CUPID AND THE COMET

SOLAX RELEASE, JUNE 21st

BULLETIN!

We remind you again to make immediate arrangements with your exchange to get an early booking on the Imp Fourth-of-July film, "The Fortunes of War" released Thursday, June 22. It is a triumph! If you want to know whether your exchange has bought it, ask us. By watching details of this nature you'll get the best service, believe us!

"THE LITTLE LEADER"

is the title of our Thursday, June 29th, release—one of the sweetest stories ever told. It is a high-class heart-throbber. Get it or change your exchange!

"LOVE IS BEST"

is the name of our Monday, June 26th, release. A girl leaves her village sweetheart to become a professional singer, but she finds that "Love Is Best." The story unfolds in beautiful shape and ends happily. Go after it!

USE YOUR NOODLE!—

Take advantage of every possible scheme to boost your receipts. For instance, stick a New Imp Lobby Display in front of your theater and watch it pull the people in. It is made of oak, 42 inches wide and 29 inches high. It has ten heavily glassed openings, each containing a fine photograph of an Imp stock company performer. Nothing to compare with it has ever been issued in the history of the trade. Exhibitors say it is the best they ever saw, and makes money for them every day. The whole thing is yours for $5.

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America, 102 W. 101st St., New York, Carl Laemmle, Pres. We want your name and address immediately.

"TICKLED TO DEATH"

The high mogul of the new Alhambra Theatre, Milwaukee, said to be the largest moving picture theatre in the world, opened his house last week with Laemmle films, Laemmle service and "Laemmle luck." He said:—"I am tickled to death with the class of films the Independents are turning out. And I am tickled to death with Laemmle films and Laemmle service." The packed house was fairly wild with enthusiasm. That new theatre is going to make a mint of money. Why don't you get in right by hooking up with Old Doc. Laemmle?

CARL LAEMMLE, President

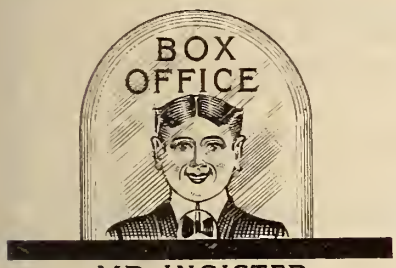
The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
515 Mulberry St., Des Moines, Iowa.

The biggest and best film renter in the world.

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

THE EYES OF ALL FILMDOM ARE ON



MR. INSISTER

THE JOLLY FELLOW IN THE BOX OFFICE
HIS EYES ARE ON

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

The Most Pretentious Patriotic Picture Ever Attempted—A Marvelous Filmization of the Greatest Event In American History—Out Tuesday, July 4. HE'S BOOKING IT NOW to Make Sure of Getting It After It's Released —ARE YOU?

RELEASED TUESDAY, JUNE 27

A Suffragette Love Story

Courting Across the Court

is a new wrinkle in film fiction of the love sort, carrying a Suffragette atmospherc as a distinct diversion. A clever woman lawyer wishes to bring her pretty daughter up in that profession. But the daughter thinks hetter of the profession of wife, especially as she had a choice for husband already made. Said choice was the result of the odd courting the title tells of. So, from title to trailer, you can wager the reel will hold your interest.

No. 223. Code word, Court.

RELEASED FRIDAY, JUNE 30

THE THANHOUSER CLASSIC

LORNA DOONE

BY R. D. BLACKMORE

When Blackmore wrote "Lorna Doone," neither he nor any of his day knew, thought or even dreamt of the motion picture. There did seem possible to him some things that the brains of later-day inventors gave to the world, but the moving picture—never! Still, from the all-action style of the story, you'd really think he had a moving picture scenario in mind when he wrote it. All he situations are highly moving, picturesque, and give thrill upon thrill, as though written to order to make an extra-startling release.

No. 224. Code word, Lorn.

THANHOUSER COMPANY
NEW ROCHELLE — NEW YORK

Quality Versus Quantity

WE HAVE NOT SOLD 1,000 SINCE JANUARY 1st—BUT THOSE WE HAVE SOLD MADE GOOD

We have the largest and most modern plant in this Country—But we make it a point to limit our quantity in favor of quality—That is why the Motiograph has grown so rapidly in popular favor.

We haven't found it easy to attain a reputation for high quality—But we have done it—And continue to live up to it.

We have learned to appreciate those who copy our productions and ideas—unconsciously, they most highly flatter us.

HAVE YOU A MOTIOGRAPH WATCH FOB?

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO., 564 West Randolph Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Solax

ARE YOU PROFITING BY OUR WEEKLY EXHORTATIONS?

EVERY WEEK WE ARE TELLING YOU TO BUY! BUY! BUY!
THE SOLAX FILM. AND WHY DO WE KEEP DINGING AWAY AT THIS?

BECAUSE WE KNOW AND SO DO OUR PATRONS KNOW

THAT OUR WEDNESDAY COMEDIES AND FRIDAY MILITARIES

REPRESENT THE

GREATEST POSSIBLE MEASURE OF FILM VALUE IN EXCHANGE

FOR YOUR GOOD MONEY

AND THAT THE SOLAX FILM REPRESENTS

THE ACME OF FILM PERFECTION

SIMPLE STATEMENTS THESE, BUT FINAL AND CONVINCING—WE LEAVE THE REST TO YOU

RELEASES

WED., JUNE 21st—	"CUPID AND THE COMET," and "JOHNNIE WATERS THE GARDEN,"	Split reel Comedy
FRIDAY, " 23rd—	"MARKED FOR LIFE,"	Drama
WED., " 28th—	"A FASCINATING WIDOW," and "A TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE,"	Split reel Comedy
FRIDAY, " 30th—	"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN,"	Military
WED., JULY 5th—	"STARTING SOMETHING,"	Comedy

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED
Sold exclusively through M. P. D. & S. Co.

© Cl.B245053

"The contents of this issue are copyrighted"

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan, 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City.
ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV | June 17, 1911 | Number 24

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

The unique scene that adorns the front cover of this issue is taken from the Solax release of Wednesday, June 21st, "Cupid and the Comet."

This high-class comedy playlet is replete with side-splitting situations and rollicking scenes. The cut we secured for our cover serves as an excellent example of the original and artistic details so often noticed in the Solax productions.

See synopsis in this issue for story of picture.

THAT CAMERA QUESTION

Edison's Patents Void

Referring to our last week's editorial regarding the use of various camera devices, we have been advised that our readers can now use any make of camera they prefer, either the Warwick, Prestwich, Prevost, Debrie, Gaumont, Jenkins, or any other make their individual preference may select. We understand that the decision of the Courts means a complete reversal of the Edison claims for the re-issue patent; that they now have no standing in Court owing to the patent being null and void. This fully agrees with what we wrote in 1907 on the question, viz., "that the claims made for the patents, and the patents themselves granted, were worthless, and that the Independents or any other man or body of men should be able to use any camera they prefer." We are glad to see that our prophecy is fulfilled.

We understand, also, that the M. P. P. Co., who are working (or claiming to work) under these patents are taking evidence very rapidly now, and several who have given their evidence have told us the general lines on which they are working; this evidence may come up for hearing somewhere around January or February, 1912, and, if good luck favors them, they may be taken in the fall of this year, but these suits or re-openings may drag on even as the other litigation has dragged on, so we think we are now safe in advising our readers to use whatsoever camera their hearts desire.

KINEMACOLOR

Kinemacolor is the coming force in Nickelodia. It is bound to make headway on its own merits. It is sweeping the entire world of moving pictures with its wonderful results. The columns of the Moving Picture News have repeatedly given information first hand of every progress made in the Art, and when we say Art, we mean Art because Kinemacolor has gone beyond the dreams of the most enthusiastic artists for great volume of color. When we look at some of the old paintings with their vivid coloring, the brilliant hues of some of the artists' conceptions, we have wondered where they obtained these colors from and how they used the magic palette to blend such colors on to a canvas, but all these fade into insignificance when we see on the screen the brilliant magical production of Kinemacolor. The vividness of these colors play so upon the eyes and brain that one almost stands in awe at the effect. Beautiful pictures in black and white are always a delight to anyone who loves photography, but the varied colors completely eclipse this. Anything that could be attempted or produced in black and white, or in the crude attempts to color with aniline dyes (not that we want in any way to detract from the beautiful work that has been done by hand by such colorists as Miss Martine, of New York, or the stencil coloring of Pathe Freres, of Paris) to see the two side by side gives one the idea of a master painter and his pupils' crude attempts to copy.

We were at the office of Kinemacolor this week and saw the unveiling of the Queen Victoria memorial, and in watching the effect upon the screen we were instantly transported back again to our old haunts in London. We saw before us vividly portrayed the first and second life guards with their brilliant scarlet and blue uniforms, the bodyguard of the King's own, the Dragoon guards with their splendid uniforms, and last, but not least, the good old Beef Eaters in their picturesque yet antiquated uniforms that make them so picturesque a quaintness to all visitors to the Tower of London. We suppose we ought to have mentioned King George V and his Queen, Mary, with their household attendants first, but the brilliant manner in which they were reproduced, in all the grandeur of their kingly uniforms and robes, is certainly a sight worth seeing, and we congratulate Messrs. Urban and Smith upon the wonderful progress made in these productions. We look forward with eager anticipation to the Coronation films, and if they only do half the justice that has been done to the unveiling of the Queen Victoria memorial (which was taken in a London fog and misty rain), we feel sure that the resulting effects will be far beyond dreams of any artist in his wildest imaginings.

Some of our readers seem to have an impression that the Coronation festivities will only take place the 22d and 23d of this month. This is not so, for quite forty days after the actual coronation, festivities will be taking place in all parts of the British Empire, its Dominions and Territories, and all these will be taken under the special license of Kinemacolor, and will be available in New York (and, of course, the United States) by every boat that leaves the English shores, so that our readers may look out for a feast of magnificence in Kinemacolor.

AN APPEAL

We want to make an appeal to the generous hearted in New York, and others outside who may feel so inclined. We want to present them a most deserving case for immediate assistance. It will be in the recollection of our New York readers who know Arthur Lewis, that he has been, and is, one of the most careful and capable operators who ever turned the handle of a moving picture machine. The Alien Act came as a great blow to him and threw him out of position. This was in January of this year; since then he has been waiting patiently for the repeal of the law which was promised to us many times. Arthur Lewis and his wife and family had saved quite a little nest egg, and could have carried on probably until the end of the year, with care, but his wife was taken sick and this swallowed up some $400 to $500 in doctor's fees. No sooner had he got over this, than he was called in to assist the proprietor of a nickelodeon when, scratching his thumb with a piece of iron, it brought on blood poisoning, and he has had to have the first digit of his thumb cut off. This, and the doctor's fees, have cost him another $400 to $500, with the result that he went back with his rent, and is threatened with a dispossess notice, although he has been living in this house for the past three years. (The old order changeth and the new order cometh in, in other words the old landlord who would have granted him an extension of time sells the house and the new agent cares for nothing but his rent,) and at this juncture Lewis stands in need of quick assistance. Will our readers respond? The News subscribes $25 and another friend $10. Who will follow suit?

Send all donations to News office made out to Arthur Lewis.

ALIEN OPERATORS

We are given to understand that the bill before the New York Assembly will be passed within the next two weeks. This deletes the clause "Must be a citizen of the U. S. A." This will be good news to many operators.

EXHIBITORS, WHAT ABOUT YOURSELVES?

Now that the Edison patents have been declared invalid, what are you exhibitors going to do? Are you still going to be so foolish as to pay $2.00 per week for that which gives you no protection, and what we have told you over and over again is being dragged out of your pockets by false pretenses. It's up to you!

THE DEMAND FOR EDUCATIONAL FILMS AND THE KIND MOST IN DEMAND

By Margaret I. MacDonald

During the controversy as to the popularity or unpopularity of educational films—the kind in demand, etc.—not only is the necessity for them becoming more acute, but a more devout appreciation of the educational film and its uses is being born.

As already intimated by our worthy editor, several applications for advice as to where to procure educational films have been sent in to him from the heads of different schools and colleges. Also many complimentary letters have been received voicing a large admiration for the firm stand which the Moving Picture News has taken in matters pertaining to the educational film and its manufacture.

With regard to the kind of films in demand for the schools and colleges, I would say from what I have gathered from educational authorities here, are of a class suited to the different branches of study, and also to lecture subjects. Pictures giving insight into the different industries of the world, pictures of typical scenes in different parts of the earth, making the student familiar with the habits and customs of his fellow man in other countries than his own. The character and habits of different forms of animal life—insects, birds, reptiles and so forth. Historical scenes and classical drama are also good, and will be found to be much in demand. All pictures with a touch of the morbid should be eliminated where children are concerned.

I was much touched by the story of a little twelve-year-old girl who had developed a mania for the moving picture show, and who became so morbid, being of an imaginative turn of mind, living over and over again in her little mind the scenes that were shown her in the pictures, that she actually attempted suicide, fancying that her life was filled to overflowing with troubles. The case was a very pathetic one, and though a very exceptional one, it should serve as a warning. Why not follow the example of Felix Adler, who dresses a story in language fit to be grasped and assimilated by the child mind, leaving out as far as possible the unpleasant parts, or, if necessary to use them, dressing them in a more pleasing garb, and finding a reason and a moral for each point. In the preparation of pictures for the schools why not follow as nearly as possible the plan outlined by him. The pictures most susceptible to a morbid trend, which might be used in connection with school work would be scenes from history, and heavy drama—like Charles Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare," the story can be simply told.

For use in theaters, scenes of travel, industries, zoology, scientific subjects made entertaining, and many, many other themes too numerous to enumerate.

At the present time the Trust pictures may be holding the palm both with regard to mechanical work, and subject matter. But it must be remembered that the manufacture of Independent films is practically in its infancy compared with the Trust, and that the Independent film is steadily progressing, and bids fair to rival its mammoth brother.

One of the most wonderful discoveries of the age has recently been made in connection with the talking picture. After much experimenting with a phonographic device there has at last been found that a rare mineral, called selenium, which belongs to the sulphur group, and whose electrical conductivity is greatly increased by exposure to the light, has the power of harmonizing light and sound waves to such a degree of perfection as to cause the sound to be in simultaneous synchronizing with the corresponding pictorial production. No longer will the device utter a laughing sound when it should weep, or vice versa, but all shall work together in harmony through the discovery of this simple little secret. Another device will be worked on a continuous steel band, of which we shall have more to say in an early issue.

I feel sure that the increasing demand for educational films must sooner or later cause a reaction in manufacturing circles, and the cry which now arises from the throats of the many interested ones, of "Where shall we obtain educational films suitable to our needs?" will be silenced by a satisfactory opening up of an avenue of supply.

The forward movement is one strong and steady and compact, and warranted to withstand any attack which may be made upon it, or upon its instigators.

"KINEMACOLOR"

Mr. Charles Urban, in addition to his delightful "Kinemacolor" animated pictures in the actual tints of nature, at the Scala, is presenting a short but intensely dramatic playlet, called "Before the Dawn," an Eastern military episode presupposing a similar state of affairs in the East to-day to that which existed during the Mutiny in 1857. The book is by Mr. George Sheldon, who has also composed the incidental music, and the piece, which is in the first part of the program, is strongly cast. Of course, in this busy Coronation season, the inclusion of fresh topical films is frequent, while standing features include Sunstar's Derby, Empire Day in Hyde Park, The Birth of Flowers, and the magnificent scenes of His Majesty unveiling the Victoria Memorial. On Saturday, exclusive pictures of the Richmond Horse Show will be taken, a special feature being made of the jumping in pairs.

THE LONDON FILM FIRE

Questions in Parliament

(By our English correspondent)

Full details of the fire which occurred at the Globe Film Co.'s premises in Cecil Court, London, I gave in the last issue of the Moving Picture News. Through the courtesy of the Hana Studio, Ltd, I am now able to give a photograph of the premises after the conflagration. It will be noticed that the Globe Film Co. have removed to premises which are shown in the extreme right of the photograph, and which were lately occupied by the Tyler Film Co., they having removed to new premises in Charing Cross Road, W. C. The fire in "Flicker Alley" seems likely to lead to trouble so far as the location of the film trade in this narrow court is concerned. The matter has formed the subject of debate in Parliament, whilst a petition is being prepared for presentation to the London County Council asking them to take steps for the protection of residents within the film trade area. The following questions have been addressed to the president of the Board of Trade by Sir Wm. Bull: "Whether he is aware that this is the third film fire which has taken place in the St. Martin's Lane district within the last twelve months; whether his attention has been drawn to the number of photographic stores in this district; and whether, in view of the fact that there are at least seven theaters, not to mention the National Portrait Gallery, and the National Gallery within a radius of a few hundred yards, as well as a kinematograph film store in the immediate vicinity of the Alhambra Theater, he is prepared to take additional steps for the protection of the public in case of fire." It is strange that a film fire is always the subject of so much comment by the uninformed public. Statistics will show, and a reference was made in my notes a short time back, as to the very small number of film fires which had occurred during the year 1910 in this city. The number has been decreasing month by month during this year, whilst the premises occupied by the various film traders are becoming more commodious and safer in every respect. Although the danger to property during the fire in Cecil Court was considerable, there is no reason why any of those persons who received injuries should have sustained them. The mansions which are adjoining the Globe Film Co.'s premises are provided with adequate means of exit, and, had it not been for the suddenness of the outbreak, the occupants of the flats would, no doubt, have been able to escape by the exits provided for that purpose.

* * *

Keep an eye on the forthcoming releases by the "British and Colonial" Co. This is a concern that is going to do big things in the near future. The principals, Messrs. McDowell and Bloomfield, are members of the Old Guard of the trade, and they have advanced rapidly already from a very modest beginning, until new darkrooms and studios have become necessary and have just been acquired. "B. & C." quality is unbeaten on this side, particularly in "topicals," and now they are about to stage on a scale which should produce some real headliners.

* * *

"Princess Clementina," Barker's film of H. B. Irving, has only two vacant dates left. Well, G.'s courageous policy has thus been justified again. There's another surprise on the way of which you shall have early notice.

* * *

An interesting aviation film is that depicting Mr. A. J. Balfour's flight with Mr. Claude Grahame White at Hendon Flying Ground (N. W. London), and the War Office tests arranged by the Parliamentary Aerial Defence Committee. The film was obtained by Messrs. Jurys, by special arrangement with Mr. Grahame White. Fine views are offered of the Premier, Lord Haldane, and Mr. A. J. Balfour, and the film should prove of great and instructive interest.

L. W. D.

CARL LAEMMLE GONE TO EUROPE

Carl Laemmle, the hustling president of the Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America, sailed Tuesday on the Kaiser Wilhelm for the continent to stay several months. He was accompanied by Mrs. Laemmle, their children and governess. During his stay in Europe Mr. Laemmle will spend considerable time in Berlin, where the foreign offices of the Imp Company are located, and he will combine business with pleasure during his stay abroad.

There was a large delegation of moving picture and music men at the dock to wish the party bon voyage, and Mr.

Laemmle was pleasantly remembered by his employees with a large basket of fruit and floral tributes to show the esteem in which he is held by those with whom he is associated in his vast interests in New York. Last Wednesday evening a pleasant party foregathered at the studio on 56th Street to take a formal farewell of Mr. Laemmle. It included the business forces of the Imp Company, the Laemmle Music House and the Imp Stock Company. A reception was held on the stage, concluding with a banquet, at which time there was speech-making in response to toasts. Moving and still pictures were taken of the event, which was a most enjoyable one.

Mr. Laemmle is one of the most prominent amusement caterers in this country, being at the head of the Imp Company, the Laemmle House of Music and the Laemmle Film Exchange, which latter concern has headquarters in nearly all the large cities of the country. He will remain in the old world until autumn and will take occasion to spend considerable time visiting his birthplace in Germany. His itinerary will include all the principal cities of Europe and he expects to enlarge his scope of operations across the big pond.

SOLAX COMPANY

WHAT IT IS DOING AT THE STUDIO

The activity of the Solax studio these days is remarkable. The grounds present the appearance of a cross between a military encampment and Luna Park. In one corner of the vast enclosure M. Menessier, the versatile and capable artist in charge of the scenic department, may be seen, together with his corps of helpers, busy as the proverbial bee, putting together and painting new and elaborate scenic effects for Solax pictures. In another portion of the grounds a group of carpenters are erecting buildings to be used for various purposes. Seated within the property room, Mr. Marvin, the property master, surrounded by a perfect arsenal of weapons, is digging out ammunition to be used in the next big military picture; his accomplished wife, in charge of the wardrobe room, is engaged in putting together, with the aid of her assistants, wonderful creations in costumes, and the hum of her busy sewing machine keeps time with the rap of the carpenters' hammers. Out upon the lawn one of the assistant property men is testing out a Gatling gun, which has just arrived from the Bannerman arsenal, and the fusillade of shots sound most like the rapid explosion of the gasoline engine with the muffler cut out. A bugle call is heard from outside the grounds and trusty Dave Laney, the Solax watchman, always on the job, hastens to open the gates and in files a troop of cavalry, and right soldierly looking fellows they are, too, every one an ex-cavalryman bearing in his pocket his honorable discharge but now working in the Solax army. The men line up, are dismissed and a rush is made for the lunch counter. Activity ceases for the time being to enable the myriad of troopers and employees to refresh the inner man, only to be resumed in the afternoon, for the activities incident to the production of the tremendous military pictures which the Solax Co. is now putting out are endless and work must go on and on. After lunch the troopers are again lined up and facing them we see some fifty or sixty Indians assumed to be their opponents in a formidable war which will be carried on upon the Solax farm about a mile distant from the studio.

MME. BLACHE AND MR. MELVILLE LEAVING STUDIO GROUNDS TO DIRECT THE TAKING OF A MILITARY PICTURE

All is in readiness, the troopers are at attention, the Indians lined up after their own peculiar fashion, Property Master Marvin has seen that they are all equipped with arms and ammunition when the man who is to take this bunch of unleavened material and mold it into one of the pictures of absorbing interest which have gained so much popularity appears upon the scene, mounts his horse and they depart for the field of action. Arriving there they find that the scenic artist has gone before, the Indian camps are in readiness, the stockade has been erected and stands awaiting the assault of the Indians and its gallant defence by the troops.

Scenic spots adapted to the requirements of the particular picture being made have been selected by the Solax scouts who scour the country daily on motor cycles looking for the best available localities for picture purposes.

MME. BLACHE LEAVING THE STUDIO TO SCOUT FOR LOCATIONS

All in all it is hard to realize the tremendous amount of work, expense and attention to detail which is being devoted to the making of the Solax product these days. It is a case of seeing and believing, but the end justifies the means, for the Solax military pictures are unquestionably the present hit of the moving picture trade and it is the aim of the Solax Co. not to rest content with even their present degree of excellence, but by hard work and the liberal expenditure of money to improve them, have them become better and better all the time to the end that exchanges purchasing Solax releases may know they are getting the very best moving picture product available.

MANAGING DIRECTOR MELVILLE EXPLAINS HOW IT IS DONE

MADAME ALICE BLACHE
President of Solax Company

To the indefatigable industry, the experience, enterprise and progressiveness of this little lady is due the remarkable success which has been achieved by the Solax Company during the comparatively short time it has been in business. Starting at a time when competition from older firms was a thing to be reckoned with, firm, however, in the knowledge of real ability and with a foundation of experience which few of the others had been able to bring into the business, at least on the independent side, Madame Blaché launched the Solax Company and within the short period of eight months has successfully piloted it through the tempest of troubles incident to the manufacture of moving picture films into the safe harbor of two releases per week and large sales.

The stupendousness of this successful achievement can only be realized by those conversant with the multiplicity of difficulty connected with the management of a moving picture studio and would indicate that the one who had successfully accomplished this must possess exceptional executive as well as technical ability.

To realize this fully one has only to remain by the side of Madame Blaché during the course of the day's routine at the Solax studio and note her comprehensive grasp of detail and the concise and businesslike way in which she conducts the affairs of the Solax Company. In the early morning you will find her seated at her desk in her office passing upon scenarios, in conference with her directors and other members of her staff, mapping out the plan for the day's work. Next we find her in the factory, alert and keen-eyed to note every detail of the work being performed there, then to the studio where scenes are being rehearsed, a word of advice or suggestion given to the director, which is always graciously received because it is inevitably right and for the benefit of the picture being produced, then back to the office where a stack of correspondence is rapidly handled and letters dictated to members of her business staff with reference to matters of business policy, then perhaps will follow a conference with the scenic artist, after which one of the photographers would likely claim her attention for some instruction which he may require, and so on ad lib.

MADAME ALICE BLACHE

Despite the tremendous demands made upon her time as the head of the Solax, Madame Blaché has written and staged practically all of the big comedy hits which have been featured by the Solax as their Wednesday release.

Through all the intricacies of her busy days, however, Madame Blaché can always find time to give a friendly word of advice or aid to those who seek it. While she possesses to a remarkable degree business ability of the highest order, this has not by any means been secured at the expense of her womanly characteristics, for a more likable lady than the president of the Solax Company would be hard to find.

The one big advantage which the Solax Company has had since its conception has been the knowledge of moving picture technique possessed by Madame Blaché and which has resulted in its product excelling both from the photographic and artistic viewpoint. This was acquired during twelve years' connection with the Gaumont factory in Paris, which resulted in Madame Blaché being placed in charge of this mammoth business enterprise. It is doubtful if any other woman has held a post of such supreme responsibility and importance in any commercial enterprise, and the end is not yet; young, energetic, capable, gifted with the ability and the will to accomplish big things, with her successful enterprise going forward by gigantic strides, the dominant figure in the moving picture world may one day be a woman, and that woman Madame Alice Blaché.

MR. WILBERT MELVILLE
Managing Director of Solax Company

One of the most familiar figures around the Solax Grounds is that of the Managing Director, Mr. Wilbert Melville. He originated the idea of the military pictures which the Solax Company are now producing, and but for the tremendous success with which they have met, could almost find it in his heart to wish he had not done so, for it has placed upon his devoted shoulders a burden of work that keeps him eternally at it night and day. Practically all of the military pictures have been written by Mr. Melville, and, of course, they are all produced under his personal direction. Fortunately for the Solax, their director has had a degree of military training which shows in these pictures, for every item of military detail is accurate to the last degree. Mr. Melville served as a Captain in the Spanish-American War, and previous to that had at various times been connected with different militia organizations.

A prolific newspaper writer for years, an expert photographer and an experienced stage director, he possesses to an unusual extent the qualities calculated to make an ideal moving picture director. He has been with the Solax Company from the time it made its introductory bow and the reception accorded the pictures written and produced by him has been most gratifying. But even better things are to come. Whisper—Melville has some good things — some mighty good things—up his sleeve. Watch out for them, for he promises, on his sacred word of honor, that they will be something which will cause those interested to stand up and take notice. What would you say to a battleship—a full grown battleship—hundreds of marines — several troops of real cavalry—a squadron of artillery—but never mind, the time is not ripe and the cat must not be let out of the bag prematurely — only look out — watch. And, too, you may soon expect some new faces of exceptionally clever people in the Solax pictures.

Tinting and Toning

The Solax Company were one of the first to tint and tone their films throughout, and in almost every instance the film is completely toned and tinted. In this respect they have been remarkably successful and succeeded in adding an embellishment which has been greatly admired by the trade.

This lends to an American film the beautiful finish so much admired and appreciated in some of the prominent foreign films.

In this connection we might say that the mechanical perfection of the Solax films has been an important factor in the remarkable success these films have had in the comparatively short time they have been on the market.

We are informed by the Solax Company that they do guarantee the mechanical perfection of their films in every respect.

The guarantee is backed up by one of the best-equipped plants on this continent. We were completely surprised in our recent visit to the Solax plant to find not only a large collection of fireproof buildings with big glass studios, but the spacious enclosed grounds laid out by a landscape gardener, which gives the impression of a gentleman's country estate.

Some idea of this can be obtained from the few photographs we print in this issue. We enjoyed so much the outdoor aspect of this plant that in coming away we could not help but feel that we had been entertained at a large country residence.

We are now firmly convinced that this company have justly earned the reputation for producing films of the standard they have striven for, and in future releases, judging from what we have seen, we know this high standard of excellence will be maintained.

SOME SOLAX PLAYERS

BURTON L. KING

VINNIE BURNE

BLANCHE CORNWALL

ROMAINE FIELDING

Readers of the News have learnt about the above very happy family quartet. They have represented in pictures all phases of emotions notable in Solax productions. As the Sun is in the four cardinal points in the day, so the above points represent the Orbit of Sol-ax.

"THE DEVIL IN A TIN CUP"

Solax—May 24.

Seldom does a comedy film cause more genuine, hearty laughter than this did when seen by the reviewer. It is quite as broad as most European films which have been commented on in these columns so forcibly, and yet there is a cleanliness about this bit of horse play which sets it above the usual burlesque. In it a clerk play a telegraph operator and, in order to enter the office by attaching a live wire to the drinking water tank, to which the drinking cup is attached by a chain. The result can well be imagined. Many types of comedy characters are introduced, and the end is one general "rough house," in which all heap revenge on the perpetrators of the trick.

Their release of June 16th, entitled "A Daughter of the Navajos," is a good example of the painstaking care and thorough knowledge with which the different subjects are dealt with, and it can be safely said that a truthful interpretation of the subjects in hand, and that realistic touch exhibited, it would be difficult to produce a scene that would rival this subject in any respect.

NEVER TOO LATE TO MEND."

Solax—June 2

his plays. The offering is staged largely in the open, and for a thrilling photo play with lots of good, fast riding, some shooting and military action, it is highly commendable. Its story is within the bounds of likelihood and is readily followed by the viewer.

Nearly a Hero (Solax, May 10).—Here is a bright, snappy farce, well constructed and well produced, as the humorous values are all brought out strongly "Across the Mexican Line" (Solax).—This story is based upon the imbroglio in Mexico. It details a love story, coupled with the thrilling adventures of a woman spy. Apparently the Mexican general did not get the information he wanted, and the prisoner was recaptured by the American troops. The climbing of a telegraph pole and sending a message from its top is a novel stunt which pleased the audience. The situations are also interesting.

"A MARVELOUS COW."

Solax—May 31.

An amusing comedy, which scored a big laughing hit when seen by the writer. A

"Bridget, the Flirt" (Solax).—It is a horse-play farce, but it's very funny. It's rough, but we wouldn't call it coarse. It kept the house laughing.

THE COUNT OF NO ACCOUNT. Solax. Released April 26. Full length. A very amusing story full of laughs and display some very good feature. Com-

"O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursilves as ithers see us."

LUNCH TIME ON THE STUDIO GROUNDS

TEN MINUTES BETWEEN THE ACTS

Solax Makes an Offer

An especially pretty and valuable watch fob. Heavy gold plate with best enamel, mounted on handsome leather.

The Solax Company have a plan of distributing these among all exhibitors and operators who will attest to having used ten Solax pictures in their theater, and write a brief criticism of the best ones, also offer any suggestions for improvement in the Solax films. We have seen this fob and recommend all exhibitors and operators to write Solax at once, as they are certainly very handsome.

Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," announces that he has accepted the agency for an Underwriter's Approved Fire Extinguisher for Motion Picture Theaters and Airdomes, and he has already equipped a number of installations with his device. The King's Highway Airdome of Brooklyn, N. Y., which has installed 540 of the Hallberg Open Air Chairs, have also purchased from him a Powers No. 6 M. P. Machine together with Hallberg Automatic Economizer.

8 Engagement Extraordinary.
The Great

FREGOLI,

The Most Remarkable Actor in the world.

Exhibiting the most versatile and inimitable ability for extraordinary characterization and play of voice.

This evenings entertainment will be arranged as follows:

1. TRIO OF THREE HIGHWAYMEN. From the Spanish Operetta "La Gran Via," creation by Fregoli.
2. COMIC ECCENTRIC SONGS.
3. THE MUSICAL LESSON.
4. THE LIGHTNING WAITER.

Impressions in one act: Comic, Eccentric and Characteristic, creation by Fregoli in which he impersonates the whole cast of six characters.

CAST.

Prologue, Charles, waiter, Miss Ives, a coquette, Mr. Pacifico, a countryman, Mrs. Pacifico, his irate wife, Antonio, a street musician, The Prompter — LEOPOLD FREGOLI

ARGUMENT.—Fregoli appears before the audience and explains that owing to the success of his many works he has written another, but not yet being quite familiar with it he will use a prompter to assist him, then and there, and asks the indulgence of his hearers. He retires and the curtain raises. Mr. Pacifico, an old countryman just in town for business, leaves his wife with a relative, and just to spend an hour, he walks into a restaurant renowned for its lady patrons, hoping to make some conquest. In fact he sees a stylishly dressed coquette, who also notices him, and guessing his intentions, starts for her prize. The waiter, quick as lightning, serves everything that will excite the old man and raise his hill. Besides some street musicians are put out by the waiter. While Pacifico is at the height of the enjoyment of his dinner and greatly elated over his conquest, his wife enters and there follows an outbreak of jealousy which would have finished in a tragedy if Fregoli had not found the best way to end it.

5 THE MEDALION.

An astounding creation by Fregoli, which is repeated by special request. In it he impersonates 15 different characters, including the leading of the orchestra in the various guises of Wagner, Verdi, Rossini, Mascagni, Breton, Gomes and other celebrities.

N.B. During Fregoli's engagement at the Olympia he will present an extensive repertory of plays and operas. They are his own creations absolutely, having even written the music himself. The full repertory will be announced later.

10 WEBER & FIELDS
The German Senators, in "English as She is Speaked-d-d-it."

3 TILLER TROUPE,
EIGHT FAMOUS DANCING GIRLS, FROM THE DRURY LANE THEATRE, LONDON.
This week new dance creation "Woodland Gambols."

4 HERR TECHOW
With his marvellous Performing Cats. Exclusive engagement.

2 CONSTANZ & IDA
Balancers.

9 AVOLO TRIO
Xylophone Virtuosos.

The latest electrical wonder of the age.

11 THE EIDOLOSCOPE

1. WHIRLPOOL RAPIDS, NIAGARA FALLS, Current running 30 miles an hour.
2. FIFTH AVENUE EASTER SUNDAY MORNING, in front of Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt's house.
3. DRILL OF THE ENGINEER CORPS, of the Mexican Army.
4. WRESTLING MATCH, between Duncan Ross and Eddie Dunn. Two rounds.

First presentation on any stage of the original

5 MARBLESQUES

COPY OF PROGRAMME AT OLYMPIC MUSIC HALL, NEW YORK, MAY 19, 1896

Noting in recent issues of your paper matter pertaining to the early days of cinematography, I think the enclosed program will rank among the earliest in New York City. It is a page from my collection of theater programs. I saw this show on May 19, 1896, but the pictures were shown a few weeks sooner. This was the attraction that took me to this theater and I was a close follower of theatrical novelties in those days. I believe that no pictures were shown to the New York public before these were announced.

I enclose stamped envelope for return of my program.

Yours very truly,
F. Bullenkamp,

P. S. The Eidoloscope pictures appeared on the screen less than half the size of the present displays.

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E. E.

(f) The friction compensator is required to overcome the initial friction of the moving parts. It is apparent that if this initial friction were not compensated for, some of the driving torque of the meter would be used in overcoming it and the meter would not rotate at very light load. This would render the registration very inaccurate on light loads.

As most meters are usually running at light load it is highly important that an efficient light load adjustment or friction compensator be provided. This usually consists of providing a constant torque adjustable to the exact value of the frictional torque and entirely independent of the load on the meter. At the same time this compensating torque must not cause the moving element to rotate or "creep" without current in the series coil.

(g) The power factor adjustment is necessary to make the phase angle between the shunt and series field components exactly 90 degrees with unity power factor in the metered circuit. Owing to the resistance and iron loss in the shunt field circuit that field is not shifted quite 90 degrees with respect to the voltage. Yet exact quadrature is necessary to make the strength of the resultant field, and consequently the rotor speed, proportional to the power factor, as explained in the discussion of the field producing element.

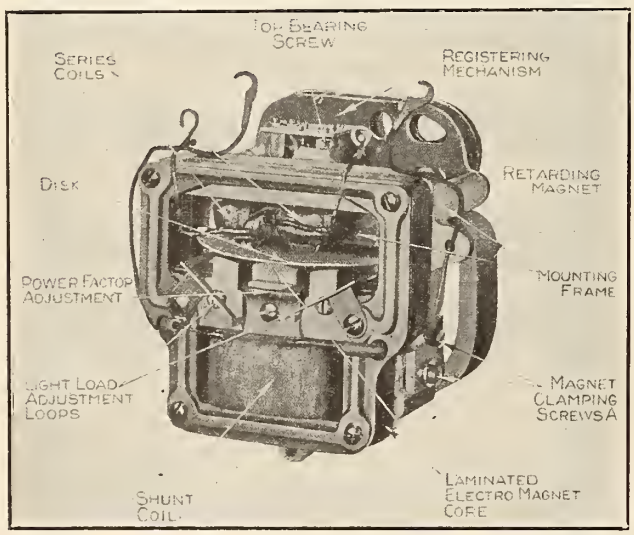

FIG. 40. WESTINGHOUSE A. C. METER WITH CASE REMOVED

The power factor adjustment usually consists of a short-circuited loop enclosing part or all of the shunt field flux. This loop acts like the secondary of a transformer. The flux induces a current in it which, acting with the current in the shunt coil, produces a slightly lagging field. By shifting the position or the resistance of the short-circuited loop the lag may be so adjusted that the shunt field flux is in exact quadrature with the voltage. It should be noted, however, that this adjustment makes the meter correct at or near one frequency only. This feature is not objectionable if reasonable accuracy is maintained within the limits of normal variation of frequency.

A frequency adjustment is often desirable, particularly for systems operating at 133 cycles. Most makes of meters are provided with means for changing the adjustment from 133 to 60 cycles in case of change in the system.

(h) The case and cover should be absolutely dust and bug proof, to avoid damage to bearings, insulation and moving parts, and should, of course, be provided with means for sealing. Terminal chambers so arranged that the cover of the meter element need not be removed in connecting up are an important feature, particularly in meters that require no adjustment at installation, as they prevent entrance of dust into the main meter chamber and preserve the manufacturer's guarantee of initial accuracy. A window through which the rotation of the disk can be observed in checking should be provided for the same reason.

Torque, Weight, Friction and Accuracy

In the discussion of the friction compensating element it was seen that the rotation of the meter is caused by two distinct torques, the varying meter torque, dependent on the power in the circuit, and the constant torque adjusted to compensate the initial friction. The friction at all speeds is not exactly the same as the initial friction, and therefore the friction compensating torque may be in error a few per cent at high speeds. If the compensating torque is small compared with the driving torque this small error percentage is negligible in its effect on accuracy. The smaller it is the greater will be the accuracy at all loads. And, therefore, as the compensating torque is adjusted to balance the initial friction, the initial friction should be small compared with the driving torque.

A high driving torque and low initial friction are therefore desirable, but any increase in the driving torque which necessitates an increase in friction is obviously useless. The desirable feature of a meter is high ratio of torque to friction. As the friction is practically proportional to the weight of the rotor element, in meters having the same form of bearing the ratio of torque to weight of rotor gives an approximation to the ratio of torque to friction, but the design of bearing should not be overlooked. A meter having a high torque obtained by using a thick and consequently heavy rotor disk, often has a lower ratio of torque to weight than another with lower torque, and is consequently likely to be less accurate over a given range. Furthermore, the heavy disk is a distinct disadvantage because it produces more wear on the bearings and thus reduces the life.

Meter Transformers

To measure the energy in alternating-current circuits of high voltage or carrying heavy currents it is necessary to use transforming devices, as without them the meter would have to be very large in order to have sufficient carrying capacity and insulation. The function of meter transformers is, therefore, to reduce the current and voltage to values that can be conveniently handled in meters. When transformers are used, slight errors in accuracy are introduced, but with well designed transformers these errors are negligible.

Will S. Rising, who has been in Bermuda producing pictures for Yankee Film Co., returned to find that some "Film Thief" had stolen two reels of his special picture, "Asbury Park Baby Parade," from his talk-o-phone offices in Fourth avenue. He advertises a reward for information in this issue.

OUR MUSIC DEPARTMENT

Much comment has taken place over the manner in which the music accompanying moving pictures is rendered,—and but few practical suggestions have been made as to what should be played,—when to play it, and the proper manner in which to play it. It is the intention of this department at all times to offer practical suggestions, in hopes of being able to stimulate and strengthen the music and help uplift the profession, so far as it lies within our power, and we at all times invite questions which will be answered through our columns, by addressing "Music Editor, care Moving Picture News, 30 W. 13th Street, New York, N. Y."

It is indeed surprising to note how many managers are improving the music used in their theaters,—by adding sound effects and orchestras,—or if they are only using a pianist to secure the best obtainable. There was a time not far past when managers thought that any kind of music was suitable, so long as it was there, but that class of managers are now in the minority and they are beginning to realize that good music properly rendered will produce more business, while poor musicians and poorly rendered music tend to cheapen the theater and lessen the attendance.

The classes and variety of subjects are numberless, but can be classed as follows:—Comic, scenic, dramatic and industrial. The dramatic includes all pictures wherein there is a serious train of thought and wherein the characters enact a story complete in each and every detail to such an extent that it is an absolute necessity to have the proper music at all times properly rendered in order to lend to the picture the air of realism desired by an exacting audience, as the eye as well as the ear desire that sympathy that can be produced by music alone. An emotional scene demands proper shading and care and you must observe every detail in the selection of music for them in order that you may heighten all of the dramatic situations.

It must always be borne in mind that the pictures are the show, the pictures and the music are what the patrons pay to see and hear, and every effort must be made to see that they are at all times satisfied.

The theme of the picture in its entirety is what is to be followed and studied throughout in order to secure all advantages possible, it is the character of the picture as a whole that is to be watched, but at the same time never at any time must you lose sight of any little instance that can be used to any advantage.

A good library of music is absolutely indispensable,—you should have music to fit any situation at any time,—marches, waltzes, andantes, intermezzos, character music to be used in the different pictures that appear from time to time that require them, such as Mexican, Spanish, Chinese, etc. The late popular music can also be used to great advantage in comedies and sentimental pictures,—but you must be sure that the music is at all times in keeping with the general character of the production. Religious as well as Indian and Oriental music is used a great many times and your library should contain enough of all of them so as to avoid repetition too often, as the same music, no matter how well played, will, if used too much, prove to be very monotonous to the regular patrons of the theater, who like new music as well as new pictures.

You should have a good supply of "dramatic music," as it is in demand at all times for "hurrys," "agitato," "sneeky music," etc. Pictures can be virtually ruined by inappropriate music, whereas the correct music would have given a sense of great pleasure.

You can use your "concert" pieces to better advantage in scenic pictures as they do not require "working up,"—but I would advise that you do not use them in any other class of pictures, as the changes are too varied and abrupt to allow you to do justice to the music, the picture or yourself.

In case you are in doubt at any time where you can obtain any of the music or effects (traps), or desire to know what music to use, let us know, as we are ready at all times to help you; don't be afraid to ask, that is what we are running this department for, it is for your information and good, and we want you to feel free at all times to use it as much as you desire; but we would suggest that if you desire a prompt reply and do not care to wait for the regular issue of the "News," in order to have your inquiry answered through our columns, that you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and we will then take care of your inquiry at our very earliest convenience.

In our next number we will go more into detail in regard to incidental music, etc.

Lancaster, Pa.—Contractor Joseph P. Breneman, of this city, was awarded the contract for the new Colonial Opera House to be erected at North Queen and Chestnut Streets.

Sioux City, Ia.—The Lytle Construction Co. will make improvements to the Orpheum Theater to cost $6,000.

Paris, Tenn.—The contract for the new Dixie Theater has been awarded to Richards & Frazier. Will cost $25,000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Geo. A. Werner is taking estimates on a one-story theater to be built at 2709-15 Columbus Avenue.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Penn Building Co. has a contract for the erection of a theater at Germantown and Chelton Avenues.

Madison Wis.—A new Orpheum Theater will be erected on Monon Avenue to cost $60,000. Wiley Bros., of Chicago, have the contract.

Fort Plain, N. Y.—John Metzer, of Herkimer, has the contract for the erection of a new theater here to cost $15,000.

Cleveland, Ohio.—A. Bolasny will erect a new $30,000 theater at E. 55th Street and Pierce Place.

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Two Yankee Surprises

MONDAY, JUNE 26

"HIS ROMANCE"

How a jealous woman's duplicity was foiled

FRIDAY, JUNE 30

"THE ANGELUS BELL"

An inspiring sermon on the simple life

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

344 East 32d St., New York City

ANDREWS PICTURES, Ltd.

Have been granted some exclusive positions for cinematographing THEIR MAJESTIES' CORONATION PROCESSION on June 22nd next.

Approximate length 650 feet. Code word, "Corona"

Also the ROYAL PROCESSION of June 23rd, including the Illuminations along the line of route.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Ropill"

THE REVIEW AT SPITHEAD on June 24th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Respit"

And the ROYAL PROCESSION through the North-East of London on June 29th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code Word, "Ropel"

All above subjects at 3½d (Three Pence Halfpenny) Per Foot Net.

Terms 50% Cash with Order. Balance C. O. D. to Agent or Carriers.

Address 90 CHARING CROSS ROAD, LONDON, W. C.

Cable "ANDREORA, London." Code A B C. 5th Edition.

FROM THE OBSERVATORY

By G. F. Blaisdell

Have you seen "The Monogram J. O."? It is well worth while. Rex made no mistake when it corralled James A. Bliss, the comedian. Class tells. This is as much of a truism in the motion picture business as it is in any other industry. "The Monogram J. O." marks Mr. Bliss's debut on the silent stage, and it was a notable debut. To be sure, the scenario was a more than clever piece of work. It all proves what may be accomplished by an A-1 comedian when given a proper vehicle. It also proves that a small cast may turn out a splendid comedy. In "The Monogram" there were only five principals, and their work was uniformly of a high order. These were:

Jack Oliver.....James A. Bliss
Mrs. Oliver.....Miss Helen Lynn
Mr. Smith.....Philip Smalley
Mrs. Smith.....Miss Sidney
Detective.....David Wall

Mrs. Oliver had given her husband a shirt on his birthday. As the latter was starting on a business journey his wife insisted that he should put on the shirt. The bosom was decorated with perpendicular stripes some three-quarters of an inch in width. Of these stripes there were perhaps eight. When the wearer arrived at his destination his troubles began. The hotel clerk smiled. The porter made faces. The hall boy "joshed" him. The chambermaid furnished the last straw when she pointed a long forefinger at the offending garment and—laughed. She, along with the others, was thrown out and the shirt came off. It was no coat shirt. It came off over the head, and in a hurry. Rolled up and crushed, it was thrown into a drawer.

* * *

The following morning Oliver departs and Smith arrives. The latter dumps out the contents of his suit case into the drawer on top of the shirt. Having occasion to look for something he uncovers the shirt, with its enormous monogram on the upper sleeve. Message to "Friend Wife" follows. Mrs. Smith, in alarm, employs detective, who locates owner through hotel register, and reports accordingly. Mrs. Smith thereupon sends letter to Mr. Oliver to please come and get his shirt, as it is endangering her happiness and reputation. Mrs. Oliver gets letter, notes the feminine hand and surreptitiously watches her husband as he reads it. He throws the letter in his desk and starts for Mrs. Smith's. While explaining to her the history of the shirt, in walks Mr. Smith, his worst fears now confirmed. He draws revolver, while poor Oliver tries to hide behind the ample figure of Mrs. Smith. While the three are dodging around the table, enter Mrs. Oliver, who has read the letter and followed. Mr. Smith at this point retires and immediately returns with a rifle. But the situation becomes clear to him, and the three others discover him convulsed with laughter. Gradually explanations are made and the happiness of two households is restored.

"The Monogram J. O." is pure, delightful comedy.

* * *

"From Death to Life," Rex's release of June 8th, is also a notable production, and one that holds the closest attention of its audience. The work that is done in these two plays of Rex augurs well for Independence. Also it demonstrates, as has been demonstrated many times before, that there is no monopoly of brains in any one faction of the picture business.

* * *

Walking through the Bowery in Coney Island the other evening the Observer's eye was caught by a picture in the New Empire which for clearness and brilliance exceeded anything he had ever seen. One look was enough. Walking in and asking for the proprietor, Henry Connors responded. Mr. Connors explained that the screen was what is known as the "mirror." Although the hall was practically as well lighted as it would have been had there been no picture show in progress, the illumination seemed to be without detrimental effect on the detail of the picture. On the following day the Observer accidentally ran across a sample of the screen, which is a patented article. The glass has what is known as a silver back, with brown covering behind that, and the face is given what is described as a velvet acid-ground finish. The writer is informed that the installation of one of these screens involves an outlay of several hundred dollars. Every exhibitor should see one in use. The difference between the mirror and the ordinary screen is marvelous.

* * *

A recent letter to the World complains of the great hardship suffered by numerous picture machine operators owing to the fact that they cannot get renewals of their licenses because they have not been in this country long enough to become American citizens. The writer, Fred R. Powell, says that as many operators have worked for years at the business and are now deprived of their licenses through no fault of their own something should be done to remedy the injustice.

* * *

At the recent convention of the National League of Compulsory Education officials, held in Chicago, E. D. Gepson, of Omaha, ascribed to the motion picture show the greatest cause for truancy. "Not because a picture show is bad," explained Mr. Gepson, "but because it is interesting and appeals to both the boy and the girl. I have thought it might be a good idea to have a moving picture show as part of the public school system, with change of pictures daily, for the educational features and the interest it would arouse."

From many reasons educators reach the same conclusion—that the schools should have moving pictures.

* * *

According to a bill recently signed by Governor Dix picture machine operators in New York State cities other than New York City must obtain licenses from the mayor. In the latter town the commissioner of water supply, gas and electricity continues as the issuing authority.

* * *

The Elmira Telegram strongly advocates the use of films for church purposes. "Why," it asks, "should the church not adopt such excellent means of showing the lives and characters mentioned by the ministers at each service? The people who listen to the minister would be able to see pictured before their eyes the people and acts as described in the Bible."

* * *

On May 20th the Observer said, in reference to a statement that close and constant acquaintance with moving pictures has dulled the edge of enchantment: "With the improvement that is bound to come, in mechanical appliances as well as in the directing ability and in the rank of performers, there is every reason to believe that an increasing ratio of the people will become interested in pictures. Interest in the drama has not receded; the rising prices of theatrical entertainments of the higher class, however, have put the speaking stage beyond the reach of all but a small proportion of the population."

The following Chicago dispatch to the Herald last week is of much interest:

"Almost empty galleries and balconies in first-class theaters have at last 'got on the nerves' of the managements and the latter are casting about for a remedy. What is considered a good start in that direction has been made in Chicago. For the rest of the engagement of 'Seven Sisters' at the Powers' Theater the price of admission to the gallery will be 25 cents and to the balcony 50 cents.

"Mr. Daniel Frohman to-day held a conference with some of the officials of the Drama League, notably Mrs. A. Starr Best and Miss Alice Houston. They decided informally that one of the best ways to promote good drama and to strike a blow at the prosperity of the moving picture theaters and of vaudeville houses which do not cater to the better impulses of the public is to give everybody a chance to see good plays.

"The Drama League officials were careful to say the plan of reduced prices for gallery and balcony seats had their approval for dramas that the league could commend to the general public."

* * *

The New Orleans States of June 2d prints a half-column story of how one George J. Rose, whose home is debited to New York, and doing business as the Southern Amusement Premium Company, is alleged to have duped many persons in New Orleans. Instead of the old principle of exchanging wares for the coupons be traded in, Rose is described as having hit upon the idea of giving tickets to the nickel picture shows. One hundred and fifty Crescent City grocery and notion merchants and nineteen picture shows did business with Rose.

In the vernacular, Rose has faded. It is estimated that the total loss by reason of the operations of this smooth person will reach $2,000. The States goes on to say that "Rose bought a ticket for New York and decamped with the cash, leaving outstanding coupons both at the theaters and stores."

The readers of the News will do well carefully to investigate the antecedents of anyone trying to do a similar business—especially so if the efforts said to be making in New Orleans to bring Mr. Rose back should fail.

On July 1st the license fee for picture shows in Canada will be reduced from $100 to $50 a year and operators will pay $1 instead of $5.

* * *

Why is it that there seems to be no serious complaint against any pictures displayed in the 650 houses of New York City, while complaints crop up in other cities? Here are Baltimore, Washington and Detroit taking steps to prevent the exhibition of objectionable films. The last report of the National Board of Censorship states that it now practically controls the pictures shown in all of the 12,000 houses in America. Is it possible that some purveyor is surreptitiously "slipping" uncensored films to unwary exhibitors? It is unbelievable that a responsible manufacturer would countenance such work. Probably no one realizes better than do the members of the censorship board that it is impossible to please all. Among the complaints entered in Baltimore are of a French ballet scene "of a most pronounced type"; a knockabout performer undressing to his furthest limits and yet remaining clad. As to the former, what of it? Of the lateer is may be said that its most distinguishing characteristic is its unfathomable ambiguity.

In Baltimore the police head has instructed his captains to keep their eyes open for offensive films and in Washington a bill has been introduced in Congress prohibiting the projection of any picture that has not first been submitted to the District Commissioners. If the commissioners make good and censor all films intended for Washington they'll probably earn their salaries.

* * *

In Detroit detectives have been assigned to watch the theaters. The Detroit News, in speaking of the matter, says: "Most of the pictures have been censored by the National Board before reaching Detroit, and these films cause the police no trouble, but the pictures manufactured by the 'Independents' have to be closely watched."

Which is interesting. The Detroit News amplifies the foregoing by referring to Essanay's "The Temptress." Probably by this time the Detroit News has been informed that Essanay is one of the shining lights not of the Independents but of the Trust. Also, that the films of the former are censored precisely as are those of the latter.

* * *

Among new incorporations are the World's Best Film Company, Chicago, capital, $10,000; Consolidated Film Supply Company, Wilmington, Del., capital stock, $250,000; Hudson Motion Picture Company, Hoboken, N. J., capital, $50,000; Boston Moving Picture Company, capital, $10,000; Eagle Film Company, New York City, capital, $25,000.

* * *

Mobile, Ala., is another city which has adopted the motion picture as a means of advertising its industrial advantages to the people of the country.

* * *

A company for the manufacture of films for Japanese has been formed on the Pacific Coast. The leading spirit is S. Asai, a graduate of the University of Tokio. The International Moving Picture Company of Long Beach is the title of the concern. Pictures will be shown to Japanese in California and in Japan and also on the steamships plying between the two points. In California it is the intention to reproduce scenes in Japan and to portray the native drama. The company is negotiating for the introduction for the first time into Japan of American scenes, the titles of which will be translated into the six dialects of the Land of the Rising Sun.

* * *

The Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific and the allied railroad lines have engaged the entire annex of the Coliseum during the United States Land and Irrigation Exposition to be held in Chicago from November 18 to December 9, this year. The space will be divided into lecture halls with moving picture facilities. Every town, county and state served by these railroads will be invited to send lecturers and moving picture films to depict the opportunities for homes offered in the territory along these lines.

Gerrit Fort, the passenger traffic manager of the Union Pacific Company, states that the greatest set of moving pictures ever displayed by a railroad will be shown the Chicago people this fall. At the last Chicago land show these lines occupied the same space, and 77,000 people attended their lectures. On the first colonist excursion, following the last land show, the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific Companies carried approximately 55,000 colonists into their territory, breaking all previous records for colonist travel on these lines.

20 Minutes of Thrill

DISTRIBUTED THROUGH 1,000 FEET OF REALLY EXTRAORDINARY FILM

THIS IS JUST WHAT

"ON THE BRINK"

RELEASED, THURSDAY, JUNE 22nd,

REPRESENTS. THE TENSE, TERSE STORY OF A SIMPLE LIFE AND A SIMPLE LOVE WITH A SIMPLY SOUL-STIRRING CLIMAX.

A picture with its scenes laid far from teeming city streets, yet teeming with life, incident and interest. It represents moreover the fact that Rex is turning out a product that is establishing a new standard in motion picture manufacturing.

IF YOU ARE IN BUSINESS ONLY FOR THE FUN OF IT
THEN DON'T GET REX.
BUT ONLY THEN.

REX

Rex
KNOWHOW MFG. CO.
573-79 ELEVENTH AVE.,
NEW YORK CITY.

P. S.—Sales Co. Shipping Staff "ON THE BRINK" of nervous prostration trying to fill all our orders and get their Saturday half holiday as well.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, Ark., June 14.—The intense heat the past week has served to put a little crimp in the show business and about the only amusement that did a banner business was the attraction at Whittington Park, with its free picture show, and the Airdome, where a stock company played its second week's engagement. From friends in the East I received letters, one of which struck me as remarkable. It was to the effect that in Pennsylvania, along the first week of May, the weather was like winter. Out here we have been baked, parboiled, frazzled and sizzled to a crisp turn every day for the past three weeks. Not in years has Hot Springs witnessed or experienced such a terribly hot assortment of weather as has come this month. It has been "Orful."

Notwithstanding the heat, cupid managed to cut in on the matrimonial game in great shape, and a little trap drummer, as I write this, is speeding on his way to his home in Kansas City, accompanied by his blushing bride. He is Wilbur Ayres, who has been employed at the Orpheum Theater, Lyceum and Airdome. He is a good little drummer, too, and the manner in which he handled the sticks won the heart of Callie D. Woolsey, aged 17, and they were married in the office of the Justice of the Peace DuVall. Now, Callie has a sister, Miss Ida, who, previous to taking up her residence in "the valley of vapors," conducted a very successful millinery establishment in St. Louis. Ida is "some piano player." She has "played the pictures" in many of the theaters in this city, so when she heard that her younger sister was contemplating matrimony she decided to accept the proposal of one Edward Byrnes, and she, too, was married. No sooner had Justice DuVall tied one knot than Ida and Edward came waltzing into the room and cried "me, too," so the Justice made it a double event. There was a merry party at their home, 128 Spring Street, the night these couples were married, at which many of the picture people and other theatrical celebrities of the city were present; also, they served "some spread." Mr. and Mrs. Byrnes will continue to reside in this city. I understand, too, that the little trap drummer at the Princess is contemplating matrimony and that a former very charming cashier at the Lyceum and Orpheum is getting busy with a lot of new dresses. In fact, there's no telling what this warm weather will do to one.

The best picture of the week, so far as scenic effects and historical interest is concerned, was the Ambrosio reel showing Napoleon's retreat. It was a dandy in every sense of the word, and Biograph also weighed in with a mighty fine reel, the story of the unsullied white rose. Both of these pictures were excellent.

Also had the pleasure of seeing my friend Jimmie Bliss, with Rex, depicting his troubles as a result of the striped birthday shirt. It was a good scenario and James made a decided hit. Notice, too, that Rex is featuring him in great shape, and he is worthy of all the "boosting" he can get. But would also caution Rex to be careful of its characters who impersonate "gentlemen of color." The man playing the part of the negro porter had a make-up on that was a positive fright. Jimmie can give them all points on make-up, and why they ever allowed such an unnatural face to come before the camera is beyond me. If that "coon" don't know how to make-up there surely is some one who can do that for him.

"The Railroad Builder," by special request, played a return engagement at the Princess and was the hit of a very excellent program. Thanhouser, you deserve a great deal of thanks for this picture.

The Great Northern gave us a very pretty reel in "Berne, Switzerland," which was much enjoyed. In fact, all scenic pictures of places across the "big duck pond" go big here and are cordially welcomed. The recent "Chicago Stockyard Fire" thrilled, and Imp was on the job in that reel, as was also Pathe's picture of the result of the Bangor, Me., conflagration. "The International Exhibition at Turin" was greatly enjoyed and Itala was not found lacking in this reel. "Edna's Imprisonment," by Edison, was most interesting, especially the comedy at the conclusion of the reel, where the kid in the office was taken to the safe and spanked between the closet and the desk. Little Edna, by the way, as well as the office boy, did some very clever and natural acting. "The Loyalty of Don Louis Verdugo," by Kalem, was in keeping with the excellent productions this company has put out of late. "The Page's Honor," by Eclipse, was very beautiful and impressive. "The Show Girl," a Vitagraph production, won many friends, but noticed that Vitagraph had to ring in an optical feature, just the same.

The most remarkable Indian in the world came to town in a Bison reel. Saw him Saturday night of last week and he sure was a wonder. Whenever I run across these remarkable characters I like to give them all the publicity they deserve, just as I did when I saw a Yankee boy swim from the East River to the South Sea Island some months ago in a film by that company. I think, however, that this Indian can give that other lad a run for his money. I forget the title of the picture, but the Indian's name was "Blackfoot." He was a peach. He was a wonderful Indian. His like has never before been seen until Bison had the nerve to turn him out. He served his purpose, for the audience roared—so lock him up; treasure him as a rare jewel until some other equally daffy scenario writer invades your sanctum and creates a companion to this marvel.

There's just one thing I would like to see the Independent manufacturers do—pay more attention to details, and get more reasonable scenarios. You've got the talent; there's no doubt of that, but you don't seem to use it in some instances to the best advantage.

THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

From Our Los Angeles Correspondent

Los Angeles, June 8, 1911.

At the last meeting of the local motion picture exhibitors the first step was taken toward abolishing vaudeville in the 5 cent houses. Committees have been appointed to investigate the matter. The question of running three pictures twice a week, whether Trust or Independent, was also discussed but nothing definite was done.

The first outdoor picture of the Co-operative Film Manufacturing Company, a local corporation, was taken last Sunday at Floral Park, a few miles outside of the city limits. A temporary studio has been erected and pictures will be taken every Sunday until eight or ten reels are finished. The date of the first release has not yet been decided upon.

In order to open next Saturday, work is being rushed on the new theater located at 805 East Fifth Street. When finished it will have a seating capacity of 250, of which four rows of loge seats will be reserved for ladies and will be known as the "El Rodeo" or The Roundup. The house is only two blocks from the Southern Pacific main station and being the only one in that district should have a large trade. Independent pictures will be shown and the price of admission will be 5 cents. F. P. Hemry is the owner.

The Star, Fifth near Main, is again dark. William E. Glasse, the proprietor, asserts that he does not know how to conduct a moving picture house and is therefore losing money every day he holds the house open. He is trying to sell it.

The Novelty, Main, near First, has received a new manager. The house was using Independent pictures but has now switched to the Trust. The house has not proved a success under the old manager and Independent pictures and so Trust pictures and Frank Weiner, the new manager, are to be tried. A $1,200 organ has been installed.

The Union, Main near Third, has turned to the Trust for the first time. The management states that it was unable to obtain the picture it desired from the Independent exchange.

The Plaza, 421 North Main, is again using Trust pictures after a week's trial of Independent releases. The owner could not get the local exchanges to give him the pictures he wanted and so he was compelled to change.

The Floradora, First, near Main, has closed. Licensed pictures were used.

The Edison, Spring near Fifth, running Licensed pictures, has gone out of business.

Arthur S. Hyman is resting at Paso Robles for a few days.

LEO FEINSTEIN.

Equipment for South America

Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," has just furnished a complete equipment consisting of motiograph moving picture machine, special built gasoline engine and direct-connected generator to furnish current for the moving picture lamp and house lighting, and all necessary supplies to a traveling exhibitor from Cartagena, Columbia, South America. This gentleman will give exhibitions in several Columbian towns, generating his own electricity. Mr. Hallberg is also furnishing a number of large reversible exhaust fans to theaters in Greater New York, enabling them to maintain perfectly cool fresh air in their theaters. These exhaust fans change the air once every five minutes.

THE RELIANCE STOCK CO.'S NEW DIRECTOR

The Reliance studios have been placed in the hands of James Kirkwood, who will hereafter direct the production of all Reliance films. Mr. Kirkwood needs no introduction to the trade, as his ability as an actor is widely known, and exhibitors will recall the excellent work he did in Reliance pictures some time ago.

Mr. Kirkwood's biography records a succession of big successes on the legitimate stage, and it was considered a triumph for motography when he was induced to take up the silent drama. It demonstrates the tremendous strides moving pictures have made in the world of amusements when an artist of his ability casts his lot with them, a thing which would have been thought impossible but a few years ago. It also indicates the sincere desire of the Reliance Company to offer to its patrons the best dramatic ability available, which, needless to say, is done at tremendous cost.

Some months ago Mr. Kirkwood was made a flattering offer to take the leading part in Margaret Mayo's new play, "Behind the Scenes," as "Steve Hunter." The lure of the footlights and the applause of the multitude appealed to him and he asked to be released from his contract. After careful consideration it was decided to comply with his request, as Mr. C. O. Baumann felt that in order to receive the full benefits of Mr. Kirkwood's talents it was necessary that his whole heart be thrown into his work.

"Behind the Scenes" opened in Philadelphia, and the dramatic critics showered well-deserved encomiums upon Mr. Kirkwood. And having drank his fill of public adulation, he discovered that he preferred the moving picture work, and, the Reliance Company never having ceased to regret the severance of his connection, he was induced to come back in full charge as director.

As a youth Mr. Kirkwood displayed unusual talents, and was soon playing leading parts in stock and road companies, where he gained much valuable experience and acquired versatility. In the old traveling company of "In Arizona" he played the part of "Canby." His work had already attracted the attention of the New York magnates, and David Belasco offered him the part of "Trinidad Joe" in the original production of "The Girl of the Golden West," which he played one season and the following season interpreted "Sonora Slim."

He then went with Henry Miller in "The Great Divide," and played in his repertoire, which included "The Only Way" and other notable successes.

Perhaps the greatest success in Mr. Kirkwood's brilliant career was with Preston Gibson's "Turning Point" at the Hackett Theater, New York, last spring, where as "Dave Denny" in the grand climax of the play he received fifteen to twenty curtain calls at every performance.

The importance of having a man like James Kirkwood as director of the Reliance studio must not be underestimated. It insures that every dramatic situation will be carefully taken advantage of, and every production will sparkle with perfect rendition.

JAMES KIRKWOOD

A LITTLE THING

Put up your screen right or your picture suffers. This is so apparent that it would seem to be superfluous to mention it, yet are there many whose screens are smooth, evenly placed and free from dirt?

In a popular house which always has a large attendance the screen is poor, so poor, in fact, that the picture is seriously marred by the wrinkles and unevenness which seem to cover the entire surface. There are, for example, what, for want of a better term, may be called bulges and depressions. Straight across the middle of it runs a line which cuts the picture in two. Even though the deepest shadow lies in the middle, as it does at times, the line shows, dividing the upper from the lower portion.

Down near one corner is a patch. This shows always. If in high light, it is emphasized. If in shadow, it is still there, although naturally not so plain. And there are other deficiencies in this particular screen which might be removed with a little care.

A picture is made up of high lights, deep shadows and delicate halftones. Inequalities on the screen, wrinkles, patches or emphasized lines all cause more or less unpleasant impressions. They influence the picture more than the manager may think. Not infrequently these inequalities appear in some delicate place which is utterly spoiled by the bad spot.

It should not cost much to remove everything of this character. It should not require much care to see that there are no inequalities or patches or lines to mar the picture. A perfectly smooth screen would not be an expensive proposition. Its value would be beyond computation.

FOCUS

Some theaters, particularly those in smaller towns, seem to have difficulty with the focus of their machines. The pictures only look well from the extreme rear. Toward the front of the house they are only blurs, which in some instances appear as figures, and in far too many cases nothing but a movement without well-defined figures or surroundings.

Experienced visitors to theaters of this type seek the back seats, yet unfortunately the rear seats are too often filled with whatever objectionable people may have got into the theater. They have the best under those conditions.

The motion picture lover wants his pictures clear. He doesn't want a blur caused by poor focus or a procession of ill-defined figures across the screen. Yet this is about what he gets in numerous cases.

This is no criticism on any machine. In truth, all machines are subject to the inexorable laws of optics. Unless these laws are obeyed a poor picture results, no matter how good the machine may be.

It would seem as though the focus should be such as is clearest at about the center of the house, perhaps a trifle back, then a larger proportion of the audience will have a clear picture. They will blur some in the front seats. They

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 17th

HOTEL THIEVES

Another one of our celebrated detective productions. A film brimful of exciting and sensational incidents.

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, June 24th

THE GHOSTS OF THE VAULTS

An exceedingly well-staged drama, admirably enacted.

JIM AND JACK

A Comic vaudeville sketch.

WATCH FOR OUR NEW PHOTO LITHO POSTERS!

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

ALL UP-TO-DATE INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT—THE FILMS THAT SATISFY

will blur or will not be quite as clear in the back of the room. Yet a majority of the audience will have clear pictures.

The writer remembers sitting in one of New York's best houses not long ago while a picture was on the screen which had a number of large figures. Down in front the figures could scarcely be distinguished. They moved, but were so ill-defined that they seemed more like blotches than figures. The rear seats showed perfectly clear pictures with sharp definition and good photography.

This is a delicate question to discuss, still, if projectors can manage to bring about some improvement in this respect, they will receive the hearty thanks of the public.

The focus of anything photographic is such an important consideration that this phase of it needs closer attention than has been given it in far too many theaters.

The long throw is productive of the best picture, but it isn't possible in all theaters to obtain the long throw, consequently the picture frequently suffers. Such subterfuges as are available should be invoked to overcome the deficiencies of the short throw where it is impossible to lengthen it.

There are numerous other phases of this subject which require attention, but these will, perhaps, offer a basis for consideration by managers and projectors which will be beneficial.

Attention of Employees

A good many managers fail in this direction. Their theaters are as good as money can make them, but there is a lack of discipline among the employees and a tendency to loose methods in administration which create more or less confusion. Moreover, employees under such circumstances seldom exert themselves to make patrons comfortable.

The writer remembers being in a theater not long ago, beautiful in its decorations, comfortable in its seating and conveniently arranged, yet these excellencies were all overshadowed by the incivility of the employees. It would have required only a word or two from the manager to have put a stop to it all, but that word was not forthcoming and patronage went elsewhere every day because of this lack.

It is quite as easy to have your theater run right as it is to have it run some other way. And it is for the manager to say how it shall be.

See that your employees are civil. See that they look after the comfort and convenience of the people who patronize you. See that they offer them good seats and insist that they keep order. This is all easy and can be carried out without difficulty.

In the afternoon when the women and children are there it is well to see that employes do as well for them as they can. Of course not everybody who comes in can have the best seats, but your ushers can, at least, give the best there is left. That is no more than fair. The early arrival will be treated to the best there is, while those who come next must take the next best. And so on until the place is full.

In some theaters these simple rules are not observed and there is all sorts of confusion and dissatisfaction. It need not be, and the manager who allows it is losing money for himself. Patrons will return to the theater which treats them best. There should be no half-way work about it either.

The woman with little children deserves special consideration, and your employees should be instructed to see that she gets it. It will not hurt any one to help the little folks up and down the steps. If you do you will be attracting the mothers to come again. And mothers with little children can't go everywhere. In a motion picture show the chattering of the babies doesn't disturb the actors, consequently the little people can be taken there without danger of spoiling the entertainment for some one else. It is, perhaps, a small thing, but small things count in this business the same as they do in any other.

Perhaps, however, the whole thing can be summed up in this one assertion that the employees must be disciplined and be required to maintain that discipline. It is no more difficult than it is to neglect it after the system has once been established. And it is up to the manager to inaugurate the change which will mean much in the patronage of the theater.

Attention to the comforts of patrons, care for the children who may come during afternoons, and courtesy to every one will be important factors in the success which will come to your theater in the end.

$10 REWARD—2 Reels Asbury Park Baby Parade 1909—Stolen from Steiner's Film Exchange—Private Property—Never released—Exhibitors kindly communicate information.
WILL S. RISING 110 FOURTH AVENUE

ORTHO FILM CO.

(INCORPORATED)

We have reorganized and increased our capital stock. Our main office is located at 208 Market St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

We are now prepared to manufacture FILMS for special features, such as Educational and Advertising purposes, by our "Hochstetter Exclusive Process."

Interior pictures, printing and developing is our specialty. We redevelop and clean FILMS, by our "Hochstetter Exclusive Process," making them as good as new.

Demonstration free of charge in any part of the United States.

Main Office: 208 MARKET STREET, PITTSBURGH, PA.
Branch Office, New York: 40 EAST 12TH ST., NEW YORK.

F. W. HOCHSTETTER, President and Manager.
A. I. DE ROY, Secretary and Treasurer.

"DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE" SATISFIES

The first-print copy of "The Declaration of Independence" was projected at the Thanhouser Studio in New Rochelle yesterday and fulfilled all the producer's expectations. Good black-and-white photography was a feature of the showing and the little audience present manifested real enthusiasm over the picture.

Those in the first-print audience not connected with the Thanhouser plant were surprised to find the film dealt not only with The Declaration of Independence but with the Boston Tea Party, Paul Revere's Ride, the Redcoats' Retreat from Lexington; and in addition to all this gives the life of John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration and the first American millionaire, telling his famous love story and inspiring patriotism in others by showing how true a patriot he was. It was Hancock who, with most of his wealth lying in Boston holdings, said: "Burn Boston and make John Hancock a beggar, if the public good requires it."

The reel, which the maker is advertising as "a subject that interests more Americans than any other ever made," is released on Tuesday, July Fourth, but exhibitors are naturally advised to book it now to secure it while still new, as the exchanges will have numerous advance applications for it.

A business-getting lobby adornment will be found in the display of plenty of American flags, four muskets (preferably old), two drums (preferably old), the famous Trumbull picture of the Signing of the Declaration (can be hired from any picture store), and facsimile copies of the Declaration (can be hired from any picture store). A good arrangement of these would be:

Flags.—Drape front to best effect.

Drums.—One on each side of lobby, crossed by two muskets.

Muskets.—Two crossed above each drum.

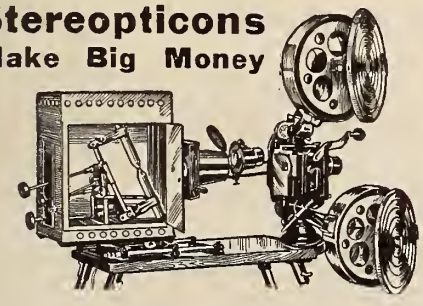
"Signing" Picture.—Hang or fasten to one side lobby.

"Declaration" Facsimiles.—Hang or fasten to side lobby opposite "Signing" picture.

If you have board for circulars or photos, drape with flag and tack on literature pertaining to the reel. Posters can be put up in the usual place. A release of so patriotic a nature as this affords the exhibitor a chance to advertise his show that shouldn't be missed.

Moving Picture Machines

Stereopticons
Make Big Money



MOTION PICTURE THEATRE SUPPLIES.

We carry on hand at all times the largest and most complete line of Repairs and Supplies for all Standard Machines, also Tickets, Carbons, Screens, Chairs, etc. Can ship at once Special Slides made to order. We also handle Motiograph, Edison and Powers Machines. Write today for THEATRE CATALOGUE.

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO.

Dept. 2, 219 Dearborn St., South, Chicago, Ill.

HALLBERG
THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"

SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.

I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.

Free Catalogue No. N 1

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!

Powers Cameragraph No. 5 only $75; Motion Picture Machines $35 up. Cineograph with Fire Shutter $65. Carbons $1.50 per 100 tickets; 10,000 for $1. All Supplies. GET SUPPLEMENT 33 BARGAIN LIST. Motion Picture Machines Wanted.

HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Advertisers want results. When writing to them it is our due that you mention The Moving Picture News

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation
and slides for every purpose made to order
GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

THE WORLD'S GREATEST
THEATRE CHAIR
Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving.
To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

THIS IS WHAT YOU WANT

THE PICTURES THAT ENLIVEN YOUR PATRONS

ON MONDAY, JUNE 26th, WE RELEASE

WAR AND THE WIDOW

A CHAMPION FILM THAT WILL TAKE WITH ALL

Each Monday and Wednesday Champ

IS BOUND TO HOLD A PLACE ON YOUR PROGRAM

FIGURE NOW FOR OUR WEDNESDAY REEL, JUNE 28th

The Boy Scouts of America to the Rescue

A WELL PERFORMED COMBAT WITH INDIANS, SHOWING THESE STURDY YOUTHS' ROUTINE OF CAMP LIFE.

WRITE US FOR THE IMPOSING THREE-COLOR SYNOPSIS SHEETS, AND GET YOUR EXCHANGE TO FURNISH THE REELS.

CHAMPION FILM CO.

MARK M. DINTENFASS, Manager

12 EAST 15th STREET NEW YORK CITY

Handbook for Motion Picture and Stereoptican Operators

THE MOVING PICTURE NEWS has at great expense secured the right to reproduce the above Handbook by C. FRANCIS JENKINS and OSCAR B. DEPUE. It is the only reliable book published in the trade, and lists at $2.50. Any reader of the News can secure a copy by becoming a subscriber at $2.00 per year and 50c addition for the Handbook.

This book cannot be procured elsewhere at the price, and will only hold good while the issue lasts.

Moving Picture News, 30 W. 13th St., New York

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

"THE BOY SCOUTS TO THE RESCUE"

Champion Release, June 28

The most unique and realistic story and withal the most decidedly up-to-date film presentation is that of "The Boy Scouts to the Rescue," specially arranged and posed for the Champion Company by the redoubtable scouts of Ardmore, Pa., Troop No. 1, the foremost battalion of the organization.

With the pitching of their tents, a regular routine of camp life is begun, and every phase of a soldier's duties are carried with remarkable faithfulness and military precision. Likewise the healthful sports they indulge in, swimming, diving and wrestling and all sorts of athletic sports and games, tend to build up both mind and body.

But something unexpected happens. A splendid little fellow, venturing beyond his depth, gives one loud cry and sinks. In an instant several strong lads are battling in the turbulent stream, from whence they finally rescue their comrade. The work of resucitation is begun and soon their efforts are blessed with success.

When the first meal has been prepared and "finished off" in a hearty manner, three scouts are despatched on the lookout for Indians. The Indians have meanwhile held a pow-wow and learning of the scouts approach, they form an ambuscade, descend on the scouts and capture two, the third eluding escape. This scout wigwags to the camp for aid, and they, having heard the shots, start in pursuit.

The most stirring scene is where the youngsters are seen gagged and tied to a tree, fires blazing around their feet, while the red devils execute their horrible war dance, with fiendish howls of glee. But hold! rescuers are at hand and the enemy is put to ignominious flight in the most gallant fashion, and the young scouts are saved from the fire and tomahawk.

But the work of the boys is seen in another direction. Their adeptness in rendering "first aid to the injured" now comes into play, and not only are their comrades the recipients of this benign service but also their wounded red adversaries. Later the red men call a council of peace and the pipe is passed around, and a happy conclusion is soon arrived at by means of "peace signals" exchanged between the scouts and the red men.

Thus ends a story that will make the heart of every boy who secs it jump and throb with an all-conquering emotion, and for his elders it will prove one of the most instructive and interesting stories they ever saw or read about, bearing on the future promise on America, as here shown in this most remarkable picture of "The Boy Scouts to the Rescue."

"WAR AND THE WIDOW"

Champion Release, June 26

Nations may clash over the question of boundary lines, or sound the tocsin of war because of some affront to the flag; but it is well known that somewhere at the bottom of every dispute the passion of love is the main spring of action. In the little side-lights of every war there is seen this dominant trait of the human animal; and in the story of "War and the Widow" we have it filmed in a most capital manner.

The war "atmosphere" is splendidly injected into this story—not by smoke or musket or heavy artillery, but by charges of cavalry and clashings of sabers that is truly realistic—men unhorsed in the midst of furious affrays, maddened animals dashing along riderless—certainly these spirited scenes picture vividly the martial spirit! but likewise the horrors of war!

But here is the story of which the other is but the setting. Marion Harmer is a beautiful widow, whose sympathies are with the South, where she is residing when war breaks out.

Her cousin, Walter Percival, an officer in the Confederate army seeks her heart, but she holds him aloof because her affections are already placed in the keeping of Dave Millen, a gallant major in the service of Uncle Sam. Yet, she likes her cousin, and the more so that he is fighting for the cause she loves so well.

The fair widow is living just between the lines of the two armies, and so it comes about that both her lovers are paying her court at the same time. Her Union sweetheart, learning that he has a rival, decides to capture him, first warning the widow to "Keep out of War."

Percival, the Confederate sweetheart, is one day dining at the widow's when Major Millen, the Federal, comes on the scene. The widow hides Percival under the table and the major "sets-to" to enjoy a hearty meal. At its conclusion the capture of Percival is both thrilling and amusing.

The widow, thoroughly riled, rushed to the Confederate camp and acquaints them of the predicament of their officer, so it is not long before the tables are turned on the gallant major, and he is himself a prisoner in the hands of his rival. But the widow does not want affairs to shape up thusly, immediately sets to work to undo them again, and to this end she makes her way to the Confederate camp and assists daringly in her lover's escape.

Then comes a spirited chase by the Confederate cavalry and a dashing assault and rescue by a body of Federals. Then comes the widow's capitulation of heart and hand to her Federal sweetheart in recognition of his indomitable courage and dashing charge on the citadel of her affections, thus ending most happily the story of "War and the Widow."

"HIS ROMANCE"

Yankee Film Company Release, June 26th

Helen Stone, a pampered daughter of wealthy and doting parents, on her way to the golf links, stops to call for her cousin, Dorothy Lane, the daughter of a poor widow. Dorothy being a beautiful girl, proves a welcome addition to the golfing party.

Among the guests introduced to Dorothy, is Tom Baird, with whom Helen is deeply in love. Tom is at once struck with the beauty and simplicity of the poor relation, and, to Helen's dismay, shows unusual interest in her. Helen becomes very jealous, and regrets having introduced her poor cousin into her set.

In a romantic spot beside an old mill, Tom professes his love for Dorothy and proposes marriage. Dorothy accepts him and Tom removes a ring from his little finger and places it upon Dorothy's finger to seal their engagement. Helen's jealousy leads her to play the eavesdropper, and to her chagrin she witnesses this love scene.

Helen, who loves Tom dearly, has her mind set on breaking the engagement between Dorothy and Tom, and with this end in view calls upon Dorothy and explains to her that she herself is engaged to Tom, and that he unquestionably is making a plaything of Dorothy's affections. She eventually persuades Dorothy to return Tom his ring, and to write him a letter upbraiding him for his duplicity.

Tom, upon receiving the ring and the letter, hastens to the home of Helen, whose duplicity he does not know, and pleads with her to intercede for him with Dorothy. Helen feebly consents to do so, and as Tom leaves she falls into a chair sobbing bitterly. Dorothy's mother, upon hearing the story of Tom's supposed duplicity, and seeing her child suffering, cannot restrain her outraged feeling any longer, and calls upon Tom, demanding an explanation. Tom then learns that Helen was the instigator of the letter breaking the engagement.

Tom and Dorothy's mother call upon Mr. Stone and tell him of the mischief which his daughter had caused. Mr. Stone demands an explanation from Helen, and she sobbingly confesses. The father angrily denounces her conduct, and compels her to go to Dorothy's home and apologize. Helen, who is a good girl at heart, but whom jealousy had made irresponsible, goes with the mother and Tom to Dorothy, and pleads for forgiveness. Dorothy lovingly takes her cousin into her arms, and assures Helen of her complete forgiveness, then turning to Tom throws her arms about his neck.

"THE ANGELUS BELL"

The Yankee Film Company Release, June 30th

John Moore and Mary Foster have been sweethearts since childhood. Mary, being motherless, is devoted to her old father, who is the sexton of the country church, which proudly boasts of a beautiful old bell, known far and wide for its sweet, rich tone, as "The Angelus Bell." Its sweet-toned voice has been heard time and again, bringing news of joy or sorrow.

The bell is held in deep veneration by both old and young, and as it peals forth its daily message the workers in the field cross themselves and offer a silent prayer of thanksgiving.

While at work in the field, John and Mary meet Dick Canfield, who is hunting in that part of the country. Mary is quite taken with the appearance of the city man, while John, on the contrary, takes an intense dislike to him. Dick Canfield continues his acquaintance with Mary, and thrills her by describing the wonders of the great metropolis, and what a beautiful place it is to live in. His description is so vivid that she becomes enchanted with the idea of living in this wonderful place, and when Dick proposes marriage, she gladly accepts him.

John suspects that Mary is in love with Dick and tells her father so.

The old man orders her to marry John, who has been her sweetheart since childhood, but Mary, with the picture of the city wonders in her mind, refuses to do so, and leaves her old home in the dead of the night, notifying her old father that she has gone to marry the man she loves.

They are married in the Little Church around the corner in New York City, and as they leave the church Dick is accidentally killed while crossing the street. John reads of Dick's death in the city paper and pleads with the old sexton to send for his daughter. Mary, after being widowed at the very steps of the altar, seeks the parents of her husband, who refuse to recognize her as their son's wife, not having consented to the marriage. Mary returns to her old home, and is met by her father, who, not seeing a wedding ring upon her finger, orders her from the home. He refuses to believe her story of the marriage and accident, which gave and deprived her of a husband.

Her old sweetheart John believes her story, and journeys to New York to obtain the marriage certificate. The old father, whose sorrow has made him blind to reason, refuses to look at the certificate, and John leaves to seek Mary. Mary, upon being refused entrance to her own home, decides to end her life, and is about to take the fatal leap, when the familiar sound of the Angelus Bell detracts her attention for the moment. John comes upon her at this time and takes her home. He convinces the old sexton of his daughter's marriage, and the old man lovingly embraces and welcomes her home.

"ON THE BRINK"

Rex Release, June 22

Far from the maddened throngs of the city, far from the teeming, seething city streets, in a little fishing town, lives Tess and her half-witted brother, Sam. By clam digging they earn a simple living, but life is sweet in spite of its simplicity, and the turbulent sea, which is their greatest enemy, is also their dearest friend, soothing their hearts when they ached, calming their troubled spirits by the very tempest of its own.

The dearest friend? No; for there was still a dearer one. Right near their hut lived a young fisherman, handsome, brave and bold, who sympathized with the girl because she had to support her semi-demented brother, who took an interest in her, a friendly interest, and no more. But the maid, in the manner of woman, misconstrues his attitude and takes his friendly interest and concern for the divine spark. So she learns to love him as a woman can only love once in her life, and he is ignorant of the romantic relations she has assumed this simple friendship to be.

Often human hearts suffer, and this time the warm, young heart of Tess is to feel the pang and anguish of a love in vain, for there comes to the fishing bank a city girl accompanied by her mother and father. They meet the young fisherman and the girl is impressed by his clear-cut form, his robust health, his winning ways. She asks him to take her about the place, which he obligingly consents to do, and as they are laughing, talking and smiling, Tess follows them. Once, to avoid detection, she slipped into the icehouse, leaving the door open, intending to stay there until the two got out of sight. But Jed, seeing the door open, closes it, locking it after him. When Tess realizes her predicament, she shouts, but her calls bring no response. However, her half-witted brother, with the intuition that is a gift of all mentally affected, feels a presentiment of danger to his sister, whom he idolizes, and, going to look for her, hears her cries, and going to the icehouse makes a vain effort to unfasten the door. At last he runs to the beach, where some fishermen are talking, and tells them of his sister's dilemna, and they, thinking it merely some of the boy's wild talk, refuse to assist him. Then Jed, coming ashore, hears the story and goes with Sam to see how much truth there is in it. He opens the door and into his arms falls the unconscious form of Tess, resting at last in the arms of him whom the god of hearts had destined for the task.

CUPID AND THE COMET

Solax Release, June 21

(Split Reel)

Thomas Walker, father of Vinnie, having read in the papers of the expected appearance of the comet, has gathered a party of friends together in his rooms to see the phenomenon. As he sweeps the heavens with his glass he is amazed to see silhouetted against the full face of the moon the form of his daughter clasped in a loving embrace of a strange man. Much excited he rushes out into the garden where he surprises the two lovers perched upon the garden wall, and seizing the young man throws him out of the grounds.

Vinnie is sent to her room as a punishment for her bad behavior, after which father Walker retires. Charlie, Vinnie's lover, approaches and tosses a stone up at Vinnie's window, attracting her attention. He asks her to elope, and she forthwith prepares to do so. But, going down the improvised ladder, she awakens her father, who comes out just in time to stop their little game.

The irate father again takes his erring daughter back to her room and to make doubly sure of her confinement this time he takes all of her clothing away and puts them under his pillow. Undismayed by previous failures to reach his sweetheart, Charlie again approaches the house and calls his love to the window. Vinnie gleefully consents to go with Charlie, but is horrified to find her clothes missing. She finally spots them under the old man's pillow, but she dares not try to get them for fear of again awakening him. In despair she decides to put her father's clothes on, and thus attired she meets her lover below, but not without the old man's knowledge. Jumping up he reaches for his clothes, but is dismayed to find them missing, and after a hurried search he angrily dons the clothes of his daughter and rushes out and down the road to the minister's house, well knowing the road that the young couple would be likely to take, but too late; the marriage has been solemnized, and all he can do now is to forgive and forget.

"JOHNNIE WATERS THE GARDEN"

Being a short little comedy of about a hundred and fifty feet showing what happened to Johnnie when he disobeyed his father. Papa Fuss buys a new garden hose and as he leaves for work in the morning he leaves explicit instructions with the family that no person is to touch the hose during his absence.

All goes well until little Johnnie spots the hose on the lawn. Kid-like he has to "try" it out, and as the sport of wetting down everything in sight is just to his liking, he keeps it up until everything around about is flooded. His little sister Flo, approaches and reminds him of his father's orders regarding the hose, but Johnnie, wild with the excitement and pleasure of the moment, casts all parental admonitions aside and turns the hose on his sister. Finding the sport not so bad after all she, too, takes a hand, and we see them enjoying themselves hugely when the father puts in his appearance. Seeing the condition of the lawn and shrubbery and wild with righteous rage at the disobedience of his children—but for which little Johnnie and his sister care not as they gleefully point the hose at their angry parent—he rushes at them. He stops very abruptly, however, as the stream is pointed full in his face, and he is obliged to beat a hasty retreat to a safe spot without the reach of the stream, from which vantage point he threatens, begs and expostulates in vain with his unworthy offspring.

Finally he and his wife manage to get at the kids and after receiving their wetting down take the kids across their knees and proceed to pay their debts in full.

"LOVE IS BEST"

Imp Release, June 26

Margaret Turner, a pretty girl living in a village, is possessed of a wonderful voice. She sings in the church choir and is an universal favorite in society and church circles. She is loved by her pastor, Rev. Basil Underwood, who worships her. She loves him, but is possessed of a desire to enter into a professional career on the stage. She has no opportunity in the village and contents herself by singing solos every Sunday at her place of worship.

One Sabbath she has sung delightfully and a theatrical manager passing by in his automobile is attracted by her voice. He orders his chauffeur to stop and enters the church and listens to her singing. He is charmed, fully convinced that he has made a find. He visits her and makes her an offer to enter the profession as a singer. She is overjoyed, but dislikes to leave her loved one. She is torn with conflicting emotions, but finally the lure of the world conquers and she leaves her home clandestinely, writing a farewell note to her aged father and mother, saying she is tired of the dull existence of the village life and is going to the city. Her parents are grief-stricken and her lover is distracted, but they make no effort to call her back to her home.

She goes to the booking office of the theatrical agent who first discovered her talent, and secures an engagement. She makes an instantaneous hit on the stage, her voice being universally admired by the critics, and she is on the high road to success, having her every wish gratified. She yearns occasionally for the country and thinks of the loved ones she has left, but this feeling is dispelled when she contemplates her success as a singer and her position in theatrical circles. She is greatly admired by her friends, who fawn upon her—the fruits of success.

When she reached the height of her ambition she suddenly falls ill. She is forced to cancel her engagement, and sees her money fast disappearing. She is gradually reduced in circumstances and forced to live in more humble surroundings. One by one her friends desert her and she is reduced to poverty. She becomes more and more discontented with her lot and thinks of her old home and her lover.

She writes her parents, the first tidings they had of her, and follows quickly. The father and mother are overjoyed, and they prepare for the homecoming by decorating the dining room table in her honor. She arrives and is welcomed with open arms. Her lover, concealed behind the door, steps out and takes her in his arms, and she breaks down in her joy. The minister takes her to him and the couple are blissfully happy, with the girl cured of her desire to see the world and happy in the love of an honest, although humble man.

"THE LITTLE LEADER"

Imp Release, June 29

The story opens in the office of a theatrical manager beset by people who wish engagements and they are unceremoniously turned down without a hearing.

Professor Gessner, an aged musical composer, insists that he see the man in charge. He is shown into the inner sanctum and offers the showman an opera he has composed. The manager scans it with contempt, but finally becomes interested as he observes its worth.

The next day he calls on the old musician and buys the composition. The old professor is overjoyed, but his pride asserts itself and it is only after the manager goes out that he gives vent to his feelings, hugging his small son, Carl, in his ecstasy of joy. The sale means food for them, and the boy shares in his father's satisfaction.

Professor Gessner is wrapped up in his work and is engaged to direct the orchestra in the rendition of the musical score. There is a scene in the rehearsal room of the theater and the aged musician has just finished conducting the piece. He is overjoyed and the excitement proves too much for him in his weakened condition, and he staggers to a chair and expires.

The manager is in despair. The curtain is about to be rung up and the failure means ruin. The boy, Carl, is present and rushes to his father, inconsolable in his grief. The manager paces the floor perplexed, and the boy, realizing the situation, offers to conduct the opera.

The manager is astonished, but the child assures him that he is conversant with the music and his fears are allayed in a measure. Coming before the curtain the manager announces that, owing to the death of the composer, his son will direct the music and the opera proceeds, the child with breaking heart wielding the baton and directing the large orchestra.

After the performance the manager and the boy are met at the stage door, where they receive the congratulations of performers and friends. The manager adopts the boy and the story closes with a vision of the old musician dying as the manager places his protege in bed.

"COURTING ACROSS THE COURT"

Thanhouser Release, June 27th

A pretty girl was very proud of her mother, who had achieved fame as a lawyer, but she had no desire to follow in mamma's footsteps. In fact, her one ambition was to wed a most presentable young man, who had a fortune, a sweet disposition, and a desire to make her his wife and ensure her happiness for the rest of her life.

But the mother did not see it. She wanted her child to become famous in legal circles, and objected to her choice of an idle young man, even though he was a fine fellow.

The mother's law offices were in a large building, and the suitor, being romantic, as well as wealthy, determined to be near the girl he loved. When he found that a suite across the court was for rent, he promptly hired it and moved in, although he had no more use for a business office than a missionary in the Cannibal Islands has for tips from the race tracks.

The new business man was very happy for a time. He was able to exchange loving glances with his sweetheart, and in his idle moments he had his mandolin and cigarettes to console him. And the woman lawyer was more determined in her opposition than ever.

The Suffragettes were having a big parade, and the mother was invited to join in the march. She accepted with alacrity, and her stenographer, a mild youth, much in love with the daughter, volunteered to go along. Of course, the daughter had to go, although she protested.

On their way out, the trio met the rich young man, who had followed them in response to a "C. Q. D." signal, sent by the girl. He was asked to join the merry throng, but declined. He had another engagement, he was scheduled to run in a Marathon race, and thereby sank lower than ever in favor.

The youth went to the Marathon race, and won it. The girl went to the Suffragette parade, and walked it. But when a good chance came, she slipped out of line, and joined the throng that cheered her sweetheart. More tired than ever of lawbooks, and pleased with his triumph, she consents to become his wife at once, and to ignore the wishes of her home "Court of Appeals."

The mother and some of her Suffragette friends were celebrating their victory by a meeting in the mother's office when they chanced to look across the court, and saw something that made them gasp.

When you see a couple standing before a minister, when he closes his book, congratulates them, and they kiss, what would you think?

The answer is, of course, that in this particular family, there is only one female lawyer, and that one the mother. For daughter never graduated, but became a happy and contented wife.

"LORNA DOONE"

Thanhouser Release, June 30

Lorna Dugal, the little daughter of an English nobleman, is carried off by her father's enemies, the Doones, when she is five years old. Sir Ensor Doone had been banished from court, and he and his family had established themselves in a well-protected valley, becoming outlaws and highwaymen. To this den of robbers little Lorna is carried, partly for revenge, and partly in the hope that when she grew to womanhood, she could be forced into marriage with one of the Doones, who would thus secure her fortune.

John Ridd, then a little boy, returning from school, saw the helpless child being carried off by the Doones, and at once became interested in her. Lorna is told she is a Doone and believes it.

While on a fishing trip, young John, soon after, accidentally finds a hitherto unknown entrance into Doone valley. Here he meets little Lorna, and the children become fast friends. They arrange to meet often, unknown to the Doones, and through many years their friendship continues.

Finally, when Lorna has reached the age of sixteen, John wins her consent to become his wife. In a heroic fight he rescues his love from the hands of the outlaws, and brings her to his mother's home. Here, as their wedding is being celebrated, they are attacked by the leader of the Doones, who fires at them through the window of their home, and wounds Lorna. The enraged bridegroom rushes from the altar in pursuit of the coward. They engage in mortal combat on the heath at the edge of a quagmire. Here Providence intervenes. The Doone leader in the struggle steps from solid ground, and is swallowed up in the quicksand, leaving John to return to the arms of his bride, now safe from further persecution.

THE HAUNTED ISLAND

Powers Release, Saturday, June 17th

POWERS PICTURE PLAYS
TRADE MARK

The picture opens with a most convincing view of a ship afire, and then shifts to the drifting ashore of the sole survivors, a young married couple.

They find themselves on a barren island. They discover a ship's bell hung among the trees, and are filled with curiosity as to how the bell was placed there, as the island does not appear to have been inhabited at any time. They name the place "The Haunted Island."

That night they hear the bell ringing, and rush to the place where it was located, but there is no one about.

They discover the ring of a hatchway protruding from the sand, and in digging come across a ship buried in the sand. The vessel proved to be an undoubted wreck of a century before. They continue their search and eventually find a pirates' flag, and then many bags of gold in the hold of the vessel.

The following morning they look seaward and discover a ship in the distance. Eventually they are seen by those on board, and are rescued. But they carry from the island the gold, and—what to them was almost as important—the secret of the ringing bell. The picture shows what the secret consisted of, and how it was imparted to them.

"ONLY THE MASTER SHALL JUDGE"

Powers Release, June 27

Bill Culver, a ne'er-do-well living in Montana, associates with a gang, one of the members being Joe Higgins. One day Higgins gets Culver into a gambling game with a stranger; and they both lose, although their intention was to "trim" the unknown. As the stranger is leaving in the stage coach the two decide to hold him up and get back their money, but having worn a hat of Higgins, Higgins himself is accused of the crime. He is surrounded by a posse and finally hung. Culver stands by and sees his pal strung up for the crime which he had committed. In after years his conscience bears upon him and as his end draws near he realizes that the Master had judged him as a guilty man.

"SUMMER MADNESS"

Jack and Edna, young lovers, are spending the summer at a fashionable resort. Edna receives a letter from her brother Paul stating that he was coming on for a visit. Jack overhears their meeting, and not knowing that Paul is Edna's brother becomes extremely jealous. At this juncture Jack receives a letter from his sister Clara stating that she would arrive the next day and Edna discovers their greeting. The result—more jealousy. Edna is about to drown herself in two inches of water when Jack explains to her the truth, stating that Paul had come to see Clara, his sweetheart. The many complicaions that arise in this affair are extremely funny and all ends with the couples becoming engaged.

"THE GHOST OF THE VAULTS"

Great Northern Release, June 24

A girl has two admirers—one a blacksmith—whom she prefers—and the other her cousin. Her father, a miser, wishes her to marry the latter, but she refuses. When her true love pays her a visit, her father sends his servants to capture the young man, and they put him in a cell. Later, the old man makes his nightly visit to the vault beneath his house, where in a huge coffin or shell he keeps his hoarded wealth. The nephew sees the old man go, and follows him. When he has gone, the nephew gets into the great coffin to better obtain the gold. While there he has a fright on seeing a white robed apparition in the doorway. It turns out to be the girl he admires, who is walking in her sleep. She chances to touch the rod which holds up the lid of the coffin, and it comes down with a crash, shutting the man in. The noise wakes the girl, and she is naturally distressed at finding herself in strange and unfamiliar surroundings. She faints, but just then her lover arrives. He has found a secret exit from his cell, and going through the opening finds himself in the vault. To his surprise, he sees his sweetheart there, and is soon at her side. Just then, the father, having heard the noise of the falling lid, returns, and when everything is explained, he denounces the nephew. A pretty concluding scene shows the father consenting to accept the blacksmith as his son-in-law.

Detroit, Mich., June 9, 1911.

Editor of Moving Picture News,
30 West 13th St., N. Y.

Dear Sir:

At a regular meeting of the Detroit Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association, held on June 1st, 1911, it was decided to call a convention on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 11-12-13, 1911. The dates were definitely set, upon receipt of many letters from exhibitors through the State of Michigan, expressing their willingness to be on hand for the occasion. All indications point to a large gathering and a successful meeting is looked forward to.

The purpose of the State Organization is for the future welfare of the moving picture exhibitors of the State of Michigan.

All manufacturers who have appliances that are essential to the moving picture exhibitors are kindly asked to correspond with our secretary, who will see that space is set aside for their exhibit.

Trusting you will give this notice space in your valuable paper, we remain Respectfully yours,

The Detroit Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association.
Per F. H. Baumgartner,
Secretary,
940 Forest Ave., W., City.

NEWSY ITEMS FROM EL CAJON VALLEY

Headquarters of the Western "Flying A" Aggregation

Pauline Bush has arrived. A film manufacturer is, of necessity, conservative. He has to be. The amount of money invested in his business, the necessity of maintaining his reputation, and the ease with which a reputation, covering the manufacture of good moving picture film, can be destroyed tends to make him ultra conservative. A leading lady is a factor and an important one, in the success of any company manufacturing pictures; therefore, a manufacturer always tends toward the desirable element of certainty in employing a lady for this important position. In the majority of instances this element of certainty is assured through the medium of them employing an experienced moving picture actress. The American Company have conclusively proven, however, that experience is not an absolute requisite in the selection of a leading lady.

Miss Pauline Bush, the new leading lady in our Western aggregation, is doing some of the best work, in her particular line, ever projected on the moving picture screen. On account of the peculiar class of our pictures, Miss Bush is invariably cast in the character of a Western girl—a cowgirl. This characterization is a hard one, as it is necessary that the lady impersonating the various characters used be a perfect rider, courageous, pretty, and withal an extremely good actress. Miss Bush has realized our anticipations in connection with all of these qualities and we confidently predict that, within a very short while, she will be acclaimed one of the most popular stars in moving picturedom.

A goodly amount of the success attained by the American Company, in their "Flying a Cowboy" releases, can be attributed to the interest taken in the organization of the Western company by Mr. S. S. Hutchinson, the president of the American Film Manufacturing Company. Mr. Hutchinson is a Westerner. He was born in Cheyenne, Wyoming, in the early Sixties. Cheyenne at that time was a frontier cowboy town and the center of the cattle industry in the United States. The Western Indians were, for the most part, as yet, unfettered, and it was a comparatively common occurrence for him to see the entire garrison manning Fort Laramie, which was located close to Cheyenne, called out to subdue some savage squad of blood-thirsty redmen, who were running amuck in close vicinity to his birthplace.

The knowledge gained by Mr. Hutchinson of Western life generally, of the habits, eccentricities, and peculiarities of the cowboy, during his early years, was used by him to the great advantage of the company, upon its organization in the West.

Through his relatives, some of whom are still residing on the fringe of civilization, were located the best riders, the best ropers, and the best all-around cowboys that the West can boast of. Their capable horsemanship, picturesque appearance, and general worth is well attested and evidenced by the superior quality of the "Flying A" product as it is being released to-day.

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

	Feet
Apr. 26—The Quartermaster	500
May 3—The Traces on the Snow	950
May 10—Air Bubbles	500
May 10—Tweedledum is Late	500
May 17—Grenadier Roland	950
May 24—The Snow Maiden (Dr.)
May 31—Tweedledum's Dream (Com.)
May 31—Exploits of a Napoleon Admirer
June 7—Two Good Friends (Com.)
June 7—The Human Tigress
June 14—The Evolution in Womankind (Com.)
June 14—Kinema Review, Turin Exhibition

AMERICAN.

May 18—A Cowboy's Sacrifice (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Rattlesnakes and Gunpowder (W. Com.)
May 29—The Ranch Tenor (W. Com.)
June 1—The Sheepman's Daughter (W. Dr.)
June 5—A Sage Brush Phrenologist (W. Com.)
June 5—The Elopement on Double L Ranch (W. Com.)
June 8—$5,000 Reward—Dead or Alive (W. Com. Dr.)
June 12—The Witch of the Range (Dr.)
June 15—The Cowboy's Ruse (Com.)
June 15—Law and Order on Bar L (Com.)
June 19—The Yiddisher Cowboy (Com.)
June 19—The Broncho Buster's Bride (Com.)
June 22—The Hermit's Gold (Dr.)

CHAMPION.

Apr. 24—Gen. Meade's Fighting Days	965
Apr. 26—She Wanted a Man with Brains	970
May 1—Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia	1000
May 3—Out of the Dark	990
May 8—Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California	1000
May 10—Making a Man of His Son	910
May 15—Gen. Marion—The Swamp Fox	950
May 17—Circle C's New Boss	950
May 22—With Sheridan at Murfreesboro (Dr.)	950
May 24—In the Great Big West (Dr.)	950
May 29—The Peril of Diaz	950
May 31—How He Redeemed Himself	950
June 5—Service Under Johnston and Lee	950
June 7—The Cost of Drink	950
June 12—Longstreet at Seven Pines	950
June 14—His Last Crooked Deal	950
June 19—Molly Pitcher	950
June 21—For Her Sin	950

ECLAIR

Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
May 8—A Village Flirt (Com.)	910
May 15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.)	910
May 22—A Mother's Distress	430
May 29—The Two Gardeners (Com.)	940
June 5—Impudence Punished (Com.)	550
June 5—Tommy at the Dentist's (Com.)	420
June 12—Caesar's Birotteau (Dr.)	950
June 19—Tommy Gets a Trumpet (Com.)	370
June 19—The Ingenious Accident (Com.)	620
June 26—The Death of Don Juan	965
July 3—Can He Save Her (Dr.)	515
July 3—Tommy Wants to Be an Actor (Com.)	435
July 10—A Child's Heroism (Dr.)	995

GREAT NORTHERN.

Mar. 25—Troubles of a Trip (Com.)
Apr. 1—A Victim of His Double (Dr.)
Apr. 8—A Confidence Trick
Apr. 15—Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr. 22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)
Apr. 29—The Cossack Duke (Dr.)	894
May 6—The Lucky Banana Seller (Com.)
May 6—A Would-be Sportsman (Com.)
May 13—The Nun (Dr.)
May 20—The Voice of Conscience (Dr.)	786
May 20—Berne (Switzerland) (Sc.)	204
May 27—The Love of a Gypsy Girl (Dr.)
June 3—The Bogus Governess	945
June 10—True Love Never Dies (Dr.)
June 17—Hotel Thieves

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Mar. 16—The Fishermaid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 20—In Old Madrid (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 27—Sweet Memories (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr. 6—The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 10—A Good Cigar
Apr. 10—A Faithless Man
Apr. 13—The Storm
Apr. 20—The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr. 27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
May 1—Second Sight (Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
May 8—Four Lives (Dr.)	300
May 8—The Fair Dentist (Com.)	700
May 11—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Master and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Lighthouse Keeper (Dr.)	1000
May 22—The Forged Despatch (Dr.)	1000
May 25—The Minor Chord (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Three of a Kind (Dr.)	1000
June 1—The Last Appeal (Dr.)	1000
June 5—The Grind (Dr.)	700
June 5—The Chicago Stockyards Fire (Sc.)	500
June 8—Back to the Soil (Dr.)	1000
June 12—Behind the Stockade (Dr.)	1000
June 15—The Piece of String (Dr.)	1000
June 19—All for a Big Order (Dr.)	1000
June 22—The Fortune of War (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

Apr. 29—Foolshead Telegraph Boy	500
Apr. 29—The Bottle of Milk (Com.)	500
May 4—The Cry of the Native Country (Dr.)	950
May 6—Foolshead—Life Insurance Agent (Com.)	950
May 6—The Fountains of Rome
May 11—The Marchioness of Ansperti (Dr.)	950
May 13—Marriage Advertisement (Com.)	500
May 13—Foolshead Has Lost a Needle (C.)	500
May 18—Little Mother	950
May 20—Two Girls Love Foolshead (Com.)
May 26—The Little Rider (Dr.)
June 1—The Collector's Purse (Dr.)
June 3—International Exhibition at Turin.
June 3—Knows-All, Anthropological Doctor (Com.)
June 8—A Life for the Czar (Dr.)
June 10—An Odd Adventure of Foolshead (Com.)
June 10—Experiments with Forlanini's Hydra-Plane
June 15—The Rights of Age (Dr.)
June 17—The Physician's Monkey (Com.)
June 17—Foolshead, Somnambulist (Com.)

LUX.

By Prieur.

Apr. 28—Naughty Miss Edith (Com.)	472
Apr. 28—Bill's Garden (Com.)	419
May 5—Bill as a Toreador (Com.)	419
May 5—Fashion and Its Consequence (Com.)	426
May 12—The Postmistress (Dr.)	700
May 12—A Walk in Tunis	252
May 19—Bill at Work (Com.)	367
May 19—All Through a Rat (Com.)	475
May 26—The Two Cockades (Dr.)	698
May 26—Tidying Up Paris (Com.)	268
June 2—Just Bill's Luck (Com.)	403
June 2—Arnold Has a Good Trial (Com.)	462
June 9—The Companion Governess (Dr.)	639
June 9—Bill at Play (Com.)	331
June 16—Bill Loses His Mother-in-Law (Com.)	409
June 16—He Went for a Rest (Com.)	442
June 23—Billy's Day Out (Com.)	550
June 23—Weary Tom's Dream (Com.)	318
June 30—Bill Determines to Go (Com.)	455
June 30—Shortsighted Miss Prim (Com.)	426

NESTOR FILM CO.

Mar. 15—Was It Worth While? (Dr.)
Mar. 22—Could You Blame Him? (Com.)
Mar. 29—The Truth (Dr.)
Apr. 5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr. 12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr. 19—The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr. 26—His Wife (Dr.)
May 3—The Other Man (Dr.)
May 10—After Twenty Years (Dr.)
May 17—His Second Choice (Com.)
May 24—At Panther Creek (Dr.)
May 31—The Savage (Dr.)
May 31—A Sure Cure (Com.)
June 7—The Cowpuncher (Dr.)
June 7—The Little Burglar (Com.)
June 14—The Sheriff's Mistake (Dr.)
June 14—The Plan that Failed (Com.)
June 21—At Sunset Ranch (Dr.)
June 21—Just His Luck (Com.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

Apr. 18—Return of Company D (Dr.)	950
Apr. 21—A Cowboy for a Day (Com.)	950
May 2—Shifty's Claim (W. Com. Dr.)	950
May 5—A Knight of the Trail	950
May 9—The Crow Chief's Defeat (Dr.)	950
May 12—The Foreman's Bride (Com. Dr.)	950
May 16—The Broncho Buster's Rival
May 19—The Cheyenne Medicine Man
May 23—The Outlaw and the Female Detective
May 26—Brave Swift Eagle's Peril
May 30—A Redskin's Bravery
June 2—A Tale of the Foothills
June 6—His Lordship's Hunting Trip (Com. Dr.)
June 9—A Child of the Rancho (Dr.)
June 13—A Squaw's Retribution
June 16—The Desert's Lure

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

Apr. 18—Copper Wit (Com.)
Apr. 18—The Wine Harvest
Apr. 22—The Last Rose
Apr. 25—A Day with an English Bargeman (Com.)
Apr. 25—Melody of Fate (Dr.)
Apr. 29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.)
May 2—The Crisis (Dr.)
May 2—The Joys of Persecution (Com.)
May 6—The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)
May 9—The Four of Us (Com.)
May 9—Contagion (Com.)
May 13—As Your Hair Grows Whiter (Dr.)
May 16—Oklahoma (Dr.)
May 16—A Matrimonial Surprise (Com.)
May 20—Gunga Din (Dr.)
May 23—Her Atonement
May 27—Fifty Years Ago
May 30—Civilization
June 3—Eyes That See Not (Dr.)
June 6—The Black Heart (Dr.)
June 10—The Stranger's Plate (Dr.)
June 13—Smith's Marmalade (Com.)
June 17—The Haunted Island (Dr.)

RELIANCE

May 27—O'er Grim Fields Scarred (Dr.)
May 31—Dad's Girl
June 3—In Flowers Paled
June 7—The Minute and the Maid
June 10—The Broken Coin
June 14—All Alone (Dr.)
June 17—A Pair of Pants (Com.)
June 17—A Bashful Son (Com.)
June 21—The Price of Vanity

REX

Apr. 20—A Daughter of the Revolution (Dr.)
Apr. 27—The Realization (Dr.)
May 4—The Ultimate Sacrifice
May 11—The Guardsman (Dr.)
May 18—An Exception to the Rule (Com.)
May 25—Called Back (Dr.)
June 1—The Monogram "J. O." (Dr.)
June 8—From Death to Life (Dr.)
June 15—The Twins (Dr.)

SOLAX COMPANY

May 5—The Somnambulist (Dr.)
May 10—Nearly a Hero (Com.)
May 17—His Dumb Wife (Com.)
May 19—In the Nick of Time (Dr.)
May 24—House of Peace (Com.)
May 24—The Devil in the Tin Cup (Com.)
May 26—An Officer and a Gentleman (Dr.)
May 31—The Marvelous Cow (Com.)
June 2—Never Too Late to Mend (Dr.)
June 14—A Bad Egg (Com.)
June 16—A Daughter of the Navajos (Dr.)

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Apr. 7—Vindicated
Apr. 11—Velvet and Rags
Apr. 14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.)
Apr. 18—Cally's Comet (Com.)	1000
Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr. 25—Poet of the People (His.)
Apr. 28—An Elevator Romance (Com.)
May 2—The Pillars of Society (Dr.)
May 5—The Sinner (Dr.)
May 9—The Railroad Builder (Dr.)	1000
May 12—The Regimental Ball (Dr.)	1000
May 16—The Colonel and the King
May 19—Lady Clare
May 23—The Stage Child (Dr.)
May 26—Get Rick Quick (Dr.)
May 30—A Wartime Wooing
June2 —A Circus Stowaway
June 6—The Stepmother
June 9—Motoring
June 9—The Rescue of Mr. Henpeck
June 13—Little Old New York (Dr.)
June 16—Flames and Fortune (Dr.)
June 20—The Coffin Ship
June 23—Foxy Grandma

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Apr. 4—The Girl Stowaway's Heroism (Dr.)
Apr. 10—An Adventure in Sicily (Dr.)
Apr. 14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.)
Apr. 17—A Close Call (Dr.)
Apr. 21—The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr. 24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr. 28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May 1—A Kentucky Girl (Dr.)
May 5—Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.)
May 8—In Sunny Italy (Dr.)
May 12—The Angelus Bell (Dr.)
May 15—An Indian Brave's Conversion (Dr.)
May 19—The Banana Planter's Peril (Dr.)
May 22—The Little Western Rose (Dr.)
May 26—Thwarted by Nell Pierce (Dr.)
May 29—The Birth Mark (Dr.)
June 2—His Romance (Dr.)
June 5—The Scandal Monger (Dr.)
June 9—Mrs. Biffin's Demise (Dr.)
June 12—Thou Shalt Pay (Dr.)
June 16—The New Congressman (Dr.)
June 19—Sun Bonnet Sue (Dr.)
June 23—The Two Roads (Dr.)

LICENSEES OF PATENTS CO.

BIOGRAPH

	Feet
Apr. 27—How She Triumphed (Com.)	998
May 1—The Two Sides (Dr.)	998
May 4—Misplaced Jealousy (Com.)	503
May 4—Cupid's Joke (Com.)	493
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 8—In the Days of '49 (Dr.)	995
May 11—The Country Lovers (Dr.)	995
May 15—The New Dress (Dr.)	998
May 18—The Manicure Lady (Dr.)	998
May 22—The Crooked Road (Dr.)	997
May 25—The White Rose of the Wilds (Dr.)	998
May 29—A Romany Tragedy (Dr.)	996
June 1—A Dutch Gold Mine (Com.)	769
June 1—Curiosity (Com.)	228
June 5—A Smile of a Child(Dr.)	997
June 8—Their Fates Sealed (Com.)	396
June 8—Dave's Love Affair (Com.)	601
June 12—Enoch Arden, Part I (Dr.)	998
June 15—Enoch Arden, Part II (Dr.)	999
June 19—Bearded Youth (Com.)	484
June 19—The Delayed Proposal (Com.)	511
June 22—The Primal Call (Dr.)	997

EDISON

	Feet
May 9—Edna's Imprisonment (Com.)	975
May 10—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)	1000
May 12—The Quarrel on the Cliff (Dr.)	1000
May 16—In the Baggage Coach Ahead (Dr.)	1000
May 17—In and Around Havana, Cuba	450
May 17—How the Hungry Man was Fed (Com.)	550
May 19—A Case of High Treason (Dr.)	1000
May 23—Captain Nell (Dr.)	1000
May 24—Madeline's Rebellion (Com.)	990
May 26—Hearts and Flags (Dr.)	1000
May 30—The Niece and the Chorus Lady (Com.)	975
May 31—The Inheritance (Com.)	625
May 31—It Served Her Right (Com.)	375
June 2—A Sane Fourth of July	1000
June 7—Father's Dress Suit (Com.)	500
June 6—The Cardinal's Edict (Dr.)	1000
June 7—A Lesson Learned (Dr.)	500
June 9—The Wager and the Wage Earners (Dr.)	1000
June 13—Her Brother's Photograph (Dr.)	1000
June 14—Heroes Three (Com.)	500
June 14—Mistakes Will Happen (Com.)	500
June 16—Van Bibber's Experiment (Dr.)	1000
June 20—The Thoroughbred (Dr.)	1000
June 21—A Cure for Dyspepsia (Com.)	750
June 21—A Comedy of Understanding (Com.)	250
June 23—His Misjudgment (Dr.)	1000

ESSANAY FILM CO.

	Feet
Apr. 22—The Indian Maiden's Lesson (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Two Mothers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 29—What a Woman Can Do (Dr.)	950
May 2—The Snare of the City (Dr.)	1000
May 6—The Bunco Game at Lizardhead (Com.)	1000
May 9—Holding His Own (Com.)	600
May 9—The Laundry Lady's Luck (Com.)	400
May 13—The Cow Puncher's New Love (Dr.)	1000
May 16—Wild Animals in Captivity (Edu.)	1000
May 20—"Alkali" Ike's Auto (Com.)	1000
May 23—The Atonement (Dr.)	1000
May 27—The Lucky Card (Dr.)	1000
May 30—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
June 3—The Infant at Snakeville (Dr.)	1000
June 6—His Friend's Wife (Dr.)	1000
June 10—Forgiven in Death (Dr.)	1000
June 14—The World's Most Daring Drivers	1000
June 17—The Tribe's Penalty (Dr.)	1000
June 20—She Got the Money (Com.)	580
June 20—The Cat Came Back (Com.)	400

GAUMONT
G. Kleine

	Feet
Apr. 15—The Oppressor (Dr.)	640
Apr. 15—Jimmy the Fox (Com.)	380
Apr. 18—Lost Years	630
Apr. 18—Brest, a Fortified Harbor of France	370
Apr. 22—The Erring Son (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 25—The Romance of a Valet	510
Apr. 25—Old Folks	490
Apr. 29—A Priestess of Carthage	1060
May 2—The Young King of Rome	440
May 2—Tunis, Africa, the City of White	560
May 6—The Crusade of the Templars	1000
May 9—Three of a Kind	740
May 9—Spring-Heeled Jack	245
May 13—In the Days of Nero	1000
May 16—The Bankrupt	1000
May 20—Jimmie on a Lark	570
May 20—Shooting the Rapids	450
May 23—The Emperor's Return	795
May 23—Swans	205
May 24—The Gaul's Honor	582
May 24—On the Frontier of Thibet, Asia	420
May 27—Alone at Night	480
May 27—Jimmie the Sportsman	510
May 30—Science vs. Quackery	970
June 3—Mistrust	985
June 6—The Drawn Curtain	735
June 6—Chrysanthemums	240
June 10—The Love Story of a Great Aetress	1000
June 13—Jimmie, the Insurance Agent (C.)	640
June 13—The City of Florence, Italy	360
June 17—The King's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
June 20—His Leap to Liberty	648
June 20—Jiggers Buys a Watch Dog	337
June 24—The Ransom	980

KALEM CO.

	Feet
Apr. 12—In Old Florida (Dr.)	965
Apr. 14—Slim Jim's Last Chance (Dr.)	970
Apr. 19—The Phoney Prince (Com.)	990
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 21—The Insurrecto (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 26—A Night and a Day (Com.)	995
Apr. 28—Slabsides (Dr.)	1005
May 3—The Fiddle's Requiem (Dr.)	1000
May 5—When the Dead Return (Dr.)	990
May 10—The Loyalty of Don Luis Verdugo (Dr.)	980
May 12—The Carnival (Dr.)	1000
May 17—A Tragedy in Toyland (Dr.)	940
May 19—In Blossom Time (Dr.)	1000
May 24—Carrier Pigeons (Dr.)	970
May 26—Tangled Lives (Dr.)	1000
May 31—Bertie's Reform (Com.)	1005
June 2—Her Son (Dr.)	1000
June 7—Advertising for Mamma (Dr.)	1010
June 9—The Love of Summer Morn (Dr.)	990
June 14—Money in the Bank (Com.)	960
June 16—The Railroad Raiders of '62 (Dr.)	1000
June 21—A Mexican Rose Garden (Dr.)	1010
June 23—Lean Wolf's End (Dr.)	980

LUBIN

	Feet
Apr. 17—The Two Fathers (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 20—Helping Him Out (Com.)	1000
Apr. 24—The Hoyden (Com.)	1000
Apr. 27—The Sheriff and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 1—A Fascinating Bachelor (Com. Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Belated Bridegroom (Com.)	1000
May 8—That Awful Brother (Com.)	1000
May 11—Drifting (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Angels of the Slums (Dr.)	1000
May 18—Her Humble Ministry (Dr.)	1000
May 22—The Gamhler's Chance (Dr.)	600
May 22—A Hero—Almost (Com.)	400
May 25—A Good Turn (Dr.)	1000
May 29—The State Line (Dr.)	1000
June 1—A Game of Deception (Com.)	1000
June 5—The Feud (Com.)	635
June 5—The Sardine Industry (Indus.)	365
June 8—The Professor's Ward (Dr.)	1000
June 12—The Cook (Com.)	600
June 12—Athletic Carnival	400
June 15—Duke de Rihhon Counter (Com.)	1000
June 19—The Indian's Sacrifice (Dr.)	1000
June 22—Higginses vs. Judsons (Com.)	1000

G. MELIES.

	Feet
Apr. 27—The Reformation of Jack Robin	1000
May 4—Mary's Strategem	1000
May 11—The Spring Round-Up	1000
May 18—The Redemption of Rawhide (Com.)	980
May 25—The Immortal Alamo	1000
June 1—In Time for Press	1000
June 8—Her Spoiled Boy	1000
June 15—When the Tables Turned (Com.)	1000
June 22—The Kiss of Mary Jane (Dr.)	1000
June 29—The Honor of the Flag	1000
July 6—The Great Heart of the West	1000
July 13—The Strike at the Gringo	1000

PATHE FRERES

	Feet
May 3—Indian Justice	1000
May 5—Max is Forced to Work	670
May 5—Through Venice	295
May 6—Short-Lived Happiness (Dr.)	1000
May 8—My Daughter	748
May 8—Over Lucerne (Switzerland) in an Airship	253
May 10—The Abernathy Kids' Rescue (Dr.)	771
May 10—The Ocean Harnessed	216
May 12—The Samourai's Expiation	640
May 12—American Beauties	351
May 13—Lucia's Broken Romance (Dr)	958
May 20—A Close Call
May 26—Semiramis
May 14—Leo Tolstoi
May 15—The Accomplice (Dr.)	836
May 15—Winter Sports at Lucerne	150
May 17—Billy in Trouhle (Com.)	950
May 20—Paul and Francesco	859
May 20—The Fastest Motor Boat in the World	50
May 22—Shooting the Rapids in Japan	150
May 22—Boxing Match—Astrier-Quendreux	823
May 24—The Heart of an Indian Maid (Dr.)	990
May 26—Semiramis	945
May 27—All for Money (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Love Proves Stronger Than Duty	689
May 29—Bob's Microscope	300
May 31—The Flag Didn't Rise (Dr.)	950
June 2—Shame on Max (Com.)	390
June 2—Loyal Love	604
June 3—His Bahy's Doll (Dr.)	997
June 5—A Rough Diamond	751
June 5—The Scorpion	249
June 7—The Insubordinate Soldier (Dr.)	1000
June 9—Khamara	810
June 9—Miss Blum	174
June 10—A Broken Life (Dr.)	987
June 12—The Power and the Glory	764
June 12—Hawkins and His Dogs	203
June 14—There's a Woman in Town (Com.)	564
June 14—A Hippopotamus Hunt	423
June 16—Faust	1650
June 17—The Society Girl and the Gypsy (Dr.)	1000
June 19—Over the Cliff (Dr.)	371
June 19—Max Comes Home (Com.)	456
June 19 Winter Sports at Lucerne	164
June 21—For the Squaw	1000
June 23—Tabarin's Wife (Dr.)	676
June 23—Volendam, Holland	300
June 24—Old Indian Days	1000

SELIG

	Feet
May 8—Lost and Won	1000
May 11—Back to the Primitive	1000
May 15—Discharging the Cook (Com.)
May 15—Dear, Kind Hubby
May 18—The Still Alarm
May 22—The Herders
May 23—Stability vs. Nobility
May 25—Jim and Joe
May 29—A Novel Experiment	1000
May 30—One of Nature's Noblemen	1000
June 1—The Rose of Old St. Augustine	1000
June 5—Where There's a Will, There's a Way, and The Great Nitrate of Soda Industry of Chile	1000
June 6—Montana Anna (Com. Dr.)	1000
June 8—The Visiting Nurse (Dr.)	1000
June 12—Ten Nights in a Barroom, Part I (Dr.)	1000
June 13—Ten Nights in a Barroom, Part II (Dr.)	1000
June 15—The Novice (Dr.)	1000
June 19—The Mission Worker (Com. Dr.)	1000
June 20—Range Pals	1000
June 22—Told in the Sierras	1000

URBAN ECLIPSE
G. Kleine

	Feet
Mar. 8—Beautiful Wye Valley, England	300
Mar. 15—Redemption	508
Mar. 15—The Thames, from Oxford to Richmond	472
Mar. 22—The Money Lender	688
Nemours and the Banks of the River Loing, France	320
Mar. 29—Dr. Charcot's Trip Toward the South Pole	478
Mar. 29—The Cormorants, or Japanese Catching Fish with Birds	528
Apr. 5—At the Old Mill (Dr)	675
Apr. 5—Making Bamboo Hats in Java	325
Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 19—Solving the Servant Problem (C.)	465
Apr. 19—In the Province of Kwang Tung, China	535
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
Apr. 26—The Last Edict of Francis II	875
Apr. 26—Scenes at Colombo, Ceylon	125
May 3—The Page's Devotion	790
May 3—Wismar, Germany	210
May 10—The Traitor (Dr.)	620
May 10—Rubber-Neck Percy (Com.)	370
May 17—The Juggler's Vengeance (Dr.)	396
May 17—Fishguard Harbor, Wales	600
May 31—The Musketeer	588
May 31—The Sleuth	404
June 7—The Young Interne	750
June 7—Heligoland, an Isle of the North Sea	250
June 14—Sir John Falstaff	1000
June 21—Avenged	1000

VITAGRAPH

	Feet
Mar. 31—The Inherited Taint (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 1—A Republican Marriage	996
Apr. 4—Unexpected Review (Com.)	660
Apr. 4—Hop Picking (Indust.)	335
Apr. 7—The Winning of the Stepchildren (Dr.)	965
Apr. 8—Winsor McCay (Com.)	650
Apr. 8—Bob Sledding	350
Apr. 11—The Wooing of Winifred (Com.)	988
Apr. 14—Though Your Sins be as Scarlet (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 15—Easter Babies (Com. Dr.)	980
Apr. 18—The Leading Lady (Com.)	985
Apr. 21—The Troublesome Secretaries (Com.)	990
Apr. 22—The Spirit of the Light (Dr.)	995
Apr. 25—A Klondike Steal (Dr.)	998
Apr. 28—The Peace Offering (Com.)	998
Apr. 29—Piccolla (Dr.)	993
May 2—The Derelict Reporter (Dr.)	975
May 5—Soldiers Three (Com.)	1000
May 6—Hungry Hearts (Dr.)	985
May 9—His Mother (Dr.)	995
May 12—The Welcome of the Unwelcome (Com.)	1000
May 13—Prejudice of Pierre Marie (Dr.)	985
May 16—When a Man's Married (Com.)	1000
May 19—The Show Girl (Dr.)	990
May 20—Sunshine and Shadow (Dr.)	990
May 23—A Dead Man's Honor (Dr.)	1000
May 26—Tim Mahoney, the Scab (Dr.)	1000
May 27—The Fires of Fate (Dr.)	1000
May 30—Cupid's Chauffeur (Com.)	1000
June 2—The Ends of the Earth (Dr.)	1000
June 3—A Clever Fraud (Com.)	1000
June 6—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
June 9—The Sacrifice (Dr.)	1000
June 10—The Changing of Silas Warner (Dr.)	1000
June 13—The Trapper's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
June 16—Proving His Love (Dr.)	1000
June 17—Teaching McFadden to Waltz (C.)	1000
June 20—The Stumbling Block (Com.)	993
June 23—The Sleepwalker (Dr.)	1000
June 24—Barriers Burned Away (Dr.)	485
June 24—Two Overcoats (Com.)	519

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"When you think of WESTERN think of FLYING A COWBOY FILMS"

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JUNE 19

"THE YIDDISHER COWBOY"

"THE BRONCHO BUSTER'S BRIDE"

"Yiddisher" and "Cowboy" do not jibe. There are complications uproariously laugh-provoking. Likewise two more "Flying A" Cowboy Comedies on one reel.

Scene from "The Yiddisher Cowboy"

Scene from "The Broncho Buster's Bride"

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JUNE 22

"THE HERMIT'S GOLD"

A strong, full-blooded, virile Drama of the West with a rending climax. Truly a "cowboy" masterpiece.

COMING

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JUNE 26th

"THE ACTRESS AND THE COWBOYS"

"THE SKY PILOT'S INTEMPERANCE"

Two Flying A Cowboy Comedies.

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JUNE 29

"A WESTERN WAIF"

A Cowboy Drama of class and worth.

EVERY MONDAY AND THURSDAY WISE EXHIBITORS GET FLYING A COWBOY FILMS 2—EACH WEEK—2

Scene from "The Hermit's Gold"

Scene from "The Hermit's Gold"

American Film Mfg. Co.,

Bank Floor, Ashland Block
CHICAGO, ILLS.

The Lesson of Success

When a piece of machinery or other article made for service and not for show becomes an immediate success and remains a success does it tell anything of the merit of the article?

Can any machine go into extensive use and enjoy continued popularity if it does not render service that is satisfactory?

If success from its first appearance and constantly extending mean anything to you, you will consider the record of POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH NO. 6 before you buy a moving picture machine.

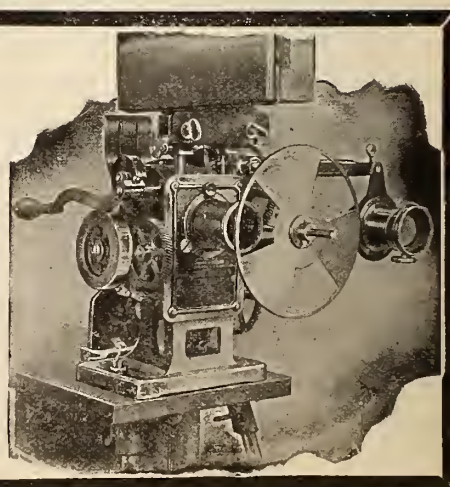
In a year after its introduction its monthly sales had become larger than those of any two competing machines.

Today its volume of sales in proportion to those of competitors is larger than ever.

Wouldn't it pay you to learn about it before you buy? Send now for Catalog D.



NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York

"POWER'S" CURRENT SAVERS give best arc regulation, maximum current saving, heaviest amperage at the arc. No others compare with them.

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK - - - - - - - -	LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - - - - - - - -	3,750,000
FULLY PAID UP - - - - - - - -	LIRE 5,750,000

EXCHANGE MEN WRITE TO US FOR PARTICULARS OF OUR FIRST RELEASE

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPH: CINES NEW YORK

SPECIAL NOTICE

NON-BREAKABLE

Lantern Slides

ANNOUNCEMENT
ADVERTISING
LECTURE
MICROSCOPIC
NATURAL HISTORY

We makes slides of all kinds.

SLIDES

Artistic and beautifully colored.

Don't be faked by would-be Original Inventors who claim, and are trying to manufacture non-breakable slides.

SEND FOR CATALOG.

MICA NON-BREAKABLE SLIDE CO.
2737 N. Croskey St. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.
228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.
Telephone: 3790 Oxford

CORONATION

THIS WEEKLY PROGRAM

OF

MONDAY	IMP	ECLAIR	YANKEE	AMERICAN ...	CHAMPION
TUESDAY	THANHOUSER		BISON		... POWERS
WEDNESDAY ..	CHAMPION ..	SOLAX	RELIANCE	AMBROSIO	NESTOR
THURSDAY ...	IMP	AMERICAN	ITALA		..... REX
FRIDAY	YANKEE	SOLAX	LUX	THANHOUSER	BISON
SATURDAY ...	POWERS	ITALA	GT. NORTHERN		. RELIANCE

SURPASSES ANY 26 RELEASES EVER SHOWN IN AMERICA, CANADA AND EUROPE and can be obtained in the United States and Canada from only the following Exchanges, buying from us.

CANADA
Applegath, L. J., & Sons, 145 Yonge St., Toronto, Ont.
CANADIAN FILM EXCH., Calgary. Alberta.
Gaumont Co., 154 St. Catharine St., Montreal, Que.
Gt. Western Film Co., 613 Ashdown Block, Winnipeg, Man.
Western Film Exch., Savoy Theatre Bldg., Vancouver, B. C.

CALIFORNIA
California Film Exch., 1065 Mission St., San Francisco.
Miles Bros., 790 Turk St., San Francisco.
Miles Bros., 411 West 8th St., Los Angeles.
California Film Exch., 514 So. Los Angeles St., Los Angeles.

COLORADO
Co-Operative Ind. Film Co., Barclay Block, Denver
W. H. Swanson Film Exch., 301 Railroad Bldg., Denver.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
Washington Film Exch., 428 9th St., N. W.

GEORGIA
Consolidated Film Exch., Rhodes Bldg., Atlanta.

ILLINOIS
Anti-Trust Film Co., 128 W. Lake St., Chicago.
Globe Film Service, 107 E. Madison St., Chicago.
H. & H. Film Exchange, 98 Jackson Blvd., Chicago.
Laemmle Film Service, 196 Lake St., Chicago.
Standard Film Exchange, 159 E. Washington St., Chicago.

INDIANA
Central Film Service, 119 North Illinois St., Indianapolis, Ind.

IOWA
Laemmle Film Service, Suite 2 and 3, 515 Mulberry St., Des Moines.

KANSAS
Wichita Film & Supply Co., 122 N. Market St., Wichita.

LOUISIANA
Dixie Film Company, 720 Maison Blanche Bldg., New Orleans.

MASSACHUSETTS
Boston Film Rental Co., 665 Washington St., Boston.
W. E. Green Film Exchange, 228 Tremont St., Boston.

MARYLAND
Baltimore Film Exch., 610 E. Baltimore St., Baltimore.

MINNESOTA
Laemmle Film Service, 256 Hennipen St., Minneapolis.

MICHIGAN
Michigan Film and Supply Co., 1106 Union Trust Bldg., Detroit.
Cadillac Film Exch., 92 Griswold St., Detroit.

MISSOURI
J. W. Morgan, 1310 Walnut St., Kansas City.
Swanson-Crawford Film Co., Century Bldg., St. Louis.
Western Film Exchange, 15 W. 10th St., Kansas City.

NEBRASKA
Laemmle Film Service, 1517 Farnham St., Omaha.

NEW YORK
Albany Film Exchange, 418 Broadway, Albany.
Victor Film Service, 39 Church St., Buffalo.

NEW YORK CITY
Empire Film Exchange, 150 E. Fourteenth St.
Great Eastern Film Exchange, 21 E. Fourteenth St.
Peerless Film Exchange, 5 East Fourteenth St.
Wm. Steiner Film Exchange, 110 Fourth Ave.
Western Film Exchange, 145 W. 45th St.

OHIO
Cincinnati Buckeye Film Co., 422 N. High St., Columbus.
Cincinnati Buckeye Film Co., 315 W. 4th St., Cincinnati.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., 106 Prospect Ave., S. E., Cleveland.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., Columbus.
Toledo Film Service, 120 Erie St., Toledo.
Victor Film Service, Prospect and Huron Sts., Cleveland.

OREGON
Independent W. F. Exch., 84 Seventh St., Portland.

OKLAHOMA
United Motion Picture Co., 112 Main St., Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA
Eagle Film Exchange, 23 North 9th St., Philadelphia.
Exhibitors' Film Service Co., 49 So. Penn Ave., Wilkesbarre.
Philadelphia Film Exch., 934 Arch St., Philadelphia.
Philadelphia Projection Co., 44 No. 9th St., Philadelphia.
Swaab Film Service Co., 129 N. 8th St., Philadelphia.
Independent Film Exchange, 415 Ferry St., Pittsburg.
Pittsburg Photoplay Co., 412 Ferry St., Pittsburg.

TEXAS
Texas Film Exchange, 1315½ Elm St., Dallas.
Consolidated Amuse. Co., Bill Sol. Theatre Bldg., Houston.

UTAH
Co-Operative Ind. Film Co., 320 Atlas Block, Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON
Pacific Film Exchange, Globe Bldg., Seattle.

WISCONSIN
Western Film Exchange, 307 Enterprise Bldg., Milwaukee.

IF THE EXCHANGE YOU ARE DOING BUSINESS WITH IS NOT ON THE LIST OF BUYING EXCHANGES YOU ARE NOT GETTING THE CLASS NOR QUALITY OF FILM YOUR MONEY ENTITLES YOU TO.

HAVE YOU BOOKED THE CORONATION FILM?

DO IT NOW AND GET YOUR POSTERS IN ADVANCE. FILM DELIVERIES WILL LEAVE NEW YORK ABOUT JULY 18th, AHEAD OF ANY OTHERS.

FIRST-RUN EXHIBITORS WILLING TO PAY EXTRA FOR A "BEAT," ASK YOUR EXCHANGE IMMEDIATELY FOR PARTICULARS.

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES CO., 111 East 14th Street NEW YORK

CORONATION

JUL 6 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 25

June 24
1911

EDWIN THANHOUSER

PRICE
TEN CENTS

READY!

(BACK COVER) (FRONT COVER)

Now, then, you exhibitors who have been looking for a special midsummer business-booster, send for the Imp Book if you have not already received a copy. Ask about our special proposition. Don't put it off and forget it. Do it this minute. Take advantage of the hard work and thought we have put into this business-boosting scheme for YOU! The Imp Book is ready and the first edition is going like wildfire. Be the first to spring it in your territory. Be a live one. And hurry up!

Next "IMP" Releases Are Superb!

"In the Sultan's Garden"

Here is a moving picture so completely out of the ordinary that your patrons will go wild about it. It deals with a young American naval officer who falls in love with the Sultan's favorite and carries her away after one of the best marine battles ever shown on the screen. Released Monday, July 3. Put up the hottest scrap of your career to get this Imp release!

"For the Queen's Honor"

Is one of the most magnificently staged pictures we ever produced. It is a story of Italy in the sixteenth century, the principals being members of the royal family. The remarkable versatility of members of the Imp stock companies is shown to better advantage than ever before. Make immediate arrangements for an early booking. Released Thursday, July 6.

INDEPENDENT MOVING PICTURES CO. IMP AMERICA

SEND US FIVE DOLLARS FOR AN IMP LOBBY DISPLAY, consisting of handsome oak frame ($3\frac{1}{8}$ by $2\frac{1}{2}$ feet) with ten heavily glassed openings, each containing a fine photograph of an Imp performer. It's the best lobby display that has ever been issued for picture houses. Order at once.

Demand Two Imps Every Week

Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America.
102 W. 101st St., New York. Carl Laemmle, Pres.
We want your name and address immediately.

UNCLE SAM FILMS
MADE BY YANKEE FILM COMPANY NEW YORK
TRADE MARK

Yankee Leads Them All

A Yankee Roarer

Release Day, Monday, July 3

Mr. Groucho's Quiet Fourth of July

A side-splitting, rip-roaring Comedy, full of life and action.

One steady SCREAM from beginning to end. Not a quiet moment in the entire reel.

RELEASE JULY 7th

His Great Sacrifice

YANKEE FILM CO.
344 East 32d Street, NEW YORK

BOOK THE CORONATION

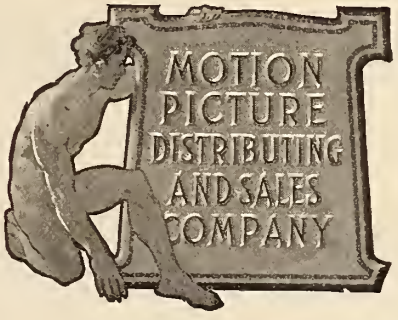
OF

KING GEORGE V of ENGLAND

WITH YOUR EXCHANGE WHILE THERE ARE STILL OPEN DATES AVAILABLE and thus assure yourself of getting sufficient number of posters in advance.

FILM DELIVERIES WILL BE MADE ABOUT

JULY 1st



First run customer exhibitors willing to pay extra for a "beat"—Ask your exchange immediately for particulars.

LOOK AT THIS WEEKLY PROGRAM

MONDAY	Imp, Eclair, Yankee, American, Champion.
TUESDAY	Thanhouser, Bison, Powers.
WEDNES.	Champion, Solax, Reliance, Ambrosio, Nestor.
THURSDAY	Rex, Imp, American, Itala.
FRIDAY	Yankee, Solax, Bison, Lux, Thanhouser.
SATURDAY	Powers, Itala, Great Northern, Reliance.

Surpasses any twenty-six releases ever shown in United States and Canada and can be obtained only from exchanges buying from Motion Picture Distributing and Sales Co.

111 East 14th Street, New York City

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

The Eyes of all Filmdom are on

MR. INSISTER
HIS Eyes Are On

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

THE PATRIOTIC MASTERPIECE—RELEASED TUESDAY, JULY 4

can be advertised to the public as above or as in previous ads: "The Star-Spangled Banner Special," "The Subject that Interests More Americans than Any Other Ever Made," etc., etc. The point is, that no matter what you call it along these lines, the reel will back up any reasonable claim you make for it. It will interest anyone, anywhere, in the United States, at any time, and will give full value for the sum charged to see it, be that five cents or twenty-five cents. The reel covers not only the subject matter, but the Boston Tea Party, Paul Revere's Ride, The Redcoats' Retreat from Lexington, and the Life of John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration.

No. 225. Code Word, Dec.

RELEASED FRIDAY, JULY 7
An Entrancing Detective Story

THE COURT'S DECREE

As the latest and perhaps best issue in the successful Violet Gray Detective Series, this is assuredly worth booking and boosting. While the wind-up of the picture is quite happy, the story is not the conventional "nice ending" kind. Indeed, it is so true to life that it finds Detective Gray allied to the side to which your sympathies aren't—but that's where she'd be in real life, the "real life" element in motion pictures is the one that appeals to the public.

No. 226 Code Word, Cree.

COMING---"THE DOLL'S HOUSE" By IBSEN

THANHOUSER COMPANY
NEW ROCHELLE NEW YORK

©CLB245610

"The contents of this issue are copyrighted"

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan. 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City.

ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV June 24, 1911 Number 25

THE POLICY OF THE NEWS

As in the past, and the present, so in the future, do we intend to uphold the highest principles of Cinematography. Now that the bugaboo of the patent question has been removed, we feel sure that the industry will advance by leaps and bounds, that in every line and sphere of its operations, only the greatest ideals will be produced. For the past five years we have been advocating the greatest good for the greatest number; the Moving Picture News has always been in the forefront of the battle to obtain these conditions. We have fought almost unaided to gain and arouse the people to what is now an accomplished fact, good pictures suitable for the edification of the people. We have been a strong advocate for the principles of independence. We have never swerved from our ideal. Other editors may come and go, may change their coat again and again, may sell their principles for a dollar, may cringe and fawn and spy, but we have done everything in our power to keep an open, honest mind, clean politics, calling a spade a spade, and a shovel a shovel, when occasion required it, and to-day we see the result of our constant advocacy of a principle almost accomplished.

To make the News more popular than it has been in the past, we have arranged with a series of good writers and correspondents from all parts of the globe. Our London correspondent is keeping us in touch with everything that is being done in England. We have opened an office through his efforts in London, and we desire all English readers or others going to England to make it their house of call. Our correspondent there will place himself at their service to give any information that may assist them during their stay in London. He is also able to place some good agencies for film or supplies, and we wish our readers to avail themselves of this privilege by putting themselves in touch with the Moving Picture News, 8 Sherwood street, Piccadilly Circus, London. Our American helpers—we will take first, G. F. Blaisdell, who has the Observatory Column and who will be available to any manufacturer or exhibitor who wants to express an idea. "The Man in the Baths" is very critical in some of his ideas, and while it may be deserved censure that he gives to some, we occasionally have to blue pencil his remarks. His wife, an earnest little body, has got full grasp of how an actor or actress ought to work, and she is very caustic in her remarks on some of the actions of actors and actresses in the film stories, and she may have a few remarks to make from the standpoint of an old actress. Our Washington correspondent is in touch with all that is going on at the Capitol. Our Los Angeles correspondent is beginning to send us something from the extreme West. Our Oracle Department, William E. Smith, has proved itself to be an advantage and many operators have expressed their thanks to us for the way in which they have been taught some of the principles in electricity through this column. Our music page is under the editorship of a man who knows whereof he writes, and any of our readers desiring information along these lines can obtain it by writing to these correspondents in care of the News.

Our Chicago correspondent has failed us a little of late, and we are open to appoint a good live man in that district, and all the live centers we would also like to have represented, and if any good men can influence business either along lines of advertising or subscriptions or as correspondents, we would be glad to hear from them. We are starting a campaign and are making arrangements whereby ten thousand (10,000) copies of the News will be published every week, and it is our desire to continue to put out the only Independent paper in the whole world of Cinematography.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS

A few issues ago we offered $10.00 for the best educational program according to the ideas of our readers. Up to the present we have been very disappointed at not receiving a larger number of replies. If our subscribers think the amount is too small and they will tell us their idea, we will make it more because we want to get the best educational program it is possible to conceive, so that we may place it before the manufacturers for their approval. The educational movement is becoming wonderfully effective, and all credit it due to the Moving Picture News for starting this campaign. In looking back along some of our files of three or four years ago we find we advocated the uplifting and education of the people by every source of educational propaganda. We stated the moving picture will become a supplement, and a considerable help in the transmission and diffusion of education among all classes, in the schools, public and otherwise. It can be used for the teaching of every subject. Foreign lands can be brought on the curtain and the minds can be taught geography and physiography, showing the actualities of these sciences far better than can be obtained by the reading of the various school text books; in fact, everything can be illustrated and it can be made a pleasure and not a hardship for the youth of to-day. We took up the study of history and pointed out how it was possible for the great events of to-day to be reproduced and placed in archives for use of future generations. We have often bewailed the fact that such historical events as are depicted in our school histories could not have been shown to us in actualities instead of the mythical stories at present given to us as history. The field is not exhausted and has scarcely as yet been touched upon.

A few weeks ago a correspondent told our readers how it was possible to bring chemical, electrical and mechanical experiments within the fields of the cinematograph and how original experiments of scientists could be reproduced in all their abstract and intricate ramifications, which would be of far more benefit to the laboratory or the experimental student than he can get from ear, word, or mouth. While only a few can see these experiments from the hands of the teacher, in cinematography thousands would be able to see these same experiments and learn therefrom. We pointed out that the moving picture was the most accurate economical form of showing to the world at large educational historical events, the study of literature, of art, and science, and we firmly believe that the future, along the lines we have outlined above, will become the greatest momentum for the uplift of the whole world and the means of bringing universal brotherhood and peace to a practical issue.

THE VALUE OF THE STRUGGLE

By Margaret I. MacDonald

This country is at the present time ruled not by the governmental body but by the gigantic trusts—the great monsters that have the people in chains. There has been a near approach to absolute monarchy in the rule of these trusts, and the land that has boasted of its freedom has been virtually grovelling before the licentiousness of the different trusts.

However, there has been a slight turn in the tide, and the war that has been raging between the trust and the anti-trust party will be found to be productive of some good apart from the mere disarming of one party or the other.

It has been said that competition is the life of trade. Competition is not only the life of trade, but when popular sentiment is on the upward trend, it is also the life of art and education in its different forms—it is the powder behind the gun.

What is uppermost in my mind in connection with this subject are the two contending forces in the moving picture business. There are a few, a very few, who cling to and uphold a certain party because of an inward conviction that they are doing the right thing. Among these very few stands out in bold relief, the Moving Picture News—the men who are behind this commendable magazine think and act by the power of their convictions. They are supporting the Independent cause with a staunch faith in a victorious end.

Here, in the strife between the Independents and the trust, at a time when the demand for educational films is daily growing stronger, can be seen the value of the struggle. With the two factions hard at work trying to outdo each others, both in the matter of theme and mechanical device, there is bound to be a wonderful rush forward—a regular stampede for the front.

Whatever is productive of good in the end is not without merit. The one side must be right and the other wrong in sentiment, but if from the clash there escapes as a result even one spark of pure metal, the struggle has had some value.

In visiting the theaters where moving pictures are shown, I find as yet very little change. There is still the favorite wild west scene—the Indian killing the white man, etc. Now there is a subject of which I would like to speak, which would be very interesting for the moving picture man. Why accentuate that deadly struggle and strife which is practically past and gone between the Indian and the white man? Why not accentuate the fact of the progress of the red man. Out through the west to-day there is touring a company of Indians—full blooded ones, too—under the direction of Mlle. Toona, who has interested herself in the education and welfare of her red brothers. A quotation from the Chicago Tribune of November 25th, 1910, will explain in better form than I could personally, not having had the pleasure of having heard them.

"Four full-blooded American Indians sang before Mary Garden in her apartments yesterday, giving a repertoire selected from grand opera in French and Italian. They also sang some English ballads and a few of their native melodies. They had not proceeded far in their progress before she and Charles Dalmores, another of the stars of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, who was Miss Garden's guest, expressed themselves as delighted. 'I never dreamed that such a phenomenon existed,' exclaimed Miss Garden, 'as an American Indian who could sing any but his native airs. I shall take the greatest pleasure in assisting them to public recognition. They would be a Paris sensation. I am sure they would be a sensation in Paris and all over Europe. Parisians already think that Americans are the most remarkable people on earth.'

"They (these Indians) have never been east before. Among the selections given before Miss Garden were the tenor solor from 'Rigoletto' and the quartet from this opera."

This is to me a very interesting circumstance, and could be worked into a fine subject for a moving picture. In our interest in the progression of the white race we are apt to forget that there are other races of different color making rapid strides along the line of civilization, based on the earlier knowledge of the white man. The moving picture can do a lot to bring this to the notice of the public, whether they be trust picture or Independent it makes little difference so long as the point at issue is clearly conveyed to the mind of the onlooker.

That I may be clearly understood in this last, I will say that it is the sentiment of the trust party that we do not like, but the sentiment of the party does not influence in very large measure the quality of the picture.

ALIEN OPERATORS

At the time of writing, Thursday, the 22d, we learn that an amendment to the Higgins' bill, in relation to every operator being a citizen of the United States, was passed, submitted to the Mayor of New York City, signed by him and sent back to the Governor of the State on the 20th, so that it is now possible for every operator who has declared his intention of becoming a citizen to obtain a license, providing he can pass a satisfactory examination by the Water, Gas and Electricity Board. This is good news to the operators, and we hope that every operator will now present himself for re-examination before the Board at the earliest possible opportunity. It will not be necessary for an operator holding a 1910 card to pass any examination, his card for 1911 will be re-issued to him on application.

NATIONAL BOARD OF CENSORSHIP

As there is more or less discussion throughout the country regarding the motion picture amusement, Mr. Walter Storey, general secretary of the National Board of Censorship, was asked to give his views upon this much agitated question.

"The National Board of Censorship," said Mr. Storey, "has now been organized for over two years. During this time those who have been very close to the work have seen the immense strides which the motion picture business has made. During this time the character of the pictures have so entirely changed that the motion pictures themselves are now the cleanest form of amusement in this country. Of course, this sweeping statement does not cover other portions of the motion picture problem, such as the vaudeville and songs which, of necessity, reflect the character of the individual exhibitor. Nor can motion pictures themselves be held responsible for those showmen who cover the fronts of their houses with all sorts of sensational pictures that have no connection with the films shown inside, nor to the man who makes no effort to keep his place respectable. Of course, these are exceptions, but it is the exception that draws considerable criticism upon the whole motion picture industry.

The National Board of Censorship does not claim any great amount of credit for this change in the type of the motion pictures, for without the co-operation of the entire trade little could have been done. What the board stands for more than anything else, is the belief that more can be accomplished by co-operative than by antagonistic or repressive measures.

In judging the pictures, which is done by a volunteer committee, assisted by the secretaries, great care must be taken that justice is done to everyone concerned. The Censoring Committee consists of over twenty-five men and women from all walks of life—physicians, lawyers, social workers, editors, educators, etc., earnest people giving their time voluntarily to this work. From six to eight meetings of various sections of the Censoring Committee are held every week. At these meetings about 45,000 feet of film are viewed. This is no small matter. To the outsider it may seem quite a simple process to judge whether a picture is good or bad, but those who have worked on the committee find that many other elements have to be considered, such as whether a scene, which in itself might be objectionable, might not lead to a moral ending of the film. In addition to this the board has to constantly keep in mind that it is judging for the adult as well as the child, for the newly arrived immigrant who can neither appreciate subtle humor or subtle art, to the most sophisticated critic of the motion picture. Being a national censorship, the tastes and prejudices of the entire country have to be kept in mind, the West and South as well as the East.

But this discussion upon the possible evil of the motion picture show is after all thrown far into the background when one takes up the present constructive service motion pictures are doing to the country at large. Out of over five thousand pictures passed since the board has been organized no doubt some are open to discussion from the standpoint of possible harm, but the overwhelming majority are potentially educative or tend to satisfy the very human feeling for amusement.

The motion picture is doing for dramatic art what the invention of the printing press did for literature and to get the perspective of an invention of this sort one must look at it, not in terms of a business to provide recreation which is the purely amusement phase, but from the standpoint of an invention which will supply humanity with a means of expression and impression along many lines. Someone has predicted that the time will come when the business done in educative motion pictures alone will bear, at least, the same proportion to the entire motion picture trade as the enormous text-book business now bears to the entire publishing output.

Because of this broader view of the problem which we take the board does not wish to be looked upon as a destructive, but as a constructive, agency.

The ideals and practical method of the Board of Censorship may be summed up in a few words. Primarily, motion pictures are a form of dramatic art and as such they deal with real life and problems of real life and among these problems are moral problems involving conduct which in real life would be criminal. The drama of all ages has dealt with real life and its serious moral problems and the Board of Censorship recognizes that moving pictures are essentially a form of drama. But the Censoring Committee insists that there shall be no sensationalism and no representation of crime except with the object of conveying a moral lesson. "Crime for crime's sake" is condemned. Certain socially forbidden themes are, of course, proscribed, and any leaning toward over-sensationalism is discouraged. But for the extreme demand which is sometimes made, namely, that all pictures of crime or violence be forbidden, the board is compelled to point out that such a standard would prohibit practically all of Shakespeare and the other classics and even some of the best Biblical motion pictures that have been made and would likewise make impossible such historical pictures as the "Life of Washington."

THE SALES COMPANY PROGRAM

We want to call the special attention of our readers to the enterprise of the Sales Company, who inform us they have made every arrangement to secure the Coronation film from England and expect it to be in the city on or about July 1st. We think if they get this in on time it will indeed be a record scoop and the first pictures of the Coronation. This will give the Independents a high-class program and a splendid Sunday or Monday sendoff.

Exhibitors who are desirous of obtaining these films wire at once to their exchange men or to the Sales Company direct. Letters from England in our possession inform us that this will be one of the best cinematographed affairs ever before thought of or produced, and we think great credit is due, in fact, the highest credit possible to the Sales Company for making the arrangements to supply their clients in the manner they have done.

The American Film Co.

A running fight along apparently impassable trails, over the face of steep cliffs, in and around massive boulders, over chasms, the depth of which—as shown on the screen— actually astounds the audience, and an eventual rescue up the face of a 200-foot sheer precipice. These are the particularly noticeable features in our sensational release of Monday, July 3rd, entitled "The Call of the Range."

The astounding vistas of rugged scenic beauty unfolded in this 1,000-foot reel of pictures has never been approached in the annals of picturedom. Each scene is a masterpiece—each scene, when viewed, calls forth an involuntary gasp of astonishment and admiration. The story is in keeping with the astounding scenic worth of the real, logical, thrillingly sensational, and extremely interesting. "The Call of the Open Range" will go down in the history of motography as a step in advance—as an achievement "Belascoesque," in point of worth and popularity.

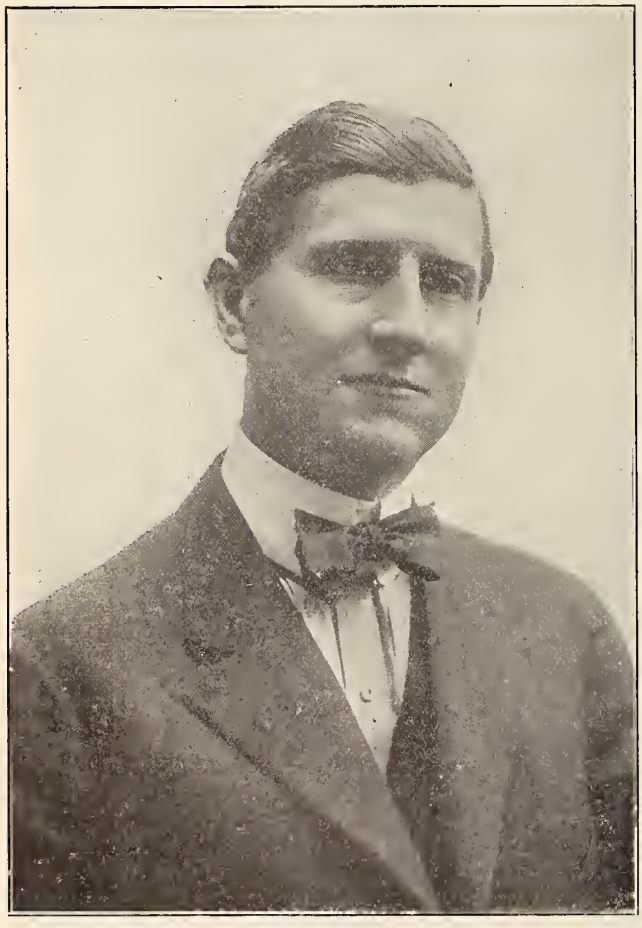
PIONEER "BILL" AND THE YANKEE

"To the victor belong the spoils." Quite appropriate for the Yankee Film Company in their recent victory over the Patents Company. In this case, the "spoils" mean "time." Time spent in legal wrangles can now be devoted to the productions.

Good news, like good wine, gives one encouragement, and renewed hope and vigor, and the activity and improvement in the Yankee studio is a good example of this fact.

The coming release of July 3d, "Groucho's Quiet Fourth," is an outpouring of the overflowing spirits of the Yankee force. The participants entered into the spirit of the story with a zest never before equalled. Each and every one had in mind the recent victory, and gave vent to their joyous feelings in a way that makes this comedy one of the best scream-producers.

The quality of photography calls forth the unstinted praise of the most cynical critics, and the beautiful tinting and toning now shown in all Yankee films has proved more than successful.



The Yankee Company's plant to-day can be rated among the best and the addition of new and up-to-date printers and perforators assure rock-steady pictures.

Bill Steiner's personal attention to all the details of the Yankee productions has much to do with their recent success, and the fact of Bill's reluctance to leave the studio even for a well-earned rest assures some excellent examples of moving picture films.

No man deserves fortune's smiles more than the plucky owner of the Yankee studio, who, single handed, fought the Motion Picture Patents Company for almost two years, and gained the first of a series of victories for the Independent manufacturers. Financially, mentally and physically, this battle against the octopus has been a frightful drain, and now that victory has crowned him, the least we can do is to wish him "God-speed."

"Go to it, Bill, and break the record."

We may say that on paying a visit to Yankee studio this week we were agreeably surprised to meet our old friend, I. Bernstein, "Bernie," formerly of the Paramount Film Exchange, taking charge of some of the departments and making them hum. Those who know "Bernie" will with us wish him every success in his new vocation. He is a deserving little chap and we congratulate Yankee on securing his services. He was very anxious for us to see two films which the Yankee are shortly to produce over which he was enthusiastic. We saw them and were delighted with the progress made by Yankee in tinting, toning and the general appearance of the film on the screen. They have indeed made a wonderful advance. Of course, it is all due to the fact that they are able to use better cameras. We would like to call the attention of our readers to the releases in question, viz., "The Angelus Bell," which is a beautifully told story, pathetic in its details and one which tells a strong appealing heart story which will, we feel sure, captivate the audiences as it did us. The other beautifully staged and posed film was called "His Romance," which we can highly recommend to every exhibitor in the industry.

KINEMACOLOR

An Autobiography in Motion—An Epic in Color

Very few in America can thoroughly appreciate what "Royal Command" means in foreign countries. The only comparison would be a decision of the United States Supreme Court.

This is what the Kinemacolor Company have received covering the coming forty days' festivities wherein King George is officially crowned King of England, Emperor of India and Lord of all the colonies in the British Empire.

Scenes and incidents appertaining to this investure will be kinematographed in the natural colors under the Urban-Smith Patents, not only of the parades of June 22d and 23d, but of all the events taking place during the forty days' festivities.

Among the startling pictures will be the photographing of the crown jewels worn by the King and Queen and owned by the British Empire. These jewels when not worn repose in the sanctuary in the Tower of London. The Archbishop of Canterbury carries the jewels with great pomp and ceremony from the Tower of London to Westminster Abbey, where they rest until the actual crowning of the King and Queen. In this particular part of the ceremony, no civilian is permitted on the streets nor any window or door permitted to be open. Military companies patrol the parallel streets to the right and left and the only possible view the public get is at Hyde Park where they can view the military from a distance of about one thousand yards. Words are inadequate to describe the reproduction of this picture in natural colors with the rubies, emeralds, saphires and all the priceless jewels owned by the British Empire and only worn by King George and his Royal Consort on this most auspicious occasion.

Another picture that is a model in hues and colorings is the "Unveiling of Queen Victoria's Memorial." Another, "The Reviewing of the Troops by King George of England, and Emperor William of Germany." Still a third, "The Investiture of the Prince of Wales with the Order of the Garter." A fourth shows the marvels of color in a picture entitled "Trooping of the Colors," and last of the present shipment received from England is "Empire Day." All these are on exhibition in the offices of the Kinemacolor Company,

Rex INVITES YOU TO A LAUGH-FEST, TO BE GIVEN THURSDAY, JUNE 29th, AND DAILY THEREAFTER, TO ALL FORTUNATE ENOUGH TO SEE THE FILM ENTITLED "SECURING EVIDENCE."

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR MISSING GROUCHES OR GRUDGES AFTER SEEING THIS FILM.

Rex

145 W. 45th street, and may be seen any day between the hours of twelve and one and any one contemplating the securing of any state right, not already taken, would be wise to do so at once, as all shipments will be made in the order of making contracts. If you live out of town and cannot find the time to call at the office we would suggest you designate some friend in whom you have confidence to see this exhibition. We feel justified in saying that you will receive an early wire demanding your immediate presence. Words are but empty meaningless things when trying to describe the marvels of Kinemacolor. Any one with a knowledge of black and white cannot form the slightest conception of this natural color discovery without being able to feast his eyes on a sheet containing some of its wonders.

We desire here to once more call the attention of exhibitors and exchanges to this wonder of modern photography. Comparisons are always odious and never more so than in the comparing of black and white subjects with kinemacolor. There is no more comparison between black and white and Kinemacolor than between the brilliancy of the sun over the moon. The Kinemacolor Company have more than outdone anything ever before attempted in the matter of colored lithographs. They have sixteen different kinds of paper running from five to twelve colors. No such display of paper has ever before been attempted in the moving picture business. It is certain that no exchange man having seen kinemaeolor will ever again be satisfied with black and white. It is, therefore, pertinent to remark that now is the time to get in and secure licenses, as the number to be issued will be exceedingly limited. Mr. J. J. Murdock has no intention of ever having kinemacolor anything but a big head line attraction. Regarding machines, the Kinemacolor Company have perfected the best projecting machine ever put on the market and have arranged with all the manufacturers of other makes of moving picture machines that on being properly licensed by the Kinemacolor Company an attaehment may be placed on their machine for the showing of kinemacolor.

The newspapers this week have been full of the incoming of the greatest ship in the world, the Olympic, and to show the enterprise of Kinemacolor we understand that the receivers connected with the sailing of this ship are Kinemaeolor, and that in her hull the film snugly rests and it is expected to be on exhibition at Kinemaeolor Building by the time the News is off the press.

OUR MUSIC COLUMN

In order to properly play for pictures, you must at all times consider that you are a part of the audience, and watch intently for every little detail or suggestion that will help you lend that atmosphere of realism to the picture. Proper music is at all times essential—the music should always equal the picture. Better music means more patronage—better patronage means the best of music and a better salary for the musicians if they are able to, and do "deliver the goods." You must always remember the old saying, that a man (or woman) who never do any more than they get paid for, never get paid for any more than they do.

A manager who is not willing to pay a good salary in order to secure the best of music does not know which side his "bread is buttered on," and if you are working for that kind of a manager at any time and are able to, and do bring business to his theater and they are not willing to pay you the proper salary, there are managers who will, if you are able to prove that you are a money-maker for the theater.

It is not the pianist who can play more rag-time, and play it louder and faster than anyone else who is in demand, or a drummer who can hit his "crash eymbal" harder and make more noise than the piano that the people want to hear—but it is a pianist who, during a pathetic scene, plays it and has you imagining the scene is a real one—and a drummer who will cut out the overwhelming desire for attention and apply himself more to the general effect. It is by far better to dispense altogether with the drummer unless he does this and then pay more and secure a pianist who can and will play at all times for the pictures as they should be—but it is best to use the drummer when you can get one who plays as a drummer should, it will mean more money for all parties concerned, and whenever managers realize that it is the same in the picture business as in any other line, it will improve the standard of the pieture business and place it where it should be.

Some managers are inconsiderate enough of their musicians to want them to "ballyhoo" through the intermission without stop—all of which is bad no matter in what light you look at it. It looks easy enough for a pianist to sit still and just "move their fingers," but far be it from such, if the musicians concentrate their minds and energy through a program they are entitled to some consideration, and again, musie during the intermission does not interest the average audience to any great extent.

Your music should at all times be kept systematie, so that you can find any piece wanted at any time, as you are liable to want one at a moment's notiee.

Do not at any time try to burlesque a picture or produee comedy yourself where none is intended, as it only eheapens the value of your music to those who know how it should be played—and the others will like any kind you play.

I would offer the following as suggestions only to be used in playing for pictures in the elasses mentioned:

Melodramatic: Music of a vivid or more or less sensational order must be used. Use every local color possible; if it is a "Western pieture," use music to fit it, such as "Cheyenne," "Idaho," "Pony Boy," ete. For Indian pictures you can use "The Sun Dance" (Freidman), "Stump Dance" (Stewart), "Trailing the Trail," etc. For Indian love scenes you can use such pieces as "My Prairie Maid," "Moon-Bird," "Silver Bell," "Olgalalla," ete.

As a rule all melodramatie pictures call for some dramatic musie to be used for "sneaky music," "hurrys," "agitato," etc., as it abounds in plenty, the change from one form of action or scene to the other is usually very abrupt, and you should, as near as possible, memorize sufficient dramatie music to allow you to go from one to the other without a break. Of course you may have to modulate at times, so if you cannot do that already you should cultivate the art as soon as possible, as it will help you very much at times. The character of the musie needed to "fill in" depends entirely on the character of the picture you are playing—rags, marches, waltzes, intermezzos and the popular music all do very well, but you must be careful in your selections, and do not overdo any one thing.

Drama: The musie to be used in dramatic pictures is usually very similar to that used in the "melodramatic." Often you can use light numbers, such as "In a Cosy Corner," etc. Sentimental numbers, such as "Melody in F," "Hearts and Flowers," "Traumerei" and "Meditation" can be used at times in the pathetic scenes; the fill-in musie can be the same as for melodramatic pietures.

Comedy and Farce: Use light, snappy music, rags, etc. All comedies should be made as bright as possible, and you can at times increase the comedy by inserting a piece to burlesque some funny situation, but let me warn you now—be careful and do not at any time overdo it. The pictures of this class are usually bright and snappy; let your music be the same.

The pictures relating to the South can usually be made more interesting by using Southern songs, such as "Dixie," "Old Black Joe," "Old Kentucky Home," "Swanee River," ete.

When you have a picture in which you desire charaeteristic Chinese music "Ching-a-ling-a-loo" (Denni) and "Fan-Tan" (Anthony) are very good.

These suggestions are only of a general character, as no set rules can be given or followed. You must use your own judgment and discretion as to what will fit the picture you are playing for.

Another suggestion I want to make is: At the end of your last show in the afternoon and at night that you always play a "chaser" even if there are only a few to go out, play till the last one is out, as it sends them out in the proper manner, and there is but one way in which you will make a success of any business, and that is to always do each and every thing in the proper manner.

(To be Continued)

KINEMACOLOR

For the benefit of M. P. Managers of Chicago and the West, KINEMACOLOR PICTURES will be shown in Chicago, the ENTIRE WEEK OF JUNE 26th

THE THANHOUSER KID

MARGARET SNOW

JULIA TAYLOR

MRS. GEORGE W. WALTERS

EDWIN THANHOUSER AND HIS COMPANY

The NEWS Asks the Maker of the Thanhouser Pictures About His Product and Herewith Is the Interesting Result

"Yes," said Edwin Thanhouser, "the attainment of mechanical perfection has been the big achievement of the year and a quarter that has gone by since you first interviewed me. Even in those early days we had no fears here about the story and production end of matters. Our first release, 'The Actor's Children,' was well plotted and well produced; so was our first 'classic,' 'St. Elmo'; our first comedy, 'Done It Again'; our first split-reel, 'Wanted a Hero and the Cigars His Wife Bought'; our first 'patriotic,' 'The Flag of His Country,' and our first 'sensational,' 'The Governor's Daughter.' But I will not say that these first pictures, meritorious as they were, are as perfect mechanically as, say, the latest 'classic,' 'Lorna Doone'; the latest comedy, 'Courting Across the Court'; the latest drama, 'The Court's Decree'; the latest split-reel, 'Motoring and Mr. Henpeck,' or the latest 'patriotic,' 'The Declaration of Independence.' There's no doubt that there's—well, that there's a difference.

"We have really gone to great distances and expense to obtain good machinery. The fact that a machine or a part of a machine was of exclusive foreign make did not especially determine us in the purchasing of factory equipment, but if it was both of exclusive foreign make and good foreign make, we spared no pains and no expense to 'land' it, bring it over to America and try it out. So to-day it is likely that the best American film-making machinery is represented at New Rochelle together with the best foreign stuff. Result: Two good Thanhousers a week out of every Thanhouser two-a-week.

"This fact need not be spoken by me or by any one connected with me. You ask for my own view on these things and I give it; but I would rather you went to your exhibitor readers for this information. I know that two good Thanhousers a week out of every two-a-week would be their opinion also, but then it would come from the outside and have more weight with you. Anyway, the exhibitor is really looking and asking for our picture and—there you have it. This winter-spring season that has closed has been about the best in the history of the moving picture industry judging from the rush business we did here at New Rochelle, and Mr. Adler, who looks after the sales end of things, tells me every representative exchange is taking both releases right through the summer. I think this is just as it should be. for certainly it takes good pictures to beat the heat and two Thanhousers a week are a help. My warm weather releases will abound in the same breezy, out-o'-doors atmosphere they carried last summer and will convey a look of cool comfort to the picture screen.

"But let us forget business for a moment and let me read you some of the things that come in the mail. This first letter demonstrates that truth is stranger than fiction and moving picture wonders are stranger than both. It is addressed to Mrs. Walters, 'The Thanhouser Old Lady,' whom you know if you follow our pictures:

June 16th, 1911.

THANHOUSER PICTURE CO.: To-day in Aurora, I saw the name and picture of a long-lost sister, Mrs. Geo. W. Walters. Can you inform me where to write her? If you can, I shall ever feel grateful to you. My address:

JOHN STANTON,
Wataga, Knox County, Ill.

"Mrs. Walters really found a long-lost brother in the writer and she has written him thanking the Almighty that she has found him again. She will get his acknowledgment of her response any moment now.

"Here, now, is another sort of letter from one child to another he admires, to the 'Thanhouser Kid,' in fact.

Miss Marie Eline: June 19, 1911.

Dear Miss:—

I thought I'd write you a nice little letter. We went to the Roseland Theater in Chicago and saw you act in a play called the "Circus Stowaway," and I want to say you are a wonderful actor. I told my papa that I would like to get acuanted with you; so my papa spoke to the manager and he said that you was a girl 10 years old, but I thought you were a boy only 6 years old, and he said if I wanted to see you I had to go to New York.

Now listen, Miss Marie, my Mama and I are going to visit my auntie in pattersen, N. J., when I get my vacation from school. Now if you will answer this letter then I'll come to see you if you don't object. The people out here say I am almost as good as you on piano as you are in acting. I was 12 years old on Washington's birthday and played piano in the Lyric Theater already when I was 10. So then you will act for me and I'll play for you. Write soon to

Yours truly,
John Van Kanegom,
116 and 117 Harvard Ave., West Pullman, Chicago, Ill.

"These," concluded Mr. Thanhouser, "are the little-big things that make life worth living at a moving picture studio."

ED GENUNG

WILLIAM GARWOOD

WILLIAM RUSSELL

JUSTUS D. BARNES

MAKING THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

Scenes and Incidents In and Around the Thanhouser Studio at New Rochelle, N. Y.

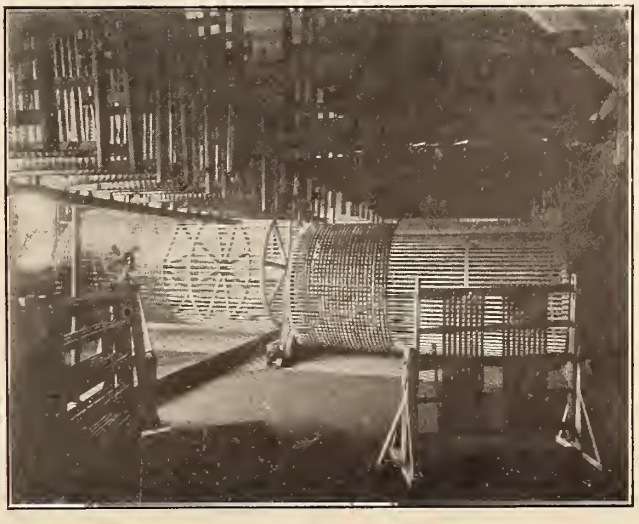
AS THE PLANT LOOKS TO YOU FROM THE OUTSIDE—NOTE THE STRETCH OF SKYLIGHT

OUT ON A SEA STORY—LOOKING FOR A WATERY LOCATION IN A SPEEDY CUTTER

ONE VIEW OF IT—HOW THE SITUATION LOOKS TO THE STAGE DIRECTOR

ANOTHER VIEW OF IT—ALL THE PLAYER SEES IS DIRECTOR AND CAMERA MAN

DRILLING THE "RAW RECRUIT"—IN WHICH "DRILLER" IN TURN IS THE DIRECTOR'S RECRUIT



WHERE IT'S A LITTLE LESS INTERESTING—A CORNER OF THE VAST DRYING ROOM

SIGNING THE DECLARATION

Scenes from "The Declaration of Independence"

Biggest Moments in the Thanhouser Fourth-of-July Release

THE BOSTON TEA PARTY

JOHN HANCOCK JOINS THE SONS OF LIBERTY

Many Will Adopt "Declaration of Independence" Lobby Tips

Publication In Last Moving Picture News of Suggestions For Theatre "Front" Decoration Receives Praise From Numerous Quarters

On page 19 of last week's News there appeared under the head of "Lobby Tips" the suggestion that "The Declaration of Independence" afforded the enterprising exhibitor a wonderful opportunity to advertise his show and giving a scheme for an effective decoration of the theater "front" before and during the showing of the reel. When space permits in a future News we shall print some of the letters from exhibitors in all sections of the country commending the publishing of these "tips" and asking for more of 'em when pictures of a special nature are issued. For the benefit of those who may not have seen the copy of this paper containing the "Declaration of Independence" lobby ideas we reprint the following:

A business-getting lobby adornment will be found in the display of plenty of American flags, four muskets (preferably old), two drums (preferably old), the famous Trumbull picture of the Signing of the Declaration (can be hired from any picture store) and facsimile copies of the Declaration (can be hired from any picture store). A good arrangement of these would be:

Flags.—Drape front to best effect.

Drums.—One on each side of lobby, crossed by two muskets.

Muskets.—Two crossed above each drum.

"Signing" Picture.—Hang or fasten to one side lobby.

"Declaration" Facsimiles.—Hang or fasten to side lobby opposite "Signing" picture.

If you have board for circulars or photos, drape with flag and tack on literature pertaining to the reel. Posters can be put up in the usual place. A release of so patriotic a nature as this affords the exhibitor a chance to advertise his show that shouldn't be missed.

PAUL REVERE STARTS ON HIS RIDE

THE RETREAT FROM LEXINGTON

From "The Declaration of Independence"

PRINCIPALS IN "THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE"
Who's Who in the Film

There will be many admirers of the Thanhouser pictures who will look twice to recognize their favorite players as found 'neath powdered wig in "The Declaration of Independence." It was imperative in order that an accurate reel be turned out that the players bear a resemblance to the original participants in the stirring events of '7, and to look the part each player had to assume a "make-up" that almost amounted to a disguise. But by the aid of the below list, identification of favorites becomes simple.

JOHN HANCOCK—George Lessy.
DOLLY QUINCY—Julia Taylor.
PAUL REVERE—Frank Crane.
SAMUEL ADAMS—Justus Barnes.
THOMAS JEFFERSON—David Thompson.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!
Powers Cameragraph No. 5 only $75; Motion Picture Machines $35 up. Cineograph with Fire Shutter $65. Carbons $1.50 per 100 tickets; 10,000 for $1. All Supplies. GET SUPPLEMENT 33 BARGAIN LIST. Motion Picture Machines Wanted.
HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST THEATRE CHAIR
Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving. To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation
and slides for every purpose made to order
GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

We Don't
expect you to see this advertisement, but if you should happen to see it and need SLIDES, we've got them. Announcement Slides of any and every description, which are used in moving picture houses, five for $1.00, and 10c postage. Send for catalog, and if the slide you want is not there, we will put it there for the same price, providing it can be used by another theater. We don't expect to sell you any of these because it might be well to let you know that we could, as we have quite a stock on hand, so if you chance to want one, drop a line.
NIAGARA SLIDE COMPANY
Box 202, Lockport, N. Y.

HALLBERG
THE "ECONOMIZER MAN"
SAVES two-thirds on electric bill and makes BIG CUT on the first cost of your complete equipment.
I carry stock of all makes M. P. Machines, Opera Chairs and Supplies.
Free Catalogue No. N 1

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City.

FILM BARGAIN
100 COMMERCIAL REELS

Shipment of 10	.	$7.00 each
" " 20	.	6.00 "
" " 30	.	5.00 "
" 100	.	4.00 "

From 800 to 1000 Ft. in length
All in good running order. We buy and sell films.
OMAHA FILM EXCHANGE . OMAHA, NEBRASKA

FILMS FOR RENT
Cheapest house in America. Save money by doing business with us. Free Lithographs and Songs.
DIAMOND FILM CO.
536 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

SECURING EVIDENCE
is just a thousand feet more of convincing evidence that REX "KNOWS HOW." Exhibit A1, so to speak—and so the exhibitors speak! RELEASED, THURSDAY, REXDAY, JUNE 29th, 1911. You are crying for comedy—dry your tears because you'll get some fresh ones from the laughs in this film.

FROM THE OBSERVATORY

By G. F. Blaisdell

In order that the readers of the News might know what, if anything, had been done by Government authorities toward securing and preserving films of national interest, an inquiry was addressed to the Smithsonian Institution. The following reply was received from W. DeC. Ravenel, administrative assistant:

"Replying to your letter of June 5th, I beg to say that a series of models of moving picture instruments is in course of preparation for installation in the section of photography of this Museum, but, so far as I can ascertain, no collection of films of national interest has been made."

* * *

A hundred years hence models of the early moving picture cameras and projectors will perhaps arouse mild interest among men concerned in the industry. Extract from a sealed case a film portraying the reception to Colonel Roosevelt in June a year ago on the occasion of his arrival from his famous trip abroad. Would not such pictures be of absorbing interest to the hundreds of millions of Americans who will then be living in this country? What if to-day we could be permitted to view animated pictures of Napoleon reviewing some of his famous commands? Can any one estimate their historical value—their absorbing interest to men in every land?

* * *

Why does not some farseeing congressman endeavor to have incorporated in an appropriation bill a sum sufficient to enable the Smithsonian Institution to acquire and properly preserve films of great public interest? The expense would be small, the return to posterity would be immeasurable. The United States is not keeping pace in this respect with European nations. In England the Kinemacolor Company has been officially appointed to make complete records of all the festivities and functions, public and private, connected with the coronation.

Sooner or later the United States will take up this question. There is no reason why there should be delay; there is every reason for beginning now, so that future generations may witness the inaugural ceremonies at Washington on March 4, 1913.

* * *

The campaign on the part of theatrical men in Chicago against the rising popularity of motion pictures has extended to Buffalo. All the managers of "legitimate" houses in that city are in hearty accord with Mr. Frohman, who is credited with starting the ball in Chicago. According to the Buffalo News, prices of gallery seats of the first-class theaters are to be reduced so that people will be able to see the best attractions for the money they now pay to see moving pictures. The managers are said to be prompted to take this action by the desire for self-preservation; they also are said to believe that they will help uplift the general moral welfare of the community if they put the moving picture theaters out of business.

Well, as to the latter belief, it safely may be said that when the theaters are subjected to the same rigid scrutiny as is imposed upon pictures, their capacity for harm will be greatly lessened. Mayor Gaynor was right when he said that the people who went to picture shows would not stand for objectionable features; that if they wanted that sort of thing they would go to Broadway for it.

Everybody knows that theatrical managers have been hard hit by pictures; that, for instance, where Keith & Proctor formerly had in New York City seven houses devoted to straight vaudeville, they now have one—the rest showing pictures—and vaudeville; that where a few years ago New York had seven melodrama houses, now there is only one. The same is true of Chicago and Philadelphia. Let us free our minds from cant. Nobody blames theatrical men for devising ways and means for meeting competition. That is legitimate. But don't inflict on us any honeyed words about moral uplift. It's silly.

* * *

Another point perhaps it would be well for theatrical managers to bear in mind: Theaters have been doing business hundreds of years. There is no probability of any marked improvement over present conditions. The motion picture is new. It is improving each year—in every feature. When we have six or seven reel dramas, portrayed by the best dramatic artists, the scenery in nature's own colors and not bounded and limited by the artificialities of the stage, then theatrical managers may realize that they are being subjected to severe competition."

The speaking drama is not going to die a sudden death; nor yet a slow death. It will remain with us. Its scope, however, will be circumscribed. Furthermore, its moral tone —by compulsion, of course—will be raised to that of the moving picture.

* * *

The Council of San Francisco has been asked to prohibit the exhibition of pictures bearing on the arrest and extradition of the MacNamara brothers. The secretary of the Council informed the writer of the communication that the board of censorship has placed a ban on such films. It is well. Probably a majority of adult males who go to see moving pictures are trades-unionists at heart if not in fact. Until a matter of this description, where the views of partisans are so extreme, has been judicially settled, it is well to leave it severely alone. As a matter of fact, the attempt of some of the companies to portray strikes and labor troubles have been painful. No man with red blood is overedified to witness a scene wherein a scab, by reason of his treachery to his fellows and the violation of his oath, is promoted to a position that he never could have attained through square methods. Far be it from this writer to say that no man is ever justified in failing to obey a strike order. Often times there are the strongest of domestic reasons. For picture manufacturers, however, labor troubles as subjects for plays are red-hot coals and should be handled very delicately.

* * *

Residents in the neighborhood of Bushwick avenue and Hancock street, Brooklyn, have appealed to the district attorney to protect them from the noises coming from an open-air picture show. This ought to be an easy matter to get around. Let the owner cut out his illustrated songs. Then the show will make less noise than some of the churches, the members of which are complaining. The average illustrated song sung by the average "artist" is a combination constituting a cause for tears. Of course, there are some good singers and less good songs. By the way, "All Aboard for Blanket Bay" struck the Observer as being away above the average.

* * *

The General Film Company has abolished its Baltimore exchange and transferred its business to Washington. The Baltimore exhibitors are up in arms on account of the added expense to which they are now subjected. Another cause for complaint is the action of the company eliminating to a great extent the privilege of selection and compelling the exhibitors to accept what the company considers will best fill their needs.

* * *

Louis Kustas, a theater proprietor of Poughkeepsie, sued the United Film Company, of New York City, for $1,000, alleging that a projector he had bought from the concern did not throw a clear picture. The jury awarded $100 damages.

* * *

Jo Goossens in a letter to the Chicago News comes to the defense of the cowboy and the Indian. He speaks as one with authority, saying that for years he was associated with both. Of the Indian he says truly: "If he has marauded and slain wantonly he was justified. He was a savage, but he loved his home, and anyone of us in Chicago would fight if someone were to destroy his home—and fight hard." In conclusion Mr. Goossens says: "The public sees and reads too much nonsense about the West. And the film corporations who thrive on the unknowing by insulting and vilifying the Indian and the cowboy are slowly but surely ruining an educational product of great value."

* * *

The Russell Sage Foundation, through its department of child hygiene, is conducting a campaign for a nation-wide safe and sane Fourth of July. It is using a moving picture wherein is depicted the dangers of small explosives and by comparison an example of the new idea in Independence Day celebrations.

* * *

Sergeant Jeremiah W. O'Connor, the new chief of the Chicago moving picture, theater and dance hall squad, said last week: "If the people of Chicago saw nothing worse in real life than they view in the mimic world of the picture shows of the city the town would become famous as the world's model city." The chief said a lot more, all sound sense and all interesting. In Chicago one municipal department controls picture houses; in New York seven—just six too many.

* * *

J. D. Eggleston, Jr., superintendent of public instruction in Richmond, Va., is another educator who strongly favors pictures for school use. "I am of the opinion," he recently wrote, "that motion pictures will be largely used by the schools in the future and they will prove to be of great value in the education of the children and the people generally. Motion pictures are here to stay. It is high time that the educators of the country should take hold of this means of disseminating information and diffusing intelligence."

The Pacific Moving Picture Advertising Company (Cal.) has been organized with a capital of $25,000. A charter has been granted in Virginia to the American Film Machine Corporation, capital stock $10,000 to $100,000, to manufacture films for motion pictures. All the officers reside in Washington.

* * *

L. Frank Baum, formerly of Syracuse, N. Y., has filed in Los Angeles, Cal., a bankruptcy petition showing liabilities of $12,600 and assets of $85. Baum is said to have dropped $30,000 in a road show wherein were used "Wizard of Oz" views and pictures made from the Baum books.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, Ark., June 21.—As a special Fourth of July feature and the carrying out of the city's desire for a "safe and sane" celebration on that day, the Princess Theater has arranged for a special two days' run of the motion pictures taken by the Southern Historical Views Company of the Confederate reunion, which was held a few weeks ago in Little Rock. The capital city showed the old veterans a great time, there isn't any doubt about that; some of them got more than they expected, while others came away with an awful kick. Little Rock learned that there was a deficit of some $21,000, and those reunion debts have to be met. Hot Springs has already started a fund to assist Little Rock in this enterprise and the Princess gets into the game in fine shape by setting aside one hundred seats at fifty cents each, the proceeds of these sales going toward the fund in this city for Little Rock's benefit.

The pictures of the Confederate reunion are said to be clear and show in detail many of the most interesting scenes that were taken. All of the prominent commanders of the "Boys who wore the gray of the Southland" are in the picture, as well as the old negro cook who looked after the culinary department for Stonewall Jackson. The big parade was also a feature and when it was noised about that the pictures were of such an excellent nature many of the local managers made preparations to book them. The Princess, however, it appears, "beat them to it," for Howard Herrick, former press representative of Thomas Dixon's "Clansman" when that play first startled the country, was in the city in conference with Manager Head, of the Princess, and negotiations were closed for the reunion reels with him. The Princess is running Independent material and making good, too, so there will be no conflict with the Patent company in this respect. Mr. Herrick is at present largely interested in the Southern Historical Views Company and the local picture lovers are awaiting the arrival of the Confederate pictures with a great deal of interest.

Three different parties are again negotiating for the sale of the Lyceum Theater, and it would surprise no one in the moving picture business if this popular house passed from its present ownership. Notwithstanding the hot weather the Lyceum continues to pack them in and the pictures there are of exceptional interest. The machines are in charge of Leo King, one of the most companionable and industrious young men in the city. He is getting a good light on the picture and a stop in the pictures at the Lyceum is almost unknown.

The Photo-Play Theater has decided to give away three prizes every Saturday night, beginning June 24th and continuing and including Saturday, July 29th. These prizes will be suitable for ladies and gentlemen and there is a host of people who are saving their coupons. The capital prize, a magnificent willow plume, will be awarded the night the contest closes and all coupons, beginning with the sale now on, will be good for a chance on the plume. The management of the theater has advertised next Saturday's prizes in a neat manner, placing them in a pretty show case with a novel sign, well lettered, which can be plainly read by all. Some time ago the Photo-Play Theater had an opportunity to get "The Fall of Troy." At that time they were running Trust pictures. The General Film Company heard of the house showing that Independent picture and promptly cancelled its license. I understand that there will be an effort made in retaliation by both the Photo-Play and the Scenic theaters and some very interesting developments are looked for.

Gus Strauss, president of the Arkansas Amusement Association, controlling the Lyceum, is dangerously ill at his palatial home on Prospect avenue. Mr. Strauss is one of the most progressive and influential men of the city, having large interests here as well as in St. Louis. He served as Alderman for a number of years and at present is closely

Champ Variety

Monday, July 3rd, 1911

"FIGHTING REV. CALDWELL—1776"

This picture brings before your eye the famous Battle of Springfield. A defense by the Minute Men of their sacred church against Hessians and Tories.

Nab This Film Before It's Too Late to Book It.

On Monday, July 10th, 1911

"A COWBOY AND A LORD"

Out on the plains the cowboy bravely asserts his true, hardy nature and wins a bride against a titled Englishman.

PLACE THESE TWO ON YOUR PROGRAM

CHAMPION FILM CO.
MARK M. DINTENFASS, GEN. MGR.
OFFICE: 12 E. 15TH ST., N. Y. CITY.

SPECIAL NOTICE

NON-BREAKABLE

Lantern Slides

ANNOUNCEMENT
ADVERTISING
LECTURE
MICROSCOPIC
NATURAL HISTORY

We makes slides of all kinds.

SLIDES

Artistic and beautifully colored.

Don't be faked by would-be Original Inventors who claim, and are trying to manufacture non-breakable slides.

SEND FOR CATALOG.

MICA NON-BREAKABLE SLIDE CO.
2737 N. Croskey St. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

identified with the city administration, being a member of the Board of Public Works.

The Grace Baird Stock Company opened a week's engagement at the Airdome to capacity business. The show is much stronger and better balanced than the two companies that have been there the past few weeks and all that is required to pack this popular open-air theater is a good show. The people of Hot Springs like their stock companies and Miss Baird received a rousing welcome on her first appearance.

I had an opportunity of looking at a number of Independent pictures the past week and in many of them saw such inconsistencies that I wondered why they were permitted. In one picture, where deviltry was on foot, the person shadowing the heroine and her sweetheart were exactly within two steps of where the swain were billing and cooing, yet they didn't see or hear him, and he came that close over the rocks, too, leading his horse. In another a mere slip of a girl captured a "Greaser's" noble charger and galloped away, while the Mexican and the "poor gell" never knew that the horse was gone. Another man hid behind a few stones, in plain view of the audience and ten million soldiers that rushed by; in still another the characters moved about as if every step was most difficult. It wasn't the fault of a "slow picture," for the machine was going at great speed. The repeated inconsistencies of this nature, the seeming lack of care as to details and the carelessness in acting in some Independent pictures are among the greatest kicks that the local managers and patrons have to utter against the Independent output.

There were two Independent reels here this week, both Thanhouser make, that had it on any trust picture that came to town. I refer to the "Circus Stowaway" and "The Stepmother." I mentioned the former some time ago, but it was so good, and the desire to see the "Thanhouser Kid" was so great that one of the managers booked it for a return date. Both of these reels were winners and Thanhouser is one of the most popular manufacturers among the picture patrons in Hot Springs.

Also enjoyed the Imp's reel, "Four Lives," which was both novel and timely. In fact, nothing more novel or to the point has been seen here lately. "The Fair Dentist" caused a roar of laughter and Mary is sure there with the strong arm. In another Imp reel there was a strong reminder of a drama that worked in years ago, Joseph Litt's old play, "In Old Kentucky," and again Little Mary scored heavily as Madge, the jockey. Many of the scenes of this reel were a dead steal from the play, but we liked it just the same and in view of its general interest the Imp is forgiven for its pictorial larceny.

"Fifty Years Ago" was an exceptionally interesting film by the Powers Company and made a most favorable impression. Bison handed us a real laugh in its comedy, "A Cowboy for a Day," and Champion in their reel, "Service Under Johnson and Lee," allowed so many inconsistencies to butt into the picture that it lost its value. Rex put an excellent feature across, which was billed heavily, "From Life to Death," and which attracted large crowds during the time it was on. Rex, that was "some picture." The best comedy from the Trust standpoint was Essanay's reel, "Alkali Ike's Auto," and, believe me, it set them daffy. Never have I heard such continuous and hearty laughter as this reel evoked. It will be brought back for a return date, for it is worth it.

I thought that when Bison turned out the remarkable Indian I mentioned in my last week's letter that the acme of "dampfoolishness" in picturedom had been reached, but that "son of the plains" wasn't in it with a white man I observed with much interest at one of the theaters. This lad was a soldier and he was either made of rubber or else composed of steel, for nothing else could have withstood what he did and live to "come back" and nail the "Greaser" at the finish. Why the Mexican roped this fellow, "hog tied" him, dragged him ten miles over rough country, beat him to a pulp and then dropped him over the side of a rocky cliff. Huge boulders and jagged rocks extended from the side of the cliff over which "our hero's" body was thrown and we saw him hanging there helpless and unconscious. I don't wonder he had lost consciousness, for his noodle would have been split in a dozen places when the Mexican pushed him over the mountain. He hung there the Lord and the director of the company only know how long, but was finally rescued by his comrades, who proceeded to pull him back to earth. He no sooner was brought to solid ground than he was the liveliest thing imaginable. Not a scar on him, mind you; no bumps showing; clothes not even soiled; cuffs were immaculate and the part in the hair just the same as when he was first "copped" by the "heavy." Now if that guy wasn't made of rubber or steel, or if, perchance, it wasn't the most rotten, impossible thing attempted before the camera, then I'm a lobster. After looking at that picture one can begin to understand why that firm isn't in it with Biograph, Kalem, Selig and Vitagraph.

Selig's "Still Alarm" called for some great effects, which were supplied in every particular by Carl Hansen in the theater where he is trap drummer. Carl maintained the effects of all the horses running, puffing of the engines, clang of the fire alarm, glash crash and, in fact, everything incident to making the picture realistic, and he kept them all going at the same time, too. It was hard work, but the applause he received at the end was terrific. In the other picture, "Fishguard Harbor, Wales," he also had some excellent effects, the water scene being made specially realistic by him. He is without doubt the best trap drummer in the South.

THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington, D. C.

Discontentment still continues among the exhibitors here with the attitude of the General Film Company, with the result that the Independent agency, the Washington Film Company, has been the gainer in exhibitors. So widespread have been the complaints that no less than twenty-five houses are now using Independent films who a few weeks ago were showing licensed pictures. Among these is our largest capacity house for this amusement, the Auditorium of the New Masonic Temple, where good singing also forms a part of the show. In making this change, Manager Moore said he had to consider the best interests of his patrons as well as to secure the best service for the money expended. The Princess, under Manager Morgan, is a popular theater in the northeast section which is now using Independent goods; so also is the Hippodrome, under Manager Le Mott, and they are both well pleased.

The Washington Film Exchange is amply capable of taking care of its increased business and is quite cheerful under the strain. The management, however, finds it necessary to increase the number of ordered reels, and it is possible that this will be double the number now used by this office.

The discontentment does not confine itself to those who have broken from the General Film Company, but has spread over to those who continue to use the service of the General Film Company. One of the biggest howls is the fact that houses who are willing to pay for "first runs" are denied this privilege, because this is given to the Baltimore exhibitors, who are also furnished from the Washington office. The houses here must be content with "third-day" runs, and some of the most progressive managers are not at all contented. The fact that the exhibitors are not allowed to make advance selection of the films desired so that advertisement can be made is a further cause of murmur. It is a notable fact that quite a few of the motion picture houses here advertise in the local papers the program of the day, or even the week. The delay in receiving reels in ample time for the opening of the shows has ruffled many a manager recently. The writer was before one of the houses using the service of the General Film Company the other day when the manager in wrath was compelled to turn people away from his doors for nearly an hour at noon time when this theater, which is in the downtown district, always has a large patronage at this time. The people were bent on seeing a motion picture show, so when turned from this theater, they simply went to an Independent house not far away.

An important significance that this "stirring up" in the local motion picture business has accomplished is praise from the reels of the Independents by those who were formerly its opponents. "Why, I never knew the Independents did such good work before," honestly admitted one manager. The fact was, he had never tried to find out what the Independents were doing. Similar expressions of favorable comment have been heard by other managers. One exhibitor, who is a pioneer in this business, said he did not believe it was possible to run a financially successful show with Independent goods, but the present actions of the General Film Company had proved to him he could and please himself and his patrons, too.

The Dexter Film Service, using Independent goods, has reaped considerable among the former patrons of the Association. So also has Mr. Dexter's branch office in Baltimore, owing to the dissatisfaction of exhibitors with the conduct of affairs there by the General Film Company.

* * *

The Gallinger Bill before Congress asks for the provision of a committee to censor the motion pictures of this city, and this will shortly become a fact. At present the Police Department looks after this as it does the theater attractions, but the proposed bill asks for a special committee. The posters are under a very strict ban here, which necessitates many of them being discarded by the managers or are touched-up by local sign painters. Recently a local artist put a bunch of flowers in the hand of a burglar to hide the pistol he held, and the result to the observer was exceedingly incongruous. The blotting out of firearms and other weapons on posters is a mar to the picture, which should help to induce the manufacturers to make more desirable posters.

The "Fall of Troy," which had such successful runs when this reel first was released, has been having a return to the city with equal popularity. The Virginia and the Alhambra have been having their usual excellent patronage with this reel. This simply goes to show that a good, historical film can have a return engagement like any theatrical performance, despite the fact that "The Fall of Troy" is now two months' old, when so many films have been relegated to the "junk pile" at that age, or even before that time.

* * *

Mr. J. Henderson, of the Henderson North of England Film Exchange, Newcastle-on-Tyne, was a recent guest to this city and was amazed at the American capacity for work in the motion picture business. Mr. J. Boyd Dexter, manager of the Dexter Sign Company and the Dexter Film Service, piloted him around the city to many places of interest.

FROM OUR ENGLISH CORRESPONDENT

London Office of the News
8 Sherwood Street

June 8, 1911,

With a temperature ranging somewhere about 120 degrees in the sun and rarely falling below 75 degrees in the shade, the conditions are hardly ideal from the point of view of the moving picture showman, and yet business continues to be good, though it would be foolish to contend it has not suffered somewhat from the increased attractiveness in this weather of the cricket and tennis fields and the river. A point in favor of most of the shows in London is that they are well ventilated and afford a cool retreat from the hot streets, which is fully appreciated by those who cannot get away from town. Iced lemonade and other cooling decoctions have taken the place of the usual tea at many shows which make a feature of providing their patrons with free refreshment.

* * *

If the showmen have some excuse for growling when they rise in the morning and discover another cloudless sky, the manufacturers have equally strong reason to glory in the clear air and strong light which helps their studios working full stretch. Many makers are taking daily and there should be nothing to cavil at in the quality of the subjects secured at this time. Our recent topicals have been marked by exceptionally good photography, the Derby film, in particular, those issued by Barker and British and Colonial leaving nothing to be desired in this particular. Barker always makes a point of making the subject a record of the innumerable amusing and interesting happenings on the Downs, as well as a feature of the race itself, and the film has an interest for others than English people, as a record of the day of days in the calendar of English sport, which brings together a bigger concourse of the unconventional and bohemian elements of the community than any other occasion.

* * *

The Derby was "B. & C.'s" last production at their old Denmark street premises. They are now busily engaged installing their apparatus at Endell street, where they have a building admirably adapted for their requirements, with a floor space three or four times greater than that at the old place, and facilities for office and projection purposes which the latter entirely lacked.

* * *

Everybody in the film trade here knows "Walter" of Crechs & Marten's. He has been associated with Mr. Crechs for so long—I believe for something like nine years—that it seems difficult to think of him in connection with any other firm. The fifteenth of the present month, however, will see him take up the duties of right-hand man to the Marquis Serra, the generally popular manager for Cines here, and as "Walter" of Cines, I am sure he will be just as popular as when his energies were devoted to pushing the "Lion's Head" subjects among the London and provincial showmen. Among the latter Mr. Walter is particularly popular and the Cines Company are fortunate to secure his services.

* * *

The Globe Film Co., Ltd., whose capital organization added to the indomitable energy of the managing director, Mr. J. C. Squier, enabled them to keep business going without a break even under such trying circumstances as those of the recent fire at their premises, are making yet another move and in the offices they have secured at 81 and 83 Shaftesbury avenue, they have probably the finest equipped premises possessed by any film firm in this country. They are at present occupied by the American Film Trading Co. and include a perfect bijou theater in the basement, in addition to office and warehouse accommodation on an exceptionally liberal scale. The Globe have found so many offices prove inadequate to their rapidly increasing business that it is perhaps not safe to predict that the new ones will satisfy them indefinitely, but it is at least safe to prophesy that they will not need to move again for a year or two.

* * *

The success of the Globe is all the more gratifying in that it has been secured by commendable methods. Mr. Squier's motto has been "no cutting" and that he has acted up to it can be vouched for by many showmen whose business he has let go rather than meet a competitive low price. The result is usually that after a spell of cheap service the customer comes back to the Globe. I don't mean to infer, of course, that the Globe are the only renters who uphold the principles of a good price for a good service, but—well, there are others!

By the bye, the building of which the Globe will occupy the ground floor and basement, looks like becoming quite a little colony of film people. The New Agency and Ambrosio people are on the first floor and F. Wilkers & Co., who supply chairs, etc., for churches, also have premises in the building. The clannish tendency seems to be very marked in the film trade; what with the film house—where Tyler, Crechs, Lux, Cosmo (and Selig) are quite a happy family—and now the new building.

* * *

Our next big subject will be the Coronation and it will be a big enough attraction to nullify the adverse influence of the finest weather ever known. There will be a record sale for this subject and record business for the theaters which feature it; a generally expressed intention among those not overblessed with the coins of which the owners of stands demand so many for a seat is to give the procession itself the go-by and see it in comfort in the picture theater.

* * *

"Kinemacolor" should cover itself with glory at this season. It cannot better the standard of its "Unveiling of the Queen Victoria Memorial," but it should equal it. I have mentioned the unveiling picture before in these notes; a second inspection has not caused me to modify my opinion that it is the finest picture I have seen screened. In fact, "Kinemacolor" grows on one. The great mistake of its critics lies in assuming that the "Kinemacolor" of the initial display at the Palace and the "Kinemacolor" at the Scala at the present time are one and the same. I was one of those not greatly impressed by that first display and I was sceptical of the possibilities of the process until the Scala began its exhibitions, but I became a convert after the first show and I can best express my present opinion of the process by saying that if I were a showman I would get it into my programme right away, assuming the terms to allow of a profit to be shown. "Kinemacolor" should, properly advertised, and above all, properly worked (and a "handle turner" is not the man to work it), bring a new public to every theater featuring it—a high-class and high-paying public, too.

* * *

A series of films of exceptional quality showing the Holy Land and an educational series on new lines are among forthcoming productions by English firms and should have more than a local circulation.

* * *

Barkers recently prepared a film for the leaders of the Women Suffrage Movement for use in propaganda which I am told is exceptionally good both in quality and in its standard of acting. Details later. By the way, Mr. Percy Day, of this firm, is just back from a trip to Germany which resulted in good business for the Bulldog.

B. A.

LONDON NOTES

Kineto, Ltd., have obtained an extraordinary film depicting the daring motoring feat accomplished by Mr. Henry Alexander, of Edinburgh, who drove a 20-horsepower Ford car to the top of Ben Nevis, 4,406 feet high, and down again. Mr. J. G. Avery (the manager) and an assistant recently returned to London with 1,300 feet of film. The ascent of the mountain, which took in reality five days to accomplish, is vividly depicted. An interesting feature is the building of a temporary bridge, which the daring motorist found necessary to carry him over a ravine. The car suffered no noticeable damage and safely reached the foot of the mountain, where its driver was received with great enthusiasm.

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 24TH

THE GHOST OF THE VAULTS

An exceedingly well staged drama, admirably enacted

JIM AND JACK

A Comic Vaudeville Sketch

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JULY 1ST

THE KING'S FAVORITE

A magnificent production full of exciting episodes, holding the interest throughout
A work of art that will tickle the palate of all film connoisseurs. Start featuring this headliner NOW

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

ALL UP-TO-DATE INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT—THE FILMS THAT SATISFY

The whole town of Fort William turned out to do honor to the adventurer and a triumphal procession was formed. The film proved a popular item in the programme submitted recently at the Empire Music Hall, Leicester Square.

* * *

A remarkable release by the Warwick Trading Co. is that depicting the Royal Wedding in India. It will be remembered that the Princess Brinda, of Tubbal, was engaged at a very early age to the Prince of Kapurthala and was brought up in Paris. Anxious that a number of her friends residing at a distance should witness her marriage, she expressed a desire that a Cinematograph man should be in attendance at the ceremony. The Warwick man was appointed to do the work and set out with the distinguished party consisting of the most noble families of France. A very remarkable series of films, 688 feet in total length, was obtained and they are to be released on July 13th.

* * *

The attention of the entire English film trade is at the moment concentrated upon the Coronation pictures. The arrangements for filming the great procession are now about complete and the event is anxiously awaited by the vast community. The exhibitor is spreading his announcements far and wide and record business is anticipated in every quarter.

London, June 7th. L. D.

Mr. H. A. Mackie

Mr. Mackie, of 853 Broadway, corner of Fourteenth Street, New York City, has greatly enlarged his present quarters and facilities for making quick repairs. There is one special department devoted entirely to repairing of all makes of machines. This department is equipped with the most modern and accurate improved machinery for making these repairs. The demonstrating department is equipped with an asbestos booth and mirror screen upon which pictures are thrown in the full glare of daylight. In the exhibition room there are numerous machines of the Edison, Powers, Pathe, Standard, &c., makes, also stereopticons both single and double dissolving. A visit to the above quarters will highly interest anyone desiring to see the latest in motion picture equipments.

PRESTO EMERGENCY CLAMP

A handy emergency device for all users of hand feed arc lamps, especially picture machines.

ASK ABOUT IT

Descriptive matter on request. Patent applied for.

Box 264 SYRACUSE NEW YORK

DROP US A LINE

and we will obtain for you any Film.

We will sell the CORONATION at 7 1-2c. per foot.

We have also the FALL OF TROY and other features.

N. Y. FILM RENOVATING CO.

12 Union Square - - New York City

ANDREWS PICTURES, Ltd.

Have been granted some exclusive positions for cinematographing THEIR MAJESTIES' CORONATION PROCESSION on June 22nd next.

Approximate length 650 feet. Code word, "Corona"

Also the ROYAL PROCESSION of June 23rd, including the Illuminations along the line of route.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Ropill"

THE REVIEW AT SPITHEAD on June 24th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code word, "Respit"

And the ROYAL PROCESSION through the North-East of London on June 29th.

Approximate length 350 feet. Code Word, "Ropel"

All above subjects at 3½d (Three Pence Halfpenny) Per Foot Net.

Terms 50% Cash with Order. Balance C. O. D. to Agent or Carriers.

Address 90 CHARING CROSS ROAD, LONDON, W. C.

Cable "ANDREORA, London." Code A B C. 5th Edition.

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

"IMPS" WELL KNOWN ABROAD

The above cartoon reproduced by permission from the London Daily Sketch is of special significance to Americans inasmuch as it gives an indication of the general popularity enjoyed by "Imp" films in London. An English moving picture man writes: "'Imps' are so well known here that they are being used in the daily newspapers, as you will see by the inclosed clipping." On several occasions "Imp" advertisements have been reproduced in English newspapers as samples of the wonderful ingenuity exercised by the American people in advertising their wares.

THE WILD AND WOOLY WEST

Whoopee! Whoopla! Wee-e-e! they're off!

Approaching the Solax studio and even while we were a half-mile from our destination, these blood-curdling yells greeted our ears. Coming directly from the work-a-day and prosaic atmosphere of 13th Street West, New York City, we were rather unprepared for the typical wild and wooly Western scenes that met our eyes as we were rolled up to the portals of the spacious ground of the Solax motion picture studio at Flushing. Entering, we were taken aback at the marvelous change that the studio grounds had undergone since our last visit. In the place of the beautiful summer garden and swan pond that had hitherto offered its grateful shade and cool, we were confronted with a typical Western country scene. A ranch house with its arid surroundings stood prominently in the foreground, before which numbers of cowboys in picturesque dress for which they are noted lolled about the baked turf, deftly rolling their hand-made cigarettes and amusing themselves with the fiery bronchos.

We had not long to wait for the fun to begin. "Art" Borden, the well known and widely traveled champion rope thrower of Wyoming and broncho buster, warily approaches the famous outlaw mare "Mary," the while his side partner sidles up to the vicious horse's head with a view to blinding the fractious animal to enable "Art" to get within at least five feet of the steed—for be it known that it is no easy matter to mount Mary, let alone staying on after this most difficult feat has been accomplished, and that there is a standing offer of a substantial sum of money to the one who will stay on Mary's back for thirty consecutive seconds. After a good deal of manoeuvering the saddle is finally strapped on, and with a panther-like leap "Art" is on her back. Then happens something that probably has never been seen in moving pictures before. Around and around goes Mary, executing all sorts of double twists, hand springs and a few other things, the names and definitions of which are not given. There is enough said when we say that for broncho busting and trick roping we have never seen the equal. As fast as Mary wears one man out there is another to take his place, and the next one on the docket is Otto Kline, another expert rider and rope manipulator.

This company of Westerners, Messrs. Borden, Kline and Murphy, "The Cowboy Pugilist," have been obtained by the Solax Company at a pretty penny, and the trade may look forward to a genuine surprise and innovation in the picture line. The team has been in vaudeville for some time on the Orpheum Circuit, and anyone that is acquainted with their work while on the stage may look ahead with pleasure to seeing them on the screen in the near future.

The vigorous competition that already exists between the various Independent manufacturers for producing the spectacular film, the "special" film, and in fact any sort of a picture that will compel extraordinary attention on the part of the picture-going public—and incidentally enhance the quality of their film and reputation of that company, increases with almost every succeeding release.

The Solax Company, having decided upon the military character of picture as a medium through which to demonstrate the ability of the company, and launching this series of military pictures with the firm intention of making them the best and most elaborate militaries yet produced, wish to make the following announcement:

Sometime during the week of June 26th, the Solax Stock Company will take its bags and paraphernalia and motor cars and cameras and take a flying trip to Washington, D. C., and vicinity, including Fort Meyer and the historic territory round about, for the purpose of making a number of military pictures, using some exceptionally meritorious scenarios now in the hands of their managing director, Mr. Wilbert Melville.

With the natural advantages offered by such a territory as is found in and about Washington and Ft. Meyer—the beautiful scenery as a background, possible pictures of the White House and other buildings of national fame, persons of national and international note, and with the gracious permission of the War Department of the United States Government enabling their director to secure pictures of troops in regulation uniform, in action and on parade, manoeuverings of battleships off the Virginia coast, landing of detachments of sailors and marines, transportation of supplies for the mammoth fortresses of steel and the portrayal of official routine and life about the Capitol; pictures of unrivalled magnitude and beauty will be possible and will all go to make these intended pictures the most complete and authentic records of military and official life ever recorded.

THE WESTERN FILM EXCHANGE
OF NEW YORK

The Best Independent Service in New York
Furnishing a Variety of 21 Reels
EACH WEEK
Special Attention Given to Out of Town Customers

FRANK MEYER, Manager
Representatives
LON VAIL RODNEY POWERS CHARLES THEALL
Telephone 2892 Bryant 2893
Forty-Fifth St. Ex. Bldg.
145 WEST 45th STREET

"Get In Touch With Us"
WE ARE FILM SPECIALISTS and if you are in the market for any kinds of films, old or new, it will pay you to COMMUNICATE WITH US
write for our list of commercial reels—some as low as five dollars.
ATLANTIC FILM CO.
12 UNION SQUARE NEW YORK
"Get In Touch With Us"

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK	LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK	3,750,000
FULLY PAID UP	LIRE 5,750,000

EXCHANGE MEN WRITE TO US FOR PARTICULARS OF OUR FIRST RELEASE

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPH: CINES NEW YORK

THE CENTRE FOR

Motion Picture Equipment

853 BROADWAY
CORNER 14TH STREET
NEW YORK

and Supplies With Merit

H. A. MACKIE
Jobber

Be Up-to-Date

Don't persist in using a worn out motion picture machine which injures the eyes of your patrons, the film you run through it and causes the pictures to flicker and jump all over the screen.

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH NO 6

projects smooth flickerless pictures which are instantly appreciated by the discerning public, and will increase your gate receipts. Don't let your competitor get ahead of you. We will sell through your film exchange, or dealer, Power's Cameragraph No. 6, to replace your old machine, on a whereby it will practically pay for itself. Two thousand six hundred users all over the world testify to the benefits derived from Power's No. 6. If you are not using it now, you can't afford to be indifferent to this offer.

PARTIAL PAYMENT PLAN

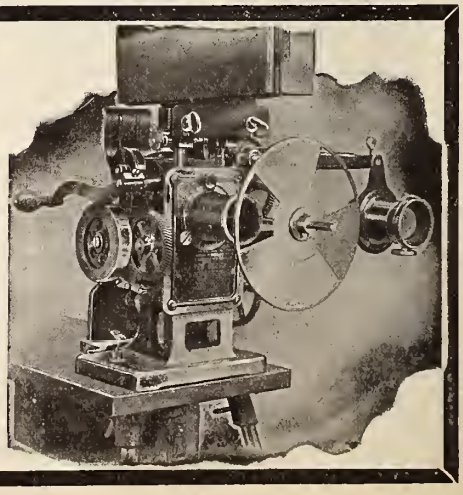
Write at once for Proposition D. State the name of your exchange, or dealer, number of machines required, etc., and give us three references.



NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau St., New York

For fourteen years the leading manufacturers of moving picture machines.

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

"IN THE SULTAN'S GARDEN"

"Imp" Release, July 3

Lieutenant Robbins, a young naval officer, sees Haydee, the favored inmate of the Sultan's harem, and is smitten by her charms. She is interested in the handsome young American. She manages to write him a note that is delivered to him on the deck of his warship, lying at anchor in a harbor on the Bosphorus Sea. Haydee implores him to effect her rescue, as the life is irksome. The adventurous young lieutenant enters into the task with a zest that is commendable, and the attempt is fraught with disaster.

Haydee is the favorite of the Sultan, the most beautiful of the coterie of pretty women, and a close espionage is kept over her movements. She sees Lieutenant Robbins over the wall of the garden and they have a clandestine meeting. The Sultan's spies discover the tryst, and the enamored young man is captured, confined in a dungeon and sentenced to be executed at daybreak. Haydee is incarcerated, and the Sultan is so enraged that she should have a secret love affair, he commands that she be sewn up in a gunny sack and cast into the sea, to suffer death by drowning. The girl is in despair, and her lover is frantic.

A woman in the harem, who is fond of Haydee, sets her wits to work, and when the girl is placed in the bag, manages to secrete a knife in the sack. The girl is thrown into the sea, but cuts her bonds and frees herself, swimming to the ship. Once aboard, she startles the commander and the jackies with her story. She is cared for and the relief expedition organized. The Americans, having no love for the Sultan and his troop, make a dash for the grounds, and Lieutenant Robbins is liberated after a brief but one-sided struggle, in which the sailors fight like demons to effect the escape of their superior officer. They barely have time to reach the water when the Sultan's men are reinforced, and for a time the tide of battle seems to be against them.

Boats are put off from the warship and there is an exciting marine engagement. Guns on the war vessel are trained on the scene and the gunnery is excellent. The dark men draw off, and Lieutenant Robbins and his rescuers reach the ship unharmed, excited, but jubilant. The love scene of the handsome officer and his Oriental sweetheart on the deck of the vessel is a pretty one, and his brother officers envy him his adventure and its attendant result.

"FOR THE QUEEN'S HONOR"

"Imp" Release, July 6

This is a story of Italy, period the sixteenth century, and the principals royalty.

Prince Alberto loves Gilda, the sister of Queen Amalia, and his love is returned. He asks the permission of the King to marry Gilda, and the ruler gladly grants the request, having a high regard for the Prince.

Duke Arturo, a villain at heart, of an intriguing nature, loves Queen Amalia, and resolves to win her from her husband or compromise her.

Prince Alberto notices the Duke holding whispered converse with the Queen, and taking the King aside, cautions him to look to the Queen's honor. The King, already suspicious of the attentions of the handsome Duke, decides to keep the Queen and the Duke under espionage.

Through a subterfuge the Duke appoints a clandestine meeting with the Queen. Her sister, somewhat suspicious, discovers them, and takes in the compromising situation. She leads the Queen away, and then pleads with the Duke to not annoy her sister with his unwelcome attentions.

The King and the Prince, looking through a secret panel, discover the Duke and Gilda together. The enraged King demands an explanation, and Gilda, with her quick woman's wit, confesses that she loves the Duke, and has met him by appointment, to shield her sister. The King's suspicions are not fully allayed, and he commands them to go to the chapel and be married, while the Prince is broken-hearted.

The Duke and Gilda persist in their statement, and they are married, to the grief of the Prince, and the dismay of the Queen. The King, still suspicious, conducts them to their bridal chamber and leaves them.

The Duke although a villain at heart, does not attempt to take advantage of the situation, but conducts his wife to her bedroom and hands her the key. She locks herself in, and he remains in the outer room during the night.

The next morning the Prince meets the Duke and challenges him to a duel. The Duke refuses to fight, but takes the Prince to the altar of the chapel, and, after swearing him to secrecy, divulges the story, leaving the Prince and Gilda in front of the altar engaged in prayer.

The Duke and the King engage in a friendly fencing bout, but while the attention of the King is directed elsewhere, the Duke removes the button from the King's foil, poisons the point of the weapon, and leaves it where the King may pick it up without knowing it has been tampered with. When the King returns to renew the friendly passage at arms, he touches the Duke, and he is killed by the deadly poison.

Thus ends the story, with the King in ignorance of the true situation, having killed the man who tried to betray him, the Queen relieved from an embarrassing situation, and the lovers free to marry, the King the only one of the principals who never knew.

"GROUCHO'S QUIET FOURTH"

Yankee Release, July 3d

To be patriotic and a nervous wreck on the Fourth of July is indeed an unfortunate condition to be in; but such was the case with Mr. Groucho. He could not bear the noise of the celebration of Independence about his house, and when a crowd of youngsters stop in front of his house and commence blowing tin horns, beating drums and shooting fire crackers, Groucho flies to the quietude of the country, and is just beginning to enjoy his rest when a sham battle occurs, and he is again driven forth.

He next seeks a quiet Fourth on board a pleasure boat, but, unfortunately, the other passengers are bent on celebrating the glorious Fourth, and Groucho is compelled to leap into the river to escape the noise of young and old America.

Ah! a thought has struck Groucho, and he hurries to the cemetery. Here, indeed, he thinks of finding it quiet, but Groucho did not know of the burial of a soldier and when the sound of the volley being fired over the soldier's grave reaches the ears of Groucho, he hurriedly decamps, seeking other quarters.

Next Groucho comes to a sanitarium, and falls from exhaustion. The superintendent of the sanitarium, being a patriotic citizen, has gathered his patients on the lawn in front of the sanitarium, and they begin to celebrate in the usual noisy way. Groucho tries to run away from this scene, but is seen by the doctor and patients, who immediately give chase.

After Groucho has been captured he is pronounced insane by the doctor, and locked in a padded cell. As Groucho is peering forth between the bars of his window, a keeper sets off a box of fire-crackers, and poor Groucho is compelled to bear it all.

"HIS GREAT SACRIFICE"

Yankee Release, July 7th

Eva Tanglefoot, a popular vaudeville star, after a strenuous season, goes to a small country town to recuperate. Her beauty, personal magnetism and general good-fellowship makes her a favorite among the village people, and her coquettish manner wins the hearts of all the men she meets.

Among her many admirers is one who really loves her, and though only a country boy, his strong love makes some impression upon the hitherto heart-free beauty. Not wishing to give up a career to become the wife of a country boy, she refuses his offer of marriage, and goes back to the city to win the plaudits of the thousands of theatergoers.

While in her dressing-room, preparing to go before the audience, an alcohol lamp upon her dressing-table explodes, casting its fiery stream into her face and marring it frightfully. The career of the famous actress appears at an end, for the fickle public would not want her without her beauty. The case appears hopeless, and the actress is doomed to be scarred for life, when sudden hope is renewed by the suggestion of one of the physicians to try grafting of new and healthy skin upon the parts burned away.

An appeal to her many so-called admirers is made for volunteers to undergo the operation, but all refuse. In the meantime, the country boy who loved her reads of the accident and also of the fact that no volunteers appeared willing to sacrifice some of their own skin to save the beauty of the famous Eva Tanglefoot. He immediately leaves for the city and presents himself at the hospital as a volunteer. The physicians and nurses warn him of the pain he must undergo, but he cheerfully submits to the knife and the operation takes place.

His sacrifice is well repaid, as Eva Tanglefoot recovers and retains her beauty. The boy leaves the hospital and returns to his country home. The actress is touched by his heroism and loyalty, and knowing that in one who willingly would undergo such pain and agony she would find a good protector, she follows him to the country and is more than happy to become his wife.

"A COWBOY AND A LORD"

Champion Release, July 5th

An English nobleman, Lord Ronan, has fallen in love with an American girl, Grace Filden, and at her mother's invitation he comes to visit their ranch to see the Western life. He is met at the station by the cowboys, who escort him to the ranch. Mrs. Filden is ambitious, and would like her daughter to marry a title.

Grace, though she is courteous and polite to the Englishman, prefers her cowboy lover. Her mother, seeing this, tells the cowboy that Grace is engaged to Lord Ronan and sends him off.

As he goes away he sees a Mexican greaser and hireling plotting together and the greaser writes a note and sends it off with the hireling. The cowboy notices the malicious expression on the Mexican's face, but continues to ride on.

The note which the Mexican sent, and which was supposed to come from the cowboy, was a plot to bring Grace to a lonely spot. She, thinking to meet Bob, comes to the rendezvous, and finds herself powerless in the hands of the two Mexicans.

In the meantime, Bob, remembering the Mexican's look, suspects mischief, and returns in time to see Grace carried off. A race follows, in which the hireling, who is in the rear, is shot. Bob gains on the Mexican, and finally manages to stop him. Bob takes Grace back and tells her he is going away forever. She cannot understand it, and enters her home, sad and forlorn.

The Englishman, who has been waiting for her, proposes marriage, and she bursts into tears, telling him of her love for Bob and his departure. The Englishman, seeing the reason of Bob's departure, resolves to follow him, and learning from the other cowboys the direction Bob took, follows the track and overtakes him. Bob, learning that it is he who is loved, returns, and the welcome he receives from Grace proves it to be true. The cowboy, true type of American, has won out against an English lord.

"THE FIGHTING REV. CALDWELL"
Champion Release, July 3d

Some startling incidents in the life of the Reverend James Caldwell, the fighting parson of New Jersey, the hero of the battle of Springfield, have been rescued for the first time from the oblivion of a century and a half, and are here presented by the Champion players with an adherence to historical verity and correctness of detail that is truly wonderful.

The Tories were bitter haters of the patriots, and many and horrible were the atrocities they perpetrated against them, but nothing did they do more infamous than the wanton, brutal murder of Mrs. James Caldwell, the wife of the fighting parson.

The reverend gentleman had cast his lot with the patriots, for he loved his country and detested her tyrannical rulers; and we see in this film presentation what it meant—and what it cost to be a patriot in those days.

We see the parson in the pulpit expounding the Word of God, and there, on either side of the Holy Book, two blunderbusses—the huge pistols then in vogue. And ranged behind him, on the platform, a number of muskets, the old-fashioned flint-locks, terrible instruments in the hands of the clear-eyed, courageous, sharp shooting "Minute Men," as the unorganized patriots were then termed.

The Tories and Hessians approaching, one day, Mistress Caldwell went off to a neighbor's hard-by, taking with her her little girl. The fond father waved his beloved wife and child an affectionate adieu, little dreaming of the dark tragedy that was soon to cloud his life.

But a few days had elapsed, the holy Sabbath had come, and the parson was in the midst of his sermon, when a messenger arrived telling him of the cold-blooded murder of his beloved spouse! O, the horror of it! What consternation in that house of prayer then broke forth! Men seized their weapons and rushed out, following their parson's lead.

Into the death chamber he came, followed by his faithful people, there to gaze on the still, cold form of her whose heart beats once pulsated with warm and tenderest affection for him; then to see his little girl baby by her mother's form, kneeling and weeping her very eyes out in the despair and anguish of her little soul! O, the agony of it all seemed too much for mortal eyes to gaze on!

We wonder little after that to see the fierce charges of the patriots against their hated foes, led on by their minister of God. We wonder little to see him, when the men ran short of wadding for their guns, rush into the church, when nowhere else could it be had, and grab up armfuls of hymn books, hymnals by the celebrated composer "Watts," and rushing forth to his men, cry out, as he flung the hymn books among them: "Give them 'Watts,' boys; give them 'Watts.'"

"THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE"
Thanhouser Release, July 4th

John Hancock, one of the most ardent of American patriots, had more to lose than had practically any of his associates in the revolution against George the Third. A millionaire at a time when a man with $10,000 was regarded as wealthy, the revolution absolutely beggared him, as he had predicted it would, but from start to finish he did all he could to win freedom for his country.

To Samuel Adams is accorded much of the credit of winning the handsome young millionaire to the side of the patriots, but his sweetheart, Dolly Quincy, afterward his wife, also had much to do with the stand he took. For she was an ardent American.

Hancock was an active figure in the famous "Boston Tea Party," when the tea ships from England were attacked, and the wares thrown overboard. He did not, like some of the others, try to avoid recognition by disguising himself as an Indian, but was present with the crowd on the ship, trying to preserve order, seeing that nothing except the tea was disturbed.

Hancock was really the cause of the first fighting, that of Lexington, when the British regulars were repulsed by the farmers and minute men. Gage dispatched troops to seize munitions of war at Concord, but on the way they were ordered to stop at Lexington, where Hancock and Adams were, and arrest both men as traitors, Gage planning to send them to England for trial and execution.

But the plan was foiled by Paul Revere, who, learning of the expedition in time, made his historical ride, and beside arousing the countryside, gave Hancock and Adams the warning that enabled them to make their escape.

Hancock was a member of the Continental Congress, and his election as President came about in a dramatic way.

The patriots were in session when an official message came from Gage, offering pardons to "all rebels" except Hancock and Adams, who, it was declared, "would receive condign punishment." The answer was the prompt election of Hancock as President, and when Benjamin Harrison introduced him to the assemblage as its presiding officer, he remarked grimly: "We will show Britain how much we value her proscriptions."

As presiding officer, it was Hancock's privilege to first sign the Declaration of Independence, which he did in large, bold characters, saying, "I write so that George the Third may read without his spectacles." And at the time he signed there were many among the patriots who believed that Hancock had signed his death warrant.

Hancock gained his nickname, "The Cavalier of American Liberty," because of his elaborate costumes. Even in these days he would be called a dandy. His garb was particularly remarked upon at a time when Americans, particularly in New England, where he lived, were plainly and severely dressed.

From the above it may be gained that the reel deals not only with the Declaration of Independence, but gives the Life of Hancock, the Boston Tea Party, the Redcoats' Retreat from Lexington, and other events of the important early days of the American Revolution.

"THE COURT'S DECREE"
Thanhouser Release, July 7th

The Blakes are a couple who, because of difference in temperament and a failure on both sides to make concessions, have drifted apart. The wife is only mildly interested when her husband proposes to secure a separation. In fact, her principal feeling is one of relief. But her indifference quickly vanishes when the court decree is handed down granting the separation, but awarding the custody of the child to the husband.

Mrs. Blake wants her little girl, and failing to obtain her legally, resorts to trickery. She disguises herself and is engaged as governess of her own little daughter, now living in the home of her husband's aunt.

The child, who has wept much for her mother, on being told the identity of the new governess, gladly agrees to go with her. The two go walking, and the governess returns with the news that the child has wandered away. Her hat, found on the shore of a lake in the park, gives color to the belief that she has been drowned. This theory is accepted, and the governess is discharged. She goes away, happy in the belief that her stratagem has succeeded, for she had hidden the child in her poor rooms meaning to take her away and begin a new life in some other city.

Her pitiful plan might have been a success, for its very daring, had it not been for Violet Gray, the detective. Violet, suspicious of the supposed governess, tracked her to her room, and from the fire escape saw her fondling a boy, for little Marie had also been disguised. The detective brings the father to the house and he at once recognizes his child. Violet tears the disguise from the mother and Blake sees his unhappy wife. She pleads with him and the child clings to her. Blake realizes that with the daughter the mother comes first. He loves his child and wants to make her happy. Legally he is entitled to her custody, but morally he realizes that he is not. Sadly he places the child in her mother's arms and with bowed head starts out alone.

But this Marie will not allow. She has her mother, but she wants her father, too. She runs after him and begs him to remain with them. Both parents realize that they paid too much attention to little things, that they have overlooked the big thing in their lives, their child. They decide to forgive and forget, and to begin life anew, remembering that they have one treasure which they can never divide—the love of a little girl.

"THE KING'S FAVORITE"
Great Northern Release, July 1st

The Knight's daughter goes to the trysting place, where she discovers a note left by the young squire. Her action is watched by a jealous rival, who tells the girl's parents of their daughter's perfidy. While he is relating his discovery, the young squire and his love are enjoying a pleasant tete-a-tete in the grounds of the castle. They are again discovered by the rival, who summons the old knight, and together they confront the lovers, the young squire being turned out of the grounds. But his rival's triumph is not long-lived. It is discovered that he is connected with the enemy. War has been proclaimed, and the king is busy examining plans. These the rivals steals, but his crime is detected by the young squire, who tussles with him. In the combat the corner is torn off the plans, though the hero is wounded in the encounter. As recompense, he is promoted to the rank of officer, and still tracking down his rival, whose treachery he ultimately unveils, he sees him attempting the destruction of the ship on which the king is to direct the battle. But rather than submit to capture, the traitor jumps overboard, and is drowned. The battle, a thrilling scene, results in victory for the king, who, on his return to his own country, is the means of bringing about a union between the knight's daughter and her gallant lover.

"A FASCINATING WIDOW"
Solax Release (Split Reel), June 28th

The friendship and quiet routine of the lives of Herman Schmeltz and Michael McSweeney, star boarders of the lodging house "Indigestible" is suddenly broken by the appearance of a charming and beautiful widow boarder. The men, up to the time of the widow's arrival were fast friends, but from the moment of the widow's entrance into their lives they became bitter rivals, and in their efforts to get ahead of each other and to get the inside track of the widow they get themselves into many ridiculous positions.

They meet the widow in the reception room, where they both present her with a beautiful bouquet of flowers, the while they fall on their knees and tell her that she must now choose between them. Widow Wise is undecided until Michael flashes a big roll of bills and, strange to say, the widow immediately decides that Michael is the man for her.

Poor Herman, much downcast by his failure to win the love of the widow, is seen in the adjoining room from Michael's apartment. Michael, preparing for his wedding, lays out his clothes upon his bed and then goes to the bathroom. Herman, looking through the keyhole, decides that here is a chance to get even with his hated rival, and Michael is no sooner out of sight when Herman tiptoes his way into the room and steals the clothes.

Michael, returning from the bath, is much astonished at not finding his clothes where he left them. The time for the wedding is fast approaching, and he is fast becoming desperate. As he runs frantically about the room, calling upon the four walls to divulge the whereabouts of his clothes, Herman is making the most of the time and has appeared at the church. He finds the impatient widow and guests waiting, and, taking advantage of the opportunity, he presses with renewed vigor his suit for the widow's hand. To get even with Michael for, as she supposes, the slight, she decides to marry Herman, right then and there. The ceremony is just finished when in rushes Michael in his bathrobe, but the deed has been done, and all poor Michael can do is to grin and bear it.

"A TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE"

Kid Vinnie takes her rag doll brother out in the go-cart for a morning's airing. As she wheels it back and forth before the house she is called into her home by her mother and leaves the doll outside on the walk. Mischievous Johnnie comes along and, seeing the carriage by the door, realizes that here is an opportunity for deviltry. He ties the baby carriage to the rear of a wagon that stands nearby, and the mother and Vinnie come out of the house just in time to see the baby carriage go rocking up the street in tow of the wagon.

The usual chase follows, but finally the object of the pursuit is overtaken, much to the relief of mother and child, the doll is rescued, "unharmed."

"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN"
Solax Release, June 30th

In the eastern part of New Mexico, nestling among the foothills of the Rockies, is located the little mining town of Gatlach. You will look for it in vain upon the map—it is too insignificant to have obtained the dignity of official recognition. There, however, we find an active mining camp, dependent largely upon the famous Gatlach mine for its existence.

Living in the camp we find Florence, the heroine of our picture, who is loved by Jake, a diamond in the rough, who has known the girl from her infancy. Florence, too, loves Jake, in a way, but more as a brother. A new superintendent arrives, to take charge of the mining property. The new arrival meets Florence, and the man and girl fall in love. Jake realizes that Florence has transferred her affections to the new superintendent, but he keeps this all to himself for the sake of her happiness.

Discontent among the Mexican and half-breed miners develops. They mutiny, coming to the office, making demands which the superintendent promptly refuses, and orders them from the place. The ruffians withdraw, to arm themselves, and then plan an attack upon the office and the death of their boss. Jake overhears the plot, and while he has no love for Harry, determines for the sake of Florence to save them.

He rushes to the office and warns them just as the mob appears. They are pursued and finally take refuge in a narrow pass. With only one horse, escape for the party is impossible. Jake forces Harry against his will to take the horse and Florence and escape. They depart, seeking aid, which is found in the shape of a troop of cavalry out scouting. Thus reinforced, they rush back to Jake's aid, but too late, he has fought his last fight, and given up his life for those dear to him. Greater love hath no man.

"SECURING EVIDENCE"
Rex Release, June 29th

Securing evidence, where what is secured is only the evidence of a husband's unjustified lack of confidence and shortsightedness, is not of a certainty securing anything greatly worth having.

Mr. Jenkins gets what he is sent after—evidence—but he gets it in that particular part of the anatomy known as the neck. It all starts this way—his wife has bought a dress, and it is some apparel. In the eyes of Mr. Jenkins it is so loud that a good look at it would knock you so far in the future you wouldn't come to until after Bryan was elected president. Mr. Jenkins growls and scowls and says all sorts of things about the dress. The next day Mrs. Jenkins goes shopping and leaves a note for hubby giving him the glad tidings that she will be away all day and in the evening will go from shopping to attend a suffragette meeting. Hubby, a short while after the receipt of the note, is out walking when he sees "the dress." At once he recognizes it and becomes suspicious when he sees his supposed wife arm in arm with another man. He engages a passing photographer to follow the pair and try and get some snapshots for evidence.

We had better tell you right now that the party wearing the dress is not his wife, but Marie, Mrs. Jenkins' maid, who had admired the dress and took advantage of Mrs. Jenkins' absence to wear it herself, as it was her day off. It was daring, unscrupulous, almost thief thinking, but it never would have come to life were it not for the eagle eye of Mr. Jenkins. The maid goes to Coney Island with Charlie, her beau, and the photographer follows, props his camera up whenever he sees a situation he thinks he can snap, but he has many upsets in getting his picture. The amusement devices afford Marie and Charlie a pleasant day's outing and you can imagine what the photographer has to contend with in trying to ride along and operate his camera at the same time. The photographer is detected trying to photo Marie on the beach as she enters the water, and a party of bathers take and give him a good ducking as well as handling him rather roughly on the beach. But when he comes out of the hospital he thinks that the picture will repay him for his aches and pains. He is only confronted by storms and threats from the husband who, upon viewing the photographs, realizes that it wasn't his wife after all. The maid confesses and all hands in one accord raise their right hand and cry "never again."

NEW EQUIPMENT FOR "THE LYRIC" AT OYSTER BAY

A new model Motiograph moving picture machine wtih Hallberg economizer has just been installed at the Lyric Theater, Oyster Bay, L. I., and the patrons express themselves as being very well pleased with the beautiful light and pictures.

Iowa City, Ia.—The Coldron Opera House was sold to the Citizens' Saving and Trust Bank.

Cantrilla.—Herbert Brown and the Hannah Bros. are preparing to start a moving picture show.

Hoboken, N. J.—The Hudson Motion Picture Co., capital $50,000; John W. Mitchell, Lewis Johnston and Walter Goodchild.

Warsaw, N. Y.—The proposition to purchase the Farman Theater for $8,000 was carried.

Waterloo, Ia.—O. C. McClinton, of this city, has established a moving picture theater at Hennepin Avenue and Lake Street, Minneapolis.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Gilligham & Smith will erect a theater on Canal Street to cost $50,000.

St. Louis, Mo.—The moving picture theater at 1413 Market Street was damaged by fire to the amount of $800.

Davenport, Ia.—The Plow Theater was destroyed by fire to the amount of $425.

Tipton, Ia.—Ralph Kent will erect an airdome here.

Columbus, Neb.—O. H. Washburn, of the Lyric and Airdome Theaters, will build a play house on the site occupied by the Airdome Theater.

Buffalo, N. Y.—August Achinger, 1065 Genesee street, will enlarge moving picture theater to cost $400.

Houston, Tex.—The Plaza Theater will be erected at Lamar avenue and Main street.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Architect Charles L. Lesser is erecting a moving picture theater for M. Rice at Nineteenth street and Fond du Lac avenue. Will cost $10,000.

Galena, Ill.—W. N. Tiffany, of Platteville, Wis., will erect an airdome on Commerce street.

Newark, N. J.—Hyman Rosensohn will erect a moving picture theater at 282 Washington street, to cost $6,000.

Newark, N. J.—Ulrich Laub will erect a moving picture theater at 119 Bowery street, to cost $6,000.

"THANKS OLD BOY!"

Just to give you an idea of how my customers feel, I quote this extract from William E. Smith's letter. Bill is proprietor of the Bijou Theatre, Fond du Lac, Wisconsin:—"Thanks for the good programs, old boy. Things are coming fine!" That's the way my customers feel and write. And by the Sacred Horned Toad of Popocatapetl, it makes me feel fine in the gizzard to have 'em call me "old boy." When you become tired of puttering around with pikers, hook up with the "old boy."

CARL LAEMMLE, President

The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam Street, Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
515 Mulberry St., Des Moines, Iowa.

The biggest and best film renter in the world.

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

	Feet
May 17—Grenadier Roland	950
May 24—The Snow Maiden (Dr.)
May 31—Tweedledum's Dream (Com.)
May 31—Exploits of a Napoleon Admirer
June 7—Two Good Friends (Com.)
June 7—The Human Tigress
June 14—The Evolution in Womankind (Com.)
June 14—Kinema Review, Turin Exhibition
June 21—Tweedledum and His Rescuers (Com.)
June 21—Lake Verbano and the Borromae Islands

AMERICAN.

June 5—A Sage Brush Phrenologist (W. Com.)
June 5—The Elopement on Double L Ranch (W. Com.)
June 8—$5,000 Reward—Dead or Alive (W. Com. Dr.)
June 12—The Witch of the Range (Dr.)
June 15—The Cowboy's Ruse (Com.)
June 15—Law and Order on Bar L (Com.)
June 19—The Yiddisher Cowboy (Com.)
June 19—The Broncho Buster's Bride (Com.)
June 22—The Hermit's Gold (Dr.)
June 26—The Actress and the Cowboys (Com.)
June 26—The Sky Pilot's Intemperance (Com.)
June 29—A Western Waif (Dr.)

CHAMPION.

May 1—Clark's Capture of Kaskaskia	1000
May 3—Out of the Dark	990
May 8—Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California	1000
May 10—Making a Man of His Son	910
May 15—Gen. Marion—The Swamp Fox	950
May 17—Circle C's New Boss	950
May 22—With Sheridan at Murfreesboro (Dr.)	950
May 24—In the Great Big West (Dr.)	950
May 29—The Peril of Diaz	950
May 31—How He Redeemed Himself	950
June 5—Service Under Johnston and Lee	950
June 7—The Cost of Drink	950
June 12—Longstreet at Seven Pines	950
June 14—His Last Crooked Deal	950
June 19—Molly Pitcher	950
June 21—For Her Sin	950
June 26—War and the Widow	950
June 28—The Boy Scouts to the Rescue	950

ECLAIR

Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
May 8—A Village Flirt (Com.)	910
May 15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.)	910
May 22—A Mother's Distress	430
May 29—The Two Gardeners (Com.)	940
June 5—Impudence Punished (Com.)	550
June 5—Tommy at the Dentist's (Com.)	420
June 12—Caesar's Birotteau (Dr.)	950
June 19—Tommy Gets a Trumpet (Com.)	370
June 19—The Ingenious Accident (Com.)	620
June 26—The Death of Don Juan	965
July 3—Can He Save Her (Dr.)	515
July 3—Tommy Wants to Be an Actor (Com.)	435
July 10—A Child's Heroism (Dr.)	995

GREAT NORTHERN.

Apr. 8—A Confidence Trick
Apr. 15—Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr. 22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)
Apr. 29—The Cossack Duke (Dr.)	894
May 6—The Lucky Banana Seller (Com.)
May 6—A Would-be Sportsman (Com.)
May 13—The Nun (Dr.)
May 20—The Voice of Conscience (Dr.)	786
May 20—Berne (Switzerland) (Sc.)	204
May 27—The Love of a Gypsy Girl (Dr.)
June 3—The Bogus Governess	945
June 10—True Love Never Dies (Dr.)
June 17—Hotel Thieves
June 24—The Ghost of the Vaults
July 1—The King's Favorite

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

Mar. 23—The Penniless Prince (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 27—Sweet Memories (Dr.)	1000
Mar. 30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr. 6—The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 10—A Good Cigar
Apr. 10—A Faithless Man
Apr. 13—The Storm
Apr. 20—The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr. 27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
May 1—Second Sight (Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
May 8—Four Lives (Dr.)	300
May 8—The Fair Dentist (Com.)	700
May 11—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Master and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Lighthouse Keeper (Dr.)	1000
May 22—The Forged Despatch (Dr.)	1000
May 25—The Minor Chord (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Three of a Kind (Dr.)	1000
June 1—The Last Appeal (Dr.)	1000
June 5—The Grind (Dr.)	700
June 5—The Chicago Stockyards Fire (Sc.)	500
June 8—Back to the Soil (Dr.)	1000
June 12—Behind the Stockade (Dr.)	1000
June 15—The Piece of String (Dr.)	1000
June 19—All for a Big Order (Dr.)	1000
June 22—The Fortune of War (Dr.)	1000
June 26—Love Is Best (Dr.)	1000
June 29—The Little Leader (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

May 6—Foolshead—Life Insurance Agent (Com.)	950
May 6—The Fountains of Rome
May 11—The Marchioness of Ansperti (Dr.)	950
May 13—Marriage Advertisement (Com.)	500
May 13—Foolshead Has Lost a Needle (C.)	500
May 18—Little Mother	950
May 20—Two Girls Love Foolshead (Com.)
May 26—The Little Rider (Dr.)
June 1—The Collector's Purse (Dr.)
June 3—International Exhibition at Turin
June 3—Knows-All, Anthropological Doctor (Com.)
June 8—A Life for the Czar (Dr.)
June 10—An Odd Adventure of Foolshead (Com.)
June 10—Experiments with Forlanini's Hydra-Plane
June 15—The Rights of Age (Dr.)
June 17—The Physician's Monkey (Com.)
June 17—Foolshead, Somnambulist (Com.)
June 22—An Unbearable Son (Dr.)
June 24—On the Snowy Summit of Mount Blanc
June 24—Foolshead Is Jealous (Com.)

LUX.

By Prieur.

Apr. 28—Naughty Miss Edith (Com.)	472
Apr. 28—Bill's Garden (Com.)	419
May 5—Bill as a Toreador (Com.)	419
May 5—Fashion and Its Consequence (Com.)	426
May 12—The Postmistress (Dr.)	700
May 12—A Walk in Tunis	252
May 19—Bill at Work (Com.)	367
May 19—All Through a Rat (Com.)	475
May 26—The Two Cockades (Dr.)	698
May 26—Tidying Up Paris (Com.)	268
June 2—Just Bill's Luck (Com.)	403
June 2—Arnold Has a Good Trial (Com.)	462
June 9—The Companion Governess (Dr.)	639
June 9—Bill at Play (Com.)	381
June 16—Bill Loses His Mother-in-Law (Com.)	409
June 16—He Went for a Rest (Com.)	442
June 23—Billy's Day Out (Com.)	550
June 23—Weary Tom's Dream (Com.)	318
June 30—Bill Determines to Go (Com.)	455
June 30—Shortsighted Miss Prim (Com.)	426

NESTOR FILM CO.

Mar. 29—The Truth (Dr.)
Apr. 5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr. 12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr. 19—The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr. 26—His Wife (Dr.)
May 3—The Other Man (Dr.)
May 10—After Twenty Years (Dr.)
May 17—His Second Choice (Com.)
May 24—At Panther Creek (Dr.)
May 31—The Savage (Dr.)
May 31—A Sure Cure (Com.)
June 7—The Cowpuncher (Dr.)
June 7—The Little Burglar (Com.)
June 14—The Sheriff's Mistake (Dr.)
June 14—The Plan that Failed (Com.)
June 21—At Sunset Ranch (Dr.)
June 21—Just His Luck (Com.)
June 28—The Gunfighter (Dr.)
July 1—Mutt and Jeff on the Job (Com.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

May 2—Shifty's Claim (W. Com. Dr.)	950
May 5—A Knight of the Trail	950
May 9—The Crow Chief's Defeat (Dr.)	950
May 12—The Foreman's Bride (Com. Dr.)	950
May 16—The Broncho Buster's Rival
May 19—The Cheyenne Medicine Man
May 23—The Outlaw and the Female Detective
May 26—Brave Swift Eagle's Peril
May 30—A Redskin's Bravery
June 2—A Tale of the Foothills
June 6—His Lordship's Hunting Trip (Com. Dr.)
June 9—A Child of the Rancho (Dr.)
June 13—A Squaw's Retribution
June 16—The Desert's Lure
June 20—The Dude Cowboy (Com.)
June 23—The Foreman's Mine

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

	Feet
Apr. 22—The Last Rose
Apr. 25—A Day with an English Bargeman (Com.)
Apr. 25—Melody of Fate (Dr.)
Apr. 29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.)
May 2—The Crisis (Dr.)
May 2—The Joys of Persecution (Com.)
May 6—The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)
May 9—The Four of Us (Com.)
May 9—Contagion (Com.)
May 13—As Your Hair Grows Whiter (Dr.)
May 16—Oklahoma (Dr.)
May 16—A Matrimoniai Surprise (Com.)
May 20—Gunga Din (Dr.)
May 23—Her Atonement
May 27—Fifty Years Ago
May 30—Civilization
June 3—Eyes That See Not (Dr.)
June 6—The Black Heart (Dr.)
June 10—The Stranger's Plate (Dr.)
June 13—Smith's Marmalade (Com.)
June 17—The Haunted Island (Dr.)
June 17—A Concert Hall Romance
June 20—How Women Win (Com.)
June 20—A Spring Tragedy
June 24—Oh, Say, Jim

RELIANCE

June 14—All Alone (Dr.)
June 17—A Pair of Pants (Com.)
June 17—A Bashful Son (Com.)
June 21—The Price of Vanity
June 24—What the Tide Told (Dr.)
June 28—Trials of An Immigrant
July 1—The Orphan
July 5—The Golden Rule
July 8—Thou Shalt Not Lie

REX

May 4—The Ultimate Sacrifice
May 11—The Guardsman (Dr.)
May 18—An Exception to the Rule (Com.)
May 25—Called Back (Dr.)
June 1—The Monogram "J. O." (Dr.)
June 8—From Death to Life (Dr.)
June 15—The Twins (Dr.)
June 22—On the Brink (Dr.)
June 29—Securing Evidence

SOLAX COMPANY

May 26—An Officer and a Gentleman (Dr.)
May 31—The Marvelous Cow (Com.)
June 2—Never Too Late to Mend (Dr.)
June 14—A Bad Egg (Com.)
June 16—A Daughter of the Navajos (Dr.)
June 21—Cupid and the Comet (Com.)
June 21—Johnnie Waters the Garden (Com.)
June 23—Marked for Life (Dr.)
June 28—The Fascinating Widow (Com.)
June 28—A Terrible Catastrophe (Com.)
June 30—Greater Love Hath No Man (Dr.)

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Apr. 14—Old Home Week (Com. Dr.)
Apr. 18—Cally's Comet (Com.)	1000
Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr. 25—Poet of the People (His.)
Apr. 28—An Elevator Romance (Com.)
May 2—The Pillars of Society (Dr.)
May 5—The Sinner (Dr.)
May 9—The Railroad Builder (Dr.)	1000
May 12—The Regimental Ball (Dr.)	1000
May 16—The Colonel and the King
May 19—Lady Clare
May 23—The Stage Child (Dr.)
May 26—Get Rick Quick (Dr.)
May 30—A Wartime Wooing
June2 —A Circus Stowaway
June 6—The Stepmother
June 9—Motoring
June 9—The Rescue of Mr. Henpeck
June 13—Little Old New York (Dr.)
June 16—Flames and Fortune (Dr.)
June 20—The Coffin Ship
June 23—Foxy Grandma
June 27—Courting Across the Court
June 30—Lorna Doone

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Apr. 14—Willie's Winning Ways (Com.)
Apr. 17—A Close Call (Dr.)
Apr. 21—The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr. 24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr. 28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May 1—A Kentucky Girl (Dr.)
May 5—Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.)
May 8—In Sunny Italy (Dr.)
May 12—The Angelus Bell (Dr.)
May 15—An Indian Brave's Conversion (Dr.)
May 19—The Banana Planter's Peril (Dr.)
May 22—The Little Western Rose (Dr.)
May 26—Thwarted by Nell Pierce (Dr.)
May 29—The Birth Mark (Dr.)
June 2—His Romance (Dr.)
June 5—The Scandal Monger (Dr.)
June 9—Mrs. Biffin's Demise (Dr.)
June 12—Thou Shalt Pay (Dr.)
June 16—The New Congressman (Dr.)
June 19—Sun Bonnet Sue (Dr.)
June 23—The Two Roads (Dr.)
June 26—His Romance (Dr.)
June 30—The Angelus Bell (Dr.)

OUR LOS ANGELES CORRESPONDENT

Los Angeles, June 15, 1911.—There is a storm brewing in this city and when it breaks look out, Mr. Exchangeman, and you Independent companies, for it's headed your way. At present it is merely a breeze, but it has all the earmarks of a tornado. Three exhibitors have already turned Trust and many more are threatening to follow suit unless the Independent exchanges change their business procedure. From almost all the exhibitors come the cry of more comedy, more comedy, more comedy. To make matters worse they declare they are unable to get the pictures they want, that the local exchanges will not get them. Too many tragedy pictures, too many death-bed scenes are being handed to them, they protest. They also declare they want a square deal with no partiality shown to anyone. The small dealers are protesting against what they call favoritism. As an example to show that a square deal is not given to everyone, an exhibitor who turned Trust tells the following story:

"I had made arrangements with an Independent exchange to give me a certain picture. The picture was out of the city I was told, but I would get it just as soon as it returned, which was to be in two days. I paid for it and then had some extra large signs made in order to feature the film. Two days passed and the next day went by and still I didn't get it. I didn't think it was the exchange's fault so I kept silent knowing that I would still get a chance to feature it just as soon as it arrived. Imagine my surprise when walking along the street that night I saw another theater featuring the very film I was waiting for. Notwithstanding the fact that I had paid for it, the film had been given to someone else. The cost of the signs was a total loss, but not wishing to make any disturbance, I merely took back my money and went to the General Film Company, where they will at least give me what I am booked for."

The same exhibitor had complained that he was unable to get the pictures he wanted and that many times he had been compelled to take a bill that was utterly unfit for his class of patrons. This exhibitor rarely ran first, second or third run pictures. On the other hand, when an exhibitor who never shows anything but first or second run pictures was asked if he was being treated right, he declared that he had no complaint to make except on the lack of comedy. Another well-known exhibitor who has run nothing else but Independent pictures for the past three years, declared that he never felt so strongly toward changing services as he does now. This exhibitor declares that he knows for a fact that out of eighteen comedy releases only six could be obtained from the local exchanges, and this after so many complaints had been made concerning the lack of comedy. After careful inquiry the total information received from the local Independent exhibitors as to their cause of dissatisfaction is that they are unable to get the pictures they want. Most of them do not blame the exchanges here, but say it is the fault of the San Francisco exchanges. It seems that as the Independent exchanges of San Francisco are of San Francisco, the necessary attention is not being given by the main offices to the local exchanges and that the best films, including most of the comedies, are kept in San Francisco while those which they do not want are shipped down here. Local exhibitors are of the opinion that there is a good opening here for a good film exchange whose policy does not have to be dictated by a set of men in another city who do not care whether the exhibitors here are satisfied or not.

Mr. Markoevich, manager of the California Film Exchange, of Los Angeles, will soon leave for San Francisco, where he will try to induce the "powers that be" of the California Film Exchange, of San Francisco, to allow the local exchange to get the entire output of the Sales Company.

The manager of the California Film Exchange wishes to deny the rumors that the California Film Exchange and Miles Bros.' Exchange have affiliated. He declares that they are merely helping each other in order to more successfully combat the Trust.

The Co-operative Film Manufacturing Company has announced that it will release its reels through the Associated Motion Picture Patents Company. The first picture is expected to be released the first week in August.

Airdomes are again coming into their own. If one is to judge by the number of airdomes that have already opened there will be more opened this year than ever before. The following nw ones have recently started: Mrs. Mary Earl, 2325 East Ninth street.; W. S. Allen, 2518 Central avenue; A. J. Williamson, 4620 Moneta avenue; Jones & Hudson, Temple and Beudry Sts.; Huggins & Robertson, 2014 East First St., and Pico St. Airdome, 1408-10 West Pico St.

Samuel Loeb, of the firm of Stutz & Loeb, proprietors of the Alhambra Airdome, has sold his interest in that theater to Samuel Kaufman. The present owners are both young men and will no doubt give a good account of themselves.

TELEPHONE 6130 BRYANT

Kinemacolor Company of America

(URBAN-SMITH PATENTS)

145 West 45th Street, Fifth Floor, New York City

CAPITAL STOCK SIX MILLIONS

J. J. Murdock, Managing Director. Arthur H. Sawyer, Corresponding Secretary.

EXCLUSIVE STATE RIGHTS

King's Coronation

First time "world's history," pictures in natural colors of royalty in all the pageantry of the court.

TAKEN BY ROYAL COMMAND

The only company in the world photographing the royal crown and jewels worn by King George V, and all scenes of the 40 days' festivities in brilliant, natural photographic colors.

NOTICE TO INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES

But a few states remain unlicensed. Apply at once. Quick action necessary if you contemplate securing a state right.

Advance shipments of festivities are now on exhibition at office exhibit room from 12 to 1 daily. You have but to see them to become a believer in the fortunes to be made in KINEMACOLOR.

SPECIAL—Contrary to the general impression the coronation festivities last 40 days, not two. By royal command the KINEMACOLOR COMPANY will make moving pictures in natural colors of all the important events during the entire period. The only pictures taken in black and white will be sections of the last two days' parade.

This company will have the release of twenty reels of KINEMACOLOR and the best black and white of Europe and America commencing in September.

Sixteen varieties of lithographs from Strobridge & Courier Company.

MISS DOROTHY PHILLIPS

Miss Dorothy Phillips, whose picture appears above, has been especially engaged by the Essanay Film Co. for a series of pictures to be taken during June and July.

Miss Phillips has attracted unusual prominence in the few years she has been on the stage. Last season she played the leading ingenue role in "Mary Jane's Pa," and for the coming season she was selected by Henry W. Savage from over one hundred applicants to interpret the part of "Youth" in "Everywoman."

THE IMP COMPANY

One of the most creditable efforts of the Imp Company for many months is "In the Sultan's Garden," the release of July 3d. It is a romance of an American naval lieutenant and a beautiful inmate of the sultan's harem. The story is laid on the Sea of Bosphorus and the marine pictures are beautiful and thrilling. A letter to the young man appealing for aid brings a prompt response and the American scales the garden wall only to fall into the hands of the soldiers of the monarch and condemned to be shot. The girl is sewed up in a sack and thrown in the sea. Her rescue by the lieutenant and his men, the fight on the water and the ultimate result makes a charming story, told in a thrilling manner.

The members of the Imp stock company will soon sally forth to take pictures in the open in their own car. A big six-cylinder Mitchell car with an omnibus body has been provided capable of carrying ten or twelve people handily with the needed accessories for exterior work. The Imp actors are employed a greater portion of the time in the filming of stories in the open in order to take advantage of the favorable weather. Doc Willat has also purchased a speedy little runabout for work in the city, making quick trips from the plant to the studio.

Mr. A. J. Danziger, of the New York Film Renovating Company, has just returned from a business trip through the Middle Western States and reports conditions as very satisfactory, especially so for his company. They make a specialty of furnishing films, either new or old, of any subject and it would be well to jot their number down in your memory or notebook, or better still, give them a call.

Toledo, Ohio.—An open air theater will be established at Summit and Balena Streets by Walter B. Moore, of the Lyceum Theater.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.
228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.
Telephone: 3790 Oxford

Lumiere

Cinematograph Film

BEST AND CHEAPEST SUPPLIED AT

3½ CENTS PER FOOT "UNPERFORATED"

Positive and Negative

"Sigma" and "Green Label." We have just received about 30,000 feet pieced Positive Film—two to three splices to the roll—which sells at 3½ cents per foot "unperforated." Perforation ¼ cent per foot extra.

Lumiere Jougla Co.

75 Fifth Ave., between 15th and 16th Streets
NEW YORK CITY
'Phone 531 Stuyvesant
Chicago Branch Office, 30 East Randolph Street

Solax

COMING!

15th United States Cavalry

We have secured permission from the United States Government to take MILITARY PICTURES at Fort Meyer.

Our people are on the ground ready to start with the manoeuvres of the 15th United States Cavalry.

Money will not be spared to give you the most realistic MILITARY PICTURES ever made.

These Pictures Will Start Releasing in July---EVERY FRIDAY

Book Them Ahead—Don't Miss One—All Big Features

Hundreds of troops—the regulars of our Army. Great broad instructive pictures. EACH A MASTERPIECE—HISTORIC STORIES WITH THE BEST ARMY IN THE WORLD FOR A SETTING.

Don't forget our COMEDY every WEDNESDAY

RELEASES

WED., JUNE 28th	"A FASCINATING WIDOW," and "A TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE,"	Split reel Comedy
FRIDAY, " 30th	"GREATER LOVE HATH NO MAN,"	Military
WED., JULY 5th	"STARTING SOMETHING,"	Comedy
FRIDAY, " 7th	"THE SILENT SIGNAL,"	Military
WED., " 12th	"BABY'S RATTLE," and "THAT JUNE BUG,"	Split reel Comedy

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED

Sold exclusively through M. P. D. & S. Co.

THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"When you think of WESTERN think of Flying A Cowboy Films"

RELEASE . OF . MONDAY, JUNE 26th

Scene from "The Actress and the Cowboys"

"The Actress and the Cowboys"

"The Sky Pilot's Intemperance"

Two uproariously laugh-provoking "Flying A" Cowboy Comedies. Both Western—both funny.

Scene from "The Sky Pilot's Intemperance"

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JUNE 29th

Scene from "A Western Waif"

"A Western Waif"

A Cowboy Drama. Extremely good production—an extremely good story—together with extremely sensational action, makes this reel an exceptional feature.

Scene from "A Western Waif"

COMING

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JULY 3d

"THE CALL OF THE OPEN RANGE"

The greatest Western Film the American Company ever made.

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JULY 6th

"THE SCHOOL MA'AM OF SNAKE"
"THE RANCH CHICKEN"

"Flying A" Cowboy Comedies—that's all.
Demand—Request—Beg, Borrow or Steal TWO "FLYING A" COWBOY FILMS EACH WEEK—Mondays and Thursdays.

American Film Mfg. Co., Bank Floor, Ashland Block CHICAGO = = ILLINOIS

JUL 6 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 26

July 1
1911

PRICE
TEN CENTS

SCENE FROM
THE KING'S FAVORITE
GREAT NORTHERN RELEASE
JULY 1st

Solax

GET READY FOR

Monster Military Masterpieces

15th UNITED STATES CAVALRY

Wonderful Picture Stories with the Best Army in the World as a Setting

RELEASES START LATE IN JULY

We have sent a large Company to FORT MEYER, VIRGINIA, where by special permission from the United States Government, we will take the finest series of MILITARY PICTURES ever produced in this country.

This is being done regardless of expense in order to help BOOM YOUR SUMMER BUSINESS WITH BIG FEATURES.

See Your Exchange at Once --- Insist on Getting Them All

OUR WEDNESDAY COMEDY---BETTER THAN EVER

RELEASES

- WED., JULY 5th—"STARTING SOMETHING," Comedy
- FRIDAY, " 7th—"THE SILENT SIGNAL," Military
- WED., " 12th—"BABY'S RATTLE," and "THAT JUNE BUG," Split reel Comedy
- FRIDAY, " 14th—"THE GIRL AND THE BRONCHO BUSTER," Western
- WED., " 19th—"ALL ABOARD FOR RENO," Comedy

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVENUE
FLUSHING, L. I.

REMEMBER—ALL OUR FILMS ARE TINTED AND TONED

Sold exclusively through M. P. D. & S. Co.

THE DOLL'S HOUSE, By IBSEN, OUT FRIDAY, JULY 28th

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

RELEASED TUESDAY, JULY 11

A Love Story You Will Remember

WHEN A MAN FEARS

is one of the most dramatic love stories we've ever spun for you and the whole narrative is sure to surprise and satisfy you. A young business man shatters his health by too close attention to his work. A physician friend restores him. And then—the friends discover that they are rivals—that each would win the same girl. See the synopsis for the result of this interesting complication.

No. 227 Code Word, Fear

RELEASED FRIDAY, JULY 14

The Best Wireless Picture Ever

WON BY WIRELESS

is a story of the "wireless" that is accurate and true, where everything is real from the clicking of the key to the flash of the transmitting coil. Likely there has never been another Thanhouser story that carried so much thrill as this does. From the time that the wealthy broker and his daughter set foot on the schemer's yacht until the police boat arrives with rescuers the reel is a constant round of excitement. When the police tug, summoned by wireless by the plucky daughter, finally overtakes the runaway yacht, your house will be in genuine uproar. No. 228 Code Word, Wireless

APPLY NOW FOR IBSEN'S "DOLL'S HOUSE"

THANHOUSER CO.

NEW ROCHELLE - - NEW YORK

THE DOLL'S HOUSE, By IBSEN, OUT FRIDAY, JULY 28th

TO SCENARIO WRITERS

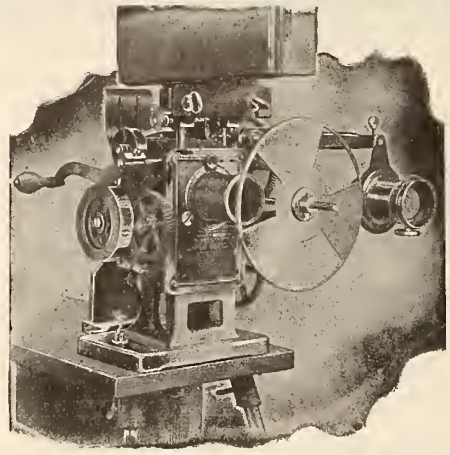
Send $2.00 for one year's subscription to the

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

one scenario, with return Postage, and the same shall be criticized, commented upon, and advice on points given to help in the future work by an expert. (See Editorial.)

Mark all letters "Scenario."

MOVING PICTURE NEWS, 30 WEST 13TH STREET, NEW YORK



OUT WITH THE OLD
AND IN WITH THE NEW

Don't wait until New Year's to make a good resolution. Buy right now an up-to-date, substantial motion picture machine which projects smooth, flickerless pictures and gives your patrons thrills of pleasure instead of a headache.

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH NO. 6

What it has done for over twenty-six hundred and fifty users all over the world, it will do for you. We base our assertions on experience, but don't take our word for it; ask any user.

"Plattsburg, N. Y., June 25, 1911.
S. B. Leland, Montpelier, Vt.
Dear Sir:—
My new Power's No. 6, which I bought of you, has arrived and I have it installed. I have been using it for the past week.
Now, as for quality of the machine and the picture it shows, I do not think it can be beat. It is the best I have ever seen; also my operator thinks it's great. A great number of patrons have asked about it and want to know why my pictures are so much plainer than usual. Of course, I tell them "That's my new Power's No. 6." Also several have spoken about it not hurting their eyes as before.
For anyone wanting a picture machine of the highest order, I can honestly recommend the Power's No. 6.
Wishing you the best of success, I remain,
Yours respectfully,
(Signed) Edward F. Joyce,
Manager Wonderland Theatre."

To any established exhibitor who will send us at least three satisfactory references and the name of his exchange, we will sell Power's Cameragraph No 6 on a to replace his old worn-out machine. This offer places the best motion picture machine on earth within the means of every responsible exhibitor.

PARTIAL PAYMENT PLAN

ANOTHER PROOF OF ITS EXCELLENCE

After exhaustive tests and comparisons with other machines the have placed their first order for machines with us. We will furnish our regular No. 6 Equipment with special Kinemacolor attachment. They simply had to get the best. Don't you be satisfied with less.

KINEMACOLOR COMPANY OF AMERICA

WRITE AT ONCE FOR PROPOSITION D.

Nicholas Power Co.

115 NASSAU STREET NEW YORK
For fourteen years the leading makers of motion picture machines.

Silence is Golden!

But not when we have a story like this

Fate, Destiny, Circumstances--

the mystic, inexplicable three that toy with our lives and hopes and desires, that surprise and tantalize and mock us at every turn on the road of life! In our

Release of Thursday, July 6th

we have actually photographed

"FATE"

a picture no artist this side of heaven could paint; the story of a suffering soul that at last finds peace when the Silent Messenger ushers it into the Valley of Beyond. You need it! Concede it! And get it!

Rex MOTION PICTURE MFG. CO.

573 Eleventh Avenue
NEW YORK CITY

Sales Company thinks "FATE" brought Rex into the Independent Field

Cl.B245611

"The contents of this issue are copyrighted"

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan. 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City. ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV July 1, 1911 Number 26

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

In our last issue we published the synopsis of "The King's Favorite," one of the Great Northern Film Co. productions released on July 1st. We take pleasure this week in presenting to our readers an illustration from this splendid subject on our front cover.

SCENARIOS AND THEIR WRITERS

Some short while ago we made an offer to take care of scenarios and criticize the same. So large a number came that we were completely inundated with various kinds of paper, some good, some bad, some so indifferent, some so silly, that it tried our patience to read and reply to the numerous correspondents. We now wish to inform our readers that we have secured the services of a very successful author and reader, connected with the largest picture manufactory in the trade, to read and criticize manuscripts intended for moving picture productions. These criticisms will be thorough, helpful, and of value to the writers, and the opinions of our expert will give fair, honest work and try and make writers of those who show any talent. The criticisms will be thorough and fully instructive. They will deal with the title, the plot, the arrangements, the mechanical possibilities, the originality, and general availability, with suggestions as to probable markets where they can be placed; in fact, one of the most helpful assistants to those who are aiming to place their stories, and to those who have talent, it will prove the best education that they can possibly have anywhere in the moving picture industry.

The News vouches for the work, and as is well known, the reading of a popular publication is acknowledged by all successful scenario writers as being absolutely necessary to success. The Moving Picture News is replete with valuable information concerning the industry week by week, and is indispensable to any person who essays to write a picture drama, and to make it more popular among the general readers, and visitors, of the picture theaters. Every subscriber sending in $2.00 for a year's subscription, a scenario with return postage for the same, will receive a fair, honest criticism as we have outlined above. Any present subscribers can have their scenarios criticized for $1.00 each. We feel sure this department will commend itself to all who desire to make successful writers.

KINEMACOLOR AND PROJECTING MACHINES

The Kinemacolor Company of America, as we have remarked in one or two issues, have been experimenting for the benefit of exhibitors with different makes of moving picture machines. In another column will be found an article from their press agent, and illustrating two machines with colored attachments properly fitted by their experts to show Kinemacolor pictures. These machines are the Motiograph and Powers No. 6. We also illustrate the Kinemacolor machine made specially for their work. All users of the Motiograph or the Powers can be quite sure of having full and complete satisfaction from their use, and we strongly advise our readers to stick to these two machines, unless they are using the English machine. We may say, for the benefit of those who wish to know regarding the Coronation, that we have received a cable reading as follows: "Magnificent pictures secured of the Coronation of the King and the crown jewels. Kinemacolor." Again we want to congratulate our good friend, Charles Urban, on the progress made.

ALIEN OPERATORS

It is with feelings of sincere regret, and, if we may use the term, aggravation, we learn that on Tuesday, June 27, Governor Dix vetoed the Higgins' bill that would have relieved "alien operators" and helped them to obtain a livelihood, but such is the case. The bill passed both Houses at Albany, was sent, as we reported last week, to the Mayor who signed it favorably, and returned to Governor Dix for his signature, and he has, as we say, vetoed it. This means that we have to start all over again what we have been doing during the past eight or nine months, to try and get this bill repealed.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Our readers will recollect recent editorials on educational films in which we took up the value of English vs. American educational subjects, and in which we stated that the educational subjects made by Charles Urban were far superior to any ever produced by any other manufacturer. Our readers will also recollect that quotations were made regarding Mr. Pyke, of London, writing an article praising up the American films and lauding them in preference to the English make, and also preferring to use them in his halls. The sequel to this comes in a letter to us from one of the prominent cinematograph workers in England who gives us some good information, and from his remarks we can gather that there is a very good reason for Mr. Pyke's preference for certain makes of American film. This member of the London trade, if his information is well founded, puts quite a new light on the subject according to this information. It is the general talk of the film circles in the English capitol, that Mr. Pyke and Messrs. Markt & Co. are very, very closely associated together. To our readers it may not be known that Messrs. Markt & Co. are the London representatives of Biograph, Lubin, and Kalem companies, and subjects of these makers certainly figure in the program of Mr. Pyke's halls in very large numbers to the exclusion of practically all of the makes. In the general opinion of London trade, the proportion is larger than it would be, if the merits of these films alone were the deciding factor.

Our informant says, "Though we do not wish to suggest that the general standing of these films are other than a high one; however, if the facts are as we state, Mr. Pyke's admiration for the American product is explained at once by the fact that his halls are dominated by the agency of Messrs. Markt & Co.; taking this information into consideration, it seems that Mr. Pyke's attitude is a very biased one, and the English trade are looking with a great deal of interest upon this controversy. We have several letters on this subject on our desk from other prominent men in the industry, but we think this expresses the general opinion of the whole trade in London. We may have something more to say on the educational propaganda in another issue or two, of which we hold advanced information in our possession to-day. We can also say that there is a movement on foot amongst the Independent manufacturers to produce an extremely high class program following ideals that have been mapped out to them by some prominent members of the Sales Company, and we feel sure that a high rate of progress will eventually ensue before the fall season opens.

MUSIC AND VAUDEVILLE IN THE MOVING PICTURE THEATERS

By Margaret I. MacDonald

We need a board of censorship to pass upon the managers of theaters—especially vaudeville and moving picture theaters. There can be no progress made in the education of the public until a progressive step is taken with regard to the qualifications of managers. As it stands to-day the man who has the money to back it up and he who is most adept at catering to the public taste is the successful theatrical manager.

Musically speaking, quality has no place in the vaudeville or moving picture house, with but few exceptions. My heart is so filled with disgust that I cannot help but express myself on the subject. The young lady who wishes to make a "hit" in vaudeville must say her lines with such vulgar suggestiveness that she must necessarily forget her sex in order to do so, that is, if she is refined in mind, or she must sing in a rasping voice of the modern vaudeville style songs which are more noticeable for quantity than quality. Sometimes they touch on race suicide, always on love, of which the average modern man and woman are almost absolutely devoid, in the purest sense of the word—vulgar motions, vulgar everything is the order of the day.

There is no music without a beautiful sentiment. All else is discord. Music and vulgarity are in discord. Music may tell a story of a most diabolical character, such as has been told by the masters in wonderful and awesome shadings, but it is painted in wonderfully blended tone colors which harmonize. Incongruous, meaningless daubs, such as appear among the popular songs of to-day, cannot go hand in hand with the use of music—I cannot see it so.

On Sunday I visited a theater on 23d street, where moving pictures were shown of a very fine quality—it matters not were they Trust or Independent—I am not going to say. There were a couple of artists here on their tryout. Now, can any of my readers tell me why a couple of artists—players on violin and harp they were—should be kept waiting in nervous suspense from two o'clock in the afternoon until five for an appearance, while other fool things at which the audience screamed and laughed devoured the choice hours of the alloted time?

Mr. Jacques George, violinist, and Mr. Joseph Quintelli, harpist, are the names of the young men in question. The work of these young men was exceedingly fine, without any of the empty trick work usually resorted to by musicians on the vaudeville stage, and speaking forcibly of the hours spent on the preparation of both the mechanical and interpretive portion of the work. Mr. George's rendering of "The Rosary," with harp accompaniment, and Mr. Quintelli's harp solo "O Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms" were specially fine, showing abundant talent, and superb power of expression in the makeup of both young artists. But such things are not for the vaudeville stage as it stands to-day. The American public knows nothing of music in its more refined form—the howling, squawling, squawking vaudeville singer is the idol of popular taste. No special interest prompts me to speak thus, having no acquaintanceship with the persons mentioned. One grows very tired of the repetition of like circumstances, and I merely use this as an illustration. The managers themselves have no appreciation of the better things, else the better things would have the preference.

Tho' apart from my subject I cannot but speak of one of the pictures shown here on this Sunday afternoon. It was one of the most strongly impressive pictures I have ever seen. It showed the convict released from prison for good behavior, his contact with the world, its refusal to move up one and make a place for him to earn an honest living. With a wife to care for he is again forced by his selfrighteous fellowmen into burglary. Discovered by a man who is a credit to his sex, he is put on an honor test, treated like a living, sensitive human being, and sent with his wife to another part of the world to begin life all over again. The transformation scene where he stands before the mirror arrayed in decent clothing, straightens up, smiles at his changed appearance, where the dejected self-loathing spirit takes its flight, and the man that once was finds his way to the front, and face and form are transformed, is one of the most wonderfully impressive scenes that I have ever seen thrown upon the canvas.

There are many amusing things in connection with the vaudeville stage. To be in accordance with the law the performers are allowed no change of costume for Sunday performances. I am at a loss to know what difference this can make in the quality of the entertainment. At all events I should like to see the character of the music changed. To listen to the trash that is thrown upon the American market by Americans, so-called musicians, and labelled "Music," causes those who know and realize its mediocrity, to be almost ashamed to own America as the land of their birth.

THE MOTOR BOAT CARNIVAL AT DUBUQUE, IOWA

The Motor Boat Carnival at Dubuque, Ia., under the auspices of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association, on July 4th, promises to be of unusual interest on account of the large number of entries and the prominence of the fast boats which will compete. We are informed that 1,500 boats of all sizes and classes will take part and records will undoubtedly be made. The committee in charge have granted to the Champion Film Co. the right to take the pictures and the Champion forces will be taken care of by them and every facility will be put at their command to have the best points of vantage to get the finest results on the film. We shall look forward with much interest when these pictures are released and Champion is to be congratulated in having secured the special privilege from the Association for the exclusive right to film the events.

Mark Dintenfass, in conversation with our representative, said:

"We are sending our director and camera man out to Dubuque, Ia., on Saturday to stay for a few days and take moving pictures of the races, parades, carnival and the general views of the town in its holiday attire. We have been given the exclusive rights by this Association to take this big event, and we feel that it is a very creditable undertaking. This would make quite a topical subject and is bound to be of wide interest to the exhibitor and his patrons."

Wilmington, Del.—Wm. Benner, owner of the Lyric Theater, which was destroyed by fire, intend to have it rebuilt.

Hutchinson, Kans.—Brown Bros., of this place, have purchased the Kinodrome Moving Picture Theater at McPherson and will conduct it.

Freeport, Ill.—John Aue has purchased the Forreston Lyric picture house.

"THE CRUSADERS" OR "JERUSALEM DELIVERED"

(Independent)

One of the most magnificent historical dramas ever filmed is entitled "The Crusaders" and a 4,000 foot feature film soon to be released through the Sales Co. by the World's Best Film Co. ready for the market to supply the demand of the thousands of exhibitors who have been clamoring for something out of the ordinary in theme and action. This wonderful subject is brought to life in a manner which shows moving pictures at their best. The photography is marvelous and of unusual excellence. "The Crusaders" is something which meets the requirements of the most exacting and critical audience. Thousands of dollars have been spent in the production alone, while the idea of the story is priceless.

If there is one period of history, the details of which are more familiar to most people than any other, it is that dealing with the Crusaders, and the struggles for the delivery of Jerusalem from the Saracens, against whom every knight, aye, and King, of old deemed it his duty to wage bitter and unceasing war. Around the valiant deeds of the Crusaders many romances have been woven, all helping to make a fascinating theme for those who love to live again in the times of old.

It is practically European history, this, for each country bears in its records some knowledge of the Crusades, in which racial prejudices and hatred were, by common consent, sunk in the one end—that of crushing the infidel who held Jerusalem, the sacred city—in his grasp. And it is a story of the Crusades that the Cines Company have lately produced—vivid picture tableaux of the struggle and final deliverance of the city, told with clearness and strength of detail. It is the finest historical drama yet produced, and the beauty of the staging, and truly wonderful scenes will surely justify the high praise that must be accorded to the company. In every sense of the word it is a magnificent portrayal of an historical episode which will always be remembered as being inspired by strong religious convictions and stern self-sacrifice. The film is nearly 4,000 feet in length the story being divided into three parts.

To Godfrey of Bouillon, a valiant Christian knight, a heavenly messenger appears, and placing a sacred banner in his hand, bids him lead the Crusaders against Jerusalem. On the hilt of his sword, Godfrey swears to accomplish his mission, and waving his banner aloft departs to raise the standard of war. Then, in a weird scene, we are shown the Powers of Darkness plotting against the Christians, the whole forces of evil casting defiance as the Crusaders hail Godfrey as their leader. Filled with enthusiasm, each man —knight and squire, footman and common soldier—sets forth, Godfrey at the head. From his palace in the sacred city the Sultan Al-ed-In witnesses the rear guard of the knightly Christian force approach Jerusalem, and swears never to rest until the Crusaders are driven back. To the Sultan comes Ismene, a magician, who persuades him to take from the church a sacred Icon, which is revered by the Christians. This is accomplished, and the Icon is placed in the Mosque, where the magician works his spells upon it. Carefully the Icon is carried away, and the next day the keeper of the sacred vessels finds that the Icon has disappeared. He hastens to the Sultan, and, cringing at his feet, relates his tale. Al-ed-In learning of the loss, immediately condemns all the Christians living in Jerusalem to death, and the cruel sentence is read in the public square. Sophronia, a maiden, who has embraced the Christian faith, determines to save her people, and pushing through the crowd, she stands in front of the officer and accuses herself of the theft. Through the maddened crowd she is dragged to the Sultan, who condemns her to be burned at the stake. With the crowd hurling epithets and curses at her, the girl is fastened to the stake, while the soldiers heap faggots around. Suddenly there thrusts through the crowd Orlindo, the maiden's lover. He endeavors to fix the theft upon himself, but he, too, is bound and placed by the girl's side. The faggots are lighted, and the lovers are embracing each other when, by order of the Sultan, the two are brought down. Clorinda, one of the most valiant of woman warriors, has offered her sword to the Sultan in exchange for the lives of the lovers, and the fickle crowd is now as ready to cheer as to revile.

Part II. opens with a skirmish between the Saracens, with Clorinda at their head, and a body of Crusaders, led by Tancred, who, not recognizing Clorinda, whom he loves, engages her in a fierce encounter. The girl's head-piece is knocked off, and, seeing with whom he has been fighting, Tancred, with a gesture of despair, quickly leaves her and enters the fray elsewhere. Meantime the Crusaders are agitated by the arrival of Armeda, who has left Jerusalem in order to spy upon the enemy. She plots to win over by her charms the allegiance of many knights, and gains Godfrey's consent to help her to regain her lost kingdom. One of her most ardent supporters is Raynold, who vows to devote his life to her. The news arrives that the Saracens have destroyed the Crusaders' war machines, and Tancred and his followers give battle to the infidels, driving them back to Jerusalem, where they enter, closing the great gates upon Clorinda. She turns to flee, but is seen by Tancred, who, believing her to be a Saracen warrior, gives chase and forces her to fight. Clorinda is fatally wounded, and sinks to the ground, imploring Tancred to give her baptism before she dies.

In the opening scene of Part III., Armeda has enticed Raynold away, and he is listening to her love speeches, when two knights arrive with a message from Godfrey, who has need of him. It is in vain that Armeda, who truly loves her Christian knight, implores him to remain; he gently puts her on one side and departs. The Crusaders welcome Raynold with open arms, and bring him to Godfrey, where he confesses his guilt. Godfrey, however, smilingly bids him welcome, and informs the repentant knight that wood is required for new war machines, and the forest is inhabited by evil spirits. It is Raynold's task to clear a path for the Crusaders. Many and varied are the difficulties confronting Raynold; nothing can daunt him, and finally the Crusaders enter upon their last task. The heralds call them to arms, and in the silence of the early morning they are shriven by Peter the Hermit. Now the last attack on Jerusalem commences. The huge war machines are constructed, and the Crusaders approach nearer and nearer. In vain the besieged throw down fireballs; onward the Crusaders go, until they pour over the walls of the city. Fierce and savage fighting now takes place, the hordes of infidels throwing themselves upon the Christians. Still the Crusaders fight on, until Raynold plants the flag upon the tower. Quickly the battle changes into a rout, and the Saracens pour into the city, seeking to hide themselves from their foe. The news of the defeat is brought to Armeda, who is about to kill herself, when Raynold bursts in and saves her. A little later Godfrey of Bouillon makes a triumphant entry into Jerusalem.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Architect Theodore F. Schutz is preparing plans for a new moving picture theater to be erected by the Washington Amusement Co. at Lisbon avenue and Thirty-sixth street.

DEATH AVENUE CLAIMS ITS 673rd VICTIM

A horror-stricken crowd stood as if turned to stone; a heart-rending scream of agony pierced the air as a wild-eyed man of the laboring class ran to reach the rear end of a long train of freight cars that was slowly making its way up New York's famous Death Avenue. As the train slowly disappeared in the distance, it left in its wake another little innocent victim to be added to its already long list. Quickly a crowd gathered around the man who had picked up the little body in his arms. In less than a minute the street became black with people, all screaming with excitement. The police were soon on the spot and as they shouldered their way through this mass of humanity a voice from the sidewalk was heard calling "All right, old man"; and the wild-eyed grief-stricken man smiled and patted the apparently lifeless child, who, to the surprise of the onlookers, leaped from his arms, ran to the corner and entered an automobile.

It was only the Yankee Stock Company producing one of its realistic scenes in the "Man Underneath."

IBSEN'S "DOLL'S HOUSE" FILMED

The name of Ibsen in the lobby and within on the screen, a strong film from a story by him, proved a good draw for picture houses throughout the country a couple of months ago when "Pillars of Society" was released. This was not alone the first story of the great Ibsen to be filmed by Thanhouser, but the first Ibsen story to be ever made into a film by any one.

The success of the picture decided Thanhouser to do another from the writings of this author, and "The Doll's House" was selected. The reception of this reel will be closely followed by the folks at New Rochelle, and if it is at all hearty a strong series of Ibsen films will result. The picture comes out on Friday, July 28th, as the chief feature reel to follow this maker's "The Declaration of Independence."

Flasher, N. Dak.—W. F. Berrier will erect an opera house here.

Pittsburg, Pa.—H. E. Kennedy & Co., of Cincinnati, are making plans for a new theater for the Harris Amusement Company, to cost $1,000,000.

Los Angeles, Cal.—John W. Considine, of the Sullivan & Considine vaudeville circuit, is considering the erection of a new theater here to cost $350.000.

KINEMACOLOR

The giant ocean greyhound "Olympic," that sailed majestically into New York Harbor has been photographed by the Kinemacolor Company, and pictures of her can be seen at the offices of the company, 145 West 45th Street, fifth floor, in their exhibition room any day from 12 to 1. Admission by invitation only.

There is Education, Health and Joy in Color.

Kinemacolors are the colors of nature, recorded photographically on the film by the action of sunlight solely.

Kinemacolor is a happy adaptation of the imperfections of the human eye. The eye see lights, not pigments and it sees them differently in artificial light than in daylight.

All other photographic processes start from the erroneous principle of reproducing pigments, not light, and forget that the photographic eye (as the human eye) sees and records color differently in artificial light than in daylight.

All the neutral tints (the despair of the photographer) come out. The greys and the light yellows, so difficult to achieve; the snowy whites, the sable blacks, the limpidity and translucent sparkle and life of water.

The human eye sees sixteen pictures in a second; before one dies away the other is on top of it. The man who first saw that by spinning a coin rapidly you could see both tails and heads at once hit upon the fundamental principle of Movement, Vision and Kinematography.

The extraordinary stereoscopic, or solid body effects of Kinemacolor, is brought about by color; there is not only outline and tint, but life.

Kinemacolor stimulates the eye without fatiguing it, an important point in the educational future kinematography must have with the young.

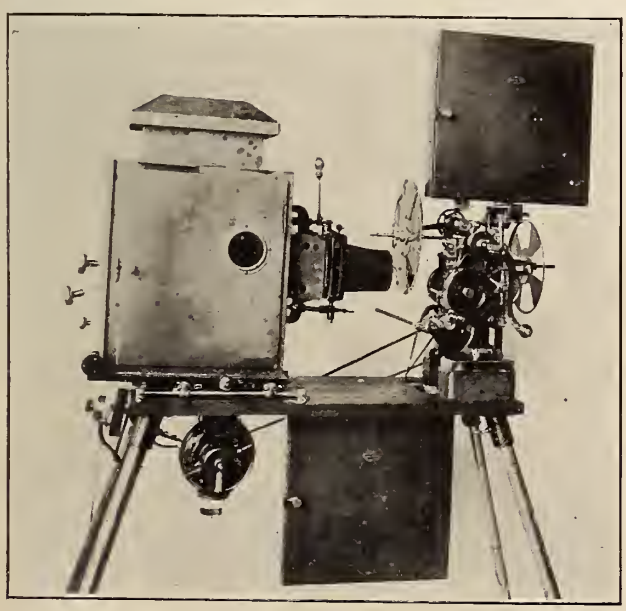
There is none of the flickering in the Kinemacolor pictures so distressing to the eye.

For months past, two first-class companies of actors and actresses have been producing at Hove and Nice many tragic and comic plays acquired by Mr. Urban from the best authors.

The great attraction of the Coronation ceremonies may be summed up in one word—COLOR! The chief element of the pageant is secured by KINEMACOLOR, which produces the world's events in the actual colors of nature.

An immense variety of subjects presenting life in every conceivable aspect and with absolute fidelity to nature down to the smallest detail of tint and color is now available and is constantly being increased.

Kinemacolor obtains not only the most delicate gradations of color, but the proper color contrasts and the texture and sheen of the real thing. It is perhaps more wonderful that Kinemacolor is quite at home with neutral tints, and in pictures of insect life and of animal studies dull browns and greys are faithfully depicted.



POWERS' NO. 6.

In the productions of these films, science, art and industry seemed to have vied for chief recognition.

What kinematography is to the daguerrotype, kinemacolor is to black and white "living picture."

vide all that the originals in nature provide—namely the stimulus peculiar to color, form and binocular solidity.

The function of Kinemacolor appears to be the re-creation of Nature as she is seen by the human eye, not from one point of view only, or at one moment of the time, but from all points of view, and at all moments during the evolution of motion. Hence the mark aimed at in this science seems to stand higher than any other, and Kinemacolor does not fail to hit it.

MOTIOGRAPH.

From first to last, there is no painting, tinting, brushwork, handwork, stenciling, or touching-up of any kind whatever. The colors, just as the sun records them, lie latent and indistinguishable by the inexperienced eye, in the photographic picture and are brought into visibility only at the moment of exhibition.

MISS GRACE ST. CLAIR

The cut herewith is one of the latest photographs of this admirable actress now touring all the principal vaudeville theaters and who has earned a well-deserved encomium of the highest praise for the manner in which she and her company produce the playlet entitled "The Undertow." We had occasion some while ago to specially praise Miss St. Clair, but since she re-organized her company she has more than eclipsed herself, and to those moving picture houses which also run vaudeville we can very highly recommend to their attention the above actress. "The Undertow" is a drama which appeals to the highest and best principles of the audiences. It is a play that must be seen to be appreciated.

It teaches a lesson of self-sacrifice, of love, of devotion, with comedy, pathos and drama well blended. Miss St. Clair has an extremely difficult and delicate part to play.

It treats with the people of the underworld and points out one of the highest morals one can well conceive. In the words of an English actress in the same theater where she played, and who turned to one of the company and remarked that Grace St. Clair was a most "divine trollope." This we consider the highest praise that could be bestowed upon her, and as such we can recommend her to those of our readers who are combining vaudeville with motion pictures.

SOLAX AT FT. MEYER

Word from the Solax Stock Company now at Washington inform us that they are now thoroughly installed in their new quarters and getting right into their military working harness. The first picture of the military series will have as a foundation the 15th U. S. Cavalry and as a setting the historic territory around about Ft. Meyer. Great things are expected from this trip and the trade may look forward to some military pictures that will be an innovation along these lines, and it is to be hoped that the Solax Co. will receive the practical appreciation of the exchanges.

Now that the military character of picture is in vogue and a great deal of money is being expended by the various manufacturers to make each succeeding release a little more elaborate than the preceding one, a military picture nowadays has to be exceptionally fine to attract attention, and, judging from what we hear, we know that the Solax Co. will be in the front ranks and give the exhibitor a class of military productions that will command the attention of all and demonstrate the determination of this enterprising company to hold the place it most justly occupies in the opinion of a discriminating public.

BIOLOGY AND THE CINEMATOGRAPH

Prof. Stirling's Lecture at the Royal Institution

Professor Stirling, of the Manchester University, delivered a remarkable lecture at the Royal Institution, Albermarle street, last week on "Biology and the Cinematograph," when the Duke of Northumberland was in the chair. Some remarkable cinematograph pictures were exhibited on the screen by means of the "electro-stereo-chronophotograph," depicting the movements of a dragon fly in flight, which were taken at the rate of two thousand a second. This ultra-rapid camera is the invention of M. Bull, and has been exhibited at the Marly Institute, Paris. The insects automatically photograph themselves by means of an ingenious shutter attachment. The interval of time between the taking of the various photographs is gauged by means of a tuning fork, having fifty double vibrations to the second, which operates a magnetic signal. Thus, by counting the number of photographs of the insect in flight, taken during an entire vibration of the fork, the interval between the subsequent pictures is easily calculated and the speed of flight recorded. For purposes of study, however, the projection of the pictures may be regulated to any speed required

Film Depicting Movements of Rabbit's Heart

Professor Stirling also exhibited films showing the working of the heart, lungs and digestive organs of various animals; the latter by means of a combination of the X-rays and cinematograph. Experimentalists have found that the employment of a single X-ray produced a true picture of the interior of the human body brought within the field of operation; from which it was assumed that providing a series of instantaneous photographs were taken, an absolutely reliable reproduction of the activities of the stomach would result. Hitherto it has been found impossible to photograph Roentgen rays, on account of the short exposure; the ordinary cinematographic camera being found unsuitable.

A film depicting photographs of biological importance was exhibited by the Professor. It was shown that the excised heart of an animal is connected from its lower end with a light lever. A liquid was then pumped through it, and every beat and fraction of a beat was graphically recorded by the end of the lever on a chart, with an instrument marking seconds on the chart at the same time.

The normal beating of the heart was first shown, then the gradually declining strength of the beat of the heart on the introduction of chloroform into the system. Finally the pulsations cease, but upon the introduction of a stimulant a violent beating was at once caused. In this manner the effect of various drugs on the heart may be observed.

By the aid of the X-rays the passage of food through the throat, stomach and other organs can be watched. By means of the Carvello apparatus it is easy to distinguish whether an animal's digestive organs are acting properly from a single discharge. This was impossible with the instruments employed by former experimentalists. In his earlier experiments the inventor, who was also connected with the Marly Institute, obtained very successful results with frogs, employing a Carpentier induction coil in combination with a magnetic interrupter, having a self-regulating X-ray bulb attached. The animals under experiment were fed with prepared paste mixed with basic bismuth nitrate, rendering the food in the stomach impervious to the X-rays. A series of photographs may then be taken through the body showing the swallowing and gradual digestion of the food, which appears absolutely opaque.

A year or two ago, when you had visited the premises in Cecil Court you had about exhausted the film makers and agents in the county. Recently increasing prosperity has led Gaumont's, Hepworth's and others to move to larger premises elsewhere. New firms have sprung up, too, who have found a lodging away from "Flicker Alley." For all that the atmosphere of Cecil Court is still redolent of films, and some half dozen firms were unpleasantly interested on Wednesday evening last in a fire which broke out in the premises of the Globe Film Co., one of our leading renters. The Globe had a very large stock of films indeed on the premises, and they were soon ablaze, and bursting the front plate-glass window of the premises, leapt the narrow court and seriously affected a bookseller's premises and stock opposite, while the offices of the Reliance Film Co., Williamson & Co., and others were more or less affected by smoke and water. At first sight it looked as though the whole court was ablaze and that the flats above would be affected, but the outbreak was finally got under without this happening. The fusing of an electric wire is said to have been the cause of the outbreak, which has cost the Globe the greater part of its stock of films. General sympathy is felt for Mr. J. C. Squier, the managing director of the company, whose energies have brought it into first rank in a comparatively short space of time; but no doubt need be felt as to his ability to get things in going order again in double-quick time.

The progress of the motion picture industry is not watched with delight by the members of the theatrical and music hall professions on this side. Performers able and willing to supplement picture shows have found a new field for work—but the average artist views the encroachment of the picture-turn on a music hall program, and of the picture theater, which now flanks every music hall, right and left with dismay.

There was accordingly a curious aspect of the Globe Co.'s film fire in Cecil Court. It is not too much to say that hundreds of entertainers live in the adjacent flats, and the crowd might have recognized popular actresses gliding alertly down fire-escapes. One well-known music hall entertainer growled furiously at the idea of a film fire burning him out of house and home—picture shows having already hit him pretty hard. But happily his fears were unfounded.

Chicago Letter

Among the successful Independent moving picture houses in Chicago, foremost is the Janet Theater on North Avenue, Manager Harry Hyman commenced using Independent pictures in October, 1909, when they were turning out only a few reels a week and film men around town told him he was crazy to make such a move, but as the Independent product gained in strength and numbers so did the patronage, and business improved until to-day the Janet is considered one of the best paying districts of moving picture theaters in Chicago, as well as one of the coziest and prettiest houses in the West. Four matinees are run weekly to capacity business and at 2.30 p. m. on these days it would do you good to see 50 to 150 people waiting for the first performance to end. Hyman Brothers, Hirsch & Lindner are opening two new houses, to be run on the same plan as the Janet, the Drake Theater, 2905-7 Milwaukee Avenue, which opens July 1st, and the Barry Theater, 3114 Lincoln Avenue, opening August 15th, so this is one of the best arguments that could be found in favor of the Independent picture and its success. Another successful Independent house is the Grand Theater, at 47th and Wood Streets, owned and run by T. B. Motone. This is a very pretty little house seating 299 people, showing the best of Independent releases. Projection is excellent, due to the efforts of Art. Schultz, an old-time operator. The house is well ventilated by exhaust and revolving fans, and altogether it is a very pleasing place to spend an hour.

Lyman Howe and his Feasts of Travel have invaded Chicago's most exclusive play house, the Garrick Theater, home of the high class attractions for Chicago's smart set, and is packing the house twice daily at 25 cents to a dollar. His pictures are excellent and well worth the price charged. The evolution of a cannon, as taken aboard an American man-of-war, is one of the clever works of motography and we must hand it to Mr. Howe, the pioneer of Flickerscope entertainment, and while crowds flock to the moving pictures at the Garrick Theater other managers of Big Loop Theaters are bemoaning their fate, as is shown by articles in the Chicago Tribune.

When the big houses admit the moving pictures rob them of patronage it is evident that pictures have become a permanent institution, and not a passing fad, as many have claimed.

J. J. SULLIVAN.

REX MAKES KINGLY FILM WITH BOBBIES AND MAGISTRATES GALORE

Police Captain Post, of New York, earned undying fame June 28 as a hero. The Captain of the Alexander avenue station will go down in the pictorial history of his time as a man not afraid to lead his men to battle. In a few days he will be able to lead his children by the hand into most of the moving picture shows of the city and say, "See, there is your father answering the call of duty."

What happened to bring fame to the Captain was this. An actor drunk (for moving pieture purposes) staggered through East One Hundred and Thirty-seventh street, between Cypress and St. Ann's avenues. There he bumped into actor No. 2, carrying a tray of strawberries. They were knocked from the No. 2's hands. Then followed the quarrel, in which the drunkard's wife, who was Miss Baby Stevens, took a hand.

The man with the stagger fell back and ran across a student who was supposed to be making a living by selling plaster casts of angels, saints, St. Bernard dogs and similar artistic bric-a-brac. The casts went down and were broken. More trouble.

The Plot Grew Complicated

It was pretty nearly time for the police to interfere to save the girl from committing some act that would reveal her love for the student. There was a general fight in progress as other actors joined in.

Real school was letting out and a crowd of boys and girls, unconscious of the fact that they were working for a moving picture show, gathered up the strawberries, while a little girl obtained a plaster of paris woolly dog that had its tail bobbed and its ears cut by the fall.

Patrolman Grady, of the Alexander avenue station, then unconsciously qualified as a member of the cast by butting into the fake fight.

"Oh, a real policeman!" said one of the actors, and they turned on him and put up a resistance that must certainly have made a beautiful film. They did not hurt the policeman. The heroine even tried to save him.

Some one at this point sent in a call and Captain Post arrived with the reserves.

The Goat of Captain Post

He charged the camera and the fellow "got him" coming head-on. Then the operator dodged into a house and the Captain saw he had been "taken up" by another film relay. He charged that very hard. The goat of Captain Post was, in fact, running riot.

Then he landed the whole bunch of actors in the patrol wagon. Every move was taken by the picture men, and when the actors were unloaded at the station they struggled, and once more there went the click-click of the shutter of the machine.

The actors were taken before Magistrate Breen. He discharged them with a reprimand and a promise that he should be shown the picture. (This was certainly a mighty Rexly scoop for Rex and, like the magistrate, we want to see this film.—Ed. M. P. N.)

CHAMP VARIETIES

MONDAY—HISTORICAL

FROM WALLACE TO GRANT

FOR MONDAY, JULY 10th

The hero is a dispatch bearer, who undergoes the most thrilling ride to deliver the papers to Grant. Every moment his capture seems imminent, but success crowns his efforts.

WEDNESDAY—WESTERN

TONY WOULD BE A COWBOY

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, JULY 12th

This lad is sure a comic bubble. Tony admires cowboys and risks his life on a tearing bronco.
When you get these two write us for advertising sheets.

CHAMPION FILM CO.

MARK M. DINTENFASS, GEN. MGR.

OFFICE: 12 E. 15TH ST., N. Y. CITY.

ADVICE TO OPERATORS ORACLE PRACTICAL ARTICLES FOR ALL DEPARTMENT

By WM. E. SMITH, E.E.

DIRECT CURRENT WATTHOUR METERS

Principles of Construction and Operation

Direct current watthour meters like those for alternating current are essentially motor generators provided with registering mechanism. As in the case of all direct current motors the use of a commutator cannot be avoided, except by using more objectionable means for conducting the current to the moving element. The essential elements of direct-current meters may be briefly enumerated as: (a) the motor element; (b) the retarding element; (c) the registering element; (d) the mounting frame and bearings; (e) the case and cover. The functions of each of these parts and the possible causes of inaccuracy introduced by each are explained below.

(a) The motor element usually consists of a field and armature so connected that the total line current passes through the field coil and a current proportional to the voltage passes through the armature, that is, the armature is connected across the line like the armature of a shunt motor. With this arrangement the magnetic field produced by the current coil is proportional to the current in the circuit and that produced by the armature coil is proportional to the voltage of the circuit, provided no iron is used in the magnetic circuit. The torque existing between the armature and field elements is therefore proportional to the current and voltage in the circuit and is a measure of the power.

It will be seen that the use of an iron core, the permeability of which would not be the same at all degrees of saturation, would render the flux disproportional to the current in the coils and destroy the measuring power of the meter. Furthermore, iron in the shunt (armature) magnetic circuit would make an exceedingly heavy rotating part.

As in the alternating current meter, the efficiency is determined by the losses in the series and shunt windings. Owing to the absence of an iron magnetic circuit it is therefore necessary to bring the two windings as close together as possible and thus secure a high torque for a given shunt loss and series drop. The meter that has the two windings closest to each other will, in general, develop the highest torque for a given meter loss.

The armature should be constructed with a view to retaining its shape permanently and at the same time with a view to lightness.

The commutator is one of the most important parts of the meter mechanism because it is a source of friction and also a source of possible variation, owing to sparking and burning and consequent change in brush contact resistance. The construction should be such that the friction will be a minimum and not subject to variation when the commutator and brushes wear and the operation should be without sparking of an injurious nature.

(b) The retarding element, as in the alternating current meter, usually consists of a metal disk or cylinder passing through a permanent magnetic field. All of the remarks in the paragraphs on the retarding element of alternating current meters apply with equal force to direct current meters except that in this case the convenient arrangement of driving and retarding forces applied at opposite edges of the disk cannot be used. To prevent unequal strains on the bearing, good meters have two sets of permanent magnets at opposite edges of the disk.

Change in the strength of the magnets from age or short-circuit should be prevented as far as possible, as noted in the previous discussion, and no additional retarding torque not varying directly with the speed, such as that due to motion in mercury, should be present if a wide range of accurate registration is desired.

(c) The registering mechanism has been fully discussed, for alternating current meters, and the same principles apply here.

(d) The mounting frame and bearings have the same important influence on direct current meter accuracy as they have on that of induction meters, and the remarks on torque and friction also apply with equal force. The design of bearings should prevent change in the initial friction for a long time.

It should be possible to remove the entire meter element from the case for inspection without disturbing adjustments.

(e) The friction compensator is required as in alternating current meters to overcome initial friction, and similar means are generally used for providing it, that is, a constant torque adjustable to the exact value of the frictional torque and entirely independent of the load on the meter.

(f) The case and cover should be impervious to dust and bugs, and should have means for sealing and for testing calibration without breaking the seals. The construction should be mechanically substantial and not liable to distortion.

In general, the arrangement of the various parts of the meter should be such that they are readily accessible for inspection or repairs. Considerable time is often saved by the possibility of getting at the parts of a meter quickly, without having to dismantle the entire mechanism.

Motion Slides

A DECIDED NOVELTY AND WE ARE SOLE AGENTS FOR THIS CITY.

Genre Motion Slides

FOR SALE ONLY BY

SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO.

Not in the Trust

129 N. EIGHTH ST., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Fully experienced and all-around Moving Picture Manager, understands all branches of manufacturing, experience of ten years, desires position with good concern. Address S. E., Moving Picture News.

The Airdome Theater, located on Manhattan avenue and southwest corner of West One Hundred and Ninth street, New York City, is one of the most modern open-air picture parks in the country, every convenience for the comfort of patrons being looked after by the management and the courteous uniformed attaches.

The entrance is one of the most elaborate in the country, being of metal with vari-colored lights in the dome which is surmounted by a circular electric sign with 24-inch letters, without the stock frames of the leading companies together with attractive poster and program boards make a most inviting appearance. Five reels of the best Independent pictures with two illustrated songs by the best talent obtainable accompanied by a high-class orchestra furnish an hour and a half entertainment which is highly appreciated by the crowds that fill the garden every evening.

The Airdome caters to the very best class of patrons and allows no picture or song of any description to be shown that could possibly offend anyone, thereby insuring a clean, high-class entertainment to ladies and children.

A program announcement board of transparent design automatically announces each picture and song, thereby informing all of what is being shown.

Another feature is an illuminated clock dial in full view of all enabling the patrons to keep appointments, etc.

The interior is inclosed with a grill fence with colored lights on each panel which sheds its soft radiant colors the entire length of the garden, giving a most cheerful and pleasing effect.

This place has become famous for its high-class pictures, which have been pronounced perfect. Steady and clear without a flicker and upon which the management pride themselves.

In case of rain checks are given which are good for any evening and everything possible is done to please the patrons.

The Airdome is owned by Messrs. Cook, Hammer and Riley, all being experienced showmen, and who seem to know just what their audiences want and who gladly furnish any picture or song on request.

Mr. Frank G. Cook is manager; Mr. James W. Riley, assistant manager, and Mr. W. Hammer, associate manager, are always on hand to take care of their large audiences, all of whom have voted the Airdome one of the cleanest and best shows to be found in the big city.

THE CHAMPION FILM CO.

Mark Dintenfass will not be outdone when it comes to putting out a class of advertising matter for the Champion products. He is a firm believer in printers' ink and their house organ just received, printed in three-color process, is a good example of their enterprise. This issue calls atttention to their releases, "Fighting Rev. Caldwell 1776" and "A Cowboy and a Lord." The Champion Co. is making a hit with their Civil War pictures as well as "The Boy Scouts" and exhibitors should get on the Champion mailing list at once.

Exhaust Fans for M. P. Theaters

Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," states that he is equipping a number of theaters this summer with large exhaust fans for theater ventilating. Has just shipped two 36 inch D. C. fans for the Montgomery Amusement Co.'s new theater in Atlanta, Ga.

Chicago, Ill.—A two-story theater will be erected at 3825 West 26th Street, for Math Vonesl, to cost $5,500.

American Traders in London

ARE INVITED TO CALL AT OUR

LONDON OFFICE

8 Sherwood St., Piccadilly Circus, W.

for any information they may require regarding the English trade, introductions to English traders, etc. The sole English agency for the MOVING PICTURE NEWS. Subscriptions taken and advertising contracts can be made at above address.

Yankee Products

2 YANKS A WEEK

UNCLE SAM FILMS — MADE BY YANKEE FILM COMPANY — NEW YORK — TRADE MARK

ARE THE HEIGHT OF PERFECTION

MONDAY, JULY 10th

"PORTUGUESE JOE"

A beautiful tale of land and sea

FRIDAY, JULY 14th

"THE MAN UNDERNEATH"

New York's famous "Death Avenue" fittingly portrayed.

YANKEE FILM CO.

344 East 32d Street, NEW YORK

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

FROM THE OBSERVATORY

By G. F. Blaisdell

Still municipal authorities in towns throughout the country are struggling with the censorship problem. It did not take the Dallas (Texas) board long to discover that if it reviewed the pictures to be exhibited in its town it would have to put in nine hours a day for several days a week. So the board decided to pass on only those films which had not been through the hands of the national board. Pennsylvania has authorized its governor to appoint a board of censorship, to include one woman. No picture not duly approved by them may be exhibited, under a penalty increasing with a repetition of the offense. The Public Ledger, in referring to the new law, says: "If the censors are guided by reasonable good sense and good taste they may do a really valuable public service. Very many of the stories of crime and horror exhibited to children at some of the cheap shows ought unquestionably to be suppressed. But the undertaking requires an uncommon degree of discretion, and it will rest entirely with the governor's appointees to determine whether the new act shall prove beneficial or ridiculous."

* * *

In San Francisco Ben Michaels, a theater proprietor, has been fined $50 by Police Judge Shortall "for exhibiting an indecent picture," and gave prompt notice of appeal. The picture which the court ruled improper is entitled "A Dead Man's Honor," a Vitagraph release of May 23d.

* * *

This is surprising. If there is any company showing pictures in America that is more scrupulous, more circumspect, than the Vitagraph it would be hard to name. The present output is here referred to. The Observer saw recently a couple of old Vitagraph films which the company would do well to get a line on and destroy. One was "The Honor of the Slums"; the other was "Pierre-Marie." In the last named Pierre, represented by Tefft Johnson, strikes his wife, portrayed by Miss Turner. It is no make-believe blow. It is what the pugs would call a "crack on the jaw." The writer is bound to confess that the action gave him a distinct shock—it was so utterly at variance with the later work of the company.

* * *

In this San Francisco case it is safe to assume that the exhibitor will experience not much difficulty in obtaining a reversal. People on the Atlantic are quite as competent to pass on moral questions involved in picture plays as are residents of the Pacific Slope. The national board of censorship may err in judgment, but it will not pass an "indecent picture." The Biograph recently released "The Smile of a Child." It was close to the edge, but it was good work. On the speaking stage it would have occasioned no adverse comment. It is a fact that scenes in picture plays which would cause some pious soul great concern would, if the same were acted on the speaking stage, cause them no concern whatever. It makes a difference.

* * *

While touching on old films, the Observer saw recently in a small theater an old Biograph film. Its title was "In Little Italy." The operator "guessed" it was two years old. Its condition indicated an even greater age. This picture was particularly notable in one feature—it showed the changes that have taken place in the personnel of the company since the film was made. In a minor degree also it indicated the difference between the work of the company then and now. The picture under discussion was sensational, and in one or two scenes it is doubtful if now the film would be passed by the censors.

* * *

Why do not manufacturers keep an eye open for some of their early stuff and get it out of the market? They would thereby protect themselves and at the same time the public. A manufacturer has a right to be judged by his current work. The public has a right to be protected from the avarice of a film exchange and the indifference or helplessness of an exhibitor; for surely the public should not be compelled to witness the projection of a dilapidated, streaky piece of junk.

* * *

Kinemacolor is good. It is, of course, unwise to attempt to judge a process by two reels. One of these, however, that showing flowers, it would be difficult to overpraise. Particularly effective were the groups of dahlias, carnations and pansies. In the former the varying colors were perfectly depicted. This also is true of the carnations. If in the case of the pansies there was a slight disappointment it very likely was caused by expecting too much. As to the second reel, that showing the unveiling of the memorial to Queen Victoria, its most striking feature was the consideration shown the camera man. He was given the best positions. The picture is of deep interest. The variety of uniforms is marvelous. As a matter of fact, the value of this film would be markedly enhanced could there be an accompanying explanatory lecture indicating the different commands and personages.

* * *

At Coney Island the other evening the Observer witnessed in two pictures houses a "stunt" he has not before seen. At Connors' New Empire and in Kister's, both using the mirror screen, the latter showing independent films, the title of the coming red was shown on the screen before the trailer of the passing show had disappeared. It was a case of two projectors. Such enterprise must be appreciated by those who so often get tired of watching the legend "One minute, please, while changing reels." Of course, for a small exhibitor a second projector and a second operator are not small matters; but of some of the larger exhibitors it may be said that they unduly prolong their program by waits. There is no money in it—for either the proprietor or the public. If you are running five reels, send them through with a vim. Don't show a lot of cards of neighboring merchants. That may pay a little money, but it is poor business—it disgusts and bores your people. Get your pictures through quickly; you will be relieved of your pleased audience and save money on bills for light and power.

* * *

In Thanhouser's "A Poet of the People" the characterization of the king was unusually well done and was distinctly the feature of the play. The part was that of a devil-may-care royal old rake; always amused and always amusing.

From Our Western Correspondent

Hot Springs, Ark., June 28.—The proposition to advertise this greatest of all health resorts through the medium of motion pictures came up this week at a meeting of the Business Men's League, that great progressive organization that has done so much to advance the interests of Hot Springs.

Some months ago quite a series of pictures were taken of this city, and at the meeting the other evening the company that took them sent a communication to the league, stating that they stood ready to put the pictures before "seven million people" and requested that the sum of $1,000 be paid for the same. The league had concluded to set aside $1,000 for the motion picture advertising and thought that the proposition to have a reel of pictures of Hot Springs would be about the proper caper.

What struck me as remarkable, though, was the fact that the company that was negotiating for these pictures was not doing business either with the General Film Company or the Sales Company, yet the letter the Business Men's League received was to the effect that "arrangements had been made with the Trust to handle the pictures." I very much doubt this statement, for it does not seem possible that the great Motion Picture Patent Company would consent for one minute for an outsider to take a series of pictures and then release the same through their channels. In the first place, it doesn't look like good business to me, and, secondly, I don't think the Trust needs the money this badly. Neither do I believe that the Independents—that is, the recognized manufacturers doing business through the Sales Company—would undertake this proposition and hide the work under an obscure name. What I would like to learn definitely is this: If the man is not connected with the General Film Company or the Trust in any way, and if he does not do business with the Sales Company, how is he going to get those pictures released where they will bring the greatest results? How can he expect them to be placed in the picture houses that handle the Trust and Sales Company pictures if he doesn't do business with them? The gentleman is from Chicago, and he must certainly have a wonderful pull if he can put this over on the Trust or the Independents. Will the gentleman please explain?

The Evening Bulletin gave considerable editorial space to this proposition, and called attention of the Business Men's League to the fact that before they close a deal of this kind they want to learn a little more about the motion picture industry and make sure that when the Trust handles a venture like this one that it is the real old Trust and not a bundle of "hot air" from Chicago. I will state that there's a chance to make $1,000 easy money for any Trust or Independent manufacturing concern that cares to come to Hot Springs with a romantic little scenario and stage a reel of pictures, which, above all, must bring out the great benefits of the baths and the various points of interest of the city. Think it over.

Lyceum Sold

At last it has come to pass. The Lyceum was sold the past week to a young picture magnate from Shreveport, La., one Eddit Garvel, who is now in charge. He informs yours truly that it is his intention to greatly improve the theater, enlarging the seating capacity, re-decorating the lobby and converting the Lyceum into one of the prettiest theaters in the "Land of Harmony."

Last Saturday evening the Photo Play Theater gave its first drawing for prizes, three being given away, suitable for ladies and gentlemen. The drawing took place at 8:30 and long before that time the theater was jammed to the doors. The crowd surged out on the pavement and business took an awful boost. One of the prizes, a fine silk umbrella with gold handle, was won by a well-known young man in the city who remarked that it was the finest prize he had ever captured, aside from the time he won his wife. The Photo Play and the Scenic Theater both had their license taken away from them by the General Film Company because they took occasion to feature an Independent film, "The Fall of Troy," which, I am informed, was reported by a manager using license pictures who was jealous of the great business they did when that picture was being shown. It merely goes to show you how low some people will stoop to "throw the harpoon" into a friendly competitor. The man who gave this information, however, is far from being popular either with the authorities or the picture managers. When it was seen that the two theaters lost their license, they, of course, negotiated with an Independent exchange in Little Rock, and one of the men in charge came over and gave them a good talking to regarding the value of first-class Independent pictures. In fact, he induced the Photo Play and the Scenic to take on material not over ten days old, and it would do your heart good to see the manner in which their business has picked up. There's nothing to it. Good Independent pictures are doing more for these houses than all the Trust reels combined when it was necessary to fight the "repeaters," and I doubt if you could induce either the Photo Play or the Scenic to go back to Trust product. The former showed the Thanhouser reel, "A Circus Stowaway," when it was released the first week and it had the town daffy. The Scenic and the Photo Play then followed with two new American subjects, "The Yiddisher Cowboy" and the "Broncho Buster's Bride," both of which went big. In the same theaters I also saw the fine Imp reel, "A Piece of String," and the Bison's beautiful picture, "The Desert's Lure," and then along came Rex at the houses named with one of the best society and human interest stories that has been shown here in months, "The Twins." Rex, that was a knockout. Keep it up. Nestor also gave us a fair reel in "The Sheriff's Mistake," and Thanhouser's pretty story of New York, "Little Old New York," just made me yearn for Forty-second street and old Broadway. There were quite a number of New Yorkers in the theater when this reel was shown and they called out the places of interest. Fact is, it was like a quick visit home. It was "the goods," Thanhouser; more power to you. There was one Independent reel, however, that was silly in the extreme, "A Concert Hall Romance," and another that was absolutely vile, "Very Bad Eggs." The former contained more sickening affection than one would care to witness and the latter was as rotten as the subject it suggested.

The Trust papers are raising considerable fuss over the "Nun" picture, but I would like to compare the possible evil effects of this reel with a life-sized photo of the woman in "The End of the World," a Vitagraph, where the mother, showing almost immediate confinement, was so padded that she was positively repulsive. It is suggestive enough to hold up baby wardrobe and let the audience know that the stork will soon pay that establishment a visit, but the idea of arranging one's appearance in order to further carry out the idea of birth is going, I think, just a little too far. In the first place, it wasn't necessary, and, secondly, it aroused in this city a cross fire of questions from little ones too young to understand what it meant, but keen enough to note the change in the woman—questions which, believe me, mothers blushed to answer and did not attempt to reply to. Whenever I see "the other side" yelling at "The Nun" and then witness an affront to decency like in the Vitagraph reel, I cannot but quote, "Physician, heal thyself."

Selig gave us a real thriller the past week in "Mother," and the audience liked it immensely. "The Infant at Snakeville" was very funny, and it also savored a great deal of one of "The Old Cattleman's" yarns, by Alfred Henry Lewis in his stories of Wolfville. Gaumont, in "Jimmie, the Insurance Agent," presented the most talented youngster be-

SPECIAL NOTICE

NON-BREAKABLE

Lantern Slides

ANNOUNCEMENT
ADVERTISING
LECTURE
MICROSCOPIC
NATURAL HISTORY

We makes slides of all kinds.

SLIDES

Artistic and beautifully colored.

Don't be faked by would-be Original Inventors who claim, and are trying to manufacture non-breakable slides.

SEND FOR CATALOG.

MICA NON-BREAKABLE SLIDE CO.
2737 N. Croskey St. PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Lumiere

Cinematograph Film

At 3½ CENTS PER FOOT "Unperforated"

Positive and Negative Sigma or Green Label

None Better Even If You Pay More

The lot of 30,000 feet pieced Positive Film we advertised to sell at 3¼ CENTS PER FOOT "unperforated" was gobbled up in a jiffy. We expect another lot in a few days. "ARE YOU ON?" Each roll is about 160 feet long, joined in two or three places only. Orders will be filled in rotation. Perforation ¼ cent per foot extra.

Lumiere Jougla Co.

75 Fifth AVENUE, BET. 15th AND 16th STS., NEW YORK CITY
'Phone, 531 Stuyvesant
Chicago Branch Office 30 East Randolph St.

fore the camera, and Vitagraph's reel, "The Sacrifice," was excellent. "Helping Him Out," a Lubin, was well received, and Edison held out attention when "In the Baggage Coach Ahead" was shown. THE MAN IN THE BATHS.

OUR LOS ANGELES CORRESPONDENT

Los Angeles, June 22, 1911.

Undaunted by a former defeat the local Civic League is again urging the City Council to pass an ordinance providing for the appointment of an advisory committee to inspect and censor all moving picture films before they are exhibited here. The measure also provides that amusement resorts where moving pictures are exhibited must be sufficiently lighted so that the features of any person may be distinguished at a distance of ten feet and is almost identical with the proposed ordinance which was defeated a few months previous. The ordinance is designed to regulate all nickelodeons, penny arcades and all places where moving pictures are exhibited, and its chief purpose is to eliminate all obscenity, nudity of figures shown or violence in life as sometimes depicted in moving pictures. It provides that permits must be procured from the Police Commission, which body shall have the power to revoke or suspend such permits if it thinks the terms of the ordinance are violated. Five days' notice will be given before a permit is revoked and if the exhibitor so desires he will be accorded a hearing. This places the exhibitors in the power of the police. Moving picture permits are issued at present by the board of public works and are designed to protect the public from poor exits, etc. According to the ordinance the advisory committee or board of censors is to be composed of five members, one each to be appointed by the mayor, the Board of Police Commissioners, the Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association, and the Civic League of Los Angeles. The duties of this committee shall be to discover and prevent violations of the ordinance and inspect all moving picture theaters and to examine all moving picture films used or intended to be used for public exhibition. Violations are to be reported to the prosecuting attorney and to the Police Commission. All members of the committee shall have, upon demand, right of free access to any place where any moving picture exhibition is held, and the owner must exhibit any set of films which he proposes to exhibit for the purpose of censorship. Films containing reproductions of any murder, suicide, robbery, hold-up, stabbing, clubbing or beating of any human being, where such acts are shown in grewsome detail or in a revolting manner, or in any manner objectionable to the moral sense, will be prohibited. The ordinance came up before the council this morning and after listening to the protests of the local dealers the matter was taken under advisement. Arthur S. Hyman has employed a number of the best-known local lawyers to fight the proposed measure. The Exhibitors' Association will also be well represented when the council takes the matter up again.

* * *

The Exhibitors' Association has suddenly awakened to the fact that it has no by-laws. A committee of five has been appointed to draw up a set. All business has been dropped until the by-laws are obtained.

* * *

Arthur S. Hyman will leave for San Francisco next Tuesday to meet a capitalist, who, he declares, is going to build six up-to-date moving picture houses for him. The theaters will be located in El Paso, Tucson, Stockton, Fresno, Pomona and Long Beach. After leaving San Francisco, Mr. Hyman states, he will make an extended trip through California.

* * *

Fred C. Dawes, local representative of Miles Bros., has gone to San Francisco to make arrangements to have the main office send more first-run pictures here. He is expected to be back Monday.

* * *

The Summer Theater at Catalina will open sometime next week. The theater has been remodeled and will obtain releases through Miles Bros.' exchange. Another theater, not named yet, which will receive pictures from the same exchange, is also scheduled to open about the same time.

The Bijou, Main near Sixth, has installed two new Powers machines.

* * *

At the last meeting of the Southern California Motion Picture Men's Association it was decided that no five-cent house should show vaudeville; no tickets are to be given which purpose is to allow two persons to enter on a five-cent admission plus the ticket; no more than three reels are to be run at one show and no souvenirs are to be given. The suburban theaters which charge ten cents and give souvenirs also come under the five-cent class with respect to giving things away. The following committee report was adopted:

We, the committee, appointed by the president of the Southern California Motion Picture Men's Association, on a motion carried by the members of the association on Wednesday, May 31, 1911, to draft resolutions governing the different classes of houses in the city of Los Angeles showing moving pictures, do hereby respectfully present the result of our deliberation for your consideration.

First: Be It Resolved, That no theater using vaudeville can show more than one reel of pictures.

Second: Resolved, That no five-cent theater can show more than three reels of pictures, one illustrated song and one spot song to a show and shall not change more than three times weekly, three reels to a change.

Third: Resolved, That theaters in the business district whose price of admission is not less than ten cents shall be allowed to run not more than five reels of pictures, two illustrated songs and one specialty to a show. This specialty not to consist of more than two persons and be a straight singing number.

Fourth: Resolved, That theaters in the suburban districts whose price of admission is not less than ten cents shall run not more than four reels of pictures, one illustrated song and one specialty to a show. This specialty not to consist of more than two persons and to be a straight singing number. These theaters not to change more than three times weekly.

Fifth: Resolved, That any theater may devote one night each week to some special attraction, such as prize night, or have an illustrated lecture, baby show, or any other feature which does not come under the heading of vaudeville.

Sixth: Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions if approved by this association be signed by the president and secretary of this association and sealed with its seal, be sent to all film exchanges in the city of Los Angeles with the request that they adhere strictly thereto.

The above resolutions apply to the Independent theaters as well as the associated houses.

Arthur S. Hyman has purchased the entire interest of the College Theater. He is now sole owner of the Hyman Theater, Royal Theater, Walker Theater, Rounder Theater, Luna Park Theater and part owner of Hyman's Neptune Theater at Venice.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington, D. C.

The Leader, under the personal management of the Miller Brothers, has been giving a series of performances for the benefit of one of the Masonic chapters of the National Capital. This theater has recently undergone many improvements which has made it a leader among its associates. It is using an aluminum curtain, is cooled by many fans, and is provided with a ladies' retiring room.

The Independents will continue to add recruits from the ranks of the licensed houses, so that it looks like there will not be much left to the General Film Company.

Jim Hawkins is delighting the audiences at the Capital City Park, the newest airodrome in the field, with negro songs and ballads.

The Empress, under Marcus Notes, is exhibiting the newest poster holders in the city. These are heavy glass screens bordered with polished brass, which have taken the place of the wooden holders. Really these make a very neat attraction before the Empress.

The Washington Film Company, with Manager Boernstein at the camera, has secured a pretty half-reel of the May procession of St. Aloysius Church. Another religious feature will be added to this, probably one of monastic life, and the film will be put before the public.

A very interesting travelogue in motion pictures was delivered this week at the Columbia Theater under the title: "Alaska—the Land Up There!" The pictures were beautiful, showing the snow-covered fields, mountains of ice, mining, and the ways of the people of this northern province of our country. It was the finest sort of a geography lesson to everyone, especially to students.

FROM OUR ENGLISH CORRESPONDENT

London Office of the News, 8 Sherwood St., London, W.

It is curious, looking back over the history of the trade of the country, to notice how at various periods the product of one maker has overshadowed all the others in the estimation of the buyers and to a lesser extent, of the public. Curious also to notice how this pre-eminence has been lost. What may be termed the Pathe epoch extended over a greater space of time than any that have followed. In those days, now about four years back, it was indeed a case of "Eclipse first and the rest nowhere." In photography, in plots, in acting, in every branch of technique, the Pathe films were so superior that comparison was a positive cruelty to the other fellows. How that superiority was gradually but surely lost is a matter of trade history—here and there firms sprang into being, the directing brains of which had been trained in the Pathe studio; in America firms like Vitagraph, whose early efforts were crude and bad in photography, began to put out work which to Pathe perfection in technical matters allied plots more in harmony with English and American ideas, and almost before one realized the metamorphosis which had taken place, from a position of unchallenged superiority Pathe's had merely become one of many good producers but entitled always, whatever may be one's opinion as to some of their methods of business, to the credit of first showing the world the wonderful possibilities of the moving picture films. It is doubtful, indeed, if one has a right to grumble at their methods, for it was these which undoubtedly did more than anything else to bring into life the many new producers who, gradually improving their product, supply us with the generally first-class subjects of to-day.

The next incident of moment was what would, I believe, be called on the stock exchange, "a boom in Americans," and over and above all in one particular brand of Americans—A. B. to wit. Very recently, indeed, every showman in the land was suffering badly from "Biographitis"—it was A. B.'s first, last and all the time, some programs consisted of all the A. B.'s put-out, with subjects of other makes filling in the cracks, so to speak. You had only to mention A. B.'s to some other makers at that time to turn them green in the face. How much that boom owed to skillful salesmanship it would be difficult to say, but there is no getting over the fact that the A. B.'s were and are very fine films, though buyers are now beginning to think they are not so much better than every other brand on the face of the earth, as they once believed. Curious to say, this knowledge came to them just about the time when the A. B. agents rose the price a penny, with a rebate of the same amount on return of the subject. Some of the other methods of this firm also found disfavor and undoubtedly the A. B. boom is declining.

It should be added that the recent entry here of sundry Independent Americans whose work shows great improvement, has, of course, brought competition into A. B.'s own field. Some of these Independents must be taking a tidy amount of English money every week and such as "Imp," "Flying A," "Bison" and "Reliance" deserve it by their good work. "Reliance," in my opinion, in their drama travel very close indeed on A. B.'s heels, and no licensed maker puts out better Western stuff than "Flying A." "Crazy Gulch" was a corker.

If you have any more makes like these, send them over. Very good reports reach us of the "Yankee" stuff, which so far we have not seen.

Now I have got on the subject of booms, let me record the opinion that the next will be one of British-made films. The chief difficulty of the English maker seems to have been lack of capital; it is still a difficulty. With men like W. G. Barker and C. M. Hepworth at the producing end, we cannot be accused of wanting ability. It is rather curious, by the way, that the biggest thing done in this country in the way of staging—I refer to the "Henry VIII" films—should have been accomplished by Will Barker, whom we all regarded as a topical man first and last. B. has, I understand, one or two more similar things on the way and he still takes as many topicals as ever. By the way, I have it on Mr. Barker's own authority that he is not contemplating an immediate visit to the States.

Mainly, I suppose, as a result of the recent Cecil Court fire, there has been quite an evidence of caution in film circles just lately. The most noticeable symptom is an outbreak on the walls of the offices of the film publishers and film booths, in the shape of fire extinguishers of all sizes and makes. In one particular office which I visit frequently I tread gingerly for fear the vibration of a heavy step should bring down one or more of the dozen or so hand grenades, which rest in wire racks, of apparently rather slight construction, on the wall. If, or when a fire does come, few of our leading firms will be taken unawares and enough carbonic acid gas will be generated by extinguishers and grenades to aerate London's soda water supply for a week. Joking aside, it is good to see these precautions taken on all hands; fires do the trade no good, advertised as they are here, there and everywhere by the daily press.

* * *

It is curious to notice how the old "Warwick" staff are finding new resting places for themselves. The only "Jack" Smith, who can keep a straighter face than any man in the trade while telling you hair-raising stories about sales, is with Mr. Barker. So are a large number of the Warwick darkroom and photographic staff, to say nothing of the other Mr. Smith, cashier of B. M. P., Ltd. Mr. Scott, who was assistant manager to Mr. J. W. Smith, both at Mr. R. W. Paul's and at the Warwick, has been manager of the Western Import & Film Co. since Mr. Aitken's return to the States, and is doing fine business in the ever-better "Flying A" films. Now Mr. E. Ward, who ran the hiring business for the Warwick, has gone to manage the same department for Biograph Theaters, Ltd. The latter, which is under the control of Mr. G. W. Grant, used to draw their programs from the Co-operative Cine Co., but launched out on their own some time ago and should have no difficulty in extending their field under Mr. Ward's management.

* * *

I mentioned Mr. R. W. Paul is the last paragraph. It is curious how completely Mr. Paul, who was one of the original members of the business there, and in the "Animatograph" invented one of the first practical machines, has dropped out of the business during the last two years. At the time when the Paris Convention of Film Manufacturers and its program was the talk of the trade—how quickly the burning feud that convention excited has died out—Mr. Paul was one of the most active members of the English committee, but relinquished producing no great time afterwards. It is to be hoped that his retirement is not final, but that he will yet add to the laurels he won in the early days at the Alhambra and other halls.

* * *

Reverting to the question of English films, I had a curious instance given me the other day of the kind of encouragement the home producer gets from his own countryman. One of the makers staged a very ambitious film—one which after inspection I am of opinion would be a big hit with nine audiences out of ten. One of the buyers (who are always grumbling at the lack of enterprise of the home makers) greeted the subject when it was submitted to him for inspection with the remark: "It's no good my looking at that—it's English." Granted that the English film is frequently inferior to foreign stuff, this hardly appears the procedure calculated to spur the producer on to greater efforts and larger expenditure.

The simple fact is that the English buyer is frequently, whether wilfully or not, blind to the merits of the home stuff, yet when a manufacturer troubles to boom a subject direct to the showmen, it is frequently a bigger success than any foreign film. Barker's did this with "Fox-hunting," and orders flowed in from renters who had previously turned it down, and the film was a big draw wherever it was put on. I must myself confess to frequently wondering upon what system buying is conducted, when sitting through a program. One of these I saw recently was made up thus: (1) Kalem, drama; (2) Kalem, drama; (3) Pathe, colored drama, and (4) Pathe, colored drama! And the weekly output is—how many scores of thousands of feet?

One or two firms in this city are anxious to undertake the agency for good American brands. If any Independent maker not represented here will let me have particulars of their product at the above address, I shall be pleased to put them into touch with these people.

FILMS
IF YOU WANT ANY SUBJECT
LET US KNOW
We Have a Number of Reels at $5
ATLANTIC FILM COMPANY
12 Union Sq., New York

Great Northern

THE "KING PIN" OF QUALITY FILMS

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JULY 1st

THE KING'S FAVORITE

A magnificent production full of exciting episodes, holding the interest from start to finish. A work of art that will tickle the palate of all film connoisseurs. Book this headliner immediately.

RELEASE FOR SATURDAY, JULY 8th

AS A MAN SOWETH

A novel and effective film conveying a strong moral lesson.

ALL FIRST CLASS EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT

The Bear-on-the-Globe trade mark is the emblem of high quality

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

7 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK

ALL FILMS SOLD THROUGH THE SALES COMPANY

A company which has been as successful as any of the continentals recently here is Ambrosio. Their subjects have a distinct note of their own and no one is producing prettier allegorical films. The New Agency Film Co. handle these goods with skill, giving the subjects a great deal of publicity, and consequently securing them the large sales they deserve.

I understand that business at the Scala has been better than ever since the superb picture of the Queen Victoria Memorial Unveiling was put on by "Kinemacolor." We are enjoying hot, sunny weather, for a wonder, which makes the above fact all the more gratifying. B. A.

Mr. Geo. Gray, "the fighting parson," is well known to every music hall frequenter here. He has been interested in pictures for some time and has now added to his interests by joining the board of the Magnet Film Co., a hustling concern which began in a very small way and is making good. Mr. Gray is also announced as likely to produce on a large scale, and as having secured forty acres of ground near London for that purpose. Well, he has the dramatic talent and, if as announced, his first film is to be a staging of the "Fighting Parson" sketch, he should begin with a winner, the production being admirably adapted for a film subject. May he do well and find no one to cry "Stop." B. A.

Handbook for Motion Picture and Stereoptican Operators

THE MOVING PICTURE NEWS has at great expense secured the right to reproduce the above Handbook by C. FRANCIS JENKINS and OSCAR B. DEPUE. It is the only reliable book published in the trade, and lists at $2.50. Any reader of the News can secure a copy by becoming a subscriber at $2.00 per year and 50c addition for the Handbook.

This book cannot be procured elsewhere at the price, and will only hold good while the issue lasts.

Moving Picture News, 30 W. 13th St., New York

THE LATEST FROM LONDON

(By our English Correspondent)

Several circumstances are tending to make things quiet here at the moment. Exceptionally good weather is to some extent thinning the audiences at the picture theaters, while in the manufacturing field one or two firms are holding back releases till after Coronation week. A fall in sales of the ordinary class of pictures is certain for that week, for every picture theater in the Kingdom that can raise the price will be showing a Coronation film, and there will be several other "topicals" about the same time.

* * *

There will be a shindy some day, and it may be pretty soon, on the question of Sunday opening in London. The shows that open on that day do so in aid of one or other of several charitable organizations. That is the condition laid down by the L. B. B., which also stipulates the showman's share shall be his expenses only. There are plenty of people who declare these "Schools" to be calculated on a scale of surprising liberality, and no one can blame the showman if he tries to get round a regulation which has no justification whatever. The public have shown plainly enough that they want the Sunday show. Why should not the picture man make his profit from it without having recourse to subterfuges of a not altogether creditable kind? Unluckily the pleasure-hating section of the public, survivals of the unlovely mid-Victorian days when gloom was regarded as the first essential of the Sabbath, have power out of all proportion to their numbers.

Meanwhile, the conundrum that is exercising the minds of the average person is if Sunday pictures are contrary to the moral welfare of the average member of the public when the showman pockets the profit, how is it that they lose their baneful effects simply as a result of the cash being diverted into the pockets of the Society for Promoting This, or Suppressing That? Particularly since the man who pays his "tanner" is in nine cases out of ten blissfully unconscious as to its ultimate destination.

* * *

"Flying A" stuff is going ahead still in this market, and is probably the most popular Independent brand of film sold here, though the "Reliance" dramas are very highly praised. Their only fault is that there are not enough of them, and the announcement that two weekly will be in order from August next holds out pleasant prospects. The same remark applies to the "Bison" announcement of a similar output.

* * *

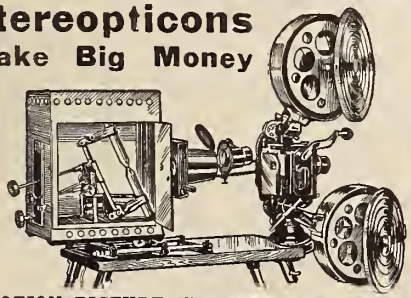
Part of the premises of Meux's Brewery, at the junction of Tottenham Court Road and Oxford street, have been pulled down to make room for another cinematograph theater, the fourth within a hundred yards radius. This is being put up at record speed and promises to be an attractive erection. It will be operated by a new company, with whom Mr. Portes, recently of the Pyke circuit, is associated, and it is whispered to me that ground rent reaches the tidy amount of $15,000 per annum. Such an amount takes some covering, but the site is a particularly good one.

SALES COMPANY

The following films have been released during the week of July 3d by the Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.:

July 3—In the Sultan's Garden (Imp).....
July 3—The Call of the Open Ranch (American) .....
July 3—Groucho's Quiet Fourth (Yankee)..
July 3—Fighting Reverend Caldwell (Champion) .....
July 3—Can He Save Her (Eclair).....
July 3—Tommy Wants to be a Cowboy (Eclair) .....
July 4—The Unloaded Gun (Bison).....
July 4—Declaration of Independence (Thanhouser) .....
July 4—When Pals Quarrel (Powers).....
July 4—The Love Potion (Powers).....
July 5—Starting Something (Solax).....
July 5—The Golden Rule (Reliance).....
July 5—A Cowboy and a Lord (Champion).
July 5—The Emperor's Debt (Ambrosio)...
July 5—A Message from the West (Nestor)
July 6—For the Queen's Honor (Imp).....
July 6—The Schoolma'am of Snake (American) .....
July 6—The Ranch Chicken (American)...
July 6—The Little Wayfarer (Itala).....
July 6—Fate (Rex) .....
July 7—His Great Sacrifice (Yankee).....
July 7—Blacksnake's Treachery (Bison)...
July 7—The Court's Decree (Thanhouser).
July 7—The Silent Signal (Solax).....
July 7—Secret Service (Lux).....
July 8—Haunted Island (Powers).....
July 8—Thou Shalt Not Lie (Reliance)....
July 8—Turin Military Tournament (Itala)
July 8—Mutt and Jeff (Nestor).....

Moving Picture Machines
Stereopticons
Make Big Money



MOTION PICTURE THEATRE SUPPLIES.

We carry on hand at all times the largest and most complete line of Repairs and Supplies for all Standard Machines, also Tickets, Carbons, Screens, Chairs, etc. Can ship at once Special Slides made to order. We also handle Motiograph, Edison and Powers Machines. Write today for THEATRE CATALOGUE.

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO.
Dept. 2, 219 Dearborn St., South, Chicago, Ill.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST THEATRE CHAIR
Sanitary, Space-saving, Life-Saving, Money-Saving.
To Use This Chair Is to Make Your Business Grow.
Write Today for Circular W
HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio.

FILMS FOR RENT
Cheapest house in America. Save money by doing business with us. Free Lithographs and Songs.
DIAMOND FILM CO.
536 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

NEW MACHINES FOR OLD
YOU Know Your Old Machine Projects a Poor Picture.
I Know My Exchange Proposition Will Overcome Your Trouble.
I Am Jobber of Powers and Motiograph Machines, and will Exchange for Either, or Any Other Make You Desire.
Write At Once, Giving Make, Style, Manufacturer's Number, Age and Condition of Your Machine. I WILL DO THE REST.
State Make of Current Saver, and I Will Make Exchange Proposition for HALLBERG ECONOMIZER.
Electric Fans For Either A.C. or D.C., $7.50 and Up.
Exhaust Fans for Either A.C. or D.C., $15.00 and Up.
Complete Line of OPERA CHAIRS and All Supplies for M. P. Theatre.
I Equip Your Theatre Completely
J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23d St. New York City.
Write for Catalogue No. 2.

BARGAINS! BARGAINS!
Motion Picture Machines $35 up. Powers Cameragraph No. 5 only $75. Lubin Cineograph $65. Lubin $150 Twentieth Century Marvel $100. Edison Model B and Powers No. 6. Get Supplement 33 Our Bargains List. Motion Picture Machines Wanted.
HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Announcement, Advertising, Travelogue, Recitation
and slides for every purpose made to order
GEO. J. GOLDTHORPE & CO.
244 West 14th Street New York

And Still They Come

Laemmle customers are successful, regardless of weather conditions. King & Merlo, Herrin, Ill., say: "Business is very good and will continue that way with the good service that is now coming." I could print letters like this till the cows come home. I get 'em constantly. Why don't you climb aboard NOW?

CARL LAEMMLE, President

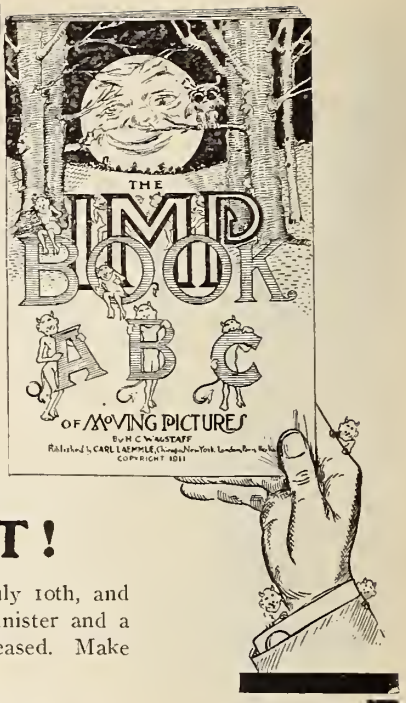
The Laemmle Film Service

Headquarters:
New number 204 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.
515 Mulberry St., Des Moines, Iowa.

The biggest and best film renter in the world.

EXHIBITORS WILDLY ENTHUSIASTIC OVER THE "IMP ABC BOOK"

Right now is the time of year when it is good business judgment to do a little scheming to boost your receipts. We've done the scheming for you by producing this clever book. Exhibitors everywhere say it is a corker and that it is helping to overcome the bad effects of hot weather. If you have not received a sample Imp Book, together with letter and other literature describing the scheme, send for it at once. Then place your order for all the Imp Books you can possibly use. We worked it up for YOUR benefit, not ours. So go to it hard!



A SUMMER COMEDY NEXT!

Get an early booking on "A Gasoline Engagement," the Imp release of Monday, July 10th, and give your house a roaring summer laugh. A young couple, the girl's father, a minister and a barrel of gasoline are the principals in one of the best side-splitters we've ever released. Make a note of the title and the date of release right now!

AT A QUARTER OF TWO

This is our release of Thursday, July 13th. A burglar, hiding in the closet of a house where a child lies critically ill, sees that the nurse has gone to sleep and forgotten to administer medicine at the proper moment. At the risk of being caught, he saves the situation himself. There's human interest in every foot of this reel. See that you get it!

Independent Moving Pictures Company of America.
102 West 101st St., New York. Carl Laemmle, Pres.
We want your name and address immediately.
Send for news about the Imp Lobby Display.

Demand Two Imps Every Week

SPECIALIZATION

It has been said that "if a man can build a better house, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor—though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

There is an age of specialties and the man, the firm, or the organization that directs their endeavor to any particular object is bound to attain a greater reputation in that particular line than his competitors who do not specialize.

When the American Film Manufacturing Company announced that all releases would be Western Cowboy film, it was the culmination of earnest thought and study as to what the public really liked in the great popular entertainment—MOTION PICTURES.

Since the inauguration of this policy the rapid stride the American Company's product has made, in popular approval, demonstrates that in this case specialization has been productive of results.

The dramatic side of life on the range is limitless in its possibilities. Unrestrained by social usages the pioneer ranchmen made their own laws and judged men by a standard of their own; they loved roving; they loved freedom; they were judged by instinct; and many an unwritten drama of love and hate, of bitter jealousy and intrigue were enacted on the old cattle trails, the only record of which lives in the memory of the taciturn, silent cowboys.

Some of the best dramas we have produced have been obtained by our producers from this source.

The amusements of the cowboy are limited, in a way, but there are many humorous situations which develop in the natural course of his work, and American comedy depicts his amusements in many laughable films.

Our producer's success has been augmented by careful attention to detail and to-day American cowboy pictures stand pre-eminent, unrivaled by either Licensed or Independent picture interests.

Jenkintown, Pa.—The York Road Theater Co. will erect a new theater here.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Plans are being prepared for a large theater to be erected at Broad and Federal Streets, to cost $50,000.

San Francisco, Cal.—The J. K. Prior Estate will erect a new theater at Mason and Eddy Streets.

Milwaukee, Wis.—A new moving picture theater will be erected at Seventh and Center Streets, to cost $2,000, by Wm. Jacobs.

Jenkintown, Pa.—Henry Specht is taking estimates for a new theater, to be erected here.

Fort Dodge, Ia.—The new theater to be erected here will be known as The Princess and will cost $42,000.

Louisville, Ky.—J. M. Wentzell will erect a $7,500 moving picture theater.

New Orleans, La.—Mrs. August Bohn will remodel building at 814-16 Canal Street, to cost $12,000.

Omaha, Neb.—F. E. Goff will build a brick theater at 1814-16 North 24th Street, to cost $6 000.

Philadelphia, Pa.—As a site for a $25,000 moving picture theater, the Erie Avenue Amusement Co. has purchased the property at Marshall Street and Erie Avenue.

Flasher, N. Dak.—A new opera house will be erected here.

St. Joseph, Mo.—The Star Theater, 413 Edmond Street, was damaged by fire to the amount of $1,500.

Chicago, Ill.—Chicago Motion Picture Machine Co., capital, $2,500, Rupert G. Stronach, C. E. Robinson and U. G. Ward.

MANUFACTURERS' SYNOPSES of FILMS

"STARTING SOMETHING"
Solax Release, July 5th

Clay Woodruff objects to the way his wife dresses when she goes for a walk, so she changes to a suit exactly like his. He, to get even, puts on her dress and hat, but when they see each other they are about to compromise and put on their own clothes, when in walks Aunt Mariah in a harem skirt cut in a very extreme style. Seeing this Clay decides that this is the limit and forthwith goes on a drunk.

His wife and aunt try to cure him by means of mental suggestion, telling him the liquor he drank has been poisoned with morphine and that he must keep dancing or he will die. The butler, coming in with a milk antidote, learns why Clay is dancing and he forthwith begins to execute the same movements, for he too has been at the decanter. The maid arrives upon the scene and, learning the reason, immediately starts to dance too, she having not been behind the others in sampling the bottle. In a like manner the wife and aunt join the party and they all dance to the telephone and call the doctor. The doctor arrives and before anybody can stop him he has sampled the beverage, and when they tell him that he is poisoned we see that he is as vigorous a dancer as any of them.

Finally after they are all worn out they find that it was a mistake arising from the efforts of Mrs. Woodruff in trying the mental suggestion cure.

"THE SILENT SIGNAL"
Solax Release, July 7th

Uneita, daughter of Rainstorm, chief of a tribe of Navajo Indians, is promised in marriage to Henderson, an American renegade, who has joined the Indian tribe. While Henderson is distasteful to the Indian princess she is obliged to acquiesce in her father's will and reluctantly accepts the situation until one day, coming into the post, she meets Sergt. Mason, of Troop "C," 15th Cavalry. The little Indian maiden's eyes sparkle brightly as she converses with the soldier, but her pleasure is short lived, for Henderson's attention is drawn to the conversation between them, which he quickly interrupts by taking the girl away.

Uneita, however, is not to be thwarted in her desire for further acquaintance with Mason, and meets him several times clandestinely. She comes upon the sergeant one day and finds him and his troop engaged in sending smoke signals to the neighboring post. The use of smoke in sending signals is by no means new to the Indians, and the little Indian maiden is taught the code in use by the army.

Her next meeting with her soldier lover proves disastrous, for it is witnessed by Henderson, who comes unexpectedly upon the scene but quietly withdraws to tell Uneita's father of the meeting. The old chief dispatches Henderson with a half dozen braves to capture the sergeant and bring him into the Indian camp. Uneita vainly pleads with her stern parent for the release of her lover and she herself is placed under guard with Mason while he is condemned to the stake.

The unique method of her escape, her fearless daring in stealing one of the horses out of the camp and galloping at breakneck speed to an eminence from which smoke signals may be seen by the neighboring troops is all thrillingly portrayed by little Vinnie Burne, the best equestrienne among the Solax female contingency.

Far away the signal is seen by the troops and the call for aid is responded to. Mason is rescued just in time and restored to the arms of his Indian princess.

"WHEN A MAN FEARS"
Thanhouser Release, July 11

A young business man, weakened by close attention to his work, finds his strength failing and applies for advice to a physician, who is also a close personal friend. The doctor decides that radical treatment is necessary to save him from contracting tuberculosis, and advises his patient to move to the country, sleep out of doors, and live "the simple life," promising him that if he faithfully obeys instructions that he will soon be well.

The patient does as directed. He pitches his tent in a rural district, and thoroughly enjoys himself, while feeling from day to day that he is growing stronger. Incidentally he falls in love.

But he does not dare propose to the girl until he knows that he is thoroughly restored to health. He thinks that the rest has cured him, but he sends for his doctor and friend so that there may be no doubt in the matter.

In the meantime the doctor has met in the city a girl with whom he has fallen in love. When he visits his patient he discovers that they both love the same woman. Also, that the patient is the favored suitor.

The physician struggles against temptation, but finally yields. He finds that the patient is completely restored to health, but tells him that his case is hopeless. This, he believes, will remove a dangerous rival from his path.

But the girl is loyal to the man she loves. Hearing of his sorrow she goes to comfort him, and arrives just in time to save him from suicide. The doctor arrives on the scene. Horrified at realizing how near he came to being a murderer he confesses and goes away, broken hearted, leaving two loyal, happy sweethearts behind him.

"WON BY WIRELESS"
Thanhouser Release, July 14

A millionaire broker reposes confidence in his chief clerk and does not realize that the man is waiting and watching for a chance to ruin him. For the clerk is jealous as well as deceitful, and deeply resents any display of authority on the part of his employer. He is convinced that with a little money he could soon be a millionaire himself.

Therefore he easily falls a victim to the wiles of a rival broker and promises that when the time comes he will help to "do" his employer. And the second broker is equally to blame, for he poses as a friend of the man he is determined to ruin.

Fortune favors the plotters, or at least they think that it has. The broker's daughter falls in love with a young man who has established a wireless company, but it is a struggling concern and the old man does not see how the promoter can ever establish himself in a proper financial position to care for his daughter. So he refuses to let him wed her, and becomes furiously angry when he discovers that his daughter is determined to wed the young man.

The other broker owns a yacht. He suggests to the father that he take the girl for a short cruise, where she will be away from her sweetheart's influence. He adds that the father can attend to his work just the same as though he were on shore because the boat has an excellent wireless equipment which is at his service.

The dupe accepts, and the couple, with their host, sail away. Only by accident was the father saved from ruin, for he never realized that the messages he sent to his office were being destroyed and that because of his absence all sorts of rumors were afloat, and that the properties in which he was interested were being hammered unmercifully.

It is the daughter who saves him. She learns by accident that his messages are being destroyed, and the villain laughingly admits his guilt when he finds that he is discovered. But it is his boat and he declines to allow them to land until he is ready, so they are as badly off as ever.

But the girl is resourceful. She has studied wireless operating with her sweetheart, and this knowledge now comes into play. By a ruse she tricks the regular operator into deserting his post, then sends in a call for help which is picked up by the man she loves.

The sweetheart loses no time in sending aid, and the dishonest broker is led away to prison. The crooked chief clerk never realizes his dreams of becoming a millionaire, but is kicked into obscurity. And the father realizes that it is sometimes very fortunate for a broker to have a wireless operator in his own family who is interested in his fortunes.

"CUPID IN CHAPS"
American Release, July 10

The cowboys of Circle Bar ranch are much annoyed by the forwardness of the hired girl, who practices all the arts at her command to ensnare one of them to be her meal ticket for life. The cook, however, does not feel as they do toward the "queen of the scullery," but as is usual in such cases, she will have nothing to do with him, for his admiration for her is too evident.

The boys ride en masse to town and at the store they meet a vision of loveliness and promptly vote her a "peach." As she is loaded down with her purchases the admiring cowboys gallantly assist her to mount and relieve her of her numerous parcels that she may not be hampered in controlling her horse. They escort her to her home in close formation, each trying to ride beside her.

They arrive at her home and she finds the boys are loath to leave her, so she tells them that she has lost her handkerchief at the store, and in a minute she sees, through a cloud of dust, an eager group of cowboys racing to the town to recover her lost property. The handkerchief cannot be found for the simple reason that the lady had concealed it in her sleeve. The storekeeper is called and does a rushing business with the boys and each returns to the fair charmer with a handkerchief. They invite her to visit the ranch and she agrees to come.

When she arrives at the ranch, in accordance with her promise, she meets the foreman and it is a case of love at first sight. He escorts her about the ranch and at their heels trot the gallant cowboys, eager for a smile or word from this "Siren of the West." The hired girl desires to go along but the boys ignore her utterly. The cook strives to comfort her and she assaults him and tells him to leave her.

Unknown to the boys the foreman plans a meeting with the lady for the following day at the store. The boys decide to call on her and go to her home, each carrying a bouquet. The hired girl follows the boys but has difficulty in catching her horse. The cook assists her and is again assaulted for his pains.

The boys arrive at the lady's home and "cool their heels" waiting for her to appear, while the foreman spends a pleasant afternoon in the lady's company. He escorts her home and the waiting boys throw away their bouquets in disgust at their own stupidity. The poor old cook approaches the hired girl with his offering of flowers and she attacks him vigorously, using the flowers for a lash.

In order to see the lady without the foreman's interference, the boys send a messenger to her home asking her to meet them. The foreman overhears the plan and, intercepting the boy, he tells him to deliver the message to the hired girl and take one of his own to the charmer. The boy obeys the foreman and the hired girl is overjoyed and hastens to keep the appointment, while the foreman again meets the charmer alone.

Waiting for the "peach" the boys are astonished when the hired girl arrives and, when she finds she has been hoaxed, she becomes angry and pursues them. They tie her to the watering trough and go to seek the "peach." The cook comes up and finds the hired girl's predicament. She begs him to release her, but for once he fails her. It is only her promise to marry him that induces him to untie the rope and set her free.

The boys soon come upon the charmer nestling in the foreman's arms, showing that a perfect understanding has been reached between them.

"THE OUTLAW'S TRAIL"

American Release, July 13

The depredations of a band of outlaws, who terrorized Arizona, were becoming unbearable and posse after posse was formed who chased the outlaws into the mountain fastnesses only to lose them in the wilderness, to the outlaws an open book, but to the plainsmen an inexplicable enigma.

Dad Winters, who was wanted in nearly every Western state for some crime, ranging from horse stealing to murder, was the leader of the gang.

At last Jim Osborn, a lieutenant in the Texas Rangers, is assigned by his chief to the task of locating the outlaws' retreat and bringing them to justice. Enroute in the mountains he stops at a spring to refresh himself and fill his canteen. While thus engaged he hears a woman's voice singing and presently a mountain girl arrives at the spring for a bucket of water. She is startled on seeing the stranger, but he quickly reassures her and, taking her bucket, he fills it for her. Thanking him prettily she leaves him and he, returning to his camp, determines to stay in the vicinity to explore it for trace of the outlaws and also to see more of the girl who has captivated his fancy.

Bonnie returns to her mountain home and finds her father, Dad Winters, and his gang of outlaws about to start out on a raid. Left alone she muses happily, wondering if she will meet the handsome stranger again.

On her next visit to the spring she lingers and Jim finds her there. Taking her by the hand he leads her to a seat on a rock and tells her the old, old story. Untrained in the social restraint of her Eastern sisters, frank and open as the sunlight, she only knows that she loves this handsome stranger and shyly confesses the truth to him. Supremely happy she nestles close to him when her hand comes in contact with his star. Turning up the lapel of his coat she sees the insignia of the law and realizes his mission in the mountains. With only the thought of warning her father and his followers, in order that they may escape, she leaves him abruptly and, running to her mountain home, she tells her father what she has discovered.

The outlaws determine to capture the ranger and hang him as an example for other man hunters and, running to their horses, they mount and start for the ranger's camp. Left alone, Bonnie is in anguish. If her father catches him he will surely hang him; on the other hand she cannot betray her father to the sheriff and sacrifice him to save her lover. Her love for the ranger conquers.

"Thus it is our daughters leave us,
Those we love, and those that love us."

Mounting her horse she rides to inform the sheriff of the ranger's danger.

In the meantime the outlaws come up to Jim as he is breaking camp. Always alert, he sees them first, and dropping his pack he opens fire and then mounting his horse he rides for his life. The attempt is futile, for the outlaws know every foot of the mountain country; still Jim leads them a long chase ere he is captured. The outlaws throw a rope over a limb and, placing the noose around the ranger's neck, they drive his horse from under him, leaving him dangling in the air. At this juncture the sheriff and his posse, guided by Bonnie, come in sight of the contemplated lynching. Bonnie takes aim and at the sharp crack of her rifle she severs the ropes and the ranger drops to the ground unhurt.

The posse surround the outlaws and a fight ensues in which Dad Winters is killed. The outlaws are captured and carried away by the posse. Bonnie throws herself over her father's body but Jim comforts her and swears to love and protect her always.

"PORTUGUESE JOE"

Yankee Film Company Release, July 10th

Ned Bunting, a studious young man, who prefers books to manual labor in his father's quarry, decides to leave home after being chided by his father, and enlists as a sailor, hoping to be able to continue his studies unmolested on board the vessel.

Portuguese Joe, a poor boy, who is the all-around butt of the crew, is being beaten by the mate when Ned interferes, his manhood revolting at this cowardly attack, and gives the mate a thorough thrashing. For this interference with the unjust laws of the high seas, he is tied to the mast and flogged in a brutal manner, until he falls, exhausted, from pain. Portuguese Joe is a witness to the flogging of his champion, and at the first opportunity he follows the mate and slays him with a belaying-pin, then rushes away from the scene of his crime. When the mate's body is found Ned is accused of the murder, and is sent to prison to await trial.

Portuguese Joe, after a long and dangerous flight through the swamps, falls exhausted in front of a beautiful home, and is here discovered by Ned's father and sister, who care for him and employ him as a servant.

The daily papers inform them of Ned's imprisonment, and the family is overcome with the news. Ned's sister is kissing a photograph of her brother, and Joe, in deep sympathy with his benefactors, looks at the photo and discovers that his champion is the original. He informs the family of the circumstances of the crime and also of his guilt and voluntarily surrenders himself to the authorities. Through the influence of Ned and his father he is acquitted of the crime, and finds a home with his benefactors.

"THE MAN UNDERNEATH"

Yankee Film Company Release, July 14th

Misfortunes change Dennis Cassidy from an honest, sober and industrious workingman into a desperate character. With a wife, baby and happy home, there was no more contented person in the city than Cassidy; but fickle fortune points her arrow at him and troubles come one after another.

A premature explosion deprives him of his livelihood; blindly signing away his action for damages, leaves him without redress in the courts; the loss of his home and death of his wife and baby deprive him of all reasoning power, and leaves him with a bitter hatred against the world of honesty and respectability. He attributes all his misfortunes to the man who got him to sign the release for damages, and with brain afire, he calls upon him, bent upon vengeance.

At the sight of the man in his happy home, Cassidy becomes crazed with anger, and is about to shoot the author of his misfortunes, when the sight of a little child coming in to kiss her father good-night stays his hand, and recalls to his maddened brain the picture of his own little darling, now sleeping peacefully in her grave.

Poor Cassidy comes to his right senses at the sight of the innocent babe, and again becomes an industrious citizen, sadder, but wiser, and leaves vengeance to a Higher Power.

"FROM WALLACE TO GRANT"

Champion Release, July 10th

It was at Shiloh Church and Pittsburg Landing, the 6th and 7th of April, 1862. Albert S. Johnson, at the head of his troops, had driven the Federals almost into the river. Grant, on his way up river, had ordered Gen. Lew Wallace, who was at Crump's Landing, to join him in case the enemy attacked Grant on the left, which they did. As he proceeded, however, Wallace found that it led him in the teeth of the Confederates, and that he must retrace his steps; but General Grant must be notified at once of the situation.

A volunteer was called for, and Geo. Hurlburt, a nephew of the general of the same name, was soon dashing off on horseback with the despatches. A body of Confederate cavalry was soon in hot pursuit. At great speed he swung from his horse to an overhanging limb of a tree, and his horse sped on. His pursuers followed the riderless steed. George immediately came down and made for the river. Having discovered the ruse, the soldiers counter-chased, and made for the messenger. But George plunged in and swam to the opposite shore. The amazed cavalrymen bore after him on horse. His capture now seemed imminent.

Gaining the bank, George started for a mansion by the road, where also stood a beautiful girl. Although the daughter of a Confederate officer, her heart went out to the handsome youth in his dire extremity. She welcomed him within, and bandaged his wounded head, and at his request, secreted the despatches in the liniment. While the enemy pounded on the doors, she helped him to the upper floor, and returned to repel the invaders. They finally entered.

In the meantime, George made a rope of sheets, slid down upon the enemy's horses and dashed off. Recrossng the river a little farther down, he made his way to where the imperturbable and silent General Grant was watching the Confederate's terrible onslaught.

The despatch put new courage into the general and his aides. He made a new disposition of his force, and the next day the enemy were thoroughly routed.

After the war, the gallant George renewed the friendship of the beautiful Southern girl. We need not dwell on the outcome. Both attained their meed of happiness at the altar.

"TONY WOULD BE A COWBOY"

Champion Release, July 12th

To begin with, the central laugh provoker is a boy—an office boy—a regular dyed-in-the-wool, yellow-backed, novel-reading, snub-nosed office-boy. His imagination creates howling Indians in every corner of the office; he stabs them with a screw-driver, and yells and howls like a whole tribe of Apaches, to beat the band.

Then, his employer, coming in, beats him, and he has to beat it for fair; however, not before several volumes beat around that same employer's head.

We next see him in a picture house doing stunts. A cowboy picture has started him on his mad career. He climbs over the heads of the audience and dances a jig on the piano keys, while the fair pianiste ducks down in wild alarm at his hideous yells and freakish demonstrations. But a husky attendant now puts in an appearance, and lifting him bodily in his arms, ejects him from the show. But as he is fired out, he lands feet down like a frisky feline, reading his favorite "Yellow-eyed Pete."

We next see him at a costumers, knocking things topsy-turvy, and then he goes forth in true Western style for the land of the Golden Sunset. Out in the Western wilds he gives full swing to his rambunctious hilarity. He startles the natives, red and white, by the joyous exuberance which oozes from him at every pore of his delirious imagination, and which finds vent and form in shootings and rough ridings, as novel as they are amazing, and as startling as they are novel.

"THE QUESTION"

Powers Release, July 1st

POWERS PICTURE PLAYS
TRADE MARK

The love affair of a beautiful Jewish girl and a young man of Catholic religion culminates in marriage. The parents of the girl strongly resent the match, but on the man's side of the house his father sticks by him although his mother and sister desert him.

As a result of the marriage a child is born, and the question of baptism brings to the home of the couple their parents, together with a Rabbi and a Catholic Priest. The discussion between the parents as to which service shall be performed becomes rather heated, but the heads of the two churches clasp hands and pointing toward Heaven decide to leave the Baptism to a higher power.

The man tires of the continual religious discussions that arise with his wife and goes back to his father, leaving the child and its mother alone. The man's father forces him to return, however, and everything goes smoothly until the boy becomes six years of age. At this time the lad is playing ball and in a spirit of fun throws the ball at a passing Jewish peddlar, felling him to the ground. The old man is carried to the home of the boy and there recognizes in the mother his own child, and is enraged at this discovery and leaves the house in a rage.

Later the child is taken sick and is on his death-bed when his grand parents are all brought together in time to see him pass away.

The question of how the story finishes is left open for the solution of the audience.

"AT A QUARTER OF TWO"

Imp Release, July 13

Dan Nolan is seated in his humble home, hungry and in the depths of despair. A mechanic, he has been without work for weeks on account of a strike. A fellow workman enters and tells him there is no prospect for a speedy settlement of the labor trouble and the future looks black. Driven to desperation by hunger, he resolves to steal.

He passes a residence and notes that it is easy of egress. Climbing the trellis work, he cuts the telephone wires, thus preventing the summoning of police, and enters the house. It is the home of Homer Warren, and the household is saddened by the serious illness of a little daughter.

Nolan in prowling about the house enters the room in which the child is ill and secretes himself in a closet, watching operations through the keyhole. He sees the nurse endeavor to summon a physician by telephone and her failure. She runs out hastily, and when she returns is accompanied by a doctor. Nolan sees the physician examine the child and notes the gravity of the case as indicated by the doctor. The nurse and the mother are nearly exhausted from their long vigil and the doctor impresses upon them the importance of administering the medicine promptly at the hour indicated on the directions.

Nolan waits in the closet and sees the mother leave the room yawning. The nurse seats herself by the bedside of the child and is soon sleeping soundly. Nolan waits for the time and, emerging from hiding, notes that the hour has arrived for the giving of the medicine by reading the written instructions. Tiptoeing over to the table, he pours out the medicine and, arousing the child, tenderly administers the dose and leaves the room.

He emerges from the house, connects the telephone wires and walks away, satisfied that he has not stolen and happy in the knowledge that he has been of service to the people whose house he has entered.

The child awakens and the nurse arouses. The mother is called and the father enters the room, all having slumbered, unconscious of the fact that the life of the little one depended on their vigilance. They glance at the clock and realize that the hour has long past when the medicine should have been given. They look at the hottle and discover the note left by their visitor, apprising them of the fact that he carried out the instructions of the physician. The child confirms the note and the parents are mystfied.

The next morning Nolan is informed that the strike is called off and he is once more contented, thankful that he did not steal.

"A GASOLINE ENGAGEMENT"

Imp Release, July 10

Flora Powell and Arthur Lennox are lovers, but the stern father of the girl has other plans for his daughter, preferring the Rev. John Maxwell for a son-in-law.

Arthur calls on Flora and exhibits the marriage license, hut the father enters and drives him from the house, telling the girl she must marry the dominie. Arthur is disconsolate hut receives a note from Flora informing him her father is to take her on an automobile tour in company with the minister. Arthur proves to he a resourceful young man and he visits the automobile garage and makes an arrangement to drive the car in which the tour is made.

The start is made and, unfortunately, the supply of gasoline is exhausted and the party is compelled to alight and push the machine to a friendly inn. Here Flora's father learns the identity of the chauffeur and is about to attack him when Arthur seeks protection in the cellar of the public house. The father follows excitedly when Arthur strikes a match near a barrel labeled gasoline and his pursuer btats a hasty retreat in terror.

Tne landlord descends to remonstrate with Arthur, hut he is frightened away when Arthur coolly drops the ashes of his cigar into the hunghole of the harrel. In wandering around the cellar Arthur finds a refrigerator filled with choice food and drink and he proceeds to appease his hunger and thirst, seated beside the gasoline barrel. Those outside are experiencing the pangs of hunger, but the boniface informs them that all the food is in the cellar. The minister essays to dislodge Arthur hut is frightened away by the prospect of an explosion. Flora, driven to desperation and yet enjoying the situation, ventures into the basement, where she is received with open arms by Arthur, who at once spreads a feast before her. They amuse themselves by throwing well-picked chicken bones through the win_ow to those famishing outside.

Once more the minister decides to enter the cellar and is kindly received by Arthur and Flora. Arthur seizes him and threatens to blow up the whole place, all dying together, unless the minister marries them instanter. Scared out of his senses the minister performs the ceremony with his knees shaking and the father is trembling with rage when he arrives on the scene, but is pacified by them offering him food and drink.

The ludicrous feature of the scene in the basement is heightened when Arthur explains to all concerned that the barrel which is supposed to contain gasoline is empty. Flora's father takes in the situation and freely forgives the young couple, giving them his blessing to the mortification of the minister who was forced to perform the marriage ceremony.

"AS A MAN SOWETH"

Great Northern Release, July 8th

A novel and effective film, conveying a strong moral lesson. On either side of a central partition two life histories are given. One is toasted by his friends as he enters manhood and finishes the night in a state of intoxication; the other spends this solemn evening in his career with his mother reading Holy Writ. So through life the contrast continues: one man rapidly sinks from bad to worse, the other rises steadily. The first, on leaving prison, where he has been placed for his share in a drunken brawl. has to appeal to the second, as an old school friend, for assistance. Met soon after by his old companions, the ex-prisoner has a drinking bout, and ends in delirium tremens. Fighting with a policeman he is arrested and transported, and in a highly effective concluding scene we are shown "the ocean between two human lives."

"FATE"

Rex Release, July 6th

Destiny is one of those things that we talk so much and know so little about. Fate, and her handmaiden Circumstance—what are they and why are they invincible? Yet here again we are talking much of what we know so little about.

Jack Norton had traveled the downgrade, had transgressed the laws of man. had trespassed the forbidden, and had paid the penalty. But he escaped from prison, and in some way mapped out, perhaps, ages ago by mischievous Fate, met sweet little Flora Brown. Jack looked into her eyes and the storm in his soul subsided, the rancor of his wounded heart was soothed. Those eyes of Flora were the gospel, psalm and a sermon themselves. Jack determines to leave his evil companions and the viciousness of his former life and make of himself a man worthy of the name and the girl. She says "yes" when he asks her the old question, and for the first time in his tempestuous career, Jack enters a life of love and peace.

In time a little stranger comes to bless the union, a baby girl with the wistful, wondering charm of the girl-wife and mother. Jack's cup of happiness is filled to the brim, and the path of life looms up rosy and bright and buoyant.

Enter Fate, with her mystic web, which forthwith she begins spinning. A fellow-prisoner of the old days meets Jack and recognizes him as the escaped convict. He demands blackmail to keep the secret. Jack gives him money, more and more, until at last there is no more to give. But the other demands, demands, and Jack, to save the innocent names of the two he loves—steals. He is detected. Society must he protected—so Jack returns to prison.

The long, sad years speed by, freedom is once more his. Yet not freedom, He cannot return to his wife and child, he cannot meet his fellowmen and shake their hands and look into their eyes. There is but one thing for him to do—to go on in the old way, in the evil way, go on till death releases the fetters.

He enters a house to steal and sees a little girl. She speaks to him, tells him that her father has gone away, that her mamma has brought her a new papa. but that she does not like him. And he looks at her and knows and—Well. Fate is a little pitying, too, for she summons her silent messenger and the anguish of a human heart at last finds peace in the valley of beyond.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Bernard Vonwinkle, 1594 E. Genesee, one-story motion picture house to cost $4,000.

Houston, Tex.—Houston Land Co. will erect an open air theater to cost $4,000.

St. Louis, Mo.—The Frank L. Talbot Theater Company will erect a new theater at 15 to 23 South Sixth street, to cost $100,000.

Milwaukee, Wis.—M. Rice will erect a new moving picture theater at Fond du Lac avenue, near Twentieth street, to cost $10,000.

Elkhart, Ind.—Plans for the remodeling of the Bucklen Theater have been prepared, necessitating the expenditure of $30,000.

Weiser, Idaho.—P. W. Alexander will enlarge the Elk Theater here.

Birmingham, Ala.—H. F. Eddleman will erect an airdome on Third Avenue and 19th Street.

Rock Island, Ill.—A movement is on foot to erect a new theater here.

Tolleston, Ind.—M. M. Winter will erect a moving picture theater on Martha near Second street.

Danville, Va.—Moses L. Hofheimer will erect a new theater on Main street.

Tampa, Fla.—W. M. Sipe has purchased the Bonita moving picture theater in Ybor City and will take possession.

Newark, N. J.—D. Wolf & Co. will erect a moving picture theater at 282 Washington street to cost $6,000.

Cincinnati, O.—Architect Kuntz is preparing plans for a new moving picture theater at Harrison and Westwood avenues for Harry Bley.

Eaton, Ohio.—C. D. Owens is erecting an airdome on North Barron street.

THE WESTERN FILM EXCHANGE
OF NEW YORK

The Best Independent Service in New York
Furnishing a Variety of 21 Reels
EACH WEEK
Special Attention Given to Out of Town Customers

FRANK MEYER, Manager
Representatives
LON VAIL RODNEY POWERS CHARLES THEALL
Telephone 2892 Bryant 2893
Forty-Fifth St. Ex. Bldg.
145 WEST 45th STREET

Data from Manufacturers' List of Releases

MEMBERS OF SALES CO.

AMBROSIO

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

	Feet
May 31—Tweedledum's Dream (Com.)
May 31—Exploits of a Napoleon Admirer
June 7—Two Good Friends (Com.)
June 7—The Human Tigress
June 14—The Evolution in Womankind (Com.)
June 14—Kinema Review, Turin Exhibition
June 21—Tweedledum and His Rescuers (Com.)
June 21—Lake Verbano and the Borromae Islands
June 28—Sixtus the Fifth (Dr.)
July 5—The Emperor's Debt

AMERICAN.

June 12—The Witch of the Range (Dr.)
June 15—The Cowboy's Ruse (Com.)
June 15—Law and Order on Bar L (Com.)
June 19—The Yiddisher Cowboy (Com.)
June 19—The Broncho Buster's Bride (Com.)
June 22—The Hermit's Gold (Dr.)
June 26—The Actress and the Cowboys (Com.)
June 26—The Sky Pilot's Intemperance (Com.)
June 29—A Western Waif (Dr.)
July 3—The Call of the Open Range (W. Dr.)
July 6—The Schoolma'am of Snake (W. Com.)
July 6—The Ranch Chicken (W. Com.)

CHAMPION.

May 8—Col. E. D. Baker, 1st California	1000
May 10—Making a Man of His Son	910
May 15—Gen. Marion—The Swamp Fox	950
May 17—Circle C's New Boss	950
May 22—With Sheridan at Murfreesboro (Dr.)	950
May 24—In the Great Big West (Dr.)	950
May 29—The Peril of Diaz	950
May 31—How He Redeemed Himself	950
June 5—Service Under Johnston and Lee	950
June 7—The Cost of Drink	950
June 12—Longstreet at Seven Pines	950
June 14—His Last Crooked Deal	950
June 19—Molly Pitcher	950
June 21—For Her Sin	950
June 26—War and the Widow	950
June 28—The Boy Scouts to the Rescue	950
July 3—Fighting Rev. Caldwell	950
July 5—A Cowboy and a Lord	950

ECLAIR

Apr. 10—Do Not Judge Rashly (Dr.)	955
Apr. 17—Dog and Wolf	660
Apr. 17—Jerusalem and the Mount of Olives	315
Apr. 24—Herodias	955
May 1—For Their Mother (Dr. Com.)	695
May 1—The Blue Nile	290
May 8—A Village Flirt (Com.)	910
May 15—Engaged in Spite of Themselves (C.)	910
May 22—A Mother's Distress	430
May 29—The Two Gardeners (Com.)	940
June 5—Impudence Punished (Com.)	550
June 5—Tommy at the Dentist's (Com.)	420
June 12—Caesar's Birotteau (Dr.)	950
June 19—Tommy Gets a Trumpet (Com.)	370
June 19—The Ingenious Accident (Com.)	620
June 26—The Death of Don Juan	965
July 3—Can He Save Her (Dr.)	515
July 3—Tommy Wants to Be an Actor (Com.)	435
July 10—A Child's Heroism (Dr.)	995

GREAT NORTHERN.

Apr. 8—A Confidence Trick
Apr. 15—Hamlet (Dr.)
Apr. 22—The Stolen Legacy (Dr.)
Apr. 29—The Cossack Duke (Dr.)	894
May 6—The Lucky Banana Seller (Com.)
May 6—A Would-be Sportsman (Com.)
May 13—The Nun (Dr.)
May 20—The Voice of Conscience (Dr.)	786
May 20—Berne (Switzerland) (Sc.)	204
May 27—The Love of a Gypsy Girl (Dr.)
June 3—The Bogus Governess	945
June 10—True Love Never Dies (Dr.)
June 17—Hotel Thieves
June 24—The Ghost of the Vaults
July 1—The King's Favorite

IMP.

Independent Moving Picture Co. of America.

May 8—Four Lives (Dr.)	300
May 8—The Fair Dentist (Com.)	700
Mar. 30—So Shall Ye Reap (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 3—The Lover's Signal (Dr.)
Apr. 6—The Image of Fate (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 10—A Good Cigar
Apr. 10—A Faithless Man
Apr. 13—The Storm
Apr. 20—The Hero (Com.)	500
Apr. 27—The Scarlet Letter (Dr.)	1000
Apr. 24—While There's Life There's Hope (Dr.)	1000
May 1—Second Sight (Dr.)	1000
May 4—The Temptress (Dr.)	1000
May 11—For Her Brother's Sake (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Master and the Man (Dr.)	1000
May 15—The Lightbouse Keeper (Dr.)	1000
May 22—The Forged Despatch (Dr.)	1000
May 25—The Minor Chord (Dr.)	1000
May 29—Three of a Kind (Dr.)	1000
June 1—The Last Appeal (Dr.)	1000
June 5—The Grind (Dr.)	700
June 5—The Chicago Stockyards Fire (Sc.)	500
June 8—Back to the Soil (Dr.)	1000
June 12—Behind the Stockade (Dr.)	1000
June 15—The Piece of String (Dr.)	1000
June 19—All for a Big Order (Dr.)	1000
June 22—The Fortune of War (Dr.)	1000
June 26—Love Is Best (Dr.)	1000
June 29—The Little Leader (Dr.)	1000
July 3—In the Sultan's Garden (Dr.)	1000
July 6—For the Queen's Honor (Dr.)	1000

ITALA

May 6—The Fountains of Rome
May 11—The Marchioness of Ansperti (Dr.)	950
May 13—Marriage Advertisement (Com.)	500
May 13—Foolshead Has Lost a Needle (C.)	500
May 18—Little Mother	950
May 20—Two Girls Love Foolshead (Com.)
May 26—The Little Rider (Dr.)
June 1—The Collector's Purse (Dr.)
June 3—International Exhibition at Turin.
June 3—Knows-All, Anthropological Doctor (Com.)
June 8—A Life for the Czar (Dr.)
June 10—An Odd Adventure of Foolshead (Com.)
June 10—Experiments with Forlanini's Hydra-Plane
June 15—The Rights of Age (Dr.)
June 17—The Physician's Monkey (Com.)
June 17—Foolshead, Somnambulist (Com.)
June 22—An Unbearable Son (Dr.)
June 24—On the Snowy Summit of Mount Blanc
June 24—Foolshead Is Jealous (Com.)
June 29—The Gentleman Fireman
July 1—Foolshead, Waiter (Com.)

LUX.

By Prieur.

May 12—The Postmistress (Dr.)	700
May 12—A Walk in Tunis	252
May 19—Bill at Work (Com.)	367
May 19—All Through a Rat (Com.)	475
May 26—The Two Cockades (Dr.)	698
May 26—Tidying Up Paris (Com.)	268
June 2—Just Bill's Luck (Com.)	403
June 2—Arnold Has a Good Trial (Com.)	462
June 9—The Companion Governess (Dr.)	639
June 9—Bill at Play (Com.)	331
June 16—Bill Loses His Mother-in-Law (Com.)	409
June 16—He Went for a Rest (Com.)	442
June 23—Billy's Day Out (Com.)	550
June 23—Weary Tom's Dream (Com.)	318
June 30—Bill Determines to Go (Com.)	455
June 30—Shortsighted Miss Prim (Com.)	426
July 7—Secret Service (Dr.)	888
July 14—Bill Learns to Take Cinematograph Pictures (Com.)	413
July 14—The Accident (Dr.)	540

NESTOR FILM CO.

Apr. 5—The Stolen Necklace
Apr. 12—A Midnight Adventure (Com.)
Apr. 19—The Rival Artists (Dr.)
Apr. 26—His Wife (Dr.)
May 3—The Other Man (Dr.)
May 10—After Twenty Years (Dr.)
May 17—His Second Choice (Com.)
May 24—At Panther Creek (Dr.)
May 31—The Savage (Dr.)
May 31—A Sure Cure (Com.)
June 7—The Cowpuncher (Dr.)
June 7—The Little Burglar (Com.)
June 14—The Sheriff's Mistake (Dr.)
June 14—The Plan that Failed (Com.)
June 21—At Sunset Ranch (Dr.)
June 21—Just His Luck (Com.)
June 28—The Gunfighter (Dr.)
July 1—Mutt and Jeff on the Job (Com.)
July 5—A Message from the West (Dr.)

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO.

("Bison")

May 16—The Broncho Buster's Rival
May 19—The Cheyenne Medicine Man
May 23—The Outlaw and the Female Detective
May 26—Brave Swift Eagle's Peril
May 30—A Redskin's Bravery
June 2—A Tale of the Foothills
June 6—His Lordship's Hunting Trip (Com. Dr.)
June 9—A Child of the Rancho (Dr.)
June 13—A Squaw's Retribution
June 16—The Desert's Lure
June 20—The Dude Cowboy (Com.)
June 23—The Foreman's Mine
June 27—An Indian's Love (Dr.)
June 30—The Cowboy's Vacation
July 4—The Unloaded Gun
July 7—Blacksnake's Treachery

POWERS' PICTURE PLAYS

	Feet
Apr. 25—Melody of Fate (Dr.)
Apr. 29—Hearts Under Oilskins (Dr.)
May 2—The Crisis (Dr.)
May 2—The Joys of Persecution (Com.)
May 6—The Awakening of Galatea (Dr.)
May 9—The Four of Us (Com.)
May 9—Contagion (Com.)
May 13—As Your Hair Grows Whiter (Dr.)
May 16—Oklahoma (Dr.)
May 16—A Matrimonial Surprise (Com.)
May 20—Gunga Din (Dr.)
May 23—Her Atonement
May 27—Fifty Years Ago
May 30—Civilization
June 3—Eyes That See Not (Dr.)
June 6—The Black Heart (Dr.)
June 10—The Stranger's Plate (Dr.)
June 13—Smith's Marmalade (Com.)
June 17—The Haunted Island (Dr.)
June 17—A Concert Hall Romance
June 20—How Women Win (Com.)
June 20—A Spring Tragedy
June 24—Oh, Say, Jim
June 27—Only the Master Shall Judge
June 27—Summer Madness (Com.)
July 1—The Question (Dr.)

RELIANCE

June 14—All Alone (Dr.)
June 17—A Pair of Pants (Com.)
June 17—A Bashful Son (Com.)
June 21—The Price of Vanity
June 24—What the Tide Told (Dr.)
June 28—Trials of An Immigrant
July 1—The Orphan
July 5—The Golden Rule
July 8—Thou Shalt Not Lie

REX

May 4—The Ultimate Sacrifice
May 11—The Guardsman (Dr.)
May 18—An Exception to the Rule (Com.)
May 25—Called Back (Dr.)
June 1—The Monogram "J. O." (Dr.)
June 8—From Death to Life (Dr.)
June 15—The Twins (Dr.)
June 22—On the Brink (Dr.)
June 29—Securing Evidence

SOLAX COMPANY

June 14—A Bad Egg (Com.)
June 16—A Daughter of the Navajos (Dr.)
June 21—Cupid and the Comet (Com.)
June 21—Johnnie Waters the Garden (Com.)
June 23—Marked for Life (Dr.)
June 28—The Fascinating Widow (Com.)
June 28—A Terrible Catastrophe (Com.)
June 30—Greater Love Hath No Man (Dr.)
July 5—Starting Something (Com.)
July 7—The Silent Signal
July 14—The Girl and the Broncho Buster

THANHOUSER COMPANY.

Apr. 21—Weighed in the Balance	1000
Apr. 25—Poet of the People (His.)
Apr. 28—An Elevator Romance (Com.)
May 2—The Pillars of Society (Dr.)
May 5—The Sinner (Dr.)
May 9—The Railroad Builder (Dr.)	1000
May 12—The Regimental Ball (Dr.)	1000
May 16—The Colonel and the King
May 19—Lady Clare
May 23—The Stage Child (Dr.)
May 26—Get Rick Quick (Dr.)
May 30—A Wartime Wooing
June2 —A Circus Stowaway
June 6—The Stepmother
June 9—Motoring
June 9—The Rescue of Mr. Henpeck
June 13—Little Old New York (Dr.)
June 16—Flames and Fortune (Dr.)
June 20—The Coffin Ship
June 23—Foxy Grandma
June 27—Courting Across the Court
June 30—Lorna Doone
July 4—The Declaration of Independence
July 7—The Court's Decree

YANKEE FILM COMPANY

Apr. 21—The Minister's Son (Dr.)
Apr. 24—Why the Sheriff Resigned (Dr.)
Apr. 28—The Girl of the Coral Reefs (Dr.)
May 1—A Kentucky Girl (Dr.)
May 5—Zelda, the Gypsy (Dr.)
May 8—In Sunny Italy (Dr.)
May 12—The Angelus Bell (Dr.)
May 15—An Indian Brave's Conversion (Dr.)
May 19—The Banana Planter's Peril (Dr.)
May 22—The Little Western Rose (Dr.)
May 26—Thwarted by Nell Pierce (Dr.)
May 29—The Birth Mark (Dr.)
June 2—His Romance (Dr.)
June 5—The Scandal Monger (Dr.)
June 9—Mrs. Biffin's Demise (Dr.)
June 12—Thou Shalt Pay (Dr.)
June 16—The New Congressman (Dr.)
June 19—Sun Bonnet Sue (Dr.)
June 23—The Two Roads (Dr.)
June 26—His Romance (Dr.)
June 30—The Angelus Bell (Dr.)
July 3—Groucho's Quiet Fourth (Com.)
July 7—His Great Sacrifice (Dr.)

A BATTLE OF FEASTS

By Morrill Hazard

Copyright by Alfred H. Saunders.

Scene I.
A police station decorated for Christmas. Irish captain discovered behind desk. Enter squad of policemen. A spokesman steps forward and presents a turkey to captain. He makes a speech. Enter captain's son and daughter—eleven or twelve years of age—with a domestic oil can. He kisses children. They tell him that they have been sent for oil. He gives them the turkey and takes charge of oil can. Exeunt children with turkey. Captain shakes hands with squad and departs with oil can.

Scene II.
A kitchen of average home appointments. Wife of Irish captain—large, strong woman—and the two children discovered. They watch the clock. The turkey, ready for oven of gasoline stove, is waiting on kitchen table, but there is no gasoline. Enter captain with his can of gasoline. They greet him joyfully. Captain removes lighted cigar from his lips and lays it on table so that he can kiss wife and children. He rejoices over turkey. He takes up cigar and puffs it industriously in order to restore the light. He takes up oil can, and family eagerly assist him to fill tank of stove while he puffs his cigar. Suddenly the gasoline stove blows up.

Scene III.
Enlarged family of Irish captain with blackened faces.

Scene IV.
Captain's kitchen in state of wreck as to stove, but turkey on table is safe. Captain and family in torn garments discovered around turkey—all lamenting accident, loss of dinner. Captain has an idea. He puts on civilian clothes, takes up turkey in its pan and leaves kitchen.

Scene V.
A bake shop with large ovens. Baker discovered. Enter captain with the turkey. Baker places turkey in oven to bake and writes out a receipt for captain.

Scene VI.
Enlarged receipt:

> "No. 11. John Dough, baker, received one turkey to be roasted and delivered to bearer of this ticket. (Signed) > John Dough."

Scene VII.
The bake shop. Baker and captain discovered. Captain receives baker's receipt and departs.

Scene VIII.
Captain's kitchen. Wife and children discovered repairing shattered kitchen. Enter captain. He flourishes ticket. All dance and rejoice. Exit captain. Family jubilates.

Scene IX.
A groggery of unpretentious appointments. Several men discovered drinking at bar—barkeeper behind bar. Enter captain. Displays the turkey receipt. Invites all to drink. They celebrate until captain is tipsy. Enter a Jew who remains apart from others. Captain says farewell and departs, but as he goes he loses his turkey receipt. Jew pounces upon receipt as it falls to the floor. Jew reads receipt secretly and hugs it to his bosom.

Scene X.
Captain's kitchen. Wife and children watching clock discovered. Enter captain, quite tipsy. They demand turkey. In consternation he hunts for the ticket—it is gone. Enter a messenger with note.

Scene XI.
Enlarged note:

> "My Dear Captain: I saw Ikey Cohen, the peddler, steal your turkey ticket from the saloon floor where you dropped it. Jimmie, barkeeper."

Scene XII.
Captain's kitchen. Captain's wife reading note surrounded by family discovered. She puts on hat and cloak and children do same. She takes captain by collar and drags him out, followed by children.

Scene XIII.
The groggery. The Jew with his turkey ticket discovered thinking. Customers drinking at bar; barkeeper behind bar. Enter a German with a goose. Jew has an idea. Offers to trade turkey ticket for goose. The German accepts ticket. Exit Jew with goose. The German drinks at bar and flourishes turkey ticket. Enter a colored man with a chicken. The German has an idea. He offers to trade turkey tieket for the chicken. The colored man accepts. Exit the German with chicken. The colored man celebrates at bar. Enter a Chinaman with a dressed shoat. The colored man has an idea. He offers the turkey ticket for the shoat. Chinaman accepts. Exit the colored man with shoat.

Scene XIV.
A street scene. Captain's wife with her hand on captain's collar strides along followed by children.

Scene XV.
A street scene. Persons in preceding scene enter the groggery.

Scene XVI.
Groggery. Chinaman, bartender and customers discovered Exit Chinaman with turkey ticket. Enter captain's wife with captain by the collar and children. She produces note for barkeeper to read. Barkeeper tells what happened. Exeunt—Captain's wife leading with captain and barkeeper.

Scene XVII.
The bake shop. Baker discovered. Enter Jew with goose. Baker puts it in oven and gives ticket. Exit Jew. Enter German with chicken. Baker puts it in oven and gives ticket. Exit German. Enter colored man with shoat. Baker puts it in oven and gives ticket. Exit colored man. Enter captain's wife, barkeeper, captain and children. Captain's wife demands turkey, but baker refuses. Wife storms. Finally collars barkeeper and captain. Exeunt—Captain's wife with captives leading.

Scene XVIII.
Home of the Jew. Family of Jew discovered. They are eating and feasting. Jew displays ticket. All dance. Enter captain's wife, captain, barkeeper and others. Barkeeper accuses Jew. Jew confesses. Captain's wife demands ticket. Spies ticket in his fingers. Seizes Jew's wrist and forces him to give up ticket. Exeunt—Captain's wife with Jew by the collar followed by others.

Scene XIX.
Home of the German. Wife and family discovered at bare table. Enter German with ticket. Great rejoicing. Enter captain's wife with Jew, barkeeper, Captain et al. Captain's wife pounces upon ticket displayed by the German. Captain's wife collars German. Jew again confesses. Exeunt.

Scene XX.
Home of the colored man. Wife and pickanninies at window watching disconsolately. No dinner. Enter colored man with his ticket. All dance. Enter captain's wife with the German, the Jew, etc. Captain's wife pounces upon ticket in colored man's hand. Barkeeper and Jew justify her. Colored man appeals, but all are helpless. Exeunt—Captain's wife with colored man by ear and followed by the rest.

Scene XXI.
A Chinese laundry. Enter the Chinaman with ticket. He kisses ticket—rubs stomach, etc. Enter captain's wife and the rest. She confiscates Chinaman's ticket. Exit captain's wife followed by everybody.

Scene XXII.
The bake shop. Baker discovered. Enter captain's wife followed by the mob. She presents all the tickets to baker. Viands are brought from oven and captain's wife, children and captain carry them away, leaving grief and indignation behind them. The mob assails the baker. He flees. They pursue.

Scene XXIII.
Captain's kitchen. Enter captain's wife and captain with children bringing the roasted meats. Table is set. They prepare to eat. Enter the mob with baker. German, Chinaman, colored man, each storm for his original property. Captain's wife refers them to Jew. They seize the Jew and throw him from window.

Scene XXIV.
Street beneath captain's window. Jew comes flying out of window. Hits ground, bounces up and hits it a second time. Jew picks himself up and limps sadly away.

Scene XXV.
Captain's kitchen. All save Jew and family discovered. Captain's wife gives back the original property to each, the Chinaman, the German, the colored man. Exeunt—All save captain, wife and family. They sit down to eat their turkey.

Louisville, Ky.—J. M. Wentzell will erect a motion picture theater at 2051-52 Portland avenue, to cost $7,500.

Leavitt, Md.—Parlett's Moving Picture Theater was destroyed by fire.

Marinette, Wis.—A new moving picture theater will be erected on Hall avenue for Vanderburg and Rettke.

Asbury Park, N. Y.—Walter Rosenburg, of the Savoy Theater, is having plans prepared for a new theater at Red Bank.

Saginaw, Mich.—A new theater building will be erected by the Wolverine Theater Co., at Cass and Hamilton streets.

Springfield, Mo.—Bids for the construction and remodeling of the old auditorium skating rink at Jefferson Street and Pickwick Alley into a new vaudeville theater will be received up to the last of this month by the Architect, Frank W. Hunt.

Cadillac, Mich.—Arthur Nordquist has purchased the Palace Theater in S. Mitchell Street, and will continue to operate same.

Wilmington, Del.—Alfred Downward will make improvements to the amount of $350 to the moving picture theater at 504 Market Street, owned by N. Levy.

Vandalia, Ill.—E. H. Harris, of Monmouth, Ill., will erect a new moving picture show here.

Staunton, Ill.—Meyer Bros. will erect an opera house here.

Akron, Ohio.—Christ Vogt will erect a new theater at 292 South Main Street, to cost $500.

The Western Amusement Co. has purchased the Royal Theater, 114 South Michigan Street, from J. W. Himebaugh, and The American Theater, at 118 South Michigan Street, from Thomas M. Ross.

INDEPENDENT RELEASES

MONDAY: American, Champion, Eclair, Imp, Yankee.

TUESDAY: Bison, Powers, Thanhouser.

WEDNESDAY: Ambrosio, Champion, Nestor, Reliance, Solax.

THURSDAY: American, Imp, Itala, Rex.

FRIDAY: Bison, Lux, Solax, Thanhouser, Yankee.

SATURDAY: Great Northern, Itala, Powers, Reliance, Nestor.

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"
IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE AIMATED PICTURE BUSINESS,
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
28 Large Pages. Eight Shillings per annum.
Editor-Proprietor: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABBRI.
la, Via Cumiana, 31 (Barriera di S Paolo) (Italy)
"La Cinematografia Italiana" is the official organ of the Universal Exhibition of 1911 at Turin.

DER KINEMATOGRAPH, DUSSELDORF
The leading Organ for the Motion Picture Trade in Germany.
Special Supplement for Talking Machines, &c.
Published every Wednesday. Annual Subscription 11/- Post Free.
Advertisements (4 columns to page); 2s. 6d. per inch. Situations Wanted, 1½d. per line.
Reduced Price for a Series of Insertions.
Publisher—Ed. LINTZ. Chief Editor—EMIL PERLMANN.

NORDISK FILM TIDNING
The first trade paper in Scandinavia.
Best advertising medium in North Europe.
Subscription 6 shillings.
Sample copy free upon request.
Editor, A. SEABURY, Post Box 163, Stockholm, Sweden.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.
The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England
THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.
MR. EXHIBITOR:
If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.
W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.
228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.
Telephone: 3790 Oxford

Cines Company of Rome
STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova
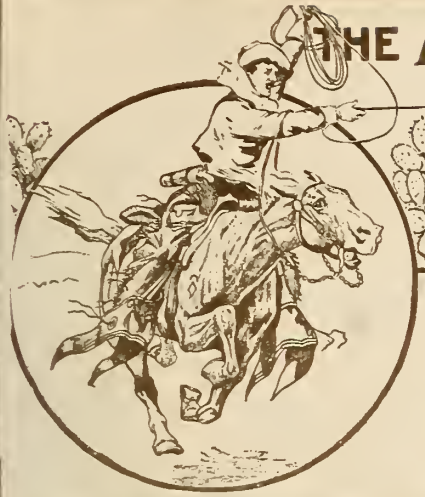
CAPITAL
PREFERRED STOCK - - - - - - - - LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - - - - - - - - - 3,750,000
FULLY PAID UP - - - - - - - - - LIRE 5,750,000
EXCHANGE MEN WRITE TO US FOR PARTICULARS OF OUR FIRST RELEASE
BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City
TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPH: CINES NEW YORK



THE AMERICAN FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO

"When you think of WESTERN think of Flying A Cowboy Films"

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JULY 3rd

"The Call of the Open Range"

A realistic running fight through the mountains terminating in a sensational rescue. Astoundingly rugged backgrounds. A film you will pack your house with. A "Cowboy" Drama.

Scene from "The Call of the Open Range"

Scene from "The Call of the Open Range"

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JULY 6th

"The School Ma'am of Snake"

"The Ranch Chicken"

"Flying A" cowboy comedies. Both replete with laughable situations tending to a roaring climax. Depicting cowboys in their funniest moods.

Scene from "School Ma'am of Snake"

Scene from "The Ranch Chicken"

COMING

RELEASE OF MONDAY, JULY 10th

"Cupid in Chaps"

A Flying A Cowboy Comedy

RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JULY 13th

"The Outlaw's Trail"

A thrilling Western Drama

ASK—REQUEST—DEMAND

Two Flying A Cowboy Films Each Week

BEG—BORROW—STEAL
ANYWAY—GET THEM—TWO OF 'EM

American Film Mfg. Co., Bank Floor, Ashland Block CHICAGO = = ILLINOIS

SUMMONS

COURT OF PUBLIC APPROVAL. FIRST DIVISION.

every city and county in United States and (Canada).

IN THE NAME OF THE PEOPLE THAT SUPPORT YOUR THEATER

to Mr. Exhibitor complaint having been made this day by

The Moving Picture Public

to show cause why you should not exhibit only Independent Pictures released by the Motion Picture Distributing and Sales Co., 111 East 14th St., New York City.

You Are Hereby Summoned To appear before any exchange buying any of the following selected weekly program.

MONDAY	IMP	ECLAIR	YANKEE	AMERICAN ...	CHAMPION
TUESDAY	THANHOUSER		BISON		... POWERS
WEDNESDAY ..	CHAMPION ..	SOLAX	RELIANCE	AMBROSIO ...	... NESTOR
THURSDAY ...	IMP	AMERICAN	ITALA		..... REX
FRIDAY	YANKEE	SOLAX	LUX	THANHOUSER	..... BISON
SATURDAY ...	POWERS	ITALA	GT. NORTHERN	NESTOR.....	. RELIANCE

on or before July 15th at 10 o'clock A. M.

To the end that an investigation be made of said complaint.

And Upon Your Failure To appear at the time and place herein mentioned, you are liable to a decrease of your box office receipts.

SEAL

Dated at the City of New York, this 29th day of June, 1911.

Motion Picture Distributing & Sales Co.

111 EAST 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

AUG 19 1911

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

Volume IV
No. 27

July 8
1911

PRICE
TEN CENTS

THE OLYMPIC

Largest Ship in the World on her Maiden Voyage

Photo by Yankee Film Co.

"THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN" COMING!

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

RELEASED FRIDAY, JULY 21

A Tale of the Heart

TWO LITTLE GIRLS

is the story of a sacrifice and a restoration—the one sad, the other happy. But that's what life is—sad and happy—bitter and sweet; and Thanhouser stories have made their reputation on their true-to-life qualities. The two little girls who figure so conspicuously are thoroughly lifelike; in fact, their coming together was brought about by one of those quick friendships that make life worth living. An easy-going, natural, summer story, this is especially welcome on your screen in these "dog days" when the popular taste is for "light" film-fiction.

No. 230 Code Word, Two

RELEASED TUESDAY, JULY 18

A Story of the Extremes

THAT'S HAPPINESS

takes up the old, old question of what constitutes the state of being happy and we offer Susie Smith's solution because it is the most remarkable we know of. Had Susie been a "Silk Stocking" her views on happiness would not have been interesting enough to bear filming, but as a mere sweatshop lady she furnished some happiness ideas that were very novel while very natural, and as such command a reel of film and your full attention.

No. 229 Code Word, Hap

THANHOUSER COMPANY NEW ROCHELLE — COMPANY NEW YORK

"THE PIED PIPER OF HAMELIN" COMING!

Cines Company of Rome

STUDIOS AND FACTORIES Rome and Padova

CAPITAL

PREFERRED STOCK - - - - - - - -	LIRE 2,000,000
ORDINARY STOCK - - - - - - - -	3,750,000
FULLY PAID UP - - - - - - - -	LIRE 5,750,000

EXCHANGE MEN WRITE TO US FOR PARTICULARS OF OUR FIRST RELEASE

BRANCH FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

445 Broome St., Cor. Broadway, New York City

TELEPHONE: SPRING 9232 TELEGRAPH: CINES NEW YORK

CHAMPION

MONDAY AND WEDNESDAY

"A Southern Girl's Heroism"

MONDAY, JULY 17th

Confederate Gen. Pleasanton loses his daughter to a Federal officer. See how it happened.

"A Daring Deed"

WEDNESDAY, JULY 19th

Two telegraphers—sweethearts—foil the attempt of ruffian miners to pilage a freight station.

ON SCHEDULE

Dubuque Water Carnival

CHAMPION FILM CO.
MARK M. DINTENFASS, MGR.
12 E. 15TH ST., N. Y. CITY.

W. E. GREENE FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

The Oldest and Largest Independent Film Exchange in New England

THE HOUSE OF QUALITY AND SATISFACTION.

MR. EXHIBITOR:

If you are desirous of Finding Out How to Improve your Present Service and Increase your Daily Attendance call and have a confidential chat with us. If you are unable to call, drop us a line.

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.
228 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.
Telephone: 3790 Oxford

There's a Lot of Good in the Worst of Us!

It never really pays to lose faith in a man; that the bread we cast upon the waters comes back to us; that generosity in humanity is repaid with interest sometime or other is the pictorial sermon in our release of

THURSDAY, JULY 13th

"The Vagabond"

A pathetic story of how a vagabond saved the life of his benefactor at the sacrifice of his own It will give you a broader view of life and us humans! What else can we say than that it's a REX!

Rex MOTION PICTURE MFG. CO.
573-9 Eleventh Avenue
NEW YORK CITY

SALES COMPANY KNOWS THAT REX IS THE BEST OF THE BEST OF THEM

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT

Simplex

THE PEER OF ALL

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES

ABSOLUTELY

FIRE—FOOL—PROOF

"Just the Machine the Department has been looking for."--City Official Inspector

EASIEST OF ALL MACHINES TO HANDLE, THREAD AND OPERATE

THE FOLLOWING INDORSEMENT SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

"SIMPLEX OFFICE,"
23 East 14th Street, City.

Gentlemen:

Since we first exploited the moving picture as an amusement attraction, sixteen years ago, at the Eden Musee, we have used many projecting machines. Money has been no object to procure the best results, and, as a consequence, we have the reputation of showing the clearest, steadiest and most satisfactory pictures in the country. The new "Simplex Projector," the first one of which was operated here and has been steadily used for the last three months is undoubtedly the best machine we have ever operated.

EDEN MUSEE AMERICAN CO.,
E. J. CRANE, Manager.

Operators Are Invited to Inspect the Machine at the Office

23 East 14th St., NEW YORK

© CLB246812

"The contents of this issue are copyrighted"

The Moving Picture News

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY

The CINEMATOGRAPH PUBLISHING COMPANY, 30 West Thirteenth Street, NEW YORK CITY

Telephone, 4092 Chelsea

European Agents: INTERNATIONAL NEWS CO., Breams Building, Chancery Lane, London, E. C.

Chicago Representative: J. J. Sullivan. 866 Graceland Ave. 'Phone Graceland 5053

ALFRED H. SAUNDERS, Editor.

This newspaper is owned and published by the Cinematograph Publishing Company, a New York corporation. Office and principal place of business No. 30 West 13th Street, New York. Alfred H. Saunders, President; John A. Wilkens, Secretary, and W. M. Petingale, Treasurer. The address of the officers is the office of the newspaper.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 per year. Postpaid in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada and Foreign Countries: $2.50 per year. All communications should be addressed to The Moving Picture News, 30 West Thirteenth Street, New York City. ADVERTISING RATES: $60 per page, $30 ½-page, $15 ¼-page, single column $20, $2 per inch. Discounts, 20% 12; 10% 6; 5% 3 months.

Volume IV July 8, 1911 Number 27

OUR FRONT COVER ILLUSTRATION

The illustration this week shows the Olympic—the largest steamship afloat—as she is leaving her New York dock. The cut was made from a piece of film and in the enlargement does not do full justice to the Yankee picture.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS

One of our numerous correspondents writes in a cavilling way regarding educational films He says in words, "What are you trying to do? Are you trying to knock your head against a rock or do you really believe that you can awaken your American manufacturers to produce educational films? As you well know, I have been in this business ever since it started in America, and I have been time and again trying to get some of the manufacturers to produce films of an educational nature. Their reply is, 'There is no money in it It is too much trouble, and we are making money better and easier as it is'; so therefore, my dear Saunders, what do you expect to accomplish by trying to get these beggars in line You might just as well try to brush back the sea from Brighton Beach as to get these fellows in proper order for educational films."

In reply to our correspondent we would say that the popularity of the motion pictures with the masses can be made one of the best educational advances it is possible to conceive, and we are hoping to make enough think so that some of the manufacturers will take up a strong line of educational work In fact, if we were allowed to publish some information that we have in our possession we could open the eyes of many of our readers as to what is being done along these lines. We have been pledged to secrecy, and as such we are in honor bound not to give particulars.

By taking the various health problems which so vitally affect the people and the health boards of every city, we think there is a wonderful field for good work. Take, for instance, the tuberculosis exhibit, the exhibit of the fly, the exhibit of subjects such as Charles Urban is getting up. We might say that the popular mind is more receptive to lessons taught in parables and illustrations than the manufacturers really think, and more of these would do good. Complaints have been made that the moving picture teaches evil by suggestion. If that is so, ought we not fully to recognize the educational character of the moving picture? Should we not consistently use that power for teaching what is good, wholesome, and necessary, and consider to do away with any evil suggestion that some feel inclined to find in the pictures?

THE SIMPLEX MACHINE

On page 4 our readers will find a preliminary announcement regarding a wonderful projecting machine, "TheSimplex." This machine is from the inventive brain of our old friend, Frank Cannock, who designed and manufactured the Edengraph, and as the Edengraph was then in advance of motion picture machines, so does the Simplex, his latest creation, eclipse the Edengraph. This machine has been tried for a considerable period in the Eden Musee and has given every satisfaction. In our next issue we hope to give diagrams and full description of this machine, which, in our opinion, if the various fire underwriters will see as we see, will entirely do away with the fireproof booth and the conditions under which operators are working to-day.,

SCENARIOS AND THEIR WRITERS

Some short while ago we made an offer to take care of scenarios and criticize the same. So large a number came that we were completely inundated with various kinds of papers, some good, some bad, some so indifferent, some so silly, that it tried our patience to read and reply to the numerous correspondents. We now wish to inform our readers that we have secured the services of a very successful author and reader, connected with the largest picture manufactory in the trade, to read and criticize manuscripts intended for moving picture productions. These criticisms will be thorough, helpful, and of value to the writers, and the opinions of our expert will give fair, honest work and try and make writers of those who show any talent. The criticisms will be thorough and fully instructive. They will deal with the title, the plot, the arrangements, the mechanical possibilities, the originality, and general availability, with suggestions as to probable markets where they can be placed; in fact, one of the most helpful assistants to those who are aiming to place their stories, and to those who have talent, it will prove the best education that they can possibly have anywhere in the moving picture industry.

The News vouches for the work, and as is well known, the reading of a popular publication is acknowledged by all successful scenario writers as being absolutely necessary to success. The Moving Picture News is replete with valuable information concerning the industry week by week, and is indispensable to any person who essays to write a picture drama, and to make it more popular among the general readers, and visitors, of the picture theaters. Every subscriber sending in $2.00 for a year's subscription, a scenario with return postage for the same, will receive a fair, honest criticism as we have outlined above. Any present subscribers can have their scenarios criticized for $1.00 each. We feel sure this department will commend itself to all who desire to make successful writers.

KINEMACOLOR BOUND TO BE PRODUCTIVE OF A REVOLUTION IN EDUCATIONAL METHODS

By Margaret I. MacDonald

The unveiling of one of the most marvelous feats ever accomplished in the world of photography is about to take place, when the motion pictures produced by the art of Kinemacolor (motion-color) will be shown to the American public for the first time. Contracts with some of the leading Broadway theaters are now lying in the office of the Kinemacolor Company of America, at 145 West 45th street, waiting to be signed.

Nine years and $60.000 have been spent on the experimental work, the happy result of which we are so soon to be privileged to look upon.

In an interview with an official of the company, I learned to my surprise that we owe the method of Kinemacolor not to the discovery of how to photograph in colors, but to the discovery of how to photograph in black and white. Kinemacolor gives us a pure, snowy white, and a genuine black, without the grayish cast which prevails in the old style moving picture. The film of the Kinemacolor picture is little different in appearance to any ordinary film, probably of a little more grayish tint than the others. No color is visible to the naked eye. The secret is not a matter of placing color in the film, it is the getting out what color has been photographed there. It has been known for years that color actually can be photographed, and that it exists in a minute form in all negatives. The secret of the whole matter is that the Kinemacolor Company have been able to produce machines both for taking and exhibiting, of such mechanical perfection as to make it possible to reproduce in the motion picture fac-similes in color and shape of the objects photographed. Any film that has been properly focused can be experimented with satisfactorily.

Kinemacolor in the perfection in which we are to see it also owes a great deal of its magnetism to a perfected method of obtaining faultless stereoscopic effects, and which is done by means of two negatives for each separate photograph, a right and a left negative, using the colors green and red exclusively—one is placed over the other, and what is left uncovered by the red is covered by the green, or vice versa. As a pair of human eyes looks at an object, each eye gets a slightly different view. In the ordinary methods of photography, but one of these views appears upon the photograph, thus falling short, when viewed by the pair of eyes, in depicting truthfully the qualities of the original object as seen in nature. Kinemacolor proposes to meet the requirements of the human eye by its wonderful method, placing before it a picture restful, beautiful, and lifelike.

From the advent of Kinemacolor into the world of science I predict a complete revolution in present educational methods. At present, in England, Mr. Charles Urban, the head of the Kinemacolor Company, is experimenting with the X-rays to see just how much can be accomplished with artificial light. A typhoid germ has been photographed by Kinemacolor methods, showing its entrance into the blood, the commencement of the battle between the white and red corpuscles, and the entire working of the disease germ. The throat and vocal organs of Caruso have been photographed by the same method, illustrating his manner of tone production. Wonderful experiments have and will be made with photographing plant life from the germination of the seed on through its different stages of development to maturity, ending with the termination of the life of the plant, in the case of annuals. Mr. Luther Burbank is expected soon to arrive in the city, when a regular course of work will be arranged for with him by the Kinemacolor Company. Illustrative material will be prepared for lectures on agricultural, botany, and all subjects dealing with plant life. A representative armed with the necessary ammunition in the way of moving picture machines, films, etc., will be sent to California to work in conjunction with Mr. Burbank. Many things of great interest and value to students of agriculture and horticulture are expected to evolve therefrom. Other sciences will be equally well taken care of by the Kinemacolor Company, and Education will meet with open arms the art of photography as discovered by means of Kinemacolor as being the best and most economic means of educating, not only the school children, but the gigantic public as well. Much unnecessary poring over books in the school child's life can be avoided by the adoption of the educational films which will in the future be released by the Kinemacolor Company of America.

I was favored at the offices of the company with a view of the Coronation pictures. To say that they are wonderful is putting it mildly. The red and gold of the soldier's uniform, the black and white of the surplices of the choir boys, and, in fact, the living color and shape of every thing in the picture, animate or inanimate, is astounding. They are startling in their perfection of coloring and mechanism.

I was also shown some pictures of flowers. No more perfect reproduction of a part of nature could be imagined. The bowls of blossoms were shown against a dark background. There were roses, poppies, pansies, carnations, chrysanthemums, lily-of-the-valley with its green and white calyx, as delicately beautiful as it appears in nature. Every different shading and tint was brought out in the most marvelous manner. Most wonderful of all was the Lillias Laburnum, shown first in a group in a vase, and then the individual blossoms; the white of the outer edge of the petals shading into a lilac pink in the center, with the dainty dark brown dottings which nature had given it, showing up in bas-relief against the delicate shades, was a dream. As the bowls were revolved by some invisible means there was ample time for meditation on the wonders of an invention the victory of which even the blossoms, as they proudly bobbed their pretty heads at me from the shadow land before me, seemed to acclaim.

Charles F. Gerrett

The News announces with much regret the death of Charles F. Gerrett, father of Mrs. Joseph Miles, age sixty-seven years, in the home of his son at Surf avenue and West Thirty-second street, Coney Island, N. Y., July 2d. He was employed in the Government printing office at Washington and was a G. A. R. veteran.

He decided to spend his vacation with his son. Sunday night he ate a rather heavy dinner. A few hours later he became ill. Although Dr. Jean Kaplan of 494 Stone avenue worked over him until the early morning his life could not be saved. Heart disease, aggravated to a fatal point by the heat, caused death.

The body was taken to Washington on the 12.20 train for interment. Floral tributes were received from the directors of the Sales Co., also from the employees.

Condolences are tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miles, with the full sympathies of the News.

THE ENTERPRISE OF THE SALES CO.

In all the principal cities in the United States and Canada the Sales Co.'s release of the "Coronation" was shown ahead of all others. Although the negative and prints all came over from England on the same steamship, namely, Mauretania, the Sales Co. were able to beat all others in securing their negatives from the Mauretania. This was greatly due to the special effort of Mr. H. A. Spanuth and Charles Abrams. It was they who succeeded in getting the government to send out a special revenue cutter exclusively for the moving picture men to meet the steamship Mauretania at midnight, for it was learned that she would not dock that night. The Sales Co. did not want to take any chances and had a special chartered tug following the United States revenue cutter out to quarantine in order to be on hand should there be any slip or any unnecessary delays. This tug was laying ready to be dispatched back to the city as quickly as the negative had been passed by the custom house inspectors. Once the revenue cutter reached dock the Sales Co. special automobile was on hand and tore through the streets, delivering that night all city prints of the "Coronation" and, rushing to their nearest plant, managed to fill all their orders in record time, thus again beating all competition.

It is another triumph for the Sales Co. and goes to show that they are always on the job to get out special releases before anybody else.

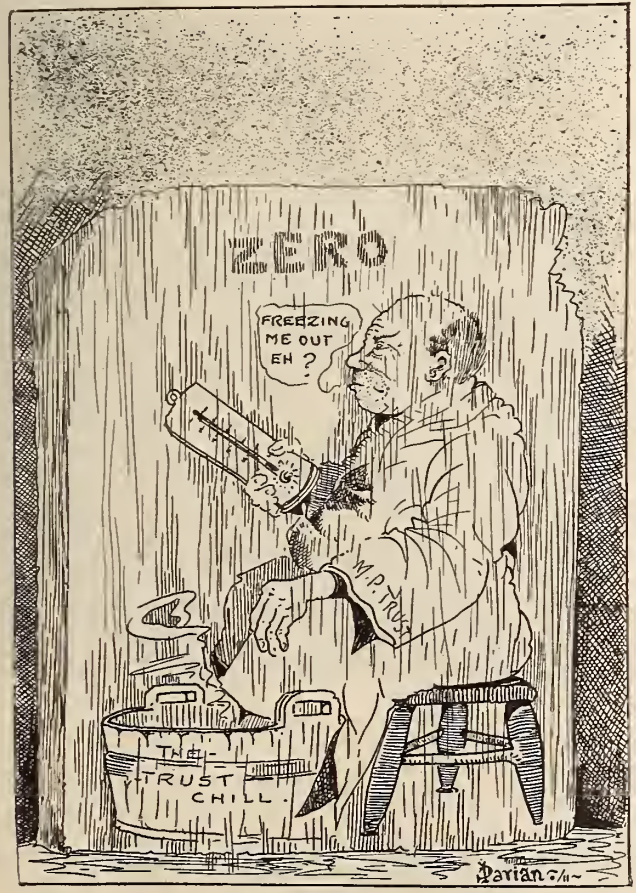
All the people on board the United States revenue cutter were keenly interested in trying to find out to whom the specially chartered tug belonged that was racing immediately alongside the cutter.

Mr. Spanuth and Mr. Abrams saw to it that the six men, including the captain on board the tug, were well supplied with refreshments and cigars, and in appreciation of which the officers and men made every possible effort to assist the Sales Co. representatives in beating all other moving picture manufacturing men in securing their negatives first.

THE IMPROVEMENT OF THE ENGLISH FILM

By "Britannicus" in Bioscope

At the outset let it be said it is not the writer's intention in this article to rail at the English producer, to condemn him utterly and all his works. That has been done ad



INDEPENDENTS FREEZING OUT THE TRUST

nauseum, and even if it were justified some time ago, it is not now—no unbiased observer can have failed to notice the general improvement in English films, rising, in particular instances, fully to the level of the best work of Continental and American producers.

Some of the difficulties of the English film manufacturer may be briefly stated. We say "English" because, curiously enough, practically no films, except local topicals, are manufactured in the United Kingdom outside England, or beyond the metropolitan area, in fact. The first great drawback, to which scarcely sufficient importance has been attached by critics, has to do with the national temperament. It is extraordinarily difficult to get English actors and actresses to overcome that horror of extravagance of gesture and action that is ingrained in the British race, and to let face and hands have that fuller liberty of expression so necessary to compensate the moving picture for its deprivation of speech. It is not a question of employing West-End performers of high reputation at bigger prices than now prevail; what is needed is a school for actors, and since there is no likelihood of one being established at present by actors themselves or by an association of the industry, the individual manufacturer perforce must train, with infinite labor, the somewhat raw material at his command.

It seems unkind to call on the film producer for further monetary sacrifices, but cheeseparing in this matter is false economy. He must imitate the American plan, and maintain his stock company, and if he can improve on his model in one particular and assemble a company of such a general level of attainment that the leading parts may be distributed promiscuously and not allotted always to one or two performers, so much the better. Then surely it is not too much to ask that, distances in these islands being comparatively small, the film producer should follow his United States rival in one other particular, and travel for local color. If the Kalem Company find it worth while to cross the Atlantic to get Irish backgrounds to their pictures, and to return a second time for more, surely the Englishman may venture to cross St. George's Channel or the Tweed for the same purpose! Think of Haddon Hall, Derbyshire, for instance, where both ancient castle and charming legend lie ready to hand. Why not stories based on Scott's novels acted and produced amid actual Highland surroundings?

One hears a great deal of the eternal question of plots; their quality and the adequate recompense of their originators. But is this matter so very pressing? There is a vast field open to the film producer in ancient, mediaeval and Victorian literature, which he can cultivate without charge; not necessarily "lifting" plots whole or slavishly following the originals, but adapting, selecting and expanding, as fancy or the exigencies of the market dictate. Nevertheless, if plots fresh from the modern mind are desired, let it be remembered that a considerable inducement is necessary to persuade a man with a dramatic idea, which he probably thinks good enough, if elaborated, to fill a West-end theater, to be content to turn it to less remunerative picture uses. A method by which a small royalty to the authors of the plot were paid on every copy of a film sold might be successful in securing to the plot-writer a proportionate share of the proceeds from a salable picture. One realizes, however, that the producer often has more to do with the success of a plot than the author, and it would be difficult to know where to draw the line if a system of paying royalties were begun.

Is it possible for any one man to combine in his own person all the qualities necessary to the production of first-rate films? Surely this is open to grave doubt, and the manufacturer would be wise to delegate some of his responsibilities, rather than lay himself open to the reproach that, being Jack of all branches of his trade he is master of none. One can conceive of the film producer's office being greatly extended. In a firm undertaking dramatic, comedy, topical, travel and general production, the producer should be a well-informed, well-read and travelled individual; he should watch for all coming topical events, and be able to give the camera-operator authoritative advice as to combining the scenic feature of the place with the particular subject desired at the moment. For instance, a picture of the animated scenes at the Cambridge "Mays" last week might have been preceded by a survey of the fine buildings of the ancient University town; its old-world features, quaint streets and scenic beauties, with perhaps a few typical Fenland pictures included.

Our ideal producer should be ever on the watch for unusual occurrences—anything capable of being converted into a film. It is novelty that people want, and all should be grist that comes to our mill. The producer should select from plots submitted to him, and ransack literature, past and present, mythology, history and legend, daily newspapers, even police court reports and novelettes—every conceivable source (including his own brain), from which may be extracted some new thing to satisfy the voracious demands of the vast picture public.

The duties just described are one man's work in every firm having anything more than a negligible output, and the head of the firm, much of whose time is taken up with the more strictly commercial end of the business, had better depute the organization of film production rather than do it himself inadequately. Specialism is the order of the day, and it is necessary in the film business as in every other.

Although the English manufacturer has difficulties to contend with, some of which considerations of space prevent one from even outlining, he has also great advantages in the scope there is in a country of this size for topicals, in the scenery and historic associations that make the American turn green with envy, and if he will only rise to the height of his opportunities he will have his own, and at any rate the Continental, market at his feet. Let us at all costs get away from the second-rate. It is gravely to be feared that many, not necessarily British, film manufacturers rate the intelligence of picture theater audiences so low that almost any plot is considered good enough, regardless of whether it contains even a modicum of the elements that go to make a dramatic story. So many of our picture plays are lacking in what Mr. Crummles called "the dramatic unities." The picture audience is drawn from a higher stratum than the patrons of the music hall—from a class in fact which would not go to music halls. Even in the latter resorts, however, the quality of sketches has vastly improved of late, and the picture theater should not only not be left behind—it should lead the way.

OUR MUSIC COLUMN

Waxahachie, Texas, writes: "I have been reading with much interest your very interesting as well as instructive articles on music as it should be played for the pictures, and must say that I have gained a great deal of knowledge from them. Would you kindly send me a list of music on the order of 'In a Cosy Corner.' We run the best Independent film and it is indeed a pleasure to be able to play for them in the proper manner. I would also be pleased to receive any other suggestions you may have to offer.

"Please inform me where I can secure some music for 'Hurrys,' 'Sneaky Music,' etc."

Your list has gone forward and I trust it will be what you desire. I am glad to note that the department has been of help to you, and trust you will make use of it as often as need be.

In this day and age of progressiveness, it is indeed a repetition of the race between the "tortoise and the hare" when some managers are slow to realize the importance of music as a factor in business-getting for their theater. It is, indeed, a "tortoise" sort of a manager who will allow their musicians to play the wrong class of music for their pictures or the wrong accompaniment to a song. Inappropriate music may be all right for the unintelligent class that constitute a part of your audience,—but why need you cater to that class? Strive to have music at all times that will appeal to the better class,—the "ruff-necks" will be pleased no matter what kind is played.

Again let me mention the fact that while some managers may think they are making money by using an electric piano for the pictures, they are paying dear for it, far more than they save. Many of them have never tried to secure a first-class pianist, but seem content and satisfied so long as any kind of music is there; but, fortunately for the manager who does care and tries to please his patrons by using only the best musicians, the "electric piano" manager does not last very long,—they cannot if they have an exacting audience to deal with.

Not long ago I had the pleasure (?) of visiting a theater where an electric piano was used, and at the time I went in they were running a pathetic picture. Use your imagination for a moment, and come with me into the theater. There is a kind, tender-hearted mother, after all of her years of toil and suffering, dying. The scenes around her are hushed, the time has arrived when she is about to enter into that last long sleep that knows no awakening, and soon the pains and sorrows that have attended her throughout her life will be at an end,—her eyes wander around the room to the faces of her loved ones gathered there,—a faint sigh, and her life's work is o'er. Imagine all of this and all of the time that same electric piano was in its rattle-bang, out-of-tune way playing: "I don't Know Where I'm Going, But I'm On My Way." That picture (as well as every one shown in that theater, so long as the electric piano was there) was ruined, when with music properly rendered, the picture would have appealed to you as the manufacturers intended it should.

